The Lord is our defence: and the holy one of Israel is our kynge.

Thou spakest sometimes in visions vnto thy sayntes, and saydest: I haue layd helpe vpon one that is myghty, I haue exalted one chosen out of the people.

I haue founde Dauid my seruant: with my holy oyle I haue annointed him.

1. Reg. xvi. c.
34. p. u. d.

My hande shall holde him fast: and myne arme shall strengthen him.

The enemye shall not overcome hym:
and the sonne of wickednesse shall not hurte hym.

I shall smyte downe his foes before his face:
and plage them that hate him.

My truthe also and my merce shall be with him: and in my name shall his home be exalted.

I will set his hande in the see: and his right hande in the cloudes.

He shall call me: thou arte my father, my God, and the strengthe of my saluation.

And I will make him my spyghorne: hyer then the hynges of the earth.

My merce shall I kepe for him for evermore: and my cōsuuante shall stande faste with him.

His seed will I make to endure for ever, and his throne as the dayes of heuen.

But yf his chylde forsake my lawe: he shall not in my iudgements.

If they breake mine ordinances: and not my commandementes.

I will visit their offences with the rod: and their synnes with scourges.

Neuerthelesse my louynge kynnesse will I not utterly take from him: ne will I utterly take awaye my name from him.

My cōsuuante will I not breake: as disanulle the thyng that is gone out of my lyppes.

I haue sworne ones by my holynesse, that I will not faile Dauid.

His seed shall endure for ever, and his throne as the sunne before me.

He shall stande faste for evermore as the moone: and as the saythfull wyrtelle in he-uen. Selah.

But now thou forsakest and abhorrest thyne annointed: and art displesed at him.

Thou hast turned backe the cōsuuante of thy seruante: and caste his crowne in the ground.

Thou hast ouerthrowen all his hedges: and hast broken downe his strong holdes.

All they that go by, spyle him: he is become a rebuke vnto his neyghbours.

Thou settest vpon the right hande of his enemies: and makest all his aduersaries to reioyse.

Thou hast taken awaye the strengthe of his wordes: and gyrded him not wiche the battayle.

Thou hast put out his gloire: and cast downe his glorye in the ground.

The dayes of his youthe hast thou shortened: and covered him with dishonour.

Selah.

Lord, howe longe wilt thou breake thy selfe? for ever? Shall thy wrath burne forever?

I remember howe thou wast my kynge:
hast thou made all men for nought? what man is he that lyeth, and shall not be deceyved?

Woe a man that deserueth his owne soule from the hande of hell? Selah.

* Lord, where are thy olde louynge places, which thou sworedest vnto Dauid in truth?

Remember, Lord, the rebuke that the multitude of thy people doe vnto thy sayntes, and howe I haue borne it in my bosome.

Wherewith thyne enemies blaspheme thee: and slander the footstepes of thyne annointed.

Thanks be to the Lord for evermore:
Amen, Amen.

LXXXIX.

A prayer of David the man of God.

Lxx

Side, thou art our refuge frome one generation to another.

Before the mountaynes were brought forth, or euer the earth and the worlde were made, thou art God from everlasting a worlde without ende.

Thou turnest man to destruction: asynest thou sayest: come agayne ye chyldren of men.

For a thousande yeres in thy syghte, are but yesterdaye that is past, and lyke as it were a myghty watche.

As soone as thou scatterest them, they are euen as a drepe: and fade awaye sodenly lyke the grashe.

In the morninge it is grene and groweth up: but in the euynge it is cut downe and withered.

For we consume awaye in thy displeasure: and are aspayde at thy wrathfull iudication.

Thou settest our myshedes before the: and our synnes in the light of thy countenaunce.

For when thou art angrye, all our dayes are gone: we bynge oure yeres to an ende, as it were a tale that is tolde.

The dayes of our age are thye scoze yeres: and though men be so stronge that they come to foure scoze yeres, yet is their lengthe short but labour and sorowe: so soone passeth it awaye and we are gone.

But who regardeth the power of thy wrathe, thy fearefull and terrible displeasure?

I teache vs to numbere oure dayes, that we maye applye oure herres vnto wyle-dome.

Turne the agayne, O Lord, at the last: and regard vs vnto thy seruantes.

I satiffe vs with thy merce, and that sometime we reioyse and be glad all the dayes of our lyfe.

Comfort vs agayne now after the tyme that thou hast plagued vs: and for the yeres wherein we haue suffered aduersite.

Shewe thy seruantes thy myghte: and their glorye in thy gloire.

And the glorious matresse of the Lord our God be vpon vs: O prosper thou the worke of our handes vpon vs: O prosper thou oure holy worke.

XC.

Who so dwelleth vnder the defence of the most hye, and abideth vnder the shadowe of the almyghty.

He shall saye vnto the Lord: O my hope, my stronge holde, my God, in whome I trust.

For he shall deliuer the frome the snare of the hunter: and frome the noysome pesty-lence.

He shall couer the vnder his wynges, that he maye be safe vnder his feathers: his saythfulnesse and truthe shall be thy spyte and thy defence.

So that thou shalt not neede to be afraide for any bugges by night, ne for the arrow that fleeth by daye.

For the pestilence that creepeth in the darke-nesse: ne for the sicknesse that destroyeth in the noon daye.

A thousande shall fall besyde, and ten thousande at thy right hand: but it shall not come naye the.

Yea with thyne eyes shalt thou beholde: & see the rewarde of the vngodly.

For thou Lord art my hope: thou hast set thyne house of defence vnder hye.

There shall no euill happen vnto the:
neither shall anye plage come vnto thy dwellynge.

For he shall giue his angels charge ouer the to kepe the in all thy wayes.

They shall beare the in their handes, that thou hurt not thy face agaynst a stone.

Thou shalt go vpon the Lyon and adder, the young Lyon and the dragon shalt thou treade vnder thy fete.

Because he hath set his lone vpon me, I shall deliuer him: I shall defende him, for he hath knowne my name.

When he calleth vpon me, I shall heare hym: yea I am with hym in his trouble, I will deliuer hym, and bynge hym to ho-noure.

With long lyfe will I satiffye him, and shewe him my saluacion.

CXI.

After the Psalme
of David.

A Psalme of the songe for the Saboth daye.

It is a good thing to giue thanks vnto the Lord: and to singe praises vnto thy name, O most hye.

To tell of thy louynge kynnesse earlye in the morninge: and of thy truthe in the nyghte season.

Vpon an instrumente of tenne stringes:
vpon the Lute, and with the songe vpon the harpe.

For thou Lord hast made me glad thorow thy workes: and I will reioyse ouer y^e operation of thy handes.

O Lord, howe glorious are thy workes, thy thoughtes are very depe.

An vnwise man will not knowe this: and a fole will not vnderstande it.

That the vngodly are grene as the grashe: & that all the workes of wyckednesse do flourish to be destroyed for euer.

But thou Lord, O most hye, abidest worlde
without ende.

For loo, thyne enemyes, O Lord, loo, thyne enemyes shall perishe: and all the workes of wyckednesse shall be scattered abroad.

But my home shall be exalted like the home of an Antioyne, and shall be annointed with freshe oyle.

Myne eye also shall see his lust of his enne-myes: and myne care shall heare his desire of the wycked that rise vp agaynst me.

The

The righteous shall flourish like a palme tree, and grow like a cedre of Libanus.
Such as be planted in the house of the Lord, be fruitful, plenteous and gerne.
That they may shewe, how true the Lord my strength is, & that there is no vniuersall-nesse in him.

PSAL. XCII.

After the Psalms.

The Lord is king, and hath put on glorious apparel: the Lord hath put on his apparel: and girded him selfe with strength: he hath made the round world so sure, that it can not be moued.

From that time forth hath thy seat ben prepared: thou art from euerslasyng.

The floudes asyle (O Lord) the floudes lyft vp their noyse, the floudes lyft vp their waues.

The waues of the see are mighty, and rage horribly: but yet the Lord that dwelleth on hye, is mightyer.

Thy testimonies, O Lord, are verie sure: holynesse becommeth thine house for euer.

PSAL. XCIII.

After the Psalms.

O Lord God, to whom vengeance belongeth: thou God to whom vengeance belongeth, shewe thy selfe.

Arise thou iudge of the world, and rewarde the proude after their deservyng.

Lord how long shall the vngodly, how long shall the vngodly triumphe?

Howe long shall all wicked doers speake so dishonourably: and make suche proude borrowes?

They smyte downe thy people, O Lord, and trouble thine heritage.

They murder the widow and the stranger: and put the fatherlesse to death.

And yet they saye, tyme, the Lord seeth not: the God of Jacob regardeth it not.

Take heede ye brutish amonge the people: o ye fooles, when will ye vnderstande?

He that planteth the eare, shall he not heare? he that made the eye, shall he not see?

He that nourisheth the Weyther: and teacheth a man knowlege, shall he not punyssh?

The Lord knoweth the thoughtes of men that they are but hayne.

Blessed is the man whome thou lernest (O Lord) and teachest him in thy lawe.

That thou mayst geue him patience in time of aduersitie, vntill the peepe be digged for the vngodly.

For the Lord will not faile his people, neither will he forsake his inheritance.

And why? iudgement shall be turned agayne vnto righteousness, and all suche as be true of heart shall folowe it.

Who ryleth vp with me agaynst the wycked? who taketh my parte agaynst the euill doers?

If the Lord had not helped me, my soule had almost ben put to silence.

When I said: my force hath slipped, thynke (O Lord) helpe me vp.

In the multitude of the sorowes that I had in my heart, thy comforts haue refreshed my soule.

Whyt thou haue any thyng to do with the hole of wickednes, which ymagineth mischief in the lawe?

They gather them together agaynst Iacob of the righteous, and condemne the innocent bloude.

But the Lord is my refuge, my God is the strength of my confidence.

He shall recompence them thyr wyckednesse: and destroye them in thyr owne malice: yea the Lord ouer God shall destroye them.

PSAL. XCIII.

Come let vs praise the Lord, let vs truly reioyse in the strengthe of our sal-uation.

Let vs come before his presence with thanksgyng, and shewe our selfe glad in hym with psalmes.

For the Lord is a greates God, and a great kynge, aboue all goddes.

In his hande are all the corners of the earth: and the strengthe of the hylles is his also.

The see is his, for he made it, and his hands prepared the drye lande.

Come, let vs worshyp and bowe downe our selues: let vs kneele before the Lord our maker.

For he is oure God: and we are the people of his pasture, and the shepe of his hande.

To day if ye will heare his voyce, harden not your heeres, as when ye prouoked in tyme of temptation in the wilderness.

Where your fathers tempted me: proude me, and sawe my workes.

Fortye yeres longe was I grieved with that generation, and sayde: they are not my chyldren, they vnderstande not my wordes.

Therefore I sayd vnto the in my wrath: that they shoulde not entre in to my rest.

PSAL. XCV.

Synge vnto the Lord a newe song, synge vnto the Lord all the hole earth.

Synge vnto the Lord, and praise his name: be reioyng of his saluation from daye to daye.

Declare his honour amonge the heithen, and his wonders amonge all people.

* For the Lord is greates, and can not be challynged: he is moze to be feared than all goddes.

As for all the goddes of the heithen: they be but ydols: but it is the Lord that made the heuens.

Thanksgyng and worshyp are be-comyn: power and honoure are in his sanctuary.

Arise vnto the Lord (O ye kynges of the earth) asseye vnto the Lord worshyp and strength.

Arise vnto the Lord the honoure of his name: byng presents, and come in to his court.

Worshyp the Lord in the beautye of holynesse: let the hole earth stande in awe of hym.

Tell it oute amonge the heithen: that the Lord is kyng: and that it is he which hath made the round world so fast, that it can not be moued, and how that he shall iudge the people rightously.

Let the heuens reioyse, and let the earth be glad: let the see make a noyse, yea and al that therein is.

Let the feldes be ioyfull, and all that is in them: let all the trees in the wood leape for ioy.

Before the Lord, for he cometh: for he cometh to iudge the earth: yea his righteousness shall he iudge the world, and the people with his truth.

PSAL. XCVI.

The Lord is kyng, the earth may be glad therof: yea the multitude of people may be glad therof.

Cloudes and darcknesse are rounde aboute him: rightousnesse and iudgement are the habitation of his seate.

There goeth a fyre before him, to burne by his enemyes on every syde.

His lightnings giue shine vnto the world: he scytheth it, and is as a scythe.

The hylles melt lyke waxe at the presence of the Lord of the hole earth.

The very heuens declare his righteousness: and all the people se his glory.

Confounded be all they that worshyp ymagines, and kyle in thyr ydols: worshyp him all ye goddes.

Shew frateeth of it, and reioyseth: yea and al the daughters of Iuda are glad because of thy iudgements, O Lord.

For thou Lord arte the most hyest ouer all the earth: thou art exalted farre aboue al goddes.

O that loue the Lord, se that ye hate the thing which is euill: the Lord prestrucketh the soules of his sayntes, he shall deliuer them from the hande of the vngodly.

There is syngynge by a lyghte for the righteous: and a ioyfull gladnesse for suche as be iustified.

Reioyse therefore in the Lord ye righteous: and geue thanks for a remembraunce of his mercy.

PSAL. XCVII.

A Psalm.

Synge vnto the Lord a newe song: for he hath done marvellous thynges.

With his owne righte hande, and with his holy arme he hath gotten the victorye.

The Lord hath declared his saving helth, & his righteousness hath he openly shewed in the sight of the heithen.

He hath remembred his mercye and truth towards the house of Israel: so that at the end of the worldes se the saynge helth of our lord God.

Shewe your selues ioyfull vnto the Lord all ye landes: synge, reioyse, and geue thanks.

Praise the Lord vpon the harpe: synge to the harpe with a psalme of thanksgyng.

With trumpettes also and shawmes: O shewe your selues ioyfull before the Lord the kyng.

Let the see make a noyse, and all that therein is: yea the hole world, and all that dwelle therein.

Let the floudes clap their handes: and let all the hylles be ioyfull together.

Before the Lord, for he is come to iudge the earth.

Yea with rightousnesse shall he iudge the world, and the people with equitye.

PSAL. XCVIII.

After the Psalms.

The Lord is kyng, be the people neuer so vnpatient: he spyteth vpon the Lberubys, be the carthe neuer so vnquiet.

The Lord is great in Sion, and hye aboue all people.

O let men giue thanks vnto thy great and wonderfull name, for it is holy.

The hynges power loueth iudgement, thou preparest equitye, thou execute iudgement and rightousnes in Jacob.

O magnifie the Lord our God: saluatore before his fortchale, for he is holy.

Gioies and Raion amonge his Priestes: and Samucl amonge suche as call vpon his name: these called vpon the Lord, and he herde them.

He spake vnto them out of the cloudy pillar: for they kepte his testimonys, and shew that he gaue them.

Thou herdest them, O Lord our God, thou forgauest them, O God, & punished their own inuencions.

O magnifie the Lord our God, and worshyp him vpon his holy hill, for the Lord our God is halpe.

PSAL. XCIX.

After the Psalms.

A Psalm of prayse.

O be ioyfull in God (all ye landes) serue the Lord with gladnesse, come before his presence with ioy.

Be ye sure that the Lord he is God: It is he that is God.

to be that hath made vs. and not we our sel-ues: we are but his people, and the shepe of his pasture.

So go your waye in to his gates then with thanksgyvinge, and in to his courtcs with praise, be thankfull vnto him, and speake good of his name.

For the Lord is gracious, his mercy is euerlasting: and his trueth endureth from generation to generation.

ment: yea vnto the (O Lord) will I

Let me haue vnderstandinge in the waye of godlynesse, vntill the tyme that thou come vnto me: and so shall I waite in my house vnto an innocent deere.

I will take no wycked thyng in hande: I hate the synne of vncharitable, it shall not cleue vnto me.

A forward heere shall depart from me: I will not knowe a wicked person.

Who so pynche, slaundereth his neighbour, hym will I destroye: who so hathe a proude looke, and an hye stomacke, I maye not awaye with him.

Myne eyes shall loke for suche as be sayde full in the laude: it is at they more dwell with me: and who so loveth a goodly lyfe, shall be my seruant.

There shall no discreetfull person dwell in my house: he that telleth lies shall not tarpe

I shall soone destroye all the vngodly of the land: that all wicked men may be rote oute of the city of the Lord.

C. I.

C prayer of the sinner, when he was in woo, and powred out his complainte before the Lord.

Hear my prayer, O Lord, and let my cry-inge come vnto the.

Hyde not thy face fro me in the tyme of my trouble: enclyne thine eares vnto me when I call, O heare me, and that righte soone.

For my daies are consumed away like smoke:
and my bones are bent vp as it were a fyre brande.

My heart is synkten downe, and my the-ere lyke grasse: so that I forget to eate my bread.

For the voyce of my groming: my bone will scarce cleue to my fleshe.

I am become lyke a Pelycane in the wylde nesse: and lyke an hole in a broken wall.

I waite, and am euen as it were a sparowe sitting alone vpon the house top.

Myne enemies scyle me all the daye long:

they laugh me to scorne, and are sworne together agaynst me.

I eate ashy with my bread, and mingle my drynke with wepinge.

And that because of thine indignacion and wrath, for thou hast taken me vp, and cast me awaye.

My dayes are gone like a shadowe: and I am withered lyke grasse.

But thou, O Lord, endureth for euer: and thy rememb; auncle thowowe oute all generations.

Arise therefore and haue mercy vpon Sion: for it is tyme to haue mercy vpon her, yea the tyme is come.

And why? thy seruantes haue a loue in her stones: and it pyneth them to se the mountayne.

The Wylde shall feare thy name, O Lord, and all the hynges of the earth the maraille.

For the Lord shall buyde by Sion, and appeere in his glory.

He shal send hym vnto the prayer of the poore: destitute: and despayred not they be fyr.

It is shal be written for those that com-fiter: that the people which shall be borne, may praise the Lord.

For he loketh downe from his sanctuary out of the heuen to the Lord beholde the earth.

That he may heare the mourninges of such as be in captiuitie: and deliuer the chyldren of deache.

That they maye preache the name of the Lord in Sion: and his worship at Ieru-salem.

When the people are gathered together: and the kyngdomes also to seue the Lord.

He hath brought downe my strength in my journey: and shortened my dayes.

Yet will I saye, O my God, take me out awaye in the myddell of myne age: as for the yeres, they endure thowowe oute all generations.

Thou Lord in the beginning hast layd the foundation of the earth, and the heuens in the woykes of thy handes.

They shall perishe, but thou shalt endure:
they all shall waite vnto the as both a garment as a vestment: shalte thou chaunge them, and they shall be chaunged.

But thou art the same, and thy yeres shall not faile.

The chylidren of thy seruantes shall confytne: and they shal be as the chylidren of the heu.

C. II.

C. II. Psalme.

Praise the Lord, O my soule, and all that is within me, praise his holy name.

Praise the Lord, O my soule, and forget not all his benefites.

Which forgiveth all thy synnes: and hea-leth all thine infirmities.

Which saureth thy lyfe from destruction: & enricheth the with mercy, and lounge hynd-ereth.

Which satisfieth thy desyre with good thynges: makynge the yonge and lusty as an Egle.

The Lord executeth rightousnesse & iudge-ment, for all them that suffer wronge.

He shewed his wayes vnto Moyses: and his traces vnto the chylidren of Israel.

The Lord is full of compassion and mercy: longe sufferynge, and of greates goodnesse.

He will not alwaye be chiding: neither will he kepe his anger for euer.

He hath not deale with vs after our syn-nes: ne rewarded vs accordyng to oure wickednesse.

For loke howe hye the heuen is in comparison of the earth: so great is his mercy also toward them that feare him.

Loke howe wyde the East is from the West: so farre hath he sette oure synnes from vs.

Yea like as a father pitieth his owne chylde:
so is the Lord merciful vnto them that fear him.

For he knoweth wherof we be made: he rememb; that we are but dust.

That a man in his tyme is but as a grasse:
and flourisheth as a flower of the feild.

For as soone as the wynde goeth ouer it, it is gone: and the place therof knoweth it no more.

But the merciful goodnesse of the Lord, endureth for euer and euer, vpon them that feare him, and his rightousnesse vpon their chylidren for euer.

Suche as kepe his commandmentes: and speake vpon his commandmentes, to doo them.

The Lord hath prepared his seat in heuen:
and his kyngdome ruleth ouer all.

He shall the Lord ye angels of his, ye that be mighty in strengthe: fulfillynge his commandment, that men may heare the voyce of his woordes.

O praise the Lord all ye his hostes, ye ser-uantes of his, that do his pleasure.

O praise god of the Lord all ye woordes of his, in every place of his dominion: praise the Lord, O my soule.

PSAL.

C. III.

Praise the Lord, O my soule: O Lord my God, thou arte become excedyng glorious, thou arte clothed with mayesty and honoure.

Thou hast taken thy self with light, as it were with a garment, thou spreadest out thy heuen like a tabernacle.

Thou boldest it aboute with waters, & ma-dest the cloudes thy chaire, and goest vpon the wynges of the wynde.

Thou hast sayde the earth vpon her foundation, that it neuer moueth at any tyme.

Thou coverest it with the type like as with a garment: so that the waters stande above the hylls.

But at thy rebuke they flee, at the voyce of thy thonder they are ashyde.

(Then are the hylls seene aloft, and the va-leys benethe in their place which thou hast appointed for them.)

Thou hast set them their boundes, whiche they may not passe, that they turne not agayn to couer the earth.

Thou causeth the welles to springe by amonge the vales, and the waters to runne amonge the hylls.

That al beeres of the feild may haue drynke, and that the wyld asses maye quenche theyr thirst.

Above vpon the hylls haue the foules of ayre their habitation, & sing among the bryanches.

Thou waterest the hylls frome above:
the earth is fylled with the frutes of thy woykes.

Thou bringest forth grasse for the catel, and geene herbes for the seruice of men.

Thou bringest forth out of the earth: wine to make glad the heart of man, oyle to make him a cheerful countenance, and bread to strengthe mans herte.

The trees of the Lord are full of sape: euen the trees of Libanus whiche he hath planted.

There make the byrdes theyr nestes:
and the fyre hylls are a dwellinge for the Stourche.

The hylls are a refuge for the wyld goates: and so are the stony rockes for the conyes.

Thou hast appointed the Moone for certaine seasons, the Sunne knoweth his going downe.

Thou makest darkness, that it maye be nyght: wherby all the beestes of the feild do moue.

Yea and the yonge Lyons whiche roze after they praye: and seke theyr meate at God.

But when the sunne aryseth, they get them awaye together, and lye them downe in theyr dens.

When goeth man forth to his woike, and to till his lande vntill the euenyng.

O Lord, how many folde are thy woyses, right wisely hast thou made them all: yea the earth is full of thy creature.

So is this great and wyde see also, wherby are thynges creeping innumerable, both small and great beestes.

There go the shippes ouer, and there is that Leuitathan, whom thou hast made to take his pastyme therein.

They warpe all vpon the, that thou mayest steare.

grue them meate in due season.

When thou givest it them, they gather it: when thou openest thy hand, they are filled with good.

But when thou hidest thy face, they are confounded: if thou takest away their help, they dye, and are turned agayne to their dust.

Agayne, when thou lettest thy breath go forth, they are made: and so thou renewest the face of the earth.

The glorious maiestie of the Lord endureth for ever: and the Lord endureth in his workes.

The earth trembleth at the loke of him: he toucheth the hyles, and they smoke.

I will singe unto the Lord as long as I live: I will praise my God while I have my beinge.

O that my wordes might please him, for my love is in the Lord.

As for sinners, they shall be consumed oute of the earth: and the vngodly shall come to an ende: but praise thou the Lord, o my soule. Praise the everlastinge.

L. Psal. xlii. b. Clave. ps. xlii. b.

O give thanks unto the Lord: and call upon his name: let thy people what thin- ges he hath done.

O let your songes be of hym: praise him, and let your talking be of all his wonderful workes.

Give his holy name a good report, let there be praises that like the Lord.

Seeke the Lord and his strength: seeke his face evermore.

Remember the merciful workes that he hath done, his wonders and the inventions of his mouth.

O ye seed of Abraham his servant, ye chosen of Jacob his chosen.

He is the Lord our God, whose punishments are shewed out all the world.

He is alwaye mercifull of his covenant, and promise that he made to a thousand generations.

Yea the covenant that he made with Abraham: and the othe that he swore unto Isaac.

And appointed the same unto Jacob for a lawe: and to Israel for an everlastinge covenant.

Sayinge: unto the will I give the lande of Canaan, the lot of your heritage.

When there was yet but a few of them: & the strangers therein.

What time as they wente from one nation to another: from one kingdome to another.

He suffered no man to hurt them, but reproved even kings for their sakes.

Touch not myne anointed, wo my Prophets no harme.

Moses he called for a teache upon the lande: and destroyed all the proud and hye.

But he had sente a man before them, say- inge: Joseph: whiche was sold to be a bond- slave.

They hurt his feet in the stocks: they perished his heart.

Untill the time that his word came, and till the word of the Lord had broken hym.

Then sent the kinge, and caused him to be helpere: the prince of the people had let him go.

He made him Lord of his house: and master of all his substance.

That he mighte reforme his prince after his will: and teache his senators after his name.

Israel also came in to Egypt: & Jacob was a stranger in the lande of Ham.

But he increased his people exceedingly: and made them stronger then their enemies.

Whose better turned so, that they had his people: and dealt vnto him with his servants.

Then sent he Moses his servant, & Aaron whom he had chosen.

These byd his tokens among them, & were in the land of Ham.

He sente darkness, and it was dark: for they were not obedient unto his word.

He turned their waters in to blood, & they died their death.

His landes brought forth frogs: & he sent them in their kinges chambers.

He spake the word: and there came all manner of flies and lice in all their quarters.

He gave them haile stones for rayn: & he smote them with his hand.

He smote their vineyardes and figgetrees: and destroyed the reeds that were in their waters.

He spake the word, and there were gnawing caterpillers innumerable.

These ate by all the grasse in their land, & devoured their fruits of the ground.

He smote all the first borne in the land, & the chief of all their substance.

He brought them forth with ships: & there was not one feeble person among them.

They were glad of their departing, for they were awaye from them.

He made a cloud to be a coveringe: and he made to give light in the night.

At their desire there came quailles: and he filled them with the bread of heaven.

He opened the rock of stone, and the waters flowed out: so that rivers ranne in the wilderness.

For why? he remembered his holie promise whiche he had made unto Abraham his servant.

Thus he brought forth his people with gladness: and his chosen with gladness.

And gave them the landes of the Hyeth:

when they take the labours of the people in possession.

That they mighte kepe his statutes: and observe his lawes. Praise the everlastinge.

Praise the everlastinge.

O give thanks unto the Lord: for he is gracious, and his mercie endureth for ever.

Who can expresse the noble actes of the Lord, or shewe forth all his prayse?

Blessed are they that alway kepe iudgement, and do righteousness.

Remember vs, o Lord, according to the favour that thou bearest unto thy people: & with thy saving helpe.

That we mighte see the pleasure of thy chosen, that we mighte crye in the gladnesse of thy people, and give thanks with thyne inheritance.

We have sinned with our fathers, we have done amisse, we have dealt wickedly.

Our fathers regarded not thy wonders in Egypt, they kepte not thy great goodnesse in the wilderness: but were disobedient at the see, even at the red see.

Nevertheless he helped them for his names sake: that he mighte make his power to be knowne.

He rebuked the red see, and it was dried up: he led them through the deep, as in the wilderness.

Thus he saved them from the hande of the enemy: and delivered them from the hande of the enemy.

As for those that troubled them, the waters overwhelmed them, there was not one of them left.

Then delivered they in his word, and sang praises unto him.

But within a while they forgot his workes, & would not abide his counsell.

A lute came upon them in the wilderness: so that they tempted God in the desert.

Yet he gave them their desire, and sent them forward at their wishes.

They angered Moses in the tentes, and Aaron the servant of the Lord.

So the earth opened and swallowed up Dathan: and covered the congregation of Aaron.

The fire was kindled in their company, the same burnt by the vngodly.

They made a calfe in the desert, and worshipped the molten ymage.

Thus they turned their glory in to the similitude of a calfe that eateth haye.

They forgot God their saviour, whiche had done so great thinges in Egypt.

Wonderous workes in the land of Ham: & wonderful thinges in the red see.

So he sayde he would have destroyed them, had not Moses his chosen stande before him in the gappe: to turne away his wrathfull indignacion, lest he should have destroyed them.

Yea they thoughte some of that pleasant lande, and gave no credence unto his word.

But murmured in their tentes, and hated not unto the voyce of the Lord.

Then lift he up his hande agaynst them, to smite them in the wilderness.

To cast out their seed among the nations, & to scatter them in the landes.

They toynd them selves unto Baalpeor: & and ate the offerings of the dead.

Thus they provoked him unto anger with their owne inventions, & the plague was great amonges them.

Then stood by phinehas and executed iudgement, and so the plague ceased.

And that was counted unto him for righteousnesse: amonge all posterities for evermore.

They angered him also at the waters of strife: so that Moses was punished for their sakes.

Because they provoked his spirit, & he told them playnly with his lips.

Neither destroyed they the Hethen: as the Lord commanded them.

But were mingled amonge the Hethen: & learned their workes.

In so muche that they worshipped theyr ymages: whiche turned to their owne de- cape.

Yea they offered theyr sonnes and daughters unto devils.

And shed the innocent blood of their sonnes and of their daughters, whom they offered unto the ymages of Canaan: so that the lande was defiled with blood.

Thus were they slayned with theyr owne workes, and went a howling with their owne inventions.

Therefore was the wrath of the Lord kindled against his people, in so muche that he abhorred his owne inheritance.

And gave the over in to the hand of the Hethen: and they that hated them, were lordes over them.

Their enemies oppressed them, & had them in subjection.

Many a time did he delivere them: but they provoked him with theyr owne inventions, and were broughte downe for theyr wickednesse.

Nevertheless when he sawe their adversities he heard their complaint.

He thought upon his covenant, and pressed them: accordinge unto the multitude of his mercies.

Yea he made all those that had led them away captiv, to pitie them.

Deliver vs, o Lord our God, and gather us from amonge the Hethen: that we may give thanks to thy holy name, and make our boast of thy prayse.

Blessed be the Lord God of Israel frome everlastinge and ever without ende, and let

O Gue thanks unto the Lorde: for he is gracious, and his mercy endureth for ever.

Let them give thanks whome the Lorde hath redeemed: and delivered from the hands of the enemy.

And gathered them out of the landes, from the East, from the West, from the North, and from the South.

They wente astray in the wilderness, in an untrodden waye: and founde no cite to dwell in.

Hunger and thyrst: and theyr soule sayned in them.

So they cryed unto the Lorde in theyr trouble: and he delivered them from theyr distress.

He ledde them forth by the right waye: that they mighte goe to the cite where they dwelte.

That men wolde prayse the goodnesse of the Lorde: and the wonders that he doth for the children of men.

For he satisfied the empty soule: and filled the hungry soule with good.

Suche as sate in darkness, and in the shadowe of death, being fast bounde in miserye and yron.

Because they were not obedient to the commandment of God, but lightly regarded the counsell of the most high.

Their heere was vexed with labour: they fell downe, and there was none to helpe them.

So they cryed unto the Lorde in theyr trouble: and he delivered them out of theyr distress.

He brought them forth of darkness, and from the shadowe of death: and brake their bonde in sonder.

That men wolde prayse the goodnesse of the Lorde: and the wonders that he doth for the children of men.

For he hath broken the gates of brass, and smitten the barres of yron in sonder.

Folyshe men were plagued for their offence, because of their wickednesse.

Their soule abhorred al manner of meat, they were even hard at death.

So they cryed unto the Lorde in theyr trouble: and he delivered them out of their distress.

He sent his word and healed them, & saved them from their destruction.

That men wolde prayse the goodnesse of the Lorde: and the wonders that he doth for the children of men.

For the greatnesse of thy mercy is high as the heavens, and thy faithfulness reacheth to the clouds.

For the greatnesse of thy mercy is high as the heavens, and thy faithfulness reacheth to the clouds.

These men be the workes of the Lorde, and his wonders in the depe.

For at his word, the storme of mynne and lightning by the waues thereof.

They are carried up to the heuen, and come agayne to the depe: their soule melteth away in the trouble.

They releeve to & fro, they stagger like a drunk man: and are at their wittes ende.

So they crye unto the Lorde in theyr trouble: and he delivered them out of their distress.

He maketh the storme to cease: so that the waues are still.

Then are they glad because they be at rest: and so he bringeth them unto the land where they wolde be.

That men wolde prayse the goodnesse of the Lorde: and the wonders that he doth for the children of men.

For the greatnesse of thy mercy is high as the heavens, and thy faithfulness reacheth to the clouds.

For the greatnesse of thy mercy is high as the heavens, and thy faithfulness reacheth to the clouds.

For the greatnesse of thy mercy is high as the heavens, and thy faithfulness reacheth to the clouds.

For the greatnesse of thy mercy is high as the heavens, and thy faithfulness reacheth to the clouds.

For the greatnesse of thy mercy is high as the heavens, and thy faithfulness reacheth to the clouds.

For the greatnesse of thy mercy is high as the heavens, and thy faithfulness reacheth to the clouds.

For the greatnesse of thy mercy is high as the heavens, and thy faithfulness reacheth to the clouds.

For the greatnesse of thy mercy is high as the heavens, and thy faithfulness reacheth to the clouds.

For the greatnesse of thy mercy is high as the heavens, and thy faithfulness reacheth to the clouds.

For the greatnesse of thy mercy is high as the heavens, and thy faithfulness reacheth to the clouds.

For the greatnesse of thy mercy is high as the heavens, and thy faithfulness reacheth to the clouds.

For the greatnesse of thy mercy is high as the heavens, and thy faithfulness reacheth to the clouds.

For the greatnesse of thy mercy is high as the heavens, and thy faithfulness reacheth to the clouds.

For the greatnesse of thy mercy is high as the heavens, and thy faithfulness reacheth to the clouds.

For the greatnesse of thy mercy is high as the heavens, and thy faithfulness reacheth to the clouds.

For the greatnesse of thy mercy is high as the heavens, and thy faithfulness reacheth to the clouds.

For the greatnesse of thy mercy is high as the heavens, and thy faithfulness reacheth to the clouds.

A songe of a Psalm of David.

O God, my herte is ready to synge, and thou shalt give prayse.

Awake, o my glorie, awake lute and harpe, I my selfe will awake right early.

I will give thanks unto the Lorde, among the people, I will synge prayse unto thee among the brethren.

For the greatnesse of thy mercy is high as the heavens, and thy faithfulness reacheth to the clouds.

For the greatnesse of thy mercy is high as the heavens, and thy faithfulness reacheth to the clouds.

For the greatnesse of thy mercy is high as the heavens, and thy faithfulness reacheth to the clouds.

With my hole hearte to I seke thee. O let me not go wronge oute of thy commandmen-tes.

Thy wordes haue I by dwelt in my heart, I woulde not synne against thee.

Praysted be thou, O Lord, O teache me thy statutes.

With my lippes will I be tellinge out all the iudgements of thy mouth.

I haue as great delecte in the waye of thy te-stimones, as in all manner of riches.

I will exerceise my selfe in thy commande-mentes, and haue respect vnto thy socera-

tion.

My delecte shall be in thy statutes, I shall forget thy wordes.

G I M E L.

O do well vnto thy seruant, that I maye lyue and kepe thy wordes.

Open thou myne eyes, and so shall I see out wonderous thinges in thy lawe.

I am a stranger vpon earth, O hide not thy commandmentes from me.

My soule breaketh out, for the very fervor desire that I haue allwaye vnto thy iudgementes.

Thou rebuked the proude, cursed are they that departe from thy commandmentes.

O turne from me shame and rebuke, for I kepe thy testimonies.

Since also sit and speake against me, but thy seruant is occupied in thy statutes.

In thy testimonies is my delecte, they are my counselers.

D A L E T H.

My soule cleaereth to the dust, O quene thou me accordinge to thy worde.

I knowledg my wayes, and thou hast me. O teache me then thy statutes.

Make me to vnderstande the waye of thy commandmentes, and so shall I talke of thy wonderous workes.

My soule melteth awaye for thy harmonie, O let me by accompage vnto thy worde.

Take from me the waye of lyinge, and graunte me thy lawe.

I haue chosen the waye of truth, thy iudgements haue I lapde before me.

I speake vnto thy testimonies, O Lord founde me not.

I will runne the waye of thy commande-mentes, when thou hast comforted my heart.

H. E.

Teache me O Lord the waye of thy states, and I shall kepe it vnto the ende.

O give me vnderstanding, and I shall kepe thy lawe, yea I shall kepe it with myne hole heart.

Leade me in the path of thy commande-mentes, for that is my desire.

Enclayne myne hearte vnto thy testimonies, and not to couetousnes.

O turne away myne eyes, leaue thy beholde vanitye, and quicken me in thy waye.

O stablish thy worde in thy seruant, that I maye feare thee.

Take awaye the rebuke that I am ashy-amed of, for thy iudgements are amiable.

Behold, my desire is in thy commande-mentes, O quicken me in thy righteous-nesse.

V A V.

Let thy louinge mercie come vnto me, O Lord, and thy sauynge health accompyng vnto thy worde.

That I maye give answers vnto my blas-phemies, for my trust is in thy worde.

O take not the word of truthe bitterly out of my mouth, for my hope is in thy iudgementes.

So shall I alwaye kepe thy lawe, yea for euer and euer.

And I will walke at libertye, for I seke thy commandmentes.

I will speake of thy testimonies eue before kings, and will not be ashamed.

My delecte shall be in thy commandmentes which I loue.

My handes also will I lye vnto thy comandmentes which I loue, and my talking shall be of thy statutes.

Z A I N.

O thinke vpon thy seruant as concerning thy wordes, wherein thou hast caused me to put my trust.

For it is my comfort in my trouble, yea thy worde quickeneth me.

The proude haue me greatly in derisio, yet thinke not I come from thy lawe.

I remember thyne euerswearinge iudgementes,
O Lord, and am comforted.

I am horriblye affrayed for the bugabie, I fear the lawe.

Thy statutes are my songes in the house of my pilgrimage.

I thinke vpon thy name, O Lord, in the right season, and kepe thy lawe.

It is myne alme, for I kepe thy commandmentes.

H E T H.

Thou art my porcyon, O Lord, I am pursued to kepe thy lawe.

I make myne humble petition in thy presence with my hole heart, O be mercifull vnto me accordinge vnto thy worde.

I call myne owne wayes to remembrance, and turne my feete into thy testimonies.

I make hast, and prolonge not the tyme, to kepe thy commandmentes.

The congregations of the vngodly haue tribbed me, but I forget not thy lawe.

As myne eye stande I by, to give thanks vnto thee, for the iudgements of thy righte-ousnesse.

I am a companion of all them that feare thee, and kepe thy commandmentes.

The earth, O Lord, is full of thy mercie, O teache me thy statutes.

T E H.

O Lord, thou hast dealt frendly with thy seruant, accompyng vnto thy worde.

O frame myne eyes, myne hearte and knowledge, for I beloue thy commande-mentes.

Before I was troubled, I went wronge, but now I kepe thy worde.

Thou art good & frendly, O teache me thy statutes.

The proude ymagin lyes vpon me, but I kepe thy commandmentes with my hole hearte.

Their heart is as fat as bryare, but my delecte is in thy lawe.

It is good for me that I haue bene in trouble, that I maye lerne thy statutes.

The lawe of thy mouth is dearer vnto me then thousandes of golde and siluer.

I O D.

Thy handes haue made me and fastyned me, O give me vnderstandinge, that I maye learne thy commandmentes.

They that feare thee, will be gladde when they se me, because I put my trust in thy worde.

I know, O Lord, that thy iudgements are right, and that thou of very faithfullnesse hast caused me to be troubled.

O let thy mercifull kyndnesse be my comfort, accordinge to the promes that thou hast made vnto thy seruant.

O let thy louinge mercies come vnto me, that I maye lyue, for thy lawe is my delecte.

Let the proude be confounded, which handle me so falsly.

But let such as feare thee, and knowe thy testimonies, be turned vnto me.

O let myne hearte be vnderfled in thy statutes that I be not ashamed.

C A P H.

My soule longeth for thy sauynge health, for my trust is in thy worde.

Myne eyes longe sore for thy worde, say-enge: O when wilt thou comfort me?

For I am become lyke a borel in the smoke, yet do not I forget thy statutes.

How many are the dayes of thy seruant?
When wilt thou be auenged of myne aduer-saries?

The proude haue bygged pyttes for me, whyle they are not after thy lawe.

All thy commandmentes are true, they perfume me fastly, O be thou my helpe.

They haue almost made an ende of me vpon earth, but I forsake not thy commandmen-tes.

O quicken me after thy louynge kyndnesse, and so shall I kepe the testimonies of thy mouth.

L A M E D.

O Lord, thy worde endureth for euer in heauen.

Thy truth also remembreth some one generation to another: thou hast layd the foundation of the earth, and it is by stand.

They continue this day accompyng to thyne statutes.

ordinance, for all things serue the.
 If my tript were not in thy lawe, I shuld perishe in my trouble.
 I will neuer forget thy commaundmentes for with them thou quickenest me.
 I am thyne. Oh helpe me, for I like thy co mmaundmentes.
 The vngodly laye waite for me to destroye me, but I confesse thy testimontes.
 I see that all thinges come to an ende, but thy commaundment is exceedinge broad.

MEM.

What loue haue I vnto thy lawe? all I kepe longe is my talkinge of it.
Thou thyrothw the commaundment haue made me thyse then myne enemies, for it is cure by me.
I haue more vnderstandinge then all my teachers, for thy testymouies are my assures.
Yea I am thyse then the aged, for I kepe thy commaundmentes.
I refraigne my feete from euery euill waye, that I maye kepe thy wordes.
I wyyncke not frome thy iudgementes, for thou teachest me.
O howe swete are thy wordes vnto my throat?
Yea more then hony vnto my mouth.
Therow thy commaundmentes I get vnderstandyng, therfore I hate all falsse wayes.

NYN.

Thy word is a lantern vnto my feete and a light vnto my pathes.
I haue sworne and am stedfastly purposed, to keepe the iudgements of thy righte-
nesse.
I am troubled about measure, quicken me,
O Lord, according vnto thy word.
Let the free will offeringes of my mouth please thee, O Lord, and teach me thy iudge-ments.
My soule is alway in my hande, yet wouldest
I forget thy lawe.
The kingdome haue I sayd a snare for me, but yet I waite not I frome thy commaundement-tes.
Thy testimonies haue I claymed as myne herirage for euer: and why? they are the very joye of my heart.
I applye myne heart to fulfill thy statutes alwaye, euen vnto the ende.

SAMECH.

I hate the bngodipe, but thy lawe wo I love.
Thou art my defence and hyde, my truste is in thy worde.
Whare foue me ye myked, I will kepe þ frome unclennes of my God.
Stablishe me accordynge vnto thy worde, that I maye true, and let me not be clappoin ed of my hope.

Woldest thou me by, and I shall be safe: yet
 I shall euer be talkinge of thy statutes.
 Thou treadest downe all them that depart frome thy statutes, for they ymagin but this certe.
 Thou puttest aswape al the bingodly of the earth lyke dyesse, therefore I loue thy testimantes.
 My flesh trembleth for feare of the, and I am afraied of thy iudgements.

A I N.

I deale with the thinge that is lawfull and right, O graunte me not ouer into myne ap-petitious.
Be thou sacrifice for thy seruauent to do good, that the pious do me no wronge.
Open eyes are wayed away with looking for thy healeth, and for the worde of thy trouthe.
O deale with thy seruauent accordyng to thy lounge mercede, and teache me thy statutes.
I am thy seruauent, O graunte me with standinge, that I maye knowe thy willes.
It is tyme for the (O Lord) to take thynde vande, for they haue destroyed thy lawe.
For I loue thy commaundementes aboue golde and precious stone.
Therefore holde I straight all thy commaundmentes, and all false wayes I will not take.

PHE.

Thy testimonies are wonderfull, that haue doubt my soule kepe them.
When thy wordes goe forth, it groweth leghe and vnderstandinge, euen vnto babes.
I open my mouth and shewe in my hymne, for I haue seen thy commaundementes.
I looke thou vpon me, and be mercifull, as thou wilt to doo vnto those that loue thy name.
Dreine my gorgings after thy word that is thy kindness sayge in me.
Deliver me frome the wrongeous dreirages of men, and so will I kepe thy commaundementes.
Shewe me the light of thy countenance to thy seruant, and learne me thy statutes.
Myne eyes gasse out wuth weare, because men kepe not thy lawe.

ZADE.

Brighteous arte thou, O Lord, and true is thy iudgement.
The reth'pomes that thou hast commanded are exceeding, righteous and true.
My selfe hath euen consumed me, breasted myne enemies haue forgotten thy word.
Thy worde is tryed to the vttermost, and thy seruau't toucht it.
I am small and of no reputation, yet not

not I forget thy commaundementes.
Thy righteousnesse is an euertlastinge righteousnesse, and thy lawe is true.
Trouble and heynesse haue taken holde vpon me, yet is my helpe in thy commaunde-mentes.
The righteousnesse of thy testimonies is euertlastinge, O graunte me vnderstandinge, &
I shall lyue.

КОРН.

I call with my hole hart, heare me, O Lord
I will kepe thy statutes.
Thy euen upon the do I call, helpe me, and I will kepe thy testimonies.
Early in the mornynge do I crye vnto the,
in thy worke is my trust.
Thy eyes preuente the nyght watches, &
I might be scappyd in thy wordes.
Heare my voyce, O Lord, accordynge vnto thy louynge kyndnesse, quicken me accordynge as thou art wont.
They drawe nygh that of malice persecute me, and are farre frome thy lawe.
Wher thou nyghst at hande also, O Lord, for thy promys is faithfull.
As concernynge thy testimonies, I haue beene curiours the begynnyng, that thou had grounded them for cure.

RES.

Conspire myne aduersite, and deliuer me for I do not forget thy lawe.
 Keepen thou my cause and defende me quyen me accordinge vnto thy worde.
 Health is farre frome the vngodly, for they regard not thy statutes.
 Great is thy mercy, O Lorde, quyen me
 as thou art wont.
 Many there are that trouble me, and persecute me, yet do not I swauee frome thy testimonie.
 It greeueth me, when I se, that the trans-gressours kepe not thy lawe.
 Consiere, O Lorde, holue I loue thy com-mandementes, O quyen me with thy louing kyndnesse.
 Thy worde is true frome euerslastyng, all the iudgements of thy ryghtousnesse endure to evermore.

3 IN.

The places persecute me without cause, but here standeth in aine of thy wordes.
I am as glad of thy worde, as one that syn neth great synes.
As for Ires. I hate and abhorre them, but thy lawe do I loue.
Seven tymes a daye do I prayse the, because of thy righteous iudgements.
Great is thy prax that they haue which loue thy law, and they are not offended at it.
Kinde, I take for thy fauynge health, and after thy commaundementes.
My soule kepeth thy testimonies, and lo-

I hope thy commaundementes and testimonies, for all my wayes are before the .

THAV.

Let my complaynte come before the, O Lorde, geue me vnderstandinge, accordinge vnto thy worde.
 O let my supplicacion come before the, delyure me according to thy promes.
 My lippes shall speake of thy praple, seing thou hast taught me thy statutes.
 Yea my tongue shall singe of thy worde, for all thy commaundementes are ryght.
 Let thine hande helpe me, for I haue chosen thy commaundementes.
 I longe for thy sauringe health, O Lorde, and in thy lawe is my delyte.
 O let my soule lye and praple the, that thy iudgementes maye helpe me.
 I go astrape, lyke a sheepe that is lost: O seeke my seruauit, for I do not forget thy commaundementes.

Jerusalem is buylded as a citie, that is at unitie in it selfe.

For there the tribes go by, even the tribes of the Lorde: to testifie vnto Israel, to gyue thanks vnto the name of the Lorde.

For there is the seate of iudgement, euen the seate of the house of Dauid.

O praye for the pear of Jerusalem, they shall prosper that loue the.

O give thanks vnto the God of all goboes, for his mercy endureth for euer.

O thanke the Lord of all Lordes, for his mercy endureth for euer.

Which onely doeth great wonders, for his mercy endureth for euer.

Which by his wysdome made the heauens, for his mercy endureth for euer.

Which layd out the earth about the waters, for his mercy endureth for euer.

Whiche hath made gear leghtes, for his mercy endureth for euer.

The sunne to rule the daye, for his mercy endureth for euer.

The moone and the starres to gouerne the night, for his mercy endureth for euer.

Which smot Egypt with their first borne, for his mercy endureth for euer.

And brought out Israel from among them, for his mercy endureth for euer.

With a myghty hande and stretched out arme, for his mercy endureth for euer.

Which diuided the red sea into partes, for his mercy endureth for euer.

And made Israel to go throughe the myddell of it, for his mercy endureth for euer.

But as for Pharaon and his hoste, he overthrew them in the red sea, for his mercy endureth for euer.

Whiche led his people throughe the wilderness, for his mercy endureth for euer.

Which smot great kynges, for his mercy endureth for euer.

Yea, and slewe myghty kynges, for his mercy endureth for euer.

Schon kyng of the Amorites, for his mercy endureth for euer.

And O the kyng of Baan, for his mercy endureth for euer.

And gaue away these landes for an heritage, for his mercy endureth for euer.

For name, O Lord, endureth for euer.

For an heritage vnto Israel his people, for his mercy endureth for euer.

Which remembreth vs, when we are in trouble, for his mercy endureth for euer.

Whiche giveth forth vnto all flesh, for his mercy endureth for euer.

O give thanks vnto the God of heauen, for his mercy endureth for euer.

PSAL. CXXXV.

By the waters of Babylon we sat downe and wept, when we remembered Sion.

As for our harpes, we hanged theym vpon the trees, that are therein.

When they that sed vs awaye captiue, requied of vs a songe and melody in our hymnes: singe vs one of the songes of Sion.

Howe shall we singe the Lordes songe in a strange lande?

If I forget the, O Jerusalem, let my right hande be forgotten.

If I do not remembre the, let my tongue cleue to the rose of my mouth: yea yf I preferre not Jerusalem in my mych.

Remember the children of Edom, O Lord, in the daye of Jerusalem, howe they sayde: done with it, done with it: euen to the ground.

O daughter of Babylon, thou shalt come to me: thy seife: yea, happy shalt thou be, if thou shalt be as thou hast seuerd vs.

Blessed shalt thou be, that taketh thy chyldre, and destroyeth them against the stones.

PSAL. CXXXVI.

Of David.

I will give thanks vnto the, O Lord, in my hole hart, euen before the Goddes, will I singe praises vnto the.

I will worship towards thy holy temple, and people thy name, because of thy louynge habitation and truebe, for thou hast magnified thy worde, accordinge vnto thy greates name.

When I call vpon the, thou hearest me, & makest my soule with moche strenght.

All the kynges of the earth shall prayse the O Lord, when they heare the voyces of thy mouth.

Yea they shall singe in the tymes of the Lord, for great is the glory of the Lord.

For though the Lord be hygh, yet hath he respect vnto the lowly: as for the prynces, he holdeth them a farre off.

Though I walke in the myddell of troubl, yet shalt thou reuerse me: thou shalt make the foure thyne hande vpon the sacke of myne enemyes, & thy right hande shall loue me.

The Lord shall make good for me, yea thy mercy, O Lord, endureth for euer: thyne handes.

PSAL. CXXXVII.

To the chaunter, a Psalm of David.

O Lord, thou searchest me out, and knowest me.

Thou knowest my downe sittynge & myne hyrpyng, thou vnderstandest my thoughtes a farre off.

Thou art about my path and about my bed, and spyest out all my wayes.

For so, there is not a worde in my tongue, but thou, O Lord, knowest it altogether.

Thou hast fashioned me behynd and before, and layd thyne hande vpon me.

Suche knowledge is so wonderful & excellent for me, I can not attayne vnto it.

Whither shall I go then from thy spylte? or, whither shall I go then from thy presence?

If I aske by into heauen, thou art there: yf I go downe to hell, thou art there also.

If I take the wynges of the morninge, and remayne in the uttermoste parte of the see:

There also shalt thy hande leade me, and thy right hande shall holde me.

If I saye: peradventure the darknesse shall couer me, then shall my eyght be touned to daye.

Yea the darknesse is no darknesse with the, but the night is as cleare as the daye, the darknesse and light are both alyke.

For my reynes are thyne, thou hast couered me in my mothers wombe.

I wil give thanks vnto the, for I am wonderfully made: maruelous are thy workes, & that my soule knoweth right well.

My bones are not hid from the, though I be made secretly, and fashioned beneth in the earth.

Thyne eyes se myne imperfectednes, they stande al wynter in thy boke: my dayes were fashioned, when as yet there was not one of them.

Howe deare are thy counsels vnto me O God? O how great is the summe of them?

If I tell them, they are mo in nombre than the sande: when I wake vp, I am present with the.

What thou not slaye the wyched (O God) that the bloudthirsty might departe from me?

For they speake vnto the of the, thyne enemyes shall them felices presumptuously.

I hate them, O Lord, that hate the: and I maye not awaye with those that rise vp against the.

Yea I hate the right foie, therefore are they myne enemyes.

Eyre me, O God, and seke the grounde of myne hart: prync me, and examen my thoughtes.

Psalm. CXXXVII.

finge.

PSAL. CXXXVIII.

To the chanter, a Psalm of David.

Deliver me, O Lord, from the cruel men, O preserve me from the wicked men.

Which imagine mischief in their hearts, &
sleepe by night all the daye longe.
They sharpen their tongues like a serpent: adders payson is under their lippes. Selah.

Kepe me, O Lord, from the hande of the ungodly: preserve me from the wicked men whiche are purposed to overthrowe my go-ynes.

The proud have layde a snare for me, and sounded a net abroad with cordes, yea and set trappes in my waye. Selah.

But my sapenge is unto the Lord: thou art my God, heare the voyce of my prayer O Lord.

O Lord God, thou strength of my health thou hast covered my head in the daye of battyle.

Let not the ungodly have his desire, O Lord let him not have his purpose, least they be to proude. Selah.

Let the mischief of their owne lippes fall upon the head of them, that compass me a-boute.

Let hote burnynge coles fall upon them, let them be cast into the fire, and into the pit that they neuer rise up agayne.

A man full of moordes shall not prosper vpon the earth: a malicious and myked personne shall be hunted awaye, and destroyed.

Sure I am, that the Lord will avenge poore, and mainteyne the cause of the helpe-lesse.

The righteous also shall give thanks vnto thy name, and the iust shall continue in thy light.

PSAL. CXXXIX.

A Psalm of David.

Lord, I call vpon the: haile the vnto me and consider my voyce, when I crye vnto
the.

Let my prayer be set forth in thy sight as incense, and let the lyfing of my handes be an euenynge sacrifice.

Set a watche, O Lord, before my mouth yea a watche at the wynde of my lippes.

Let not myne heare be enclined to any euill thinge, to be myned as the ungodly or wicked men, least I eate of such things as please them.

Let the righteous rather smile me friendly and reprove me: so will I take it, as though he had poured oyle vpon my heade: it shall not hurt my heade, yea I will praye yet for their wickednesse.

Their iudges stumbe at the stone, yet heare they my wordes, that they be sorowful.

Our bones are scattered before the yte, yea as when one graueh and dygeth by the grounde.

But myne eyes loke vnto the, O Lord God: in the is my trust, O call not out my soule.

Kepe me from the snare whiche they have layde for me, and from the trappes of my ked doers.

Let the ungodly fall into their ownnettes together, vntill I be gone by them.

PSAL. CXL.

The instruction of David, a prayer when he was in the cage.

Icrye vnto the Lord with my voyce, yet
I come vnto the Lord do I make my supplication.

I poure out my complainte before him, &
trowe him of my trouble.

When my spirite is in heynesse, for thou knowest my path: in the waye wherein I walke haue they pynely layd a snare for me.

I loke vpon my right hande, and seethere no man that will knowe me.

I haue no place to lie vnto, no man can for my soule.

Therefore do I crye vnto the, O Lord, and saye: thou art my hope and my portion in the lande of the luyng.

Conspire my chylapne, for I am brought very lowe.

O deliuer me from my persecuters, for they are to stronge for me.

Bring my soule out of prison, that I may give thanks vnto thy name: whiche thinge if thou wilt graunte me, then shall I right-ous reioyce vnto my company.

PSAL. CXL.

A Psalm of David.

Hear my prayer, O Lord, and conserue my desire: and direct me for thy righteous-nesse sake.

And entre not into iudgement with thy vaunt, for in thy sight shall no man lyge be iudged.

For the enemye persecuteth my soule, he smether my lyfe downe to the grounde, he inceth me in the darknesse, as the dech men of worlde.

Therefore is my spirite bereft within me, and my heart within me is desolate.

Yet do I remember the tymes past, I walke vpon all thy workes, yea I exercise my selfe in the troikes of thy handes.

I directe forth myne handes vnto the, my soule cryeth vnto the out of the thurdaye Selah.

Heare me, O Lord, and that sone, for my spyrte waxeth saynte: byde not thy face to me, least I be lyke vnto them that go downe into the grave.

Let me heare thy louynge kyndnesse by thy voys in the morning, for in it is my trust: O con-serue me the waye that I shoulde walke in, for I crye vnto thy soule vnto the.

Deliver me, O Lord from myne enemies, for I crye vnto the.

Teache me to do the chynge that plea-seth the, for thou art my God: let thy louynge lyfde me forth vnto the lande of rest.

Quicken me, O Lord for thy names sake, & let thy righteousnesse sake bynge my soule out of trouble.

And of thy goodnesse scatter myne enemies as chaffe, & destroye all them that vexe my soule, for I am thy seruant.

PSAL. CXLII.

Of David.

Blessed be the Lord my refuge: whiche teacheth my handes to warre, and my fingers to fight.

My hope and my castell, my defence and my deliuerer, my hyde in whome I trust: whiche gouerneth the people that is vnto me.

O Lord what is man, that thou hast such mercy vnto him? or the son of man, that thou regardest him?

Man is like a thinge of naught, his time passed awaye lyke a shadow.

Howe thy heuyns, O Lord, & come downe vnto the mountaynes, that they may smoke with all.

Sende forth the lyghtenynge and scatter thine arrowes, and consume
them.

Sende downe thyne hande from above, deliuer me and take me out of the grate waters: from the hande of strange chyldren.

Whose mouth talketh of vanitie, and they right hande is a right hande of falschod.

That I may syng a newe song vnto the, O God, and syng prayes vnto the, vpon a ten stringed lute.

Thou that guesst victory vnto kynge, and hailest David thy seruant from the peril of the swerde.

Heare me and deliuer me from the hande of strange chyliden, whose mouthe talketh of
of falschod.

That our sonnes maye growe by as the yonge plantes: and that our boughetes maye be as the polished corners of the temple.

That our garners maye be full and plentious with all maner of store: that our shepe maye lynge forth thousandes, and hundred thousandes in our villages.

That our oxen maye be stronge to labour, that there maye be no mischaunce, no decay, & no complayning in our streets.

Happy are the people that be in such a case:

yea blessed are the people whiche haue the Lord for their God.

A prayer of David.

I will magnifie the, O God my kynge, I will praise thy name for euer and euer.
Euerie daye will I give thanks vnto the: and praise thy name for euer and euer.

Great is the Lord, and marceplous wo-thy to be prayed, there is no ende of his great-nesse.

One generation shall praise thy workes vnto an other, and declare thy power.

As for me I will be talkynge of thy wo-thy, thy glorie, thy praye, and wonderous workes.

So that men shall speake of the myghte of thy marceplous actes: and tell of thy great-nesse.

The memorie of thyne aboundant kyndnesse shall be shewed, and men shall sing of thy righteousnesse.

The Lord is gracious and mercifull, long suffering, and of great goodnesse.

The Lord is louynge vnto euery man, & his mercy is euer all his workes.

All thy workes praise the, O Lord, and thy sayntes give thanks vnto the.

Thy sheweth the glorie of thy kyngdome, and talketh of thy power.

That thy power, thy glorie and myghtynesse, of thy kyngdome, might be knowne vnto men.

Thy kyngdome is an euertlastynge kyngdome: and thy dominion endureth thousandes of ages.

The Lord upholdeth all such as shoulde fall: and lyfeth vpon all thole that be downe.

The eyes of all maye vpon the: and thou guesst them they meate in due season.

Thou openest thine hande, & fyllest al thinge with plentiousnesse.

The Lord is righteous in all his wayes: & holie in all his workes.

The Lord is vnto them that call vpon hym: yea all such as call vpon hym sayth fully.

He fulfilleth the desire of them that feare hym: he heareth their crye, and helpeth
them.

The Lord preserveth al them that loue him,

THE PROVERBS OF SALOMON.

CAPL.

I.

The Proverbs of Salomon the sonne of Dauid kynge of Iherusalem to teache wysdome, instruction, vnderstanding, prudence, righteousnesse, iudgement and equitye.
That the very babes might haue wit, & that younge men myght haue knowlege and vnderstandinge.

By hearynge, the wyse man shall come by more wysdome: and by experyence he shall be more apte to vnderstande a parable, and the interpretacion therof: the wordes of the wyse, and the dateke speeches of the same.

The feare of the Lorde is the begynnyng of wysdome: but fooles despise wysdom and instruction.

My sonne heare the fathers doctrine, & for-saake not the lawe of thy mother: for that shall brynge grace vnto thy deede, & shall be a thyng about thy necke.

My sonne, consent not vnto synners, if they enrysle the, and saye: come with vs, lette vs laye wyfte for bloude, and luche pympely for the innocent without a cause: lette vs swa-lowe them by lyke the helie, let vs deuoure them quicke and hole, as those that go downe in to the pre.

So shall we fynd all maner of costly riches, and spill our houses with spoyles.

Aske in thy lot amonge vs: we shall haue all one purte.

My son, walke thou not with them, refrayne thy foot from theiue wayes.

For theye sette runne to euill, and are hasty to shed bloude.

Aske in vayne is the net layde forth before the byrdes eyes.

Yea theye theym selues laye wyfte one for an others bloude: and one of them wylde see an other.

These are the wayes of all suche as be couetous: that one wolde rauyn the an others lyfe.

Wysdome cryeth without, and putteth forth her voyce in the streets.

She calleth before the congregacion in the open gates, and sheweth her wordes thorow the city, sayinge:

O ye chyldren, how longe wyl ye loue chyl-drisnesse? How longe wyl the scoones dwelle in ioyninge, and the vntwyle be enuyned vnto knowledge?

O turne you vnto my coreracion: so I wyl crypse my mynde vnto you, and make you vnderstande my wordes.

* Sprynge then that I haue called, and ye refused it: I haue stretched oute my hande, and no man regarded it, but all my counsellors haue despised, and let my coreracions at nought.

Therefore shall I also laughe in scorn at you, and make you, when the thyng that ye feare cometh vpon you: turne you the thyng that ye be a trape of, callen soderly lyke a storme, and your mynde lyke a tempest: yea when trouble and hurtyng cometh vpon you.

Then shall theye call vpon me, but I wyl not heare: theye shall seeke me early, but theye shall not fynde me.

And that because theye hated knowlege and receyued not the feare of the Lorde, but abhorred my counsell, and despised my instruction.

Therefore shall theye eate of the frutes of their owne waye, and be fylled with their owne counsell.

For the turninge away of the vntwyle shall theiue them: and the prosperite of wyles shall breake downe destruction.

But who so bakeneth vnto me, shall dwell safely, and haue pryncesse without anye feare of euill.

CAPL.

II.

My sonne, if thou wylt receyue my wordes, and kepe my commandementes by the: that thyne eare maye heare vnto wysdome, applye thyne eare vnto vnderstandinge.

For if thou receyuest after wysdome, and ad-dest for knowlege: if thou knowest alreedy as after money, and dyggest for her as for treasure: then shall thou vnderstande the feare of the Lorde, and sende the knowlege of God.

For it is the Lorde that giveth wysdom, out of his mouth cometh knowlege and vnderstandinge.

He preiureth the welfare of the righteous, and defendeth them that walke innocentlye:
he kepeth them in the right path, and preseruet the waye of his sayntes.

Then shall thou vnderstande righteouslye, iudgement and equitye, yea and euery good pathe.

If wysdome entere in to thyne herte, and thy soule deler in knowlege: then shall com sell preserue the, and vnderstandinge shall kepe the.

That thou mayst be deliuered from the net waye, and from the man that speaketh warde byruges.

Frome suche as leaue the hye street, and walke in the wayes of darkness: which lyste in twing euill, and deler in wicked thynges:
whose wayes are crooked, & their pathes slaunderous.

That thou mayst be deliuered also from the strange woman, & from her that is not of thy owne: which putteth sweete wordes, forsaketh the husbande of her yowth, and forgetteth the covenant of her God.

For her house is enclined vnto deeth, & her pathes vnto hell.

Althey that goo in vnto her, come not a-gayne, neither take theye holde of the waye of lyfe.

That thou mayst walke in the good waye: and kepe the pathes of the ryghte-ous.

For the iuste shall dwelle in the lande, and the innocentes shall remayne in it: but the vngodly shall be rooted oute of the lande, and the wicked doers shall be taken oute of it.

CAPL.

III.

O my sonne, forget not my lawe: but that thyne herte kepe my commandementes.

For theye shall prolonge the dayes and yeres of thy lyfe, and bring the pear.

Let mercy and sayntnesse neuer go from the: bynde them about thy necke, and wypte them in the tables of thyne herte.

So shall thou fynde fauoure and good vnderstandinge in the syghte of God and men.

Put thy trust in the Lorde with all thyne herte: and leane not vnto thyne owne vnderstandinge.

In all thy wayes haue respect vnto him, and he shall orde thy goynges.

Be not wyse in thyne owne conceyte, but fear the Lorde, and departe from euill: so shall thy waye be hole, and thy bones stronge.

Honoure the Lorde with thy substance, and with the fyrst frutes of all thyne increase:
so shall thy barnes be fylled with plentifull haruest, and thy presses shall flowe ouer with sweete wyne.

My sonne despise not the chastering of the Lorde, neither saynt when thou art rebuked of him.

* For whom the Lorde loueth, him he cha-steth: and yet deliuereth him from euill as a father in his owne sonne.

Well is hym that synneth in wysdome, and opteyneth vnderstandinge, for the ge-nyng of it, is better then anye marchandise of syluer, and the profic of it is better then golde.

Wysdome is more worth then precious stones: and al the thynges that thou canst desyre are not to be compared vnto her.

Vpon her ryghte hande is longe lyfe:
and vpon her lefte hande is rychesse and honour.

Her wayes are pleasant wayes, and al her pathes are peaceable.

She is a tree of lyfe to them that laye holde vpon her, and blessed are theye that kepe her fast.

With wysdome bathe the Lorde layde the foundation of the earthe: and he reioy-neth vnderstandinge he hath a habytation vpon the heuens.

Therfore his wysdome, the deapthes bryake by: and the cloudes drop downe of dew.

My sonne, let not these thynges departe from thyne eyes, but kepe my lawe and my commentes: so shall it be lyfe vnto thy soule, and grace to thy mouth.

Then shall thou walke safely in thy waye, and thy fote shall not stumble.

If thou sleepest, thou shalt not be afraide:
but shalt take thy rest, and slepe sweetly.

Thou needest not to be afraide of anye darnes feare: neyther for the violence of sprynge in of the vngodly, when it commeth.

For the Lorde shall besiege the, and take thy fote that thou be not taken.

Refuse not to do good vnto hym that wyl haue it: so longe as thyne hande is habyt to do it.

Saye not vnto thy neyghboure: goe thy waye, and come agayne, to morowe I wyl gyue the: where as thou hast no to gyue him.

Intende no hurt vnto thy neyghbour, syng he hopeth to dwell in rest by the.

Strive not lightly with anye man, where as he hath done the no harme.

Folowe not a wicked man, and chuse none of his wayes: for the Lorde abhorreth the re-warde, but his secreete is amonge the ryghte-ous.

The curse of the Lorde is in the house of the vngodly: but he blessedeth the dwellinges of the ryghteous.

As for the scozefull, he shall laughe them to scorn: but he shall gyue grace vnto the lowly.

The wyse shall haue hys house in possession: but shame is the promotion that fooles shall haue.

CAPL.

IIII.

Hear, o ye chyldren the fatherly exhoration: and take good heed that ye may lerne wysdome.

Yea I shall grue you a good rewarde, if ye wyl not forsake my lawe.

For when I my selfe was my fathers deere sonne: and tenderly beloued of my mother, he taught me also, sayinge:

Lette thyne herte receyue my wordes: kepe my commandementes, and thou shalt lyue.

Get the wysdome, get the vnderstandinge forget not the wordes of my mouth, & shyn the not from them.

Forsake not her, and she shall preserue the:
loue her, and she shall kepe the.

The chiefe poynte of wysdome is, that thou be wyllyng to obteyne wysdome, and before all thy goodes, to get the vnderstandinge.

Make moche of her, & she shall promote the:
yea if thou imbrace her, she shall brynge the vnto honour.

She shall make the a gracious heed: & ga-neth the mythe the truth & crest of gloire.

Heare my sonne, and receyue my wordes: that the pees of thy lyfe maye be made.

I will shewe the, the waye of wysdome, and led: the in the right pathes.

So that if thou goest therein, there shall no strayinge be vnto the: and wher thou runnest, thou shalt not fall.

Take fast holde of doctrine, let her not go: kepe her, for she is thy lyfe.

Come not in the pathes of the vngodly, and make not in the waye of the wicked.

Receyue it, and go not therein: departe asunder, and passe ouer by it.

For they can not slepe, excepte they haue first done some myghte: neither take they anye rest, excepte they haue first done some harme.

For they eate the bread of wickednesse, and drynke the wyne of robbery.

The pathe of the righteous shyneth as the light, and is clear bright and bygher vnto the perfect daye.

But the waye of the vngodlye is as the darcknesse, wherein men fall if they be a-ware.

My sonne, make my wordes, and encline thine eare vnto my saynges.

Let them not departe frome thine eyes: kepe them euen in the myddest of thine herte.

For they are lyfe vnto all those that fynde them: and helpe vnto all thyngs.

Kepe thine herte with all diligence: for there vpon hangeth lyfe.

Put awaye frome the a frowarde mouth, and let the hyppes of a slaunder be farre frome the.

Let thine eyes beholde the thyng that is right: and let thine eye lyde as loke vnto the before the.

For the path of thy fete: so that all thy wayes be lyte.

Turne not a syde, neyther to the righte hande, ne to the left, but withholde thy fete frome syn.

CAPL

V.

O my sonne, geue hede vnto my wysdom, and bowe thine eare vnto my prudence: that thou mayest regarde good counsell, and that thy hyppes may kepe nouetours.

For the hyppes of an harlot are a droppe of honye combe, and her chate is softer then oyle.

But at the laste, she is as bitter as wormewood, and as sharpe as a two edged swerde.

Her fete go downe vnto deth, and her steppe pearle chayne vnto hell.

She regardeth not the pathe of lyfe, so vnto the laste are her wayes, that thou canst not knowe them.

Heare me therefore (o my sonne) and departe not from the wordes of my mouth.

Kepe thy waye farre from her, and come not naye the wyres of her house.

That thou geue not thine honour vnto another, and thy pees to the cruel.

That other men be not spyled with thy goodes: and that thy laboures come not to a strange house.

Yea that thou mourne not at the laste, when thou hast spent thy body and goodes, and then saye:

Alas, why bated I nouetours: why did my herte despyle correction?

Wherefore was not I obedient vnto the wordes of my teachers: and hathened not vnto them that informed me?

I am come almost in to all my synne: in the myddest of the multitude and congregation.

Drynke of the water of thine synne with: and of the ryuers that run out of thine synne hyppes.

Let thy welles flowe out abroade, that there maye be ryuers of waters in the stretes: but let them be euenly thine synne, and not straungers with the.

Let thy well be blessed, and be glad with the wyse of thy youth.

Louinge is the hynde, and frendly is the koo: lette her bysses alwaye salte the, and holde the euer content with her loue.

My sonne, why wylte thou haue pleasure in an harlot, and embrace the bosome of another woman?

For every mannes wayes are open in the sight of the Lorde, and he pyneth all thynges.

For wickednesse of a vngodly man shal catche him self, and with the snares of his own synnes. Shall he be trapped.

Because he wolde not be reformed he shall dye: and for his greute foly synne he shall be destroyed.

CAPL

My sonne, if thou be surely for thy synne, thou hast fastened thine handes with thine own wordes: & taken with thine own speche.

Therefore, my sonne, do this: discharge thy selfe, for thou arte come in to thy synne by thynges.

Go thy waye then soone, and intreat thy neyghbour: let not thine eyes slepe, ne thine eye lyde as slumber.

Save thy selfe as a doo from the hande, and as a byrde from the hande of the fowler.

So to the wysdome (thou sluggarde) consider thy wayes, and let me to be wyse.

She hath no guyde, no teacher, no lawer: yet in the synne she pyneth her ment, and gathereth her fode together in the synne.

Why longe wylte thou slepe thou sluggarde? why longe wylte thou slepe thou sluggarde?

When wylte thou aryse out of thy slepe?

Yea slepe on thy a litle slumber a litle, fold thine handes together, & a litle, that thou mayest slepe.

So that pouerte come vnto the, as one that traueleth by the waye, and necessitye like a weaponed man.

A dissemblinge person, a wicked man goeth with a frowarde mouth, he winketh with his eyes, he tokeneth with his fete, he pyneth with his synners, he is euer pynagynge himselfe and frowardnesse in his herte, and causeth himselfe to be hated.

Therefore shall his destruction come hastily vpon him: for synne shall be all to broken, and not be healed.

There be fyve thynges whiche the Lorde hateth: and the sixth he vicerly abhorreth.

A proude loke, a dissemblinge tonge, handes that shed innocent bloude, an herte that goeth aboute with wicked pynagyns, fete that he synne in reynunge to two synners, a false witness that byngeth by lyes, and such one as soweth discord amonge brethren.

My sonne, kepe thy fathers commandmentes, and forsake not the lawe of thy mother.

But them by together in thine herte: and bowe them aboute thy necke.

That they maye leade the where thou goest, preserve the when thou art a slepe, and when thou awakest, thou mayest take of them.

For the commandment is a lanterne, and the lawe a lyght: yea chasynge and nouetours is the waye of lyfe, that they maye kepe the from the rull woman, and from the flatterer of the harlot: that thou lust not after her beautye in thine herte, and lest thou be taken with her fayre lokes.

In harlotrye I will make a man to begge his bread: but a maryed woman wyl hunt for the precious lyfe.

Shal a man take synne in his holme, & his synne not be burned?

Can one go vpon hote coles, and his fete not be burned?

Can one go vpon hote coles, and his fete not be burned?

Can one go vpon hote coles, and his fete not be burned?

Can one go vpon hote coles, and his fete not be burned?

Can one go vpon hote coles, and his fete not be burned?

Can one go vpon hote coles, and his fete not be burned?

Can one go vpon hote coles, and his fete not be burned?

Can one go vpon hote coles, and his fete not be burned?

Can one go vpon hote coles, and his fete not be burned?

Can one go vpon hote coles, and his fete not be burned?

Can one go vpon hote coles, and his fete not be burned?

Can one go vpon hote coles, and his fete not be burned?

Can one go vpon hote coles, and his fete not be burned?

Can one go vpon hote coles, and his fete not be burned?

Can one go vpon hote coles, and his fete not be burned?

Can one go vpon hote coles, and his fete not be burned?

Can one go vpon hote coles, and his fete not be burned?

Can one go vpon hote coles, and his fete not be burned?

Can one go vpon hote coles, and his fete not be burned?

Can one go vpon hote coles, and his fete not be burned?

for the gelouise and wrath of the man will not be intreated: no thought thou woldest offer him greute gyfes to make amendes, he wyl not receyue them.

VII.

My sonne, kepe my wordes, and laye by my commandmentes by the.

Kepe my commandmentes, and my lawe euen as the apple of thine eye: and thou shalt lyue.

Bynde them vpon thy synners: and wylte them in the table of thine herte.

Saye vnto wysdome, thou arte my syster, and call vnderstandynge thy kynsmoman:

that she maye kepe the from the strange woman, and from the harlot whiche synneth with many wordes.

For oute of the mynde of my house I locked the doore the teche, and beholde the simple people: and amonge other yonge folkes, I spied one yonge foole goinge ouer the stretes: by the corner in the waye towarde the harlot's house in the twilighte of the eveninge, when it began now to be nyghte and darcke.

And beholde, there met him a woman in an harlot's apparell (a disceitful woman, wanton & embusht with woman, whose fete could not abide in the house: now is she without, now in the stretes, and lurketh in euery corner, she caught the yonge man, kissed him, and was not ashamed, saying: I had a bote to paye, & this daye I performe it.

Therefore came I forth to mete the, that I myghte see thy face: and so I haue founde the.

I haue decked my bed with couerynge and clothes of Egypt.

My bed haue I made to smell of Myrrour, Aloes, and Cynamon.

Come let vs lye together, and take our pleasure till it be daye lyght.

For the goodma is not at home: he is gone farre of.

He hath taken the bagge of monere with hym: who can tell when he cometh home?

Thus tolde many synne wordes the ouercome him: and with her flatterynge hyppes she won him.

Immediatly he was seduced here, as it were an ore ledde to the slaughter (and like as it were to the doores where folkes are punished) so long till she had wounded his lyue with her harlot: like as if a byrde had been to the snare, not knowynge that the prey of his lyfe lye there vpon.

Heare me now therefore, o my sonne, & make the wordes of my mouth.

Let not thine herte trauele in her wayes: & be not thou seduced in her pathes.

For many are fallen the wounded and calfe downe: yea many a yonge man hath he slayne.

Her bones is the way into hell, where men go downe in to the chambers of death.

CAPL

VIII.

Who shall not be wise, who shall not be prudent? Standeth she not in the byre places in the streets and wares? doth she not reye before the whole cite, and in the gates where men go out and in?

It is thou, o ye men (sayth she) whome I call.

Unto you (o ye children of men) I saye I by my hope.

Take heed vnto knowledge, o ye ignorant: be wise in heart, o ye fooles.

Open eare, for I will speake of great matters: and open my lippes to tell thynges that be right.

For my throte shall be talking of the truth, and my lippes abhorre vngodlynesse.

All the wordes of my mouth are righteous: there is no frowardnesse nor falschode therein.

There are all playne to suche as will vnderstand: and right to them that synd knowledge.

Receyue my doctrine therefore, and not spuer: and my knowledge, more then syne golde.

For wisdom is more worth then precious stones: yea all the thynges that thou canst desire, are not to be compared vnto it.

I wisdom haue my dwellinge with knowledge: and prudent counsell is myne.

With me is the feare of the Lorde, and the eschewing of euill.

As for pride, hysdorne, and euyl waye, and a mouth that speaketh wicked thynges, I utterly abhorre them.

I can geue counsell and be a guide: I haue vnderstanding, I haue strength.

Thow know me, knowes cognize: thow know me, knowes make iust lawes.

Thow know me, knowes heare rule: and all iudges of the earth excrete iudgement.

I am louing vnto those that loue me: and they that seke me early, shall synd me.

Richesse and honour are with me: yea excellent goods and rightousnesse.

My frute is better then golde and precious stone: yea myne encrease more worth then fine siluer.

I walke in the waye of rightousnesse: and in the strete of iudgement.

That I maye fynde prosperitie to those that loue me: and to encrease theyr treasure.

The Lorde him selfe had me in possession in the beginning of his wayes, or euer he began his wayes: for tyme.

I haue ben ordeyned from euertasting: and from the beginninge of euer the earth was made.

When I was borne, there were neither

Sapientia

depthes nor springes of water.

Before the foundations of the mountaynes were layde, yea before all hills was I borne.

The earth, and all that is vpon the earth was not yet made: no not the ground it selfe.

For when he made the heuens, I was present, when he set by the depths in order: when he hanged the cloudes about, when he fastned the springes of the depe.

When he shut the see within certayne boundes, that the waters shoulde not go ouer theyr markes.

When he layde the foundations of the earth, I was with him, ordyning all thynges: despayninge dayly, and reioysing alwaye before hym.

As for the round compasse of his world, I make it topfull: for my helpe is to be among the children of men.

Therefore hearken vnto me, o ye children, blessed are they that kepe my wayes.

O geue eare vnto noutour, be wise, and refuse it not.

As I taught to the man I heareth me, watching dayly at my gates: and geuing attendance at the postes of my doores.

For who so syndeth me, syndeth lyfe: and shall obteyne fauour of the Lorde.

But who so offendeth agaynst me hunteth his owne soule.

All they that hate me, are the louers of death.

CAPL

IX.

Wisdom hath buydded her selfe an house, and heth oute seven pylles: she hath killed her bitarles, poured out her wine and prepared her table.

She hath sent forth her maydens to me vpon the best place of the cite: who so is ignorant, let him come hither.

And to the vniuersite she said: Come on, my waye, cate my bread, & drinke my wyne which I haue poured out for you.

For sake ignorance, and ye shall lare: and se that ye good in the waye of vnderstandinge.

Who so reproveth a scornfull person, getteth hym selfe dishonour: and he that rebuketh the vngodly, shall synd himselfe.

Reproue not a scooner, lest he owe the rod: but rebuke a wise man, and he will synde.

Give a discreet man but an occasion, and he will be the wiser: teache a rightous man, and he will encrease.

The feare of the Lorde is the beginninge of wisdom: and the knowledge of holy thynges is vnderstandinge.

For thow knowe me thy dayes shall be prolonged: and the yeres of thy lyfe shall be manye.

ysaiah

ye thou be wise, thy wisdom shall do thy good: but if thou thinkest some other good, it shall be thyne alone harme.

A folyshe reuelles woman, fall of wordes, and such one as hath no knowledge, stretcheth in the doores of her house vpon a foole, about in the street to cal lunge as go by, & make stryght in theyr wayes.

Who so is ignorant (sayth she) let him come hither, and to the vniuersite she said: stolen wares are sweete, and the bread that is pryulyp eaten, hath a good taste.

But they consider not that death is there, and that her gyles go downe to hell.

The parables of Salomon.

Wise son, makest a glad father: but an vniuersite sonne is the heynynesse of his mother.

Treasurers that are wickedly gotten, prynte nothing, but rightousnesse, deliuereth from death.

The Lorde will not let the soule of a rightous suffer hunger: but he putteth the vngodly from his table.

In this lande maketh poore: but a quicke labouring hand maketh ryche.

Who so gathereth in summer, is wise: but he that is sluggish in harvest, bringeth him selfe to confusion.

Louage and fauourable is the face of the rightous, but the feare of the vngodly is paine and presumptuous.

The memoriall of the iust, shall haue a good repute, but the name of the vngodly shall synke.

A wise man will receyue warnynges: but a foole will sooner be smytten in the face.

He that leadech an innocent lyfe, walketh surely: but who so goeth a wryng waye, shall be knowne.

He that winketh with his eye, will do some harme: but he that hath a folyshe mouth, shall be breken.

The mouth of a rightous man is a well of lyfe: but the mouth of the vngodly is paine, and presumptuous.

Euyl will synke by wyse, but loue couereth the multitude of synners.

In the lippes of hym that hath vnderstandinge a man shall fynde wisdom: but the rod belongeth to the backe of the scooller.

Wise men lare by knowledge: but the mouth of the foolyshe, is as the beaten =

tion.

The rich mans goods, are his strong hold: but pouertie appresseth the poore.

The rightous labourereth to doo good: but the vngodly blyth his encrease vnto synne.

As take heed vnto the chastenynge of nature, for, is the waye of lyfe: but he that resisteth to be reformed goeth wryng.

Dyscemblyng lippes hope hatred secretly: and he that speaketh any sleaudre, is a foole.

Where moche babylage is, there must nedes be offence: he that refrayneth his lippes, is wysest of all.

An innocent tonge is a noble treasure: but the herte of the vngodly is noughtynge worthe.

The lippes of the rightous fede a hole multitude: but foales shall dye in their owne folpe.

The blessinge of the Lorde maketh ryche men: as for carefull trawayle, it doth nothing cherto.

A foole doth he wickedly, and maketh but a specke of it: neuerthelesse it is wisdom for a man to beware of suche.

The thyng that the vngodly are afraid of shall come vpon them: but the rightous shall haue their desire.

The vngodly is lyke a tempest that passeth ouer, and is no more sene: but the rightous mayneth sure for euer.

A synner is to the feche, and as smoke is vnto the eyes: euen so is a sluggish person to them that seke him forth.

The feare of the Lorde maketh a longe lyfe: but the yeres of the vngodly shall be shortened.

The patient abridginge of the rightous shall be turned to gladnesse: but the hope of a vngodly shall perishe.

The waye of the Lorde syneth a courage vnto the godly: but it is a feare for wythed doers.

The rightous shall neuer be ouertrowen: but the vngodly shall not remayne in a lande.

The month of the iust shall be talkyng of wisdom: but the tonge of the frowarde shall perishe.

The lippes of the rightous are occupied in acceptable thynges: but the mouth of the vngodly taketh them to the wryng.

CAPL

A false balance is an abomination vnto the Lorde: but a true weyght pleasech him.

Where pyde is, there is shame also, and confusion: but where as lawynesse is, there is wisdom.

The innocent dealinge of the iust shall leade them: but the vniuersite of the wylfuls shall be their owne destruction.

A synners helpe not in the daye of vengeance: but rightousnesse deliuereth from death.

The rightousnesse of the innocent ordyeth his waye: but the vngodly shall fall in his owne wickednesse.

The rightousness of the just, shall deliver them: but the despisers shall be taken in their own ungodliness.

* When an ungodly man dyeth, his hope is gone: the confidence of hypocrites shall perish.

The righteous shall be delivered out of trouble: and the ungodly shall come in his hour.

Thorough the mouth of the discernible is his neighbour destroyed: but thorough knowledge, shall the just be helped.

When it goeth well with the righteous, the city is merry: and when the ungodly perish, there is gladness.

When the just are in trouble, the city prospereth: but when the ungodly have the rule, it decayeth.

A foole byingeth by a slander of his neighbour: but a wise man will keep it secret.

A discernible person will discover private things: but he that is of a faithful heart, will keep counsel.

Where no good counsel is, there the people decay: but where as many are that can give counsel, there is wealth.

He that is surety for a stranger: hurteth him selfe: but he that medleth not with suretyship is sure.

A gracious woman maynteyneth her nest: as for the ungodly, they magnifye themselves.

He that hath a gentle yberall stomacke: is merciful: but who so hurteth his neighbour is a spyant.

The labour of the ungodly prospereth not: but he that soweth rightousness, shall receive a sure reward.

Like as rightousness bringeth life: end so to cleave unto euill byingeth death.

The Lord abhorreth a fained heart: but he hath pleasure in them that are vnderfyll.

It shall not helpe the wicked, though they laye all their handes together: but the seed of the righteous shall be preserved.

A fayne woman withoute discrete manners: is like a ringe of golde in a swynes snout.

The just labour for peace and tranquillitie: but the ungodly for disquietnesse.

Some man giveth out his goodes, and is the richer: but the niggard (haupng ynough) will depaite from nought, and yet is cuer in poverty.

He that is yberall in gyunge, shall have plenty: and he that watereth, shall be watered also him selfe.

Who so honoureth by his corne, shall be cursed among the people: but blessing shall lyght upon his heed that selleth it.

He that laboureth for honestie, shall be rich: but who so seeketh after myschance, it shall happen unto him.

Who that trusteth in his hypocrite, shall have a fall: but the righteous, shall flourish as the green leafe.

Who so maketh disquietnesse in his own house, he shall have winder for his heritage: and the fool shall be struant to the wyse.

The frute of the righteous, is as the tree of lyfe: a wise man also, shall multiplye soules.

* Yet the righteous be recompensed upon earth: howe much more then the ungodly and the sinner?

CAPL

XII.

Who so loneth wysdome, will be content to be reformed: but he that hateth to be reformed, is a fool.

A good man is acceptable unto the Lord: but the wicked will be condemne.

A man can not endure in ungodliness: but the roots of the righteous shall not be moved.

A steadfast woman is a crown unto her husband: but she that behaunth her selfe ungodly, is a corruption to his bones.

The thoughtes of the righteous are right: but the ymagination of the ungodly, are deceyfull.

The talkynge of the ungodly is howe they may laye waite for bloude: but the mouth of the righteous shall deliver them.

Wher thou canst turne the about, the ungodly shall be overthowen: but the house of the righteous shall stande.

A man shall be commended for his wisdom: but a fool shall be despised.

A simple man whiche laboureth and worketh: is better then one that is gorgeous and wanteth bread.

A righteous man regardeth the life of his cattell: but the ungodly have cruell deeres.

He that sylleth his lande, shall have plenty: but he that soweth in the hande of the ungodly, is a very fool.

The desire of the ungodly hunteth after mischief: but the rore of the righteous bringeth forth frute.

The wicked falleth in to the snare, thorough the malice of his own mouth: but the just shall escape out of peryll.

Euery man shall inioye good, according to the innocency of his mouth: and after the workes of his handes shall he be rewarded.

Take what a fool taketh in hand, he shall hurt himselfe: but he that is wise, shall be counselled.

A foole uttereth his wrath in all the hall: but a discrete man forgyueth wronge.

A iust man will tell the truthe: and shew the gyunge that is right: but a false witness shall perish.

A slanderous person prayeth like a sword: but a wise mans tongue is peace.

A true mouth is cuer constant: but a lying tongue is soone changed.

They that ymagin euill in their mynde, will dyscuse: but the countellours of peace shall have peace to followe them.

There shall no mysfortune happen unto the iust: but the ungodly shall be fylled with misery.

The Lord abhorreth disceyfull spyers: but they that labour for truthe, please him.

He that hath vnderstandynge, can hyde his wisdom: but an vndiscrete heart telleth out his folly.

A diligent hande shall beare rule: but the yel shall be vnder tribute.

Wheruer thou discourageth the heart of man: but a good word maketh it gladd and gayne.

The righteous is lyberall unto his neyghbour: but the waye of the ungodly will dyscuse them felices.

A disceyfull man shall fynde no vantage: but he that is content with that he hath, is more worth then golde.

In the waye of rightousness there is life: as for anye other waye, it is the path to destruction.

CAPL

XIII.

A wise sonne will receyue his fathers manynge, but he that is scornful, will not heare when he is reprimand.

A good man shall enioye the frute of his mouth: but he that hath a fowarde mynde shall be spyled.

He that keepeth his mouth, keepeth his life: but who so speaketh vndiscreetly, shall be hurt.

The huggarde wolde fayne haue, and can not get his desire: but the soule of the diligent shall haue plenty.

A righteous man abhorreth lyes: but the ungodly shall hate bothe other and hym selfe.

Rightousness keepeth the innocent in the waye: but ungodliness shall ouerthrowe the sinner.

Some men are rich, though they haue no gyunge: agayne, some men are poore, haupng great riches.

With goodes euery man desireth his life: and the poore will not be reprimand.

The light of the righteous maketh full: but the candle of the ungodly shall be put out.

Among the proude there is cuer strife: but among those that do all thynges with aduysment, there is wysdome.

Golden goodes are soone spent: but they that be gathered together with the hand shall increase.

Large payenge for a thyng that is discreyfull: but when the desire cometh, it is a tree of lyfe.

Who so despiseth the word, shall destroye hym selfe: but he that feareth the commandment shall haue peace.

The same is a well of lyfe vnto the wyse: that it maye kepe hym frome the snares of death.

Good vnderstandynge giveth fauour: but hardie is the waye of the deysiers.

A wise man dothe all thynges with discrecion: but a fool will declare his folly.

An ungodly messenger byngeth myschance: but a saythfull ambassadour is profitable.

He that thynketh scorn to be reformed, cometh to perdition and shame: but who is receyued correction, shall come to honour.

When a desyre is brought to passe, it helpeth the soule: but soales abhorre hym that escheweth euill.

He that goeth in the company of wise men, shall be wise: but who so is a companion of of foolles, shall be hurt.

Whiche soeuer thou sowest vpon spynners, but the righteous shall haue a good reward.

Which theyr chyldren shall haue in possession: for the riches of the sinner is layd vp for the iust.

There is plenty of food in the fel-des of the poore: and shall be increased out of measure.

He that spareth the rodde, hateth his sonne: but who so loneth him, shall be his father in honour.

The righteous cateth, and is satisfied: but the brize of the ungodly hath neuer ynough.

CAPL

XIII.

A wise woman shall build her house, but a foolish woman shall plucke it downe.

Who so feareth the Lord, walketh in the right path: and regardeth not hym that abhorreth the wayes of the Lord.

In the mouth of the foolish is the bellying of Lordship: but the lippes of the wyse, will beware of lye.

Where no oxen are, there the cryb is empty: but where the oxen labour, there is much frute.

A saythfull witness will not dissemble, but a false teccorde will make a lye.

A scornfull boye seeketh wysdome, and fyndeth it not: but knowledge is easy to come by, vnto him that will vnderstande.

He that thou medle not with a fool: and doo as though thou haddest no knowledge.

The wisdom of him that hath vnderstanding, is, to take heed vnto his waye, but the foolishness of the unwise dyscreyeth.

Floes make but a spote of synne, but there is fauourable lone among the righteous.

The heart of him that hath vnderstanding will neither dyspayre for anye sorowe, nor be so presumptuous for anye ioye.

The houses of the ungodly shall be sure: Job. xii. 4.

For the payment that is sure for a bird and the pledge of him for the bird:
which is a fowle.

For man which the bird that is gotten is a fowle, but at the last his mouth shall be filled with gravel.

Thou shalt know all the things that men say with go for a bird and with discretion ought to be taken in hand.

For the bird which I say that bringeth forth venom, and is a slanderer, and believeth in his lies.

Who so curseth his father and mother, his light shall be put out in the myddell of dark-
nesse.

The bridle that cometh to hasten at first, shall not be played at the end.

Are not thou? I will recompence cruel, but put thy trust in the Lord, and he shall send thee.

The Lord abhorreth two manner of treach-ery, and a false balance is an evil thing.

The Lord abhorreth every mans goynge, for what is he, that standeth by his owne wages?

It is a snare for a man to blaspheme that which is holy, and then to go about with vowes.

A rype kyng destroyeth the ungodly, and byngeth the whole out them.

The lantern of the Lord is the brethe of man, and goeth thorow all the inward par-tes of the body.

Whereby and faithfulness preserve the kyng, and with lounge kyndnes his seat is holden by.

The strength of younge men is their worshipp, and a grape head, is an honour unto the aged.

Woundes dyue awaye cruel, and so to dry-pe the inward partes of the body.

CAPL XXI.

The kynges herte is in the hande of the Lord, lyke as are the ryces of water: he maye turne it whithersoever he will.

Every man thinketh his owne waye to be right, but the Lord judgeth the hertes.

So do righteousnesse and iudgement is more acceptable to the Lord than sacrifice.

A peris upstuous face, a proud stomache, and the lantern of the ungodly is frone.

The omers of one that is diligent, bringe plenteousnesse: but he that is unadvised, cometh into poverty.

Who so walketh by the wayes of the discrepancy or his own waye, he is a fowle, a lyke bird that is taken in the snare.

It is robbery of the ungodly to be their owne destruction, for they would have the thing that was right.

The waves of the sea towards the strait, but the waves of him which is cleare, are right.

It is better to dwell in a corner under the house toppe than with a bawnyng woman in a wyde house.

The soule of the ungodly is as a candle which hath no pite upon his reprobate.

When the scoonefull is punished, he cannot take the better hede: and when a man is warned, he will receyve the more understandinge.

The righteous enfourmeth the beate of ungodly, but the ungodly go on still after their owne wickednesse.

Who so stoppeth his care of the cryng of the poore, he shall crye him selfe and covere hede.

A pious reward pacifieth displeasure, and a gyfte in the bosome filleth furiounesse.

The iust deliveth in boyng: he which is right, but the two which of wickednesse have the same.

The man that wandreth out of the way of wisdom, shall remayne in the congregation of the dead.

He that hath pleasure in banquettes, shall be a poore man: Who so deliveth in wyne and delicates, shall not be rich.

The ungodly shall be given for the rhyous, and the wicked for the iust.

It is better to dwell in a wydernesse, with a chydng and an angry woman.

In a wyle mans house there is great treasure and plenteousnesse, but a foloweth spendeth by all.

Who so followeth righteounesse and truth, spendeth both lyfe, righteounesse and honour.

A wyle man wynteth the eyte of the mygty, and as for the strength that they trust in, he bringeth it downe.

Who so keepeth his mouth and his tongue,
the same keepeth his soule fro troubles.

He that is proud and presumptuous, is led a scoonefull man, whiche in what he doeth worketh maliciously.

The voluptuousnesse of the flouthfull his owne deache, for his handes will not be bur.

He coveteth and desireth all the daye long, but the righteous is alwayse gentyll and peth nothinge backe.

The sacrifice of the ungodly is abhorretion, for they offer the thinge that is gotten with wickednesse.

A false witness shall peris, but he which is content to heare, shall alway have power to speake him selfe.

An ungodly man goeth forth rhye, but iust reformeth his owne waye.

There is no wisdom, there is no counsellinge, there is no counsell against the Lord.

The horse is prepared against the daye of baicple, but the Lord gructh the waye for him.

CAP.

XXII.

292

Good name is more worth then great ryches, and lounge fauoure is better then silver and golde.

Whether ryches or pouerte wo mete vs, it cometh all of God.

A wyle man seyth the plage and byteth him selfe, but the foloweth go on still and are punished.

The ende of lounynes, and the feare of God, is ryche, honoure, prosperitie and health.

Spearer and snarer are in the waye of the froward, but he that will kepe his soule, let him flee frome such.

If thou teachest a childe in his yowth what he shall be, he shall not leane it when he is old.

The ryche ruleth the poore, and a borrower is servant to the lender.

He that loveth wickednesse shall escape so-rowe, and the rodde of his plage shall destroy him.

A lounge eye shall be blessed, for he gnyeth of his bled unto the poore.

Cast out the scoonefull man, and so shall ryche go out with him, yea variance a shall be shall cease.

Who so deliveth to be of a cleane hert and of gracious spyes, the kyng shall be his hert.

The eyes of the Lord preserve knowledge, but as for the wordes of the despyfull, he bringeth them to nought.

The flouthfull sayth: there is a Ryon my house, I myght be slayne in the stre.

The month of an harlot is a depe pyt, wherein he talseth that the Lord is angrye withall.

Foolishnesse speaketh in the herte of the lode, but the rod of correction dyspurne it awaye.

Who so with a poore man wyng to increase his owne ryche, gnyeth (commonly) unto the ryche, and at the last cometh to po-nere him selfe.

By sonne, bowe downe thyne eare, and hearken unto the wordes of wisdom.

Applye thy mynde unto my doctrine: for it is a pleasaunt thinge if thou kepe it in thyne herte.

And practise it in thy mouth: if thou mayst alway put thy trust in the Lord.

Have not I warned the very oft with counsell and leynage? that I myghte sweve the truth and that thou with the beere myghtest answer them that saye any thinge againste
the?

He that thou robbe not the poore because he is weak, and oppresse not the simple in iud-gement.

For the Lord him selfe will defende their cause, and doo violence unto them that have bled violence.

Take no frendshipp with an angry wilfull man, and kepe no company with the furious lest thou leane his wayes, and receyve hurt unto thy soule.

Be not thou one of them that bynde their hande upon pynple, and are surety for for if thou hast nothinge to paye, they shall take awaye thy bed frome under the

Thou shalt not remoure the sande marke,

Seest thou not, that they which be diligent in their bulpnes stande before kynges, & not amonge the simple people?

CAPL XXIII.

When thou sittest at the table to eat with a lord, observe thy selfe manerly with the things that are set before the Spesure thyne appetite: and if thou wilt rule thyne owne selfe, be not over greedy of his meate, for meate begyleth and lounyueth.

Take not over great traunple and laboure to be ryche, beware of suche a purpose.

Why wilt thou see thyne eye? don't thing which suddenly vanissheth awaye?

For riches make them seueres wynges, and take them flyght lyke an eagle into the ayre.

Eate not thou with the crupous, and he shalt not be thy meate, for he hath a marcelous herte.

He sayth unto the: eate and drynke, where as his herte is not with the.

Yea the morsels that thou hast eaten shalt thou perishe, and lete the sweete morsels.

Tell nothinge into the eares of a loie, for he will despyse the wysdome of thy wordes.

Remove not the oide lande marke, & come not within the felde of the fatherlesse:

For he that deliverech them is myghty, & even he shall defende their cause against the.

Applye thyne hert unto learning, and thyne eare to the wordes of knowledge.

Whicheholde not correction frome the childe for if thou beate him with the rodde, he shall not dye thereof.

Thou myghtest him with the rod, but thou deliverech his soule frome hell.

By sonne, if thy herte receyve wisdom, my herte also shall reioyse.

Yea my reynes shall be very glad, if thy lyp-pe sprake the thyng that is right.

Let not thyne hert be gealous to follow sinners, but kepe thyselfe in the feare of the Lord all the daye longe.

For the ende is not yet come and thy paine abydinge shall not be in vaine.

By sonne, give care and be wyle, so shall thyne hert prosper in the waye.

Kepe no company with wyne bybbers and erorous eaters of flesh: for suche as be vionhardes and erous shall come to pouerte, & he that is given to moche slepe, shall go with a ragged core.

Give care unto thy father that begat the,
and despyse not thy mother when she is old.

Labour for to get the truth: sell not away wisdom, noutour and understandinge (for a righteous father is marvelous glad of a wise sonne, and expecteth in him to shall thy father be glad, and thy mother that bare thee, shall rejoice.

My sonne, geue me thine heart, & let thine eyes haue pleasure in my wayes.

For an hope is a trewe graue, and an haerlot is a narrow pye.

She lurcheth lyke a theefe, and those that be not aware she bryngeth vnto her.

Wpne.

Where is woe? where is sorrow? where is strife? where is brawling? where are wounds without cause? where be red eyes?

Such amonge those that be cursd at & wyne and sike out where the bell is.

Take not thou vpon the wyne, how red it is, and what a colour it giveth in the glasse.

It goeth to wine softly, but at the last it byteth lyke a serpent, and stingeth as an adder.

So shall thine eyes like vnto draunge weemen, and thine heart shall muse vpon froward thynges.

Yea thou shalt be as though thou sleptest in the myddell of the see, or vpon the top of the maie.

They wounded me (saith thou fare) but it hath not hurt me, they smote me, but I felt it not.

When I am well wakened, I will go to the brynche agayne.

CAPL XXIII.

Beware thou gelous ouer wycked men, & desire not thou to be amonge them. For their herre ymagineth to do hurt and their lippes talke of myschefe.

Thou shalt knowe an house shall be buyl = ded, and with vnderstandinge it shall be set vp.

Thou shalt knowe discretion shall the chambers be filled with all rarite and pleasant thynges.

A wyse man is stronge, yea a man of vnderstandinge is better then he that is myghty of strength.

For with discretion must warres be take in hande, and where as are many that can geue counsell, there is the victary.

Wisdom is an hygh thinge, yea euen to the sole, for he dare not open his mouth in & gate.

He that ymagineth myschefe, may well be called an vngenerous personne.

The thought of the folyshe is speme, and & scornful is an abhorreacion vnto men.

If thou be ouerfaine and negligent in tyme of neede, then is thy strength but small.

Deluyce them that go vnto death, and are led awaie to be slayne, and be not negligent thyng.

If thou wilt save: I knowe not of it, thinke thou that he which made the herbes, doth not consyder it? and that he which regardeth the foules, seeth it not?

Shall not he recompence euery man accordyng to his wayes?

Yf thou wilt save: I knowe not of it, thinke thou that he which made the herbes, doth not consyder it? and that he which regardeth the foules, seeth it not?

Shall not he recompence euery man accordyng to his wayes?

My son, thou eatest honey and the strength doth come, because it is good and sweete in thy mouth.

Turn so shall the knowledge of wisdom be vnto thy soule, as sone as thou hast gotten it.

And there is good hope, yea thy hope shall not be in vayne.

Laye no pryue wayes secretly vpon the house of the righteous, and disquiete not his resting place.

For a iust man falleth seuen tymes, and riseth vp agayne, but the vngodly fall in to wickednes.

Reioyce not thou at the fall of thine enemy, and let not thine heart be glad when he stumbleth.

Let the Lorde (when he seeth it) be angry, and turne his wrath from him vnto the.

Let not thy wrath and gelousy moue the, to follow the wycked and vngodly.

And why? the wycked hath nothinge to hope for, and the candle of the vngodly shall be put out.

My sonne, feare thou the Lorde & the kyng, and kepe no companye with the scoundrelous: For their destruction shall come suddenly, and who knoweth the fall of them both?

These are also the sayenges of the wyse. It is not good, to haue respect of any person in iudgement.

He that sayeth to the vngodly: thou art righteous, him shall the people curse, yea the Lord shall abhorre him.

But they that rebuke the vngodly shall be commended, and a eyche blessing shall come vpon them.

He maketh him selfe to be well loued by such a good answer.

First make vp thy worke that is without, & loke wel vnto that which thou hast in & selde then buylde thine house.

Be no false wytnes against thy neighbour, and hurt him not with thy lippes.

Saye not: I will handle him, as he hath dealt with me, and will rewarde euery man accordyng to his dedes.

I went by the felde of the southfull, and by the byneparades of the folyshe man.

And lo, it was all couered with nettles, & made full of thistles, and the stone wall was broken downe.

This I sawe, and considered it well: I looked vpon it, and toke it for a warninge.

Yea slepe on still a litle, slumbe a litle, & false thine handes together yet a litle: so shall pouerete come vnto thee as one that is wayled by the wyse, and necessite lyke a wretched man.

Yea slepe on still a litle, slumbe a litle, & false thine handes together yet a litle: so shall pouerete come vnto thee as one that is wayled by the wyse, and necessite lyke a wretched man.

XXV.

CXX

These also are the sayenges of Salomon, whiche the men of Echiyah kyng of Iuda gathered to gether.

It is the honour of God to kepe a thyng secrete, but the kynges honour is to searche out a thyng. The heauen is hye, the earth is lowe, and the kynges heart is vnsearchable.

Take the dross from the syluer, and there shall be a cleane vessel therof.

Take awaye vngodlynesse from the kyng, and his seate shall be stablished with ryghte conserues.

Put not forth thy selfe in the presence of the kyng, and prece not in to the place of great men.

Better is it that it be sayde vnto the: come vnto me, then thou to be sette downe in the presence of the prynce whome thou seest with thine eyes.

Be not hasty to go to the lawe, lest happily thou shouldest thy selfe to at the last, that thy neighbour put the to shame.

Handle thy matter with thy neighbour hym selfe, and discover not another mans secrete, lest when men heare thereof, it come to thy dishonour, and lest thine euell name be not made.

A word spoken in due season, is lyke apples of golde in a syluer sphe.

The correction of the wyse is to an obedient care, a golden cheyne and a Jewell of golde.

Lyke as the mynter coole in the hart, so a faythfull messaunger to hym that sent him, and recomforteth his maysters mynde.

Who so maketh great boiles and geueth out rage, is lyke cloudes and wynde without rayne.

With patience maye a prynce be pacified, and with a softe tonge maye rygourousnesse be broken.

If thou synder honey, eate so moche as is sufficient for the: lest thou be ouer full, & perishe it out agayne.

Whitherso the foote come from the neighbour house, lest he be weary of the, and so abyene the.

Who so beareth false wytnesse agaynst his neighbour, he is a verye speere, a farsarber, and a sharpe atome.

The hope of the vngodlye in tyme of neede is lyke a rotten cory and a sypperre foote.

Who so spurneth a souge to a wycked hert, doeth hym with ragges in t he colder, and pouereth dyngre vpon soles.

If thine enemye hunger, fede hym: yf he thirste, geue hym drynke: for so shalt thou heape coles of fyre vpon his heade, and the Lorde shall rewarde the.

The southe wynde dryeth awaye the raphe, euen so doth an earthen iherusalem: naunce a backbiteres tonge.

It is better to lytte in a corner vnder the rose, then with a bawling woman in a nyght house.

A good reporte out of a farre countrie, is lyke colde water to a thyrstie soule.

A ryghtous man fallenge downe before the vngodlye, is lyke a scroubled well and a springe that is destroyed.

Lyke as it is not good to eate to much honey, euen so he that wyll searche out hys thynges, it shall be to heuy for hym.

He that can not rule hym selfe, is lyke a cytie whiche is broken downe, and hath no walles.

He that can not rule hym selfe, is lyke a cytie whiche is broken downe, and hath no walles.

He that can not rule hym selfe, is lyke a cytie whiche is broken downe, and hath no walles.

He that can not rule hym selfe, is lyke a cytie whiche is broken downe, and hath no walles.

He that can not rule hym selfe, is lyke a cytie whiche is broken downe, and hath no walles.

He that can not rule hym selfe, is lyke a cytie whiche is broken downe, and hath no walles.

He that can not rule hym selfe, is lyke a cytie whiche is broken downe, and hath no walles.

He that can not rule hym selfe, is lyke a cytie whiche is broken downe, and hath no walles.

He that can not rule hym selfe, is lyke a cytie whiche is broken downe, and hath no walles.

He that can not rule hym selfe, is lyke a cytie whiche is broken downe, and hath no walles.

He that can not rule hym selfe, is lyke a cytie whiche is broken downe, and hath no walles.

He that can not rule hym selfe, is lyke a cytie whiche is broken downe, and hath no walles.

He that can not rule hym selfe, is lyke a cytie whiche is broken downe, and hath no walles.

He that can not rule hym selfe, is lyke a cytie whiche is broken downe, and hath no walles.

He that can not rule hym selfe, is lyke a cytie whiche is broken downe, and hath no walles.

He that can not rule hym selfe, is lyke a cytie whiche is broken downe, and hath no walles.

He that can not rule hym selfe, is lyke a cytie whiche is broken downe, and hath no walles.

He that can not rule hym selfe, is lyke a cytie whiche is broken downe, and hath no walles.

He that can not rule hym selfe, is lyke a cytie whiche is broken downe, and hath no walles.

He that can not rule hym selfe, is lyke a cytie whiche is broken downe, and hath no walles.

He that can not rule hym selfe, is lyke a cytie whiche is broken downe, and hath no walles.

He that can not rule hym selfe, is lyke a cytie whiche is broken downe, and hath no walles.

Job. viii. The fruitful body thrusteth his hand into his bosom, and it grieveth him to put it againe to his mouth.

The tongue chyneth hym selfe wyse, the lip men, that yet and teache.

Who goeth by and medleth with other mens byes, as is lyke one that taketh a dog by the eares.

As one that shooteth deadly arrowes and darteth out of a privy place, even so doth a dissembler with his neyghboure.

And secretly hee shall be bit in the spoote.

When no wood is, there shall fyre goeth oute, and where the bawpeter is take awaye, there shall the fire ceasse.

A flatterers wordes are lyke flatterye, but they pearch the inward partes of the body.

Clenious lippes and a wycked herte, are lyke a potterdes soured with yllur distill.

An enemye dissembleth with his lippes, and in the meane season he ymagineth mischief: but when he speaketh fawse, beleeve him not, for there are leuen abominacions in his herte.

Who so kepeth euill wyll, secretly to be hurt, his malice shall be shewed before the whole congregation.

Eccl. x. b. Who byggeth up a pye, shall fall therin: and he that buildeth a stone, shall stumble upon it hymselfe.

A dissimbling tongue hateth one that rebuketh hym, and a flatteringe mouthe wycketh hymselfe.

CAP. XXVII.

Job. viii. Make not thy booke of to morowe, for thou knowest not what maye happen to daye.

Let an other man prayse the, and not thyn owne mouthe, yea other folkes lippes, and not thyne.

The stone is heavy, and the sande weygh-tye, but a foolis wythe is heavier then theyr heuie.

Wrath is a cruell thyng, and furiousnesse is a veyre tempest: yea who is hable to abyde enuye?

An open rebuke is better then a secreete loue.

Farefull are the woundes of a louer, but the byttes of an enemye are dyckear-ful.

Job. viii. He that is full, abhorreth an hony combe, but vnto hym that is hungrye, euerye souer-tyng is swete.

He that offe tymes spitteth, is lyke a byrd: that forsaketh her nest.

The veyr is glad of a lye oymment and floure, but a stomache that can geue good counsell, reioyseth a mans neyghboure.

Turne owne frende and thy fathers hand: for thou forsake not, but go not into thy by-thes house in tyme of thy trouble.

Better is a scende at hande, then a byrdys fauce of.

Thy sonne, he wyll, and thou shalt make me a glad herte: so that I shall make answer vnto my rebukers.

A wyse man scynge the plage, wyll hys hym selfe, as for foolcs they go on still, and suffer harme.

* Take his garmente that is surety for a stranger, and take a pledge of hym for the unknown mans sake.

He that is to haue to prayse his neygh- boure aboute measure, shall be taken as one that geueth hym an euill reporte.

A bawpeter woman and the rose of the house droppenge in a rapy dape, maye well be compaced together.

He that refrayneth her, refrayneth the wynde, and holdeth oyle fast in his hande.

Lyke as one yron wheteth another, so doth one man comforte another.

Who so kepeth his synge tre, shall enioy the fruites therof: he that wyppeth vpon his mayster, shall come to honoure.

Lyke as in one water there appereth veyre faces, even so dycketh men haue dycked hertes.

Lyke as hell and destruction are neuer full, even so the eyes of men can neuer be satisfied.

Syluer is tryed in the moulde, and golde in the fornaue, and so is a man, when he openly playeth to his face.

Though thou shouldst haue a sole with- gruel in a mortar lyke of emelle, yet wyll not his foot: shall he go from hym.

He that thou knowest the nombre of thy car- tell thy lye, and loke well to thy flockes.

For thyngs abyde not alway, & the maner enueryng not for euer.

The hyr geueth, the grasse cometh by, and herbes are gathered in the mountaynes.

The lamb shall clothe the, and the goate thou shalt haue money to thy hand.

Thou shalt haue gotes mylke enough to fede the, to bypode thy house hold, and to fede thyne thy maydens.

CAP. XXVIII.

Job. viii. The vngodly scorseth no man that scorseth hym, but the rightous standeth as a rocke.

Because of synne the lande bothe of the charyng her pyre: but the pyre men of vnderstandyng and wyldome a realme enu-tyng longe.

One poor man oppressege an other by violence, is lyke a continuall tagne that scorseth the floure.

Who that forsake the lawe, prayse the vngodly, but scorseth as hepe the lawe, abhorre hym.

Which men discern not the thyng that is right, but they that see after the Roide, shall be all thyngs.

A poor man ledyng a godly lyfe, is bet- ter then the ryche that goeth in scowarde byes.

Who so kepeth the lawe, is a chyld of vnderstandyng: but he that sedeth ryous mē, scorseth his father.

Who so increaseth his ryches by deuntage and bypynge, let hym gather them to helpe the poore wylhall.

He that turneth awaye his care from hea-vinge the lawe, his prayer shall be abhor-ryng.

Who so sedeth the ryghtous into an euill waye, shall fall in to his owne pyte, but the rightous shall haue the good in possession.

The ryche man thynketh hym selfe to be safe, but the poore that hath vnderstandyng, can perceyue hym well ynough.

When ryghtous men are in prosperitie, they don't honoure theyr the: but when the vngodly come by, the state of men chaungeth.

He that bydeth his synnes, shall not prosper: but who so knowledgeth them and forsaketh them, shall haue mercy.

Well is hym that standeth alway in awe: as for hym that scorseth his herte, he shall fall in to myschance.

Lyke as a rarynge yron and an hungrye bare, even so is an vngodly pynte ouer the poore people.

When the pynte is withoute vnderstandyng, there is greare oppression and wrong: but yf he be such one as hath courtousnesse, he shall longe tyme.

He that by violence sheddeth any mannes blood, shall be a renegate vnto his graue, and no man shall be hable to succoure hym.

Who so leadech a godly and an innocente lyfe, shall be safe: but he that goeth scowarde byes, shall once haue a fall.

He that tyllith his lande, shall haue plenty of bread: but he that foloweth by-tyllage, shall haue pouerte ynough.

A sleepy man is greatly to be commen- ded, but he that maketh to muche haste for to be ryche shall not be vngodly.

To haue respect of personnes in iudgeme-nt is not good.

And wyll he wyll do wronge, yea euen for apace of bycade.

He that wyll be ryche all to soone, hath an euill eye, and scorseth not, that pouerte shall come vpon hym.

He that rebuketh a man, shall fynde more fauoure at the lasse, then he that flattereth hym.

Who so robbeth his father and mother, and sayeth it is no synne: the same is lyke vnto a moutherer.

He that is of a proud stomache, scorseth by-tyllage, but he that putteth his trust in the Roide, shall be well fedde.

He that trusteth in his owne herte, is a fool: but he that dealeth wyllyng, shall be safe.

He that geueth vnto the poore, shall not wante: but he that turneth awaye his eyes from such as be in neede, shall suffer greate pouerte hym selfe.

When the vngodly are come by, men are fayre to hyde them selves: but when they see the ryche, the ryghtous increaseth.

CAP. XXIX.

Job. viii. He that is synned and wyll not be re- fourmed, shall surely be destroyed with out any helpe.

Where the ryghtous haue the ouerhand, the people are in prosperitie: but where the vngodly beareth rule, there the people mourne.

Who so toucheth wyseme, maketh his fa- ther a glad man, & but he that kepeth harlot-tes, spendeth awaye that he hath.

With herte iudgement the kyng setteth by the lande, but yf he be a man that taketh gre-tes, he turneth it vnto byde downe.

Who so flattereth his neyghboure, lapeth a nette for his fete.

The synne of the wycked is his owne snare, but the ryghtous shall be glad and re-ioyce.

The ryghtous consydreth the cause of the poore, but the vngodly regardeth no vnder-standyng.

Wycked people bynge a crye in decaye, but wyse men set it by agayne.

Yf a wyse man go to lawe with a fool (whe-ther he deale with hym frendly or roughly) he getteth no rest.

The bloud thynke hate the ryghtous, but the iust seke his soule.

A foolle pouerth oute his synne all toge-ther, but a wyse man kepeth it in till after-ward.

Yf a pynte deyle in lye, all his seruants are vngodly.

The poore and the lender mate together, the Roide rygheneth bothe theyr eyes.

The seate of the kyng that sayeth truly iud- geth the poore, shall contynue sure for euer- more.

The rodde and correction mynistrer wyse- dome, but yf a chyld be not loked vnto, he bypyngeth his mother to shame.

When the vngodly come by, wyckednesse increaseth, but the ryghtous shall se theyr fall.

Fourtye thy sonne with correction, and he shall comfort the, yea he shall do the good at thine herte.

Where no prophete is, there the peo- ple perishe: but well is hym that kepeth the lawe.

A seruant wyll not be the better for wo- des, for though he vnderstande, yet wyll he not regarde them.

CALLED ECCLESIASTES.

That is in this worlde is vanitie.

CAPL.

I.

These are the woordes of the preacher, the sonne of David, kynge of Ierusalem. All is but vanitie (sayeth the preacher) all is but playne vanitie: for what els hath a man, of all his labours that he taketh vnder the sunne? One generation passeth away, another cometh, but the earth abydeth for ever. The sunne ariseth, the sunne goeth downe, and returneth to his place, that he maye there rise by agayne. The wynde goeth toward the South, and fetcheth his course about vnto the North, and so turneth in to him selfe agayne. All floudes run into the see, and yet the see is not fylled: for loke into what place the waters run, thence they come agayne. All thynges are so harde, that no man can erre them. The eye is not satisfied with sight, the eare is not fylled with hearinge. For thynges that hath bene, cometh to passe agayne: and the thynges that hath bene done, is done agayne, there is no new thyng vnder the sunne. Is there any thyng wherof it may be sayde: lo, this is newe? for it was longe ago in the tymes that haue bene before vs. For thynges that is past, is out of remembrance. And so the thynges that are for to come, shall be as though they had bene. And amonge them that come after. I my selfe the preacher, beinge kynge of Irael and Ierusalem, applyed my mynde to take out and tearche for the knowledge of all thynges that are done vnder heauen. Suche trauaile and laboure hath the God geuen vnto the children of men, to exercise them selfe therein.

Thus I haue considered all the thynges that come to passe vnder the sunne, and lo, they are all but vanitie and vexation of mynde. For crookes can not be made straight, and the sower can not be made straight. I comended with myne owne hart, sayenge: lo, I am come to a great state, and haue gotten more wysdome, than all they that haue bene before me in Ierusalem. For my hart had great experience of wysdome and knowledge, for there vnto I applyed my mynde, that I might knowe what was wysdome & vnderstandinge, what was profit and folysheenes. And I perceyued that this also was but a vexation of mynde: for what more wysdome is, there is also great trauaile and squierne: & the more knowledge a man hath, the more is his care.

Abundance of riches, of pleasure, and of buildings, are but vexation of mynde.

CAPL.

II.

Then sayd I thus in my hart: I will goe so farre, I will take myne ease & haue good dayes. But lo, that was vanitie also: for in so moche that I sayde vnto laughter: I was art mad, and to my selfe: what wast thou?

So I thought in my hart, to wylche I my selfe frome to myne, to applye my mynde vnto wysdome, and to comprehend folysheenes vntill the tyme I (amonge all the thynges that are vnder the sunne) I might finde what was best for men to do, so longe as they lyue vnder heauen. I made gorgeous fayre woordes, I builded me houses, & plantes bynerades. I made me orchardes and gardenes of pleasure, and planted trees in them of all maner frutes. I made poles of water, to water the grene and frutesfull trees withall. I bought ieuannites and maydens, and had a great householde. As for catell and shepe, I had more substance of them, then all they that were before me in Ierusalem. I gathered siluer and golde together, euen a treasure of kynges and landes.

I prouided me stringes and women whiche coulde playe of instrumentes, to make me my selfe a pastyme. I gat me dymynges coppes also and glasses. (Shoptyly) I was greater & in more wysdome, then all my predecessours in Ierusalem. For wysdome remained with me and toke what so euer myne eyes desired, I let them haue it: and wher in so euer my hart desired, I had any pleasure, I withheld it not frome it. Thus my hart reioyced in all I did, and thus I toke for the portion of all my trauaile. But when I considered all the workes that my handes had wrought, and all the labours that I had taken therein: lo, all was but vanitie and vexation of mynde, and nothing of any value vnder the sunne. And turned I me to consider wysdome, erroure & folysheenes (for what is he amonge men, that might be compared to me the kynge in suche woordes?) and I saw that wysdome excelleth folysheenes, as farre as light doth darkness. For a wyse man beareth his eyes about in his head, but the folke goeth in the darkness. I perceyued also that they both had one ende.

Then thought I in my mynde: If it happen vnto I sale as it doth vnto me, what needeth me then to labour any more for wysdome? so I confessed within my hart, that this also was but vanitie. For the wyse are euer as lytle in remembrance as the folke, and all the dayes for to come shall be so: for the wyse man dyeth as well as the folke. Thus began I to be weary of my lyfe, in so moche that I coulde away w nothing that is done vnder the sunne for al was but vanitie & vexation of mynde. For I was weary of all my labour, which I had taken vnder the sunne, because I shuld be fayre to leane the vnto an other man, I cometh after me, for who knoweth, whether he shall be a wyse man or a folke? & yet shal he be loyde of all my labours, which I w such wysdome haue taken vnder the sunne. Is not this a bayne thing?

So I turned me to restrayne my mynde fro all suche trauaile, as I toke vnder the sunne for so

Do for moche as a man woulde lerye him selfe in his laboure, with his handinge and opor-tunitie, and yet he sayne to leave his labours unto the daye, that never sweete for the. This is also a vayne thinge and a great mystrye.

For he that getteth a man of all the laboure and travayle of his mynde, that he taketh under the Sunne, but he saynes, sojourn and disquietnes at the daye of his lyfe? In so moche that his bette can not rest in the nyght. Is not this also a vayne thinge? Is it not better the for a man to eate and drinke, and his soule to be mery in his laboure? Yea I sawe that this also is as a gyste of God: For who may eate drinke, or bynge any thinge to passe without him? And why? he groweth unto man, what it pleaseth him: whether it be by some, understandinge, or gladnesse. But unto the synner he groweth wearynes and sojourn, that he maye gather and heape together the thinge, & afterwardes walke gyven unto him, whome it pleaseth God. This is now a vayne thinge, yea a very disquietnesse & vexation of mynde.

All thynges come in therr tyme and passe away in therr tyme.

CAP.

III.

Every thinge hath a tyme, yea all that is under the heauen, hath his convenient season.

There is a tyme to be borne, and a tyme to dye.

There is a tyme to plante, and a tyme to plucke by the thinge, that is planted.

A tyme to slay, and a tyme to make hole.
A tyme to breake downe, and a tyme to buike up.

A tyme to wepe, and a tyme to laughe.

A tyme to moune, and a tyme to daunce.

A tyme to cast awaye stones, and a tyme to gather stones together.

A tyme to embrace, and a tyme to restryne frome embracinge.

A tyme to myne, and a tyme to lese.

A tyme to sparre, and a tyme to spende.

A tyme to cut in peeces, and a tyme to sowe together.

A tyme to kepe sylence, and a tyme to speake.

A tyme to loue, and a tyme to hate.

A tyme of warre, and a tyme of pear.

What hath a man els (that doth any thinge) but wearynesse and laboure? For as touching the travayle & carefullnesse which God hath gyven unto men, I se he hath gyven it him to be excused in it. All this hath he ordeined marvelous goodly, to every thinge his due tyme. He hath planted ignorauce also in the herbes of men, that they shuld not fynde out the grounde of his workes, which he doth fro the begynnyng to the ende. So I perceyved, that in these thinges there is nothinge better for a man, then to be mery and to do well so longe as he lyveth. For all that a man eateth and drinketh, yea what so ever a man enjoyeth of all his laboure, that same is a gyste of God. I considered also that what so ever God doth, it continueth for ever, and that nothinge can be put unto it nor taken frome it: and I God doth it to the intent, that men shoulde fear him. The thinge that hath bene, is now and the thinge that is for to come, hath bene afore tyme. For God respoyneth agayne the thinge that was past. Moreover, I sawe under the Sunne vngodlynesse in the face of iudgement and iniquite in the face of elyghtowynesse. When I thought I in my mynde: God shal separate righteous frome the vngodly, and then shal he the tyme and iudgement of all countrys and workes. I commened with myne owne herte also concerninge the children of men: howe God hath chosen them, and yet letteth them aparte: as though they were brayles: for they happeneth unto men as it doth unto brayles, and as the one dyeth, so dyeth the other: yea they have both one manner of byrth, so that (this) a man hath no preeminence above a brayle but all are subdued unto vanitie. They go all unto one place, for as they be all of dust, so shall they all turne unto dust agayne. Who knoweth the spirite of man? goeth by the waye and the breath of the beaste that goeth downe into the earth? Wherefore I perceyve, there is nothinge better for a man, then to be mery in his laboure, for that is his portion. But who wil bynge him to se the thinge that shal come after him?

The mysteries of the innocent. The superfluous labours of men. The chyld is poore and weake.

CAP.

III.

So I turned me, and considered all the solent wronge that is done under the Sunne and beholde the teares of such as were oppressed, and there was no man to comforte them: or that wolde delivere and defende them from the violence of their oppressours. Where fore I iudged those that are deede, to be more happy then such as be a lyve: yea him that is yet unborne to be better at ease then the borne, because he seeth not the myserable waykes that are done under the Sunne.

Agayne, I sawe that all travayle and disquietnes of labour was hated of every man. This is also a vayne thinge, and a vexation of mynde.

Two folde folde his handes together, and eateth by his owne flesch. One handfull (say-he) is better with rest, then both the handes full with laboure and travayle.

Moreover, I tourned me, and beholde an other banishe under the Sunne.

There is one man, no mo but him selfe:
lonely, havinge neither chyld nor byrth: yet there no ende of his carefull travayle, his eyes canne not be satisfied with rest. (yet doeth he not remembre him selfe, and say:) For to whome do I take such travayle? For whose pleasure do I thus consume away my lyfe? This is also a vayne and myserable thinge. Therefore two are better then one, for they maye well enjoye the profyt of their laboure. If one of them fall, his companion helpe him by agayne. But too is him that is alone, for if he fall, he hath no other to helpe him by. Agayne, when two sleepe together they are warme: but how can a body be warme alone? One may be overcome, but two maye resist: a fyre sold cable is not lightly broken. A poore chyld beinge weyle, is better then an elde king that doth, and can not beware in tyme to come. Some one cometh out as a king: and is made a king: and an other which is borne in the kingdome, cometh unto power.

And I perceyved that all men lyvinge under the Sunne, go with the seconde chyld, that commeth by in the face of the other.

As for the people that have ben before him, and that come after him, they are innumerable: yet is not their hope the greater though. This is also a vayne thinge, and a vexation of mynde. When thou comest in to the house of God, kepe thy fore, & drawe nyp, that thou maye heare that is better then the saynges of fooles. For they knowe not what mylth they do.

I admonish to beware of the communication:
He ought not to marvel at the oppression of the poore. The covetous is not satisfied in his riches.

CAP.

V.

Not haue both thy mouth, and let not thy herte speake any thinge rashly before God. For God is in heven, and thou hast erth: therefore let thy wordes be few. For where moche carefullnesse is, there are manye dreames: and where many wordes are, there are many foales. If thou make a vowe unto God, be not slacke to performe it. As for thy vowes, he hath no pleasure in them.

If thou make any thinge, paye it: for better it is that thou make no vowe, then that thou shouldest promise and not paye. Take not the oath to cause thy selfe for to synne, that thou speake not before the auntyll: my folow-er is in the fault. For then God wil be angry at thy voyce, and destroye all thy workes with thyne handes. And why? where as are many dreames and many wordes, there are also many foales: but loke if thou feare God, if thou seest the poore to be oppressed, a wrongfully deale withall, so that equitye and the right of the law is trodded in the lande: matter not thou at such iudgement, for one great man kepeth toucheth with an other. The myghty he helpe them felowes together. The hole land also with the felowes, and all that is therein, is in subjection and bondage unto the kynge. He that longeth money, wil never be satisfied with money: and who so desireth in riches, shal have no profyte thereof. Is not this also a vayne thinge? Where as moche riches is, there are many also that synne them awaye. And what pleasure maye hath he that possideth them, save that he maye loke upon them with his eyes? A labouring man slepeth sweetly, when he is lytle or moche that he eateth: but the abundance of the ryche wyll not suffice him to sleepe.

Yet is there a sore plage, which I have seene before under the Sunne (namely) rycheesse kepte to the hurt of him that hath them in possession. For ofte tymes they perishe with his great mylth, and trouble: and if he have a chyld, it getteth nothinge. As he came naked out of his mothers wombe, so goeth he thither agayne, & carrieth nothinge awaye with him of all his laboure.
This is a myserable plage, that he shal goe awaye even as he came. What helpeth it him then, that he hath laboured in the wynde all the dayes of his lyfe also, whiche he eate in the darken, with great carefullnesse, & chynesse and sojourn. Therefore me thynke it a better and a fayrer thinge, a man to eate and drinke, and to be refreshed of all his laboure, than he that hath under the Sunne all the dayes of his lyfe, whiche God groweth him, for this is his portion. For unto whome to ever God groweth ri-cheesse, goodes and power, he groweth it hym to enjoye it, to take it for his portion, and to be refreshed of his laboure: this is now the gyste of God. For he thynketh not moche how long he shal lyve, for so moche as God filleth his herte with gladnesse.

The mylth of the ryche and covetous. The discontent of a foole and a weyle man.

CAP.

VI.

There is yet a plage under the Sunne, and it is a generall thyng among men: whiche God groweth a man richesse, goodes and honour, so that he wanteth nothinge of all that his herte can desire: and yet God giveth him not leue to enjoye the same, but an other man spendeth them. This is a vayne thinge, and a myserable plage. If a man beget an hundred chyldren, a true many yeres, so that his dayes are many in nombre, and yet can not enjoye his good, neith' he be buried: as for him, I say, that an untymely byrth: he is better then he. For he cometh to nought, and goeth his waye in to darkenesse. His name is forgotten. Moreover he seeth not the sunne, and knoweth of no rest neith' he here there. Yea though he lived two thousand yeres, yet hath he no good life. Come not all to one place? All the laboure that a man eateth, is for him selfe. Yet his desire is never filled after his mynde. For what hath the wylle more then the sole? What helpeth it the poore what he knoweth to walke before the lyvinge?
The sight of the eyes is better, then that the soule shold so depart awaye. What be it this is also a vayne thinge, & a disquietnesse of mynde.
What is more excellent then man? yet can he not in the same get the victorie of him that is mightier then he. A vayne thinge is it to cast out many wordes, but what hath a man els?

That which passeth our strengthes and wyttes ought we not to forsake.

CAP.

VII.

For who knoweth what is good for man?
I sayunge, in the dayes of his vayne lyfe, whiche is but a shadowe? Who wil tell a man

A man to that shall happen after him vnder the sunne? & good name is more woorth then a pre-sious ornament, and the day of death is better then the day of birth. It is better to go in to an house of mourninge, then in to a banquet-tinge house. For there is the ende of all men and he that is tripping taketh it to heart. It is better to be lowe then to laugh, for when the countenance is heur, the heart is ioyful. The heart of the wise is in the mourninge of life, but the heart of the folyshe is in the house of mirth.
It is better to giue care to the chastening of a wise man, then to heare the song of foles. For the laughing of foles is like the crackinge of the, as vnder a pot. And that is but a vayne thing. Who so doeth to longe, maketh a wise man to goe oute of his wyse, and destroyeth a gentle heart. The ende of a thyng is better then the beginninge. The patient of spire is better then the hye minded. Be not hastily angry in thy mynde: for wrath resteth in the bosome as a roote. Say not thou: what is the cause þ the vices of y^e old tyme were better then they be now: for that were no wise question. Wyse-dom is better then riches, yea moche more bright then the eye sight. For wisdom defendeth as well as money, and the excellent knowlege & wisdome giueth life vnto him that hath it in possession. & ouercome y^e wayke of God hom-ly that no man can make the thyng stronger, which he maketh weaker. Use well the tyme of prosperitie, and remember the tyme of misfortune: for God maketh the one by the other, so that a man can fynde nothing els.

These two things also haue I considered in the time of banishment: that punishment I remember for a right wickedness sake, and the vngodly iu-dgement is his wickedness. Therefore be thou neither to righteous nor vniuertie, that thou persistest not: be neither to vniuertie also, ne to iustice, lest thou be before thy time. It is good, as he to take holde of this, and not let it go from thy hande. so be that fearing God, that escape them all.

13. Some greuously more courage vnto the mightie men of the cite: * for there is not one iust vpon earth that meth good, if I am not. Take not herte vnto euery word that is spoken, leaſt thou heare thy ſeruaunte ſay the: for thine olone herte knowe. h. chas.

The holie sayth the preacher: this haue I be-lieued: and stated co out and proued: that I might come by knowledge: which as yet I see. a sinde
 I. not. for ong a thousand men I haue founde one, but not one woman amonge all. No, this only haue I founde, that God made man wth e right, but they like dyuers subtelties, where as no man hath wthstoode and vnderstanding to geue an an^{sw}er therunto.

The king's commandment ought to be kept.
Gladness is one of the chief things under the hea-

CAPL. VIII.

Whisme maketh a mannes face to shine but maketh putteth out of fauour. kepe the kynges commaundement (I wote the) and the othe þ thou hast made vnto God.
We not haue to go out of his sight, & let him continue in no euill thinge: for what to can it please him, that dothe vs. Vp he as wem a kyng geueth a charge, his commaunde-ment is myghty: Euen so who may say vnto him: what doest thou? Who so hearyth the commaundement, shall fele no harme:
but a wyse mannes herte discerueth tyme and maner. for euery thyng wyl haue oportunitie and iudgement, and this is the thyng that maketh men full of carefulnesse and so-rowe. And why? a man knoweth not what is for to come, for who wyl tell hym? For there is there any man that hath power on the spíríte, to kepe still the spíríte, ne to haue any power in the tyme of deathe: it is not bealso that can make an ende of the batayle, neither may vngodlynesse deliuer him that misdoeth withall.

All these things haue I considered, and applied my minde vnto euery worke that is vnder the sunne: how one man in hathe lordshipp vpon another to his owne harme. For I haue obserued the vngodly brought to these states, & fallen downe from the hie and glorious place: in so much that they were forgotten in the cite, where they were bad in so hie and great reputation.
 This is also a vayne thing. Because now that euill workers are not hastily punished, the heart of man gyueth him: if sure vnto wickednes.
 But thoughe an euill person offend an hundred times, and haue a longe life: yet am I sure that it shall go well with them that feare God, because they haue him before their eyes.
 Likewise, as for the vngodly, it shall not be well with him, neither shall he pro longe his dayes: but euen as a shadow, so shall he be that feareth not God.

It is there a banitie vpon earthe: The be iude men, vnto whome it happeneth, as though they had the woordes of the angell sayinge, there be vngodly, with whom goeth as though they had the woordes of the righteous. This me thinke also a banie to singe. Therefore I commend gladly, by cause a man hath no better thynge vnder the sunne, then to eate and drynke, and to be merry: so that shall he haue of his labour all the dayes of his lyfe, whiche God graciously vnder the sunne. When I applied my minde to learne my home, and to knowe the triumph that is in the worlde, and that of iude of iude

a facion, that I suffered not myne eyes to sleepe neither daye ne nyght) I vnderstode of all the workes of God, that it is not possible for a mā to attayne vnto the workes that are done vnder the sunne: & though he bestowe his labour to seeke them out, yet can he not reach vnto the:
yea though a wyse man wolde vndertake to knowe them, yet might he not fynde them.

A man moteth not, by the rightousnesse of his enemynes, whether he is worthy of loue or hate.
A man ought to lye secretly with his wife. A praye of wyddowic.

CAPL IX.

For all these thynges purposed I in my Empyre to sche out. The righteous & wyse, yea and their woorkes also, are in the hand of God: and there is no man that knoweth either þe soue or date of the thyng that he hath before him. It happeneth vnto one as vnto an other: It goeth with the righteous as with þe ungodly: with the good and cleare, as with the darken: with him that offereth, as with him that offereth not: yea as it goeth with þe vir-tuous, so goeth it also with the synner: As it happeneþ vnto the peccature: so happeneth it also vnto him that is afeard to be forsworne.
Amonge all thynges that come to passe vnder the heauens, this is a miserie, that it happeneth vnto all almightie. This is the cause also that the harts of men are full of wickednesse, and made fooly: whiche is in theyr hearts as long as they be, by this they be.

And why? As longe as a man leueth, he is carride: for a quicke dog (saie they) is better than a dead yon: for they that be liuing, knowe they shall dye: but they that be dead, knowe nothinge, neither desire they any more. For their memoiall is forgotten, so that they be neither loued, hatid, ne enuyed: neither haue they any more parte in the worlde, in all that is done vnder the sunne. So thou thy wofull rate thy bydes will, hope, and b. Like thy wime with gladnes, for thy woordes please God. Let thy garments be alwaies whyle, and let thy hird want none ornament. Let thy selfe to liue iustly with thy wyfe to youn thou leauest, all the dayes of thy life, for it is but vayne, that God hath giuen: he vnder the sunne all the dayes of thy banke: for that is the portion in this life, of all thy laboure and trauaile that thou takest vnder a sunne. What to eate thou takest in hande to do, that he dooth all thy po-uere: for among the dead where thou goest bi-de, there is neither woork, counsell, knowlege, ne wisdom.

So I couched me vnto other thynges vnder the sunne, and I sawe that in turninge, it hel-peth not to be slepyt: in batell, it helpeth not to be stronge: to sekyage it helpeth not to be wyse: to rycheffe, it helpeth not to be subtyle:
to be had in fauoure, it helpeth not to be coun-tyng: but that all tethy in tyme and fortune, for a man husweth not his tyme, but lyke as the fywe are taken hach the angle, and as the byrds are caught with the snare: Euen so are men taken in the perillous tyme, when we meth to depely upon them.

This wylsdomme haue I sene alle tyme suone, and me thought it a greet thyng. It was a litle cite, and a litle man dwelt in it. there came a greet king, and beset the cite greet bulwarkes agaynste it. And tyme there was founde a poore man (but of twyle) which with his wylsdomme beset the cite: yet was there no boty that had any spen but inche a simple man. Then lape the wylsdomme is better then strengthe. For as muche a simple mans wylsdomme is beset, and all wordes are not herbe. All twyle mans counsell that is folowed in splence, is fere above the enge of a capitayne among tooles. And a wylsdomme is better then harnesse: but one onyng alone bestrope the good.

The difference betwixt a sole and a wyle man.
Fortunate and happye is that realme which hath a wyle prince.

CAPT. X

Deede spres that corrupt swete ornament and make it to stynke, are some thynges more worthy then the wysdomme and honnour of a foole. A wise mans beere is vpon the right hande, but a foolkes beere is vpon y^e left.
A doctyng foole thynketh that eury man is as folyshe as him selfe. Ye a principall shoulde be gyde to the to beare rule, be not neglyt, if thou in thyne office: for so what great wylle thou be put downe as it were with a mallet. And other place is there, whiche I haue seene vnder the sunne: namely the tyrannounce that is commenly among prynces: in that a foole beareth in great dignitie, and the wyse are set downe beneathe: I se seruantes ryde vpon horses, & prynces going vpon their feete as it were krea-cles. But he that digged by a pyrt, shall find therein him selfe: and who so breaketh oopen the beelge, a serpent shall breke out. Who in his mouth sows, shall haue treasurie with him: & he that soweth wod, shall be hurt therewith.

When an iron is blunt, and the peere nor sharpened, it must be whet againe, and þus is might: Euen so both the impudent felongence, & babler of his tongue is no better than a serpent þat angereth without heyling. The characters of a wile mans mouche, are good ones, but the lypes of a foole will destroye him first.
The degenerating of his talking is to silence, the last word of his mouth is great mabnific.
A foole is full of wordes, that a man can not tel what ende he wil make: who wil the twaine him to make a conclusion? The labour of the foole is greeuous vnto them, while they know not how to go in to the city.

Who be unto the (o thou realme and lande) whose kyng is but a chylde, and whose prynces are early at their bankers. But well is the (o thou realme and lande) whose kyng is come of nobles, and whose prynces care in due season, for strength and not for lust. Therefore Northfolke the balles fall downe, and those whose idle handes it earnestly in at the house.

State maketh men to laugh, & wyne maketh them merry: but unto money are all thynges ebdied. With the king no euil in thy thought and speake no hurt of the ryche in thy pryue chamber: for a bynde of the eye shall betraye thy voyce, and with his fetyers shall he bewape thy wordes.

¶ Myghte ought to be dedgryt but the nedy.

CAPL.

XI.

Sende thy vntayles ouer the waters, and so walle thou fynde them after many yeres. Spue it awaye amonge iken of eight, for thou knowest not what mistery shall come vpon earth. When the clowdes are full, they pouere out rayne vpon the erthe. And when the tree falleth (whether it be towards the southe or northe) in what place so euer it fall, there it lyeth. He that regardeth the wynde, shall not sowe: and he that hath respect vnto the clow-des shall not reape. Now lyke as thou knowest not the waye of the wynde, ne how the bones are filled in a mothers wombe: Euen so thou knowest not the workes of God, whiche is the workemaster of all.

¶ Leasse not thou thyselfe with thy handes to some thy seed, whether it be in the morning or in the evening: for thou knowest not whether this or that shall prosper, and yet they bothe take it is the better. The lyght is sweete, and a pleasant chynge is it for the eyes to loke vpon the sunne. If a man leue many peeces, & be glad in them all, let him remember that daies of darkness, which shall be many: and when they come, all thynges shall be but vanitie. Be glad then (o thou yonge man) in thy yowthe, and let thyne heart be merry in thy yong daies:
follow the wayes of thyne owne heart, and the full of thyne eyes: but be thou sure that God shall byrge the in to iudgement for all these thynges.

¶ From our youth ought we to confide and regarde the goodnesse of God.

CAPL.

XII.

Put awaye displeasure out of thyne heart, and remoue euil from thy body: for child hode and yowthe is but vanitie. Remember the thy maker in thy yowthe, or euer the dayes of aduersite come, and on the yeres shalbe me when thou shalt saye: I haue no pleasure in them before the sunne, the lighte, the moon & sterres be darkned, and on the clowdes shalbe agayne after the rayne: when the fetyers of the house shall tremble, and when the stronge me shall bowe them selfe: when the myllers shalbe still, because they be so fetid and when the light of the wyndowes shall waxe dymme: when the dayes in the sterres shall be shut, and when the voyce of the myller shall be layde downe:

when men shall rise vp at the voyce of a bynde, and when all the daughters of musyke shall be brought lowe: when men shall feare in the places, and be afrayd in the sterres: when the almonde tree shall be despyed, the grethopper bozme out: and when great pouerte shall be in: when man goeth to his longe home, & the mourners go about the sterres. O euer the shiuer lace be taken awaye, & on the golden bank be broken: or the pot be broken at the well, & the whele vpon the cesterne: or dust be turned agayne vnto the erth from whence it came, & or the spyrte retorne vnto God, whiche gaue it. All is but vanitie (sayth the Preacher) all is but playne vanitie.

The same Preacher was not wylle alone, but taught the people knowlege also: he gaue good hede, sought out & grounde, and set forth many parables. His diligence was to fynde out acceptable wordes, ryght scripture, & the way-des of truthe. For the wordes of the wyle are lyke pyckes & nayles that go thowme, wherwith men are kept together: for they are gyrd of one fether onely. Therefore beware of my sonne) that aboute these thou make the not many and innumerable bokes, nor take diuers wo-rdes in hand, to weep thy body withall.

¶ Let vs heare the conclusion of all thynges: feare God, and kepe his commandementes, for that toucheth all men: for God shall iudge all wykes and secrete thynges, whether they be good or euil.

¶ The ende of the boke of the pre-cher, otherwyse called Ecclesiastes.

THE BALLET OF BALLETES OF SALO-MON: CALLED IN LATYNE, Canticum Canticorum,

¶ The all denier of the spirituall and godly loue betwixt Chyche the spoule, and the churche of con-gregacion his spoule. Salomon made this Ballet of loue by him selfe and his wyfe the daughter of Pharaon, vnder the shadowe of hun selfe & paryage Chyche, and vnder the person of his wyfe the churche.

CAPL.

I.

¶ The voyce of the churche.

That thy mouth wold gyue me a kyffe, for thy bre-stes are moze pleasaunt then wyne, and that because of the good and pleasaunt fa-uoure. Thy name is a swete smellyng opntment, therfore do the maydens loue the: yea that same moueth me also to runne after the.

¶ The spoulesse to her companions.

The kyng hath brought me in to his pryue chamber. We wyl be glad and reioyce in the,
we thinke moze of thy brestes then of wyne:
well is them that loue the.

¶ The voyce of the church in persecution.

I am blacke (o ye daughters of Ierusalem) like as the tentes of the Medaerens, and as the hangings of Salomon: but yet am I saye and well fauoured withal. He will not at me that I am so blacke, and why? the sun hath dyed vpon me.

¶ The voyce of the Synagoge.

For when my mothers chyld had euil wyl at me, they made me a keeper of the vineyard.
Thus was I sayne to kepe a vineyard, which was not myne owne.

¶ The voyce of the churche to Chyche.

Helme (o thou whō my soule loueth) where thou seest, where thou restest at the none day: let I go wyng, and come vnto the flockes of thy companions.

¶ Chyche to the churche.

If thou knowest not thy selfe (o thou sayest among women) then go thy waye forth after the footstepes of the shepe, as though thou wouldest fede the goates beynde the shepherdes flocke. There wil I saye for: my loue, to myne bed and with my charrettes, whiche shall be no fewer then Pharaos. When shall thy cheekes & thy necke be made fayre, and hangd with spāges and goodly reuelles: a neckbande of golde wil we make the, with siluer bottons.

¶ The voyce of the churche.

When the kyng sitteth at the table, he shal bid my Parous: for a bundel of myrrour (o my beloued) I re: betwixt my brestes, a cluster of pappes of Cypros, or of the vineyardes of En-gaddi art thou vnto me, o my beloued.

¶ Chyche to the churche.

O how fayre arte thou, my loue, how fayre art thou? thou hast douces eyes.

¶ The churche to Chyche.

O how fayre arte thou, my beloued, howe well fauoured art thou? Our bed is deckt with floures, the slinges of our houses are of Cedre tree, and our balikes of Appelle.

CAPL.

II.

¶ The voyce of Chyche.

I am the floure of the felde, and lily of the ba-leys: as the rose amonge the thornes, so is my loue amonge the daughters.

¶ The voyce of the churche.

Lyke as the apple tree amonge the trees of the wod, so is my beloued amonge the sonnes.
My delite is to syt vnder his shadowe, for his fruite is swete vnto my throte. He byngeth me in to his wyne cellar, and loueth me specially well. Refresh me with grapes, comforte me w apples, for I am sick of loue. His left hande lyeth vnder my heed, and his ryght hande em-braceth me.

¶ The voyce of Chyche.

I charge you (o ye daughters of Ierusalem) b by the Rocks and hyndes of the felde, that ye wake not vp my loue, nor touche her, for she be content her selfe.

¶ The voyce of the churche.

We thinke I heare the voyce of my beloued, so, there cometh he hopping vpon the mosstynes, and leaping ouer the lile hyles. My beloued is lyke a roo or a yong hart. Beholde he standeth beynde our wall, he loketh in at the wyndowe, and peepeth thowme the grate.
My beloued answered and sayd vnto me.

¶ The voyce of Chyche.

O stand by my loue, my doue, my beautiful, and come: for lo the wynter is now past, and the rayne is awaye and gone. The floures are come vp in the felde, the twyding time is come, the voyce of the turtle doue is heard in our lade.
The fig tree byngeth forth her fygges, the bynges beate blossoms, and haue a good smell. O stande by my loue, my beautiful, and come (o my doue out of the caues of the rocks, out of the holes of the wall: O let me se thy countenaunce, and heare thy voyce: for sweete is thy voyce, and fayre is thy face.

¶ The voyce agaynst the heretike.

Get vs the foxes, yea the lytle foxes that hurt the vines, for our vines beate blossoms.

¶ The voyce of the churche.

My loue is myne, & I am his. which sedeth amonge the lilies vntill the daye breke, and trl the shadowes be gone. Come agayne purpyle (o my beloued) lyke as a roo or a yong hart, vnto the mountaynes.

CAPL.

3. Large

I sayd: I wyl clem by in to the date tree, & take hold of his bryanches.

The sponse speakynge to the sponse.

Thy brydes also shal be as the vine grapes, the smell of thy nosegayls lyke the smell of apples, and thy thoure lyke the best wyne. This shal be pure and clere for my loue, his lippes and tethe shal haue their pleasure. There wil I turne me vnto my loue, and he shal couene him vnto me.

The church speakynge to Christ.

O come on my loue, let vs go forth in to the feilde, and take our lodgyng in the villages. In the morning wil we the bytymes, and go to the vineyard, yf it be spongye for the, yf the grapes be growen, and yf the pomegranettes be that out. There wyl I geue the my brydes: there shal the Mandragoras geue the smell beynde our doores: there, o my loue, haue I herpte vnto the all manner frutes, bothe newe and olde.

CAP. I.

VIII.

The voyce of the Patriarches speakynge to Christ.

O That I might fynde the without a kisse the, whom I loue as my brother whiche sucke my mothers brydes: and yf thou woldest not be offended, if I take the & broughe the in to my mothers house: yf thou wyldest teache me, and that I might geue the drinke of spiced wyne, & of the sweete sape of my pomegranettes. His left hand lieth vnder my heed, and his right hand embraceth me.

The voyce of Christ.

I charge you, o ye daughters of Ierusalem, that ye wake not by my loue, ne touche her, til we be content her selfe.

The Synagog speakynge of the church.

What is he this that cometh by fro the wilderness, and leaneth vpon her loue.

The voyce of the sponse, before she speake. I am the same that washed the by among apple trees, where thy mother bare the, where thy mother brought the in to the house.

The church speakynge to Christ.

O set me as a seale vpon thyne hart, and as a seale vpon thyne arme: for loue is myghty as the death, and gelously as the hell. Her poles are of fyre, and a very flame of the Lorde: so many waters are not hable to quench the, neither may the flames drowne it. Yea if a man wolde geue all the good of his house for loue, he wolde count it nothing.

Christ speakynge of the church to the Synagog.

When our loue is tolde, our yongest sponse whose brydes are not yet growen, what shal we do vnto her?

The answer of Christ to the church.

Yf we be a wall, we shal buyld a spurett: make there vpon: yf we be a tower, we shal fasten her with borders of Cedre tree.

The church answereth to the Synagog.

Yf I be a wall, and my brydes lyke towers, then am I as one that haue founde sauour in his sight.

The Synagog speakynge to the church.

Salomon had a vineyard at Baal Hamon, this vineyard deliuered he vnto the hepes: so that every one for the frute thereof wolde geue him a thousand pces of silver.

The voyce of Christ.

But my vineyard, o Salomon, groweth the a thousand, and two hundred to the hepes of the frute. Thou that dwellest in the garden, o let me heare thy voyce, that my companions may harken to the same.

The voyce of the church, speakynge to Christ.

O get the awaye, my loue, as a Ron or a yonge hart vnto the swete smellynge mountaynes.

and they are fallen awaye fro me. An oxe knoweth his Lorde, and an asse his masters stal, but Israel knoweth nothyng, my people hath no vnderstanding. Wo be to this synfull people, whiche are expert in blasphemys, a frowarde generation, vnnatural chylidren.
They haue forsaken the Lorde, they haue prouoked the holy one of Israel vnto anger, and are gone backward. Wherfore shoulde ye be plagued anye more? For ye are euer sallynge awaye. The hole heed is sycke, and the heart is deuyd. From the sole of the foot vnto the heed, there is no hole parte in all your bodye: but all are woundes, botches, sores and scoppes, whiche can nether be helped, bounde vp, mollified, ne eased with anye opment.

Your lande lyeth wastel, your ctyes are desolate, your ennympes deuoure your lande, and ye muste be sayne to stande, and loke vpon it: and it is desolate, as it were with ennympes in a batell. Wherouer the daughter of Sion is left alone lyke a cotage in a wyndarde, lyke a watchtoure in tyme of warre, lyke a besieged cty. And except the Lorde of hostes had left vs a fewe allice:
we shoulde haue ben as Sodoma, and like vnto Gomorrah.

Heare the woide of the Lorde ye tyrantes of Sodoma, and harken vnto the laue of our God, thou people of Gomorra.
Why offer ye so many sacrifices vnto me? I am sick with the burnt offeringes of wethers, and with the fatnelle of fed beestes. I haue no pleasure in the bloude of bullockes, lambs and goates. When ye appeare before me, who requyryth thes thinges of your han-des, that ye shoulde walke in my courtes. Offer me no mo oblacions, for it is but toll laboure. I abhorre your incense. I maye not awaye with your fewe moones, your Sabbotes and solemne dayes. Your al-lambles are also in wayne. I hate your new holysdayes and festynges, such fro my verpe backe. They make me wepe, I can not aspyde them. Though ye holde out your han-des, yet I wyl not heare, nor wyl I enlarge at all, for your handes are full of bloude.

Wash you, make you cleane, put awaye your euill thoughtes out of my sight, cease frome the synge of euill and bypocrisie.
Lerne to do righte, appye your selues to equite, deliuer the oppressed, geue the fatherlesse to his tyege, lette the wyddowes complaynte come before you. Nowe go to (saye the Lorde) we wyl talke togyther.
Is it not so? Though your synnes be as redde as scarlet, wyl they not be whyte then snowe? And though they were like purple, wyl they not be lyke whyte wolfe? Is it not so? If ye be longye and obedient, ye shall eat the beste chyng that groweth in the lande. But if ye be obstinate and rebellious, ye shal be deuoured with the sword: for thus the Lorde hath promysed with his owne mouth.

How happeneth it then that the ryghtous ctye (whiche was full of equite) is become vncaptyul as an hoope? ryghtounes dwelle in it, but nowe murdres. Thy synners is tour-ned to dyssolue, and thy wyne myxed with water. Thy prynces are reaptours and companyons of theues. They loue gyftes all to grece and solowe rewardes. As to the fatherlesse, they helpe him not to his ryght, neyther wyl they let the wyddowes causes come before the.
Therfore sayeth the Lorde God of hostes, the myghty one of Israel: Ah, I muste ease me of myne ennympes, and avenge me vpon them. And therefore wyl I laye my hand vpon eye, and burne out the dyssolue frome the sensu-all and pured, and put out all the leade, and let thy iudges agayne as they were soueraynes, & thy senatours as they were from the begyn-nyng. Then shalke thou be called the ryghtous cty, the fapthfull cty. But syon shal be redeemed with equite, and her captiuitie with ryghtounesse. For the transgressours & vngodly, and such as are become vnapt vnto the Lorde, must all togyther be utterly destroyed.

And onlesse ye be ashamed of the shactres wher in ye haue so delpyed, and of the gardenes ye haue chosen: ye shal be an oxe, whose leaves are fallen away, and as a garde that hath no moysture. And the glory of your thyn-ges shal be touned in to dyssolue, and he that made them to a sparke. And they shal bothe burne together, so that no man shal be hable to quench them.

Of the rompyng and deth of Iherusalem: and of the callynge of the heathen.

CAPL

II.

Moreouer this is the woide that was opened vnto Esay the sonne of Amos. It was vpon Iuda and Ierusalem. It wyl be also in the last dayes: For the byll wher the house of the Lorde is builded, shal be the chiefe amonge bylles, and called about all the bylles. And all the bylles shal bowe vnto it.

they despise the lawe of the Lord of hostes, and blasphem the worde of the holy maker of Israel.

Therefore is the wrath of the Lord kindled also agaynst his people, and he hath stretched his hand against them: yea he hath smitten them, so that the pillars shall tremble. And they shall be as chaff in the open fire, like chaff. After all this, the wrath of God shall not cease, but he shall stretch his hand against them. And he shall give a token unto a strange people, and shall call unto them in a farre countrey: and behold they shall come hastily by sea. There is not one saynt nor feble amonge them, no not a sluggish nor slouther person. There shall not one of them put of the gyde from his toppe, he loseth his lanchet of his thos. Their arrows are sharpe, and they have bowes bent. They have bows of iron, and they have speares like a thornye wynde. Their cry is as it were of a lion, and the roynge of them like lions whelpes. They shall crye and hantche by the payre, and no man shall reco- ure it, or get it from them. In that daye they shall be so feare upon them as the see, and yf we loke vnto the land, behold it shall be all darcknesse and sorowe. Yf we loke to be- men: behold, it shall be darke with careful desperation.

¶ Saye the glorie of the Lord, and was sent to prophesie the deuotion of Iurys.

CAP. VI.

VII.

In the same yere that kynge Siah dyed, I sawe the Lord sitting upon an hygh and glorious seate, and his traine fylled the palace, from aboute the threshehold of the Seraphims, wherof euery one hadde fire wynges. With theyre eche couered his face, with theyre hye, and with theyre dyd he spee. They cryed also eche one to other in this maner: Holy, holy, is the Lord of hostes. The hole world is full of his glory. Yea the gylles and cherubims moued at theyr cryenge, and the house was full of smoke. Then I sayde: Who is me, so: I was answered: that I (which am a man of vniuersall lippes, and as well amonge people that hath vniuersall lippes also) shoulde be the kynge and Lord of hostes with theyre eyes.

Then stode one of the Seraphims vnto me, hauing a booke role in his hande, whiche he had taken frome the altar with the longes, and he touched my mouth, and sayd: loo, this haue I taken frome the altar, and thou shalt be a man of vniuersall lippes. And the same sayd: After this I heard the voyce of the Lord sayng: Whome shall I sende, and who myll be my messenger? Then I sayd: here am I, send me. And he sayd: go and tell this people: yee shall beare in heade, but ye shall not vnderstande, ye shall playnly see, and yett perceyue not, and shall see theyr eyes: that they see not with theyr eyes, heare not with theyr eares, and vnder- stande not with their hertes, and com- me and be healed.

¶ Then spake I: Lord, how longe beere I shal be, vntill the cupes be bitter without inhabytours, and the houses without man, yf the land be also desolate, and ye vnder- ded. For the Lord shall take the men frome away, so that the land shall be waste. Neuerthelesse, the tenth part shall remayne there in, for it shall conuerse and be fructifull. And lyke wyse as the Terebintes and cherubs bring forth theyr frutes, so shall the holy see haue frute.

¶ The Syriass more battayle agaynst Ierusalem. I saye: yf ye shall beare a childe.

CAP. VII.

VII.

It happened in the time of Achaz the sonne of Iotham, whiche was the sonne of Siah kynge of Iuda: that Rezin the kynge of Syria, and Pekah the sonne of Remai, kynge of Israel, wente by towarde Ierusalem to besiege it, but wanne it not. Then when the house of Dauid (which is Iehoiachaz) heard the wordes thereof, that Syria and Ephraim were confederate together: they were quaked with feare, and the hertes also of Iuda were as a tree in the feld that is moued with the wynde.

¶ Then said God vnto Achaz: go mete Achaz (thou and thy sonne Sear Jashub) at the bulke of the ouer pole, in the fote path by the ful- lets ground, and saye vnto him, take vnto thy selfe, and be still, but feare not, neitherde saynt heeded, for these two tables, that is, the first two smokynge fyre brandes, the word and turuousshede of Rezin the Syrian, and Remai's sonne: because that the kynge of Syria Ephraim and Remai's sonne haue vnto- ly conspired agaynst the, sayng: We wyll go downe in to Iuda, bere them, & bringe them vnder vs, and set a kynge there, euen the sonne of David. For thus sayeth the Lord God therto: It shall not so go forth, neither come so to passe: for the heed cyte of the Syrians is Damascus, but the heed of Damascus is Rezin. And after syue and thye syue, Ephraim be no more a people. And the cyte of Ephraim is Samaria, but the heed of Samaria is Remai's sonne. And yf ye heare not, there shall no promise be kept with you.

¶ Moreover, God spake vnto Achaz, sayng: requyre a token of the Lord thy God, whiche he be towards the depth beneath, or to- wards the heigh above. Then sayde Achaz: I wyll requyre none, neither wyll I tempt the Lord. The Lord answered: Thou shalt not see of the house of Dauid: yett not with- out for you that ye be greuous vnto men, but ye myghte geue my God also? And therefore the Lord shall geue you a token of hym selfe: Beholde, a virgin shall conceiue and beare a sonne, and shall call his name: Emanuel. Butter and honye shall be eate, that he may knowe the cup, and choise the good. And that chylde come to knowledg, to es- chue the euill and choise the good. The lande (that thou art so aschape for) shall be desolate of both her kynge.

¶ The Lord also shall sende a tyme vpon the, vpon the people, and vpon thy fathers house (for as neuer came thence the tyme that Ephraim departed from Iuda,) chooswe the kynge of the Assyrians. For at the same tyme shall the Lord whyle for the fies that are about the water of Egypt, and for the Bees in the Assyrians lande. These shall come, and shall lyege all in the valleyes, in the ditches at home, vpon all gerne thynges, and in all countres.

¶ At the same tyme shall the Lord haue the heere of the heade and the fete and the beere cleane of, with the rasoure that he shall paye them withall beyonde the water, namely, with the kynge of the Assyrians. At the same tyme shall a man lye with a cowe, and two shepe. Then because of the aboundance of mylke, he shall make butter and eate it. So that euery one whiche remayneth in the land shall eate butter and honye. At the same tyme all synners (though there be a thousande synners in one, and were solde for a thousande synners) shall be turned to beates and thornes. Lyke as they shall come in to the land with arrows and bowes, so shall all the land become beates and thornes. And as for all bylles that now are hewen downe, they shall not come vpon them, for I care of beates and thornes. But the cattell shall be dynt with the, and the shepe shall fede there.

¶ The desolation of the land by Emanuel. The house of offence, at whiche many shall stumble.

CAP. VIII.

VIII.

¶ Moreover the Lord sayde vnto me: Take the a getar, a lute, and wyte in it, as men do with a piane, and ye shoulde dyme to robbe, and haue vnto spoyle. And immediately I called vnto me sapientall wyse- nesses: Asah the plecter, and Zachariah the sonne of Barachias. After that went I vnto the prophetesse, that now was sanctified by boyne sonne. Then sayde the Lord to me: geue hym this name: Maherchabai, iacobas (that is: a speedy robber, an hasty spoyle.) For whoeuer the chylde shall see and v- ledge to saye: Abi and Im, (that is: father and mother,) shall the riches of Damascus and the subdauce of Samaria be taken awaye, thence the kynge of the Assyrians.

¶ The Lord spake also vnto me, sayng: for so muche as the people requyre the syll ren- nage water of Silo, and put theyr desyre in Rezin and Remai's sonne. Beholde, the Lord shall bringe mynnyng and greate flou- des of water vpon them, namely, the kynge of the Assyrians with all his power. Whiche shall ouer his furyousnes vpon euerye man, and reune ouer all theyr banes. And shall breake in vpon Iuda, increasynge in power, till he gett hym by the throte. He shall spill also the wyndes of thy lande with his wynde wynges, O Emanuel. So together ye people, and gather you, beken to all ye of farre countrees. Asure you, and gather you: mustre you, and gather you, take your coun- cell together, yett must your counsell come to nought: go in hande withall, yett shall it not prosper. Except Emanuel, (that is: God) be with vs. For the Lord shall stretch out his hande, and waite me, sayenge vnto me: that I shoulde not walche in the waye of this people. He sayde moreover: rounde with none of them, who is eue safe: ponder people are bound together. Synners feare them not, neyther be aschape of them, but sanc- tifye the Lord of hostes, let hym be your feare and dyde. For he is the sanctifyinge, and none to romble at: the rocke to fall vpon, a snare and net to both the houses: to Israel, and the inhabytours of Ierusalem. And many shall romble, fall, and be broken vpon hym: yea they shall be inared and taken.

¶ Nowe saye the wyntelles together (sayde the Lord) and scale the lawe with my dis- ples. Thus I wyte vpon the Lord that hath turned his face from the house of Jacob, and I loke vnto hym. But lo, as for me, and the synners which the Lord hath geuen me: we are a token and a monyng in Israel, for the Lord of hostes sake, whiche dwelleth vpon the byll of Syon.

¶ And therefore yf they saye vnto you: aske counsell at the forbesayers, wyntelles, char- mers and conuincers, then make them this an- swere: Is there a people any where, that as- keth not counsell at his God, wherher it be to cernynge the dead, or the lyuynge. Yf any man wante lycht, let hym loke vpon the lawe and testimony, whether they speake not after this meanyng: Yf ye do not this, he shall be an- der hunger. And yf he suffice hunger, he is out of pacience, and blasphemeth his kynge & his God. Then loke he vnto the lawe, and warte to the earth, and beholde there is trou- ble and darcknesse, vexation is rounde about hym, and the cloude of scoure. And oute of soche aduersite, shall he not escape.

¶ The prophesie of Thysias natyure and do- mynyon.

CAP. IX.

IX.

¶ Then lyke as in tyme past it hath bene well sene, that the lande of Zabul and the lande of Nephtali (whiche thowme the see waye goeth ouer Jordan in to the land of Galilee) was at the first in lytle trouble, but afterwarde so: vexed.

¶ Neuerthelesse the people that haue dwelt in darcknesse, shall see a getar lycht, as for the that dwell in the lande of the shadowe of death, vpon them shall the lycht shyne. Shalt thou multiplye the people, and not increase the tope also? Theyr shall reioyce before the eue as men make may in haruyn, and as men that haue gotten the victory, when they deale the spoyle. For thou shalt breake the rocke of the peoples.

people's burden: the staff of his holder and the rod of his oppressors, as in the *scape at Babylon.

Behold all temerarious and sedicious power, (yea where there is but a cote spied in his bloude) shall be burnt, and seide the fyre. For unto us a chylde shall be borne, and vnto us a sonne shall be geuen: Upon his shoulder shall the kyngdome lye, and he shall be called with his owne name. The wonderful geue of counsell, the myghty God, the excellent father, the prince of peace, he shall make no ende to encrease the kyngdome and peace, and shall sit vpon the seate of Dauid, and in his kyngdome, to sit by the same, to stablish it with equite and rightousnesse, frome thence forth for euermore. This shall the glory of the Lorde of hostes byngge to pass.

The Lorde sente a worde in to Jacob, the same is come into Israel. And the people also of Ephraim, and they that dwell in Samaria, can saye with pyde and byc stomacks, on this maner. The tyle work is fall down, but we will builde it with harder stones. The Golbery tymbre is broken, but we will sette it by agayne with Cedre. Reuerches, the Lorde shall prepare Razin the enemye agaynst them, and so shall theye aduersaries, that the Syrians shall laye holde vpon them before, and the Philistines behynde, and so be uicure Israel with open mouth.

After all this, the wrath of the Lorde shall not cease, but yet his hande shall be stretched out still. For the people turneth not vnto hym, that chastyseth them, neyther doo theye like the Lorde of hostes. Therefore the Lorde shall rote oute of Israel bothe heade & taylor, brayche and twigge in one daye.

By the head, is vnderstande the Senatus and honorable man, and by the taylor, the prophete that preacher lyes. For all they which outworne the people that they be in a righte case, such be deceyvers. Suche as men thynke also to be perfecte amonge these, are but calfe awaye.

Therefore shall the Lorde haue no pleasure in theyr pounge men, neyther fauours theyr fauourable and wyddowes. For they are all together yppocrites and wyched, & all theyr mouthes speake foly. After all this shall not the Lorde's wrath cease, but yet his hande shall be stretched out still. For the vngodly burne, as a fyre in the byers and thornes. And as it were out of a fyre in a wod or a redde bush, so ascendeth the smoke of theyr pyde.

For this cause shall the wrath of the Lorde of hostes fall vpon the lande, and the people shall be consumed, as it were with fyre, no man shall spare his brother. If a man do turne hym to the right hande, he shall saye, or to the left hande to take, he shall not haue ynough. Every man shall eate the fleshe of his owne arme, & penalles shall eate Ephraim, and Samaria shall eate Judah, and they bothe shall eate Iuda. After all this shall not the Lorde's wrath cease, but yet shall his hande be stretched out still.

He threatneth the oppressors of the poor, and prophesyeth agaynst Sennacherib.

C A P I. X.

Wo be vnto you that make buyghten lawes, and deuple thynges, wherbye ye haue harde to to kepe: wherbye ye haue oppressed on every syde, and the inuictees of my people as theyr robbers of judgement, that wyddowes maye be your praye, and that ye maye robbe the fatherlesse. Wherbye ye do in tyme of the distaction and destruction, that shall come frome farr: To wherbye ye retorne for helpe, or to whome ye shall geue your honoure, that he maye kepe you: that ye come not amonge the prisoners, or ye amonge the dead: Aske all it as shall not the wrath of the Lorde cease, but yet shall his hande be stretched oute still.

Wo be also vnto Assur, whiche is a staff of my wrath, in whose hand is the rod of my punishment. For I shall sende hym amonge those pprocyets people, amonge the people that haue belieted my discourse, shall I sende hym, that he maye vterly robbe them, spoyle them, and treade them downe like the myre in the iucere. Howe be it, his meaninge is not so, neyther thynketh his heart of this talypson. But he pniagyneth onely, howe he maye ouerthrowe and destrye much people, for he sayeth: are not my pyntes all kynge? Is not Calno as calpe to myne, as Charhamis? Is it harder to conquere Antiochia then Arpad? Or is it lyghter to ouercome Damascus then Samaria? As who saye: I were hable to myne the kyngdome of the Idolaters and theyr goddes, but not Ierusalem and Samaria. Shall I not be vnto Ierusalem and theyr pyntes as I be vnto Samaria and theyr pyntes?

Wherefore the Lorde sayeth: As soon as I haue perfortumed my hole worke vpon the hill of Syon and Ierusalem, then will I be to vnto the noble and stouthe kyng of Assyria, with his wysdome and pyde. For he shall dech this in his owne conceyte. Thus do I, thowowe the power of myne owne hande, and thowowe my wysdome. For I am wylle, I am be that remoueth the landes of the people, I robbe theyr pyntes, and (like one of the wythes) I byrue them frome theyr pyntes. My hande hath founde out the holes of the people, as it were a uell. And lyke as egges that were layde here and there, are gathered together. So do I gather all countreies, and there is no man, that darre be so bolde, as to touche a feather, that darre open his mouth, or ones wysspe.

Put doth I are booke it selfe, agaynst hym that beweth chertwith. or both the same make anye heauynge, agaynst hym that beweth: That were euen to hym, as the rod byd reate it selfe agaynst hym that beareth it, as though the flak shuld be magnifye it selfe, as though it were no wod. Therefore shall the Lorde of hostes sende hym in pounce into theys, and burne by his power, as it were with a fyre. But the light of Israel shall be that fyre, & his Sanctuarye shall be the flamme, and it shall beade, and burne by his thornes, and byers in one day, yea all the glory of his boddes and feltes shall be consumed with bo and soule. As for hymself, he shall be as one that awaye. The trees also of his felde shall be of suche anomye, that a chylde maye tell them.

After that daye shall the remnant of Israel, and such as are escaped out of the house of Jacob, seeke no more comforte at hym that made them, but shall comforte themselves with fortynesse and trouthe in the Lorde, the hope of Israel. The remnant, yea and the residue of Jacob, shall conuerse vnto God the myghty one. For though the people (O Israel) be as the lande of the see, yet shall the remnant of them onely conuerse vnto hym. Perfect is the iudgement of hym that dwelt in rightousnesse, and therefore the Lorde of hostes shall perfectlye fulfill the wyngge, that he hath determined in the mydd of the hole worlde. Therefore thus sayeth the Lorde God of hostes: Thou my people, that dwelt in Syon, be not atrayed for the kyng of the Assyrians, he shall wag his staf arde, yea and beate the wyche the rod, as the Egyptians vnto some tyme. But soone after, shall my wrath and myne indignation be fulfilled agaynst theyr blasphemers.

Therefore the Lorde of hostes shall prepare a scourge for hym, whiche was the punishment of Assur vpon the mount of Syon. And he shall lyfte by his rod ouer the see, as he do somtyme ouer the Egyptians. Then shall his burden be taken fro the shoulders, his yoke fro thy necke, yea the same yoke shall be corrupte for depe farnesse. We shall come to Iach, and goe thowowe toward Agagron. But at Agagron shall we murder his holles, & goe ouer the wynde. Sabaah shall be theyr refuge place, Hamah shall be a stayed, Sabaah Saul shall lie awaye. The hope of the people of the houses (O daughter Sallim) shall be herde vnto Iach and to Hamah, whiche also shall be a trouble. Hamah shall tremble for feare, but the spermes of Sabin are many, yet shall he remayne at Iach that daye. After that, shall he lyt by his hand agaynst the mounte Syon, and agaynst the hill of Ierusalem. But se, the Lorde God of hostes shall take awaye the poudre fro thyne wyche. He shall hewe downe the poudre and kill the wyche myned. The thornes of the wod shall be rote out vnto syon, and Libanus shall haue a myghty fall.

The prophesyeth of the naturall of Chyrlis, and of the people of the remnant of Israel, and of the light of the daye of glory.

C A P I. XI.

After this there shall come a red forth of the hynde of Iuda, and a bloude out of his rote. The spirit of the Lorde shall light vpon it, the spirit of wysdome & understandynge: the spirit of counsell, and strength: the spirit of knowledge, and of the feare of God: and shall make hym seuerall in the feare of God.

For he shall not geue sentence, after the chynge that shall be brought before his eyes, neyther repproue a mater at the fynd hearing: but with rightousnesse shall he iudge, yea, and with holynes shall he reconstitute the spemple of the worlde.

He shall imple the worlde with the staff of his mouth, and with the breath of his mouth shall he slaye the wyched. Agaynst the wyche shall be the gyde of his lynes, trouthe and fortynesse, the gyde byngge by of his raynes. Agayn shall the wolse dwell with the lambe, and the Asparode shall lye downe by the goe. Bullockes, Lyons, and cattell shall lye together, so that a lytle chylde shall byrue them forth. The cowe and the beere shall lye together, and theyr yenge ones shall lye together. The Lyon shall eate fleshe as the ox, or the cow. The chylde shall be as the wyche, shall haue a desyre to the serpentes iuche, and when he is weaned, he shall put his hande in to the Aspidochelone. No man shall do euell to another, no man shall bekepe a secret, in all the wyl of my Sanctuarye. For the catte shall be full of the knowledge of the Lorde, such as thowowe the water of the see flowe ouer the earth.

Then shall the Gentylis enquire after the rote of Iuda (whiche shall be by for a token vnto the Gentylis) for it is an allenge shall be glorious. At the same tyme shall the Lorde take in hande, yea, to conquere the remnant of his people, (whiche are late alpe) from the Syrians, Egyptians, Arabians, Assyrians, Chaldeans, Caldees, Lyones, and Ilandes of the see. And he shall set up a rold amonge the Gentylis, and gather together the dispersed of Israel, yea and for outcastes of Iuda from the foure corners of the world. The parted of Ephraim and the remnant of Iuda shall be clyue oute. Ephraim shall beare no euell wyll to Iuda, and Iuda shall not hate Ephraim: but they bothe together shall lye vpon the shoulders of the Philistines toward the West, and spyle them together that dwell toward the East. The Idumites, and the Moabites shall let theyr handes fall, and the Ammonites shall be dunc vnto them.

The Lorde also shall clene the tinges of the Egyptians see, and with a myghty wynd shall he beate by his hande ouer Philus, and shall harte his leuen streames and make men go ouer drye wod. And thus shall he make a waye for his people, that remaneth from the Assyrians, (as he do happen) to the Ierusalem, and thence they departed out of the lande of Egypt.

The spirit of the Lorde shall light vpon it, the spirit of wysdome & but thou hast refrayned thy wrath, & had mercy vpon me. Beholde, God is my health, thanks vnto the Lorde, and call vpon his name, and declare his counsellies amonge the people, and hope them in remembrance, for his name is excellent. O synge praises vnto the Lorde, for he doth greates thynges, as it is suche, as triumphe in my glory.

With that, me thoughte I hearde in the mountaynes a noyse, like as it had bene of a great people: and a ruyngge, as though the kingdomes of all nations had come together.
(And the Lorde of Hostes was the Captayne of the hole armye.) As they had come not only out of farre countries, but also from the endes of the heauens. Euen the Lorde hymselfe with the ministers of his wrath, to destroye the hole lande. Iourne therefore, for the daye of the Lorde is at hande, and commeth as a destroper frome the Almyghtye. Then shall all handes be liffen downe, and all mens hartes shall melte awaye, they shall stande in fear, carefulnesse and so; owe shall come vpo them, and they shall haue payne, as a woman that travaileth with thyde. One shall succ be abashed of another, and they; faces shall burne lyke the flammie.

For loe, the daye of the lord shall come, fe-rrible, full of indignation and wrath, to make the lande waste, and to roote out the synne therof. For the starres and planetes of heaue shall not geue theyr light, the sunne shall be quenched in the resynge, and the moone shall not shyne with his light. And I will punishe the wychednesse of the worlde, and the syn-nes of the vngodly, sayeth the lord. The hye stomaches of the proude wyl I take awaye, and wyl lape downe the boyluge of ryountes. I wyl make a man beate then syne gold, and a man to be more wrothe, then a golden wedde of Ophir. And ouercome I wyl shak the beast, that the cawge shall remoue out of her place.

Thus shall I go with Babylon, in the midst of the plagues of her cities in the days of his fear full indignacion. And Babylon shall be as a hunted or chased Do, & as a flock without a shepherd. Every man that turne to his owne people, and flee thence in to his owne land.

Who is is sounde alone, shall be there.
And who is to gather together, shall be deliuered with the sword. * There chylidren shall slayne before thers eyes, thers houses spoiled, and thers wyues caughed. For so, I shall brynge by the wydes agaynst them, whiche shall not regarde spylle, nor be desirous of golde. Then shall yong mens homes be hang ed asunder. The wydes shall haue no pyte vpon women with chylde, & thers facts shall not spare the chylidren. * And Babylon (that gloire of kynngdomes and bewep of the egipt decs honoure) shall be destroyed, such as Sod destroyed Sodome and Gomorra. It shall uer be moze inhabited, neyther shall there be any moze dwelling there, from generation to generation.

The Arabians Shall make no more there, neither shall the Shepherdes make there foldes there any more, but wild beastes shall lye there, and the houses shall be full of great Oyles. Churches shall dwel there, & Apes shall daunce there: the idle Oyles that were in the palaces, one after another, & Da-gons shall be in the piraunte parious. And as for Babylons tyme it is at hande, and her dayes maye not be longe absent.

The retourne of the people from captiuitie. The prosperitie of the people of God, and his goodly deliuerance from their enemies. The p[er]tye of Babylon.

CAPL. XIII.

But the Lord will be mercifull unto Jacob, & will take up Israel againe, & set them in their owne lande. Strangers shall cleaue vnto them, and get them to the house of Jacob. They shall take the people, and carie them home with them. And the house of Israel shall haue them in possession for seruantes and maydens in the land of the Lord. They shall take those prisoners, & whose captiues they had bene afore, & mit those that hadde oppressed them. When the Lord nowe shall bringe them to rest, from the trauaile, feare, and harde bondage that they waile laden wurdall, then shall you be as mockage vpon the hynges of Babylon, a songe. Howe happeneth it that the oppressed leaueeth off? Is the golde tribute come to an end? Doubtles the Lord hath broken the staffe of the vngodly, and the scepter of the oppressor. Wherby when he is wroth, smytheth the people with durable strokes, and in his wroth he persecuteth them, and tamereth them continually. And therefore the holy woorde is now at rest and quietnesse, and men singe of ioye.

Yea even the fowre trees and Cedres of Libanus reioice at thy fall, sayinge: Now that thou arte layde downe, there come no more to destroye vs. Well also trembleth at thy fall, the enenge, all myghty men and prynces of the earth, earth, keepe forth before the. All hinges of the earth stande by from they leaues, that they maye all (one after another, spryge and speake vnto the: Arise thou woundes also as we? arise thou become lyke vnto vs? Thy paine and thy pyre is gone downe to hell.

Hott ires shalbe layd vnder the, and twynes shalbe thy conceyge.

How art thou fallen from heauen (O Lunare) thou saye mornyng chylde had thou gotten a fall cun to the grounde, thou that (not withstanding) brodded subdue the pre-ples? And yet thou thoughtest in thine better
I wyl clyme vp into heaue, & make my seate D aboute the barres of God, I wyl lye vpon the glorious mounte towarde the North, I wyl cyme vp aboute the cloudes, and wyll be like the hyghest of all. Yet barre I say, that thou shalt be brought downe to the depe of hell.
They that se the, shall narrowlye looke vpon the, and thinke in them selues, sayenge: Is this man, that brought all landes in feare, and made the kyngdomes at rayde? Is this he that made the worlde in a maner waste, and layde the cryes to the ground, which let not his prisoners go home?

Some happeneth it, that the kynges of all people lyke, euerie one at home in his owne pa lace, with too mych, and thou art cast oute of the graue lyke a wyldc hyaunch, lyke as drab mens payment that are woth to dwel with the swardest, as they that go downe to the stones of the depe, as a deade roacle that is troden under fere, & are not buried with them: Euen because that thou haste wasted thy lande, and withered thy people. For the generation of the wycked shalbe without honour, for euer.
Where that a waye be sought to b. free they children, for they fathers wyckednes, they shall not come by agayne to possesse the land, and wyl the wyldc full of castles & towres.

I will stande by agaynst them (sayeth the Lorde of Hostes) & root out the name and generation of Babylon (sayeth the Lorde) and I will giue it to the Detters. and will make it water podels of it. And I will swepe them out with the bescome of destruction, sayeth the Lorde of Hostes. The Lorde of Hostes hath sworne an othe, saying: It shall come to passe as I haue determined, and shall be fulfilled, as I haue decreed. The Afflictions shall be decreased in my lande, and vpon my mountaynes will I reade them vnder fete. Where thorow his roche shall come from you, and his burthen shall be taken fro your shoulers.
This people hath the God taken thorow the hole world, and thus is his hande stretched out ouer all people. For of the Lorde of Hostes becomen a thyng. who wil befall it? And he stretcheth forth his hande, who wil bothe it in agayne?

The same per that kinge Achaz dyed, God thundered by Clape on this manner: Rupture of (then bale Idalynna) as though the rod of that bracteth the were broken, for out of the serpent's rote, there shall were a koe-horne, and the frute shall be a ferre myme.
but the poore shall fede of the best hynges, and the temple shall dwell in safety. Thy roles wyl I do scope out: thought, and it shall ape thy remnant. For ever possess, wepe ye cryes, a seate thou' O nolt shall stand, as there that com its the North a brook: whose pouce no man maye abate. Who shall turn in apurtye the me lages of the Streets? But the Lorde shall blesse Sion, and the poore of my people shall put theyr trust in hym.

This is the houre burthen vpon Moab, At of Moab was destroyed. (as we thought) in the night season. The males of Moab perished in the night, and benished awake. They went to Bath and to Bethon in the hot places, for to torpe. Moab had moune fenne Rebo to Medba. * All their brades were coiled, and all their beards the men. In their streets were they grieved about with sack clothe. In all the toppes of their houses and streets was there mourning, but mourninge and weeping. Delebon and Esleat cryed, that their voyce was hearde vnto Jahaz. The women also of Moab bleared and cryed for wepe for lacke of their men.
Who is my herte for Moabs sake. Their bed vnto the crye of Zuar, for the is like a fetefull bullock, they wente by to the weeping. The way towards Basan was full of lamentation for the herte. The waters of Basan were dyed by, & it was wretched, the herbes destroyed, and what necessarye getne thynge there was before. In like maner the thynge that was left them of their substance, they carryed it by water to Beaby. For crye went ouer the hole lanye of Moab, frome Salam vnto Beer, was there nothinge but mourning. The waters of Ba-san were full of bloude, and the enuies hath sent thither a bande of men, which as a lion lape a maye for the remnant of the lande, and for them that were escaped.

The destruction of Noah.

Then sent the Lordes of the lande a ma of waere, frame the rocke that lyeth to warde the dyette. Into the hill of the daughter Spora. (For as for the daughters of Spaas they were as it hath bene a brenning byrde, that is pur oute of her nest by the fow poure counsell, or the searthe, and hath a poure shadowe in the myddle. As the sonne ¶ Thanksgynginge to god for his workes.

CAPL. XXV.

O Lord, thou arte my God, I will prayse the, and magnify thy name. For thou byngest marvelous thynges to passe, accordyng to thyne olde counsels, true-tye and iustfalle. Thou makest of towncs, heapes of stone, and of bracke cyties, broken makes. The palaces of the wycked destroyest thou out of the eyte, that they shall neuer be buylded agayne. Therefore the very rude people must magnify the, and the cyties of the cruel Perse must feare the. For thou arte the poore mans helpe, a strength for the needy full in his necessite.

Thou art a defence against euell wyther, a shadowe against the hete. But vnto the pye sumptuous, thou arte lyke a stronge wynde wynde, that casteth downe the bolynge of the vngodly, thou keepst men fro heate, with the shadowe of the cloudes, thou cuttest off the haunces of tyrantes.

Whereouer the Lord of Hostes shall ones prepare a feast for all people vpon the hyll. A plentifull, costly, pleasaunte feast, of fat and well fed beastes, of swete & most pure thynges. Vpon the hyll shall he take awaye the yde baile that hangeth before the face of all people, and the couerynge wherewith all Gentyles are couered. As for death, he shall beteele consume it. The Lord God shall wype awaye the teares fro all faces, & take awaye the confusion of his people thowme the hole world. For the Lord hym selfe hath sayd it.

Spoca. vii. d
and. xxi. b

At the same tyme shall it be sayd: lo, this is our God in whome we put our trust, and he hath heale us. This is the Lord that we haue waped for. Let vs reioyce and delite in his healeth. For the hande of the Lord reaseth vpon this hyll. But whos shall be churched downe vnder hym, lyke as the straw is trode vnder fete in a bonge hyll. For he shall stretch out his handes vpon hym, lyke as a swymmer doth to swymme. And with the power of his handes shall he caste downe his pompe. As for his strong holdes and his walles, he shall dowe them, caste them downe, & fell them to the grounde in a bus.

¶ A songe for the deliuerance of the people.

CAPL. XXVI.

Then shall this songe be songe in the lande of Iuda: We haue a stronge cytie, the wallis and the ordinaunce shall kepe vs. Open the gates, that the good people may go in, whiche labourereth for thy trouthe. And thou, which art the doer, & hast the matter in hande, shalt proude for pe, even the peare that men hope for in the. Hope still in the Lord, for in the Lord God is euerylasting strength. For why, it is he, that byngeth low the hye mynded cyties, & casteth downe the proude cyties. He casteth them to the ground, yea even into the myre, that they may be troden vnder the fete of the symple, & with the stepes of the poore. Then (Lord) consider the path of the hyghes, whether it be right, whether it may of thynges be right. For the Lord we haue a respect vnto the way of thy iudgements, thy name and thy name haunce reioyse the soule. For soule iustlyfied the all the myght longe, and my mynde is rich in thynges to the. For as soone as thy iudgement is knowne to the world, then the habitours of the earthe lerne thynges. But the vngodly (though he haue remoued grace) yet leueth he not thynges, but in that place where he is punysshed, he offendeth, and scattereth not the glory of the Lord.

Lord, they will not se thynges hand, but they shall se it, & be confounded, & hym then shall deuoure them with thynges of thynges, & with the fyre of thynges. But to vs, O Lord, proude for peare, for thou workst in vs all our workes. O Lord our God, though such lordes haue domination vpon vs as knowe not the, yet graunt that we may hope onely in the, & kepe thy name in remembrance. The malicious tyrantes whiche they are, are neyther in lyte nor in the reuersion, for thou byspit them & rootest them out, & destroyest all the memorials of them. Agayne, thou increasest the people, (O Lord) thou increasest the people, thou shalt be playd and magnified in all the endes of the world. The people that seke vnto the in trouble, that same abuerse whiche they couer of is vnto them a chastening before the. Lyke as a wyse wyche childe (when hee transgrede meth vnto her) is ashamed, cryeth, & suffereth the payne. Euen so are we, O Lord, in thynges. We are with childe, we transgrede, and heare, & with the spere we byng forth brachy where thowme the earth is vnderkeped, and the inhabitours of the world crye not.

But as for thy dead men & ouer, that be departed, they are in lyte & resurrection. They ly in the earthe, they wake, & haue woe, in thynges is a bew of lyte and lyght. But the place of the malicious tyrantes is fall away. So go now my people into thynges, & thou shalt see the doer to the, & suffer now the twynching of an eye, till the world be past. For behold, the Lord will go out of his habitand, and byset the wyckednesse of them that dwell vpon earth. He will discover the bloude that the hath deuoured, he shall ouer hyde them, that the hath murdered.

¶ The propheseth that all realmes shall be destroyed as was the conuynge of Egypte.

CAPL. XXVII.

Then the Lord with his heu, great & long swerde shall smite Remoth that inuincible serper, euen Remoth that crooked serper, and shall saye the whyllyng in the see. At the same tyme shall men feare of the bynges of Remoth. The Lord kepe it, and water it in due season. I walke daye and nyght, that no man breake in. I haue no euell wyll in my mynde. Who will compell me, that I greatly forgette all saythfulnesse, shalbe burne it by at ones with thornes and bushes. O who will en- force me to kepe or make peare? It will come to this point, that Jacob shall be rooted agayne, and Ierusalem shall be greeue, and beare floures, and they shall fill a hole world with thynges. Simply he not his myght, as euell as he is myght himselfe. Destroyer he not the murderers, as he is murderer? Euerie man recompendeth with the measure that he recea- neth: the myght vpon his soze wynde, as vpon the dayes of extreme heate. And therefore shall the myght of Jacob be thus reconpled. And so shall he take away all the fruite of his myght.

As for auiter stones, he shall make them all as stones braten to powder, the groues and Iools shall not stand. The stronge cyties shall be desolate, and the sayre cyties shall be like lyke a wydermes. The castell shall fede and lyte there, and the wepe shall ease it up. They shall be bynt, they wyues whiche were they detour when they came forth, shall be despoiled. For it is a people with- out vnderstandyng, & therefore he that created them, shall not fauoure them & he that made them shall not be mercifull to them. In that tyme shall the Lord wite fro the swyft wa- ter of Euphrates, vnto the ryuer of Egypte. And there shall the chylde be chosen out one by one. Then shall a great troupe be blout, so that those which haue ben destroyed in the allmans lande, and those that be scattered a brode in Egypte, shall come & worshyp the Lord at Ierusalem, vpon the holy mounte.

¶ Repente the pryde of Ephraim, and agaynst the speakes and preachers.

CAPL. XXVIII.

Woe be to the crowne of pryde, to the drunken Ephraim, and to the fa- byng floure, to the gloze of his pompe, that is vpon the toppes of the plenteous val- ley, whiche men be ouerladen with wyne. Behold, the strength and power of the Lord shall breake into the lande on euery syde, lyke a speere of hayle, that breareth downe stronge holdes, and lyke an horrible myght, & ouer- flowynge water. And the proude crowne of the drunken Ephraim, shall be troden vnder fete. And as for the saydng floure, the gloze of his pompe, whiche is vpon the toppes of the plenteous valley, it shall happen vnto him, as to an vntymely fruite before the harvest come. Whiche as soone as it is sene, is by and by deuoured, or euer it come well in a mans hande.

And then the Lord of Hostes shall be a topfull colone, and a glorious garlande vnto the remnaunte of his people. Vnto the loby, he shall be a spere or iudgemente, and vnto them that dyne away the encyres fro the gates, he shall be a spere of strength. But they go wronge by the reason of wyne, they fall and flacker because of stronge bynges. Yea euen the prestes and prophetes them selues go amisse, they are drunken with wyne, and weake bynges thowme stronge bynges. They are in sepyge, & in iudgement they sayle. For all tables are so full of vanyte & fleshynges, that no place is cleane. What is he amonge them, that can teache, instruct or tynowme the chylde, whiche are weened so much of taken fro the bynges, of any other falsion then? Comaunde that may be comaunded, byd that may be bydden, for byd that may be bydden, kepe backe that may be kept backe, here a lyte, there a lyte. And therefore the Lord also shall speake with lippyn lippes & with a straung language vnto this people, to whiche he spake afore of this maner. This shall byng reke, yf one reke the weep, yea this shall byng reke. But they had no wyll to heare. And therefore the Lord shall answere they, subournes. Comaunde that may be com- maunded, byd that may be bydden, for byd that may be bydden, kepe backe that may be kept backe, here a lyte, there a lyte. What they may go forth, fall backward, be broken, snared & taken. Wherefore heare the woide of the Lord, ye mothers that rule the Lordes people, whiche is at Ierusalem. For ye comfort your selues thus: Trust, death & we are at a paynt, & as for hell, we haue made a condic- tion with it, as though there breake out any soze playe, it shall not come vpon vs. For with dis- cepte wyll we escape, & with nymble wyls we defende our selues. Therefore sayeth the Lord God: Beholde, I will laye a stone in Zion, a greute stone, a costly corner stone for a sure foundation, that who so putteth his trust in hym, shall not be confounded. Ipygh- tounes wyll I set by agayne in y balaunce, & iudgement in the weyghtes. Ede tempest of hayle shall take away your refuge, that ye haue so takeue withall, & the ouerflowynge waters shall breake downe your stronge hol- des of dissimulation. Thus the appoyntment that ye haue made with death, shall be done away, & the condic- tion that ye made with hel, shall not stand. When the greute destruction goeth thowme, it shall all to tede you. It shall take you quyte awaye before it. For it shall go forth early in the moynynge, & cōtinue onely that daye and that nyght. And the very feare onely shall teach you, when ye heare it. For the bedd shall be so narrowe that a man can not lye vpon it. And I couerynge to small, that a man maye not wynde hym selfe therein. For the Lord shall steppe forth as he dyd vpon the mounte Sion, & shall take on as he dyd vpon the mounte of Gabaon, that he may byng forth his deure, his straung deure, & fulfill his woide, his wonderfull woide. And there- fore make no moches at it, that your captiui- te increaseth not, for I haue herde the Lord of Hostes saye, that there shall come a soden de- struction & plage vpon a hole earth. Take heed, & heare my boyce, pondre a marke in wythes well. Goeth not the householde man out in due season earnestly to his lande? he moweth & ploweth his grounde so lowe. And when he hath made it playne, he soweth it in fetches or comyn, he soweth the wheate and Bar- ley.

lye in their place, Edom & Idume also in their place. And that he maye do it right, his God teacheth him and strength him. For he secretly not the speeches out in a wayne, neither bringeth he the cartes here & there ouer the comyn but he thrusteth the fitches out with a flayle and the comyn with a cob. But the whete he gryneth to make bread therof: In as much as he can not bring it to passe with treading out. For neither the bysling that he cart wheles make, ne his beastes can gryneth it. This and such lyke thynges come of the Lorde of hostes, whiche is marvellous in counsell, and great in strength.

The destruction of Jerusalem. Agayne the comyn maundementes of men.

CAPL. XXIX.

Wo be unto the, o Ariel, thou sayest that Dauis man. Take yet some prices, and let some feastes yet passe ouer: the wall Ariel be builded, so that thou shalt be house & fortowall, and wall be unto me as a lion. For I will lay siege to the cunio about, & hope to win it by force, and graue by dyke & agaynste the. And thou shalt be brought lowe, and speke out of the earth, and thy wordes shall go humbly out of the ground. Thy voice shall come out of the earth, like a voice of a weeper, and thy talking shall growe out of the myre. For the multitude of thy enemies shall be like maledicti. And the nombre of thy iustices shall be as the dust that thou wastest. Thou shalt be builded on the Lord of hostes with thunders, earthquakes, and with a great cracke, as the whetle winde, tempest, and with the flame of a consuming fyre. But now the multitude of all the people that were out agayn Ariel the hole vnde, the strong holdes and sieges is lyke a dreame which appeareth in the nyght. It is lyke as when an hungry man dreameth he is eating, and when he awaketh, he hath nothing: lyke as when a thirsty man dreameth that he is drinking, & when he awaketh, he is thirsty, and his soule impatient.

So is the multitude of all people that mustre them selues agayn the wall of Sion. But ye shall be at your wylles ende, ye shall be aduised, ye shall chace and reke to & fro. Ye shall be drunken, but not of wyne. Ye shall rail, but not thowme drunkenesse. For the Lorde shall geue you an harde slepyng spirit, & holde downe your eyes: namely your propheetes and brades which shalde se, them shall be couer. And all visions shall be vnto you, as the wordes that stand in a sealed letter, when one offereth it to a man that is learned, and sayth: reade vs this letter. Then he answereth: I can not reade it, for it is sealed. But if it be gyuen to one that is not learned, & sayd vnto him: reade this letter: Then say he: I can not reade.

Therefore thus sayeth the Lorde: For as much as the people draweth nye me with their mouth, and prayeth me byghly in their lyppes (where as their hearte neuerthelss is farre fro me, and I feare which they owe to me, that turne they to mens lawes and doctrynes) therefore will I also thew vnto this people a marvellous terrible & great thyng. (Namely this:) I will destroye the wisdom of their wisde, and the vnderstanding of their learned men shall perishe. As be vnto them that seke to depe, to hyde their ymaginacions before the Lorde, whiche reuerse their counsels in the darkness, & saye: who seeth vs, who knoweth vs? Whiche ymaginacion of yours is euen as when the potters clay taketh aduysment, as though the worke might saye to the workman: make me not, as when an eueghen vessel sayeth of the potters: he vnderstandeth not. So ye not that it is made by, that Libanus shalbe turned into charwell, and that Charmell shal be taken as a wood? Then shall deat men vnderstande the wordes of the booke, and the eyes of the blind shall se without any cloud of darkness. The oppressed shal reide a mery feast in the Lord, and the poore people shall reioyse in the daye of Jerusalem.

Then shall the surpous people cease, and the mockers shall be put away, and all they that do wrong, shall be plucked out, such as labour to draw men vnto synne, and that I seare hym, which reprooueth them in the gate and such as tene good prefontes to banne. And thetoke eye Lorde (euen the defender of Abraham) sayth thus vnto the house of Jacob. Some shall not Jacob be ashamed, nor his face conuincid, when he seeth amonge his chylde (whome my handes haue made) such as haue my name amonge them, that they maye sanctifie the holy one of Jacob, and seare the God of Israel, & that they maye asoyne tyme with an exultant spirit, but now vnderstandyng, and that such as before could not speake, are now learned in my law.

The curse agayn them that forsake the comyn of God and take vnto the counsel of men, as that with the reu of the people, whiche after the destruction of Jerusalem wente into Egypt.

CAPL. XXX.

Wo be to those that saye they shall be as the Lorde, whiche seke counsell, but not at me, which take a wedde in hand, but not after my wyl, that they maye drawe synne vpon another. They go downe into Egypt, (and alas me no counsell) to seke helpe at the power of Pharaoh, and comen into the shadowe of the Egyptians. But Pharaoh helpe shall be your confusion, and the comyn forte in the Egyptians whome shall be your owne shame. Your culres haue ben at Zan, and your meffaugers came vnto Isis. But ye shall al be ashamed of the people that maye not helpe you, whiche shall not bypasse you strength or comfote, but shame and confusion.

Your beastes haue borne burthens tyme & tyme they backe toward the south, whowse the maye that is full of perill and trouble, by cause of the lyon and hynde, of the cockatrice and wynged dragon. Yea the Wyles barre your substance, & the Amels bages, vnto a people that can not helpe you. For the Egyptians helpe shall be but bayne and losse. Therefore I tolde you also that your pynde shalbe haue an ende. Wherefore good venge and wyse them this in their tables, and write it in a booke: that it maye remayne by their posterite, and be still kepte. For it is an obdurate people, vnfaithfull chylde, chylde that will not heare the lawe of the Lorde.

They dare say to the propheetes: Meddle with nothing, and vnto the soothsayers, tell vs of nothing for to come, but speake frendly wordes vnto vs, and preache vs talle tales. Rede out of the waye, go out of your path, turne the holy one of Israel to the right. Therefore thus sayth the holy one of Israel: forasmuch as ye haue cast of your beauty, and comfited your selues with power and simblenesse, and put your confidence therein: therefore shall ye haue this mischiese agayne for your destruction and fall, lyke as an hygh wall that falleth because of some crite (or blast) whose bracke cometh suddenly.

And your destruction shall be as an eueghen pot, whiche breaketh, no man toucheth it, & it is broken & broken to the ground, that a man shall not fynd a shewe of it to sethe fyre in, or to take water therof out of the pte. For the Lorde God, euen the holy one of Israel hath promysed thus: With still speyng and reide shall ye be breid, in quietnesse and hope shall ye strengthe the. Notwithstandyng ye reide it not, but ye will saye: I will thus be we condempned to lye vpon hoyses. And therefore shall ye lye, we must lye vpon swift bedes, and therefore your persecuters shall yet be swift. Although of you shall lye for out, or at the most for fyre, which do but on: by gyne you will saye: (it ye be desolate as a hyppon vpon an hye mountayne, and as a broken vpon a hyll.

Yet standeth the Lorde waytynge, that he maye haue mercy vpon you, and lyfeth himself by, that he maye receyue you to grace. For the Lorde God is ryghteous, happy are all they that wayte for hym. For thus (o thou people of Syon, and ye citizens of Jerusalem) shall ye neuer be in helplesse, for doubtlesse he will haue mercy vpon the. As soone as he heareth the voice of thy crye, he will helpe the. The Lorde gyue the the herd of aburric, and the water of trouble. But thine inuention shall not farre frome the, yf thine eye lye vnto thine inuention, and thine eares harken to his wordes, that cryeth after the, and sayeth: this is the waye, goe this, and turne neyther to the ryght hand neyther to the left.

Therefore if ye destroye the silver workes of your goddes, and cast awaye the golden ropes that ye dect them with (as spychynesse) an sape, get you hence: Then will ye gyue rayne to the seide that ye shall sowe in the earthe, and gyue you bread of the increase of the earthe, so that all shall be plenteous and abundaunt. Thy cattell also shall be fede in the hyde meadowes, yea thyne oxen and Wyles that eyll the grounde shall eate good fodder, whiche is pouged with the sunne. Goodly shepers shall floure out of all his mountaynes and hylls. In the daye of the greare slaughter when the towres shall fall, the moene shall wyne as the sunne, and the sunne shall be seuen fold and haue as much wyne as in seuen dayes besyde.

In that daye shall the Lorde bynde by the brook of the people, and heale the woundes. Beholde, the gloire of the Lorde shall come frome rarer, his face shall burne that no man shall be able to abyde it, & is lyppes shall wagge for beyn indignation, and his tonge shall be as a consuming fyre. His byrthe lyke a beuement floude of water, whiche goeth by to the Egypte. That he maye take awaye the people, whiche haue couered them selues to banne, and for bypde of erreure, that lye in other folkes chaiters.

But ye shall syng, as the vte is in the nyght of the holy solemnitie. Ye shall reioyse from your heart, as they that come with the pyre, when they goe up to the mount of the Lorde, vnto the roche of Israel. The Lorde also shall sette by the power of his voice, and declare his terrible arme, with his angyr countenance, yea and the flame of the consuming fyre, with earthquakes, tempest of wynde and hyle stones. Then shall the Assyrians leave also, because of the voice of the Lorde, whiche shall saye hym with the rodde. And the same rod whiche the Lorde will sende vpon him, shall moue the hole foundation: with trumpet, with noise of water and barrayle to destroye. For he hath prepared the fyre of payre from the beginning, yea euen for kynge also. This vath he made depe & wyde, the nouthynge therof is fyre and wood innumerable, whiche shall be of the Lorde kynedly as it were a match of byrmstone.

The curseth them that forsake God, and seke for the helpe of men.

CAPL. XXXI.

Wo be vnto them that goe downe to Egypt for helpe, and trust in horses, & comfote them selues in chaiters, because they be lustye and stronge. But they regarde not the holy one of Israel, and they aske no question at the Lorde. Where as he neuer thelesse plageeth the myched, and yet not from his wynde, when he sleppeth with the and taketh the victorie agayn the household of the frowarde, and agayn the helpe of cur doers. Now the Egyptians are men, and not God, and theye boyles flesh, and not spirite.

And as soone as the Lorde stretcheth out his hande, then shall the helpe fall, and he that holde haue ben helped, and shall all togg-ther be destroyed. For thus hath the Lorde spoken vnto me: Like as the lyepon oz Lyons wobbele togeth vpon the praye that he hath gotten, and is not asfayde, though the multitude of shepherdes crye oute vpon him, neither abashid for all the heape of them: So shall the Lorde of hostes come downe frome the mounte of Sion, and defende his byll.
Like as brides flutte aboute their nestes, so shall the Lorde of hostes hepe, saue, defende and deliuer Ierusalem. Therefore, O ye children of Israel, turne agayne, like as ye haue exceded in your goungs backe, for in that day euery man shall cast oute his ydolles of spirit and golde, whiche ye haue made with your synnfull handes. After also shall be slayne with the swerde, not wi. b a mannes swerde. A swerde shall deuoure hym, but not a mannes swerde. And he shall flee frome the slaughtee, and his seruantes shall be taken prisoners. He shall go for feare to his strong holdes, and his princes shall flee frome his badge. This hath the Lorde spoken, whose lyge bueneth in Syon, and his syt in Ie-rusalem.

III The conditions of good rulers and officers.

CAPL XXXII.

Bholde, the kynge Shall gouerne after the rule of righteousnesse, and the pry-nces Shall rule accordyng to the ballaunce of equitie. He Shall be unto men as a defence for the weak, & as a refuge for the oppressed, lyke as a ruer of water in a thursty place, & the water of a great riu in a dry land. The eyes of the kynge Shall not be hymme, and the eares of heym shall heare, Shall take diligent hede. The best of the vniuersall Shall asseyne to knowlege, and the innerste tong shall speke playnly & clerely. When Shall the nyggarde be no more called gentle, ne the churle lyberall. But the churle myll be churlyshly mynded, and his heart myll be eue and playe the hypocrite, and ymagin abominacions agaynst God, to make the hungeyre frane, and to withholde drynke from the thyrste: These are the perillous weapons of the courteous, these be his shamefull counsels: that he maye begyle the poore with dycefull wyles, yea euen there as he shalbe givyn sentence to the poore.
But the lyberall yson ymagineth honest thyng-ge, and cometh ypp with honesty.

Kyrle (re cythe and yole cytes) hathen bna-to mpoyces. Ye carcelle cytes, make me moyses. Yfier yres and dayes shall ye be brought in feare. O ye carcelle cytes. For harniss shall be oute, and the grepe gatheringe shall not come. O ye cythe yole cytes, ye that feare no preyll, ye shall be abashed and remoued; when ye se the barennesse, the nakednesse and y:reparynge to warre. Ye shall knocke vpon your breddes, because of the pleasaunt felde, and because of the fruitfull times yarde. My peoples selde shall byryge troynes and chapples, for in euery house is baluptuousnesse, and in the cyties wylfulnesse.

The palaces also shall be broken, and the greatly occupied cyties desolate. The tow-res and bulwarkes, shall become denns for cuckoos, the pleasure of mules shall be toured to pasture for shepe: vnto the tyme that the ipe:ite be powred vpon vs from about.

Then shall the wyldernes be a fruitful felde, and the plentiful felde shall be re-ned for a waste. Then shall equite dwell in the deserte, and rightousnesse in a fruitful lande. And the rewarde of rightousnesse shall be pear, and berseme, reffe, and quert-nesse for fure. And my people shall dwell in the Jnnes of pear, in my tabernacle and pleasure where there is ynough in th. m. all. And when the baple salueth, it that sal in the wod and in the rype. O howe happye shall pe be when pe that safely towe your feet drye all waters, and dyne thither the fere of your ope and affe.

Che campe agaynste the Egyptians. I deliuere them that shall be the Lo:de.

CAPL XXXIII

Therfore woe be unto the, o robber, wilt thou not thou be robbed also? and but the that sayst wayte, as wto saye, thou holde no wayte be lapde for the? Woe be to the wylche doth hurte, when he maketh you be hurte also. And as thou sayst wayte, so shall wayte be lapde for the also.

the. Yourne arme is as a poppie to byprie vs, but be thou our helpe in the tyme of trouble.
 Ghaunt that the people maye see at the aspect of thy voyce, and that at thy vphandling the Gentyles maye be scattered abroad, and that theyr spoyle maye be gathered, as the sick sheppes are communly gathered together in to the ppe. Stand by Rode, thou that dwellest on hye. Let Sion be rejoyced with iustice and righteousness. Let trueth and iustice dwell in her tyme: powre, helpe, wisdom, knowlege, and the feare of God are her treasure. Besyde, theyr angels crie without, y the messengers of peace were byrde. The streets are walke, there walketh no man that in, the appoyntment is broken, the cyties are despayred, they are not regarded, the desolate carthe is in tearynes. Libanus lacketh wood for a spozet, that it is leuen downe: Saron is lyke a wilderness: Basan and Carmel are turned byrde downe. And therto sayeth the Rode: I will vp, nowe will I crye, nowe will I crye. Ye shall conceyue trouble and brate braine, and your spirit shall be the tye, that it maye consume you: and the people shall be burnt lyke tyme, as the thornes burne that are betwix of, and the in the type.

Now harken to ye that are farre off, home
I doe with them, and consoyle my gloype, ye that be at hande. The synners at Sion are afearde, a febyrne fearfulnesse are come vpon the yppocrites. What is he amonge vs, saie they, that wyll dwelle by that consuminge fyr? Whiche of vs maye abyde that euill-langued synge here? He that leadeth a godlye lyfe (saye I) and speaketh the reuthe: He that abhorreth to doo violence and discrete: he that kyseth his hande that he touche no re-warde: whiche stoppeth his eares & he heare no counsell agaynst the innocent: which holdeth downe his eyes that he se none euill. He it is that shall dwell on hye, whose safegarde shall be in the true rocke, to him shall be grue the wyght true meat and drynke. His eyes wal ke the hyrge in his gloype: and in the wyde worlde, and his herte shall deelyte in the feare of God. * What shall then become of the Scribe of the Synagogue? What of him that teacheth chyldren? There shalt thou not se a people of a straunge tonge to haue so dyskilled a language that it maye not be vnderstande: neither so straunge a speche, but it shall be percepued.

There Wall Ston be sene, the heed citey of oure iohanne feastes. There Wall thyne yes se Ierusalem, that glorious habytacyon: the tabernacle that neuer Wall remoue whose nyles Wall neuer be taken out mocht without ende, whose cordes euerychone Wall neuer corrupte: for the glorious marche of the Lorde Wall there be presente amonge vs.
In that place where sapie brode ryues and streams are, Wall neyther Caly rowe, ne greate hypppe sayle. For the Lorde Wall be oure Captyaue, the Lorde Wall be oure lawegyuer. The Lorde Wall be oure kynge, and be hym selfe Wall be oure S upout.
There are the cordes to larde abode, that they can not be better. The masse set vp of suche a faction, that no banner nor sayle hangeth thereon: but there is traied great spople, ysaiahe men runne after the praye. There lyeth no man that saythe: I am sycke, but all myll is taken away from the people that dwel there.

The last destruction of the Synagoge, in which the kingdom and priesthood of that people was transferred to the Church and congregation of Christ.

CAPL. XXXIIII.

Come ye heathen and heare, take hede ye people. Harken thou earth and all that is therein: thou rounde compasse all that groweth therevpon, for the Lord is angry with all people, and his displeasure is kindled agaynst all the multitude of them, to curse them, and to slay them. So that their slaynes shall be cast out, and their bodies lynke: that euen the very hylls shall be mee with the blood of them. All the steeres of he-uen shall be consumed, & the heiren shall folde together lyke a roll, and all the steeres therof shall fall, lyke as the leanes fall from the vines and tygge trees. For my sweate (sayd he) shall be bathed in heauen, and shall im-mediatly come downe vpon Iudaea, and vpon the people whiche I haue chused for my vengeaunce.

And the Lordes sweards shall be full of bloude, and be russe with the fainesse and bloud of lambes and gotes, with the fainesse of the kidneys of methers. For the Lorde shall kill a great offering in Babilon, and in the lande of Bornea. There shall the Uacomis fall with the Bulles, (that is with the gr-auantes) and their land shall be washed with bloude, and their ground corrupte with fa-nesse. Unto the also (O Spon) shall come th: daye of the vengeance of God, and the yete when thyns owne iudgements shall be recompensed. Thy cloudes shall be rowled to ppyche, and thyns earth to brimstone, and the wyche shall the lande be kyndled, so that it shall not be quenched day nor nyght: But smoke euermore, and so forth to lye waste.
And no man shall goo thorowe thy lande for euer: But Pellicanes, Storikes, great oules, and Haukes that haue it in possession, and
dwel there.

For God shall sprede out the lyne of testacion vpon it, and wey it wth the stones of empeyne. When kynes are calied vpon, there shall be none, and all prynces shall be awake. Thornes shall growe in cypres palas-ces, nettles and tistles in their stronge hol-des, that the dragons maye haue thei^r pleasure therein, and that they maye be a couer for Euniches. There shall straunge bilures and and monstrous bestes meete one another, and the world kepe company together. There shall the Lampa lye, and haue her lodgng.
There shall the hedgehog buyte, bygge, be there at home, and bypge forthe his poyne ones. There shall the kites come togethir eue one to his kyte.

Seke you not the scripture of the Lorde, and reade it. There shall none of these thyn-ges be lefte out, there shall nor one (ne suche lyke) taylor. For what his mouth commauns doeth, that same doeth his spierie gather together (or fulfilleth.) Upon whome he use the los falleth, or to whome he calleth it with the lorde: those shall possesse the city: herefraunce from generation to generation, and dwell therein.

¶ Of the time and kingdom of Elphic.

CAP. XXXV.

But the barrennesse shall reioyce, the waste ground shall be glad, and shall saye as the lilye. She shall saye pleasantly, and be ioyfull, and eue be griue of thankes more and more. For the slope of Asbanus, the beaue of Cedre mel and Sharon shall be giuen her. These shall knowe the honoure of the Lorde, and the maiestie of our God. And therefore streng- then the we. he handes, and comforte the fe- ble knees.

Math. xv.

Sape unto them that are of a fearefull herte: be of good chere and feare not. Be- holde your God cometh to take vengeance, and to rewarde, God cometh his own self, and myll deliuer you. Then shall the eyes of the blinde be lightened, and the eares of the deafe opened. Then shall the lame man leape as an hart, and the blinde mans tong shall geue thanks.

In the wyldern. He also there shall welles springe, and fountes of water in the deserte. The drye ground shall turne to ryuers, and the thurlyre to springes of water. Where as dragons dwelt afore, there shall growe sweete flowers and grene euilues. There shall be fote pathes and common freetes, this shall be cal- led the holpe waye. No vnleane personne shall goo thowowe it, for the Lorde him self shall goo with them that waye, and the ig- norauante shall not erre. There shall be no lyon, and no rauyn wynde shall come therein, nor be there, but men shall goo there free and safe. And the redemed of the Lorde shall conuert, and come to Syon with thankesgynge. Euery daye shall they haue pleasure and gladnesse, shall be among them. And all fowles and greynesse, shall banthe awaye.

Jerusalem is assiged by Sennacherib in the tyme of kynge Ezechias.

CAP. XXXVI.

Math. xv.

4 Par. xlii.

In the twentieth yere of kynge Ezechias, came Sennacherib kynge of the Assyrians, to laye siege vnto all the strong ci- ties of Iuda. And the kynge of the Assyrians sent Rabshakeh from Lachis towards Je- rusalem agaynst kynge Ezechias, with a gre- uous hoste, whiche let vpon by the conspyte of the outpoule, in the waye that goeth thowow the fullers lande. And so there came forth vnto him Eliakim the scribe, the Princes, Sobna the scribe, and Iohab the scribes sonne & secretary.

And Rabshakeh sayd vnto them: Tell Ezechias that the grete kynge of Assyria saythe thus vnto him: What presumption is this that thou trustest vnto? Thou thyngest per- aduantage, thou hast counsell and power y- nough to maynteyn this warre: or els where to trustest thou, that thou callest thy selfe of fro me? so, thou puttest thy trust in a byoken name of reed (I meane Egypte), whiche he that feareth vpon, is goeth in to his hande, & moteth him thowow.

Then so is Pharaos the kynge of Egypte, vnto all them that reside in Iuda. But yf thou woldst saye to me: we trust in the Lorde our God: I doo so. God in dede: whose the pla- ces and autters Ezechias take downe, and co- manded Iuda and Jerusalem to worshyp onely befor the autter, above the, thou hast made a conuicion with my Lorde the kynge of the Assyrians, that he shoulde geue the two thousand hostes: arte thou habile to let men vpon them? Seynge nowe that thou canste not resist the power of the smallest pyntee that my Lorde hath, how darst thou truste in the charrettes and horsemen of Eg- ypte? Moreover, thyngest thou I am come downe byther to destroye this land without the Lordes wyll? The Lorde sayd vnto me, go downe into y land, that thou mayest de- stroye it.

Then sayd Eliakim, Sobna and Iohab vnto Rabshakeh: Speake to vs thy seruantes (we praye the) in the Syrians language, for we vnderstande it well: And speake not o- ver in the Jewes tonge, leste the folke heare, whiche spech vpon the wall. Then answer- ed Rabshakeh: Thyngest thou that the kynge sent me to speake this onely vnto you? hath he not sent me to them also that lye vpon the wall: that they be not compelled to eate theyr owne donge, and drynke theyr owne ale with you?

And Rabshakeh shode offe, and cryed with a loude voyce in the Jewes tonge, and sayd. Some take hede howe the grete kynge of the Assyrians groweth you warninge. Thus saythe the kynge: Lette not Ezechias de- ceyne you, for he shall not be habile to deliuer you. Moreover let not Ezechias comforte you in the Lorde, when he saythe: The Lorde withoute doubt shall defende vs, and shall not geue ouer this cite in to the hande of the kynge of the Assyrians, by leue of myn. But thus saythe the kynge of Assyria: Obe- dynt my sauoure, eueryn vnto me: so may euery man enioye his vineyardes and figges trees, and drinke the water of his cistene: vnto the tyme that I come my selfe, and bynnege you in to a lande that is lyke your owne: wherem is wheate and wyne, luke is bothe sower with sede, and planted with vineyardes. Let not Ezechias disceyne you, when he sayth vnto you: the Lorde shall de- liuer vs.

Whyge the goddes of the Gentylis hope euery mannes lande from the power of the kynge of the Assyrians? Where is the God of Hama and Arpad? Where is the God of Sepharuaim? And who was habile to de- fendre Samaria out of my hande? & whiche of all the Goddes of the landes, hath deli- uered their countrey out of my power, so that I Lorde wold deliuer Jerusalem fro my hande? Vnto this Ezechias messengers helde theyr tonges, and answered not one word: for the kynge had charged them that they shoulde geue him none answer. So came Eliakim the scribe, Sobna the scribe, and Iohab the scribes sonne the secretary, vnto Ezechias with red clothes, and told him the wordes of Rabshakeh.

Ezechias humbled hym selfe before the Lorde. The armie of Sennacherib is slaine: of the Lorde: and he him selfe is lighted of his owne countrey.

CAP.

CAP. XXXVII.

When Ezechias heerde that, he rente his clothes, and put on a sackcloth, & went in to the temple of the Lorde. But he sent Eliakim the Princes, Sobna & Scribe with the eldest pyntees clothed in sack vnto y prophet Elase the sonne of Amos, and they sayd vnto him: Thus sayth Ezechias: This is the day of trouble, of plage, and of wach- inge as when a childe cometh to the birth, but the woman hath no power to bynnege it forthe. The Lorde thy God, no doubt, hath well conspyred the wordes of Rabshakeh, whome his lord the kynge of Assyrians hath sent, to desyre and blasphemie the spynge God: with suche wordes as the Lorde thy God hath herd ryght well. And therefore liff by thy prayer for the remnaunte that yet are left. So the seruantes of kynge Ezechias came to Elase.

And Elase gaue them this answer: Say thus vnto your Lorde: thus sayth the Lorde: He not afraide of the wordes that thou hast heerde, wherewith the kynge of the Assyrians seruantes haue blasphemied me. Be- holde, I wyll cause a wynde go ouer him, as soone as he heareth it, he shall go agayne into his countrey, where wyll I destroye him with the sword. Howe when Rabshakeh re- turned, he founde the kynge of Assyria lay- inge siege to Lachis, for he hadde vnder- stande, that he was departed from Lachis. For there came a rumour, that Tharhakah kynge of Ethiopia was come for to warre agaynst him.

And when the kynge of Assyria heerde that, he sent other messengers to kynge Ezechias, with this commaundement: Sape thus to Ezechias kynge of Iuda: Let not thy God deceyne the in whome thou hopest, and say- est: Jerusalem shall not be geuen in to the hande of the kynge of Assyria. For thou knowest well howe the kynges of Assyria haue banished all the landes that they haue sub- uerted, and happest thou to escape? Were the people of the Gentylis (whome my pyoge- rous conquered) deliuered at any tyme frome theyr goddes? As namely, Bozan, Hazan, Kizeph, and the chyldren of Eden, whiche dwelle at Thalasat. Where is the kynge of Hamah, and the kynge of Arphan, & the kynge of the cite of Sepharuaim, Ena and Ana?

Howe when Ezechias hadde receyued the letter of the messengers, and red it, he wente vnto the house of the Lorde, and opened the letter before the Lorde. And Ezechias appered before the Lorde, on this maner: O Lorde of hostes, thou God of Israel, whiche dwellest vpon Cherubyn. Thou art the God that onely is God of all the kyngdomes of the world, for thou onely hast created heuen and earth. Curlyne thyn eare, Lorde, and con- sider, open thyn eyes, O Lorde, and se and pon vnto all the wordes of Sennacherib, whiche he hath sente his embassage to blasphemie the spynge God.

It is true, O Lorde, that the kynge of Assyria haue conquered all the landes of Iuda, and caste theyr goddes in the fyre. Not- withstandinge those were no goddes, but the workes of mens handes, of wood & stone, & se- feze haue they destroyed them. Deliuere vs then, O Lorde our God, from the handes of Sennacherib, that al kyngdomes of the city maye knowe that thou onely art the Lorde. Then Elase the sonne of Amos, sent vnto Ezechias, saying: Thus sayth the Lorde God of Israel: where as thou hast made thy pray- er vnto me, as touchynge Sennacherib this is the answer, that the Lorde hath geuen concernynge him:

Delivered art thou and mocked, a daughter of Syon, he hath waken his hebd at thee, a daughter of Jerusalem. But thou Senna- cherib, whom hast thou defied and blasphe- med: add agaynst whome thou hast lyfed by thy voyce, and exalted thy pyoure lokke: and agaynst the holpe one of Israel. Thou with thy seruantes hast blasphemied the Lorde, and thus holdest thou of thy selfe: I couer the hye mountaynes and sydes of Libanus with my horsemen.

And there wyll I cutte downe the hygh Cedre trees, and the saprest fyre trees. I wyll vnto in to the bryght of it, and in to the chysse of the tymber woddies. Yf there be no water, I wyll graue and drynke. And as for waters of defence, I shall drye them vp with the fete of myne hoste. Yea (sayest thou) hast thou not herde what I haue taken in hande, and brought to passe of old tyme? That same wyll I doo nowe also: waste, destroye, and bynnege stronge cities vnto heapes of stones. For theyr inhabytours shall be lyke lame men, broughte in feare and confounded. They shall be lyke the grasse and grene her- bes in the scide, lyke the haye vpon house toppes, that wythereth afore it be growe vp.

I knowe thy wayes, thy goynge forth, and thy coming home, yea and thy inabynesse agaynst me. Therefore thy fury shalbe agaynst me, and thy pyde is come before me. I wyll put a spynge in thy nose, and a byrle byt in the chawes of the, and turne the aboute vnto the same waye thou camest. I wyll geue the also this token, O Ezechias, this yere shall thou rate that is kepte in hope, and the next yere suche as groweth of him selfe, and in the thyrde yere ye shall sowe and reape, yea ye shall plante vineyardes, and enioye the fru- tes thereof.

And suche of the house of Iuda as are stra- ped, shall come together, and the remnaunt shall take roote beneath, and bynnege for the frute aboute. For the escaped shall go oute of Jerusalem, and the remnaunt from y mount Syon.

And this shall the geulouspe of the Lorde of hostes bynnege to passe. Therefore thus saythe the Lorde, concernynge the kynge of the As- syrians: He shall not come in to the city, and shall shoute no armoie in to it, there shall no wynde hurte it, neither shall they bygge about it. The same waye that he came, shall he re- turne.

tourne, and not come at this cite, say the the Lorde. And I will kepe and saue the cite (sayth he) for myne owne, and for my seruante Dauid's sake.

and foure thousande. And when men arose by eclipse (at Jerusalem,) beholde all laye full of dead bodies. So Sennacherib the kynge of Assyria brake by and dwelt at Ramuc.
Afterwarde it chauned, as he prayed in the temple of Nethah his God, and Adramalech and Sarsar his owne sonnes, sette hym with the swerde, and slede in to the lande of Ararat. And Asar hadon his sonne captured at ter him.

Ezechias is speke vnto the death, but is yet reup-ued by the Lorde, and lyueth. x. yeares after: for whiche benefite he giveth thanks.

CAP. XXXVIII.

Not long after this, was Ezechias speke vnto the deathe: and the Prophete Esaye the sonne of Amos came vnto him, and sayde: Thus commaundeth the Lorde: Set thine house in order, for thou must dye, and walte not escape. Then Ezechias tourned his face toward the wall, and prayed vnto the Lorde, and sayde: Remember, O Lorde, that I have walked before the in trouthe, and keped the lawe, and have doone the thyng that is pleasaunt to the. And Ezechias wepte foure.

Then sayde God vnto Esay: Go and speake vnto Ezechias: the Lorde God of Dauid thy father sendeth the this woide: I haue herde thy prayer, and considered thy tea-res: beholde I will put sytten yeres mo vnto thy lyfe, and deliuer the and the cite also, from the hande of the kynge of Assyria, for I will defende the cite. And take the this token of the Lorde, that he will doo it, as he haide spoken: Beholde I will retourne the wadome of Achas dyall, that now is layde out with the sunne, and byng it senne degreys backwarde. So the sunne tourned tenne degreys backwarde, the whiche he was descended afore.

A thanksgyuinge, whiche Ezechias kynge of Iuda wrote, when he hadde bene speke and was recovered.

I thought I wold have gone to the gates of hel in my best age, and have wanted the revenue of my yeres.
I spake within my selfe: I will neuer vnto the Lorde God in this lyfe: I will neuer se man amongst the dwellers of the woilde.

Myne age is folowen by together, and taken awaye from me lyke a shepheard's croage my lyfe is breuen of, lyke as a weaver cutteth of his webbe.

Whyle I was yet talkynge in mynne, he betwed me of, and made an ende of me in my dewe.

I thought I wold have lyued vnto f-rowe: but he breued my house lyke a lyon, & made an ende of me in one daye.

Then charged I lyke a swallowe: and lyke a crane, and mourned as a dove.

I lyfte up myne eyes in to the heghth: O Lorde (sayd I) violence is done vnto me, because thou swerdest for me.

What shall I speake of saye, that he maye this to: that I may lyue out all my yeres, in the bytternesse of my lyfe?

Ueryly (Lorde) men shoulde lyue to beterrenesse: and all my lyfe muste I passe out therin, for thou raised me up, & weched me.

But loo, I will be well content with this bytternesse.

Neuerthelesse my conuersation hath to placed the, that thou wouldest not make an ende of my lyfe, so that thou hadst call all my yeres behynde thy backe.

For heil prayeth not the, deathe hath not magnified the.

They that goe downe in to the grave praye not the trouth: but the lyfynge, for the lyfynge knowlege the, lyke as I do this daye.

The father telleth his children of thy lyfynge fulnesse.

Deliver vs (O Lorde) and we will syng prayes in thy house, all the dayes of our lyfe.

And Esay sayde: take a playster of hygers, and laye it upon the soote, so shall it be hele.

Then sayde Ezechias: O what a grate thyng is this, that I shall goe up in to the house of the Lorde.

Ezechias is reponed of Esay, because he be-wed his creature vnto the Embassadors of Babylon.

CAP. XXXIX.

At the same tyme Merodach Bal-dam, Baladams sonne kynge of Babylon, sent letters and presentes to E-zechias. For he understode how he had ben speke, and was recovered agayne. And E-zechias was glad thereof, and shewed hym the comodities of his treasure, of syluer, of golde, of spices and rootes of precious oyles, all that was in his cupboards and treasure houses. There was not one thyng in Ezechias house, and so he shewed out all his honydome, but he let them se it.

Then came Esay the Prophete to Ezechias, and sayde vnto him: What haue the men sayde, and frome whence came they vnto the? Ezechias answered: they came out of a farre countrey vnto me, out of Babylon. Esay sayde: what haue they looked vpon in thyne house? Ezechias answered: All that is in myne house haue they seene: and there is nothing in my treasure, but I shewed it them.

Then sayd Esay vnto Ezechias: Under-stande the woide of the Lorde of hostes. Be-holde the tyme will come that euery thyng whiche is in thyne house, and all that thy progenitures haue layde vpin vnto this daye, shall be carryed to Babylon, and no thyng lefte behynde. This sayth the Lorde.
Yea, and parte of thy sonnes that shall come of the, and whom thou shalt get, shall be caried hence, and become gelded chamberlaynes in the kynge of Babylons court: Then said Ezechias to Esay: Howe God prosper his owne woide, whiche he hath spoken. He sayd morrow: so there be peax and saythfulnesse in my tyme.

CAP. XL.

Be of good cheere my people, be of good cheere (sayth your God) comforte Jerusalem, and tell her that her treauangle is at an ende, that her offence is pardoned, that she haue receyved of the Lorde hande sufficient remission for all her synnes. A voyce cryeth: Prepare the waye for the Lorde in the wildernesse, make streight the path for our God in the desert. Let all vale be exalted, and euery mountayne and hyl be layde lowe. What so is croked, let it be made straight, and let the rough places be made plaine feldes. For the glory of the Lorde shall appere, and all flesh shall se it, for the mouth of the Lorde hath spoken it.

The same voyce spake: Nothe crye. And I sayd: what shall I crye? Then spake it: that all flesh is grasse, and that all the beautye thereof is as the flower of the feld. The grasse is withered, the flower faileth awaye. Euen so is the people as grasse, when the bryche of the Lorde bloweth vpon them. The grasse wythereth, the flower fade awaye: But the word of our God endureth for euer. Wherefore the Lorde cryed thus: Go ye vnto the hyll of Sion, thou that byngest good tydynges, lyft up thy voyce with power, o thou preacher Jerusalem. Lyft it up without feare, and say vnto the cyties of Iuda: behold your God, behold the Lorde, euen the almighty shall come with power, and beare rule with his arme. Behold he byngest his treasure with him, & his wozenes goe before him. We shall fede his flocke lyke an herdman. He shall gather the lambs together with his arme, and carry them in his bosome, and shall kyndly entreate those that dare fonge.

Who hath holden the waters in his sphere? Who hath measured heuen with his spaine, and hath comprehended all the eastbe of the woilde in thine fingers? Who hath bynged the mountaynes and hylles? Who hath by-founded the mynde of the Lorde? Who is of his counsell to teache him? At whom hath he asked counsell, to make him understande, and to lette him the waye of iudgement: to teache him science: and to instruct him in the waye of vnderstandynge? Beholde, all people are in comparison of him, as a drop to a bo-ket full; and are counted as the leest thyng that the balance weyeth. Beholde, the Iles are in comparison of him, as the shakynge of the sunne beame. Libanus is not sufficiant to mynstre fye for his offeringe, and all the bestes therof are not ynoughe to one sacryfyce. All people in comparison of him, are reckened as nothyng, yea wayne vaine and emptynesse.

To whom then will ye liken God? or what similitude will ye set vnto him? What can ye make him a carved ymage? and shall the goldsmith couer him with golde, or caste hym in to a forme of syluer plates? Whoeuer hat the ymage maker (that the poore man whiche is disposid maye haue some thinge to set by also) seke oute and chuse a tree, that is not rotten, and carue of it an ymage that moueth not? Know ye not this? Herde ye neuer of it?
Harde it not ben preached vnto you from the beginning? haue ye not ben informed of this sithens the foundation of the erth was layde:
that he sitteth vpon the circle of the woilde, and that all the inhabitantes of the woilde are in comparison of him but as geethoppers:
That he speyeth ouer the heauens as a couering: that he stretcheth them out, as a tent to dwell in: that he byngest princes to nothyng, and the iudges of the erth to dust: so that they be not planted nor sowne agayne, neither their stocke roted agayne in the erth:
For as soone as he bloweth vpon them, they withere and fade awaye, lyke the strawe in a wyndynde.

To whom now will ye lyken me, and what shall I be like, saith the holy one? Lift up your eyes on hie, and consider. Who hath made those thynges, whiche come out by so greate heapes? and he can call them all by their names, for there is nothyng hid vnto the greatnesse of his power, strengthe, and myghte. How maye then Jacob thynke, or howe maye Israel saye: My wayes are hyde frome the Lorde, and my God knoweth not of my iniquities. Knowest thou not, o thou that not herd, that the enuerlasting God, the Lorde whiche made all the cornes of the earth, is neither weyre nor saynt: and that his topdome can not be comprehended: but that he grueth strengthe vnto the weyre, and power vnto the saynt? Behold his arme, and saynt and the strongest men fall: but vnto them that haue the Lorde before their eyes, all strengthe be increased. As a wynde shall growe vpon them: when they stand, they shall not fall: and when they see, they shall not be weyre.

in the myghte waters: whiche bynggeth to the chaigges and hostes, the hode and the power, that they maye fall a slepe, and neuer rye, and be extincte, lyke as towne is quenched.

I remembre not thynges of olde, and re- garde nothinge that is passe. Therefore be- holde, I shall make a newe springe, and I shall make it appeare: ye shall well knowe it, I have cetera: you before, but I will tell it you agayne. I will make founnteynes in the desert, and ciues of waters in the wilderness. The wylder beestes shall worship me: the dragon and the Asche. For I shall geue water in the wilderness, and founnteynes in the desert: that I maye geue drynke to my people, whiche I chose, this people haue I made for my selfe, and they shall serue me for ever. For thou (Jacob) wouldest not call vpon me, but thou haddest an vnwille towards me, O Israel.

Thou gauest me not thy yonger beestes for burnt offerings, neither offered honoure me with thy sacrifices. Thou boughtest me no beere spices with thy money, ney- ther powdered the face of thy sacrifices vpon me. How be it I haue not ben chaiged- able vnto the in offerings, neyther greuous in incense.

But thou hast laden me with thy syn- nes: and weighed me with thyne vngodly- nesse.

Where as I yet am euen be onely, that for myne owne sakes like to a waye thyne offer- ings, and forget thy synnes: so that I wyl ne- uer chynke vpon them. But me now in remem- brance (to) we wyl reason together) and I shall geue thee what thou haue for the to make the quere. Thy syns father offendeth soe, and thy rulers haue synned agaynst me. Therefore I crier suspended, O Ierne the chieftest pyra- tes: I byd curse Jacob, and gaue Israel in to reprobate.

Chap. xliiii. To deliver his church, which he hath redeemed. Foolhardie and halcyon verose I- mages, &c. are contemned.

CAP. XLIII.

Hearke now, O Jacob my seruant, and Israel, whome I haue chosen. For thus sayth the Lorde that made the, fashioned the, and helped the euen from the mothers wombe: Be not afraid, O Jacob my seruant, thou righteous, whome I haue chosen. For I shall poure water vpon the drye ground, and riuers vpon the thyrst. I shall poure my spi- rite vpon my seed, and myne encrease vpon thy stocke. They shall grow together lyke as the graffe, and as the reylres by the waters syde: One wyl saye I am the Lorde. An o- ther wyl call vnder the name of Jacob. The thyrde shall delcye with his hand vnto the Lorde, and geue him selfe vnder the name of Israel.

Chap. xliiii. To deliver his church, which he hath redeemed. Foolhardie and halcyon verose I- mages, &c. are contemned.

Moreover thus hath the Lorde spoken: euen the kynge of Israel, and his surlger, the Lorde of hostes: I am the synner and the laste, and without me is there no God. For what is he that euer was lyke me, whome am some euellaspunge? Lette him haue his name, and do where thou wilt be lykened vnto me. Let him tell you sayd playnly, thynges that are past, and for to come: yea and that without anye feare or hope. For haue not I euer tolde you drynke, and warned you? Ye can beare me myne yowre selues. Is there anye God except me? or anye maker that I shoulde not knowe hym?

Wherefore all caruers of ydolles are but hayne, and their labour lost. They must be- reorde them selues, that (sayng they can an- swer it ne vnderstande) they shall be confoun- ded. Who shoulde now make a God, or sa- tion an ydoll, that is profitable for nothing? Beholde, all the felowshipp of them shall be brought to confusion. Let all the workma- ners of them come and stande together from amonge men: they must be abashed and con- founded one with an other. The smith taketh syon, and temple it with whetstones, and sacrafeth it with hammers, and maketh it with all the strengthe of his armes: yea low- tyme he is sarkie for beere hunger, and so taryeth that he hath no more power. The carpenter (or ymage caruer) taketh mure of the symble: and spreadeth forth his lyne: he maketh it with some coloure: he playeth it, he ruleth it, and squareth it, and maketh it after the ymage of a man, and accordyng to the beaute of a man: that it maye stande in the temple.

Moreover, he goeth oute to hether doke- Ledyng trees: he bynggeth home Elmes and Oakes, and other symble of the wood. He cutes the fyxe trees whiche be planted byn selfe, and such as the rayne hath swelled, whiche woude serue for men to burne. Of this he maketh and maketh hym selfe with- all: he maketh a fire of it to bake bread, and afterwarde maketh a God therof to be- seth it: and an ydoll to knell before it. One per he burneth in the fyre, with an other be- seth it, that he maye saie roste his beire full: with the thyrde he warmeth himselfe, and sayth: Aha, I am well warmed, I haue ben at the fyre. And of the residue he maketh him a God and an ydoll for hym selfe. He knellecth before it, he worshipeth it, he pray- eth vnto it, and sayth: be mercie for thou art my God.

Yet men myghte confesse ne vnderstande, because theys eyes are stopped, that they can not se: and theys beates, that they cannot perceyue. They ponde not in their myn- des, for they haue neyther knowledge ne vnderstandyng, to thynke thus: I haue burnt one pyre in the fyre: I haue baked bread with the coles therof, I haue rosted fleshe withall, and eaten it: Shall I now fall before a rotten pyre of wood? Shall I fall before a rotten pyre of wood? Shall I fall before a rotten pyre of wood? Shall I fall before a rotten pyre of wood?

without a free conscience to thynke: may not I erre?

Consyde this, O Jacob and Israel, for thou art my seruant. I haue made the, that thou myghtest serue me. O Israel, forget me not. As for thyne offences, I wyll reme- mber the cloudes, and thy synnes as the smoke. Euen the agayue vnto me: O I wyl de- lyure the.

Be glad ye heuens whome the Lorde hath made, lette all that is here beneche vpon the myghte of hym. Reioyce ye mountaynes and woodes, with all the trees that are in you: for the Lorde shall redeeme Jacob, and I wyl geue hym glory vpon Israel. For thus sayeth the Lorde thy redeemer, euen he that hath rayed the from thy mothers wombe: I am the Lorde, whiche do all thynges my selfe alone. I onely haue spreade oute the heuens, and I onely haue layed the foundation of the earth. I haue geue the tokens of my power, and make the shylars goe in yonge. As for the wyte, I turne them backwarde, and make their coun- tyng foloweth.

But I set vp the purpose of my seruants, and fulfill the counsell of my messen- gers. I sape to Jerusalem: curre agayne, and to the cytes of Iuda: be ye buyled a- gayne: and I repaire they decayed places. I sape to the ground: be drye. And I drye up the water founnteynes. I sape to Cyrus: thou art myr herdsman: so that he it all fulfill all thynges after my wyl. I sape to Jerusalem: be thou buyled, and to the temple: be thou founnteyned.

Chap. xliiii. To deliver his church, which he hath redeemed. Foolhardie and halcyon verose I- mages, &c. are contemned.

CAP. XLV.

Thus sayeth the Lorde vnto Cyrus his anoynted, whome he hath chosed by the right hande: that the people maye fall downe before hym: I wyl loke the gyble of kyn- ges: that they shall open the gates before the- se, and not to thut theys doers. I wyl geue before the, and make the crooked straight: I shall bryake the brysten woyses, and burst the iron barres. I shall geue the the hye creature, and the thyrge whiche is secretly kept: that thou mayst knowe that I the God of Israel haue called the by name: and that for Jacob my seruantes sake, and for Israel my cho- sen.

For I called the by thy name, and oheyd- est: and thou euer thou knewest me: Euen I the Lorde, before whome there is none o- ther: for without me there is no God. I haue prepared the, O euer thou knewest me: that I might be knowne from the synge of the hye, to the gorynge downe of the same, that all is nothinge withoute me. For I am the Lorde, and there is elles none. It is I that created the lyght and darknesse: I make pear- shine and trouble: yea euen I the Lorde do all these thynges. The beaues aboute shall droppe downe, and the cloudes shall rayne rightou- tyne.

nelle. The earthe shall open it selfe, and bynge forth the helpe, and thut shall ege- counte thynges. Euen I the Lorde shall bryng it to passe.

Be vnto him that chydeth with his ma- ket, the porter with the porter: and the- se shall ege- counte thynges. Euen I the Lorde shall bryng it to passe. Be vnto him that chydeth with his ma- ket, the porter with the porter: and the- se shall ege- counte thynges. Euen I the Lorde shall bryng it to passe. Be vnto him that chydeth with his ma- ket, the porter with the porter: and the- se shall ege- counte thynges. Euen I the Lorde shall bryng it to passe.

The Lorde hath sayde moynce: The occupiers of Egypt, the marchauntes of the Assyrians and Babylons, shall come vnto the which cyoute, they shall be thynne, they shall folowe the, and go with copenes vpon theys feete. They shall fall downe before the, and make supplication vnto the. For God (with- out whom there is none other God) shall be with the. O how profounde art thou, O God, thou God and saviour of Israel! I am founde- ded bye, and put to dissonance: goe hence together with shame, all ye that be woyme- madders of error: (that is worshippers of y- dols.) But Israel shall be saued in the Lorde, whiche is the euellaspunge saluacion: They shall not come to shame nor confusion, wylde without ende.

For thus sayeth the Lorde: euen he that created heuen, the God that made the earth, that hath rayed it and set it to the: I haue not made it for nought, but I made it to be inga- byted. Euen I the Lorde, without whom there is none other. I haue not spoken secre- ly, neyther in barke places of the earth. It is not for nought, that I saye vnto the seed of Jacob: seke me. I am the Lorde, whiche when I speake, declarer the thynge that is cerytous and true. Let them be ga- thered and come together, let them bryng npe byther that are escaped of the people: haue they anye vnderstandyng that sette vp the stocks of theys ydolles, and praye vnto a God that can not helpe them? Lette men bryng npe, let them come byther, & aske coun- sell one at an other, and I wyl saye to them: What is he, that tolde this before? or who spake of it, euer since the begynnyng? haue not I the Lorde done it: without whom there is none other God? the true God and saviour, and there is elles none but I? And therof couene you vnto me (all ye cades of the earth) shall ye be saued, for I am God, and there is elles none. I sweere by my selfe: oute of my mouth cometh the woide of rightousnesse, and that maye no man toune: but all knees shall bowe vnto me, and all tynge shall sweere by me.

by me, saying: Tarry in the Lorde is my strength and strength. To him shall men come: but all they that sayke stone of him shall be confounded, and the hole side of Israel shall be misused and pressed in the Lorde.

Isaiah is reproved. The holy that cometh by him is prophesied.

CAPL XLVI.

Nethertheless will I fall, and I shall be broken, whose images are a bue then for the bestes and cattell to encircle them, and to make them weep. They shall synke downe, and fall together, for they may not ease them of theyr burthen, therefore must they go in to captivite.

Harken unto me, O house of Jacob, and all ye that remaine yet of the house of Israel, whom I have borne from your wombe, and brought you by from your birth, till ye were grown: I will be like you, I will also nourish you, beate you and laue you. Whome will ye make me like? Ye foolish (no doubt) will take oute silver and golde oute of your purses, and wepe it, and buye a golden image to make a God of it, that men maye knele downe and worship it. Yet must he be taken on mennes shoulders and borne, and set in his place, that he maye stande and not moue. Alas that men should crye vnto him whiche geueth no answer: he deliuereth not the man that callen vpon him from his trouble.

Jeremy. vi. 16

Consider this well and be ashamed. See into your owne selues (O ye eunagates.) Remembre the thynges whiche are past since the begynnyng of the worlde: that I am God, and that there is elies no God, yea and that there is no thyng like vnto me. In the begynnyng of a thyng, I shewe the ende thereof: and I tell before, thynges that are not yet come to passe. With one word is my word accomplished, and fulfilleth all my pleasure. I call a byrd out of the East, and all that I take in hande, oute of farre countreys, as soone as I commaunde, I bringe it thither: as soone as I saye to a deuyll a thyng, I do it.

Heare me, O ye that are of an hye stomacke, but farre from righteinesse, I will bringe forth my righteinesse. It is not far, and my helpe shall not tarye longe awaye. I will laye helpe in Sion, and geue Israel my glorye.

The worde of the Lorde agaynste Babylou.

CAPL XLVII.

But as for the (O daughter, thou bitest Babylon.) Thou shalt see in the quid, thou shalt see vpon the ground, and not in a founte (O thou marthen of Chaldea) Thou shalt see no more be called tender and pleasaunte. Thou shalt be byrged for the the quene and synne meele, put downe the Romarke, make bare thy knees, and shalt make the side the water quene. Thy name shall be discovered, and thy pympes shall be sent. For I will avenge me of the, and no man shall let me, saye oute rebemre, which is called the Lorde of hostes, the holy one of Israel.

Speke thy tongue, and get thee to some darcke corner, O daughter Chaldea, for thou shalt be no more called lady of kingdoms. I was to myghte with my people, that I punished myne iniquite, and gaue them in to thy power. Nethertheless, thou shewdest them no mercy, but even the very aged men of them byddst thou oppresse righteously with your yoke, and thou thoughtest thus: I shall be ladye for ever, and besyde all that, thou hast not regarded these thynges, neyther hast thou feared after. Heare now therefore thou wylfull, that speakest so carrellesse, and speakest thus in thyne heart: I am alone, and without me is there none: I shall neuer be widdow, nor be solate agayne. And yet bothe these thynges shall come to the vpon one daye, in the thyming of an eye: namelye widdowhood and desolation.

Thou shalt myghtily fall vpon the for the multitude of thy wyrtches, and for the grea heape of thy conuersers. For thou hast compassed thy selfe in thyne wyrtches, and hast sayde: No man shall see me. Thyne own wylsome and connyng hath deceyved the. In that thou hast said: I am alone, and without me there is none. Therefore shall trouble come vpon the, and thou shalt not knowe from whence it shall come. Whiche shall fall vpon the, whiche thou shalt not be able to parol. A foderne miste shall come vpon the, and thou shalt be a wast.

Now goe to thy conuersers, and to the multitude of thy wyrtches (whome thou hast ben acquainted withall from thy youth) if they maye helpe the, or strengthen the. Thou shalt saye: I have manye conuersers of harte pytherto, hadde manye conuersers of them: so lette the heuengales, and the bolters of heuens come on now and deliuer me: yea and let them shewe when these newe thynges shall come vpon the. Beholde they shall be lyke strawe, whiche if it be kyndled with fyre, no man maye reede it for the vehemente of the flamb: and yett geueth no spindres to warme a man by, ne cleere fyre to see by. Even so shall they be vnto the, whome thou hast ben used and comforted from thy youth. Euerie one shall shewe the his erroureous waye, yett shall none of them defende the.

The prophesie of the Treces is reproved. The Lorde alone shall be worshipped, whiche shall be seen, and which shall be sought for by the people.

CAPL XLVIII.

But as for the (O daughter, thou bitest Babylon.) Thou shalt see in the quid, thou shalt see vpon the ground, and

Hear this, O thou house of Jacob, ye that are called by the name of Israel, and are come out of one stocke with Iuda, whiche sweare by the name of the Lorde, and saye: we wene by the God of Israel (but not with trouth and right) whiche are called the men of the holy cyrie, as they that loke for comforte to the God of Israel, whose name is the Lorde of hostes.

The thynges that I shewed you euer since the begynnyng. But I not brought them to passe, immediatly as they came oute of my mouth, & declared them? And they are come. Howbeit I knewe that thou arte obstinate, and that thyne necke hath an yron bynde, and that thy browe is of brasse. Nethertheless I shewe thee the begynnyng shewed the of thynges for to come, and declared them vnto the, for thou came to passe, that thou shalt not saye: myne I shall have done it, my hande hath made image hath shewed it. Heare and consider al these thynges whether it was as I prophesied them: But as for me, I tolde the before at the begynnyng, nowe and hereafter, that thou knowest not of. And I shewe thee nowe not of al thynges, but of thynges that thou knowest not of. And I shewe thee before they were brought to passe, that thou canst not saye: I knewe of them. Howbeit there be some thynges that thou shalt heere not knowen, neyther shalt thou be opened vnto thyne eares afore tyme. For I knowe that thou wouldest malicioyslye offende, therefore haue I called the a reuelator, euen from thy mothers wombe.

Nethertheless for my names sake, I haue withheld my wrath, and for myne honours sake I haue overlene the, so that I haue not noted the out. Beholde, I haue purged the, and not for moneye. I haue chosen the in the hye of power. And that only for myne owne sake, for I geue myne honoure to none other, that thou shalt not despise me. Broken vnto me O Jacob, and Israel whome I haue called. I am euen he that is, I am the fyre and the last. My hande is the foundation of the earth, and my right hande spanneth sure the heuens. As soone as I called them they were there. Gather you all together, and bearken: Worke of yonder goddes hath declared thus, that the Lorde will do by the kynge of Babylon (whome he loueth and sauereth) and by the Caldees his arme: I my selfe alone haue tolde you this before. Yea I shall call hym, and bringe hym forth, and geue hym a prosperous iourneye. Come nye, and heare me: haue I spoken any thyng darke since the begynnyng? when a thyng began to be, I am there.

Wherefore the Lorde God with his spirite hath sent me. And thus sayeth the Lorde God thyne avenge, the holy one of Israel: I am the Lorde thy God, which teach the prynces the thynges, and leade the the way, that thou shalt not go. Yet thou wyldest nowe regarde my commaundement, thy welthynges shall be as the water breake, & thy righteinesse as the water flowing in the see. Thy seed shall be like the sande in the see, and the fruite of thy body, lyke the granell bones thereof. Thy name shall not be cutt out, nor destroyed before me. Ye shall go awaye from Babylon, and escape the Caldees with a myghty voyce. This shall be spoken of, declared abrode, and go forth vnto the ende of the worlde, so that it shall be sayde: The Lorde hath defended his seruante Jacob, that they suffered no thur, when they traupled in the wyldernes. He claue the rockes a sunder, and the water gushed oute. As for the vngodlye, they haue no peace, sayeth the Lorde.

Christe shall gather to gyther all nations he theye next to laste.

CAPL XLIX.

Yes, hearken vnto me, and take hede ye people from farre. The Lorde hath called me fro my byrn, and made mention of my name fro my mothers wombe, he hath made my mouth lyke a sharpe swerde, vnder the shadowe of his hande vnto he defended me, & vnto me in his quyer, as a good arrowe, and sayde vnto me: Thou art my seruante Israel, I will be honoured in the. And answered I: I shall leste my labour, I shall spende my strength in vayne. Nethertheless, I will commytte my cause and my worde vnto the Lorde my God. And now sayeth the Lorde: euen he that hath yoked me fro my mothers wombe to be his seruante, that I may bringe Jacob agayne vnto hym, howbeit, I shall not be gathered vnto hym agayne. In whole I shalbe I am grea, whiche also is my Lorde, my God, & my strength. Let it be but a small thyng, that thou arte my seruante, to let vpon the hyarches of Jacob, and to restore the destruction of Israel, yet I make the not alio the lyght of the Gentyles, that thou mayest be my health vnto the ende of the worlde.

Wherefore thus sayeth the Lorde the angylls and holy one of Israel, because of the abhorryng & despying amonge the Gentyles, concerning my seruante of all them that beate rule. Kynge and prynces shall le, and aspe and worship, because of the Lorde that he is faithful, and because of the holy one of Israel, whiche hath chosen the.

And thus sayeth the Lorde: * In the tyme appointed will I be present with the. * And in the house of health will I be the, and deliuer the. I will make the a pledge for the people, so that thou shalt helpe vpon the earth agayne, and chalenge agayne the scattered heuengales. That thou mayest saye to the prynces: goe forth, and to them that are in bachelers: come into the lyght, that they maye see in the hye wayes, and get them lyng in all places. There shall I neuer be hunger nor thurst, beate nor summe burne them. For he that sauereth them, shall leade them, & geue them drynke of the wynges well. I will make wayes vpon all my mountaynes, and my wayes shall be exalted. And beholde, they shall come from farre: so, some from the North and Weste, some from the South. * Kynge ye because,

Roman xi.

Then shall I say: * God hath forsaken me, and the Lord hath forgotten me. Word a wote forget the child of thy womb, and the sonne whom she hath borne? And though she do forget, yet will not I forget the. Behold, I have written the upon my handes, thy walls are ever in my sight. They that have broken the downe, shall make haste to buye the up agayne, and they that made the waste, shall dwell in the. As for thy eyes, take aboute the, all these shall gather them together, and come to the. As truly as I live (saith the Lord): thou shalt put them all upon thee, as an apparell, and gird them to the, as a bryde with her Jewels. As for thy land that is desolate, wasted and despoiled, it shall be to narrow for them, that shall dwell in it. And they that would devour the, shall be made away. Then the child whom she bare shall bring forth unto the, shall rise in thyne ear: this place is to narrow, sit up together, that I may have room. Then shall thou say: Who hath begotten me these? I am barren and alone, a captiv and an outcast: And who hath nourished me up for me? I am desolate and alone, but from whence come these?

And therefore thus saith the Lord God: Behold, I will stretch out myne handes to the Gentiles, and set up my token to the people. They shall bring thee the sunnes in their lappes, and carry thy daughters unto the up the: Woulers. For they shall be thy nurses, and Queens shall be thy nurses. They shall fall before the with their faces flat upon the earth, and say: Up thou that I am the Lord. * And who so putteth his trust in me, shall not be confounded. Who spyleth the gyaunte of his playe? or who taketh the prisoner from the meghty? And therefore thus saith the Lord: The prisoners shall be taken from the gyaunte, & the spyle delivered from the violent, for I will mantere the cause agaynst thine adversaries, & save thy sonnes. And will I see thine enemies with thine owne flimsie, and make them drunk of thine owne blood, as of sweete wyne. And all shall knowe (saith the Lord) that I am the Lord thy Saviour, & strong avenger.

(The Jews are reproved, and also called.

CAP. L.

Thus saith the Lord: Where is the byll of your mothers devorment, that I sent unto her, or who is the blazer, to whom I sold you? Behold, for your own sakes are ye sold, & because of your transgression. Is your mother forsaken? For why wolde no man receyve me, when I came? and why I called, no man gave me an answer.

Was my hand clenched, that it might not helpe? or had I not power to delivere, as a word? I dyne up the sea, and of water fountes I made drye lande, so that fountes of water, the springe and eye of them. As for beaven, I clothe it with darkness, and put a sack upon it.

The Lord God hath given me a well lined tounge, so that I can comfort them which are troubled, yea and that in due season. He waketh mine eare up by tymes in the morning (as the scolemasters do) that I may not berken. The Lord God hath opened mine eare, therefore can I not lase naye, nor much drawe my selfe, but I offer my backe unto the smyters, and my cheere to pnyppers. I turne not my face from shame and spyring, for the Lord God helpe me, therefore shall I not be confounded. I have hardened my face like a stone, for I am sure, that I shall not come to confusion. Myne advocate speaketh for me, who will then go with me to law? Let us stande one agaynst another, it shall be any that will reason with me, let him come here for me. Behold, the Lord God standeth by me, what is he that can overcome me? so, they shall be as an old cloth, which the moths shall eat up.

Therefore thus saith the Lord among you, let hym heare the voice of his lowly. Who so walketh in darkness, and no light shyneth upon hym, let hym hope in the Lord, and holde hym by his God. But take heed, ye have all synned a synne, and synned your selves with the same. ye walk in the waye of your owne synne, and in the waye that ye have synned. This cometh unto you from my hande, name it that ye shall synne so woe.

(Consolation and comforte is promysed unto the saythfull

CAP. LI.

When unto me, ye that holde strength, ye that like the Lord. Take heed unto the stone, whereoute ye are hewn, and to the grane wherout ye are dryged. Consydre Abraham your father, and Isaac that bare you, howe that I called hym alone, prospered hym well, and increased hym, howe the Lord comforted Spon, and repayed all her decaye, making her desolate as a garden, and her wilderness as the garden of the Lord. Mythy and love was ever, her helpe and the voyce of prayer. I will specke unto me then, O my people, and I will thine eare to me, for I have an ordynance. I will go forth to me, to lybhe the Gentiles. It is at hande, that my health and my redemption shall go forth, and the people shall be saved with myne arm.

The Lord (that is the Gentiles) shall hope in me, and put their trust in myne arm. Lift up your eyes towards beaven, and look upon the earth beneath. For the heavens shall banish awaye like smoke, and the earth shall be like a clothe, & they that dwell therein, shall perishe in lyke maner. But my health shall endure for ever, and my redemption shall laste. Therefore hearken unto me, ye that have pleasure in righteousness, thou people that have heard my law in thine heart. Feare not the word of men, be not afraid of the: blasphemers and revynges, for women and women shall eat them up lyke cloth & wool. But my righteousness shall endure for ever, and my saynge shall be from generation to generation. Wake up, wake up, and be strong, O thou arme of the Lord, wake up, lyke as mynes palle, eare and sence the word be- come.

Art thou he, that hath wounded that I have? Lucifer, and between the dragon in pe- rous? Art thou even he, which hath dyed by the depe of the see? which hath made playn the grounde, that the delivred myght go thence? What the redemed of the Lord, which turned agayne, myght come with toyce unto Spon, there to endure for ever? What mythe and gladnesse myght be with them, that joyne and two myght be from them? In I, I am even he, that in all thynges ge- neth you consolation. What arte thou then, that standest a most all man, the child of ma, which gorth awaye as doeth the flower? And forgetteth the Lord that made the, that spread out the heavens, and laye the foundation of the earth. But thou arte eare asprade for the light of thine oppression, which is ready to be borne. Where is the wache of the oppression? It cometh on faste, it maketh thine appaere. It shall not perishe, that it shall be able to destroye, neyther shall it be for feute of noy synge. I am the Lord thy God, that make the see to be dry, and to rage, whose name is the Lord of hosts. I will put my word also in thy mouth, and defende the with the turnynge of my hande, that thou mayest plante the heavens, and laye the foundations of the earth, and saye to Spon: thou arte my people.

Wake, awake, and stande up, O Jerusalem, that thou shalt be free from the hande of the Lord. Take heed unto the cuppe of his wrath, thou that hast supped of, and sucked oute the strong cuppe to the botome. For amonge all the sonnes whom thou hast begotten, there is not one that maye holde the up, & not one to leade the by the hande, of all the sonnes that thou hast begotten. Worke these thynges me happened unto the, but who is for thy? Ye, destruction, wastynge, hunger, & swearde, but who hath rebored the? Thy sonnes lye comfortles at the heade of every strete, lyke a broken temple, and are full of the terrible wrath of the Lord, and punishment of thy God. And therefore thou miserable and down- lyke (howe be it not with wyne.) Heare this: Thus saith the Lord: thy Lord and God, the defender of his people: Behold, I will take the strong cuppe out of thy hande, and the cuppe with the dregges of my wrath, that from hence forth thou shalt never drink & woe, and will putte it in thine hande that trouble the, which have spoken to thy sonnes: downe, that we maye go oute, make thy body eaven with the grounde, and as the strete to go upon.

(A consolation and comforte to the people of God.

CAP. LII.

Vp Spon, take thy strength unto the, put on thine honest rayment, O Jerusalem, thou cytie of the holpe one. For from this tyme forth, there shall no bntum cytel nor unclean person come in the. Shake the from the dust, arise, and stande up, O Jerusalem. Plucke out thy necke from the bonde, O thou captiv daughter Spon. For thus saith the Lord: ye are sold for nought, there fore shall ye be redemed also withoute any money.

For thus hath the Lord sayd: My people turne downe afore tyme in to Egypte, there to be strangers. Afterwarde by the kynge of the Assyrians oppressed them, for naught. And nowe what profit is it to me (saith the Lord) that my people is frelye carryd awaye, and brought in to heuynes by thine rulers, & my name ever still blasphemed? saye the Lord. But that my people maye knowe my name, I my selfe will speache in your eare. Behold, here am I. O howe bewepfull are the face of the Embassadour, that bringeth the message from the mostayne, and prayeth peace, that bringeth the good tidings, and pre- cheth health, and sayth unto Spon: Thy God is the kynge. Thy warrenen shall lyse up theyr voyce, with loud voyce shall they praye of hym, for they shall be hym pnyente, when the Lord shall come agayne to Spon.

Be glad, O thou deniote Jerusalem, and extoyce together, for the Lord will comforte his people, he will delivere Jerusalem. The Lord will make back his drye arme, & show it forth in the sight of all the Gentiles, and all the endes of the earth shall see the saynge health of our God. Awake, awake, get you out from thence, and touch no unclean thing. Go oute from amonge such. And be cleane, ye that beate the breast of the Lord. But ye shall not go out with sedition, nor make vake as they that be awaye, for the Lord shall go before you, and the God of Israel shall kepe the watch.

Behold, my servaunt shall deale myselfe, therefore shall he be magnified, exalted, and greatly honoured. Lyke as the mulier that mondyre upon hym, because his face shall be deformed, and not as a mans face, and he becom lyke no man. Then shall he be the eude of the Gentiles loke unto hym, and the kynge shall say: thou art my brother. For they that have not bene to be or I, shall be hym, and they that have nothing of hym, shall beholde hym.

(The propheth curdently of the passion of our Saviour Jesus Christ.

CAP. LIII.

The booke of Jeremie, and in what tyme he prophesied. He receiveth him selfe and wolde refuse the office of a Prophete, because he is yonge and unexperienced. He is taught of the Lorde, and becommeth bold. God speaketh vnto him, that the destruction of the Jewes, by the Babilonians, is at hand. Jeremie is commaunded to speake the worde of God vnto the Jewes, without feare.

CAP. I.

These are the Sermons of Jeremie the sonne of Jehikiah the Priest, one of them that dwelt at Anathoth in the lande of Beniamin, when the Lorde had spake spoken vnto him, in the tyme of Josiah the sonne of Amon kyng of Juda, in the xiiij. yere of his kyngdome, and so during vnto the tyme of Jehoiakim the sonne of Josiah kyng of Juda, and vntill the xiij. yeres of Zedekiah the sonne of Josiah kyng of Juda were ended, when Jerusalem was take, even in the fyfth moneth. The worde of the Lorde spake thus vnto me: Before I sayed vnto the in thy mothers wombe, I knewe thee, and ordeyned thee, to be a Prophete vnto the people. Then sayde I: Oh Lorde God, I am vnmeete, for I am yet but yonge. And the Lorde answered me thus: Saye not so, I am to yonge. For thou shalt goo to all that I will sende thee vnto, and whatsoeuer I commaunde thee, thou shalt speake. Be not affrayed of the face of man, for I will be with thee, to deliuer thee, sayth the Lorde.

And with that, the Lorde stretched out his hande, and touched my mouth, & sayd moze: Put vnto me: Behold, I put my wordes in thy mouth, and this daye do I set the ouer the people and kyngdomes, that thou shalt tole out, & take of, & destroye, and make waste, and that thou shalt buyde by and plante. After this, the Lorde spake vnto me, sayenge: Jeremie, what seest thou? And I sayde: I see a waspkyng roud. Then sayde the Lorde: Thou hast seene ryght, for I will watch diligently vpon my wordes, to performe it.

Jeremie. lviij. a. It happened afterwarde, that the Lorde spake to me agayne, and sayde: What seest thou? And I sayde: I see a seething pot, loking from out of the North byther ward.

Jeremie. lviij. a. Then sayde I: Lorde vnto me: Out of the North shall come a plage vpon all the dwellers of the lande. For so, I will call all the of fyres of the kyngdomes of the North (sayth the Lorde.) And they shall come, & euery one shall sit by the gates of Jerusalem, & in all theyr wailles rounce about & chorume all the cyties of Juda. And chorume them that I will declare my iudgement, vpon all the wyckednes of those men that haue forsake me, that haue offered vnto straunge goddes and worshipped the workes of theyr owne handes.

And therefore gride by thy loynes, & say: I will tell them all, that I geue the in commaundment. Feare them not, I will not haue the to be affrayed of them. For behold, this daye do I make the a stronge fenced towne, an yrruylle, & a wal of Ale agaynst the hole lande, agaynst the kynges and myghty men of Juda, agaynst the prestes & people of the lande. They shall fight agaynst thee, but they shall not be habile to ouercome the, for I am with thee, to deliuer thee, sayth the Lorde.

God echereth his benefices done vnto the Jewes. Agaynst the Poyntes and Propheies, & pithes that contemne and belpye God. The Jewes are cryed, because they forsake God, and because they canne a hope hurynge after Idoles.

CAP. II.

Moreouer, the worde of the Lorde commaunded me thus: So thy waye, & I in the eares of Jerusalem, and say: Thus sayth the Lorde: I remember the for the kyndnesse of thy youth, & because of thy defak loue, in that thou solowdest me thowore the wilderness, in an dryed lande. Thou Israel wast halowed vnto the Lorde, and so wast his spide feutes. All they that breuened Israel, offended: my fortune fell vpon them, sayth the Lorde. Breake therefore the ment of the Lorde, O thou house of Jacob, and all the generation of the house of Israel. Thus sayth the Lorde vnto you.

What vnfaulshulnesse found your fathers in me, & at theyr want so farre awaye from me, & falling to lyghnesse, & beyng so vayne? Why thought not in theyr heartes: Where haue we left the Lorde, that brought vs out of the lande of Egypt, that led vs thowore the wilderness, thowore a deserte & rough lande, thowore a dyce & a deadly lande, & wherein no man had gone thowore, & wherein no man had dwelt? And when I had brought you to a plesant & welblynd land, that ye might entoye the frutes & all the comodities of the same, ye went forth & despyled my lande, and brought myne heritage to abominacion.

The Priestes them selues sayde not: Where is the Lorde? They that haue the lawe in theyr handes, knowe me not. The Propheies des offende agaynst me. The Propheies do serue vnto Baal, and folowe such thynges as shall bynge them no profit.

Wherefore I am contrayned (sayth the Lorde) to make my cōplaine vpon you, and vpon your chyldren. Go in to the fles of the thim, and loke well, sende vnto Cedar, the diligent hede, and se, whether such thynges be done there. Whether the Enchiries them selues seale so falsly & vntruely with theyr goddes, (which yet are no goddes in deede) & whether theyr people hath geue ouer to theyr goddes, for a thyng that maye not helpe them.

be affonished, & ye heuens, be a strayde and shakid at such a thyng, sayth the Lorde. For my people hath done two cupis. They haue forsaken me the well of water of lyfe, and digged them pites, yea vile and broken pites that holde no water. Is Israel a bonde seruant, or one of the household? Why is he then so spoiled? Why do they roze and crye vpon him as a yon? They haue made his land waste, his cyties are to brent by, that there is no man dwellenge in them. Yea the chylde of Roph and Taphnes haue despyled the niche.

Comment not this vnto the, because thou hast forsaken the Lorde thy God, euer since he ledde the by the waye? And what haue thou nowe to do in the strete of Egypt? to drynche soule water? Etyher what maketh thou in the waye of Assiria? To drynche water of the flouder? Thyne owne wickednesse hath cryed the, and thy turning awaye shall condemne the: that thou mayest knowe and vnderstande howe euill and outfall a thyng it is, that thou hast forsaken the Lorde thy God, and not feared him sayth the Lorde God of hostes.

I haue euer broken thy yoke of olde, and burst thy bondes: yet sayst thou, I will no moze serue, but (sayth an harlot) thou turrest aboute vpon all vye hylls, and amonge all grene trees, where as I planted the oute of noble grapes, and good roces. How art thou turned then in to a bitter, vntrefull, and strange rase? Yea, and that so soze: that though thou walde the with Nitrus, & make thy selfe to sauour with that sweete lincluge herbe of Bouth: yet in my ryght thou art flayed with thy wickednesse, sayth the Lorde thy God.

Saye not nowe: I am not vnclene, and I haue not folowed the Goddes. Loke vpon thyne owne wayes in the woddes, vales, & demes: so shalt thou knowe what thou hast done. Thou arte lyke a swifte & madary that goeth easely his way: and thy wantonnesse is lyke a wyld alle that vserth the wilderness, and that smothered and bloweth at his wyll. Who can tame the? All they that seke the, shall not fynde, but fynde hym in theyr owne badennes. Thou hepest thy fore from nakednesse, and thy shode from thynd, and thinkest thou in thy selfe: tuh, I will take no sorowe, I will loue the straunge goddes, and hange vpon them.

Lyke as a thefe that is taken with the dede cometh to shame, euen so is the house of Israel come to confusion: the comen people, their kynges and rulers, their prestes and prophetes, for they saye to a floke: thou art my father, and to a ston: thou hast begotte me: yea they haue turned their backs vpon me, & not their face.

But in the tyme of their trouble, when they shall stande by and helpe vs, I shall answer them: Where are nowe thy goddes, that thou hast made the? byd them stande by and helpe the in the tyme of neede. For loke how many cyties thou hast. O Juda, so many god-des hast thou also.

Wherefore euen will ye goo to laine with me, seinge ye all are synners agaynst me sayth the Lorde: It is but losse labour, that I saye vnto you, for they re-creyne not my correction. Your owne swerde destroyeth your propheies, lyke a deuoucyng syon. If ye be the people of the Lorde, then harken vnto his voyde: Am I then become a wilderness vnto the people of Israel? or a lande that hath no lygite? Wherefore sayth the my people then: we are fallen of, and we will come no moze vnto the? Dothe a mayden forget her paymente, or a byrde her stomacher? And dothe my people forget me so longe? Why bookest thou thy wayes so hyghly (to obtayne fauoure there trowe) when thou hast yet flayed them with blasphemies?

Vpon thy wynges is founde the bloude of poore and innocent people, and that not in corners and holes onely, but openly in all places. Yet darrest thou saye I am ylle-lesse: Tutte, his wyatye can not come vpon me. Beholde, I will sealeon with thee, because thou darrest saye: I haue not offended. O howe euill wilt it be for the to abyde it: when it shall be knowen howe ofte thou hast gone backwarde?

For thou shalt be confounded as well of Egypte, as of the Assirians: Yea, thou shalt goo thy waye frome them, and singe thyne handes together vpon thy dees: Because the Lorde shall bynge that confidence and hope of the to nought, and thou shalt not prosper withall.

God beynge mercifull, calleth vnto repen-tance his people, whiche he hadde forsaken for theyr hoodedome with poyles. He exhorteth Israel vnto repen-tance, promysinge them shepherdes that shoulde haue the true knowledge of God. The returne of Israel vnto God, & the bynging of theyr ouer.

CAP. III.

III.

Commenly when a man putteth awaye his wyfe, and she goeth frome him and marryeth with an other, then the question is: Sholde he resoynt vnto her any moze after that? Is not this felde then defiled and vnclene? But as for the, thou hast played the harlot with many louers, yet tourne agayne to me sayth the Lorde. Lyst by thyne eyes on euery syde, and loke yf thou be not defiled. Thou hast waied for them in the strets, & as a murebreer in the wilderness. Thou ome thy hoodedome and shameful blasphemies is the lande defiled.

This is the cause, that the rayne and euenynge dewe hath ceased. Thou hast gotten an hoodedome forebeed, and canst not be ashamed. Wilt thou holdst thou saye vnto me: O my father, thou arte be that hast brought me by, and ledde me from my youthe: Wylt thou then put me awaye, and cast me of for euer?

curr? How wilt thou withdrowe thy selfe cleane fro me? How wilt thou speake the wordes, but thou art curst doing worse and worse.

Eye of the Lord sayde also unto me: in the time of Josiah the kynge: Hast thou seen what that wympyngge Israel hath done? howe she hath turren by upon all the bylles and amonge all the hylls trees, and there playe to the harlot? Hast thou seen also (wyt thou hadst bene all this) howe I sayde unto her: that she shoulde turre agayne unto me, and yet she is not returned? Juda that was faythfull syster of hers also sawe this: Name ly that after I hadt well seen the auntye of the wympyngge harlotte Israel, I put her awaye, and gave her a byll of divorcement.

For all this her unfaythfull syster Juda was not ashamed, but went backe and playe ed the vowe also. Yea, and the nyght of her hoodedome hath deyled the hole lande. For she hath committed her auntye with ho- nours and riches.

How wilt thou withdrowe thy selfe Juda is not touned agayne unto me with her hole byll, but sayd: I saye the Lord. And the Lord sayd unto me. The harlotte Israel is more eyghious then the unfaythfull Juda: and therefore goo preache these wordes to- wards the people, and saye: Thou wympyngge Jrael, turre agayne (saye the Lord) and I will not turre my face from you: for I am mercifull, saye the Lord, and I will not alwaye beate displeasure agaynst thee: but on this condition, that thou knowe thy greave bla-phemy: Namely, that thou hadt beene trulye forsaken the Lord thy God, and hadt made thy selfe paste cake of seaunge. Goddes under all gerne trees, but hadt made no wyll to heare my voyce, saye the Lord.

Then shall that be of the house of Juda, shall goo unto the house of Jrael: and they shall come together out of the floure, in to the same land that I have geve you for her.

I have shewed also how I take the byll, being but a child, and gave the a pleasaunt land for chynge her rage: yea, and a goodly host of her: and how I commaunded the that thou shouldest call me father only, and not to myne: for me.

I will like as a woman sepleth her lover, so are ye untraystfull unto me (saye the Lord) saye the Lord. And therefore the voyce of the chylde of Jrael was heard on every hyll, meynge and wappinge: for they have deyled the wyll, and forgotten God saye the Lord.

Oye wympyngge chylde, turre a- gayne (saye the Lord) to me, for thou art the Lord our God: And to that I shall pouce backe myne eyes. The bylles fall, and all the hylls of the mountaynes, but the helthe of Jrael standeth sure upon God our Lord.

Confession hath denouced our fathers laboure frome our routhes by: yea, they wyne and bullockes, they sounde and dugh- ters. So we also lye in our countre on, and shall conuertye us: for we and our fathers from our routhes by unto this daye, have synned agaynst the Lord our God, and have not obeyed the voyce of the Lord our God.

The true repentance of returninge to God, he cryeth in the circumcison of the heart. The de- struction of Jewrye is prophesied, for the cause of theyr heres.

CAP. I.

III.

O Jrael, if thou wilt turre the, then turre unto me, saye the Lord. And if thou wilt put awaye thyne abhomin- ations out of my sight, thou shalt not be mar- ryed: And shalt be my wife. The Lord sayeth: in truth, in equite, and in righteousness: and all peo- ple shall be comfortable and to full of joye for thus saye the Lord, to all Jude and Jerusalem: plow your lande, and sow not amonge the thornes.

Be circumcised in the Lord, and cutte as- waye the foreskynne of your heartes, all ye of Juda, and all the indwellers of Jerusalem: that my indignation bye not out lyke fire, and bynde, so that no man maye quench it, by cause of the wickednesse of your ymagi- nations.

Preache in Juda and Jerusalem: crye out, and saye: blow the trompettes in the lande: crye that every man maye heare, and saye: Ga- ther you together, and we will go in to strong cities. See by the token in Syon, spide you, and make no raryng: for I will byng a great plague, a great affliction, from the North. For the people of the Gentylis is bynked by frome his place, as a lyon out of his denne, so as he maye make the lande waste, and de- stroye the cities, so that a man maye dwell therein. Wherefore gyve some felles aboute with sacke cloth, moune and wepe, in the tribulacion of the Lord that not be with- drawn from you.

At the same tyme (saye the Lord) the herte of the kynge and of the prynces shall be gone, the prestes shall be astonished, and the prophetes shall be as they were as they were. Then saye I: O Lord God, hast thou then dis- cused this people, and Jerusalem, sayinge: ye shall have pear, and now the swerde go- eth downe their lynes? Then shall it be sayd to the people, and to Jerusalem: there cometh a waime wynde frome the North, whiche shall carrye awaye the waye of my people, but neither to us, ne to cleme.

After that there shall come unto me a stronge wynde, and then will I also geue sentence upon them. For so, he cometh downe lyke as a clowde, and his charrettes are lyke a storme wynde: his horsemen are swif- ter then the Eagle. Who unto us, for we are de- stroyed. O Jerusalem, wach thyne herte from wickednesse, that thou mayst be helped. How longe shall thy nopome thoughtes remayne with thee?

For a voyce frome Dan, and from the hyll of Ephraim speaketh oute, and telleth of a delusion. Hold the heathen geue Jerusalem warninge, and preache unto her, that her destructions are comynge frome farre countreys. They tell the cutes of Juda the same also, they shall geue them warninge in every place, lyke as the watchmen in the fildes. For they have psonked me to watch, saye the Lord.

Thy ways and thy thoughtes, have broughte the unto this: this is thyne owne wickednesse and disobedience that hath pos- sessed thyne herte: Ah my bely, ah my bely, (saith the Lord) howe is my bely so sore? my hert panted with me, I can not be still, for I have herd the cryng of the trompettes and peales of warre.

They crye murder upon murder, the hole lande shall perlyshe. I immediately my ten- its were destroyed, and my hangynges in the towching of an eye. How longe shall I se the tokens of warre, and heare the noyse of the trompettes.

How wilt thou, this shall come upon them, How wilt thou my people is become foolyshe, and have utterly no understandinge. They are the chylde of follynesse, and without anye discernion. To be cull, they have not prough: but to no wel, they have no wysdome. I have loked upon the earth: and se, it is waste and voyde. I loked towarde heuen, and it had no wyne.

I behelde the mountaynes and they seem- ed, and all the bylles were in a feare. I lo- ked aboute me, and there was no bodye, and all the bydes of the ayre were awaye. I mar- velled well, and the plowed felde was become waste: yea at their cities were broken downe at the presence of the Lord, and indignation of his wrath.

For thus both the Lord saye: The hole land shall be desolate, yet will I not then have done. And therefore let the erth moune, and let the heuen be soye aboute: for the thynge that I have purposed and taken upon me to do, shall not repent me, and I will not go fro it. The hole lande shall lie for nyght of home men and women: they shall run in to denes in the woodes, and clyme by the stony rocks. All the cities shall be voyde, and no man dwell- ynge therein.

What wilt thou now do, thou beinge de- stroyed? For though thou closted thy selfe in sceler, and decked the with golde: though thou painted thy self with colours, yet shalt thou turre thy self in bayne.

For those that hitherto have ben thy great fauourers shall abhorre thee, and goo aboute to see thee. For (me thynke) I heare a noyse, lyke as it were a woman traupynge, or one labouryng of her byll: Euen the voyce of the daughter Sion, that calleth out her armes, and sayeth, sayinge: Ah, who is me, how soe vexed and saynt is my herte, for the that are slayne?

In Jewrye is there no eyghious or faythfull man founde, eyther amonge the people, or the ru- lars, for whole sake the Lord shoulde spare the cype: wherfore Jewrye is destroyed of the Ang- lians.

CAP. I.

Like thou wast Jerusalem: beholde and se: Heketh thoume her streets also with- in, yf ye can fynde one man that dothe equalland eyghte, or that labourerth to be faythfull: and I will spare him (saye the Lord). For though they can saye: the Lord lyeth, yet to they swore to discreue: Where as thou (O Lord) lokedst onely upon saythe and cruche.

Than hast scourged them, but they toke no repentance: thou hast correcte the for amend- ment, but they refused thy correction. They made theyr faces harder then a stone, and wolde not amende.

Therfore I thoughte in my selfe: perad- venture they are so simple and foolyshe, that they vnderstande nothyng of the Lordes waye, and iudgements of our God. Ther- fore will I goo vnto their heedes and ru- lers, and talke with them: yf they knowe the waye of the Lord, and the iudgements of our God. But these (in the manner) have broken the yoke, and burst the bandes in sonder.

Wherfore a lyon out of the wood shall hurt them, and a wolfe in the eucynge shall de- stroye them. The cat of the mountayne shall lyke lynchage by their cities, to reave in peca- all them that come therout. For theyr offen- ces are manye, and theyr departinge awaye is greute. Shoulde I then for all this haue mercye upon the? Thy chylde haue forsa- ken me, and sworn by them that are no gods. And albeit they were bounde to me in marriage, yet they sell to aduourts, and ha- ted harlottes houses.

In the office of blindness I will they are become like the stone house, every man neyeth at his neighbour's wyse: Whyde I not correct this sayth the Lorde?

Jer. xlii. c.

Sholde I not be aneaged of every people, that is lyke unto this? I lyne by upon the walls beate them downe, but destroye them not utterly: cut of their branches, because they are not the Lorde. For unfaithfully hath the house of Israel and Juda forsaken me, sayth the Lorde. They have deuid the Lorde, and sayde: it is not he. Tuffe, there shall no misfortune come upon us: we shall seneyther swerde nor hunger. As for the warning of the Prophetes, they take it but for wynde: yea there is none of these, which will tell them, that such thynges shall happen vnto them.

Wherefore thus sayth the Lorde God of hostes: because ye speake such wordes: behold: The wordes that are in thy mouth will I turne to fire, and make the people to be wood, that I may consume them.

So, I will vyngue a people vpon you from farre, a house of Israel (sayth the Lorde) a myghty people, an olde people, a people whose spryng thou knowest not, neither knowest thou what they saye. They are come as soderne deathe: for they shall be as deere graunted. This people shall eate vpon the fence and the meate: yea they shall devour thy sonnes and thy daughters, thy wyfe and thy bullockes.

They shall eate vpon the grapes and figges. As for thy stronge and well tensed cyr, wherein thou vpperdest thine, they shall destroye them with the swerde. Neuer sholdest thou I will not haue doone with you, sayth the Lorde. But yet they saye: Wherefore dothe the Lorde our God all this vnto vs?

Jer. xlii. b.

Then answered them: because that lyke as ye haue forsaken me, and serued strange goddes in your owne lande: euen so shall ye serue other goddes at o: a strange land. Preache this vnto the house of Jacob, and crite it oute in Iuda, and saye thus: Behold this (thou despisest and vndereste people) * ye haue eyes, but ye see not: eares haue ye, but ye heare not.

Jer. vi. b. 30. xlii. c.

Peace ye not me, sayth the Lorde? Am ye not ashamed to loke me in the face? while ye brende the see with the lande, so that it can not passe his boundes: for thoughte it rage, yet can it no noyng, and thoughte the waters thereof do swell, yet may they not go out.

But this people hath a false and obdurate herte, they are departed and gone awaye from me. They thynke not in theyr heartes: O let vs seare the Lorde our God that syneth vs euen as we are late, when nebe is: whyche heperth euen vnto the harted for vs pelye.

Neuertheless your mydes haue founde these frame you, and your spynnes haue rubbed you hereof. For amonge my people are founde wyched persons, that pynple lape snare, and wayle for men, to take them and destroye them. And lyke as a net is full of byrdes, so are they houses full of that which they haue gotten with falschete and discrey.

Hereof cometh their greute subyctyng and rebelle: hereof are they fatte and bellye, and are euen awaye fro me with shamefull blasphemys. They myghte not the lawe, they make no ende of the fatherles cause, they iudge not the poore accordeyng to equitye.

Shulde I not punyssh these thynges, sayth the Lorde? Sholde I be auenged of all such people as these be? Worthy and greuous thynges are done in the lande.

The Prophetes teache falsely, and the prestes folowe them, and my people haue pleasure therein. What will come therof at the last?

The spynnes for which Ierusalem is emptye: the uncircumcised eares. Conetoulnesse. Druy. The Lorde reuengeth the late synes of the Jewes. The compassyng of the Babylonians is pynnyshed agayne.

CAP. VI.

Come forth of Ierusalem, ye strong childe of Beniamin: blow vpon the trumpettes ye Reuites, let vpon a toke vnto Bethcarem, for a plage and a greute miste bursteth out from the North.

I will lyken the daughter of Syon to a sapie and tender woman, & to her shall come the myghednes with theyr flockes. Her sentes shall they pryche counde aboute her, and euerye one shall fede them that are vnder his hande. Make battayle agaynst her (shall they saye.) Arise, let vs go up, while it is yet daye.

Alas, the daye goeth awaye, and the myghte shadowes fall as woe: Arise, let vs go by by night, and destroye her strong holdes: for thus haue the Lorde of hostes commaunded.

Howe downe her trees, and let vpon byrds wyche agaynst Ierusalem. This is the cyte that made be punished, for in her wall is crueltie. Lyke as a Condyte aboundeth in water, euen so this cyte aboundeth in wychednesse. Robbereye and vnyghtyousnes is herde in her, lawe and woundes are cut there in my syght. Amende the, O Ierusalem, lest I withdrow my hert from the, and make the desolate: and the land also, that no man dwel in it. For thus sayth the Lorde of hostes: The residue of Israel shall be gathered as the remnant of grapes.

And therefore couene thyne hande agayne in to the basket, lyke the grape gatherer. But vnto whom shall I speake, whom shall I warne, that he maye take hede? Theyr eares are so vncircumcised, that they maye not heare.

Beholde, they take þ word of God but for a storye.

same, and haue no lust thereto. And therefore I am full of indignacyon, O Lorde, that I maye haue no longer. Shede out thy wythe vpon my synners that are withoute, and vpon all pynne men.

Yea the man muste be taken prysoner with the wyche, and the aged with the creple. Their houses with their landes and wyues shall be turned into straungers, when I stretche out my hande vpon the inhabitants of this lande, sayth the Lorde. For from the last, vnto the mooste, they hange all vpon conetoulnesse: and from the Prophete vnto the prest, they goo all aboute with falschete and lyes.

And besyde that, they heale the hurte of my people with sweete wordes, sayinge: pearce, woe there is no pear at all. Therefore they muste be ashamed, for they haue committed abhominacyon. But howe shoulde they be ashamed, when they knowe nothing, neither of shame, nor of good nourtoure? And therefore they shall fall amonge the sayne: and in the houre when I shall byrde them, they shall be brought downe, sayth the Lorde.

Thus sayth the Lorde: goo in to the streets, conseyde and make inquisition for the olde way, and yf it be the good and right waye: then goo therein, that ye maye fynde rest for your soules. But they saye: we will not walke therein, and I will set watche men vpon you, and therefore take heed vnto the waye of the trumpet: But they saye: we will not take hede. Heare therefore ye Gentyles, and thou congregation whiche knowe, what I haue deuyded for them. Heare thou earth also: beholde, I will cause a plage come vpon this people, euen the feute of their own imaginations.

For they haue not bene obedient vnto my voyces, and to my lawe, but abhorred them. Therefore vyngue ye me intente frome Sabbe, and sweete smellynge Calamus frome faire countreys: Your burne offerynges displease me, and I reioyse not in your sacrificies.

And therefore thus sayth the Lorde: behold, I will make this people fall, and there shall fall from amonge them the father with the chyldren, one neyghboure shall perlyshe with an other.

Howe thus sayth the Lorde: Beholde there shall come a people from the North, and a great people shall arise from the endes of the earth, with bowes and with darters shall they be weapened: It is a roughe and scarce people, an vnumerfull people: theyr voyce shall lyke the see, theyr cyde vpon hoyses shall appoynted to the battayle agaynst the, O daughter Syon.

Then shall this crye be hearde: Oure synnes are feble, heynesse and sorowe is come vpon vs, as vpon a woman traueyng with chyld. No man goo southe in to the feild, no man come vpon the hye hille: for the swerde and feare of the enemye shall be in everye spede.

Wherefore gyde a sacke clothe aboute the (O thou daughter of my people) synnyche thy selfe with ashes, mourne and wepe bitterly, as vpon thy onely beloued sonne: For the destroyer shall suddenlye fall vpon vs. The haue I see for a prouer of my hard people, to seke out, and to trye theyr wayes. For they are all vnfaithfull and fallen awaye, they hange vpon synful lyce, they are cleue brasse and yron, for they hurte and destroye euerye man. The bellous are brente in the fire, the lead is consumed, the melter melteth in bayne, for the cupil is not taken awaye from them. Wherefore shall they be called noughtye synners, because the Lorde hath cald them oute.

Ieremye is commaunded to shewe vnto the people the word of God, whiche trusteth in the outwardes of the temple, that helpeth nothinge. The cupil that shall happen to the Jewes for the despyng of theyr prophetes. Sarys: pss both not the Lorde chesly requyre of the Jewes, but that they shoulde obey his wordes. Cophet.

CAP. VII.

These are the wordes that God spake vnto Ieremye: Stande vnder the gates of the Lorde house, and crye out these wordes there with a loude voyce, and saye: Heare the word of the Lorde all ye of Iuda that go in at this doore, to honour the Lorde. Thus sayth the Lorde of hostes, the God of Israel. Amende your wayes and your countelles, and I will lette you dwelle in this place. Trust not in false lyenge wordes, sayinge: here is the temple of the Lorde, here is the temple of the Lorde, here is the temple of the Lorde.

Jer. xlii. d.

* For yf ye will amende your wayes and counsels, yf ye will iudge ryghte betwyxe a man and his neyghboure: yf ye will not oppresse the straunger, the fatherlesse and the wydowe: yf ye will not wedde innocent blood in this place: yf ye will not cleue to strange goddes to your owne destruction: then will I let you dwell in this place: yea, in the land that I gaue afore tyme vnto your fathers for euer.

Jer. xlii. e. Jer. xlii. f. Jer. xlii. g. Jer. xlii. h.

But take hede, ye trust in countelles that begyle you, and do ye no good. For when ye haue sullen, murdered, committed aduoutrye, and peruerse: When ye haue offred vnto Baal, folowynge strange and vknown goddes: When come ye, and stande before me in this house, (whiche hath my name gyuen vnto it) and saye: Tuffe we are absolved quyre, thoughte we haue doone all these abhominacions.

So to my place in * Jer. xlii. l. oh, wherunto I gaue my name afore tyme, and loke well what I byd to the same place for the wychednesse of my people of Israel.

And

grace, and byngge for the sente. They boode much of the, yet dost thou not punish them.
But thou Lord (to whom I am well knowe) thou that hast sente, and proued my heart, take them away, lyke as a flocke is caried to the slaughter house, and appoynt them for þe daye of slaughter.

How long shall the lande mouene, and all the herbes of the felde perishe, for the wickednesse of them that dwell therein?

The castell and the byrdes are gone, yet they say: cuse, God wyll not destroye vs bitterly.

Bringe thou arte werye in runnyng with the fote men, how wyll thou then run with horses? In a peaceable sure lande thou maist be safe, but how wyll thou do in the furious pyrde of Joridane? for thy byrthen and thy hyned haue all together deliuid the, and cruel oute vpon the in thyne absence. Silene them not, though they speake saye words to the. As for me (saye I) I haue forsaken myne owne dwellinge place, and lefte myne heritage. My lyfe also that I loued so well, haue I giuen in to the handis of myne en-mies. Myne heritage is become vnto me, as a lyon in the wod. It crieth out vpon me, there fore haue I forsaken it. Myne heritage is vnto me, as a spychid byrde, a tyde of dyuers colours is vpon it. So letre and gather all þe berbes of the felde together, that they maye eate it vp.

Thy herbenem haue broken downe my vinegarde, and troden vpon myn porcion.
Of my pleasant porcion, they haue made a wyldeste. They haue sayde it was: and knowe that it is made, it is gherly vnto me.
Yea, the hole lande lyeth waste, and no man regardeth it.

The destroyers come ouer the heeth euer waye, for the swerde of the Lorde shall consume from the one ende of the land to the other, and no fleshe shall haue rest. They shall sow where, and reape thornes. They shall take heritage in possession, but it shall do them no good. And ye shall be confounded of your owne winnynge, because of the greates wiche of the Lorde.

Thus sayeth the Lorde vpon all myne enlyghenours, that laye hande on myne heritage, whiche I haue giuen my people of Israel: Beholde, I wyll plucke them (namely Israel) oute of the lande, and put out the house of Iuda frome them. And when I haue rooted them oute, I wyll be at one with them agayne, and wyll haue mercye vpon them: and byngge them agayne (euerye man to his owne heritage, and in to his lande.

And yf they (namely that trouble my people) wyll lerne the wayes of them to wrye by my name: The Lorde lyeth lyke as they lerned my people to wrye by Baal: then shall they be techened among my people. But yf they wyll not obeye, then wyll I rote out the same folke, and destroye them sayeth the Lorde.

The destruction of the Jewes is perswaded, and they sparynge aboute. Why Israel was re-ceyued to be the people of God, and why they were forsaken.

XIII

Moreouer, thus said the Lorde vnto me:
Go thy way and get the alyen byrde, and gyde it aboute thy lognes, and let it not be wryt. When I got me a byrde, according to the commaundment of the Lorde, and put it aboute my lognes. After this the Lorde spake vnto me agayne: Take þe byrde that thou hast prepared, aboute the, and get the byrde, and goo vnto Euphrates, and byde it in a hole of the rocke. So wente I, and byde it, as the Lorde commaunded me. And it happened longe after this, that the Lorde spake vnto me: Arise, and get the byrde to Euphrates, and set the byrde thence, whiche I commaunded the to byde there. Then wente I to Euphrates, and bygged vp, and toke þe byrde from the place wher I had byde it: & beholde the byrde was corrupte, so that it was pre-surable for nothinge.

Then sayd the Lorde vnto me: thus sayeth the Lorde: euen so wyll I corrupte the pyrde of Iuda, and the haunte mynde of Jerusalem.
This people is a wycked people, they wyll not heare my word, they folowe the wicked fynallations of theyr owne heart, and brenge vpon straunge goddes: they haue theyr seruice and worshipped: and therefore they shall be as this byrde that serued for no-thinge.

For as trayly as a byrde lyeth vpon a mans lognes, so trayly dyd I bynde the hole house of Israel, and the hole house of Iuda vnto me, sayeth the Lorde: that they might be my people: that they might haue a glorious name: that they might be in honour: but they wolde not obeye me. Therefore sayeth the Lorde God of Israel: Every pot shall be shiled with wyne. And they shall saye: thou shaltellest us we knowe not that euerye pot shall be fylled with wyne? Then shall the Lorde: Beholde, I shall fylle all the inhabitants of this lande with drunkennesse, the kynge that lyeth vpon Dauids stole, the priedes and prophetes, & all that dwell at Jerusalem. And I wyll set them one against an other, yea the fathers against the sonnes, sayeth the Lorde.

I wyll not pardon them, I wyll not spare them: ne haue pitye vpon them: but I destroye them. Be obedient, gve care, take no dyspayne at it, for it is the Lorde him self that speaketh: Honour the Lorde your God heren, or he take his lyght from you, and or euer your feete stumbe in daunce, neesse at the byll: lech when ye loke for the darkenesse of death. But yf ye wyll not heare me, that gve you secretes warninge, I wyll moune from my hole byrde, for your subbounesse.

pured

pyrde wyll I wepe, and the teares shall gulle oute of myne eyes. For the Lorde shall be caried awaye prisoners.
All the kynge, and the rulers: Humble your selves, lette you downe to me: for the croune of your glorie shall fall from your head. The ctyes towarde the south shall be shut vp, no man shall open the. And Iuda shall be caried awaye prisoners, so that none shall remain.

Left up your eyes and beholde them that come from the North: Lyke a fat docke wall they shall vpon the. To whome wyll you make the more, when they come vpon you? for they haue taughte them the selfe, & made them makers ouer the. Shall not we come vpon the, as on a woman tearepylge with wyll? And yf thou woldest saye this in myne heart. Wherefore come these thynges vpon me? Euen so: the multitude of thy dial pemies, shall thy byrdes partes and thy teere be consumed.

For like as the man of Iude maye change his hynde, and the cat of the mountayne her spottes: so maye ye that be exceded in euyl, be good. Therefore wyll I scatter you, lyke as the stubble that is taken awaye with the South wynde. This shall be your porcion, and the porcion of your meature, wyer with ye shall be rewarded of me, sayeth the Lorde: by an eye haue I forgotten me, and put your teare in dysceitfull thynges. Therefore shall I tume the clothes ouer thy heed, and dis-couer thy thynges, that thy priuityes maye be seene, thy adoucery, thy weole malice, thy brutynesse and thy shamefull hoodedome.
For vpon the felde and hylls I haue seene thy abhominations. Woe be vnto the (O Jerusalem) when wyll thou euer be clenched any more?

Of the death that shoulde come in Ieremye. The plur of the people, at hyngge merce of the Lorde.
The unfaithfull people are not hearde. Of prayer, savage, and of false prophetes that dysceue the people.

XIII

The worde of the Lorde felwed vnto Jeremye, concerninge the death of the fentes. Iuda shall moune: men shall not goo moche moze thowhe his gates: the lande shall be no more had in regarde, & the cye of Jerusalem shall breake out. The son-nes shall sende theyr seruautes to seeche water, and when they come to the welles, they shall fynde no water, but shall carie theyr bottles home emptye. They shall be ashamed and confounded, and shall couer their heedes.
For the ground shall be drien vp, because there cometh no rayne vpon it. The plowmen also shall be ashamed, and shall couer their hee-des. The byrdes shall forsake the pong lawne that be bynggeth forth in the felde, because there shall be no grasse. The byrde alse shall stand in the moles, and spawe in their wynde lyke the dragons, their eyes shall laye so, want of grasse.

Wondreth our owne wyckednesse rewarde. Is not our Lord to thou according to thy name, thou go our transgressions and synnes be made. For thou art the comfort and helpe of Ierael in the tyme of trouble. Why wyll thou be as a stranger in the land, and as one that goeth oute of the felde, and cometh in onely to tynny for a night? Why, wilt thou make thy selfe a coward, and as it were a ypanne that yet maye not helpe? For thou art ours (O Lorde) and we beate thy name, therefore solue vs not.

Then spake the Lorde, concerninge this people, that haue pleasure to go to synnys, with their fite, and leaue not of, and theyr displeat the Lorde: in so much that he wil not byng agayne to remembre all their mis-does, and puny all their synnes. Yea, euen thus sayd the Lorde vnto me: Thou shalt not praye to oo this people good. For though they call, I wyll not heare theyr prayers. And though they offer burnt offerings and sacrifices, yet wil I not accepte them. For I wil deuoye them with the swerde, hunger and pe-silence. Then answered I: O Lorde God, þe prophetes saye vnto me: Thus, ye shall be no more, and no longer shall come vpon you, but the Lorde shall gve you continual teke in this place.

And the Lorde sayde vnto me: The Prophetes preache lyes vnto them in my name.
I haue not spoken with them, neither haue
I giuen any charge, neither dyd I sende them:
yet they preache vnto you false visions, confynge, vanitie, and vncertaintye of theyr owne verres: Therefore thus sayeth the Lorde As for those prophetes that preache in my name (whom I neuer helde haue not sent) and that saye: Thus, there shall neither be warre nor hunger in this land: theyr swerde and with hunger shall those prophetes pe-rysh, and the people to whom they haue preached, shall be cast out of Jerusalem, dye of hunger, and be slayne with the swerde (and there shall be no man to burye them) boche they and theyr wyues, theyr sonnes and theyr daughters. For thus wyll I pouer their wyckednesse vpon them. This shalt thou saye also vnto them: Myne eyes shall wepe without ceasinge, daye and nyght. For my people shall be destroyed with great harme, and shall perishe with a great plage, for if I goo in to the felde: so, it lyeth all tyme of daye men: Yf I come in to the ctye: so, they be all sauaged of hunger.

Yea, the prophetes also and priedes shall be led in to an unknowne land.

Haste thou then bitterly forsaken Iuda?
(sayd I) Dost thou so abhorre Sion? Dost thou so plaged vs, that we can be healed no more? We looked for praye, and yet cometh no good, for the tyme of helthe: and so, here is no chynge but trouble. We knowe (O Lorde) all our myfoedes, and the synnes of oure fathers, that we haue offennd the. We not displeasid (O Lorde) for thy names sake, for

forget not thy forynge kynnesse: Remember the throne of thyne honoure, breake not the covenant that thou had made with vs. Are there anye amonge the Geddies of the Papyms, that send rayne, or greeue the founteyns of heauen? Dost thou it, O Lorde oure God, in whom we trust? Yea Lorde, thou dost all these thynges.

The Lorde will not heare Moses or Aaron, yet they praye for the people, but will wype them in manye wynges. The cause of suche greate myse-ryes.

CAPL.

XV.

Then spake the Lorde vnto me, and said: Though Moses and Samuel stand before me, yet have I no vertue to this people. Dyrue them awaye, that they maye get out of my synne. And yet they saye vnto me: Why shal we go, then tell them: The Lorde spake vnto this answere: Some vnto beate, some to the sword, some to honoure, some to captiuitie. For I will bypunge isure ylliges vpon the, sayth the Lorde. The sword shall strangle them, the dogges shall deuoure them, the fowles of the ayre, and beestes of the carth shall eate them vp, and destroye them. I will scatle them aboute as io, in al kynngdomes and landes to be plagued, by cause of synnes the sonne of Esau shall beynge of iuda, for the thynges that he ope in Jerusalem.

Who shall then haue pittie vpon the, O Jerusalem? Who shall be sope for the? Who shall make intercession to ouerprate for the: sitting thou goest to me, and couerest backewate, sayth the Lorde? Therefore I will stretche out myne hande agayn the, to destroye the, and I will not be entecated. I will scatle the asioide with the fenne on euerye syde of the lande, I will waste my people and destroye them, for they haue had no luffe to turne: from their owne wayes. I will make their wyddowes moore in nombre then the landes of the see.

Upon the mothers of theyr chyldren, I will bypunge a destroyer in the noone daye. Soderly and vnmwares shal I sende a feate vpon theyr cryes. Soe that haue borne seuen chyldren shall haue none, her hert shal be full of sorowe.

The sunne shall fayle her in the cleere daye, when she shall be confounded and saynt for verye hynnesse. As for those that remayne, I will deliue them vnto the sword or their enemies, sayth the Lorde. O mother, alas that euer thou diddest beare me, an enemye hated at the hole lande: Though I neuer sente ne receyued vpon bluz, yet all men speake euill vpon me.

And the Lorde answered me: Rede not I the then vnto good: Come not I to the when thou art in trouble, and helpe the whiche enemye oppresseth the? Dost thou hurt an other, or ouer me all that cometh frome the North another? As for your righte treasure, I will geue them oute in to a pray, not for anye money, but by cause of all your synnes that ye haue done in all your coses. And I will bypunge you with your enemies in to a lande that ye knowe not: for the fye that is kindled in my indignacion, shal burne you vp.

O Lorde (sayde I then) thou knowest all thynges, therefore remember me, and blyss me, deliue me from my persecuters: Receyue my cause in thy longe wyathe, yet thou knowest that for thy sake I suffer rebuke. When I had founde thy wordes, I ate them by grede: they haue made my herte ioyfull & glad, for I cal vpon thy name, O Lorde God of Israel. I dwell not amonge the scoyners, neither in my delite therein: but I dwell onely in the feare of thy hand, for thou hast filled me with byternes. What my beuities endure for tyme: Let my plagis then be great, that they maye neuer be healed? Wilt thou be as a water fall, and can not continue?

Upon these wordes, thus sayde the Lorde vnto me: Yt thou wilt turne agayne, I will set the in my secrete: and yet thou wilt take oute the thyng that is precious frome the bryll. thou shalt be euen as myne stone mouthe. They shall conuerse vnto the, but turne not about vnto them: so shall I make the a strong wall of oyle agayn this people. They shall spght agayn the, but they shall not prynciple. For I myselfe will be with the to helpe the, and deliue the sayth the Lorde. And I will ryde the oute of the handes of the wycked, and deliue the oute of the handes of captiuites.

The propheth the misery of the Jewes. He sayth that the wyllyngnes of Idols and the contempt of Gods lawe is the cause of there misery. He propheth the captiuitie of Babilon: and the deliuerance from thence agayne. The calling of the Gentiles.

CAPL.

XVI.

Moreouer thus sayde the Lorde vnto me: Thou shalt take the no myse, ne beggete chyldren in this place: for of the chyldren that are borne in this place, of theyr mothers that haue borne them, and of theyr fathers that haue begotten them in this lande, thus sayth the Lorde: They shall dye an horrible death, no man shall moune for them, ne burye them: but they shall lye as donge vpon the carth. They shall preynt the sword and the sword shall beate them, and theyr bodies shall be meate for the fowles of the ayre, and beestes of the carth. Agayne, thus sayth the Lorde: So not vnto them, that come together for to moune and wepe: for I haue taken my pleasure frome this people (sayth the Lorde) for my fauour and my mercy. And in this land shall they dye, and theyr bones shall not be buried: no man shall bewaile, no man shall crye of them selfe for them.

Thou

There shall not one bypyle an other, to moune with them for their deed, or to comfort them. One shall not office an other the cuppe of consolacion, to forget theyr beuities for father and mother. Thou shalt not go in to their seale house, to set downe, much lesse to eate or bynke with them. For thus sayth the Lorde of hostes the God of Israel: Be holie, I shall take awaye oute of this place, the voyce of mythe and gladnesse, the voyce of the bypynge and of the bypynge: yea and that in your dayes, that ye maye see it.

Now when thou shewest this people all these wordes, and they say vnto the: What hath the Lorde deuised all this greate plage for vs? What is the offence and syn that we haue done agaynste the Lorde oure God? Then make thou them this answere: Because your fathers haue forsaken me (sayth the Lorde) I haue cleued vnto strange goddes, whom they haue honoured and worshipped: but me haue they forsaken, and haue not kept my lawe. And ye with your synnes full blaspheemes, haue exceded the wyckednes of your fathers. For euerye one of you soloweth the frowarde and euill ymaginacion of his per, and is not obedient vnto me.

Therefore will I caste you oute of this lande, into a lande that ye and your fathers knowe not: and there shal ye serue strange goddes daye and nyght, euer will I shewe you no fauour. Beholde therefore (sayth the Lorde) the dayes are come, that it shall no more be sayde: The Lorde lyueth, whiche broughte the chyldren of Israel oute of the lande of Egypt: but, it shall be sayde, the Lorde lyueth, that broughte the chyldren of Israel from the North, and from al landes wher I had scattered them. For I will bring them agayne in to the lande, that I haue byn to their fathers.

Woulde (sayth the Lorde) I will sende manye spyers to take them, and after that will I sende out manye hunters to hute them oute, to come al mountaynes and hylls and oute of the caues of stones. For myne eyes beholde all their wayes, and they can not be hid from my face, neither can theyr wycked dedes be hid frome me. But I will bynke and I will iustly reward the their synfull blaspheemes & synnes, wherwith they haue despyed my lande: Namely with theyr synful iools and abgomyrnacions, wherwith they haue fylled myne heritage, O Lorde, my strength, my power, and refuge in tyme of trouble. The Gentiles shall come vnto the, from the endes of the world, and saye: Surely oure fathers haue cleued vnto lyes, theyr Idols are but vapour and vnyonnable. How can a man make those his goddes, whiche are not able to be goddes. And therefore I will ones teache them, sayth the Lorde, I will shewe them my hande and my power, that they maye knowe that my name is the Lorde.

The frowardnesse of the Jewes. Cursed be those that put their confydence in man, and those blessed that trust to God. Whannes hert is wycked. God is the searcher of the hert. The lypynge waters are forsaken. The halowynge of the Sabbath is com- manded.

CAPL.

XVII.

Youre synne (O ye of the tribe of iuda) is written in the table of your hertes, and grauen so vpon the edges of your alters with a penne of yron and with an adamant clawe: that your chyldren also maye thinke vpon your alters, woodes, thicke trees, hygge bylles, mountaynes and felles. wherfore I will make all your substance and treasure be spoyled, for the greate synne that ye haue done vpon your hygge places thowout all the coastes of your lande. Ye shall be caste oute also frome the heritage, that I gaue you. And I will subdue you vnder the buy bonage of your enemies, in a lande that ye knowe not. For ye haue mynyshed fye to my indignacion, whiche shall burne euermore. Thus sayth the Lorde: Cursed be the man that putteth his trust in man and that taketh stipe for his arme: and he, whose herte deparet frome the Lorde. He shal be lyke the hyeth, that groweth in the wyldernes. As for the good thyng that is for to come, I shal not see it: but dwell in a drye place of the wyldernes, in a fast and vnoccupied labe. O blessed is the man, that putteth his trust in the Lorde, and whose hope is the Lorde him selfe. For he shall be as a tree, that is planted by the water syde: whiche shal beareth oute the roote vnto mynnesse, whome the heate can not harme, when it cometh, but his leaues are greene. And though there growe but lytle cruce because of drythe, yet is he not carefull but he neuer leaueh of to byng sayde cruce. Amonge all thynges lypynge, man hath the most discreffull and vnleschable herte.

Who shall then knowe it? Euen I the Lorde searche out the gounde of the herte, and tepe the reynes, and rewarde euery man accordynge to his wayes, and accordynge to the frute of his counsels.

The discreffull maketh a nest, but byngeth forth no young: he cometh by riches but not ryghtously. In the myddes of his life muste he leaue them behynde him, and at the last he founde a verye foole. But thou (O Lorde) whose throne is moore glozious, excellent and of moore antiquyte, whiche dwelleth in the place of oure holy rest: Thou arte the comforte of Israel. All they that forsake the, shall be confounded: all they that departe from the, shall be written in earthe, for they haue forsaken the Lorde the verye condyte of the waters of lyfe.

Heale me, O Lorde, and I shall be hole: saue thou me, and I shall be saued, for thou arte my prayse. Beholde, these men saye vnto me: Where is the worde of the Lorde? Let it come. Where as I neuerthelesse lypynge art he in whom I hope, when I am in perill.

Let my persecuters be confounded, but not me: let them be affrayde, and not me. Thou shalt bringe vpon them the tyme of their plage, and shalt destroy them right soze.

Agayne, thus hath the Lorde sayde vnto me: So and stande vnder the gate, where goeth the people and the knynges of Iuda go out and in, yea vnder all the gates of Jerusalem, and say vnto them: Place the word of the Lorde, re knynges of Iuda, and all thou people of Iuda, and all ye chiefes of Jerusalem, that go thowre this gate: Thus saie the Lorde commaundeth: Take heed for your lives, that ye carpe no burthen vpon you in the Sabbath, so bringe it thowre the gates of Jerusalem: ye shall beate no burthen alio sue of your houses in the Sabbath. Ye shall do no labour therein, but haue the Sabbath, as I commaunded your fathers.
How be it they obeyed me not, neither hekened they vnto me: but were obstinate and subbume, and neither obeyed me, nor recey-ued my correction. Therefore, I will heare me (saith the Lorde) and beate no burthen in the tyme thowre this gate vpon the Sabbath: If ye will haue the Sabbath, so that ye do no worke therein: euen that I will go thowre the gates of this city, highes and pylons, that shall be vpon the house of David: They shall be carryed vpon charrettes and vpon horses, bothe in the day and they pylons. Yea whole Iuda and all the chiefes of Jerusalem that go here thowre, and this city shall eue be the more and more inhabited. There shall come men also from the cities of Iuda, from aboute Jerusalem, and from the land of Benjamin, from the plaine feldes, from the mountaynes and from the wyldeynes: whiche shall bringe burnt offerynges, sacrifices, oblations, and incense, and offre thancheisprynge in the house of the Lorde. But ye will not be obedient vnto me, to haue the Sabbath, so that ye will beate your burthens thowre the gates of Jerusalem vpon the Sabbath: Then shall I set fyre vpon the gates of Jerusalem, and it shall burne vpon the houses of Iuda, and no man shall be able to quench it.

God sheweth by the example of a potter, that it is in his power to destroye the decessors of his worde, and to helpe them again when they amend.
The conspiracye of the Jewes against Jeremie.
His prayer against his aduersaries.

CAPL XVIII.

This is an other communycation, that God had with Jeremie, sayinge: Arise, and go downe in to the potters house,
and there shall I tell the more of my mynde.
Nowe when I came to the potters house

I founde him makinge his whike vpon a wheel. The vessel that the potters make of claye, brake among his handes: So he be-ganne a newe, and made an other vessel, ac-cordinge to his mynde. Then sayde the Lorde thus vnto me: Woe not I do with you, as this potters doth. Ye house of Israel, saye the Lorde: Weholoe, ye house of Israel: ye are in my hand, euen as the claye in the potters hande.

When I take in hande to rote out, to destroye, or to waste awaye any people or kingdome: if that people (agaynst whome I haue thus decessed) conuerthe from their iniquities: I immediately, I repene of the plage that I decessed to bringe vpon them. Agayne when I take in hande, to destroye, or to plante a people or a kyngdome: if the same people do euill before me, and heare not my voice: I immediately, I repene of the good, that I decessed to do to them.

Speake nowe therefore vnto hole Iuda, and to them that dwell at Jerusalem: Thus saye the Lorde: Beholde, I am bringinge a plage vpon you, and am takinge a thynge hauy agayn you.

Therefore let euery man turne from his euill waye, take vpon you the thinge that is good, and be right. But they say: No more of this, we will followe our owne wayes, nacions, and do euery man accordinge to the wyldeynes of his owne mynde.

Therefore thus saye the Lorde: Aske mouge the weathers, if any man herde euill hoirpol. saynges, as the daughter of Syon hath done. What not the snowe that melted vpon the howe rocks of Libanus? mouge the felces? Or maye the springes of waters be so grauen away, that they runne no more grue inopellence, as maketh fruitfull? But my people hath forgotten me, that they shall make iniquities vnto vayne goodes. And whyle they toloued their owne wayes, they are come out of the waye they are in, and gone to a fore waye not bled to be roben. Where thowre they haue broughte their lande into an euill tynge of wyldeynes and iniquities: so that wyldeynes shall be as a waye, and they shall be as a waye, and wags they heade. Whyle saie wynter will I ca. let them, before they enemies. And when they distruction shall I will turne my backe vpon them, but not my face. Then saye they: come, let vs ym-gyn some tynge agaynst this Jeremie. Yea this doo euen the prestes, to whom the lawe was committed: the Senatours, that were the wyse: an. the Propheces whiche were not the word of God. Come, saye they: let vs cut oute his tynge, and let vs not re-garde his wordes. Conspyre me, O Lorde, I heare the voyce of myne enemies. Do they not recompence euill for good, when they argue a pyt for my soule? Remember, I praye that I shode before the, to speake for thyng, and to roune awaye thy wrath from them.

Therefore let their children be of wyldenes, and let them be oppresse with the sword.
Let their wyues be robbed of their children.

and become wydowes: let their husbandes be slayne, let their yonge men be kylled with the swerde in the felde. Let their wyfe be broughte out of their houses, when I murder commeth suddenly vpon them: for they haue digged a pit to take me, and layed snares for my feete. Yet Lorde, thou knowest all their counsell, that they haue decessed to slaye me.
And therefore forgive them not their wycked-nes, and let not their synne be put out of thy sight: but let them be iudged before the as the gyfte: This shalt thou do vnto them in the tyme of thy indignation.

The prophesyeth the destruction of Jerusalem, for contempt and despyllinge of the worde of God,

CAPL XIX.

Moreouer, thus saye the Lorde vnto Jeremie: So the waye, and by the anthen pitchers, and bringe forth the Amatours, and these prestes into the valley of the chyldren of Beniamin, which lyeth before the port that is made of byrche, and thyme them there the wordes, that I shall tell the,
and say thus vnto them: Here are the wordes of the Lorde, re knynges of Iuda, and ye chiefes of Jerusalem: Thus saye the Lorde of Ido-his the God of Israel: Beholde, I will bring suche a plage vpon this place, that the eares of all that heare it, shall glowe. And that because they haue forsake me, and vobalowed this place, and haue offered in it vnto strange gobbes: whome neither they, thele fathers, ne the knynges of Iuda haue knowne. They haue fylled this place also with the bloude of innocentes, for they haue set by an altar vnto Baal, to burne their chyldre for a burnt offeryng vnto Baal, whiche I neither commaunded, ne charged them, ne they thought ours therevpon.

Beholde therefore, the tyme commeth (saith the Lorde) that this place shall no more be called Topheth, ne the valley of the chyldren of Beniamin, but the valley of slaughter. For in this place will I slaye the Senatours of Iuda and Jerusalem, and kill them downe with the swerde in the sight of their enne-mies, and of them that seeke their lyues. And their dead carcases will I geue to be meate for the foules of the ayre, and beastes of the felde. And I will make this city so desolate, and despyll: that who so goeth thereby, shall be affrayed and ielle vpon her, because of al her plagys.

I will fede them also with the flesh of their sonnes and their daughters. Yea euery one shall eate vp an other in the besyginge of Ierusalem, wherewith their enemies (that seeke their lyues) shall kepe them in. And the pryncer shall thou breake in the sight of the men, that shall be with the, and sape vnto them: Thus saye the Lorde of Hostes: euen so will I destroye this people and city: as a potters vessel that can not be made hole agayne.

In Topheth shall they be buried, for they shall haue none other place. This will I do vnto this place also, saye the Lorde, and to them that dwell therein: Yea I will doo to this city, as vnto Topheth: for the houses of Jerusalem and the houses of the knynges of Iuda are defiled, like as Topheth because of all the houses, in whose parlours they byd sacrifice vnto all the hostes of heauen, and poured out synke offerynges vnto strange gobbes. And so Jeremie came from Topheth where the Lorde had sent him to prophesy to them in the court of the house of the Lorde and spake to all the people: Thus saye the Lorde of Hostes the God of Israel: Beholde, I will bringe vpon this city and vpon eue-ry towne about it, al the plagys that I haue decessed agayn them: for they haue bene obstinate, and wolde not obeye my wordes.

Jeremie is shipten and caste in to prison, for preachynge of the worde of God. The prophesyeth the captiuitie of Babylon. He complayneth that he is a mockynge stocke, for the worde of God. He is compelled by the pryete to preache the worde, wyl he wyl he no.

CAPL XX.

When Phasur the preste, the sonne of Merem, chere in the house of the Lorde, where Jeremie preache so steadfastly: he smote Jeremie, and put him in the stocks, that are by the byrgate of Beniamin, in the house of the Lorde. The next daye solomonysse broughte Jeremie out of the stocks agayne. Then saye Jeremie vnto him: The Lorde shall cal the no more Phasur (that is excellent and increasynge) but Phas-gor (that is fearefull and affrayed) euen wynter. For thus saye the Lorde: beholde, I will make the affrayed, the the selfe, and all that fauoure the: whiche shall prey the with the swerde of their enemies, euen before thy face.

And I will geue hole Iuda vnder the power of the knyng of Babylon, whiche shall carpe some vnto Babylon pylons, and slay some with the swerde. Moreover, all the substance of this lande, all their petyous and gorgeous wythes, all collynes, and all the treasure of the knynges of Iuda: will I geue into the handes of their enemies whiche shall spoyle them, and carpe them vnto Babylon. But as for the (Phasur) thou shalt be carryed vnto Babylon with al thine householde, and to Babylon shalt thou come where thou shalt dye, and be buried: thou and al thy fauourers, to whom thou hast pre-chyd lyes. O Lorde, thou makest me weak, but thou reftest me, and makest me strong agayne. All the daye longe am I despyll and laughed to scoyne of euery man: because I haue now preached long agaynst malicious tyranny, and shewed them of destruction. For the whiche cause they cast the worde of the Lorde in my tecth, and take me euer to the word.

woide.

Wherefore, I thought from hence forth not to speake of him, ne to preache any more in his name. But the woide of the Lord was a very burninge fyre in my heart and in my bones, whiche when I wolde have stopped I myght not. For wher I verbe so many reproches and blasphemies, yea even of mine owne companions, and of iude as twice cosanguine with me: whiche went aboute, to make me afraied, sayinge: vpon him, let vs go vpon him, to teare hym, and make him holde his tange: that we may ouercom him and be auenged of him.

Jer. xlii. b

But the Lord stode by my me, lyke a myghty gaunte: whiche my persecutours fel, and coude do nothinge. Ther shalbe iore confused, for they haue done vniuersally, they shal haue an euerydayng shame. And now, O Lord of Hostes, thou righteous iudge: whiche thou knowest all reynes and the very hertes) let me se them punyshed, for vnto the I com-myte my cause.

Jeremy. xlii. d

Spynge vnto the Lord and prayse hym, for he hath deliuered the soule of the opres-sed, from the hande of the violent. Cursed be the capte, wherin I was bounde: vnhappye be the daye wherin my mother brought me forth. Cursed be the man, that brought me father & wyfe, to make him glad, sayinge thou hast gotten a sonne. Let it happen vnto that man, as to the cities whiche the Lord turned vpright downe (when he had heare longe the wicked remouers of them) because he slewe me not, as lone as I came oute of my mothers wombe, and because my mother was not my geaue her selfe, that she byrde might not haue come out, but remayned vnto in her. Wherfore came I forth of my mothers wombe? To haue experience of laboure and sorowe: and to lede my lyfe with shame?

Job. xlii. a

The prophesyeth that zedekiah shall be taken, and the cytye ouerthrew.

CAPL

XXI.

These are the wordes that the Lord spake vnto Jeremy what tyme as king Zedekiah sent vnto him Ihabazur the sonne of Belchiah, and Sophoniah the son of Maaiab preake, sayinge: Aske counsell at the Lord (we praye the) of oure behalf, for Nabuchodonosor the kynge of Babylon besieged vs, if the Lord (peradventure) will heale with vs, according to his mercifull power, and take hym from vs.

Then spake Jeremy vnto Zedekiah this anwere. Thus sayth the Lord God of Israel: beholde, I will turne bakke the weapons, that ye haue in youre handes, wherwith ye fyghte agaynste the kynge of Babylon and the Aloues, whiche besiege you round about the walles, and I will byrge the re-mouers into the myddell of this cytye, and I my selfe will fyghe agaynste you, with an outstretched hande, and with a myghty arme, in great displeasure and terrible iudgement: and will smyte them, that dwell in this cytye: yea both men and cattell shall dye of the pestilence.

And after this (sayth the Lord) I will belyue Zedekiah the kynge of Iuda and his seruauntes, his people (and such as are fled into the cytye, from the persyence, swarte, and hunger) into the power of Nabuchodonosor kynge of Babylon: yea in is the han-des of their enemyes, in to the handes of those that folowe vpon their lyues, whiche shall smyte them with the swerde: they shal not petye them, they shal not spare them, they shal haue no mercy vpon them.

And vnto this people thou wylt saye:
Thus sayth the Lord: Beholde, I laye toye you the waye of lyfe and deathe. Whiche abyscheth in this cytye, shall persyche: cyther with the swerde, with hunger, or with pestilence. But who so goeth out to haue on the Chaldees parte, that besiege us, he shall save his lyfe, and shal wyne his soule for a pray.
For I haue set my face agaynste this cytye (sayth the Lord) to plage it, and to doe it no good. It must be gyven in to the handes of the kynge of Babylon, and be bynt with fyre.

And vnto the house of the kynge of Iuda, saye thus: Heare the woide of the Lord: O thou house of David (for thus sayth the Lord) Wherfore egyptifye you selfe, and that house, dis-lyue the oppressed from violent power: as euer my receyble wyche byrde oute lyke a fyre, and burne so, that no man maye quench it, because of the wychednesse of your ymaginations. Beholde, (sayth the Lord) I will come vpon you, that dwell in the valleys, tuckes and feldes, and say: Why: woe will make vs arraped? or who will come in to our houses? For I will byrge you (sayth the Lord) because of the wychednesse of your imagination, and will kyndle fire a fyre in pouere wood, as shall consume all, that is about you.

The exhorteth the kynge of Iuda to iudgement and egyptifyng. wher Ierusalem is brought into captivitye. The death of Seltan the sonne of Iuda is prophesied.

XXII.

Thus sayth the Lord also: So wylt I into the house of the kynge of Iuda, & spake these wordes, and saye: Heare the woide of the Lord, thou kynge of Iuda that lyest in the kynge lyte of De-uid: thou and thy seruantes and thy people that go in and oute at this gate. Thus sayth the Lord God of Israel: kepe you selfe and your conferres, deliuer the oppressed from the power of the violent: do not geue ne opprethe straunger, the fatherlesse ne the widowe and there no innocent bloude in this place.

And yf ye kepe these wordes faithfully then shall there come in at the towe of this house kynge to sit vpon Dauides seate: and shall be carryed in charrettes and shal be bynboyes, both they and their seruantes, and thy people. But yf ye wyl not be obedient vnto these commaundementes, I wyl by mine owne selfe (sayth the Lord) this house shall be made. For thus haue the Lord spoken vnto the kynge house of Iuda: Thou arte the head, as Salaad is in Ierusalem: What wylt thou laye of it, yf I make the not so head (and thy cities also) that no man shall dwell therein? I wyl prepare a destroyer with his weapons for the, to helpe downe thy high wall, and to cast them in the fyre.

And all the people that go by this cytye, shall speake one to another: wherfore hath the Lord done thus vnto this noble cytye?
Then shal be answered: because they haue broken the couenaunt of the Lord they God, and haue worshipped strange goddess. Houtne nor oute the deede, and be not wofull for them, but be soye for him that be parted away: for he cometh not agayne and seeth his native countrey no more. For thus sayth the Lord, as touching Seluan the sonne of Josiah kynge of Iuda, whiche was after his father, and is carryed oute of this place: he shall neuer come hyther a-gayne, for he shal dye in the place, wherunto he is led captiue, & shal se this lande no more.
Woe wyche him, that buyrdeth his house with vnyghthouse, and his parlours with the good that he hath gotten by violence: whiche neuer recompensed his neyghbours labour, ne payeth him his hyre. he thynketh in him selfe: I wyl buyrde me a wyche house and goryous parlours: he cansteth wyndedo to be between them, and the selynge & gaules maketh he of Leode, and payneth him Zedekiah. Thynkest thou to raigne vnto that prouoked me to wyche with the Leodes?

Did not thy father eate and drynke, and prosper well, as longe as he dwelt with equity and vnyghthouse? Yea when he helped the oppressed & payed to the, & right them prospered he well.

From whence came this, but onely because he had me before his eyes, sayth the Lord.
Fleethes, as for thynge eyes and thynge teeth, they loke vpon conscioussesse, to shed innocent bloude, to do wronge and violence.
And therefore thus sayth the Lord agaynste Ierusalem, the sonne of Josiah kynge of Juda: They shal not mourne for him (as they were to) alas brother, alas sister: neither shal they saye vnto him: Alas sy, alas for that noble prince. But as an alle shal be byr-ged, corrupt and be caste without the gates of Ierusalem.

Clymme by the hyl of Ierusalem (O thou daughter Zion) lyfte vp thy voyce vpon Balaan, cry from all partes: for al the louners are distressed. I gaue the warnynge, whyle thou wast yet in prosperite. But thou say-est: I wyl not heare. And this manner haue thou used from thy youth, that thou wouldest neuer heare my voyce. All thy herdmen shall be byrden with the wynde, and thy deynges shall be carryed awaye into captiuite: Then shalte thou be broughte to shame and confusyon, because of all thy wyckednesse: thou that dwellest vpon Ierusalem, and makest thy nest in the Cedre trees. O how greate shall thy mourninge be, when thy sorowes come vpon the, as a woman traueylng with chylde?

As truelye as I lyue (sayth the Lord)
Though Conaniah the sonne of Iehozabab kynge of Iuda were the signet of my righte hande, yet wyl I plucke him of: And I wyl geue the into the power of them that seke to slaye the, and into the power of them that thou fearest: in to the power of Nabuchodonosor the kynge of Babylon, and in to the power of the Calders. Moreover, I wyl sende the, and thy mother that bare the, in to a strange lande, where ye were not borne and there shall ye dye. But as for the lande that ye wyl desire to retorne vnto, ye shall neuer come at it agayne. This man Conaniah shal be lyke an ymage robbed and toyme in peces, whiche pleasech no man, for all his apparell. Wherfore both he and his sere shal be sent awaye, and cast out into a lande, that they knowe not.

O thou earthe, earthe, earthe: heare the woide of the Lord: Wylt thou this man among the outlawes, for no prosperite shall this man haue all his lyfe long. Neither shall any of his sere be so happye, as to set vpon the seate of David, and to deare rule in Iuda,

The speaketh agaynste euill curates that make ha-uoke of the shepe of the Lord. Of the connectyon of the remnant of the Jewes to the sayth. The commyng of the true shepherde Chyph is prophesied.
Agaynste false prophetes. When a prophet preachech the woide of God, God connecteth the heres of the hearers. Agaynste prophetes that preache lyer under the name of God. The myracles of false prophetes.

CAPL

XXIII.

Woe vnto the shepherdes, that destroye and scatter my flocke, sayth the Lord.
Wherfore, this is the commaundement of the Lord God of Israel, vnto a shepherdes that fede my people: Ye scatter and chace out my flocke, and loke not vpon them. Therfore now wyl I vylt the wickednesse of your ymaginations, sayth the Lord: And wyl gather to gyther the remnant of my flocke from all landes that I had bygyuen them vnto, and wyl byrge them agayne to their pastures, that they maye geowe and increase. I wyl set shepherdes also ouer them, whiche shall fede them: They shal no more feare and drede, for there shall none of them be lost, sayth the Lord. Beholde, the tyme cometh, sayth the Lord, that I wyl rayse vp the ryghteous braynche of David, whiche shal beare rule, and discuss matters with wysedome, and shal set by equyte and rightous-nesse a gayne in earth.

In his tyme shall Iuda be saved and Ierusalem shall dwell without feare. And this is the name that they shall call hym: even the Lord our righteous maker. And therefore beholde, the tyme cometh, sayth the Lord, that I shall no more be sayd: the Lord lyeth, which brought the children of Israel out of the lande of Egypt: But the Lord lyeth, which brought forth, and led the seed of the house of Israel, out of the North land, and from all countreys where I had scattered them and they shall dwell in their owne lande agayne.

By herce breaketh in my bodie, because of the false prophetes, all my bones wake: I am become like a broken man (that by the reason of myne can take no rest) for very feare of the Lord, and of his holy wordes: Because the land is full of adulterers, where whoremongers is increased and murtherers, and the pleasant pastures of the field are dried up. Yea the waye that men take, is trodden, and the good maner is notynge like the holy word of the Lord. For the prophetes have perverted their words, as they have loved to lie, and their wickedness have I found in my house, sayth the Lord. Wherefore, their way shall be slippery in the darkness, where in they may sturke and fall. For I will bring a plague upon them, even the plague of the vengeance, sayth the Lord. I have sent forth among the prophetes of Samaria, that they preached to Baal, and out of my people of Israel.

I have sent also among the prophetes of Jerusalem foule adulterers, and presumptuous men. They take the word of the Lord in vain, they have despised his name, so that they can not returne from their wickednes. All these with their cruelties are unto me, as Sodome, and as the inhabitants of Gomorrah.

Therefore thus sayth the Lord of Hostes concerning the prophetes: Beholde, I will send them with foxes, and make them digge the water of gall. For from the prophetes of Jerusalem is the sickness of Egypte come into all the lande.

And therefore the Lord of Hostes giueth you this warning: heare not the wordes of the prophetes, that preach unto you, and deceyve you: for they speake the meaning of their owne heart, and not out of the mouth of the Lord. They saye unto them, that aspeake me: The Lord hath spoken: Thus, ye shall prosper right well. And unto all them, that walke after the lust of their owne heart, they saye: Thus, there shall no misfortune happen you. For who hath gotten in the countreil of the Lord, that he hath herbe and understandeth, what he is about to doo: Who hath marked his tyme, as he doth? Beholde, the Lord my weether of the North (that is, his indignation) shall go forth, and shall fall downe upon the head of the wicked, and the wrath of the Lord shall not turne agayne, till he performe and fulfill the thought of his heart. And in the latter dayes ye shall knowe his meanynge.

I have not sent these prophetes (sayth the Lord) and yet they ranne. I have not spoken to them, and yet they pitched. But if they hadde continued in my counsell and herde my wordes: they had turned my people from their euill wayes and wretched imaginations. Am I then God that seeth but the chynge, which is nyghe at hande, and not that is farr off? sayth the Lord. Wherefore man wyl he himselfe so, that I shall not se him sayth the Lord. Do not I fulfill heauen and earth? sayth the Lord. I have herde well enough, what the prophetes saye, that preache lyes in my name, sayng: I have dreamed, I have dreamed. How longe will this continue in the prophetes herces, to tell lyes, to preache the crafty subtilty of their owne heart? Whose purpose is (with the dreames that every one tell) to make my people forgette my name, as their fore fathers dyd, when Baal came by. The prophet that hath a dream, let him tell it: and he that understandeth my word, let him speake it sayth the Lord.

For what hath chaffe and wheat to do together? sayth the Lord. Is not my word like a fyre, sayth the Lord, and like an hammer, that breaketh the harde stone? Therefore thus sayth the Lord: Beholde, I will upon the prophetes, that steale my wordes, as they come out of my mouth. Beholde, here am I (sayth the Lord) agaynst the prophetes, that take upon their tongues to speake: The Lord hath sayd. Beholde, here am I (sayth the Lord) agaynst those prophetes, that darre prophesie lyes, and disceyue my people with their vanities, & my iacles, where I neuer sent, ne commaunded them. Therefore shall I do this people greates harme, sayth the Lord.

If this people, either any prophet or pious aske me, and saye: what is the burthen of the Lord? Thou shalt saye unto them: What burthen? Therefore will I call you from me (sayth the Lord) because ye are a burthen. And the prophet, that speaketh of this burthen, shall be called the burthen of the Lord, sayth the Lord.

But thus shall ye saye, carrye out to another: What aduise hath the Lord giuen? what is the Lordes commaundment? And as for the burthen of the Lord: ye shall speake no more of it: for euery mans owne word is his burthen, because ye haue altered the wordes of the hyppocrite God the Lord of Hostes our God.

Thus shall euery man saye to the prophetes: what aduise hath the Lord giuen the Lord? what sayth the Lord? And not ones to name the burthen of the Lord. Therefore thus sayth the Lord: For so moche as ye haue bled this terme (the burthen of the Lord) where as I not withstandinge sent unto you and forbade you to speake of the Lordes burthen.

Beholde therefore I will repute you as a burthen, and will cast you out of my presence: yea and the city also, that I gaue you a pious fathers: and will bring you to an euilllasting confusion, and in to such a shame as shall neuer be forgotten.

The vision of the two panniers of fygges. The first vision signifieth, that parte of the people should be brought agayne from captiuitie. The seconde, that Gedechias and the rest of the people should be destroyed.

The Lord shewed me a vision: Beholde there were two maundes of fygges before the temple of the Lord, after that Nabuchodonosor kynge of Babylon had led awaye captiue Iechonah the sonne of Iosiah kynge of Iuda, the myghty men also of Iuda, with the woyle maisters, and companye of Ierusalem unto Babylon. In the one maunde were very good fygges, even like as those that be first ripe. In the other maunde were verye naughtye fygges, which myghte not be eaten, they were so euill. Then sayde the Lord unto me: What seest thou Jeremy? I sayde: fygges, wherof some be very good, and some so euill, that no man maye eat them.

Then came the word of the Lord unto me, after this maner: Thus sayth the Lord the God of Israel: I like as thou knowest the good fygges, so shall I knowe the men that are good, whom I haue sent out of this lande to the lande of the Chaldees, for their profyte: and I will set myne eyes upon the same, for I will bringe them agayne into this lande: I will buye them up, and will breake them downe: I will plant them, and will roote them out. And I will geue them a herce, to knowe howe that I am the Lord. They shall be my people, and I will be their God, for they shall returne unto me in their whole herce.

And like as thou knowest the naughtye fygges, which maye not be eaten, they are so euill: Even so will I (sayth the Lord) let Gedechias the kynge of Iuda, (ye and all his wyues, and the residue of Ierusalem that remaine out in this lande, and them also that dwell in Egypt) to be vexed and plagued in all kyngdomes and landes. And will make them to be a reprove, a comon by word, as I haue sayd: I will scattere them. I will sende the sword, hongre, and pestilence amonge them, untill I haue cleane consumed them out of the lande that I gaue unto them and their fathers.

Jeremy propheseth, that they shall be in captiuitie the forty and ten yeres, because they contemned and despised the wordes of God. He sheweth that in the forty and ten yeres, the Babylonians should be destroyed. The destruction of all persons is prophesied. The mouth the preachers of the wordes to waylynge.

A Sermon that was gyuen unto Jeremye, upon all the people of Iuda. In the fourthe yere of Iosiah kynge of Iuda, that was in the fyfthe yere of Nabuchodonosor kynge of Babylon. Whiche sermon Jeremye the prophet made vnto all the people of Iuda, and to all the inhabitants of Ierusalem on this maner.

From the thirtieth yere of Iosiah the son of Amos kynge of Iuda, vnto this presente daye (that is euentye and thirtieth yere) the word of the Lord hath ben committed vnto me. And so I haue spoken to you, I haue ryfen by earlye, I haue gyuen you warninge in season, but ye wolde not heare me. Though the Lord hath sente his seruantes, all the prophetes vnto you in season: Yet wolde ye not obeye, ye wolde not encline youre eares to heare.

We sayd: Iourne agayne euery man frome his euill waye, and from your wicked synagations, and so shall ye dwell to euerye in the lande, that the Lord promysed you and your forefathers: and go not vnto strange goddes, serue them not, worshippe them not, and angre me not with the woikes of youre handes: then will not I punyssh you. Nevertheless, ye wolde not heare me (sayth the Lord) but haue refused me with the woikes of youre handes, to youre owne greates harme.

Wherefore thus sayth the Lord of Hostes: because ye haue not hearkened vnto my word: so, I will sende out and call for all the people that dwell in the North, sayth the Lord, and will prepare Nabuchodonosor the kynge of Babylon my seruante, and will bringe them upon this lande, and upon all that dwell therein, and vpon all the people that are aboute them, and will utterly roote them out. I will make of them a wilderness, a morrhage, and a continuall deserte.

Moreover, I will take frome them the hope of gladnesse and solace, the voyce of the byrdynome and the byrde, the voyce of the anoynted, with the cressettes: and this hole lande shall become a wilderness, and they shall serue the sayd people, and the kynge of Babylon the forty yeres and ten. When the thye score and foure yeres are expyed, I will visite also the wickednesse of the kynge of Babylon and his people, sayth the Lord: yea and the lande of the Chaldees, and will make it a perpetual wilderness, and will fulfill all my wordes vpon that lande, which I haue deuysed agaynst it: yea, all that is wyrtten in this booke, which Jeremye hath prophesied of all people: so that they also shall be subdued vnto diuers nations & great kynges, for I will acquyte eorum according to their deits and woikes of their owne handes.

For thus hath the Lord God of Israel spoken vnto me: Take this wyne cup of indignation

Ignation from my hand, that thou maid cause all the people to whom I sende the, for to digne of it: that when they have broken thereof, they may be mad and out of their wits, when the sword commeth, that I will sende amonge them. When take I the cuppe from the Lordes hand, and made all the people, digne thereof, unto whom the Lord had sent me.

C But spake the Lord of Jerusalem, and all the cities of Juda, their kinges and princes: to make them desolate, waste, despised and cursed, as it is come to passe this daye. Yea, and Pharas king of Egypte, his seruantes, his princes, and his people all together one with another, and all kinges of the lande of Egipt, all kinges of the Philistines lande, Aitalon: Azab, Accaron and the rest of Aitol, the Edomites, the Moabites, and the Ammonites, all the kinges of Tyus and Sidon: the kinges of the Jites, beyonde the see: Deban, Thema, Koz, and the Maues Imactites: all the kinges of Acabpe, and (generallye) all the kinges that dwell in the wilderness: all the kinges of Zamri, all the kinges of Elam, all the kinges of Medes, all kinges toward the North, farre of nye, curye one with his neyghbours: Yea, all the kingdomes that are vpon the vult earthe. The kinge of Syrach, sayde he, shall digne with them also.

J And say thou vnto them: This is the commandement of the Lord of hostes the God of Israel: Digne and be digne, spewe and fall that ye neuer rise: and that thow the sword, whiche I will sende amonge you. But ye saye ye will not receyue the cuppe of the hande, and digne it, then tell them: Thus saith the Lord of hostes the God of Israel: Digne it ye shall, and that shortly. For lo, I begin to plage the cite that my name is vpon it: I thynke ye then, that I will haue you unpunished? Ye shall not scape. For why, I call for a sword vpon all the inhabitants of the earth, sayth the Lord of hostes.

J Therefore tell them all these wordes, and saye vnto them: The Lord shall crye from aboute, and let his voyce be heard from his holy dwelling place. With a greace noyse shall he crye from his countreygall. He shall be a greace voyce (like the grape gatherers) and the sounde thereof shall be heard vnto the ends of the world. For the Lord hath a iudgement to geue vpon all people, and will holde his court of iudice with all flache and purghe the vngodly, sayth the Lord.

J For thus sayth the Lord of hostes: Se-horde, a mycrable plage shall come frome one people to another, and a greace noyse shall crye frome all the ends of the earthe. And the same daye shall the Lord be iustified, and the same daye shall the Lord be iustified. There shall no lamentation be made for anye of them, none gathered vp, none buried: but shall be as dung vpon the earth.

Remene, o ye shepherdes, and crye: for the flocke: for the time of your slaughter is fulfilled, and ye shall fall like the bestels comynge made for plecture.

The shepherdes shall have no waye to fle, and the rammes of the flocke shall not escape. Then shall the shepherdes crye horribly, and the rammes of the flocke shall mourne: for the Lord shall consume them pasture, and theyr bestel felde shall be desolate, by cause of the horrible wyathe of the Lord. They shall forsake theyr foldes, like as a lion. For theyr landes shall be waste, because of the wyathe of the destroyer, and because of his ferefull indignation.

Jeremye moneth the people to amendement. He is taken of the Prophetes and Praelles, and brought to iudgement. He beinge accused before the Praelles, answereth: that he had preached only the wordes of God. The rulers and the people be-lyue Jeremye, against the wordes of the Praelles and Prophetes: after the example of Esaias, whiche had deuyred Sathias, that had preached the same thynges that Jeremye had preached. Thus the Prophete is tyld of Joakim, contrary to the will of God.

CAPL XXVI.

In the begynnyng of the reygne of Joakim the son of Josias king of Juda, came this worde from the Lord, saying: Thus sayth the Lord: Stande in the countrey of the North, and speake vnto all thym whiche (oute of the cistes of Juda) come to do worshipp in the Norths house, all the wordes that I commaunde the to saye. Take thou hepe not one worde backe, ye (peraduenture) they will barken and turne every man frome his wyched waye: that I maye also expre of the plage, whiche I haue determined to bynge vpon them, because of theyr wyched instructions.

And after this maner shalt thou speake vnto them: Thus sayth the Lord: Ye will not obeye me, to walke in my lawes, whiche I haue geuen you, and to heare the wordes of my seruantes the Prophetes, whome I sende vnto you, sayinge vpon vnto them: Ye will not helowen them (I saye) then will I do to this house, as I haue done to Siloh, and will make this cite to be abhorred of all the people of the earth. And the praelles, the Prophetes, and all the people herde Jeremye preache these wordes in the house of the Lord.

Nowe when he hadde spoken vnto all the wordes, that the Lord commaunded hym to preache vnto all the people, then the praelles, the Prophetes, and all the people held byn vpon hym, and sayde: thou shalt not holowen them: thou shalt be so bold, as to saye in the name of the Lord: it shall happen to this house as it was to Siloh: and thou shalt saye: it shall be so waste, that no man shall dwell therein.

And when all the people had gathered aboute Jeremye in the house of the Lord, the praelles of Juda herde of this rumoure, and they came forth with sure of the kinges palace in to the house of the Lord, and sat the downe before the newe doore of the Lord. Then spake the praelles and the Prophetes vnto the rulers, and to all the people, these wordes: This man is worthy to dye, for he hath preached against this cite, as ye your selues haue herd with your eares.

Then sayde Jeremye vnto the rulers and to all the people: The Lord hath sent me to preache against this house, and against this cite all the wordes that ye haue herd. Therefore amende your wayes, and your aduitements, and be obedyent vnto the voyce of the Lord your God: so shall the Lord relent of the plage, that he hadde deuyed against you. Nowe as for me: I am in your handes, do with me as ye thynke expediente and good.

But this shall ye knowe: ye put me to death, ye shall make your selues, this cite and all the inhabitants thereof, gyle of innocent bloude. For this is of a tuth: that the Lord hath sent me vnto you, to speake al theyr wordes in your eares.

Then sayd the rulers and the people vnto the praelles and Prophetes: This man may not be condemned to death, for he hath preached vnto vs in the name of the Lord our God. The elders also of the lande rose vp, and sayd thus vnto all the people: As the head the Nazabite, whiche was a Prophete vnto Sathias kinge of Juda, spake to all the people of Juda: Thus sayth the Lord of hostes: Syon shall be plowed like a felde, Jerusalem shall be an heape of sturres, and the hill of the Norths house, shall be turned to an hye wodde.

Did Sathias the kinge of Juda and the people of Juda put him to death for this? No truly, but rather feared the Lord, and made thys prayer vnto him. For whiche cause also the Lord repented of the plage that he hadde deuyed against them. Shold we then do such a thinge as shall be agaynst our soules? There was a Prophete also, that preached as I saye in the name of the Lord called Uriah the sonne of Shemiah of Gathatharim: this man preached also agaynst this cite and agaynst this land, according to all as Jeremye sayth. Nowe when Joakim the kinge with all the elders and princes had herd his wordes, the kinge sent about to sle him. When Uriah perceyued that, he was afraide, and fled, and departed in to Egypte.

Then Joakim the king sent seruantes in to the lande of Egypt: namely Sinathan sonne of Achab, and certeyn men with him in to Egypte, whiche fetched Uriah oute of Egypte, and brought him vnto kinge Joakim: that he should be with the kinge, and cast his bodye in to the common peoples graue. But when the son of Sathian helprd Jeremye, that he came not in to the handes of the people to be slayne.

Jeremye, at the commandement of the Lord, sendeth bondes to the kinge of Juda, and to the other kinges that were nyghe, whereby they are monyshed to become subiects vnto Nabuchodonosor. He warneth the people and the kinges and rulers, that they helene not take Prophetes.

CAPL XXVII.

In the begynnyng of the reygne of Joakim the sonne of Josias kinge of Juda, came this worde vnto Jeremye from the Lord, whiche spake thus vnto me: Make the bondes and cheynes, and put them about thy necke, and sende them to the kinge of Edom, the kinge of Moab, the kinge of Ammon, the kinge of Tyus, and to the kinge of Sydon, & that by the messengers whiche shall come to Jerusalem vnto Sedechias the kinge of Juda, & byd them saye vnto their masters: Thus sayth the Lord of hostes, the God of Israel, speake thus vnto your masters: I am he that made the earth, the men, and the cattell that are vpon the grounde, with my greace power and stretched out arme, & haue geuen it vnto whom it pleased me.

And nowe will I deliuer all these landes in to the power of Nabuchodonosor the kinge of Babylon, my seruant. The bestels also of the felde shall I geue hym to doo hym scrupce. And all people shall serue him, and his sonne, and his chyldes chyldren, vntill the tyme of the same lande be come also: yea manye people, and greace kinges shall serue hym.

Affoore, that people and kyngdome whiche will not serue Nabuchodonosor, and that will not put theyr neckes vnder the yoke of the kinge of Babylon: the same people will I byrpe with the sword, with hunger, with pestilence, vntill I haue consumed them in his handes, sayth the Lord. And therefore helowen not your selues, lothslapers, expounders of dyames, that mares and wytyches, whiche saye vnto you: ye shall not serue the kinge of Babylon. For they preache you lyes: to bynge you farre frome your lande, and that I maye caste you out, and destroye you. But the people that put theyr neckes vnder the yoke of the kinge of Babylon and serue hym, those I will let remayne still in their owne lande (sayth the Lord) and they shall occupy it and dwell therein.

All these thynges tolde I Sedechias kinge of Juda, and sayde: Put your neckes vnder the yoke of the kinge of Babylon, and serue him and his people, that ye maye lyue. Why, wilt thou and thy people perish with the sword, with hunger, with pestilence: like as the Lord hath deuyed for all people that will not serue the kinge of Babylon? Therefore geue no care vnto thys Prophete (that tell you: Ye shall not serue the kinge of Babylon) for they preache you lyes, neyther haue I sent them, sayth the Lord: howe be it they are bold, falsely to prophete.

in my name: that I mighte the sooner drye you out, and that ye myght perishe with your preachers.

I spake to the prestes also, and to all the people: Thus sayeth the Lorde: Heare the wordes of those Prophetes that preache vnto you, and saye: Beholde the vessels of y^e Lorde house, shall surely be brought byther agayne frome Babylon: for they prophete lyas vnto you. Heare them not but serue the kynge of Babylon, that ye may lyue. Wherefore will ye make this cytye to be destroyed? But yf they be true Prophetes in very dede, and yf the worde of the Lorde be commytted vnto them, then lette them praye the Lorde of hostes, that the remnant of the ornaments (which are in the house of the Lorde, and the marne yet in the house of the kynge of Iuda, and at Ierusalem) be not caried to Babylon also.

For thus hath the Lorde of hostes spoken concerning the pylers, the lauer, the scat and the residue of the ornaments that yet remain in this cytye, whiche Nabuchodonosor the kynge of Babylon toke not, when he caried awaye Jehoniah the sonne of Josiah kynge of Iuda, with all the power of Iuda and Ierusalem, frome Ierusalem vnto Babylon captiue.

Yes, thus hath the Lorde of hostes the God of Israel spoken, as touchynge the residue of the ornaments of the Lorde house, of the kynge of Judas house, and of Ierusalem: They shall be caried vnto Babylon, and there they shall remaine vntill I bypse them, sayeth the Lorde. Then will I bypse them byther agayne. And this was done in the same yere: euen in the beginning of the reygne of Sedechias king of Iuda.

The false prophete of Hananiah the Prophete. Jeremie sheweth y^e the Prophete of Hananiah is false, by the example of other Prophetes. He beinge mispryed of the Lorde, reponeth Hananiah, prophesyinge his death.

CAPL. XXVII.

But in the fourth yere of the reygne of Sedechias kynge of Iuda, in the fyfth moneth: It happened that Hananiah the sonne of Asur the Prophete of Sabaon spake to me in the house of the Lorde, in the presence of the prestes and of all the people, and sayd: Thus sayeth the Lorde of hostes the God of Israel: I haue broken the pike of the kynge of Babylon: and after two yere will I bypse agayne in to this place, all the ornaments of the Lorde house, that Nabuchodonosor kynge of Babylon caried awaye from this place vnto Babylon.

Yes, I will bypse agayne Jehoniah y^e sonne of Josiah the kynge of Iuda him selfe, with all the pylers of Iuda (that are caried vnto Babylon) euen in to this place, sayeth the Lorde, for I will bypse the pike of the king of Babylon.

Then the Prophete Jeremie gaue answer vnto the Prophete Hananiah, before the prestes, and before all the people that were present in the house of the Lorde. And y^e Prophete Jeremie sayd: Amen. The Lorde is that, and graunt the thyng whiche thou hast propheted: that he maye bypse agayne all the ornaments of the Lorde house, and restore all the pylers frome Babylon in to the place. But the lesse hearken thou also what I will saye, that thou and all the people maye heare: The Prophetes that were before vs in times past, whiche propheted of warre or trouble, or penitence, cyther of pear upon manie nations and greates kyngdomes were proued by this, (y^e God had sende them in very dede) whiche thing came to passe, whiche that Prophet tolde before.

And Hananiah the Prophete toke y^e cheyne from the Prophete Jeremies necke, and brake it, and with that sayd Hananiah that all the people might heare: Thus hath the Lorde spoken: Euen so will I bypse the pike of Nabuchodonosor kynge of Babylon, frome the necke of all nations, yea and that within this two yere. And so the Prophete Jeremie went his waye.

Nowe after that Hananiah the Prophete had taken the cheyne from the Prophete Jeremies becke, and broken it: The word of the Lorde came vnto the Prophete Jeremie sayng: Go and tell Hananiah these wordes: Thus sayeth the Lorde: Thou hast broke the cheyne of woe, but in steade of woe thou shalt make eternis of yron. For thus sayeth the Lorde of hostes the God of Israel: I will put a pike of yron vpon the necke of all the people, that they maye serue Nabuchodonosor the kynge of Babylon, yea and so shall they do. And I will geue them the breddes in the felde. Then sayd the Prophete Jeremie vnto that Prophete Hananiah: Heare me (I praye the) Hananiah: The Lorde hath not sente the, but thou bypsest this people in to falshe hope. And therefore thus sayeth the Lorde: Beholde, I will sende the out of the land, and within a yere thou shalt dye, because thou hast falsly spoken agaynst the Lorde. So Hananiah the Prophete died the same yere in the seventh moneth.

The Spirite of Jeremie, sent vnto them that were in captiuitie in Babylon. The prophetes they returned from captiuitie after the space of ten yeres. The prophetes that remained in Ierusalem, and of the people that remained in Ierusalem. The thirtieth two Prophetes that were in the people. The death of Semeliah the Prophet.

CAPL.

XXIX.

This is the copie of the lre, that Jeremie the Prophete sent from Ierusalem vnto the pylers: the Senators prestes, Prophetes, and all the people whom Nabuchodonosor had ledde vnto Babylon after after that tyme that kynge Zechoniah, and his queene, his chamberlaynes the pynces of Iuda and Ierusalem, the workemakers of Ierusalem were departed thither. Whiche lre Eliaha the sonne of Saphan and Gamariah the sonne of Jehikiah byd heare, whom Sedechias y^e kynge of Iuda sente vnto Babylon to Nabuchodonosor the kynge of Babylon. These were the wordes of Jeremies lre:

Thus hath the Lorde of hostes, the God of Israel spoken vnto all the pylers that were ledde frome Ierusalem vnto Babylon: buyde your houses to dwell therein: plante you gardens, that ye maye enioye the frutes thereof: take you wyues to beare you sonnes and daughters: proude wyues for your sonnes, and husbands for your daughters, that they maye geue sonnes and daughters, and that ye maye multiplye there. Labour not to be serued, but seke after pear, and prosperite of the cytye wherein ye be pylers, & praye vnto God for it. For in the pear therof shall your pear be. For thus sayeth the Lorde of hostes, the God of Israel: Let not those Prophetes and soothsayers that be amonge you, bypse you: and bene not your owne swears, for why, they preache you lyas in my name, and I haue not sente them, sayeth the Lorde.

But thus sayeth the Lorde: When ye haue fulfilled the space of ten yeres at Babylon, I will bypse you home, and of myne owne goodnesse I will carpe you byther agayne vnto this place. For I knowe what I haue sayd for you, sayeth the Lorde. My thoughtes are to geue you pear, and not troublis (whiche I geue you all redye) and that ye maye haue hope agayne. Ye shall crye vnto me, ye shall go and call vpon me, and I shall heare you. Ye shall seke me, and fynde me. Yea so be that ye seke me with your hole hearte, I will be found of you (sayeth the Lorde) and will bringe you out of pylon, and gather you together agayne out of all places wherin I haue scattered you, sayeth the Lorde: and will bypse you agayne to the same place, from whence I caried you to be caried awaye captiue.

But where as ye saye, that God haue sayd you by prophetes at Babylon: thus hath the Lorde spoken (concernyng the kyng that was in the stele of David, and all the people that dwelle in this cytye, your bretheren that are not gone with you in to captiuitie.) Thus, I saye, speaketh the Lorde of hostes: Beholde, I will sende a swerde, dongre, and pestilence vpon them, and will make them lyke vnto figges, that maye not be eaten for vntill they be. And I will persecute them with y^e swerde, with dongre and reb.

I will drye them vp to be beyed of all kyngdomes, to be cursed, aduoyed, laughed to scorn, and put to confusion of all the people amonge whome I haue scattered them: and that because they haue not ben obedient vnto my commandmentes, sayeth the Lorde, whiche I sente vnto them by my seruantes the Prophetes. I sode by early, and sent vnto them, but they wolde not heare, sayeth the Lorde.

Heare therefore the worde of the Lorde, all ye pylers, whom I sent from Ierusalem vnto Babylon: Thus hath the Lorde of hostes the God of Israel spoken of Zechoniah the sonne of Zolaias, and of Sedechias the sonne of Jehoniah, which prophete lyas vnto you in my name: Beholde, I will deliuer them in to the hand of Nabuchodonosor the kynge of Babylon, that he maye see them before your eyes. And all the pylers of Iuda that are in Babylon, shall take vpon them this terme of cursyng, and saye: How good was vnto the, as he byd vnto Sedechias and Zechoniah, whome the kynge of Babylon tolde in the tyme, because they lyened shamefully in Ierusalem.

For they haue not only falsed their neyghbours wyues, but also preached linge wordes in my name, whiche I haue not commaunded them. Thus I testify and assure, sayeth the Lorde. But as for Semeliah the Rechlamyte thou shalt speake vnto him: Thus sayeth the Lorde of hostes the God of Israel: Whiche thou hast sealed lre vnder thy name, vnto all the people that is at Ierusalem, and to Sopponiah the sonne of Jehoniah the prest: yea, and sent them to all the prestes: wherin thou wyrted thus vnto him: The Lorde hath sayde vnto me to be prest in steade of Josiah the prest, that wolde be the chefe in the house of the Lorde aboue all Prophetes, and prestes euer, and that thou mayest put them in pylon, or in the stocks. Nowe happeneth it yhen, that thou hast not reproued Jeremie of Anathoth, whiche neuer leaueh of his prophesyinge?

And beyde all this, he hath sent vs wordes vnto Babylon, and tolde vs playnly, that our captiuitie shall longe endure: that we shoulde buyde vs houses to dwell therein, and to plante vs gardens that we maye enioye the frutes thereof. Whiche lre Sopponiah the prest byd redde, and let Jeremie the Prophete heare it.

Then came the worde of the Lorde vnto Jeremie, sayng: Sende wordes to all them that are in captiuitie, on this maner: Thus hath the Lorde spoken concerning Semeliah the Rechlamyte: Bycause that Semeliah hath propheted vnto you without my commission, and broughte you in to a falshe hope, therefore thus the Lorde dothe certifie you: Beholde, I will drye Semeliah the Rechlamyte, and his seed: so that none of his shall remaine amonge this people, and none of them shall be the good that I will do for this people, sayeth the Lorde. For he hath preached falsely of the Lorde.

The returne of the people from Babylon. God by his chasterunge sheweth that the people is full. The destruction of the enemies of Israel.

CAPL.

XXX.

not be sought out: So will I also not cast out the hole seed of Israel, for that they have committed, sayeth the Lord: Beholde, the dayes come sayeth the Lord, that the city of the Lord shall be enlarged from the tower of Babel, unto the gate of the corner wall. From thence shall the right measure be taken before her unto the byll top, of Gath, and shall come about Gath, and the hole valley of the dead carcasses, and of the albes, shall be brought unto the broke of Lebanon: and from thence unto the corner of the house, towards the East, where as the Sanctuary of the Lord also shall be sette. And when it is now builded and set up of this sayd city, it shall never be broken, nor shall there be any more.

Jeremy is cast in to prison, because he prophesied that the city should be taken of the kynge of Babylon. By the side that Jeremy bought at the commandment of the Lord, is signified, that the people should come agayne to their owne possession. The people of God are his servants, and he is their Lord. To care God is Gods grace, to content that ignites may be rewarded.

CAPL.

XXXII.

These wordes spake the Lord unto Jeremy, in the tenth yere of Sedechias kynge of Juda, whiche was the. xviij. yere of Nabuchodonosor, what tyme as the king of Babilons house layed siege vnto Jerusalem. But Jeremy the prophet lay bound in the court of the prison, which was in the kynge of Judas house: where Sedechias the kynge of Juda caused him to be layed, because he hadde prophesied of this maner: Thus sayeth the Lord: Beholde, I will be lyent this ctye in to the handes of the kynge of Babilon whiche shall take it. As for Sedechias the kynge of Juda, he shall not be habie to escape the Caldees, but surely he shall come in to the handes of the kynge of Babilon: which shall speke with him mouth to mouth, and one of the shall take an other in the face. And Sedechias shall be carryed vnto Babilon, and there shall he be, vntill the tyme that I wylt hym, sayeth the Lord. But if thou take in hande to fighte agaynste the Caldees, thou shalt not prosper.

And Jeremy sayde: Thus hath the Lord spoken vnto me: Beholde, Hananeel the son of Selum thine vnckles sonne shall come vnto the, and requyre the to retorne thel and, that lyeth in Anathoth vnto thy selfe: for by reason of hym it is thy parte to redeme it, and to bye it out.

And so Hananeel myne vnckles son came to me in the court of the prison (accordinge to the wordes of the Lord) and sayde vnto me: Myr my lande (I praye the) that lyeth in Anathoth in the countrey of Beniamin: for by herptage thou hast righte to lose it out for thy selfe, therefore redeme it. Then I perceyved, that this was the commandment of the Lord, and so I loosed the lande from Hananeel of Anathoth, myne vnckles sonne, and wored him there the money: even seven cycles, and ten spall pens.

I caused him also to make me a wylling, and to seale it, and called recorde therby, and wored him there the money vpon the wayes.

So I toke the euidence with the coppe (when it was bydeslye sealed and red out): I gaue the euidence vnto Baruch the sonne of Neriah the sonne of Hananiah in the byght of Hananeel my cosen, and in the presenche of the wytnesses, that be named in the euidence, and before all the Jewes that were therby in the court of the prison.

I charged Baruch also before them saying: the Lord of Hostes God of Israel commandeth the, to take this sealed euidence with the coppe, and to lay it in an earthen beell, that it maye longe contynue.

For the Lord of Hostes the God of Israel hath decreed, that houses, felde and byncyardes shall be possided agayne in this lande.

Now when I had deliuered the euidence vnto Baruch the son of Neriah, I besought the Lord, saying: O Lord God: It is then that thou hast made heauen and earth with thy great power and bygh arme, and there is nothing to harde for the. Thou thyselfe receyuest vnto thousands, thou recompenseth the workes of the fathers, into the holme of the children that come after them.

Thou arte the great and myghty God, whose name is the Lord of Hostes: I graue in counsell, and in mine in thought: Thine eyes loke vpon all the wayes of men: thou art rewarder of euery one after his waye, and accordinge to the frutes of his inuention.

Thou hast done greates tokens and wonders in the lande of Egypt (as we se this daye) vpon the people of Israel an vpon chole men: to make thy name greates, as it is come to passe this daye.

Thou hast brought thy people of Israel out of the lande of Egypt, with robins, with wonders, with a myghty hand, with a stretched out arme, and with great excellenche: and hast gyuen them this lande, like as thou haddest promysed vnto thy fathers: Namelye that thou wouldest gyue them a lande, that floweth with mylke and honny.

Come when they came thither, and possessed it, they so loved not thy voyces, and walked not in thy lawe: but all that thou commaundest them to do, that haue they not done, and therefore come all these plagis vpon them.

Beholde, there are bulwarkes made now against the city to take it: and it shall be taken of the Caldees that besiege it, which shall hangre and tread, and like what thou hast spoken, that same shall come vpon them.

For so, all thinges are present vnto the: yet sayest thou vnto me (O Lord God) and commaundest me, that I shall lose a pce of lande vnto my selfe, and take wytnesses thereto: and yet in the meane season the ctye is deliuered in to the power of the Caldees.

Then came the word of the Lord vnto me, saying: Beholde, I am the Lord God of all flesh, is there any thyng then to hard for me? Therefore thus sayeth the Lord: Beholde, I shall deliuer this ctye in to the power of the Caldees, and in to the power of Nabuchodonosor the kynge of Babilon, they shall take it. For the Caldees shall come, and wytnesse this ctye, and sette fyre vpon it, and burne it: with the gorgeous houses, in whose parlours they haue made sacrifices vnto Baal, and poured bynchofferings vnto strange goddes to prouoke me vnto wrath.

For I singe the children of Israel, and the children of Juda haue wrought wyckednes before me euer from theyr youth, what haue they elles done, but prouoked me with the workes of their owne handes: sayeth the Lord.

O what hathe this citty bene els, but a prouokynge of my wrath, euer sence the daye that I builded it vnto this houre? Wherin I cast it out of my sight, because of the great blasphemies of the children of Israel and Juda, whiche they haue done to prouoke me: yea they, their kynges, their princes, their prestes, their prophetes, hole Juda, and all the citizens of Jerusalem.

When I rose vpon early, and taught them and inuente them, they turned theyr backs to me, and not their faces. They wolde not heare, to be reformed and correcte. They haue sette their goddes in the house, that is halowed vnto my name, to despyle it. They haue builded bygh places for Baal in the halley of the children of Iennoon, to bringe their sonnes & daughters vnto Moloch: whiche I neuer commaunded them, neither came it into my thought, to make Juda synne suchlike abhominacion.

Therefore thus hathe the Lord God of Israel spoken, concerninge this ctye, which (as ye your selues confesse) shall be deliuered into the hande of the kynge of Babilon, when it is wonne with the swerde, with honny and with pestilence. Beholde, I wylt gather them to gyther from all landes, wherin I haue scatered the in my wrath, in my fearfull and greates displeasure: and wylt bringe them agayne vnto this place, where they shall dwell safely. And they shall be my people, and I wylt be theyr God.

And I wylt gyue them one herte and one voyce, that they maye feare me all the dayes of their lyfe, that they and thre children after them maye prosper. And I wylt sette vpon an euill dayng councail with them: Namelye: that I wylt neuer cease to doo theym good, and that I wylt put my feare in their hertes, so that they shall not run awaye from me.

Yea I wylt haue a lust and pleasure to do theym good, and saychfully to plant them in this lande with my hole herte, and with all my soule.

For thus sayeth the Lord: lyke as I haue brought all this great plage vpon this people: so wylt I also bringe vpon them all the good, that haue I promysed them. And men shall haue their possessions in this lande, wherof ye saye nowe, that it shall neither be inhabited of people ne of cattell, but be deliuered in to the handes of the Caldees: Yea lande shall be bought for money, and euidences made ther vpon and sealed before wytnesses in the countrey of Beniamin, and rounde aboute Jerusalem: in the cities of Juda, in the cities that are vpon the mountaynes, and in them that lye beneth, yea & in the cities that are in the deserte. For I wylt bringe theyr prisoners hither agayne, sayeth the Lord.

The prophete is monished of the Lord, to praye for the deliuerance of the people, whiche the Lord promyseth. God togyueth synners, and dooth graciouslye to the people, for his owne renowne. Of the byrth of Christ. The kyngdome of Christe in the church shall neuer be ended.

CAPL.

XXXIII.

Moreouer the word of the Lord came vnto Jeremy on this maner, when he was yet bounde in the court of the prison: Thus sayeth the Lord, which fulfilleth the thyng that he speaketh, the Lord which performeth the thyng that he taketh in hande: euen he, whose name is the Lord: thou hast cryed vnto me, and I haue herde the: I haue heared grates an bygh thynges, whiche were vnknewen vnto you.

Thus (I saye) spake the Lord God of Israel, concerninge the houses of this citty, & the houses of the kynges of Juda: that they shall be broken thowme the ordynance and weapons, when the Caldees come to besiege them: and they shall be filled with the dead carcasses of men, whome I wylt slaye in my wrath and displeasure: when I turne my face frome this ctye because of all her wyckednesse. Beholde, (sayeth the Lord) I wylt heale theyr wounds and make theym hole, I wylt open them the treasure of pease and truth.

And I wylt retorne the captiue of Juda and Israel: and wylt set them by agayne as they were afore, from all myndes (where in they haue offended agaynste me) I wylt cleane them: And al their blasphemies whiche they haue done agaynste me, when they regarded me not, I wylt forgyue them.

And this shall get me a name, a prayse & honoure, amonge all people of the earth, whiche shall heare all the good, that I wylt shewe vnto them: yea they shall be afraied and adonred at all the good dedes and benefites, that I wylt do for them. Therefore thus sayeth the Lord: in this place, wher-of ye saye that it shall be a wyldernes, wher in neither people ne catell shall dwell: in like manner in the cyties of Iuda and Iherusalem (which also shall be so voyde, that neither people ne catell shall dwell there) shall the voyce of gladnesse be heard againe, the voyce of the byrdynge and of the byrde the voyce of them that shall synge: I praye the Loyde of Hostes, for he is longynge and his mercye endureth for ever, and the voyce of them that shall offer up gyftes in the house of the Loyde. For I will restore the captiue of this land, as it was afore, saye the Loyde.

Thus saye the Loyde of Hostes Ie shall come yet thereto, that in this lande, whiche is voyde from men and catell, and in all the cyties of the lande, there shall be set up shepherdes cottages: in the cyties vpon the mountaynes: and in the cyties that lye vpon the playne, and in the desert.

In the lande of Ienizamin, in the felde of Ierusalem, and in the cyties of Iuda shall the voyce be heard againe, vnder the hand of him, that telleth them, saye the Loyde.
Beholde, the tyme cometh, saye the Loyde, that I will persoume that good thyng, whil-che I haue promysed vnto the house of Iera-el and to the house of Iuda. In those dayes, and at the same tyme, I will byrge forth vnto Dauid, the brachete of ryghteousnes, & he shall do equyte and righteouslye in the land. In those dayes shall Iuda be helped, & Ierusalem shall dwell safe, and he that shall call her is euen God our treshenous maker.
For thus the Loyde promyseth: Dauid shall never want one, to lye vpon the stole of the house of Irael: neither shall the priestes & Leuytes want one to offe awayne before me burnt offringes, to kynde the meat offryn-ges, and to prepare the sacryfices.

And the voyde of the Loyde came vnto Jeremye after this manner: Thus saye the Loyde: Make the couenaunt whiche I haue made with Dauid, and myght be broken, that thou shalt not be daye and nyght in due season. Then maye my couenaunt also be broke whiche I made with Dauid my seruaunte, and so he not to haue a sonne to reigne in his steede. So shall also the priestes and Leuytes never saye, but serue me. For lyke as the herbes of heauyn maye not be nombred, neither the fowles of the see measured: so will I multiplye the seede of Dauid my seruaunt, and of the Leuytes my mynistrs.

Agayne, the voyde of the Loyde came to Jeremye, sayinge: Wherfore thou not what this people sayeth? Two hundredes (saye they) shall be the dayes, and those shall be the dayes of the daye. For so farre as my people come, they haue no hope to come to Ierusalem, to be one people againe. Thus saye the Loyde: I I haue made no couenaunt with Dauid & his seede, and gyuen no othe vnto heuen and earth: I haue sayd also vnto the seede of Dauid my seruaunt: so that I will take no pynte out of his seede, to rule the people of Iuda, Ierusalem, Iacob, and Iacob. But yet I will turne agayne their captiuitie, & bringe them vnto them.

Beholdeneth that the cytie, and Ierusalem also, shall be geyuen vnto the Loyde of the kinge of Babylon. He shall take them that he wille of the people, & shall be as a pardon to goe at the people.

CAPL XXXIII.

These are the wordes whiche the Loyde spake vnto Jeremye, what tyme as he hath honore of the kinge of Babylon, and all his hostes (out of all the kyngdomes that were vnder his power) and all his people, soughte agayne Ierusalem, and all the ciues therof. Thus saye the Loyde God of Irael: God, and I spake to Sedechias the kinge of Iuda, and tell him: The Loyde sendeth the this voyde: Beholde, I will deliuer this citie in to the hande of the kinge of Babylon, he shall burne it, and thou shalt not escape his handes, but shalt be led awaye prisoner, and deliuered in to his power. Then shalt thou loke the kinge of Babylon in the face, & he shall speake with the mouth to mouth, then shalt thou goe to Babylon. Yet haue the wordes of the Loyde, & Sedechias then kinge of Iuda: Thus saye the Loyde vnto me: Thou shalt not be slayne with the sword, but shalt dye in peace. Lyke as the foxes fathers the kynges, my progenytours, were dyente: so shalt thou be dyent also, and in the mourning they shall saye: Oh Loyde, for thus haue I deceyued, saye the Loyde.

Then spake Jeremye the prophete all these wordes vnto Sedechias kinge of Iuda in Ierusalem: what tyme as the kinge of Babylons hoste besieged Ierusalem, and the remnant of the cyties: Ierusalem, Iacob & Iacob, whiche yet remained of the strong defenced cyties of Iuda.

These are the wordes that the Loyde spake vnto Jeremye the prophete, when Sedechias was agreed with all the people at Jerusalem, that they shoulde be proclaymed a libertye: so that euery man shoulde let his seruaunt and handmaide go free, & he shoulde, and no Iewe to holde his bythe as a bonde man. Nowe as they had confest euen so they were obdurate, and let them go free. But afterwards they repented, and toke agayne the seruantes and handmaidens, whom they had let go free, and so made the bonde agayne.

For the whiche cause the wordes of the Loyde came vnto Jeremye from the Loyde him selfe, sayinge: Thus saye the Loyde God of Irael: * I made a couenaunt with your fathers, whan I brought them out of Egypte (that they shoulde no more be bonde men, sayinge: When I haue serued you, I will let you go free, & I haue sayd vnto the fathers, that they shoulde let you go free, but your fathers obeyed me not, & they perchance not vnto me. As for you, ye nowe turned, and byd tyghte before me, in ye proclaymed, euery man to let his neighbour go free, & in that ye made a couenaunt before me, in the temple that beareth my name: but yet ye haue turned your selues agayne and blasphemed my name: In this, that eu-ry man hath requyred his seruante and handmaiden agayne, whom ye had let goe free, and compelled them to serue you agayne, and so be your bonde men. And therefore thus saye the Loyde: ye haue not obeyed me, euery man to proclayme liberte vnto his brother and neighbour: wherfore I will call you vnto a liberte, saye the Loyde: euen vnto the swearde, to the pestilence, and to hunger, and will make you to be plaged in all the kyngdomes of the earth.

For the men that haue broke my couenaunt and not kepte the wordes of the appoyntment, which they made before me: when they heard the calse in two, and when there was calle the two halles therof: The Princes of Iuda, the princes of Ierusalem, the gyddes men, the seers, and all the people of the lande, whiche went thowse to two spyes of the calse. Those men will I geue in to the power of their enemyes, and in to the handes of them that folowe vpon their spyes.

And their deedes shal be meat for the fowles of the ayre, and beles of the fildes as for Sedechias the kinge of Iuda and his princes, I will deliuer them in to the power of their enemyes, and of them that desire to slaye them, and in to the handes of the kinge of Babylons hoste, whiche nowe is returned home: you: But the voyde my commandement (saye the Loyde) they shall come agayne before this cite, they shall spye agayne it, wynde it, and burne it.
Wherefore I will lye the cyties of Iuda to waste, that no man shall dwell therein.

Beholdeneth the obedience of the Rechabytes, and the confoundynge of the pyde of the Je-rites. The commandement of Ionadab, the ca-pitall of the Rechabytes. He thence punishment vnto the rebellious Iewes. He promyseth proprie vnto the Rechabytes, for theyr obedience vnto the saye.

CAPL XXXV.

These wordes whiche the Loyde spake vnto Jeremye, in the daye of Joahim the sonne of Josiah kinge of Iuda in this: Go vnto the house of the Rechabytes, and call them oute, and byrge them to the house of the Loyde in to some common place, and geue them wyne to drynke.
Then toke I Jazaniab the sonne of Jeremye, the sonne of Habazaniab, & his brethren, and all his sonnes, and the hole household of the Rechabytes: and brought them to the house of the Loyde, in to the closet of the children of Hanan the sonne of Jegedallah the man of God: whiche was by the closet of the princes, that is aboute the closet of Baalthe sonne of Selum, whiche is the chiefe of the treasure. And before the sonnes of the kinge of the Rechabytes, I set portes full of wyne, and cuppes, and sayde vnto them: Drynke wyne. But they sayde: we drynke no wyne, for Ionadab the sonne of Rechab oure father commaunded vs sayinge: ye and your sonnes shall neuer drynke wyne, buyd no houses, sowe no seede, plante no byrns, reape ye shall haue no byrns: but for all your tyme ye shall dwell in tentes, that ye maye lye longe in the lande wherin ye be strangers.

Thus haue we obeyed the commandment of Ionadab the sonne of Rechab our father: in all that he hath charged vs, and so we drynke no wyne all oure lyfe longe: we nor oure wyues, our sonnes, and our daughters.
Neither buyde we any house to dwell therin, we haue also amouges vs neither bynpades, ne sowe land to sowe: but we dwell in tentes, we obey, and do according vnto all that Ionadab our father commaunded vs.

But nowe when Nabuchodonosor the kinge of Babylon came vp in to the lande, we sayde come, let vs goe to Ierusalem, that we maye escape the hande of the Chaldees and the Assyrians: & so we dwelt in Ierusalem.
Then came the wordes of the Loyde vnto Jeremye sayinge: thus saye the Loyde of Hostes the God of Irael: Go and tell hole Juda and al the inhabitants of Ierusalem: Will ye not be reformed, to obey my wordes? saye the Loyde. The wordes whiche Ionadab the sonne of Rechab commaunded his sonnes, that they shoulde drynke no wyne, are fast and surely kepte: for vnto this daye they drynke no wyne, but obey their fathers commandement. But as for me, I haue stande by early, I haue spoken vnto you, and gyuen you earnest warning: and yet haue ye not bene obedyent vnto me. Yea I haue sent my seruantes all the prophetes vnto you, I rose up early, I sent you wordes, sayinge: O euen you, euery man frome his wicked waye: amende your spyes, and go not after straunge goddes, to worshyp them: that ye maye conserue in the lande, whiche I haue gyuen vnto you & your fathers, but ye wolde neither heare me, ne fo-lowe me.

The children of Ionadab Rechabs sonne haue stedfastly kepte their fathers commaun-dement, that he gaue them, but this people is not obedyent vnto me. And therefore thus saye the Loyde of Hostes the God of Irael: Beholde, I will byrge vpon Iuda and vpon euery one that dwelleth in Ierusalem, all the trouble that I haue deuyd agayne them.
For I haue spoken vnto the, but they wolde not tolowe: I haue called vnto them, neuer-theles they wolde geue me no answer. Irec-my also spake vnto the household of the Rechabites: Thus saye the Loyde of Hostes the God of Irael: For is moche as ye haue obeyed & commaundment of Ionadab your father, and kepte all his piercyers, and done accordinge vnto all that he hath bydded you: Therefore thus saye the Loyde of Hostes, the God of Irael: Ionadab the sonne of Rechab shall

Mal not saye, but have one out of his stocke, so stande alwaye before me.

Baruch wyrteth (as Jeremie indycteth) the booke of the curtes agaynst Juda and Israel. He is sent with the booke unto the people, and rebeth it before them. He is called before the rulers, and rebeth it before them also. The rulers thereto unto the kynge the wordes of the booke. Jeremie taketh the booke, and readeth a lytle of it, and after casteth it in the
fyr. There is an other wyrteth at the commaundes men of the Roide.

CAPL XXXVI.

In the thirte yere of Joahim sonne of Josiah kynge of Juda, came the wordes of the Roide unto Jeremie sayinge: Take a booke and wyrteth therein al the wordes, that I have spoken to the, to Israel, to Juda, and to all the people from the tyme that I begonne for to speake unto the (in thy saynges of Josiah) unto this daye. That when the house of Juda heareth of the plage, whiche I have deuyled for the, they may peradventure come every man from his wicked way, that I maye forgive their offences and synnes.

Then dyd Jeremie call Baruch the sonne of Neriah, & Baruch wrote in the booke at the mouthe of Jeremie, all the wordes of the Roide, whiche he had spoken unto him.
And Jeremie commaunded Baruch, sayinge:
I am in pylson, so that I maye not come in to the house of the Roide: therefore go thou thyself, and reade the booke, that thou hast wrytten at my mouthe: Namely, the wordes of the Roide, & reade them in the Roide house upon the sabbath daye: & the people, hole Juda, and all they that come out of the cyties maye heare. Peradventure they will praye mechely before the face of the Roide, and turne every one from his wicked waye. For great is the wrath, and dyckalure, that the Roide hath taken agaynst this people.

So Baruch the sonne of Neriah dyd according unto all that Jeremie the Propete commaunded him, readeinge the wordes of the Roide out of the booke in the Roide house.
And this was done in the fyfth yere of Jo-ahim the sonne of Josiah king of Juda, in the nyneth moneth when it was commaunded that all the people of Jerusalem shoulde faste, before the Roide, and they also that were come from the cyties of Juda unto Jerusalem.

Then red Baruch the wordes of Jeremie out of the booke within the house of the Roide out of the treasurie of Samaria the sonne of Saphan the Scribe, whiche is before the hygher lofte of the doore of the Roide house: that all the people myght heare. Now when Ezechias the sonne of Samaria the sonne of Saphan had hearde all the wordes of the Roide out of the booke, he went downe to the kynges palace into the Scribes chamber, for there all the prynces were: Elishama the Scribe, Dalaias the sonne of Semai,

Elnathan the sonne of Acobor, Samarias sonne of Saphan, Sedechias the sonne of Na-naniah, with all the prynces. And Ezechias tolde them all the wordes, that he hadde Baruch reade out of the booke before the people.

Then all the prynces sent Jehudi the son of Nathaniab, the sonne of Sclimiah, the sonne of Asub, unto Baruch, sayinge: Take in thine hande the booke, wherewith thou hast red before all the people, and come. So Baruch the sonne of Neriah toke the booke in his hand, and came unto them. And they sayd unto him: Syr baruch, & reade the booke that we maye heare also. So Baruch red, that they myght heare. Now whiche they had heard all the wordes, they were abashed one byp another, and sayd unto Baruch: We wyll certeynly kyng of all the wordes. And they examined Baruch, sayinge: tell us, how thou hast wrytten all these wordes out of his mouth?
Then Baruch answered them: I have spoken all these wordes unto me with his mouthe, and I alone was wrytten him, and wrote them in the booke.

Then sayde the Prynces unto Baruch:
So thy waye, and wyde the with Jeremie, so that no man knowe where ye be. And they went in to the court. But they kept the booke in the chambere of Elishama the Scribe, and tolde the kyng all the wordes that he myght heare. So the kyng sent Jehudi to seeke him the booke, whiche he brought out of Elishama the Scribes chambere. And Jehudi red it, that the kyng and all the prynces, whiche were about him, myght heare. Now the kyng sat in the wynter house, for it was in the nyth moneth, and there was a good fyr before him. And when Jehudi had red all the wordes, he cut the booke in peces with a pynne knyfe, and caste it into the fyr upon the hearth, untill the booke was al bynt in the fyre upon the hearth.

Yet no man was abashed thereof, or rent his clothes: neither the kyng dem felle, ne his servauntes, though they hearde all these wordes. Neuerthelesse Elnathan, Dalaias, and Samaria desought the kyng, that he woulde not burne the booke: notwithstanding the kyng woulde not heare them, but commaunded Jerahmeel the sonne of Amasiech, Saraias the sonne of Eziel and Sclimiah the sonne of Abdiel, to laye handes upon Baruch the Scribe, and upon Jeremie the Propete, but the Roide kept them out of syghte. After now that the kyng had burne the booke, and the Sermons whiche Baruch wrote at the mouche of Jeremie: The word of the Roide came unto Jeremie, sayinge: Take an other booke, and wyrteth in it all the foresayde sermons: that were wrytten in the fyre booke, whiche Joahim the king of Juda hath bynt.

And tell Joahim the kyng of Juda: thus sayeth the Roide: thou hast bynt the booke, and thoughtest within thy selfe: Why take thou wrytten therein, & the kyng of Babylon shall come, and make this land waste, so that shall make bethe people and catell to be out of it: Therefore thus the Roide sayth of Jo-ahim the king of Juda: There shall none of his generation lye upon the thron of David.

His seed shall be cutt oute that the heat of the day, and frost of the night may come upon him. And I will visite the wickednesse of him, of his seed, and of his servauntes. More over all the cruyl that I have promysed them (though they herd me not) I will bring upon them, upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and upon all Juda. Then toke Jeremie an other booke, and gave it Baruch the Scribe, the sonne of Neriah, whiche wrote therein out of the mouthe of Jeremie: All the sermons that were in the fyre booke, whiche Jo-ahim the kyng of Juda had bynt. And there were added unto them manye more sermons then before.

Sedechias succedeth Ezechias. He sendeth unto Jeremie to praye for hym. Jeremie goynge in the lande of Ben Jamin, is taken. He is believen, and put in pylson. He is deliuered by kynges ser-vantes.

CAPL XXXVII.

Sedechias the son of Josiah, whiche was small kynge chorum Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon reigned in the land of Juda, in the fift of Ezechias the sonne of Joahim.
But neither he, nor his servauntes, ne the people in the lande woulde obeye the wordes of the Roide, whiche he spake by the Propete Jeremie. Neuerthelesse Sedechias the kyng sent Jehucal the sonne of Sclimias, and Sophonias the son of Maasiah priest to the Pro-pete Jeremie, sayinge: O praye thou unto the Roide our God for vs. Now Jeremie walked among the people at that tyme, and was not put in pylson as yet. Pharaos hode also was come out of Egypt, whiche whiche the Caldees that besieged Jerusalem perceyved, they fled from thence.

Then came the wordes of the Roide unto Jeremie the Propete, sayinge: Thus sayeth the Roide God of Israel, this answereth Walter unto the kyng of Juda, that sente you unto me for counsell: Beholde, Pharaos hode, whiche is come forth to helpe you, Walter come to Egypt, in to his owne lande: but the Caldees shall come agayne, & fight agaynst this cite, wynn it, & set fyre upon it. For thus sayeth the Roide: I will dispute not your owne in-mynde, thynkyng on this maner: truly the Caldees goe now their waye from vs: No, they shall not go their waye. For though ye had dugge the hole holl of the Caldees, that besiege you, and every one of the sayne laye in the ent, yet woulde they stande up and set fire upon this cite.

Now when the holl of the Caldees was taken by some Jerusalem for feare of the Egyptians armye, Jeremie went out of Jerusalem towards the lande of Ben Jamin to Muthyas busynesse there amonge the people.

And whiche he came thither Ben Jamins port, there was a poynt called Jeriah the sonne of Sclimiah, the son of Hananiah, whiche fell upon him, and toke him, sayinge: thy mynde is to run to the Caldees.

Then sayd Jeremie: it is not so, I goo not to the Caldees. Neuerthelesse Jeriah wold not believe him, but brought Jeremie bound before the prynces. Wherfore the prynces were angry with Jeremie, causing him to be beaten, & to be layd in pylson in the house of Jonathan the scribe, for he was the ruler of the pylson.
Thus was Jeremie put in the dongeon and pylson, and so laye there a longe tyme. Then Sedechias the kyng sent for him, and called him, and asked him quietly in his owne house sayinge: thynkest thou this busynesse (that nowe is in hande) cometh of the Roide?
Jeremie answered: yea that it doth, and thou (said he) shalt be deliuered in to the king of Babylons power.

Wherfore Jeremie sayde unto kyng Sedechias: what have I offended agaynst the, agaynst thy servauntes, or agaynst this proprie, that ye have caused me to be put in pylson? Where are your Propetes whiche have prophecied unto you, and sayd that the king of Babylon wold not come agaynst you and this lande?

And therefore heare now, O my lord the kyng: let my prayer be accepte before the,
and sende me no more in to the house of Jonathas the scribe, that I be not there. Then Sedechias the kyng commaunded to put Jeremie in the fore entrie of the pylson, and day-ly to be gyven him a cake of bread, and els no dyght meate, untill all the bread in the cite was eaten up. Thus Jeremie remayned in the fore entrie of the pylson.

By the morpon of the rulers, Jeremie is put in to a dongeon. At the requeste of Nabuchadnezzar the Chamberlayne, the kyng commaunded Jeremie to be brought forth of the dongeon. Jeremie sheweth the kyng how he myght escape death.

CAPL XXXVIII.

Saphatiah the sonne of Nathan, Godoliab the sonne of Phasur, Iucab the son of Sclimiah, and Phasur the sonne of Belchiah perceyved the wordes that Jeremie had spoken unto all the people: namelye on this maner: Thus sayeth the Roide: Who so remayneth in this cite, shall perishe, either by the sword, with hunger, or by the pestilence: But who so shallerth unto the Caldees, shall escape wyngynge his soule for a praye, and shall lyve. For thus sayeth the Roide. It is cite (no doubt) must be deliuered in to the power of the king of Babylon, and he also shall wynn it. Then sayd the prynces unto the kyng: Syr, we beseeche you lette this man be put so beth. For thus he discourageth the handes of the souldiers that be in this cite, and the han-des of all the people, when he speaketh suche wordes unto them.

So this

B This man verily labourerth not for fear of the people, but mischief. Sedechias the king answered and said: so, he is in your handes for the hyng may denye you nothing. Then toke they Jeremie, and cast him in to the dongeon of Sedechias the son of Hamlech, that dwelte in the foze entre of the pylson. And they let downe Jeremie with cordes in to a tonged, where there was no water, but myre: so Jeremie lacke fassie in the myre. Howe when Abedmelech the Moian being a cham beclayne in the hynges court, vnderstode that they had cast Jeremie in to the dongeon: he went out of the hynges house, and spake to the hynges, (whiche then sate vnder the poze of Benjamin) these wordes: By lorde the king where as these men meble with Jeremie the Prophete, they doo him wronge: Namelye in that they haue put him in pylson, there to dye of hongre, for there is no moze breed in the cite.

E Then the kyng commaunded Abedmelech the Moian, and sayd: Take from hence xxx. men whom thou wilt, and drawe vp Jeremie the Prophete out of the dongeon before he dye. So Abedmelech toke the men with him, and went to the house of Hamlech, and there vnder an almyr he gat elde ragges, & woine cloutes, and let them downe by a corde in to the dongeon to Jeremie.

D And Abedmelech the Moian said vnto the Prophete Jeremie: I put these ragges and cloutes vnder thyne arme holes, but wote the and the cordes: and Jeremie did so. So they drew vp Jeremie with cordes, and toke him out of the dongeon, and he remayned in the foze entre of the pylson. Then Sedechias the kyng sent and caused Jeremie the Prophete be called vnto him out of the thirde entre that was by the house of the Lorde. And the kyng sayd vnto Jeremie: I wil aske the some what, but hyde nothinge fro me. Then Jeremie answered Sedechias: If I be playne vnto the, thou wilt cause me suffer: for I agree the counsel, thou wilt not follow me. So the king swore an othe secretly vnto Jeremie sayinge: As truly as the Lorde lyueth, that make vs these soules, I wil not see the, ne geue the in to the handes of them that shal aske thy lyfe.

E Then sayd Jeremie vnto Sedechias: thus sayth the Lorde of hostes the God of Israel: If case be that thou wyll go forth vnto the hynges of Babylons pynners, thou shalt saue thy lyfe, and this cite shall not be vnted: yea bothe thou and thy household shall escape with poure lynes. But if thou wyll not go forth to the hynges of Babylons pynners, then shall this cite be deliuered in to the handes of the Caldees whiche shall set fyre vpon it, and thou shalt not be habile to escape them. And Sedechias sayd vnto Jeremie: I am as trayde for the Jewes, that are fled vnto the Caldees: I can come in their handes, and so they to haue me in derision.

A But Jeremie answered: No, they shal not betraye the: O barken vnto the boze of the Lorde (beseeche the) whiche I speke vnto the, so walke thou be well, and save thy lyfe. But if thou wilt not go forth, the Lorde hath tolde me this playnly: Behold, all the womethat are left in the hyng of Judas house, shall go out to the hynges of Babylons pynners. For they thinke, that thou art disceined: and that the men in whom thou dydest put thy trust, haue mastered the, & let thy feet fall in myre, and gone thre wayes from the. Therefore all thy wyues with their chyldren shall be vnto the Caldees, & thou shalt not escape their handes, but shalt be the king of Babylons pylsoner, and this cite shall be vnted.

E Then sayd Sedechias vnto Jeremie: loke that no body knowe of these wordes, & thou shalt not dye. But if the pynners perceiue that I haue talked with the, and come vnto the, saying: O speake, what sayd the king to the: hyde it not from vs, and we will not put the to death. Tell vs (we praye the) what said the king to the? So thou givest them this answer: I haue humblye besought the king, that he will let me lye no moze in Jonathans house, that I dye not there: Then came all the pynners vnto Jeremie, and asked him. And he tolde them after the manner as the kyng had bid him. Then they helde the, for they perceiued nothinge. So Jeremie abode still in the foze entre of the pylson, vntill the day that Jerusalem was wonne.

E Nabuchodonosor besiegeth Jerusalem. Sedechias fleeth. He is taken of the Caldees. His sonnes are slayne. His eyes are thrust out. Jeremies pynners are prouided for. Sedechias is deliuered from captiuitie, because of the contyngence that he hath in God.

CAPL XXXIX.

Now when the cite of Jerusalem was taken (to in the ninth yere of Sedechias kyng of Juda, in the tenth moneth, came Nabuchodonosor the kyng of Babylonia and all his hoste, and besieged Jerusalem, and in the eleuenth yere of Sedechias, in the fourth moneth, in the ninth daye of the moneth he brake in to the cite.) Then all the pynners of the kynges of Babylonia came in, and sat them downe vnder the port: Serugil, Sarezar, Samegarnabo, Sarfachim, Babilas, Reregel, Sarezar, Rabmag, with all the othe pynners of the kynges of Babylonia. And when Sedechias the kyng of Juda, with his souldyers sawe them, they fled, and departed out of the cite by nyghte throughe the hynges garden, and chose the port that is betwixt the two wallis, and so they wente toward the wilderness.

E But the Caldees hoste followed fast after them, and toke Sedechias in the felde of Jericho, and brought him prisoner to Nabuchodonosor the kyng of Babylonia vnto Babel, that lyeth in the land of Hamath, where he gaue iudgement vpon him. So the king of Babylonia caused the chyldren of Sedechias, and all the nobles of Juda be slayne before face at Babel. And made Sedechias eyes to be put out, and bound him with chaynes and sent him to Babylon.

E Moreover the Caldees brent by the kynges palace, with the othe houses of the people, and brake downe the wallis of Jerusalem. As for the remnant of the people that were in the cite, and such as were come to dye them (what so euer was left of the common foze) Nabuzardan the chiefe capitayne caried them to Babylon. But Nabuzardan the chiefe capitayne lette the rascall people, (and those that had nothinge) dwell still in the lande of Juda, and gaue them vynter payes and come felde, at the same time. Nabuchodonosor also the kyng of Babylon, gaue Nabuzardan the chiefe capitayne a charge to kepe Jeremie, sayinge: take and kepe him, and make moche of him: se thou do him no harme, but entreate him after his owne desyre.

E So Nabuzardan the chiefe Capitayne, Nabuzardan the chiefe chambrellayne, Serugil the treasurer, and all the kynges of Babylons lordes sent for Jeremie, and caused him be set out of the foze entre of the pylson, and committed him vnto Godoliah the sonne of Ahikam, the sonne of Saphan: that he shoulde carry him home, and so he dwelt amonge the people.

E Now whyle Jeremie laye yet bounde in the foze entre of the pylson, the word of the Lorde came vnto him, sayinge: So and tel Abedmelech the Moian: Thus sayeth the Lorde of hostes the God of Israel: Beholde, the cruell and warpe plage that I haue deuyled for this cite, wyl I bringe vpon them, that thou shalt see it: but I wyl deliuer the (sayd the Lorde) and thou shalt not come in the handes of those men whom thou fearest. For I doubt- lesse I wil saue the so that thou shalt not perishe with the sword: but thy lyfe shal be saued, and that because thou hast put thy trust in me, sayth the Lorde.

E Jeremie hath lycesse to go whither he wyll. He dwelith with the people that remayneth at Jerusalem, ouer whom Godoliah ruleth. Johanan prophesyeth death vnto Godoliah.

CAPL XL.

This is the manner howe the Lorde entreated Jeremie, when Nabuzardan the chiefe capitayne had let him go fro Babylon, whither he had led him bound amonge all the pylsoners, that were caried from Jerusalem and Juda vnto Babylon. The chiefe Capitayne called for Jeremie, and sayd vnto him: The Lorde thy God spake mightily before of the misery vpon this place: Now the Lorde hath sent it, and performed it as he had promysed: for ye haue spurned agaynst the Lorde, and haue not bene obedient vnto his voyce: therefore commeth this plage vpon you. Beholde, I loose the bondes from thy handes: this daye: if thou wyll now goe to me vnto

Babylon: by then, for I wyl se to the, and I prouide for the: But if thou wyll not goe with me to Babylon, then remayne here. Beholde, all the lande is at thy wyll, loke where thou thinkest convenient and good for the to abyde, there dwelle. If thou canst not be content to dwelle alone, then remayne with Godoliah the sonne of Ahikam the sonne of Saphan: whom the king of Babylon hath made gouernour ouer the cities of Juda, and dwelle with him amonge the people, or remayne where so euer it pleaseth the. So the chiefe Capitayne gaue him his expates with a rewarde, and let him go. Then went Jeremie vnto Godoliah the sonne of Ahikam to Babilonia, and dwelle there with him amonge the people that were left in the lande.

E Now when the Capitaynes of the hoste of Juda (whiche with their felowes were scatterred abrode on euery syde in the lande) vnderstode that the kyng of Babylon had made Godoliah the sonne of Ahikam gouernour in the the lande, and that man, wyfe, and child: yea and the poze men in the lande (that were not led captiue to Babylon) shoulde be vnder his iurisdiction: They came to Godoliah vnto Babilonia: Namelye Jimael the sonne of Nathanab, Johanan, and Jonathas the sonnes of Azeah, Sareah the sonne of Nethanemeth, the sonnes of Oppai the Netopharite, Jezaniah the sonne of Maachati with their companions. And Godoliah the sonne of Ahikam, the sonne of Saphan wrote vnto them & their felowes on this manner: Be not afraid to serue the Caldees, dwel in the lande, and wote the kynges of Babylon serue, so shal ye prosper. Beholde, I dwell at Babilonia to be an officer in the Caldees behalfe, and to satisfie suche as come to vs. Therefore gather you wyne, corne and oyle, and hepe them in your ware houses, and dwel in your cities that ye haue in keepinge.

E Yea all the Jewes also that dwelt in Moab vnder the Ammonites, in Idumea, and in all the countreys, when they herde that the kyng of Babylon had made Godoliah the sonne of Ahikam the sonne of Saphan, gouernour vpon them that were left in Juda: All the Jewes (I saye) returned oute of all places where they were fled vnto and came in to the lande of Juda to Godoliah vnto Babilonia, and gathered wyne and othe frutes, and that very moche.

E Moreover Johanan the sonne of Azeah & all the capitaynes of the hostes, that were scattered on euery syde in the land, came to Godoliah in Babilonia, and sayd vnto him: knowest thou not that Baalam king of the Ammonites hath sent Jimael the sonne of Nathanab to see the? But Godoliah the sonne of Ahikam blyssed the not. Then said Johanan the sonne of Azeah vnto Godoliah in Babilonia these wordes secretly: let me go, I praye the, I wil see Jimael the sonne of Nathanab, so that no body shal knowe it. Wherefore wil he kill the, that al the Jewes which resort vnto the might be feared, and the remnant in Juda perishe? Then said Godoliah the sonne of Ahikam to

Godoliah. Johanan

Johanan the sonne of Kareah: Thou shalt not do it, for they are but lies, that men say of Imael.

¶ Imael killeth Gedoliah grieffully, and many others with hym. Johanan followeth after Imael.

CAPL.

XLI.

But in the seventh month it happened that Imael the son of Nathaniah the sonne of Elishama (one of the kingly blood) came with them that were twoyne to hym vnto Gedoliah the son of Ahikam the Masphah, and ate there together. And Imael the son of Nathaniah, with those ten men that were twoyne to hym, flart vp and smote Gedoliah the son of Ahikam the sonne of Saphan in the necke and slewe hym, whom the king of Babylon had made gouernour of the land. Imael also slewe all the Jewes that were with Gedoliah at Masphah, and all the Labors that he founde there waiting vpon hym.

The next day after that he had slayne Gedoliah (the matter was yet unknowne) there came certeyn men from Sichem, from Shiloh, and Samaria, to the nombre of foure score, whiche had shauen their beards, rent their clothes, and were all heuy, b: pugging mearoff: and came in to the house of the Lorde. And Imael the son of Nathaniah went to, to Masphah weeping to mee them. Now when he met them, he saide: So your waye to Gedoliah the son of Ahikam. And when they came in the myddell of the cite, Imael the sonne of Nathaniah (with them that were twoyne vnto hym) slewe them euin at the myddell of the cite.

Among these four score men there were ten that sayd vnto Imael: Thou sleepest not, for we haue yet a great treasure in the reide, of where, bacles, oyle and honye. So he spared them, and slewe them not with their byrdes. Now the ppe wherein Imael did call the dead bodies of the men (whom he slewe because of Gedoliah) had king Asa caused to be made, for feare of Asa the kynge of Israell, and the same ppe by Imael spyl wiche slayne men. For the remnant of the people, the kinges daughters and all the people that were yet left at Masphah, vpon whome Nabuzardan the chiefe Captayne had made Gedoliah the son of Nathaniah carped awaye prisoners to warde the Ammonites.

¶ And when Johanan the sonne of Kareah and all they whiche had ben captaynes ouer the kynge halle with hym herse of al ppe: heednesse that Imael the son of Nathaniah had done, they toke their companions & went out for to fight with Imael the sonne of Nathaniah, and found him by the waters of Sabon. Nowe when all the people whom Imael led captiue saw Johanan the son of Kareah and all the other captaynes of the host, they were glad. So al p people that Imael had carped awaye from Masphah, were brought agayne.

And when they returned they came to Johanan the sonne of Kareah. But Imael the sonne of Nathaniah fledde to some Zeban with egypte of his twoyne companions, and wente to the Ammonites. Then Johanan the sonne of Kareah, and all the captaynes of the host that were with hym, toke the remnant of the people, whom Imael the sonne of Nathaniah had ledde awaye (when he had slayne Gedoliah the sonne of Ahikam) whom they had also rescued from him: fighting men, women and chyldren, and getted men, whom they brought agayne from Sabon: and wente from thence and late them downe at Gerub Lamaam, which lyeth by the Bethlehem, that they might go in to Egypte for feare of the Calers: of whom they were at rayde, because that Imael the sonne of Nathaniah had slayne Gedoliah the sonne, whom the kynge of Babylon had made gouernour in the lande.

¶ The Captaynes toke counsell of Jeremie what they oughte to do. Jeremie monethly the ad of the people not to go in to Egypte.

CAPL.

XLII.

So all the rulers, and Johanan the sonne of Kareah, Jeroniah the sonne of Eliah came with all the people from the land vnto the moost, and sayde vnto Jeremie the Prophet: heare our preicion, that thou maist praye for vs vnto the Lorde thy God, and for the rest wherof there be here fewe left of many, as thou seest vs: that the Lorde thy God maye shewe vs awaye to go in, and tel vs what we shoulde doo. Then Jeremie the Prophet sayde vnto to them: I haue herde you. Beholde, I will praye vnto the Lorde, as ye haue requyred me: & loke what answer the Lorde geueth you. I shall reuise you therof, and kepe not byng backe of you. And they sayd vnto Jeremie: The Land of feyth and faythfulnesse be our recorde that we wyl do all that the Lorde thy God commaundeth vs, whether it be good or euill. We wil harken vnto the voyce of our Lorde God to whome we sende the, that we maye prosper, when we haue folowed the voyce of the Lorde our God.

And after ten dayes came the worde of the Lorde vnto Jeremie. Then called he Johanan the sonne of Kareah, and all the captaynes of the people that were with hym: yea and all the people from the leed to the moost, and sayd vnto them: Thus sayth the Lorde God of Israell, vnto whom ye sent me, to say for you prayes before hym: If ye wyl dwell in this land, I wil buyde you vp, and not buyde you downe: I wil plant you, and not rote you out: for I am pacified as concernyng the trouble that I haue done to you.

feare not the kynge of Babylon, of whom ye stande in awe: He be not asrayde of hym, sayth the Lorde: for I wyl be with you, to helpe you, and deliuer you from his hande. I wyl pardon you, I wyl haue mercy vpon you, & byngt you agayne in to your owne lande.

¶ Nevertheless, if ye purpose not to dwell in this lande, nor to folowe the voyce of the Lorde your God: but wyl saye thus, we wyl not dwell here, but goe in to Egypte: where we shall myther le water, heare the noise of batayle, we suffer hunger, there will we dwell. Wherfore heare now the voyce of the Lorde, o ye remnant of Iuda. Thus sayth the Lorde of hostes the God of Israell: If ye be holly purposed to goe in to Egypte, and to be there as strangers: the scarde that ye feare, shall ouertake you in Egypte, and the hunger wherof ye be here at rayde shall hang vpon you in to Egypte, and there ye shall dye. For all they that of set purpose undertake to goe in to Egypte, there to ease them selues of theyr myserye, shall perishe with the sword, with hunger, and pestilence: not one of them shall remayne, there shall none escape the plage, that I wyl bring vpon them.

For thus sayth the Lorde of hostes the God of Israell: lyke as my wrath and indignacion is come vpon the inhabitants of Ierusalem, so shall my displeasure goo for the byd you also, if ye goe in to Egypte: for there ye shall be cruell, abhorred, brought to shame and confusion: and as for this place, ye shall not dwell there. The Lorde forbydeth you, o ye remnant of Iuda, that ye shal not goe in to Egypte.

And forget not that I haue warned you vnto this daye, elles shall ye begyle your selues. For ye sent me vnto the Lorde your God, and sayd: O praye thou the Lorde our God for vs: and loke what answer the Lorde our God geueth the, that byngt us agayne, and we shall doo thereafter. Nowe here I shewd and declared vnto you the voyce of the Lorde your God, for the which cause he hath sent me to you. If ye wyl not folowe it, be sure that ye shall perishe with the sword, with hunger, and pestilence: euen in the same place, where your iustice was to go and dwell.

¶ Johanan carped the remnant of the people in Egypte, contrary to the mynde of Jeremie. Jeremie prophesyeth the destruction of Egypte.

CAPL.

XLIII.

Nowe when Jeremie had ended all the wordes of the Lorde God vnto the people (for their sakes to whom God had sent hym) Azariah the son of Eliah, and Johanan the sonne of Kareah, with al the prynces, sayd vnto Jeremie: Thou speest, the Lorde our God hath not sent the to speake thus, that we shoulde not goe in to Egypte:

dwell there: But Barnah the sonne of Nerab prouoketh the agaynst vs, that he might bringe vs in to the captiuitie of the Calers: that they might de vs, and saye vs awaye prisoners vnto Babylon.

So Johanan the sonne of Kareah, and al the Captaynes of the hoste, and all the people folowed not the commaundment of the Lorde: Namely to dwell in the lande of Iuda: But Johanan the sonne of Kareah, and all the Captaynes of the hoste, carped awaye all the remnaunte to Iuda, that were come together agayne from the Mesphen, (amonge whome they had ben strayers) to dwell in the lande of Iuda: Euen, women chyldren, the kinges daughters: al those that Nabuzardan the chiefe Captayne had left with Gedoliah the sonne of Ahikam. They carped awaye also the Prophet Jeremie, which the sonne of Nerab, and so came in to Egypte: for they were not obedient vnto the commaundment of God. Thus came they to Eaphris.

And in Eaphris the voyce of the Lorde happened vnto Jeremie, sayenge: Take gerace stones in thine hande, and byde them in the bycke wall, vnder the doore of Pharaos house in Eaphris, that all the men of Iuda maye se, and saye vnto them: Thus sayth the Lorde of hostes the God of Israell: Beholde, I wyl sende and call for Nabuchodonosor the kynge of Babylon my seruant, and wil let his seat vpon the stones that I haue byde, and he shall speede his tent ouer them.

And when he cometh he shall singe the lande of Egypte with dauncer, with pynsonment, and with the sword. He shall let fyre vpon the temples of the Egyptians goddes, and burne them vp, and take them selues prisoners. Moreover he shall asaye him self with the lande of Egypte, lyke as a wyrd putte on his core, and shall departe his waye from thence in peax. The pylers also of the temple of the sunne that is in Egypte: shall be breake in peeces, and burne the temples of the Egyptians goddes.

¶ He reprimeth the people for theyr Idolatrye: They that were trybe by the threathynge of the Lorde, are chastyshed. The destruction of Egypte and the Jewes therein, is prophesied.

CAPL.

XLIII.

This is the worde that was shewed to Jeremie concernyng all the Jewes, whiche dwelte in Egypte: at Migdal, at Eaphris, at Memphis, and in the lande of Patares. Thus sayth the Lorde of hostes the God of Israell: ye haue sent all the myserye that I haue brought vpon Ierusalem, and vpon all the cyties of Iuda, so that this daye they are desolate, and no man dwellynge therein: and that because of the great blasphemies whiche they committed, to prouoke me vnto anger: In that they

Jerem. xxi. 8
and xxi. 9

Wente backe to doo sacrifice and worship unto strange goddes: whom neither they, nor ye, your fathers haue knowne. How be it I sent vnto them my seruantes all the prophetes: I rose vp earlye, and sente vnto them, and gaue them warnynge: I doo no such abominable thynges, and saye ges that I hate. But they wolde not followe me harken, to turne from their wyckednesse, and to doo no more sacrifice vnto strange goddes.

Wherefore myne indignacion and wrath was kindled, and brent vp the cyties of Juda, the felles with the streets of Ierusalem, so that they were made waste and desolate, as it is come to passe this daye. Nowe therefore thus sayth the Lorde of hostes the God of Israel: How happeneth it that ye do so grete euill vnto your owne soules, thus to deuoye the men and women, chyldren and babes of Iuda: so that none of you is left, because ye prouoke me vnto wrath with the wyckednesse of your owne hands: why ye offe vnto strange goddes in the lande of Egypte, where as ye begun to dwell: That ye wyghte bitterly perspyte, and that ye might be reuiled, and shamefully intreated of all nations. Ye haue ye nowe forgotten the wyckednesse of your forefathers, the wyckednesse of the kynge of Iuda, and their wyntes, the wyckednesse that ye your selues and your wyntes haue doone in the lande of Iuda, in the cytye and in the lande of Ieru-salem?

Yet are ye not saye this daye, ye feare not neither walke ye in my lawe in my comma-ndementes that I haue gyven vnto you and your forefathers.

Amos. ix. 8

Jerem. xlii. 6
and xlii. 7

Wherefore thus sayth the Lorde of hostes the God of Israel: I am stedfastly aduysed and determined to punyssh you, and to rote oute all Iuda. As for the remnant of Iuda that purpously went in to Egypte, there to sale them of their misery: I will take them and they shall all be destroyed. In the lande of Egypte shall they perspyte, beinge consumed with the swerde and with hunger. For from the leeu vnto the mass, they shall perspyte with the swerde and with hunger. Wherefore they shall be reuiled, abhoyed, named, and confounded.

Jerem. xxxix.

For I will blyss them that dwell in Egypte, as I haue blyssed Ierusalem: with the swerde, with hunger, and with pestilence: so that none of the remnant of Iuda, whiche are gone to dwell in Egypte shall be left to come agayne into the lande of Iuda, although they thinke to come thither agayne, to dwell there. For none shall come agayne, but such as are fled awaye.

Then all the men which knewe that their wyntes had offered vnto strange goddes, and a grete sorte of wyntes that stode there, yea and all the people that dwelte there in Egypte in the cytye of Patmes answered Ieremie and sayd: as for the wordes that thou had spoken vnto vs in the name of the Lorde we will in no wyse heare them: but wyntes so eny goeth oute of our owne mouth, that will we doo: We will doo sacrifice, and offe oblations vnto the queene of heuen, like as we and our forefathers, our kynge and our needes haue done in the cyties of Iuda, and in the streets and felles of Ierusalem.

For then had we plentyfullnesse of victuals, then were we in prosperitie, & no misfortune came vpon vs.

But sence we leste to offe and to doo sacrifice vnto the Queene of heuen, we haue had scarcenesse of all thynges, and praye with the swerde and hunger. Last of all, while we women by sacrifice and offered vnto the Queene of heuen, yd we make bricke, and pouere vnto her dyngedofferynges, to haue her lesuyce, withoute our husbandes wyntes?

Then sayd Jeremie vnto all the people, to the men, to the women, and to all the folke whiche haue gyven hym that answer: Why not the Lorde remembre the sacrificies that ye, your forefathers, your kynge and malers (with all the people) haue offered in the cyties of Iuda, in the streets and felles of Jerusalem? and hath he not considered this in his mynde? In so moche that the Lorde might no longer suffice the wyckednesse of your inueniuous, and the abhominable thynges whiche ye byd? Is not your lande desolate and wyde, yea and abhoyed so that no man dwelleth therein anye more, as it is come to passe this daye?

Why not all this happen vnto you because ye made large sacrifice, and synnet agaynst the Lorde? Ye haue not followed his voyce, to walke in his lawe, in his ordinaunces and statutes.

Yea this is the cause, that all misfortune happened vnto you, as it is come to passe this daye. Wherefore, Jeremie spake vnto all the people, and to all the women: Heare the wordes of the Lorde all Iuda, ye that be in the lande of Egypte: thus sayth the Lorde of hostes the God of Israel: Ye and your wyntes haue spoken with your owne mouth the thynges that ye haue fulled in deoe.

Yea thus haue ye sayd: We will not saye, but doo the thynges that please vs: we will doe sacrifice, and pouere oute dyngedofferynges to the queene of heuen. Purpously haue ye set vp your owne good meanynge, and hath ye haue ye falsified your owne iurament.
And therefore heare the wordes of the Lorde all Iuda, ye that dwell in the lande of Egypte.

Beholde, I haue sworne by my grete name, sayth the Lorde, that my name shall not be reuerbered thowso: anye mans mouth of Iuda, in all the lande of Egypte, to saye
The Lorde God spaketh, for I will waite to plage them, and not for their weale.
And all the men of Iuda that be in the lande of Egypte, shall perishe with the swerde, and with hunger, until they be utterly destroyed.

Wherefore he chose that fled awaye for the Lorde,

swerde, shall come agayne in to the land of Iuda, but there shall be very fewe of them.
And all the remnant of Iuda, that are gone into Egypte, there to dwell, shall knowe whose wordes shall be found true: thus sayth the Lorde. Take this for a token, that I will bi-set you in this place, sayth the Lorde, and I will saye knowe, howe that I (without doubte) will performe my purpose vpon you to punyssh you. Beholde, sayth the Lorde, I will deliuer Pharaos dyngedofferynges of Egypte into the handes of his enemyes, that like after his life: euen as I gaue Sedechias the kynge of Iuda in to the handes of Nabuodonosor kynge of Babilon, which soughte after his life.

(Baruch is repposed of Jeremie.)

CAP. XLV.

XLV.

These are the wordes that Jeremie the prophet spake vnto Baruch the sonne of Nethaniah, after he had written these wordes into a booke at the mouthe of Jeremie, in the fourth yere of Iohann the son of Josiah kynge of Iuda.

Thus sayth the Lorde God of Israel vnto the, O Baruch: In so moche as thou thoughtest thus, when thou wast writinge.
Howe me, the Lorde hath gyuen me payne by my twayne: I haue wepyed my self with tearynges, and shall I fynde no ease? I de-liuered hym O Jeremie, that the Lorde sayth thus: Beholde, the thyng that I haue builded, will I breake downe agayne, and rote out the thynges, that I haue planted, yea this holand. And what thou gett promotion? I take not for it, and desyre it not. For I will bringe a miserable plage vpon all flesh that I sayd. But thy life will I gyue the for a praye whereouer thou goest.

(The propheth the destruction of Egypt. Delphi Lamiae is promysed to Irael.)

CAP. XLVI.

XLVI.

Here folowe the wordes of the Lorde to the prophete Jeremie, whiche he spake vnto the Gentyles. These wordes were preached he to the Egyptians co-mynge the host of Pharaos Necho kynge of Egypt, when he was in Tharcanis betwixt the water of Euphrates: what tyme as Nabuodonosor the kynge of Babilon slewe hym, in the fourth yere of Iohann the sonne of Josiah kynge of Iuda.

Ye make rebuckler and shyld, ye goe forth to fight: Ye haue made your bowes and your arrows vpon them. Ye set your salets about you, ye bringe forth the speares, ye scoure your swordes and put on your breasted plates.

But alas, howe happeneth it, that I see you in thys waye: whye shynde ye backe? wherfore are your wordes sayne? Yea they run like a fowle, that none of them loketh behind hym.

hynde hym. Fearefullnesse is fallen vpon e-uery one of the saythe the Lorde. The lightning of fowle shall not be awaye, and the wordes shall not escape.

Toward the North by the water of Euphrates, they shall dwindle & fall. But what is he this, that dwelleth up, as it were a fowle, comynge & ragynge like the Greeces of water? It is Egypte that ryseth up like a fowle, and casteth oute the waters with so grete noyse.

For they say: We will goe by, and will couer the earth: we will destroye the cyties, with them that dwell therein. Set you to work, backe toule forth the charactes, come forth ye worthynges: ye Assyrians, ye Librans with your bucklers, ye Librans with your bowes: So shall this daye be vnto the Lorde God of hostes, a daye of vengeance, that he maye avenge him of his enemyes. The swerde shall denoure, it shall be sacrified & darched in there bloude: For the Lorde God of hostes shall haue a daye offeringe towarde the North, by the water of Euphrates. So sayth the Lorde God of hostes.

But in thys waye thou go to surgerye for thy wounde shall not be stopped. The daye then shall beare of thy name, and the lande shall be full of thy confusion: for one strong man shall dwindle vpon an other, howe they shulde they not fall boith together.

These are the wordes that the Lorde spake to the prophete Jeremie, concerninge the host of Nabucodonosor the kynge of Babilon, which was sent to destroye the lande of Egypte: Pierce oute thowso the lande of Egypte, & cause it be proclaimed at Haggadol, Memphis and Thapnos, and saye: Stande sty, make the rebuckler, for the swerde shall consume the sounde aboute.

Howe happeneth it that thy myghte was thys are fallen: whye shaldest thou not faste?
Euen because the Lorde thynged them downe.
The slaughter was grete, for one felt euer syl vpon an other. One cryed vpon an other: Woe, let vs goe agayne to our owne people, and to our owne naturall countrey, from the swerde of our enemye.

Euen then there: O Pharaos kynge of Egypte, the tyme will bringe sedeyon. As truly as I lyue (sayth the Lorde), whose name is the Lorde of hostes) it shall come as the mount of Thabor, and as Libanus if it stode in the see. O thou daughter of Egypte make redy thy gere to flye. For Memphis shall be boyde and desolat, so that no man shall dwell therein. The lande of Egypte is like a goodly fayre calf, but one shall come out of the North to pynche her forwarde. Her waged soldiers shall be with her, as like the fat calves.

They also shall lie awaye together, and not abyde: for the daye of their slaughter & the tyme of their vyltacion shall come vpon
them.

The crye of their enemyes shall make a noyse, as the blaue of a trompet. For they shall entee in with their host, and come with axes.

ages, as it were between downe of wood. And they shall cut downe the wood, say the Lord, with any discretion. For they shall be no in number then the grasshoppers, so that no man shall be able to tell them. The daughter of Egypt shall be confounded, when she shall be deliuered in to the handes of the people of the North.

Whereouer thus say the Lord of Hostes the God of Israel: Beholde I will visit that restless people of Alexandria, Pharo and Egypt, yea both their goddes and theyr hynges: euen Pharo, and all theym that put their trust in him. Yea I will deliuer them into the handes of those, that like after their lyues: Namely, into the power of Nebuchodonosor the kynge of Babylon, and into the power of his seruantes. And after all these thynges it shall be inhabited as afore tyme say the Lord.

But be not thou afraid, O my seruant Jacob, feare not thou, O Israel. For lo, I will helpe the frome farr, and thy seide frome the lande of thy captiuitie. Jacob also shall come agayne, and be in rest: he shall be rich, and no man shall do him harme. Feare thou not, O Jacob my seruante, say the Lord, for I am with the: and will destroye all nations, amonges whom I haue scattered the, neuertheless I will not consume the but chasten the and correct the: yea and that with discrecion: neuertheless I spare the as one that is reuoluntie.

The wordes of the Lord, agaynst the Philistines.

CAPL XLVII.

These are the wordes, that the Lord spake vnto Ieremie the prophete agaynst the Philistines, before that Pharo smote the cite of Azab. Thus say the Lord: Beholde, there shall waters arise out of the North: and shall growe to a great floude, running ouer, and couerunge the land, the ctyes, and them that dwell therein.

And the men shall crye, and all they that dwell in the lande shall mourne at the noyse, and stampinge of their stronge barbed horses, at the makinge of their charettes, and at the rombling of the wheles. The fathers shall not loke to their children, so feeble and weep that their handes be: at the same tyme when he shall be there, to destroye the hole lande of the Philistines. He shall make waste both Tyus, Sibon and all other that are sworne vnto them.

For the Lord will destroye at Balast na, and the other Iles, that be deuyded from the countrey. Baldness is come vpon Azab, Ailalon with her other halieyes shall kepe her peace.

Howe longe wilt thou stape, O thou stowarde of the Lord? Euen agayne into thy wether, and leaue of. But how can it be, when the Lord him selfe hath giuen him a charge agaynst Ailalon, and sayd by agaynst the ctyes of the seacoast?

The wordes of the Lord agaynst the Moabites.

CAPL XLVIII.

Thus say the Lord of Hostes the God of Israel agaynst Moab: We be in the cite of Nabo, for it shall be layd waste, brought to confusion and taken. Yea thy stronge cite of Cariathiarim shall be brought to waste, and asseyd: Moab shall no more be had in honour: Which counsell shall be taken vpon Nabo. Come (say they) let vs see them out, that they may be no more amonge the nombre of the Gentyles, for they may no more be thought of. Thus say the Lord: I will make the: Moab shall crye frome Horonaim: With great weeping and destruction, is Moab made waste.

And this crye shall be herde in all her ctyes. At the going vnto Luthem shall arise a lamentation: and downe toward Horonaim, there shall be herde a crie and a beebly crye: Get you away, leaue your liues, and be lyke vnto the herde in the wilderness. For because thou hast trusted in thy strong holdes and treasure, thou shalt be taken, thou shalt be with his prekes and priues shall goe away into captiuitie.

The destroyer shall come vnto the ctyes, none shall escape. The halieyes shall be destroyed, and the tribes shall be layd waste lyke as the Lord hath decreed.

Make a token vnto Moab, that he get her awaye speedily: for her crie shall be made so desolate, that no man shall dwell therein. Cursed be he that doth the worke of the Lord negligently, and cursed be he that kepte backe his sweade frome the wound of bloude.

Moab hath neuer bene ryche and carelesse frome her youth vp, we hath gotten and taken her ease with her treasure. She was neuer yet put out of one desell into another (that is) she neuer went awaye into captiuitie, therefore her sake remayneth, and her name is not yet changed.

But lo, the tyme cometh, say the Lord, that I shall leaue her trusters to truste her, to perpare and seale her vessels: yea herda herdes cattell and make to and fro. And Moab shall be ashamed of Chamos, lyke as Israel was ashamed of Bethel, wherein he put her trust.

Wherefore do ye thinke thus: we are myghtye, and stronge men of warre? Moab shall be destroyed, and her ctyes burnt vp: her chosen younge men shall be slayne, say the kynge, whose name is the Lord of Hostes. The destruction of Moab cometh, and a pace, and her fall is at hande.

All her neighbours shall moune for her, and all they that knowe her name, shall say: O howe happened it, that the stronge shall be so lowe? And the goodly shall be thus broken? And then daughter Dibon, come downe from the toppe of the house toppes and streets of Moab, and set in pouertie. For he that destroyeth Moab, shall come vnto the also, and breake downe thy stronge holdes.

And thou that dwellest in Aroer, get thee to the Aroer, and loke aboute the: aske them that are fled and escaped, and say: what thyng is happened? O, Moab is confounded and overcome.

Howe and crye, tell it out at Aroer, that Moab is destroyed. And myghtye shall come vpon the playne lande: Namely, vpon Iahaz, & Iahazay: vpon Gephath & Dibon: vpon Nabo and the house of Debiaraim, vpon Cariathiarim and Bethgamul, vpon Berthmaon and Carioth, vpon Bozrah and all the ctyes in the lande of Moab, where they lyke farr of here.

The house of Moab shall be smitten downe, and her arme broken, say the Lord. Make her dyntken, for the magnifico her sitte aboute the Lord, that men may clappe their handes at her voyce, and that she also may be laughed to scorne. O Israel, walke thou not laugh him to scorne, when he is taken amonge the Gentyles? Yea because of thy wordes that thou hast spoken agaynst him, thou shalt be dyntken awaye. Ye Moabites shall leaue the ctyes, and dwell in rockes of stone, they shall lyke houses, that make their nestes in holes.

As for Moabs pynde, we haue herde of it, it is very high mynted. I knowe her stoutnes, her boldnes, her arrogancy, & the pynde of her stomach, say the Lord. For her stoutnes maye neyther vpholde her in strength nor in dide. Therefore shall there mourninge be made for Moab, and euery man shall crye for Moabs sake: a lamentation shall be made to them that stande vpon the wall. So will I mourne for the also, O Jazer, and for the: O thou vngarde of Sabamah.

Toppe branches shall come ouer the stre, and the branches of Jazer but vnto the stre: the destroyer shall breake into thy harvest and grape gathering: Myrrh and chere shall be taken awaye from the tymberfelde, and from the hole land of Moab.

There shall be no sweete wine in the presse, the treasur shall haue no stomache to receyue, yea there shall be none to receyue vnto him: which afore tyme were herde from Iahaz to Iahaz, & Iahaz, which Isted by their voyce from Zoar vnto Horonaim, that bullocke of the yere olde. The waters also of Ailalon shall be dyed vp.

Whereouer I will make Moab waste (say the Lord) frome the offernges & censurges that he hath made vnto her goddes in high places. Wherefore my herbe mourner for Moab, like a croud playing an heuy song: and for the mens sake of the byche wall my herbe mourner also, euen as a pynde that putteth a dolefull songe: for they shall be very fere, and destroyed.

All heades shall be shauen, and all beards clipped of: all handes bounde, and all lynes gyded about with sackcloth. Vpon all the house toppes and streets of Moab, there shall be mourninge: For I will byche Moab lyke an vnsupportable vessel say the Lord. O howe fearefull is he? O howe mourneth he? O howe doth Moab hang downe her head, and is ashamed? Thus shall Moab be a laughing stocke, and had in derision of all them, that be rounde aboute her.

For thus say the Lord: Beholde, the enemy shall come spryng as an Eagle, & spreade his wynges vpon Moab. They shall clyme ouer the walles, and wiane the strong holdes. When the myghtye men heres in Moab shall be lyke the hee of a woman trauersing with childe.

And Moab shall be made so desolate, that she shall no more be a people, because we haue set by her selfe agaynst the Lord. Feare, pynde, and snare shall come vpon the (O Moab) say the Lord. Who so escapeth the feare, shall fall in the pynde: and who so getteth out of the pynde, shall be taken in the snare.

For I will byng a peate of bysitation vpon Moab, say the Lord. They that are hable to fyre, shall stande vnder the shadowe of Heleb. For there shall go a fyre out of Heleb, and a flame from Sion, and shall burne by that proude people of Moab, bothe before and behynde.

We be vnto the (O Moab) for thou people of Chamos shalt perishe: Yea thy tonnes and daughters shall be led awaye captiue. Yet at the laste will I byng Moab out of captiuitie agayne, say the Lord. Thus saith the Lord of the plague of Moab.

The wordes of the Lord agaynst the Ammonites, agaynst Idumea, Damascus, Cedar, and Elam.

CAPL XLIX.

As concerninge the Ammonites, thus say the Lord: Hath Israel no chyldren, or is he without an herie? Why hath your henge then taken Gad in? wherefore doth his people dwell in his ctyes? Beholde therefore, the tyme cometh (say the Lord) that I will byng a noyle of warre into Rabah of the Ammonites. Rabah shall be desolate, and her ctyes burnt vp: and the Israelites shall be Lordes ouer those that had them in possession afore, say the Lord. Heleb shall mourne, for it shall be rote out of the grounde, say the Lord. The ctyes of Rabah shall crye out, and gyde the selues with sackcloth: they shall mourne, & runne aboute the walles: for their kynge shall be led awaye pyloner: yea his prekes and pynde with him.

Wherefore trustest thou in the water streames that flowe to and fro, O thou feare daughter: and thinkest thou arte so safe (by reason of thy treasure) that no man shall come to the?

Beholde, I will byng a feare vpon the, say the Lord God of Hostes, from all those that be about the: so that ye shall be feared euery man frome an other, and no man shall gader

Jeremiah. they shall mourne and fall. Though Babylon be destroyed, yet shall I send her destroyers, sayth the Lord.

A piteous crye shall be heard from Babylon, and a great myserie from the lande of the Caldees: when the Lord destroyeth the, and when he drieth out the hye stomache, and ponde bolling, wherewith they haue ben as furious as the waues of great water flowes, and made greates crakes with their woordes. For the destroyers shall come vpon her, (even vpon Babylon) whiche shall take her wofulnes, and breake theyr bowes: for God is disposed to auenge him selfe vpon them, and sufficiently to recompence them. Yea, sayth the Lord, I will make theyr Princes, thei wyle men, theyr chiefe rulers and all theyr wofulnes broken: so that they shall sleepe an euerlastyng sleepe, and neuer wake: Thus sayth the hyge, whose name is the Lord of hostes.

Moyses. thus sayth the Lord of hostes: The thicke wall of Babylon shall be broken, and her ponde gates shall be brente vp. And the thing that the Scythes and the people haue wrought with greates traueple & labour, shall come to nought, and be consumed in the fyre.

This is the charge that Jeremie gaue vnto Saraiab the son of Ieriah, the son of Masaiab, when he went towards Babylon with Sedechias the kyng of Iuda, in the fourth yere of his reigne. Now this Saraiab was a peaceable puer. Jeremie wrote in a booke all the myserie that shoulde come vpon Babylon, yea and all these sermons that he wrytten against Babylon, and gaue Saraiab this charge: When thou comest vnto Babylon, se that thou rede all these wordes and saye: O Lord thou art determined to rote out this place, so that neither people nor castell shall dwelle there any more, but to lye waste for ever: and whiche thou hast red out the booke, bynde a stone to it, and cast it in the wydded of Euphrates and say: Even thus shall Babylon sinke, and be thurst wane with the burthen of trouble that I wil bring vpon her: so that the wal neyther come vp agayne. Thus saith the Lord of hostes, the Lord of Ieremie.

The repreteth the takinge of Sedechias. Jerusalem is taken of the Caldees. Sedechias sonnes are hylled before his face, and his eyes put out. The citye is burned. The temple is spoiled and robbed. They that were left in Jerusalem, are caried to Babylon. Kyng Joahim is brought forth of prison, and sedde in a hyge.

CAPL

LII.

Sedechias was one and twenty yere olde when he was made kyng, and he reigned cleuen yere in Jerusalem. His motheres name was Hamutal, Jeremies daughter of Lobnah. He lrued wickedly before the Lord, as Joahim dyd. Wherefore the Lord was angrye at Jerusalem and Iuda, so longe tyll he had cast them out of his presence. And Sedechias fel from the hyge of Babylon. But in the nyenth yere of his reigne, in the tenth moneth, the tenth daye of the moneth, it happened that Nabuchodonosor the kyng of Babylon with all his host came before Jerusalem, and besieged it, and made them bulwarkes rounde about it. And this besieginge of the citye endured vnto the eleuenth yere of kyng Sedechias.

And in the fourth moneth, the nyenth daye of the moneth, there was a greates hunger in the city, that there were no more vitayles for the people of the lande. So all the southerners brake away, and fled out of the city by night, whosome the waye of the porte betwene the two walles by the kynges garden. Now the Caldees hadde compassed the citye rounde about, yet went these men their waye toward the wilderness.

And so the Caldees folowed vpon them, and toke Sedechias the kyng in the felde of Jericho, when his horse was run from hym. So they caried the kyng awaye prisoner to Babelath, vnto the kyng of Babylon in the lande of Hemath, where he gaue indgement vpon hym.

The kyng of Babylon also caused Sedechias sonnes to be slayne before his face, yea and put al the princes of Iuda to deeth at Babelath. Moreover he put out the eyes of Sedechias, caused hym to be bounde with cheynes, to be caried vnto Babylon: and let hym lye in prison tyll he dyed.

Now the tenth daye of the fyfth moneth in the nyenth yere of Nabuchodonosor kyng of Babylon, Nabuzardan the chiefe capitayne and the kyng of Babylons seruauntes came vnto Jerusalem, and brente the house of the Lord.

He brent also the kynges palace, all the houses and all the gorgeous buyldynges in Jerusalem.

And the hole booke of the Caldees that were with the chiefe Capitayne, brake downe the walles of Jerusalem rounde aboute.

As for the poore people, and such folke as yet was left in the citye, whiche also were fallen to the kyng of Babylon, yea and what people as yet remayned: Nabuzardan the chiefe Capitayne caried them awaye prisoners.

But the poore people of the countrey dyd Nabuzardan the chiefe Capitayne leave in the lande, to occupye the bynarydes and feldes.

The Caldees also brake the brasen pylles that were in the house of the Lord, yea the seate and the brasen Lawe that was in the house of the Lord: and caried all the mynall of them vnto Babylon.

They toke awaye also the Cauldrons, Shoullies, fleshe hookes, Spyncklers, Spices, and all the brasen vessel that was occupied in the seruice: with the basens, cole pans, spyncklers, pottes, candellytyches, spoons, and cuppes: wherof some were of golde, and some of silver.

The chiefe Capitayne toke also the two pylles, the lawes, the twelue brasen bulwarkes that were vnder the seate, whiche hyge Salomon made in the house of the Lord: and all the vessel coneyned to moche metal that it might not be weyed. For every pylle was righte cubites hye, and the rope that went about it was twelue cubytes and foure synners thicke and round: Now vpon the rope were brasen knoppes, and every knop was, v. cubites hye: and vpon the knoppes were hope and pomegranettes round about of cleue handes.

After this maner were both the pylles fastened with the pomegranettes, wherof there were an hundred foure score and fixt, and which hanged vpon the hopes round aboute. The chiefe Capitayne also toke Saraiab the puer, and Sophoniah that was chiefe in the house, and the thye keepers of the treasure. He toke out of the citye a chamberlaine whiche was a capitayne of the souldyers, and seuen men that were the kynges seruauntes, whiche were founde in the citye: and Daphet a capitayne that dyd to murther the men of warre that were in the citye. These Nabuzardan the chiefe Capitayne toke, and caried them to the hyge of Babylon vnto Babelath: and the kyng of Babylon caused them to be put to deathe at Babelath in the land of Hemath. And thus Iuda was lede awaye captiue.

out of his owne lande. This is the summe of the people, whom Nabuchodonosor led awaye captiue.

In the tenth yere of his reigne, he caried awaye of the Jewes, the thye thome and xiiij. In the eleventh yere Nabuchodonosor caried awaye from Jerusalem eight hundred and two and foure persons. In the twelfth and thirteenth yere of Nabuchodonosor, Nabuzardan the chiefe Capitayne toke awaye seuen hundred, xlv. Jewes prisoners. The hole summe of all the prisoners, is foure thousande and sixe hundred.

In the xxiij. yere after that Joahim the kyng of Iuda was caried awaye, in the xlv. daye of the xiiij. moneth, Zullimerach kyng of Babylon (the same yere that he reigned) gaue Joahim the kyng of Iuda his pardon, and let hym out of prison, and spake louingly to hym, and set his choyse aboute the choyse of the other kynges that were with hym in Babylon. He chaunged also the clothes of his prisoner, yea he ate with hym all his lyfe long. And he had a continual iuyng given hym of the kyng of Babylon, every daye a certayne iuyng alowed hym al the dayes of his life, vntill he dyed.

THE LAMENTATIONS
THE LAMENTATIONS. OF IEREMYE.

These wordes are receaved in the xx. Interpretations, but not in the Hebrew.

It happened after Israel was brought in to captivite and Jerusalem destroyed, that Jeremie the prophet sawe wepyng, and sorrowfully bewailed Jerusalem: and sighing and howling with an heuy and wofull herte, sayd:

of her miserie and disobedience, yea the joye and pleasure that she hath had in tymes past: for she people is brought downe thowm the power of their enemye, and there is no man for to helpe her: her enemyes stande lookinge at her, and laugh her Saboth dayes to scorn.

CAPL.

I.

HETH.

ALEPH.

u. Reg. l. iii. b. u. Reg. p. b. a.

As howe sytteth the city so desolat, that somtyme was full of people? How is she become like a widow whiche was the lady of all nations? How is she brought under tribute? ruled all landes?

Jerusalem synned ever more and more, therefore is she come to decaye. All they that had her in honour, despise her: for they have sene her fylthyng. Yea she is ashamed of her selfe.

TETH.

Her chastites are defiled, she remembred not what word foloweth: therefore is her fall so great and there is no man to comfort her. O Lord console my trouble, for myne enemye hath the upper hande.

IOD.

The enemye hath put his hande to all the precious thynges that we had: yea even before her eyes came the heathen in and out of the Sanctuary whome thou (Jerusalem) hadst forbidden to come within thy congregation.

CAPH.

All her people like their breed with her: and loke what precious thynges every man hath, that giveth he for meat to saue his life. Therefore, O Lord, and se, howe vile I am become.

LAMED.

O ye all that go for by, beholde and se, if ther be any sorrow like unto myne, wherewith the Lord hath troubled me in the daye of myne sorrow.

MEM.

From above hath he sent downe a fyre in to my bones, and chafened me: he hath layd a net for my feet, and thowen me therin: he hath made me desolate, so that I must crye and be mourninge.

NVN.

The yoke of my transgression is come of the laste, with his hande hath he taken it up, and put it aboute my necke. My strength is gone: the Lord hath broken myne arm, and thowen myne hande, from which I can not quyte my selfe.

SAMECH.

Now dothe Jerusalem remembre the tyme

The Lord hath destroyed all his mighty men that were in me. He hath proclaymed a feed, to slaughter all my best men. The Lord hath brought downe the daughter of Juda, lyke as it were a wyne presse.

AIN.

Therefore doe I wepe, and myne eyes gush out water: for the comforter that shoulde quicken me, is farre fro me. My children are drye as a wyne, for why? the enemy hath gotten the upper hande.

PHE.

Syon casteth out her handes, & there is to man to comfort her. The Lord hath layd the enemyes rounde aboute Jacob, and Jerusalem is as it were a menstruous woman in the myddell of them.

ZADE.

The Lord is righteous, for I have provoked him to his countenance unto anger. O take heed all ye people, and confesse my heynousnesse: My maydens and my yonge men are led awaye into captivite.

KOPH.

I called for my lovers (but they begyled me) for my priestes and counsellors, but they perished: even whyle they sought for meat to save their lives.

RES.

Consider (O Lord) howe I am troubled, my kybbe is disquieted, my herte turneth about in me, and I am full of heynousnesse. The sword hath cutt me without, and within I am lyke unto myn.

SIN.

Thou heare my mourning, but there is none that wil comfort me. All myne enemyes have heard of my trouble, & are glad therof, because thou hast done it. But thou shalt bring forth the tyme, whyle they also shal be lyke unto me.

THAV.

From the what come all their adversities, thou shalt plucke them awaye, such as thou haste punished me because of all my wickednesse. For my sorrow is very greave, and my herte is drye.

CAPL.

II.

ALEPH.

As howe hath the Lord darkened the daughter of Sion so sore in his wrath? As for the honour of Israel, he hath casten it downe from heven: howe happenneth it, that he remembred not his own foete sold, when he was angry?

BETH.

The Lord hath cast downe all the glorye of Jacob without any fauour: all the strong places of the daughter Juda hath he broken in his wrath, and thowen them downe to the ground: her kyngdome and her princes hath he suspended.

GIMEL.

In the wrath of his indignacion he hath broken all the home of Israel: he hath withdrawn his ryghte hande frome the enemye: yea, a flambe of fyre is kindled in Jacob, and hath consumed up all rounde aboute.

For he hath destroyed the strength, power, nobylite and dominion.

DALETH.

He hath bent his bowe lyke an enemye, he hath fastened his ryghte hande as an aduersarye: and ruyne thynges that was pleasaunt to se, he hath smytten it downe. He hath powred oute his wrath lyke a fyre, in to the tabernacle of the daughter of Syon.

HE.

The Lord is become lyke as it were an enemye, he hath caste downe Israel and all his places: yea, all his strong holdes hath he destroyed, and fylled the daughter of Juda with moche sorrowe and heynousnesse.

VAV.

Her tabernacle (whiche was lyke a gardeyn of pleasure) hath he destroyed: her hye solemne feastes hath he put downe. The Lord hath brought it so to passe, that for hye solemne feastes and Saboths in Sion, accorde clyene forgotten. In his heuy displeasure hath he made the kyng and priestes to be despyled.

ZAIN.

The Lord hath forsaken his owne altar, and is wythe with his owne Sanctuary, and hath gyven the walles of their towres in to the handes of the enemye. Their enemyes made a noyse in the house of the Lord, as it had bene in a solemne feast daye.

HETH.

The Lord thoughte to breake downe the walles of the daughter Sion: he spredde oute his lyne, and dyde not in his hande, yll he had destroyed them. Therefore mourning mounte the currettes and the broken walles together.

TETH.

Her postes are casten downe to the ground,
her barres are broken and smytten in sonder:
her Rynges and Rynges are carped awaye to the Gentyles. They haue neyther lawe ne Prophetes, nor yet any vision frome the Lorde.

IOD.

The Senatours of the daughter Syon syt vpon the grounde in silence: they haue drownded althes vpon theyr heedes, and crye dred them selues with sackcloth. The maydes of Ierusalem hange downe theyr heedes to the grounde.

CAPH.

Myne eyes begyn to faile me thowowt ping, my body is disquiete, my lyuer is pow-red vpon the erth, for the great hure of my people, seeing the chyldren and babes byd swowne in the strettes of the city.

LAMED.

Even when they speake to theyr mothers:
where is meat and drinke? for whyle they so sare, they sel downe in the strettes of the city lyke as they had ben wounded, and some died in their mothers bosome.

MEM.

What shall I saie of the, O thou dought-er Ierusalem, to whome shall I liken the? To whome shall I compare the, O thou daughter Syon, to comforte the with-all? Thy hure is lyke a mayne tree, who may heale the?

NVN.

The Prophetes haue looked out dayne and solliue thynges for the, they haue not shewed the of thy wickednesse, to kepe the from capti-uete: but haue overlaiden the, & thowowt heth scattered the abysse.

SAMECH.

All they that go by the, clap their handes at the: bysling and magging their heedes vpon the daughter Ierusalem, and saie: is this the city that men call to sayre, wherein the hole laboure reioyseth.

AIN.

All thine enemyes gape vpon the, whilpering and byrting their teth: leping: let vs reuenge: for the tyme that we loach for is come:
wee shall haue sound and sene it.

PHE.

The Lorde hath fulfilled the thing that he was purposed to do: and performed that he had deuised long ago: he hath destroyed and not spared. He hath caused thine aduersarye to triumphe ouer the, and set vp the hope of thyne enemye.

ZADE.

Let thine herte crye vnto the Lorde, O thou clype of the daughter of Syon: let thy teares runne downe lyke a ryuer, daye and night: rest not, and let not the apple of thine eye leaue of.

KOPH.

Stand vp and make thy prayer in the first watch of the night: poure out thine herte like water before the Lorde: lift vp thine hands for the lyues of thy yong chyldren that byt of honger in the strettes.

RES.

Beholde, O Lorde, and confide, why hat thou gathered me vp so clyne? Shall the women then eate theyr owne fruite, euen chyldren of a span longe? Shall the virgins and Prophetes be slayne thus in the Sanctuary of the Lorde?

SIN.

Yong and olde lye behynde the strettes vpon the grounde, my maydens and yonge men are slayne with the sword: whom thou in thy daye of thy wrathful indignacion hast put to de-th, euen thou hast put them to deth, and not spared them.

THAV.

My neighbours that are round about me, hast thou called, as it were to a feed daye: so that in the day of the Lordes wrath none remained, neyther was any left behynde. Woe that I had broughte vp and nourished, hath myne enemye destroyed.

CAPI.

ALEPH.

I am the man, that (thowowt the rod of his wrath) haue experience of misery.
He brought me forth, and led me: yea into darknesse, but not in to light.
Agaynst me onely he turneth his hand, and lareth it crie vpon me.

BETH.

My kisse and my kyn hath he made an-ty, and my bones hath he broked.
He hath buryed rounde aboute me, and closed me in with gall and cranyle.

He hath set me in darknesse, as they that are dead for euer.

GIMEL.

He hath so hedged me in, I can not get out, and hath layed heavy lynches vpon me.
Though I crye and call piteously, yet hea-ren he not my prayer.
He hath stopped vp my wayes with founteained stones, and made my pathes croked.

DALETH.

He lareth wayte for me lyke a Beare, and as a Lyon in a hole.
He hath matted my wayes, and broken me in peces, he hath layed me waste al together.
He hath bent his bowe, and made me as thou a marke to shoute at.

HE.

The arrowes of his quyer hath he shot, euen vnto my reynes.
I am laughed to scoone of all my people, they make songes vpon me, all the daye longe.
He hath fylled me with byternesse and ge-tyme wormwood to drynke.

VAV.

He hath smytten my teth in peces, and col-lud me in the duste.
He hath put my soule out of rest, I forget all good thynges.
I thought in my self: I am vndone, there is no hope for me in the Lorde.

ZAIN.

O remembre yet my misery and my trouble the wormwood and the gall.
Yea thou shalt remembre them, for my soule melteth awaye in me.
Whyle I cōspire these thynges in my hert
I get a hope agayne.

HETH.

Samely, that the mercies of the Lorde are not cleane gone, and that his louynge lynches ceaseth not.
His saychfulnesse is greates, and renueth his selfe as the moynynge.
The Lorde is my porcion, sayth my soule, therefore will I hope in him.

TETH.

O howe good is the Lorde vnto them, that put their truste in him, and to the soule that seeketh after him.
O howe good is it with slynesse to wayte and say, for the helth of the Lorde?
O howe good is it for a man, to take the rocke vpon him from his youth vp.

IOD.

He syteth alone, he holdeth him still, and dwelleth quietly by hym self.
He lareth his face vpon the earth, yf perchance there happen to be any hope.
He offereth his cheke to the smiter, he will be content with reproches.

CAPH.

For the Lorde will not forsake for euer.
But though he do caste of, yet accordyng to the multitude of his mercies, he receyuet to grace agayne.
For he doth not plage, and caste out the chyldren of men from his herte.

LAMED.

To treade all the pysoners of the earthe vnder his fete.
To moue the iudgement of man before the most hyghest.
To condemne a man in his cause: The Lorde hath no pleasure in suche thynges.

MEM.

What is he then that sayth: there shalbe somthyng done without the Lorde: des-maundement?
Out of the mouth of the most hyghest geeth not euell and good?
Wherefore then murmureth the luyngge man? lette him murmure at his owne synne.

NVN.

Let vs loke well vpon oure owne wayes, and remembre oure selues, and turne agayne to the Lorde.
Let vs lyfte vp oure hertes with our han-des vnto the Lorde that is in heauen.
We haue bene dissemblers, and haue offended, wyle thou therfore not be incensed?

SAMECH.

Thou hast couered vs in thy wrath, and persecuted vs, thou hast slayne vs without any fauoure.
Thou hast hyd thy selfe in a cloude, that our prayer shulde not go thowowt.
Thou hast made vs out rakes, and to be despyed amonge the byrthen.

AIN.

All our enemyes gape vpon vs.
Feare and Inare is come vpon vs, yea des-pyte and destruction.
Hole ruers of water gulle oute of myne eyes, for the greates hure of my people.

PHE.

Myne eyes runne, and can not cease, for there is no rest.
O Lorde when wilt thou loke downe from heauen, and conserue?
Myne eye breaketh my heart, because of all the daughters of my ctye.

ZADE.

Myne enemies hunted me out sharply, lyke a hyde, yea and that without a cause.
They haue put downe my lyfe in to a pye, and layed a stone vpon me.
They poured water vpon my heade, then thought I: nowe am I done.

KOPH.

I called vpon thy name, O Lorde, oute of the depe pytte
Thou haste herde my voyce, and haste not turned awaye thine eares fro my spyngynge and ceping.
Thou haste enclayned thy selfe vnto me, when I called vpon the, and hast sayd: feare not.

RES.

Thou (O Lorde) hast mainteyned the cause of my soule, and haste redeemed my lyfe.
O Lorde, thou haste sene my blasphemyes take thou my cause vpon the.
Thou hast well considered howe they go a bout to do me harme, and that al theyr counsels are agaynst me.

SIN.

Thou hast herde theyr dyspytfull wordes (O Lorde) yea and all theyr ymaginacions agaynst me.
The yppes of myne enemies, and their deuyces that they take agaynst me, all the daye longe.
Thou seest also their spyngynge downe and their spyngynge vp, they make their songes of nothinge but of me.

THAV.

Retwarde them (O Lorde) accordynge to the works of their handes.
Gyne them the thynge, that their owne herte is asayed of: euen thy curse.
Persecute them (O Lorde) with thynne in-signacion, and rote them out frome vnder the heauen.

ALEPH.

Howe is the golde become so dysmyne?
Howe is the goodly coloure of it so fayne chaunged? and the stones of the Sanctuary thus scattered in the corner of every strete.

The chyldren of Syon that were alwaye in honour, and clothed with the moost precious gold: howe are they now become like the erthen vessels whiche be made with the potters hande.

GYMEL.

The Lannes gyne their young ones like with bare bysses: But the daughter of my people is cruel, and dwelleth in the wyldernesse: lyke the Estrich es.

DALETH.

The tanges of the suckynge chyldren, clene for the sake of their mouthes for very thyrst.
The yonger chyldren as the byrd, but there is no man, that graeth it them.

HE.

They that were wont to fare delicately, peryshe in the stretes: they that afore were brought vp in purple, make nowe moche of hangs.

VAV.

The synne of the daughter of my people is become greater then the wyckednesse of Sodom, that sodenly was destroyed, and not taken with handes.

ZAIN.

Her abhayners (O Nazarenes) were whyle then the snow of mylke: their coloure was freshe as the Rosall, their beaute lyke the Sappir.

HETH.

But nowe their faces are very blacke: In so moche, that thou shouldest not knowe them in the stretes. Their skynne cleauid to their bones, It is wythered, and become lyke a drye Rocke.

TETH.

They that be fayne with the swerde, ar happier then suche as dye of hongre, and perish the awaye famyshing for the tutes of the felde.

IOD.

The women (whiche of nature are pitie-full) haue sodden their owne chyldren with their handes that they myght be their meate in the miserable destruction of the daughter of my people.

CAPH.

The Lorde hath persecuted his best worth: he hath poured out the fury of his of his displeasure. He hath kyndled a fyre in Sion, whiche hath consumed the foundations thereof.
Lamed.

LAMED.

Neither the kinges of the earthe, ne all the habytantes of the world, wolde haue believed that Ieremye adversary shoulde haue come at the gates of the cite of Ierusalem.

MEM.

Whiche neuertheles is come to passe for the handes of her prophetes, and for the wickednes of her prophetes that haue shed innocent blode within her.

NVN.

So that these bynd men went stombling in the stretes, and slayned them selues with blades, whiche els wolde haue no bloudy deed.

SAMECH.

But they cryed vnto every man: flee the smyte, awaye, get you hence, touch it not.
Yea (sayde they) ye must be bynt, ye must dye among the Gentyles, & byde no longer here.

AIN.

The countenance of the Lorde hath bas-tardized them, and shall neuer loke more vpon them: for they the selues neither regarded the lawes, nor putted their elders.

PHE.

Wherfore yet our eyes sayle vs, while we lye for payne helpe: seyinge we be curred bynt vpon a people, that can do vs no good.

ZADE.

They laye so warpe wait for vs, that we cannot go safe vpon the stretes: for our meate is come, our dayes are fulfilled, our meate is hert.

KOPH.

Our persecutours are swifter then the eyles of the ayre, they folowed vpon vs ouer the mountaynes, and layed waite for vs

RES.

The very breth of our mouth: euen the conspyrated Lorde him selfe shall be taken in our synnes, of whome we saye: Under his shadowe we shall be preserued amonge the gentyles.

SIN.

And thou O (daughter Sion) that dwel-lest in the lande of Egipt, be glad and reioyce:
for the cuppe shall come vnto the also, whiche when thou suppest of thou shalt be dysconforted.

THAV.

Thy syn is wel punished (O thou dugh-ter Sion) be shall not suffre the to be carped

The prayer of Ieremye.

All to remembraunce (O Lorde) what we haue suffered, conserue and se our consolation. Dure inheritance is turned to the straungers, and oure houses to the alca-tes, we are become carefull and fatherlesse, our mothers are as the wydowes. We are fayne to drynke oure owne water for mony, and our owne wod must we bye with mony.
Our neckes are vnder persecucion, we are werpe, and haue no rest.

Afore tyme we yelided oure selues to the Egyptians, and nowe to the Assyrians, onely that we myghte haue byed ynough. Dure sa-thers (whiche now are gone) haue synned, & we must bare their wyckednes. Seruantes haue the rule of vs, and no man deliuereth vs out of their handes. We muste get our lyuynge with the perill of oure lyues because of the mouth of the wilderness.

Dure skynne is as it had bene bynt in an oven, for verie soze hunger. The wyues are raupished in Sion, and the maydens in the citties of Iuda. The princes are hanged vpon the hand of the enemies, they haue not spared the old sage men, they haue take yong mens lyues from them, and the boyes are haged vpon vpon cress. The elders yet no more vnder the gates, and the yong men vse no more playng of Quicke. The hope of our hert is gone, our meyt quere is turned in to moue-nyng. The garlande of oure heed is fallen:
alas, that euer we synned so soze.

Wherfore oure herte is full of heynesse, and oure eyes dymme: because of the byll of Sion that is destroyed. In so moche, that the foxes run vpon it. But thou, O Lorde, that remayned for euer more, and thy seate wolde withoute ende: wherfore wilt thou aply forget vs, and forsake vs so longe? O Lorde, turne thou vs vnto the, and so shall we be turned. Renewe oure dayes as in olde tymes, for thou hast banysht vs now long ynough, and hast bene soze displeased at vs.

The time wherein Ezechiel prophesied, and in what place. His vision and office. The vision of the four beastes. The vision of the wheles. The vision of the throne, and of the image about the throne.

CAPL.

I.

I chaunced in the thirthe yere the fyfth daye of the fourth moneth, that I was amonge the prysoners by the ryuer of Eobar: where the heauens opened, and I sawe a vision of God. Nowe the fyfth daye of the moneth made out the fyfth yere of kyng Joas: as the captiuitie. At the same tyme came the worde of the Lorde vnto Ezechiel the sonne of Buzi the pnest, in the lande of the Caldees by the water of Eobar, where the hande of the Lorde came vpon him.

And I looked, and beholde a stormy wynde came out of the Northe with a greate cloude full of fyre, which in his gyfte lyghtened all rounde about. And in the myddell of the fyre it was all cleare, and as it were the lykenesse of four beastes, whiche were fastyned like a man: sauyng, that euer one had foure faces and foure wynges.

Their legges were streyght, but their fete were lyke bullockes fete, and they glydred, as it had bene saye scoured metall. And their wynges vpon all the foure corners they had mens handes. Their faces & their wynges were toward the foure corners: yet were the wynges so, that one euer touched an other. When they went, they turned the not about: but echone went straight forwarde.

Vpon the ryghte syde of these foure, thre faces were lyke the face of a man, and the face of a Lyon: But vpon the left syde, they had the face of an oxe, and the face of an Eagle. Their faces also and their wynges were spred out about: so that two wynges of one touched euer two wynges of an other, and with the other they couered their body. Euerie one when it went, it went straight forwarde. Where as the spirite led them thither they went, and turned not about in theyr goyng.

The fastyon and countenance of the beastes was lyke hote coles of fyre, such as though burninge ressettes had bene amonge the beastes: and the fyre gaue a glyste, and out of the fyre there went lyghtenyng. When the beastes went forwarde and backwarde, one wolde haue thoughte it had lyghtened. Nowe when I had well considered the beastes, I sawe a wythe of wheles vpon the earth with foure faces also lyke the beastes.

The fastyon and wythe of the wheles was lyke the see. The foure wheles were iopned and made to lye vpon as it had bene one whele in an other. When one went forwarde, they went all foure, and turned them not about in their goyng. They were large, greace and horrible to lye vpon. Their bodies were full of eyes rounde aboute them of foure. When the beastes went, the wheles went also with them: And when the beastes lyft them selues vp from the earth, the wheles were lyfte vp also. Whiche foure the spirite went thither went they also, and the wheles were lyfte vp, and folowed them: for the spirite of lyfe was in the wheles.

When the beastes went forth, now all of lyft them selues vp from the earth: then the wheles also went, nowe apyll, and were lyfte vp, for the vythe of lyfe was in the wheles.

Above ouer the beedes of the beastes there was a firmament, whiche was fastyned as it had bene of the moneth pure Crystal, that was lyft out aboute vpon their heades: vnder the same firmament were their wynges layde abode, one towarde an other, and two wynges couered the body of euerie beest. And when they went forth, I beholde the nysle of their wynges, like the nysle of grete waters, as it had bene the bope of the grete God, a rushing together as it were of an host of men. And when they stode apyll, they let downe their wynges.

Nowe when they stode apyll, and had letten downe their wynges, it shonned in the firmament that was above their heades: above the firmament that was ouer their heades, there was the fastyon of a seate, as it had bene made of Saphir. Vpon it sat one lyke a man. I beheld him, and he was lyke a cleare lyghte, as it had bene all of fyre with in from his loynes upwarde.

And beneath when I looked vpon him, the loynes, me thoughte he was lyke a wynged fyre, that gnyeth lyght on euerie syde. Yea the wyne & glyste that lyghtened rounde aboute, was lyke a raynbow, whiche in a raynye daye appeareth in the cloudes. Such so was the semyllitude, wheris the glorye of the Lorde appeared. When I sawe it, I fell vpon my face, and harkened vnto the voyce of him that spake.

The prophete is sente to call agayne the people from theyr errour.

CAPL.

II.

Ad then sayde he vnto me: Stande vpon thy fete (o thou sonne of man) I will talke with thee. And as he was communyng with me, the spirite came in to me, and set me vp vpon my fete: so that I was ked the thynge. He sayd vnto me, And he sayd: Beholde, thou sonne of man: I will sette the to the chylidren of Israel, to those that have gates and obstinate people: for they haue taken parte agayn me, and are runne away from me: both they and their forfathers to this daye.

Yea I will sende the vnto a people that haue rough bylages and styffe stomaches: vnto whom thou shalt saye on this maner: Thus the Lorde God him selfe hath spoken, that whether they be obedynt or no (for it is a stowarde householde) they maye knowe yet that there hath bene a Prophete amonge them.

Therfore (thou sonne of man) feare them not, neither be afrayed of their wordes: for they shall rebell agaynste the, and despyle the.

Yea thou shalt dwell amonge scorpions: but feare not their wordes, be not abashed at their lokes, for it is a stowarde householde.

As that thou speake my wordes vnto the, whether they be obedynt or not, for they are chylidren. Therfore thou sonne of man, obey then all thynges, that I saye vnto the, & be not thou despycked, lyke as they are a stowarde householde. Open thy mouth and eate that I giue the.

So as I was lokyng vpon, beholde, there was sent vnto me an hande, wherin was a deked boke: and the hande opened it before me, and it was wyrtten within and without, full of careful moutaynges: alas, and wo.

The Prophete beyng fedde with the worde of God with the constant boldnesse of the spere, is sent vnto the people that were in captiuitie. The purgament of a curate that sheweth not the people thynges.

CAPL.

III.

After this sayde he vnto me: Thou sonne of man, eate that, whatsoeuer it be: yea eate that deked boke and goe thy waye, and speake vnto the chylidren of Israel. So I opened my mouth, and he gaue me the boke for to eate, and sayde vnto me: Thou sonne of man, thy bely shall eate, and thy bowels shall be fylled with the boke, that I giue the. When thou shalt eate the boke, it was in my mouth sweter then honey. And he sayde vnto me: Thou sonne of man, get thee soone vnto the house of Israel, and shewe them the wordes, that I commaunde the: for I sende the not to the people that hath a strange, unknowen, or harde speache, but vnto the house of Israel: not to many nations, whiche haue dyuerse speaches and harde languages, whose wordes thou understandest not. Therfore, if I sent the to those people they wolde folowe the: But the house of Israel will not folowe the, for they will not loue me: yea all the house of Israel haue set their faces and harde hertes. Beholde therefore, I will make thy face preuayle as iron: and thine harden thy foreheade agaynste their foreheades: so that thy foreheade shall be harder then an Adamant or flint stone: that thou mayest feare them the lesse, and be not afrayed of them, for they are a stowarde householde.

He sayde moreover vnto me: Thou sonne of man, take diligent hede with thine eares to the wordes that I speake vnto the, fasten them in thine herte: and go to the prysoners of thy people, speake vnto them, and saye on this maner: Thus the Lorde God hath spoken: whether ye heare, or heare not. With that the spirite toke me vp. And I beholde the nysle of a grete rushinge and remouyng of the moste blessed glorye of the Lorde out of his place.

I beholde also the nysle of the wynges of the beastes, that rushed one agaynst an other yea and the rushing of the wheles, that were by them, whiche rushinge and nysle was very greate.

Nowe when the spirite toke me vp: and carried me awaye, I went with an heu and a sorrowfull mynde, but the hande of the Lorde comforted me right soone.

And so in the begynnyng of the moneth Abib, I came to the prysoners (that dwell by the water of Eobar, and remayned in that place, where they were: And so continued I amonge them seven dayes, beinge verie soye.

And when the seven dayes were expired, the Lorde sayde vnto me: Thou sonne of man, I haue made the a watchman vnto the house of Israel: therfore take good hede to the wordes, and geue them warnyng at my commaundement.

If I saye vnto the, concernyng the vngodlye man, that (withoute doubte) he muste dye, and thou gyuest hym not warnyng, ne speakest vnto him, that he maye tene frome his euyl waye, and so to lyue: Then shall the same vngodlye man dye in his owne vngodlye tounes: but his bloude wyl I requyre of thyne hande. Neuertheles, if thou gyue warnyng vnto the wycked, and he yet forsake not his vngodlynes: then shall he dye in his owne wyckednesse, but thou hast discharged thy soule.

Now if a ryghteous man go from his ryghteousnesse, and do the thynges that is euyl: I wyl laye a stowmynge blocke before him, & he shall dye, because thou hast not gyuen him warnyng: yea he shall be in his owne son, so that the vertue, whiche he had before, shall not be thought vpon: but his bloude wyl I requyre of thyne hande.

Neuertheles, if thou rebousted the ryghteous, that he synne not, and so the ryghteous do not synne: then shall he lyue, because he hath receyued thy warnyng, and thou hast discharged thy soule. And there came the haub of the Lorde vpon me: and he sayde vnto me: Stande vp, and go into the felde, that I maye there talke with the.

So when I had risen vp, and gone forth in to the felde: Beholde, the glorye of the Lorde stode there, lyke as I sawe it afore, by the water of Eobar.

Then fell I downe vpon my face, and the spirite came in to me, whiche set me vp vpon my fete, and sayd thus vnto me: So the waye and spere thy selfe in thine house. Beholde (o thou sonne of man) there shall charynes be brought for the, to bynde the withall, so that thou shalt not escape out of them. And I will make thy tongue cleave to the rofe of thy mouth, that thou shalt be domme, and not be as a chylder with them: for it is an obynate householde.

But when I speake vnto the, then open thy mouth, and say: Thus sayeth the Lord God: who so heareth, let him heare: who so wyl not, let him leaue: for it is an obynate householde.

The besyge of the cytye of Jerusalem is signified. The longe contynuance of the captiuitie of Israel. An hunger is prophesied to come in the captiuitie.

CAPL.

IIII.

Thou sonne of man: take a tyle stone, and laye it befoze the, and besyge vpon it the cite of Jerusalem, howe it is besyged, howe bulwarkes and stronge dytches are grauen on every syde of it: besyge also sentes, and an house of men rounde about it.

Moresouer, take an yron pan, and sette it betwyxe the and the cite, in the ste of an yron wal. When set thy face toward it, besyge it, and laye obynauces agayn it, to wyne it. This shall be a token vnto the house of Israel.

But thou shalt slepe vpon thy left syde, and laye the synne of the house of Israel vpon the. A certayne dayes appoynted, thou shalt slepe vpon that syde, and beate their synnes. Wherefore, I wyl appoynte the a tyme (to put of their synnes) the nombre of the dayes: Thre hundred and .xx. dayes made thou beate the wyckednesse of the house of Israel. When thou hast fulfilled these dayes, lye downe agayne, and slepe vpon thy ryght syde .xl. dayes, & beate the synnes of the house of Iuda.

Amos. viii.

A daye for a yere, a daye (I saye) for a yere, wyl I euer laye vpon the. Therefore set now thy face agayn the besyged Jerusalem, and besyge thine acme, that thou mayest prophesy agayn it.

Beholde, I wyl laye chaynes vpon the, that thou shalt not turne the frome one syde to an other, tyl thou hast ended the dayes of thy sieg.

Wherefore, take vnto the wheate, barley, beanes, growell seede, spillum and fytches: and put these, togyt yee in a vessel, and make the soues of breade thereof, accordyng to the nombre of the dayes that thou shalt lye vpon thy syde: that thou mayest haue breade to eat, for thre hundred and .xx. dayes.

And the meate that thou eatest, shall haue a certayne wayght appoynted: namely threty spelles euer daye. This appoynted meate shalt thou eate dayly, from the begynnyng to the ende.

Thou shalt drynke also a certayne measure of water: Namely, the fyfte parte of an hin shalt thou drynke dayly from the begynnyng vnto the ende. Besyge take thou eate, yet shalt thou fynde drake: thou ouer with mans donge, that they maye eate. And with that sayde the Lord: Therefore shall the chyldren of Israel eate their besyged meate in the myddes of the Gentyles, among whome I wyl scattere them.

Then sayd I: O Lord God, Beholde, my soule was yet neuer rayned: for fro my youth vnto this houre, I dyd neuer eate of a dead carcase, or of that which was layd of wyde beastes, neither came there into my bulcane fleshe in my mouth.

Whereunto he answered me, and sayde: Well then, I wyl graunt the to take mans donge, for the dong of man, and to drake the dyed ouer withall befoze the.

And he sayd vnto me: Beholde thou sonne of man, I will minyssh all the prouision of bread in Jerusalem, so that they shall be as they be, and eate it with scarcenesse. But as for water, they shall haue a verye litle measure thereof to drynke. And when they shall haue more dyed ne water, one shall be besyged with an other, and sampe the awaye for theyr wyckednesse.

The ryddle of the heares, by which is signified the destruction of the people. The causes of the rage of God towards the people. The Lord besygeth the ryddle of the heares.

CAPL.

V.

O thou sonne of man, take the thynge wherewith they knyfe, namely a ysaie. Take, and haue the piers of thy beere & beere. Then take the scales and the weight, and besyge the beere stander. And burne the thirte parte thereof in the fyre in the myddes of the cite, and cut the other thirte parte in pieces with a knyfe. As for the thirte parte that remaineth, cast it in the wynde, and then shew the bare knyfe.

Yet afterwarde take a tyle of the leue, and bynde it in thy cote lappe. When take a curtyse of it, and cast it in the myddes of the fyre, and burne it in the fyre. Out of the same fyre shall there go a flame vpon the hole house of Israel.

Moresouer, thus sayd the Lord God: this same is Jerusalem, I set her in the myddes of the heathen and nations that are rounde aboute her: but she hath despised my iugementes more then the Gentyles them selues, and broken my commandementes more then the nations that lye rounde aboute her: for they haue cast out mine obynauces, and not walked in my lawes. Therefore thus sayeth the Lord God: For so muche as ye haue yowre wyckednesse farre excide the heathen, that dwell rounde aboute you: (for ye haue not walked in my lawes, neither haue ye kept myne obynauces.) Therefore thus sayeth the Lord God.

I wyl also come vpon the, for in the myddes of the, wyl I fynde in iudgement, in the syght of the heathen, and wyl handle the of as a nation as I neuer had befoze, and as I neuer wyl do from that tyme forth, and not because of all thine abhominacions. For in the, fathers shall be sayne to eate their sonnes, and the sonnes theyr owne fathers. Suche a souere wyl I kepe in the, and the hole remnant wyl I scattere in to all the wyndes.

Wherefore as true as I lye (sayeth the Lord God) I seinge thou hast defyled my Sanctuary with all maner abhominacions, and with all thy shamefull offences. For this cause wyl I also destroye the. Whereof shall not ouercome the, neither wyl I spare the.

One thirde part within the, shall dye of the pestilence and of honger: An other thirde part shall be slayne downe round about the, with the sword: The other thirde parte that remaineth wyl I scattere abrode toward all the wyndes, and drawe out the swordes after the. Thus I wyl ptesoume my indignacion, and set my wrath agayn them, and ease my selfe. So that when I haue fulfilled myne anger agayn the, they shall knowe that I am the Lord, whiche with a seuerie geiulouise I haue spoken it.

Moresouer I wyl make the waste and abhominacions all the heathen that dwell aboute the, and in the syghte of all them that see the: so that when I punish the in my wrath, in myne anger, and with the plage of my hote displeasure, thou shalt be a verye abhominacion, & a galyng and woundinge stroke amonge the heathen that lye aboute the.

Then I the Lord haue spoken it, & it shall come to passe, when I wote amonge them the pylous dates of honger, whiche shall be their death: Yea, therefore shall I wote them, bycause I wyl destroye you. I wyl encrease honger, and minyssh all the prouision of bread amonge you.

Plagues and myserye wyl I sende you, pestilence and bloodsheddyng shall come vpon you, and the sword wyl I brynge ouer you. Then I the Lord haue sayd it.

The thirde that the people shall be plagued for the synne of Idolatrye. The prophesyeth the repentance of the remnant of the people, and theyr destruction. The destruction of the fromager is prophesied.

CAPL.

VI.

Ad the woode of the Lord came vnto me, sayinge: Thou son of man, turne thy face to the mountaynes of Israel, that thou mayest prophesy vnto them, and say: These are the woode of the Lord God, o ye mountaynes of Israel: Thus hath the Lord God spoken to the mountaynes, hylls, valleys and dales.

Beholde, I wyl brynge a sterbe ouer you, and destroye yowre hye places: I wyl cast downe yowre alters, and breake downe your temples. Your hayne men wyl I laye befoze yowre goddes, and the bech caruall of the chyldren of Israel wyl I caste befoze theyr ymages, yowre bones wyl I destroye rounde aboute yowre alters and dwellinge places.

The cities shall be desolate, the hyll cha- pris layde waste: yowre alters destroyed, and broken: yowre goddes caste downe, and taken awaye, your temples layd euen with the grounde, yowre owne wykes cleare rooted oute.

Your hayne men shall lye amonge you, that ye maye leane to knowe howe that I am the Lord. Acce that amonge you haue escaped the sword wyl I leaue amonge the Gentiles, for I wyl scattere you amonge the nations. And they that escape from you shall saye vpon me, howe long the heathen, where they shalbe in captiuitie.

As for that boosyng and vnfaithful herd of theirs, wherewith they run awaye fro me, I wyl breake it: yea and put oute thole eyes of theirs, that commit fornication with theyr ydolles.

Then shall they be ashamed, and displeased with their feltes, for the wickednesse and abhominacions whiche they haue done, and shall leaue to knowe howe that it is not in hayne that I the Lord speake to brynge suche mischance vpon them.

The Lord said moresouer vnto me: Smite thine handes together, and stamp with thy feet, and saye: Wo worthy all the abhominacions and wickednesse of the house of Israel, for because of them they shall perishe with the sword, with honger, & with pestilence. Who so is true of, shall dye of the pestilence: he that is nye at hande, shall perishe with the sword: and the other that be besyged, shall dye of honger.

Thus wyl I satysfy my wrathfull displeasure vpon them. And so shall ye leane to knowe that I am the Lord, when your hayne men lye amonge yowre goddes, and aboute yowre alters: vpon all hye hylls and topes of mountaynes, amonge all grene trees, amonge all thyrke okes: euen in the places where they dyd sacrifice to all theyr ydolles. I wyl stretch myne hande oute vpon them, and wyl make the lande waste: so that it shall lye desolate and voyde, from the wyl- dernesse of Debaiath to the, thowme all their habitacions, to leane them for to knowe that I am the Lord.

The ende of all the lande of Israel shall suddenly come. The cause of the destruction thereof. The prophete is commaunded to shewe the summe of the supplies that are at hande.

CAPL.

VII.

The woode of the Lord came vnto me on this maner: the I call, o thou sonne of man. Thus sayeth the Lord God vnto the

to the lande of Iſrael: The ende cometh, yea truly the ende cometh vpon al the four corners of the erth.

But now ſhal the ende come vpon the: for I will ſende my wrath vpon the, and will puniſhe the: accordinge to thy wayes, and reward the after all thy abhominacions. Eze. vii. b. 1. Myne eye ſhall not ſpare the, neyther will I ſpare the, but reward the accordinge to thy wayes, and declare thy abhominacions. Then ſhall ye knowe that I am the Lorde.

Thus ſaythe the Lorde God: Beholde, one myſtery and plague ſhall come after another: the ende is here. The ende (I ſay) that waiteth for the, is come alreadye, the houre is come agayne the, that dwelled in the lande.

The tyme is at hande, the daye of ſedition is hard by, and no glad rynges vpon the me-incarnes. Therefore I will ſhortly poure out my ſore displeaſure vpon the, and fulfill my wrath vpon the. I will iudge the after thy wayes, and recompence the all thy abhominacions.

Eze. vii. b. 2. Myne eye ſhall not ſpare the, neyther will I ſpare the: but reward the after thy wayes, and ſeue thy abhominacions, to lerne you for to knowe howe that I am the Lorde that ſpyeth. Beholde, the daye is here, the daye is come, the houre is runne out, the robbe ſpyeth, my wrath is kindled, and the vngodly waken to a ſlaue. Yet ſhall there no complaite be made for them, nor for the trouble that ſhall come of theſe thynges.

The tyme cometh, the daye diſturbeth nether who ſo bleth, let him not reſpce: he that ſel leth let him not be ſorry, for wher trouble ſhall come in the midde of all reſt: ſo that the ſel-ler ſhall not come agayne to the byer, for nether of them bothe ſhall lyue.

For the viſion ſhall come ſo greatly ouer al that it ſhall not be hyndred: No man alſo with his wickedneſſe ſhall be able to ſaue his owne lyfe. The trompettes ſhall be blowe and make you all crye, but no man ſhall go to the batel, for I am worthy with all the hole multitude.

The ſwerde ſhall be withoute, peſtilence and hunger within: ſo that who ſo is in the felde, ſhall be ſlayne with the ſwerde: and he that is in the cite ſhall periſhe with hunger and peſtilence.

And ſuche as eſcape and flee from amonge them, ſhall be vpon the hylls, lyke as the do-ucs in the felde: every one ſhall be aſrayed be-cause of his owne wickedneſſe.

All handes ſhall be let downe, and al knees ſhall be weak as the water: they ſhall greeue them ſelues with ſacke clothe, ſcare ſhall fall vpon them. Their faces ſhall be confounded, * as they heedes bald: their ſpurre ſhall lye in the ſtreets, and they golde ſhall be deſpyſed: * Yea their ſpurre and golde maye not deliue them, in the daye of the fearful wrath of the Lorde.

They ſhall not ſatifye theyr hungry ſoules, neither till they emptye theyr bowels: for it is become theyr owne decaye, theſe are their wickedneſſe: becauſe they made themſelves not onely coſtlye Jewels for their pompe and pryde, but alſo abhominable ymages and ydols, for this cauſe will I make the to be abhorred.

Wherefore I will geue it in to the handes of the ſtraigers to be ſpoiled, and to the wicked for to be robbed, and they ſhall deſtroye it. My face will I turne from them, my treaſure ſhall be deſpyſed: for the thurs ſhall go in to it and ſpoile it. I will make cleane daunce, for the lande is hole defiled with vni- righteous iudgement of innocent blood, the city is full of abhominacions. Wherefore I will bring the moſt cruel tyrantes from amonge the heathen, to take theyr houſes in poſſeſſion. I will make ſump of the prynces to reſt, and they ſhall take in their ſanctu-arye. When this trouble cometh, they ſhall ſeek praye, but they ſhall haue none. One miſ-chiefe and ſorrow ſhall folowe another, and one rumour ſhall come after another. Then ſhall they ſeek viſions in vayne at theyr pro-phetes.

The lawe ſhall be gone from the preſtres, and wiſdome frome the eldes. The byrge ſhall mourne, the prynces ſhall be clothed in heuynelle, and the handes of the people in the lande ſhall tremble for feare. I will bea- to them after their owne wayes, and accordyng to theyr owne iudgements will I iudge them: to lerne them for to knowe that I am the Lorde.

An appearance of the ſimilitude of God. Eze- chiel is brought vnto Jeruſalem in the ſpyte. The Lorde ſheweth the prophecie the ſimilitude of the houſe of Iſrael, and cheſely of the preſtres.

CAPL VIII

It happened that in the ſixte yere, the ſixte daye of the ſixte moneth I ſat in my houſe, and the Lordes of the counſel of Iuda with me: and the hande of the Lorde God fell vpon me.

And as I ſlept, I ſaw as it were a lyghtneſſe of fire from his loynes downward, and from his loynes upwarde it ſhined mar-ueylous cleere. This ſimilitude ſtretched out an hande, and toke me by the heere lockes of my heere, and the ſpyrite lyfte me vp betwixt heuen and earthe: and God brought me in a byſhon to Jeruſalem, in to the entre of the inner porte that lyeth toward the north: there ſode an ymage, with whome he that hath all thynges in his power, was ſet vpon the.

And beholde, the gloſſe of the God of Iſrael was in the ſame place: even as I had ſene it afore in the felde. And he ſaid vnto me: Thou ſonne of man, ſiſte by thine eres, and loke toward the north. Then lyfte I up myne eyes toward the north: and beholde, before the poſt northward, there was an aul-ter, made vnto the ymage of prouocation in the very entreng in. And he ſaid furthermore vnto me: Thou ſonne of man, ſiſte thou what ſiſteſt thou? Behold thou the great abhominacions that the houſe of Iſrael commit in this place which ought not to be done in my ſanctuary: but turne the aboute, and thou ſhalt ſee per greater abhominacions. And with ſ he brought me to the counter gate: and when I looked beholde, there was an hole in the wal. Then ſaid he vnto me: thou ſonne of man, pryge thou the wal. And when I pryged the-roue the wal: beholde, there was a woze. And he ſaid vnto me: Go thy waye in, and loke what wicked abhominacions they do there. So I went in and ſawe: and beholde, there were all maner ymages of womes and beaſtes, al ydols and abhominacions of the houſe of Iſrael paynted euery one rounde aboute the wal.

There ſode alſo before the ymages thre wynde and ten lordes of the counſel of ſonue of Iſrael: and in the myddell of them ſode Jaſanah the ſonne of Saphan: And euery one of them had a cenſoure in his hande, and out of the iacenie there wente a ſmoke, as it had been a cloude. Then ſaid he vnto me: Thou ſonne of man, haſt thou ſene what the ſonnes of the houſe of Iſrael do ſecretly, euery one in his chambere: for they ſay: cuſh the Lorde ſiſt vs not, the Lorde regardeth not the wyſe. And he ſaid vnto me: Turne theyr agayne, and thou ſhalt ſee the great abhominacions that they do. And with that he brought me to the doze of the poſte of the Lordes houſe toward the north. And beholde there ſode women mournyng for Eſauus. Then ſayde he vnto me: haſt thou ſene this thouſonne of man? Turne the aboute, & thou ſhalt ſee greater abhominacions.

And ſo he brought me in to the inward court of the Lordes houſe: & beholde at the poſt of the Lordes houſe, butwixt the ſore entre and the aulter, there were ſpurs and twenty men, that tourned theyr backs vnto the temple of the Lorde, and they ſat toward the Eaſt, and theſe woſhypped the ſonne.

And he ſaid vnto me: haſt thou ſene this thouſonne of man? Wherkeſt the houſe of Iſrael that it is but a cypre, to do the ſe abhominacions here? Shoulde they ſell the lande full of wickedneſſe, and undertake to prouoke me vnto anger? Yea and purpoſely to caſte by the noſes vpon me? Wherefore will I do ſome thyng in my wrathfull displeaſure, ſo that myne eye ſhall not ouerſee them, neyther will I ſpare them. Yea and though they ſe in myne ears with loud voyce, yet will I not heare them.

The deſtruction of Idoaters, and the conuerſion of the righteous. They that ſhall be ſaued are marked. They that are vnmarched are ſlayne. A complaiſent of the prophecie for the deſtruction of the people.

He cryed alſo with a loud voyce in myne eares, ſaying: Come here ye rulers of the city, euery man with his weaponed hande to the ſlaughter. Then came there ſix men out of the ſtrete of the upper poſte toward the north, and euery man a wea-pon in his hande to the ſlaughter. There was one amongeſt them that had on him a linnen rayment, and a wyrters ynckhoſne by his ſpoe.

They went in & ſode beſide the braſen al-ter: for the gloſſe of the Lorde was gone away from the aulter, and was come down to the chiefholde of the houſe, and he called the man that had the linnen rayment vpon him: and the wyrters ynckhoſne by his ſpoe, and the Lorde ſaid vnto him: Go thy waye thouw the city of Jeruſalem, & ſet this marke vpon the foreheades of them that mouent and are ſorry for all the abhominacions that be done therein. And to the other he ſaid that I might heare: So ye after him thouw the city, ſee, ouerſee none, ſpare none, ſpyl and deſtroye both olde men and yong maydens, chyl- dyen and wyues.

But as for thoſe that haue this marke vpon them, ſe that ye touch them not, and begyn at my ſanctuarye. Then they be- gan at the eldes whiche were in the temple, for he had ſayd vnto them: when ye haue de- filed the temple, and fylled the courts with the ſlayne, then go your waye forth. So they went out, and ſlew downe choſow the city. Now when they had done the ſlaughter, and I ſet eſcaped, I ſet downe vpon my face, and cryed, ſaying: O Lorde, wilt thou ſee de- ſtroye all the ſiſtode of Iſrael in thy ſore diſ-pleaſure, that thou haſt paynted vpon Jeruſa-lem? Then ſaid he vnto me: the wickednes of the houſe of Iſrael and Iuda is deere great, ſo that the lande is full of blood, and the city full of vnſaythfulneſſe. For they ſay: Wilt the Lorde regardeth not the earth, he ſeeth vs not.

Wherefore will I vpon them, myne eye ſhall not ouerſee them, neyther will I ſpare them, but will recompence their wicked- neſſe vpon theyr heedes. And beholde, the man that had the linnen rayment vpon him and the wyrters ynckhoſne by his ſpoe, tolde all the matter howe it happened, and ſayde: Lorde, as thou haſt commanded me, ſo haue I done.

Of the man that toke hote burninge coles out of the middle of the wheles and of the Cherubyns, in token of the burninge of Jeruſalem. A reherſall of the viſion of the wheles, of the beaſtes, and of the Cherubyns.

CAPL X

As I looked beholde in the ſkima-ment that was aboute the cherubyns, there appered the ſimilitude of a ſoule of Sapphires vpon them: Then ſayde he that state therein to him that had the linnen raiment upon him: Crepe in between the wheles that are vnder the Cherubins, and take thine hand full of hote coles out from between the Cherubins, and cast them ouer the cite. And he crept in that I might se.

II. Para. vii. a

Now the Cherubins stode vpon the right syde of the house, when the man went in, and the cloude fylled the innermost court. But the gloire of the Lorde remoued from the Cherubins, and came vpon the thershold of the house, so that the temple was full of cloudes, and the court was full of the spyn of the Lordes gloire. Yea and the sounde of the Cherubins wynges was heere in to the fore court, lyke as it had ben the voyce of the almighty God when he speaketh.

Now when he hadde bydden the man that was clothed in linnen, to go and take the hote coles from the myddell of the wheles, which were vnder the Cherubins: he wente and stode besyde the wheles. Then the one Cherub reached forth his hande from vnder the Cherubins, vnto the fire that was betwene the Cherubins, and toke therof, and gaue it vnto him that hadde on the linnen raiment in his hande: whiche toke it, and went oute.

And vnder the wynges of the Cherubins, there appered the lphenesse of a mans hande: I sawe also foure wheles besyde the Cherubins, so that by euery Cherub there stode a whele. And the wheles were (to loke vpon) after the facyon of the pyrrons steele of chariots: yet (vnto the syght) they were facyoned and lyke as yf one whele had ben in an other.

Ezechiel. lii.

When they wente forth, they wente all foure together, not turnynge aboute in theyr goynge: But where the spyn wente wyther wente they after also, so that they tourned not aboute in theyr goynge. Theyr hote bodies, theyr backes, theyr handes and wynges, yea and the wheles also were all full of eyes rounde aboute them all foure. And I herde him call the wheles Galsgal (that is) a rounde house. Euerie one of them had foure faces: so that the one face was the face of a Cherub, the seconde of man, the thirde of a lyon, the fourth of an Eagle, and they were lifted vp a boue. This is the beest that I sawe at the water of Cobar. Now when the Cherubins went the wheles went with them, and when the Cherubins stode the wheles stode also: And when they were lyfte vp, the wheles were lyfte vp also with them, for the spyn of lyfe was in the wheles.

Ezechiel. lii. a.

Then the gloire of the Lorde was lyfte vp from the thershold of the temple, and remayned vpon the Cherubins: And the Cherubins shacked with their wynges, and lifte them selfes vp frome the earth: so that I sawe when they wente, and the wheles with them. And they stode at the east syde of the porte that is in the house of the Lorde. So the gloire of the Lorde was vpon them. This is the beest that I sawe vnder the God of Israel, by the water of Cobar. And I perceyued, that it was the Cherubins. Euerie one had foure faces, and euery one foure wynges, and vnder the wynges, as it were mennes handes. Nowe the figure of their faces was, euen as I had seene them, by the water of Cobar, and so was the countenance of them: Euerie one in his gorge wente straight forwarde.

Who they were that made the people of Israel to stray. Agaynst the prophetes, whiche shewed them how they shal be dysparpled abode. The ruynges of the herte cometh of God, otherwyse can we not walke in his commandmentes. He therseteth them that leane vnto theyr owne counselles.

CAP. XI.

XI.

Mouere the spyn of the Lorde by me vp, and brought me vnto the thershold of the Lordes house. And behold there were .xxv. men vnder the wynges amonge whom I sawe Jaazaniah the sonne of Azur, and Pheltiah the sonne of Bananiah the rulers of the people. Then sayd the Lorde vnto me: thou son of man, these men ymaginemyche, and a wicked counsell take they in this cite, sayinge: with, there is no distressment hand, let vs buyde houses: this Jerusalem the caudzon, we be the steele. Therefore shalt thou prophesy vnto them, yea prophesy shalt thou vnto them, o sonne of man. And with that fell the spyn of the Lorde vpon me, and sayde vnto me: Speake, thus saythe the Lorde:

On this maner haue ye spoken (o ye house of Israel) and I knowe the ymaginacions of your hertes. Many one haue ye murdered in this cite, and fylled the streets full of the slayne. Therefore thus saythe the Lorde God: The slayne men that ye haue layden on the grounde in this cite, are the fleshe, and this cite is the caudzon: But I will byynge you oute of it: ye haue drawen out the swerde, euen so will I also byynge you oute, saythe the Lorde God: I will byynge you oute of this cite and deliuer you in to your enemyes hande, and will condemne you. Ye shall be slayne in all the coles of Israel, I will be aunged of you: to learne you for to knowe, that I am the Lorde.

This cite shall not be your caudzon, neither shall ye be the fleshe therein: but in the coles of Israel will I punishe you, that ye maye knowe, that I am the Lorde: in whole commandmentes, ye haue not walkid: kepte his lawes: but haue doone after the customes of the Heathen that ye rounde aboute you.

Now when I preached, Pheltiah the son of Bananiah dyed, then fell I downe vpon my face, and crept with a loud voyce: O Lorde God, wilt thou then bettely destroye all the manant in Israel? And so the worde of the Lorde came to me on this maner: thou sonne of man: thy byethren, thy kynfolke, and the hole house of Iuda, whiche dwel at Jerusalem, saye: they be gone farre from the Lorde, and the land is gauen vs in possession. Therefore tell them, thus saythe the Lorde God: I will sende you farre of amonge the Gentyles, and scatter you amonge the nations, and I will halow you but a litle in the landes wher ye shall come.

Then also thus saythe the Lorde God: I will gather you agayne out of the nations, and byynge you from the countreys wher ye be scattered, and wil giue you the land of Israel agayne: and thither shall ye come. And as for al impedimentes, and all your abhominacions I will take them awaye.

And I will giue you one herte, and I will plante a newe spyn within your bowels. That none heret will I take out of your bowels, and giue you a fleshy herte: that ye maye walke in my commandmentes, & kepe mine lawes, and I your God. But loke whiche becs are disposed to folowe their abhominacions, and wicked lyuynge: those mens bodies will I byynge vpon their owne becs, saythe the Lorde God.

After this dyd the Cherubins lifte by their wynges, and the wheles went with them, & the gloire of the Lorde was vpon them. So the gloire of the Lorde went by fro the myddell of the cite, and stode vpon the mounte of the cite toward the east. But the winde rose easte, and in a vision (whiche came by the spyn of the Lorde) it brought me agayne in to Calaba amonge the pyrrons. Then the vision of Iudas stode, banished awaye from me. So I spake vnto the pyrrons al the wordes of the Lorde whiche he had shewed me.

The parable of the bestelles of the captiuitie. In the parable of the parable, by whiche the taryng of henge Sedechias is signified. In other parables wherby the dyscreit of hunger and thyrst is signified.

CAP. XII.

XII.

The worde of the Lorde came vnto me, sayinge: Thou son of man, thou dwel in the myddell of a stowarde house: whiche haue eyes to se, and yet se not: ears haue they to heare, and yet heare they not: for they are a stubborn householde. Therefore thou son of man, make thy gire redy to go, and go forth by saye day light, that they maye see: Yea euen in their sight shalt thou go from thy place to an other place: yf peraduenture they will confesse that they be an stubborn householde.

By gire that thou hast made redy to go, thou shalt see that thou hast made redy to go by saye day light, that they maye se: and thou thy selfe shalt go forth also at euen in their sight, as I haue doone when he spaketh. Dresse thee rounde the wall, that they maye se, and heare thou shalt see the same thing that thou shalt see by in their sight. As for thy selfe, thou shalt go forth in the darke, lynde thy face that thou se not the erth, for I haue made the a wren to: hen vnto the house of Israel. Now as the Lorde commaunded me, so I dyd: the gire that I had made redy, brought I out by saye. As euen I brake downe an hole thowm the wall with my hande: and whē it was darke I toke the gire vpon my shoulders, and bare them out in their sight.

And in the morning came the worde of the Lorde vnto me, sayinge: Thou son of man, yf Israel that stowarde householde aske the, and saye: what doest thou there? Then tel them, thus saythe the Lorde God: This punishment toucheth the chiefe rulers at Jerusalem, and all the house of Israel that dwel amonge the. Tell them, I am your swete token: lyke as I haue done, so shall it happen vnto you. fite that ye also, and go in to captiuitie. The chiefe ruler that is amonge you, shall lade his shoulders in the darke, & get him awaye. He shall breake downe the wall to carye suffer chere thowm. He shall couer his face that he se not the ground with his eyes.

Whiche lyne will I speche oute vpon hym, and cathe him in my nette and carpe him to Babilon, in the lande of the Chaldees, whiche he shall not se, and yet shall he dye there. As for all his helpers, and all his holles, that be aboute hym, I will scatter them toward all the wyndes, and drawe oute a swearde after them. So when I haue scattered them amonge the Heathen, and strowed them in the landes, they shall knowe that I am the Lorde.

But I wil leane a litle nombre of the from the swerde, hunger, & pestilence, to tel all these abhominacions amonge the Heathen, where they come, that they may knowe how that I am the Lorde.

Wherouer the worde of the Lorde came vnto me, sayinge: Thou sonne of man, with a fearefull tremblinge shalt thou eat the bread, with carefulnesse and sorow shalt thou drynke the water. And vnto the people of the lande speake thou on this maner. Thus saythe the Lorde God, to them that dwell in Jerusalem, and to the lande of Israel: Ye shall eat your bread with sorow, and drynke your water with heynesse: Yea, the lande with the fulnesse thereof shall be lapped waite, for the wickednesse of them that dwell therein. And the cities that now be wel occupied, shall be voyde, and the lande desolate, that ye maye knowe, how that I am the Lorde.

Yet came the worde of the Lorde vnto me agayne, sayinge: Thou sonne of man, what maner of byworde is that, whiche ye vse in the lande of Israel, sayinge: Thus seinge that the dayes are so slacke in comynge, all the tysons are of none effect. Tell them therefore, thus saythe the Lorde God: I will make that byworde to cease, so that it shall no more be comonly used in Israel.

But

But say this vnto them: The dayes are at hande, that euery thing whiche hath ben prophesied, shall be fulfilled. There shall no vision be in daye, neyther any prophesye sayle among the children of Israel: for it is I the Lord that speake it: and what so euer I the Lord speake shall be performed, and not be slacke in commynge.

G Yea euen in your dayes (O ye forwarde householde) will I deuise somthing, and bring it to passe sayth the Lord God. And the word of the Lord came vnto me, saying: Beholde thou sonne of man: the house of Israel saye in this maner: Euen as for the vision that he hath sene, it wil be many a daye or it come to passe: It is farre of yet, the thing that he prophesie. Therefore saye vnto them: Thus sayth the Lord God. All my wordes shall no more be slacke: loke what I speake, that same shall come to passe, sayth the Lord.

The word of the Lord agaynst false prophetes, whiche teache the people the counsell of their owne hertes.

CAPL. XIII.

The word of the Lord came vnto me, saying: Thou sonne of man. Speake prophesye agaynst those prophetes, that preache in Israel: and saye thou vnto them that prophesye oute of their owne hertes: Heare the word of the Lord: Thus sayth the Lord God: Wo be vnto those falsche prophetes that followe their owne spirit, and speake where they se nothyng. O Israel, thy prophetes are lyke the foxes vpon the hye felde: for they stande not in the gappes, neither make they an hedge for the house of Israel, that men might abide the perill in the daye of the Lord. They thynge they se: and tell lyes to magnifye their preachynges withall. The Lord (saye they) hath spoken it, when in very dede the Lord hath not sent them. Theye visions haue ye sene, and spoken false prophetes, when ye saye: the Lord hath spoken it, where as I neuer sayd it.

B Therefore thus sayth the Lord God: Because your wordes be vayne, and ye seke oute lyes: Beholde, I will vpon you, sayth the Lord. Myne handes shall come vpon the prophetes that loke out vayne thynges, and preache lyes: they shall not be in the counsell of my people, nor wyrtten in the booke of the house of Israel, neyther shall they come in the lande of Israel: that ye maye knowe, howe that I am the Lord God. And that for this cause: they haue deceyved my people, and tolde them of fear, where no fear was. One setteth vp a walle, and they dawbe it with loose claye. Therefore tell them which dawbe it with vntempered moxer, that it shall fall. For there shall come a great storme of rayne, great stones shall fall vpon it, and a sore storme of wynde shall breake it, so shall the wall come downe.

Path. b. l. c.

Shall it not then be said vnto you: where is now the moxer, that ye dawbed it with? Therefore thus sayth the Lord God: I will breake oute in my wrathfull displeasure with a storme of wynde, so that in my anger, there shall come a myghty storme of rayne and hapy stones in my wrath, to breake wythall.

As for the wall that ye haue dawbed with vntempered moxer, I will breake it downe, make it eauen with the ground: so that the foundation thereof shall remoue, and it shall fall: yea and ye your selues shall perishe in the myddell thereof: to lerne you for to knowe I am the Lord.

Thus will I perforce myne wynde vpon this wall, and vpon them that haue dawbed it with vntempered moxer, and then will I saye vnto you: The wall is gone, and the dawbers are awaye. These are the prophetes of Israel, whiche prophesye vnto the cite of Ierusalem, and loke oute visions of pear for them, where as no pear is, sayth the Lord God.

Wherefore (O thou sonne of man) set thy face agaynst the daughters of thy people, whiche prophesye oute of their owne hertes: and speake thou prophesye agaynst them, and saye: Thus sayth the Lord God: Wo be vnto you that ye lyttowes vnder all arme boles, and holders vnder the breedes bothe of ponge and olde, to catche soules withall. For when ye haue gotten the soules of my people in your captiuitie, ye promysse them lyfe, and dishonoure me to my people, for ye handfull of barlye, and for a peece of brytt: when ye kil the soules of them, they dye not, and promysse lyfe to them that lyue not: thus ye dissemble with my people that blysseth your lyes.

Wherefore thus sayth the Lord God: Beholde, I will also vpon the pillows, wherewith ye catche the soules in sleig: them will I take from your armes, and let the soules go, that ye catche in sleig.

Your soldiers also will I teare in peeces, and deliuer my people oute of your hande: so that they shall come no more in your handes to be spoyled, and ye shall knowe that I am the Lord.

Seinge that with your lyes ye discomforthe the herte of the rightous whom I haue not discomforred. Agayne: for so moche as ye courage the hand of the wycked, so that he maye not turne from his wycked waye and lyne: therefore shall ye speere oute no more baryng, nor prophesye your owne gyltynges: for I will deliuer my people oute of your hande, that ye maye knowe howe that I am the Lord.

The Lord denyth his word to the people for theye synne sake. The dryffers of the word denye the Lord somtyme deceyue by false prophetes. A comfort of them that thre vnto Babylon.

CAPL. XIII.

Th

There reioyced vnto me certayne of the elders of Israel, & late downe by me. Then came the word of the Lord vnto me, saying: Thou sonne of man, these men be thy Iddoles in their hertes, and go purposely vpon the somblyng blocke of thy owne wyckednesse: how dare they the aske counsell at me? Therefore speake vnto them, and saye: thus sayth the Lord God: Every man of the house of Israel that beareth his Iddoles in his herte, purposinge to somblye in his owne wyckednesse, and cometh to a prophet, to enquire any thyng at me by hym: vnto that man will I the Lord my selfe geue answere, accordyng to the multitude of his Iddoles. For the house of Israel maye be feared in their owne hertes, because theye dreane gone fro me, for theye Iddoles sike.

Wherefore, tell the house of Israel: thus sayth the Lord God: Ye conuerted, for sake your Iddoles, and turne your faces from all your abominations. For euery man, (whether he be of the house of Israel or a stranger, that sojourneth in Israel) whiche departed fro me, and caepeth Iddoles in his herte purposyng to go still somblyng in his owne wickednesse, and cometh to a prophet, to aske counsell at me: I will geue answere, by mine owne selfe. I will set my face agaynst that man, and will make him to be: an example for othe, yea and a comen by word: and will teare him oute of my people. Ye be made knowen that I am the Lord, and yet that I prophete deceyved, when he telleth him a word: then I the Lord my selfe haue deceyved that prophete, and will seeke the fourth myne hand vpon him, to reue him oute of my people of Israel: and theye that shall be punished for their wickednesse. Accordyng to the synne of him that sleeth, shall the synne of the prophete be: that the house of Israel be led no more fro me thowow errouer, & be no more deceyved in their wyckednesse: but that they maye be my people, and I their God, sayth the Lord God. And the word of the Lord came vnto me, saying: Thou sonne of man, when the land I haue agaynst me, and goeth forth in wyckednesse: I will seeke oute myne hand vpon it, and destroye all the prynces of that byrd, and sende death vpon them to destroye men and best in the lande.

And though I see, Daniel, and Job, these men were amonge the, yet that they in their rightousnesse deliuer but their owne soules: sayth the Lord God. If I bringe noysome beasts vnto the lande, to waste it vp, and it be desolate, that no man may go therein for beasts: yet these men also were in the lande, as truly as I lyue (sayth the Lord God) they shall saue neither sonnes ne daughters, but be onely deliuered them selues: and as for the lande, it shall be waste.

Will I bringe a swearde into the lande, to charge it to go thorow the land: so that I shall wone man & beast in it, and yet these men were therein: As truly as I lyue (sayth the Lord God) they shall deliuer nei ther sonnes ne daughters, but onely be saued them selues. If I sende a pestilence into the land, and poure out my soze indignacion vpon it in bloud, so that I rote out of it both man and beast, and yet I see, Daniel, and Job, were therein: as truly as I lyue (sayth the Lord God) they shall deliuer neither sonnes ne daughters, but saue their owne soules in their rightousnesse. Moreover thus sayth the Lord God: Though I send my soze from blous plagues vpon Ierusalem: the swearde hunger, perelous brautes and pestilence, to destroye man and beast oute of it: yet shall there be a remnant saued therein, which shall bringe forth their sonnes and daughters. Beholde they shall come forth vnto you, and ye shall see their trape, and what they take in hande, and ye shall be comforted, as touchyng all the plagues that I haue brought vpon Ierusalem.

They shall comforte you, when ye se their trape and woikes: and ye shall knowe, howe that it is not without a cause, that I haue done so agaynst Ierusalem, as I byd, sayth the Lord God.

As the vnpromysable word of the hyne tree is cut in to the fyre, so (sayeth he) that Ierusalem shall be byent.

CAPL. XV.

The word of the Lord came vnto me, saying: Thou sonne of man: What cometh of the hyne amonge al other trees? and of the hyne stock amonge al other tymbre of the groue? Do men take of it, to make any worke withall? Or maye there a naple be made of it, to hang any thyng vpon? Beholde, it is caste in the fyre to be byent, the fyre consumeth both the endes of it, the myddell is byente to almes. Is it mete then for a ny worke? No.

Seinge then, that it was mete for no worke bringe vnto me: moche lesse maye there any thing be made of it, when the fyre hath consumed and bynt it. And therefore thus sayth the Lord God: Lyke as I caste the hyne into the fyre for to be byent, as othe trees of the wod: Euen so will I do with them that dwell in Ierusalem, and set my face agaynst them: they shall go out frome the fyre, and yet the fyre shall consume them. When shall ye knowe that I am the Lord, when I set my face agaynst them, and make the hab waste: because they haue so sore offended, sayth the Lord God.

The prophete intendyng to speake of the abominacions of Ierusalem: both fyre shewe the benefytes of God towards it. Ierusalem is reprobous of vniuersity, for her fornication with Iddoles. He iustifieth the wyckednesse of othe people in comparison of the synnes of Ierusalem. The cause of the abominacions is to whiche the Sodomytes fell. Wherby is promysed, o the repentant.

CAPL.

A Sayne, the worde of the Lorde spake vnto me, saying: Thou sonne of man, shewe the cytye of Ierusalem thei homynations, and saye: thus sayeth the Lorde God vnto Ierusalem: Thy progeny and kyned came out of the lande of Canaan, thy father was an Amorite, thy mother a Cethite. In the daye of thy birth when thou wast borne, the sterne of thy nauell was not cutte: of thou wast not bared in water to make the clene: thou wast neither rubbed with salte, ne swabbed in cloutes: No man regarded the so moche, as to do any of these thynges for the, or to shewe the lute fauour, but thou wast vtterly cast out vpon the lorde, yea a dyspised wast thou in the daye of thy birth.

Then came I by the, and sawe the troben downe in thine owne bloude, and sayd vnto the: thou shalt be purged from thyne owne bloude, from thine owne bloude: (sayd) Thus thou be clensed. So I platted the, as the blossome of the feilde: thou arte growen vp, and waxen greene: thou hast gotten a maruelous pleasant beautye, thy brests are come vp, thy beare is goodly growen, where as thou wast naked and bare afore.

Nowe when I went by the, and looked vpon the: beholde, thy tyme was come yea euen the tyme to come the. Then sayd I vnto the: shewe out the, to counte thy conquests: yea I made an othe vnto the, and marked my ielle with the (sayd the Lorde God) and so thou breamest myne owne. Then washed I the with water, and poured the bloude frome the. I annointed the with oyle, I gave the change of garments, I made the shoes of Taurus leather: I girded the aboute with white spike, I clothed the with hercheres: I decked the with costly apparell, I put ringes vpon thy fyngers: a chayne about thy necke, spanges vpon thy shoulders, earne ringes vpon thine eares, and set a beautiful crowne vpon thine head. Thus wast thou decked with spylt and golde, and thy raiment was of fyne white spike, of noble work and of dyuerse colours.

Thou diddest eate nothyng but symnels, banys and oyle: maruelous goodly wast thou, and beautifull, yea euen a very Quene wast thou. In so moche, that thy beauty was spokel of amonge the heithen, for thou wast excellent in my beauty, which I put vpon the sayd the Lorde God.

But thou hast put confydence in thine owne beauty, and played the harlot, when thou haddest gotten the a name. Thou hast committed fornication, with all that went by the, and hast fulfilled thine desires: yea thou hast taken thy garments of dyuerse colours, and decked thyne selfe therewith, whereupon thou mightest fulfill thine fornication, of such a rasyon, as neuer was done ne shall be. The goodly ornaments & Jewels whiche I gave the of myne owne golde and syluer, hast thou taken, and made the maner pages therof, and committed fornication with all.

Thy garments of dyuerse colours hast thou taken, and decked them thyselfe with oyle and incense: hast thou sette thyselfe theron.

Thy meate which I gave the, as symnels, oyle, and honey (to rede the withall) hast thou set before thyselfe, for a sweete savoure. And thus came also to passe, sayd the Lorde God: Thou hast taken thine owne tomes and daughters, whom thou haddest begotten vnto me: and these hast thou offered vnto the, so as to be their meat. Is this but a small fornication of thine (sayd the Lorde) that thou sayest my children, and givest them other, to be bount vnto them? And yet in all thy abominations and fornication, thou hast not remembered the dayes of thy youth, how naked and bare thou wast at that tyme, and how thou didst come in thine owne bloude. After all these thy wickednes, (sayd the Lorde) sayd the Lorde: Thou hast bupied thy clothes and byddel houses in euery place: yea at the house of thy mother hast thou bupied the as a harlot: Thou hast made thy beauty to be abhorred, thou hast laped out thy legges to euery one that came by, and multiplied thine fornication. Thou hast committed fornication with the Egyptians thy neighbours, where hast thou more fleete and thus hast thou bid thy fornication, to anger me.

Beholde, I will stretch out myne hande ouer the, and wyl multiply the flowe of we and drye the ouer into the wyllis of the Philistines thine enemies, which see the: and of thy abominable wape. Thou hast played the harlot also with the Assyrians, as the myghte not faste the: yea thou hast played the harlot, as not had enough. Thus hast thou spyl committed thy fornication from the lande of Canaan vnto the Caldees, and yet thy luste not satisfied. Nowe sayd I vnto the: thus sayeth the Lorde God: I remember thine best (sayd the Lorde God) for thou dost all these thynges, thou multiplyest desire: bupiedst the floures at the brade of euery Acte, and thy byddel houses in all places.

Thou hast not ben as an other harlot, that maketh bodie of her wyngynge, but as a wife that byratheth webloche, and taketh other in steed of her husbande. Gyltes are gynn to all other harlots, but thou spyldest rewardes vnto all thy louers, and offered them gyltes, to come vnto the oute of all places, and to commit fornication with the. It is come to passe with the in thy fornication: contrary to the vse of other women: yea there hath been such fornication ben committed after the, for thou hast professed thyselfe vnto euery one, and rewardes is gynn the: this is a contrary thyng.

Therefore heare the worde of the Lorde, sayd the Lorde: thus sayeth the Lorde God: For so moche as thou hast spent thy money, and discovered thy shame, thou shalt be brought with all thy louers, and with all the people of thy abominations in the lande of thy children, whom thou hast gynn them: Beholde therefore I wyl gather together all thy louers, vnto whom thou hast made thyselfe common: yea, and all them whom thou hast loved, and euery one that thou hast hated: & will discover thy shame before the, that they all maye see thy felthynesse.

Moreover, I wyl iudge the as a breaker of webloche and a murderere, and recompense the thine owne bloude in wrath and gelousy: I wyl gynn the oute into their power, that they shall breake downe thy stetes, and deliue the byddel houses: they shall strep the oute of thy clothes, all thy saye and beautifull Jewells shall they take from the, and so let the be naked and bare: yea they shall bypynge the common people vpon the, which thou hast made, and slape the with their swordes. They shall burne up thy houses, and punyssh the in the sight of many women. Thus wyl I make thy fornication to cease, so that thou shalt gynn out no more rewardes.

Shaldest thou make thy meate to be sylt, take thy gelousie from the, be content, & no more to be displeased: for thou rememberest not the dayes of thy youth, but hast prouoked me to wrath in all these thynges? Beholde therefore, I wyl bringe thine owne wapes vpon thine head, sayd the Lorde God: howbeit, I neuer dyd vnto the, according to thy wickednesse and all thy abominations. Beholde, all they that vse common proverbes, shal vse this proverbe also agaynst the: such a mother, such a daughter.

Thou arte euen thy mothers omne doughter, in that hath caste of her husbande and her children: yea thou arte the sister of thy sisters, which forsake their husbandes and their children. Your mother is a Cethite, and your father an Amorite. Thine eldest sister is Samaria, she and her daughters that dwell vpon thy left hande.

But thy right sister that dwelleth on thy right hande, is Sodom and her daughters. Yet hast thou not walked after their wapes, nor done after their abominations: but in all thy wapes thou hast bene more corrupte than they. As truly as I lyue, sayd the Lorde God: Sodom thy sister, with her daughters, hath not done so euyl, as thou thy doughter. Beholde, the synnes of thy sister Sodom were these: Pyrie, fulnes of meate, abouder and felmes: these thynges had she and her daughters. Besides that, they reared not their hand to the poore & needy, but were proude, and dyd abominable thynges before me: therefore them I toke away, when I had sene it. Neither hath Samaria done half of thy synnes, yea thou hast exceeded them in wickednes: In so moche that in comparison of all the abominations whiche thou hast done, thou hast made thy sisters good women.

As for these captiuitie, namely the captiuitie of Sodom and her daughters: the captiuitie of Samaria and her daughters: I wyl bringe them agayne, so wyl I also bringe agayne thy captiuitie amonge the:

that thou mayest take thine owne confusyon vpon the, and be ashamed of all that thou hast done, and to comforte them. Thus say I vnto thee (namely) Sodom and her daughters, Samaria and her daughters, with thy selfe and thy daughters, shall be brought agayne to your olde estate.

When thou wast in thy pyrie, and before thy wickednes came to the light: thou woldst not heare speake of thy synne Sodom, vntill the tyme that the Syrians with all their townes, & the Philistines with all that lye round about them, brought the to shame and confusyon: thou myghtest heare thine owne felthynnes and abominacion, sayd the Lorde.

For thus sayeth the Lorde God: I shaldest (by right) deale with the, as thou hast done. Thou hast despised the othe, and broken the couenaunte. Nevertheless, I wyl remember the couenaunte that I made with the in thy youth, in so moche that it shall be an euerydaye couenaunt: so that thou also remember thy wapes, and be ashamed of them: the shalt thou requyte of me thy elder & longer sisters, whom I wyl make thy daughters, & that beise thy couenaunt. And so I wyl renew my couenaunt with the, that thou mayest knowe that I am the Lorde: that thou mayest vntake vpon it, be ashamed, and excuse thine owne confusyon no more: when I haue forgiven the, all that thou hast done, sayd the Lorde God.

The parable of the two Eagles signifieth that Sedech, as which contrarye to his othe had forsaken the frendshipp of Nabuchodonosor, turned hym selfe to the kynge of Egypt, and therfore perished. In explication of the parable. A prophete of Egypte.

The worde of the Lorde came vnto me, saying: Thou sonne of man: put forth a darcke speakinge and a parable, vnto the house of Israel, and saye: Thus sayeth the Lorde God: There came a greete Eagle with greete wynges, yea with myghty long wynges, & full of feathers of dyuerse colours, vpon the mount of Libanus, & toke an abrich from a Cedre tree, and brake of the toppe of his twygge, and carped it in to the lande of Canaan, and set it in a cytre of marchauntes. He toke also a braunche of the lande, & planted it in a feutefull grounde, he brought it vnto greete waters, and set it as a willow tree thereby.

Then dyd it growe, and was a greete vine stocke, but lowe by the grounde: thus there came of it a byne, and it brought forth blossomes, and spied out braunches.

But there was an other Eagle, a greete one which had greete wynges and many feathers, and beholde, the rotes of this byne hadde an hunger after him, and spied oute his braunches towardes him, to water his frutes. Nevertheless it was planted vpon a good grounde beside beside greete waters: so that (by reason) it woulde haue brought out braunches & frute, & haue bene a goodly vine. Speake thou therefore, thus sayeth the Lorde God: Shall this vine prosper? Shall not his rotes be plucked out, his frute be broken of, his grene braunches wither and fade away? yea without rider stronge arme or many people, shall it be plucked by the rotes. Behold, it was placed: shall it prosper therfore. Shall it not be dyed by and withered, yea cut in the ou-tynge out of his blossomes, as soone as the east wynde bloweth?

Forer, the wynde of the Lorde came vnto me saying: Speake to that fromwarde householde: knowe ye not, what these thyn-ges do signifye? Tell them: Beholde, the kinge of Babylon came to Ierusalem, and toke the kyng and his prynces, & led them to Babylon.

He toke of the kynges seir, and made a counaunt with him, and toke an oth of him:
The Prynces of the lande toke he with him also, that the lande myght be holden in subjection, and not to rebel, but kepe the countaunt, and fulfyll it. But he fell from him, and sent his Embassadors in to Egypt that he myght haue boyces, and moche people.
Should he that prosper? Should he be depressed, that doth suche thynges? Should he escape, that breaketh his counaunt? As truly as I lyue sayth the Lorde God: he shall dye at Babylon, in the place where the king dwelleth, that made him kinge: whose othe he hath dyspyed, and whose counaunt he hath broken. Neither shall Phara with his greate host and multitude of people, maye rescue him in the warre: when they take up wyches, and set by bulwokes to decheape moche people. For seinge he hath dyspyed the othe, and broken the counaunt, where as he yet gaue his hande therupon, and done all these thynges, he shall not escape.

Counaunt
breaketh.

Therefore thus sayeth the Lorde God: As fruite as I lyue, I will byrge myne othe that he hath dyspyed, and my counaunt that he hath broken, vpon his owne heade. I will cast my net about him, and catche him in my paret. To Babylon will I carpe hym, there will I punyssh hym, because of the great offence that he made me.

Ezechiel. xlii.
24. 4.

As for those that he frome him out of the host, they shall be slayne with the swerde.
The rest, which shall be scattered towardes al the wyndes: and ye shall knowe, that I the Lorde haue spoken it.

Thus sayth the Lorde God: I will also take a braunche frome an hyge Cedre tree, and wyl set it, & take the bestemost twigge, that yet is but tendre, and plante it vpon an hye hill: Namely, vpon the hye hill of Ierusalem.
I will plant it: that it may byrge forth wynges, and grue frute, and be a greete & e-bze tree: so that all maner of foules maye hyde in it: and make theyr nestes vnder the shadowe of his braunches.

And all the trees of the felde shall knowe that I the Lorde haue broughte downe the hyge tree, and set the lowe tree vpon that haue byred vpon the grene tree, and made the dye tree to be a hyge tree: Turne I the Lorde the spake it, haue also broughte it to passe.

The thirde that every man shall haue his owne spare. To hym that amendeth is saluacion promyssed. Deathe is prophesied to the ryghteous which turneth backe from the ryght waye.

CAPL XVII.

The worde of the Lorde came vnto me on this maner: what meane ye by this comon prouerbe, that ye vse in the land of Israel, sayinge: The fathers haue eaten sour grapes, and the chyld; & the teeth are set on edge? As truly as I lyue sayth the Lorde God, ye shall vse this by worde no more in Israel.

Beholde, all soules are myne. Aske as the father is myne, so is the sonne myne also.
The soule that synneth, shall dye. If a man be godly, and do the thyng that is equal to the ryght, he catcheth not vpon the byll: he reeth not his eyes vpon the Idols of Israel: he dyspyeth not his neighbours wyfe: he leth with no menstrous woman: he geueth no body: he giveth his detter his pledge agayne: he taketh none other mans good by violence: he parteth his meate with the poore, he clotheth the naked: he lendeth re-grye, he clotheth the naked: he taketh nothinge vpon vsurye, he taketh nothinge vpon hande: he hath his hande from doinge wyche and he walketh in my commandmentes, and keperth my lawes, & persoumeth hym self fully: This is a ryghteous man, he shall lyue sayth the Lorde God.

If he now get a sonne, that is a manly er, a freer of bloude: if he do one of these thynges (though he do not al) he catcheth vpon the byll, he dyspyeth his neighbours wyfe, he geueth the poore and needy, he robbeth the spotted, he geueth not the detter his pledge agayne, he lyeth vpon his eyes vnto Idols, medleth with abhominable thynges, he ledeth vpon vsurye, & taketh more oute: shall this man lyue? He shall not lyue. Seinge he hath done all these abhominacions, he shall dye his bloude shall be vpon hym.

Nowe if this man get a sonne also, that seeth all his fathers synnes, which he hath done: and seareth, neyther doth such lyche done: and seareth, he catcheth not vpon the byll.
Namely, he catcheth not vpon the byll: he lyeth not his eyes vpon the Idols of Israel:
he dyspyeth not his neighbours wyfe, he leth with no man, he geueth no mans pledge he neyther spyleth, ne robbeth any man, he dealerh his meate with the hungrye, he letheth the naked, he opposeth not the poore, he receyvethe no vsurye, ne any thyng oute, he keperth my lawes, and walketh in my commandmentes, this man shall not dye his fathers synne, but shall lyue. I haue sayle. As for his father: because he synned and spyled his brother, and he hath among his people: so, he is deed in his owne synne. And yet say ye: Wherefore then shal not this sonne beare his fathers synne? Therfore: because the sonne hath done equyte & right, hath kept all my commandmentes, and done them: therfore shall he lyue in hys.

The same soule that synneth, shall dye. The sonne shall not beare the fathers offence, ne yet shall the father beare the sonnes offence.

The rightousnesse of the ryghteous shall be vpon hym, and the wyckednesse of the wicked shall be vpon hym selfe also. But if the un-godly wyl turne awaye frome all his synnes that he hath done, and kepe all my comman-dementes, and do the thyng that is equal to right: doubtes he shall lyue, and not dye. As for al his synnes that he did before, they shall not be thought vpon: but in his rightousnesse he shall beare the death of a synner, sayth the Lorde God: but rather that he conuert, and lyue.

Agayne: if the ryghteous turne awaye frome his rightousnesse, and do iniquyte, & coringe to all the abhominacions, that the wicked man doth: shall he lyue? All the rygh-tousnesse that he hath done, shall not be thought vpon, but in the faulte that he hath comitted withall, and in the synne that he hath done, he shall dye.

And yet ye saye: Truly, the waye of the Lorde is not indifferet. Where therfore ye house of Israel: Is not my waye righte? & ye not your wayes rather wicked? Whye a ryghtous man turneth awaye frome his rightous-nesse, and medleth with vngodlynesse: he shall dye therein: yea for the vngodlynesse that he hath done, must he dye. Agayne: when the wicked man turneth awaye frome his wickednesse, that he hath done, and doth the thyng which is equal and right: he shall saue his soule alpye. For in so much as he remembere hym selfe, and turneth him frome all the vngodlynesse that he hath dyed, he shall lyue and not dye.

And yet sayth the house of Israel: Truly, the waye of the Lorde is not equal. Are my wayes vngodly, & ye house of Israel: Are not your wayes rather vngodly? As for me I will iudge euerye man, accordyng to his wayes, & ye house of Israel, sayth the Lorde God.

Wherefore be conuerted, and turne you frome all your wyckednesse, so shall there no synne do you harme. Cast awaye frome you al your vngodlynesse, that ye haue done: make you newe hertes and a newe spi-rite. Wherefore wyl ye dye, & ye house of Israel? Seinge I haue no pleasure in the death of hym that dyeth, sayth the Lorde God. Turne you then, and ye shall lyue.

The captiuyte of Iochaz and Iochan is signified by the Lyons whelpes, and by the Lyon. He teacheth the prophete of the cype of Ierusalem quyis past, and the myserie therof. Is. lxviii.

At moune thou for the pyntes of Israel, and saye: Wherefore laye the mother that lyonelle amonge the Lyons, & noy shee her pange amonge the Lyons whelpes? One of her whelpes she brought vp, & it became a Lyon: it leened to spoylle, and to deuoure folke. The berthen berde of him, and toke him in their nettes, and brought him in chaynes vnto the lande of Egypte.

Now when the damme sawe that, al her hope and comforte was awaye, she toke an other of her whelpes, and made a Lyon of him: whiche went amonge the Lyons, and became a ferece Lyon: leened to spoylle & to deuoure folke: he destroyed their palaces, and made their cypes waste. In so moche that the hole lande was cury thyng therin, were vnto desolate, thowhe the very voyce of his coryng.

Then came the welthen together on cue-ry syde out of all countreys agaynst hym, layed their vntes for hym, and toke hym in their pite. So they bounde him with chay-nes, and brought him to the kinge of Babylon: which put him in pypson, that his voyce shoulde no more be herde vpon the mountaynes of Israel. As for thy mother, she is like a vine in hy bloude, planted by the water syde: her frutes and braunches are growen out of many waters, her stalkes were so strong that men myght haue made staves therof for officers: she growe so hyge in her stalkes.

So when men sawe that she exceded the height and multitude of her braunches, she was roted out in displeasure and cast do wne to the grounde.

Ye eall wynde dyed by her frute, her strong stalkes were broken of, wythered and byente in the fyre. But now she is placed in the mil-drenelle, in a dype and thurly grounde. And there is a fyre gone out of her stalkes, which hath byent vpon her braunches and her frute: so that she hath no more strong stalkes, to be staues for officers. This is a pitous and miserable thyng.

The Lorde denieth that he wyl answere them when they praye, for the offence of vngodlynesse which he here obiecteth. He promyseth that his people shall returne from captiuyte. By the mode that shoulde be byent is signified the burnyng of Ierusalem.

In the xlii. yere the tenth daye of the v. moneth, it happened, that certayne of the elders of Israel came vnto me, for to aske counsell at the Lorde, and sat them downe by me. Then came the waye of the Lorde vnto me on this maner: Thou sonne of man: speake vnto the elders of Israel, and say vnto them: Thus sayth the Lorde God: Are ye come to aske any thyng of me? As truly as I lyue (sayth the Lorde) I will giue you no answer. Will then not reprove them? Some of man will then not reprove them? Shall I reprove them the abominations of their forefathers, and tell them: Thus saith the Lord God: In the day when I chose Israel, and spake by myne hand upon the side of the house of Jacob, and showed my selfe unto them in the land of Egypt: Yea when I spake by myne hand over them, and sayde I am the Lord your God, and in the day that I spake by myne hand over them, to bring them out of the land of Egypt, in to a land that I had promised for them, which floweth with milke and honey, and is a pleasant land among all other: Then sayd I unto them: Let away euery man the abominations that he hath before him, and desyle not your selues with the Idols of Egypt, for I am the Lord your God.

Deut. x.

But they rebelled agaynst me, and wolde not folowe me: to cast away euery man the abominations of his eyes, and to forsake the Idols of Egypt. Then I made me to pour my indignation ouer them, and to cast off my wrath upon them: yea even in the myddell of the land of Egypt. But I wolde not do it for my names sake: that it shoulde not be vnhalowed before the heathen, amonges whome they dwelt, and amonges whome I showed my selfe vnto them that I wolde bringe them out of the land of Egypt. Some when I had carped them out of the land of Egypt, and brought them into the wilderness: I gaue them my commandmentes, and showed them my lawes: which to be so kept shall lyue in them. I gaue them also to my holy dayes, to be a token betwixte me and them, and thereby to knowe, that I am the Lord, whiche haloweth them.

Ezech. xii. 1-16.

Ezech. xii. 1-16.

And yet the house of Israel rebelled agaynst me in the wilderness, they haue not walk in my commandmentes, they haue cast away my lawes (which who so keepeth shoulde lyue in them) and my Sabbath dayes haue they greatly vnhalowed.

Then I made me to power out my indignation upon them, and to consume them in the wilderness. Yet I wolde not do it, for my names sake: lest it shoulde be dishonoured before the heathen, from the whiche I had carped them away. But I swore vnto them in the wilderness, that I wolde not bringe them into the land, whiche I gaue them: a land that floweth with milke and honey, and is a pleasure of all landes: and that because they refused my lawes, and walked not in my commandmentes, but had vnhalowed my Sabbathes, for they were gone after their Idols.

Ezech. xii.

Ezech. xii.

Querelesse myne eye spared the, so that I wolde not utterly slay them, and consume them in the wilderness. Moreover, I sayde vnto their sonnes in the wilderness: walke not in the statutes of your forefathers, kepe not their ordynances, and desyle not your selues with their Idols, for I am the Lord your God. But walke in my statutes, kepe my lawes, and do them, halowe my Sabbathes for they are a token betwixte me and you, that ye maye knowe howe that I am the Lord.

Notwithstandinge, their sonnes rebelled agaynst me also: they walked not in my statutes, they kept not my lawes to fullyfyll them (whiche he that doth shall lyue in them) neither halowed they my Sabbath dayes. Yet I made me agayne to poure out my indignation ouer them, and to satisfy my wrath vpon them in the wilderness. Nevertheless, I with dydwe my hande so: my names sake, lest it shoulde be vnhalowed amonges the heathen, before whome I had brought them forth. I spake by myne hande over them also in the wilderness, that I wolde scatter them among the heathen, and shewe them among the nations: because they had not kept my lawes, but had alpe my commandmentes, vnhalowed my Sabbathes, and spake by their eyes to their fathers Idols.

Wherefore I gaue them also commandmentes, that they shoulde not lyue, and I vnhalowed them in their owne gyftes (when I appointed for my selfe all their gyftes) to make them desolate: that they myght knowe, howe that I am the Lord.

Therefore (O thou sonne of man) tell the house of Israel, thus sayde the Lord God: Beside all this, your forefathers haue yet blasphemed me more, and gottene offered agaynst me: for after I had brought them in to the land, that I promised to graunte them, when they came out of Egypt, and all the thicke trees: they made there their oblations, and pronounced me with their oblations, makinge sweete saouours there, and poured out their drinkoffringes. Then I asked them: what haue ye to do withal, that ye goe thus? And therefore is it called the high place vnto this daye.

Wherefore, speake vnto the house of Israel: Thus sayde the Lord God: Ye are as vncleane as your forefathers, and comitte heuyls also with their abominations. In all your Idols, wherunto ye bringe your oblations, and to whose honour ye burne your children: ye desyle your selues, run vnto this daye: howe darre ye then come, aske any question at me? O ye householde of Israel! As true as I lyue (sayde the Lord God) ye get no answer of me: and as for the thinge that ye goe aboute, it shall not come to passe, where as ye say: we will be as the heathen, and do as other people in the land, wed and none will we worshyp.

As true as I lyue, sayde the Lord God, I my selfe will rule you with a mighty hand, with a stretched out arme: and with my indignation poured out ouer you: I will bringe you out of the nations and landes, wherunto ye are scattered: I gather you together with a mighty hande, with a stretched out arme, and with indignation poured out vpon you: I will bringe you into the wilderness of the people. And there I will reuelation vnto you face to face: as I punished your forefathers in the wilderness, so will I punish you also, sayde the Lord God.

I will bringe you vnder my iurisdiction, I will bringe you vnder the bondage of the conuenaunt. The fathers also and the transgressours will I take from amonge you, and bringe them out of the land of your habitation: as for the land of Israel, they shall not come in: neither maye they knowe howe that I am the Lord.

Consume then (sayde the Lord God) ye house of Israel, caste away and destroye euery man his idols: then shall ye heare me, and no more blaspheme my holy name with your offerings and ydols. But vpon my helpe shall I fauour them, and there will I purge your heauy offerings, and the synfullnes of your oblations, with all your heuyls.

I will accepte your sweete saouour, when I bringe you from the nations, and gather you together out of the landes, wherunto ye be scattered: that I maye be halowed in you before the heathen, and they maye knowe, that I am the Lord, whiche haue broughte you in to the land of Israel: yea, in to the same land that I swore vnto your forefathers. Therefore shall ye call to remembrance your stony heapes, and all your ymaginacions, wherunto ye haue bene desyled: and I will be displeased with your owne selues, for all your wickednesse which ye haue done.

And ye shall knowe that I am the Lord, when I entreat you after my name, not after your wicked wayes. Ye accordynge to your corrupte wayes: O ye house of Israel, sayde the Lord.

Moreover, the word of the Lord came vnto me, sayinge: Thou sonne of man, sette thy face toward the southe, and speake to the southe wynde, and saye to the wynde that bloweth from the southe: Heare the word of the Lord, thus sayde the Lord God: Behold, I will kindle a fyre in the, that shall consume the grene trees with the drye. No man shall be able to quenche his flame, but it shall take from the south to the north: and all fleshe shall see that I the Lord haue kindled it, so that no man may quenche it. Then sayd I: O Lord, they will saye of me: Tush, they are but tales that he telleth.

Therefore saith the Lord, that is to saye, because to the type of Jerusalem. He sheweth the hill of Synagoga. He is commaunded to purge the destruction of the children of Ammon, and the slaughter of other, at the least the Lord sheweth death vnto Nabathodonozor hym selfe.

CAP.

XXI.

The word of the Lord came to me, sayinge: Thou sonne of man, set thy face toward Jerusalem, speake agaynst the Sanctuary, and prophesye agaynst the land of Israel, saye to the land of Israel: Thus sayde the Lord God. Behold, I will vpon the, and will drawe my sworde out of the sheathe, and rote out of the both the righteous and the wicked. Seeing then that I will rote out of the both the righteous and wicked, therefore shall my sworde goe out of his sheathe agaynst all flesh from the north to the south: that all flesh may knowe howe that I the Lord haue drawen my sworde out of the sheathe, and it shall not be put in agayne.

Wherefore (O thou sonne of man) that thy loynes cracke withall / yea mourne bitterly for them: And yet they saye, wherefore mourne thou? Then tell them: for the typpes that cometh, at the whiche all hertes shall melle, all handes shall be licten downe, all stomaches shall faunte, and all knees shall waxe feeble. Behold, it cometh, and shall be fulfilled, sayde the Lord God.

Agayne, the word of the Lord came vnto me, sayinge: Thou sonne of man, prophesye and speake: Thus sayde the Lord God: speake, the sworde is sharpened and well scoured. Sharpened is it for the slaughter, and scoured that it maye be bright. O the destroyinge blade of my sonne, shall bringe downe all woodde. He hath put his sworde to the pyghtynge, that good hylt may be taken of it. This sworde is sharpened and bright, that it maye be given in to the hande of the manslayer.

Type (O thou son of man) and howe, for this sworde shall smyte my people, and at the rulers in Israel, whiche with my people shall be slayne homne to the grounde toward this sword. Smyte thou vpon the pyghte, for wherfore shouldest thou the plage and masse of indgement come? Prophesye thou son of man, and smyte thyne handes together: make the sworde two edged, yea make it thre edged, I manifiers sworde, that sword of the greete slaughter, whiche shall smyte them, euen in theyr pryue chambres: to make them abashed and faunte at the hertes, and in all gates to make some of them fall. O how bright and sharpe is it / how well pyghte, and mete for the slaughter. Get the to some place alone either vpon the right hande or vpon the left, whither so euer thy face counteth. I will smyte my handes together also, and satisfye my iustfull indignation. Then I the Lord haue sayd it.

The word of the Lord came yet vnto me agayne, sayinge: Thou sonne of man, make the two stetes, that the sword of the kynge of Babylon maye come. Both these stetes shall goo oute of one lande. He shall set him by a place, at the heade of the stete shall he chuse him out a corner. Make the a stete, that the sword may come toward Rabath of the Ammonites, and to the stronge cite of Jerusalem.

Ezech. xii.

E For the kynge of Babylon shall stande in the courtynge of the wape, at the heed of the two drettes to aske counsell at the sothe- sayers, castynge the lottes with his arrowes to aske counsell at the ydolles, and to loke in the lyner.

But the sothelapynge shall poynte to the ryght syde vpon Ierusalem, that he maye set men of warre to impete it, with a great noyse to crye out alarum, to set battellarmes agaynst the gates, to graue vp ditches, and to make bulwarkes.

Neuerthelesse, as for the sothelapynge, they shall holde it but for vanitie, such as though a leet were told them: yea, and they thep selues remembre they wyckednesse, so that by tpyghte they muste be taken and moone. Therefore saythe the Lorde God: For so moche as ye pout selues thewe poure liuence, and haue opened your wyckednesse, so that in all your wythes men maye se your synnes: yea in so moche (I saye) that ye poure selues haue made mention thereof, ye shall be taken by violence.

O thou wamefull wycked guyde of Israel whose day is come, euen the tyme that wickednesse shall haue an ende. Thus saythe the Lorde God: take awaye the crowne, and so is it awaye: the humble is exalted, and the proude brought lowe. Thus saythe the Lorde God: I will punyssh the, and ouerthrowe them: and that shall not be tyned vntill ye come, to wome the iudgement belongeth, and to whome I haue ge- uen it.

G And thou (O sonne of man) prophete and speake: Thus saythe the Lorde God to the cytyzenes of Samon, and to their blasphemers speake vpon: For the sword, the sword is drawen for the alder to the slaughter, and scourd that it glysteth (because thou hast loked the out vanities, and prophesied lies) that it maye come vpon thy necke, like as vpon the other vngodlye, whiche be slayne: whose daye came, when they wyckednesse was full.

Thoughe it were put by agayne in to the sheath: yett will I punyssh the in the land where thou wast nourysshed and borne, and powre my indignacion vpon the, and will blow vpon the in the fyre of my wrath, and deliuer the vnto cruel people, whiche are learned to destroye. Thou walte fede the fyre, and thy blood shall be shed in the lande, that thou mayest be put oute of remembrance. Euen I the Lorde haue spoken it.

The wycke of the Lorde agaynst Ierusalem for man slaughter, and denynge due honour to thep fathers and mothers, and other wyckednesse. Of the wycked doctrine of the false prophetes and prestes, and of theyr vnclapable couetousnesse. The crueltie of rulers. The vnghytnesse of the peo- ple.

Moreouer the wycke of the Lorde came vnto me and sayd: thou sonne of man, wilt thou not reprove this bloudynesse? Shewe them their abhominacion, and tell them: Thus sayth the Lorde God. O thou tyme that sheddest blood in the myddes of the, that thy tyme maye come also, and make the ydolles to defyle the towne. Then had made the selfe gyltye in the blood that thou haddest: & defyled the in the ydolles, whiche thou haddest made.

Thou haddest caused thy dayes to drawe nye, and made thy tyme of thy yeres to come. Therefore will I make the to be confounded among the heathen, and to be despyled in all the landes, whether they be nye or farr from the: they shall laugh the to scorn, thou that haddest gotten the so foule a name, and art full of myshete. Beholde, the rulers of Israel haue brought euery man his power, to shed blood in the. In the haue they despyled father and mother, in the haue they oppressed the stranger, in the haue they bred the wyddome and the fatherlesse. Thou haddest despyled my sanctuary, and vngodlyd my Saboth. Therefore are there in the, that shed blood, and eate vp the hylls, and in the they sle vngodlydnesse.

In the haue they discovered they fathers shame, in the haue they byed women in their synnesse. Euen man hath deale wamefully with his neighbours wife, and abhominable defiled his daughter in law. In the haue euery man forced his owne sister, and his fathers daughter: yea gyftes haue ben receyued in to shed blood. Thou haddest taken vsware and encrease, thou haddest oppressed thy neighbours by extortion, and forgotten me, saythe the Lorde God.

Beholde, I haue smplessen my handes vpon thy couetousnesse that thou haddest used, and vpon the bloud whiche hadde ben shed in the. In the haue haddest to endure it, as were thy handes defende them selues in the tyme that I shall bringe vpon the? Euen I the Lorde that speake it, will bypunge it to passe. I will scatter the selfe among the heathen, and drawe the about in the landes, and will cause thy synnesse to come out of the: yea and I will haue the in possession in the light of the heathen, that thou mayest knowe that I am the Lorde.

And the wycke of the Lorde came vnto me sayynge: Thou sonne of man, the house of Israel is turned to dross. All they that haue be dross, ynnue, pzon, and leade are in the fyre become dross. Therefore thus saythe the Lorde God: for so moche as ye all are turned in to dross: beholde, I will bypunge you together vnto Ierusalem like as synner, dross, pzon, ynnue, and leade are put together in the furnace, and the fyre blowen there vnder to melte them: Euen so will I gather you, put you in together, and melte you in my wrath and indignacion. I will bypunge you together, and kynde the fyre of my cruell displeasure vnder you, that ye maye be melted therein.

As the synner is melted in the fyre, so shall ye also be melted therein: that ye maye knowe that I the Lorde haue poured my wrath vpon you.

And the wycke of the Lorde came vnto me sayynge: Thou sonne of man, tell her: Thou art in an vniuersall lande, whiche is not earned vpon in the day of thy cruel wrath: the pzo- pletes that are in the, are comyn together to haue looke, like as a toyinge vpon that ly- nge by his pray.

They receyue synners and good, and make many wyddomes in the. They prestes dyke the law, and defyle my Sanctuary. They put no difference betwene holp & vngodly, betwene the cleane and vncleane: they make their eyes to my Saboths, and I am impaled amonge them. Thy rulers in the, they haue synne vnto me to shed blood, and to destroye ioules for theyr vngodlye couetousnesse: as for thy prophetes, they drawe tyn- der to the clape, they se vanities, and pro- phesies vnto them, sayynge: the Lorde God sayth so, wher as the Lorde hath not spoken. For people in the lause blythlye theyked mynion and cobberge. They beate the peere vnto, and oppresse the stranger agaynst right.

And I soughte in the lande for a man that shoulde make up the hedge, and set a fin selfe in the gap betwene me, in the landes vnto, that I shoulde not vicerly destroye it, but I coulde fynde none. Therefore will I pour out my cru- ell displeasure vpon them, and burne them in the fyre of my wrath: that shal weapes wil I comence vpon theyr heades, saythe the Lorde God.

The synnyng, meanynge the Idolatry of Samaria and Ierusalem: vnder the names of Doholab and Doholab. In comparison of Samaria he sayeth that the fornicacion of Ierusalem is synnyng. The destruction of Ierusalem is pro- phesied. The auountye of both the hoys is found in theyr destruction.

The wycke of the Lorde came vnto me, sayynge: thou sonne of man, there were two women that had one mother: these two women were yonge (began to playe the harp) in Egypte. There were they: by- ed, and the payres of theyr mayden- hood destroyed. The eldest of them was cal- led Doholab, and her yonger sister Dohol- lah. These two were myne, and here son- nes and daughters, they names were Sa- maria, and that was Doholab: and Jerusa- lem that was Doholab. As for Doholab, she began to goe a fornyng, when I had taken her to me. She was set on fyre vpon her so- uers the Philistines, which had to do with her: men the princes and Loides that were de- ceitfullye araye: saye yonge men, lusty yd- dres.

Thus saythe the Lorde, she cleued vnto all the yonge men of Philistia: yea, she was mad vpon them, and killed her selfe with all their ydolles. Neether ceased she from the fornicacion that she dyed with the Philistines: for in her pouth she laye with her, they bryded the best of her maydenhood, & pou- red their blood vnto her. Wherefore I deliuered her in to the hands of her louers, euen the Philistines whom she so loued. Their discouered her shame, toke her sonnes and daughters, and slawe her with the sword. An- cyp name gat she of all people, and they pa- nished her.

Her sister Doholab sawe this, and be- stroked her selfe with inordinate loue, more then she, and exceded her synne in vngodlye, she loured the Philistines (whiche also lay with her) namely the princes and great lordes, that were clothed with a manner of gorgeous ap- parell, all lusty hoysmen, and saye yonge per- sonnes. When I sawe that they bothe were despyled alke.

But she increased still in vngodlye: for when she sawe men paynted vpon the walles, the ymages of the Caldees set forth with frethe colours, with saye gyddes aboute them, and goodly bonettes vpon theyr hea- des, lounge all like pzo- pletes (after the manner of the Babylonians and Caldees in theyr owne lande, wher they be borne) immediatlye as soone as she sawe them, she byence in loue vpon them, and sent mes- sengers for them into the lande of the Cal- dees.

Now when the Babylonians came to her they laye with her, and killed her with theyr vngodlye, and so was she polluerd with them. And when her lute was adarced frome them, yett vngodlye and shame was disco- uered and sene, then my herte forsoke her, like as my herte was gone frome her syn- nes.

Neuerthelesse, she dyed her vngodlye euen the longer the more, and remembred the dayes of her youth, wher she had played the har- lot in the land of Egypt: she byent in lust vpon them, whose synne was like the syn of Philis- tia, their seed like the seed of hoys. Thus thou hast enueled the filthynesse of thy youth, when thy louers bryded thy payres, & married the bydes in Egypte.

Therefore (O Doholab) thus saythe the Lorde God. I will rapse vp thy louers (with whom thou hast satisfied thy lust) agaynst the and gather them together rounde about the: namely the Babylonians, and all the Caldees: Perod, Schoa and Aoa, with all the Philistines, all yonge and saye louers, princes and loy- des, knyghtes, and gentylmen, whiche be all good hoys men: these shall come vpon the with hoyses, charrettes, and a great multitude of people, which shall be harnessed aboute the on euery syde, with brellspates, helmes and helmettes, I will punyssh the before them, yea they them selues shall punyssh the, accord- yng to their owne iudgement. I will put me gelously vpon the, so that they shall deale cru- elly with the.

They shall cut of thy nose and thine eares, and the remnant shall fall choise the sword. They shall carry away thy sonnes and daughters, and the residue shall be hient in the fire. They shall strippe the oute of thy clothes, and carry thy coslye clothes away with them.

E Thus will I make an ende of thy synnes, and of thyne iniquities, which thou hast brought out of the lande of Egypt: that thou shalt come thence no more after them, and cast thy mynde no more vpon Egypt. For thus sayeth the Lord: beholde, I will deliuer thee in to the hands of them whom thou hast hated: yea, even in to the hands of them, with whom thou hast fulfilled thy lusts, which shall dele cruelly with thee. All thy labours shall they take with them, and leue thee naked and bare: and thus the name of thy synnes shall come to light. At these things shall thou be confounded, because of thy doings, in which thou hast vied among the Gentiles, with whole yoles thou hast defiled thy selfe. Thou hast walked in the wayes of thy synne, therefore will I geue thee the cup in thy hand.

Thus sayeth the Lord God: Thou shalt be as a cuppe of the synners, howe deepe and large so euer it be to the botome. Thou shalt be laughed to scorn, and hadde as great a derision, as is possible. Thou shalt be full of drunkenness and sorrow, for the cup of thy synnes Samaria, is a cuppe of destruction and wastage: the same shalt thou drinke and suppe it oute, turn to the dregges: yea thou shalt eate by the broken peeces of it, and to teare thyne owne breastes: for when I haue spoken it sayeth the Lord God.

Therefore thus sayeth the Lord God: for so moche as thou hast forgotten me, and cast me ashyde, so shalt thou be thyne owne synners, and of thyne doings.

The Lord sayd more vnto me: thou sonne of man, write thou not rejoyce of Shalab, and Sholabab: shewe them their abominations: namely that they haue broken their wedlocke, and stained their hands with blood: yea euen with their yoles haue they committed adoultory, and offered them their owne chyldren (to be deuoured) whome they had borne vnto me.

Yea, and this haue they done vnto me also: they haue defiled my Sanctuary, in that same daye, and haue vndulowed my Sabbath. For when they hadde slayne their chyldren for their yoles, they came the same daye in to my Sanctuary to defyle it. Lo, this haue they done in my house.

Wylde all this, thou hast sente thy messengers for men oute of farre countreys: and when they came, thou hast bathed, symmed and set for the selfe of the best facion: thou satest vpon a goodly bed, and a table layd before thee, wher vpon thou hast set myne incense and myne of le.

Then was there great chere with thee, and the men that were sent from farre countreys ouer the deserte, vnto thee they gaue hymnes, lectures vpon thy hands, and set glayous crownes vpon thy heedes: then thought I no doubte, these wyl be theys barlotry alle with yonder olde booye. And they went in to thee, as one vnto a common harlot. Euen so wyl they also to Sholab and Sholabab that is thy women.

O ye all that some vertue and rightnesse haue in you, and punyssh them: as aduocates, testes and iudges ought to be iudged and punysshed. For they are breakers of wedlocke and the bloude is in their hands. Wherefore thus sayeth the Lord God: Wylge a greates multitude of people vpon them, and make them be scattered and spoyled: there shall none of them, and geue them with their swordes. They shall see their sonnes and daughters, and burne up their houses with fire.

Thus wyl I destroye all such synners oute of the lande, that all women may learne, not to doo after your uncleannes. And so they shall lape your synnes vpon your owne selues, and ye shall be punysshed for the synnes that ye haue committed with your yoles: and ye shall knowe that I am the Lord.

The yoneth the synne of Jerusalem by a parable of a synners poore. The parable of Ezechiel wyl beynge dead, which he after expoundeth.

CAPL XXIII.

In the ninth yere, in the tenth month, the tenth daye of the month, came the word of the Lord vnto me, saying: O thou sonne of man, write vpon the name of this daye, yea euen the house of this present daye, when the kynge of Babilon let him selfe agayne Jerusalem. Shewe that that synners house shall be a parable, and speake vnto them. Thus sayeth the Lord God. Get the a pot, set it on, and poure water in to it: put all the peeces together, all the good peeces, the lorne, the shoulde, and fill it with the best bones. Take one of the best wyse, and an heape of bones with all: let it boyle well, and let the bones seethe well therein.

With that sayeth the Lord God on the ymaner: Wo be vnto the bloudy synners of the pot, wher vpon the synners haue, and is not yet scoured away. Take oute the peeces that are in it, one after an other: there neede no lottes be cast therefore, for the blocke is yet in it. Upon a playne dyke haue they poured it, and not vpon the grounde, that it myghte be couered with dust. And thus haue I leiten her poure her blood vpon a playne dyke amonge rocks, because it shal not be hydd, and that I myghte bynge my wylful indignation and vengeance vpon her.

Wherefore, thus sayeth the Lord God: Wo be vnto that bloude synners, for whome I wyl prepare a heape of wydder.

heare thou the dooms together, kynble thou the fire, let the selfe, let all be well looken, that the bones maye be luche oute. Wherefore let the potte empye vpon the colles, that it maye be warme, and the metall hole, that the synche and rudynesse maye be consumed.

But it wyl not goo of, there is so moche of it: the rudynesse muste be hient oute. Thy synners are to abhominable, for I wold haue clenched the, but then woldst not be clenched. Thou canst not be poured frame thyne vncleannes, till I haue poured my wylful indignation vpon the. Euen I the Lord haue so drupled: Yea, it is come therto already that I wyl do it. I wyl not go backe I wyl not spare, I wyl not be intreated: but according to thy wayes and ymaginations, thou shalt be punysshed sayeth the Lord God.

And the word of the Lord came vnto me saying: Thou sonne of man, beholde, I will take awaye the pleasure of thyne eyes with a plague: yet shalt thou neyther moune nor wepe, ne water thy chekes therfore: I maye maune by thy selfe alone: but use no treddy lamentation. holde on thy bones, and put on thy shous vpon thy feete, couer not thy face, and eate no mourners bredd.

So I spake vnto the people by mymes in the morninge, and at euen my wyse dyed: then vpon the next morninge I dyd as I was commanded. And the people said vnto me: wilt thou not tell vs what that signifieth whiche thou doest?

I answered them, the word of the Lord came vnto me, saying: Tell the house of Israel, thus sayeth the Lord God: beholde, I wyl suspende my Sanctuary: euen the glory of your power, the pleasure of your eyes, and the thing that ye loue: your sonnes and daughters whom ye haue left, shall fall thowet the sword.

Like as I haue done, so shall ye doo also: ye shall not hyde your face, ye shall eate no mourners bredd: your bonnettes shall ye haue vpon your heedes, and shoes vpon your feete.

Ye shall neyther moune nor wepe, but in your synnes ye shall be sorrowfull, and one repente with an other. Thus Ezechiel is your word taken. For loke as he hath done to (when this cometh) ye shall doo also: that ye maye learne to knowe, that I am the Lord God.

But beholde, O thou sonne of man: In the daye when I take frome them their power, their ioye and honoure, the luste of their eyes, the burthen of their bodies: namely their sonnes and daughters. When shall there one escape, and come vnto the / lo to shewe the. In that daye shall thy mouth be opened to him whiche is escaped, that thou mayest speake, and be no more dumb: yea, and thou shalt be theys Germe taken, that they may knowe howe that I am the Lord.

The word of the Lord vpon the sonnes of Ammon, whiche reioyced at the fall of Jerusalem. Agaynst Moab and Agaynst Idumea. Agaynst the Philistynes.

CAPL

XXV.

The word of the Lord came vnto me, saying: Thou sonne of man, set thy face agaynst the Ammonites: prophesye vpon them, and saye vnto the Ammonites: heare the word of the Lord God. Thus sayeth the Lord God. For so moche as thou speakest ouer my Sanctuary, I ha, I rowe it be nowe suspended: and ouer the lande of Israel / I rowe it be nowe desolate, yea and ouer the house of Iuda, I rowe they be nowe ledde awaye prisoners. Beholde, I wyl deliuer thee to the people of the East, that they maye haue thee in possession: there shall sette theys castles and houses in the. They shall eate thy frute, and drynke by thy mylke. As for Moab, I wyl make of it a stall for camelles, and of Ammon a shepe folde: and ye shall knowe, that I am the Lord.

For thus sayeth the Lord God: In so moche as thou hast clapped with thyne handes, and stamped with thy feete / yea reioyced in thyne herte ouer the lande of Israel with despyte: beholde, I wyl stretche oute myne hand ouer the alfo, and deliuer the to be spoyled of the heathen, and rote the oute from amonge the people, and cause the to be destroyed oute of all landes: yea I wyl make the be layd waste, that thou mayest knowe that I am the Lord.

Thus sayeth the Lord God: for so moche as Moab and Seir do saye: As for the house of Iuda, it is but lyke as all other Gentiles be. Therefore beholde, I wyl make the cities of Moab weaponlesse, and shall take awaye their strength: their cities and chiefe cosses of their lande, which are the pleasures of the countrey: As namely Bethusimoth, Balaam, and Cariathaim: these wyl I open vnto them of the East, that they maye fall vpon the Ammonites: and wil geue it euen in possession / so that the Ammonites shal no more be had in remembrance amonge the heathen. Euen thus wyl I punyssh Moab also, that they maye knowe howe that I am the Lord.

Moreover, thus sayeth the Lord God: Wylge that Edom hath auenged and eased him selfe vpon the house of Iuda / therefore thus sayeth the Lord: I wil reache oute mine hand vpon Edom, and take awaye man and beaust out of it.

From Theman vnto Dedan wyl I make it desolate: they shal be slayne with the sword. Whow my people of Israel wyl I auenge me agayn vpon Edom: they shal handle him according to my wrath and indignation, so that they shall knowe my vengeance, sayeth the Lord God.

Thus sayeth the Lord God: for so moche as the Philistines haue done this: namely taken

They shall be taken vengeance with despitefull stomaches, and of an else will let them sel-use to destroye. Therefore thus sayeth the Lord God: Beholde, I will stretch oute my hande oute the Chaldeans, and destroye the destroyer, and cause all the remnant of the seed to perishe. A greates vengeance will I take vpon them, and punish the cruellie: that they maye knowe howe that

The prophete sayeth that Tyus shall be overthrowen, because it is reared at the destruction of Ierusalem. The wonderpfull and astonishment of the marchantes, for the destruction of Tyus.

CAPL. XXVI.

It happened that in the xi. yere, the xij. daye of the moneth, the woide of the Lord came vnto me, saying: Thou sonne of man, because that Tyus hath spoken vpon Ierusalem: A ha, now I knowe the portes of the people be broken, and the turne vnto me, for I haue destroyed my helye tull.

Yea, thus sayeth the Lord God: Beholde, I will vpon the, I will bringe a great multitude of people agaynst the, lyke as when the see ariseth with his waues: They shall breake the walles of Tyus, and caue downe her towres: I will scape the grounde frome her, and make her a bare shone: yea as the dryng place where the fishes hange vpon the nettes by the ice syde. When I haue spoken it, sayeth the Lord God, the Gentiles shall spoyle her: herough tress vpon the felde, shall preysse with the sword, that they may knowe howe that I am the Lord.

For thus sayeth the Lord God: Beholde, I will bringe vnto her Nabuchodonosor, which is the kynge of Babylon, and a kynge of kynges from the North vpon Tyus, with horse, chariots, horsemen, and with a greates multitude of people. Thy daughteres that are in the land, shall see with the sword: but agaynst the he shall make bulwarkes, and shall be as a rocke aboute the, and lyke vpon his wythe agaynst the. His kynges and battell raimmes shall be prepare for the walles, and with his weapons breake downe the towres. The bulke of his horses shall couer the, they shall be as manye, the walles shall make at the myght of the horsemen, chariottes, and whelles, when he cometh to the portes, as men doe in to an open cite. With the hoes of his horse fete, shall he treade downe at the streetes.

He shall see the people with the sword, and breake downe the pylles of the strength. They shall make a mape the ychelle, and spoyle the marchandise. The walles shall they breake downe, and destroye the houses of pleasure. The houses, the tymber and foundations shall they caue in the water. Thus will I bringe the melodye of thy songes, and the voice of thy mirthfullnes to an ende, so that they shall no more be herde. I will make a bare shone of the sea, a dryng place for nettles, and shall neuer be buylded agayne: For when I the Lord haue spoken it, sayeth the Lord God: thus hath the Lord God spoken concerninge Tyus. The Jles shall be moued at the voyse of thy fall, and at the cry of the dayne that shall be murdered in the. All kynges of the see shall come downe from their seates regail: they shall laye awaye theyr robes, and put of their costly clothinge. Yea with tremblinge shall they be clothed, they shall lye vpon the grounde: they shall be ashyde at thy fodeyn fall, and be abashed at the.

They shall mourne for the, and saye vnto the: O thou noble cite that hast ben so greatly occupied of olde, thou that hast ben the strongest vpon the see with thyne inhabitantes, of whom all men shode in feare: how art thou now so utterly destroyed? Nowe at the tyme of thy fall the inhabitants of the yles, yea and the yles them selues shall stand in feare at thyne ende.

For thus sayeth the Lord God: when I make the a desolate cite (as other cities be, that no man dwell in) and when I bringe the depe vpon the, that greates waters maye caue the: Then will I call the downe vnto them that descende in to the pytte: vnto a people that hath ben longe dred, and let the in a lande that is benethe, lyke the olde wyldrenesse, with them which go downe to the graues, so that no man shall dwell more in the. And I will make the to be no more in honoure in the lande of the lpyng. I will make an ende of the, and thou shalt be gone. Though thou be sought for, yet shalt thou not be founde for euermore, sayeth the Lord God.

The prophete is moued to bewaile the destruction of Tyus. He reuereth out the people of Tyus for the haunting of marchantes therto.

CAPL. XXVII.

The woide of the Lord came vnto me, saying: O thou sonne of man, make a lamentable complaint vpon Tyus, and saye vpon Tyus, which is a poete of the see, that occupieth with moche people and many yles: Thus speaketh the Lord God. O Tyus, thou hast sayde: What, I am a noble cite: Thy borders are in the myddel of the see, and thy bulwarkes haue made the meruelous goodlye, all thy tablis haue they made of Cypre trees of the mount of Samir. From Libanus haue they takē Cedre trees to make the mases: and the oaks of Libanus to make the rowers.

Thy boardes haue they made of pynny, and of costly wood out of the yle of Aethiopia. Thy pyle was of Cypre smal mase made out of the lande of Egypt, to hange vpon thy mase: and thy hangings of felowe lyke purple, oue of the yles of Cilicia.

They of Sidon and Anad were thy marchantes, and the wisest in Tyus were thy wyf-makers. The eldest & wyfdest at Gebai were thy, that mended and stopped thy wyppes. All wyppes of the see with their wyppen stopped their marchandise in the. The Persians, Libians, and Libians, were in thine host, & helped to fight: these haged by their helde and helmettes with the, these sette forth the brayte. They of Anad were with thyne best round aboute thy walles, and were thy watchmen vpon thy towres, these hanged by their wyldes round aboute thy walles, and made the merueous goodly. Tharhis occupied hith the in all manner of wares, in sylver, pynny, and leade, and made thy market greates. Iuan, Eubal, and Aethiopia were thy marchantes, which broughte the men & emmentes of metall for thy occupyng. They of the house of Thogarma broughte vnto the at the tyme of thy marte, horse, horse men and mules.

They of Dedan were thy marchantes: & manye other Jles that occupied with the, broughte the wyethes, Elephant bones and poroches for a present. The Sinitans occupied with the, because of thy diuers wozkes, and increased thy marchandise, with Sumaragdes, with scarlet, with noble wozke, with white pynny cloth, with spicke & with Chybaill.

Juda and the land of Israel occupied with the, and brought vnto thy markettes, wheat, balm, honey, oyle, and cryatic, Damascens also bled marchandise with the, in the best hyne and white wool: because thy occupa-cyng was so great, and thy wares so manye. Dan, Iuan, & Deusal haue broughte vnto thy markettes, pynny made, with Cassia & Calamus, accordyng to thyne occupyng. Dedan occupied with the, in farye tapestreye wozke and quippons. Arabis and al the yles of Edear haue occupied with the, in wyne, wyethes and geotes.

The marchantes of Seba and Kema haue occupied also with the, in al costly spores in all precious stones and golde, which they broughte vnto thy markettes. Haran, Chene and Eden, the marchantes of Saba, Afina and Belmad, were all doers with the, & occupied with the, in costly rayment, of pe-loue syke and noble wozke (verye precious & therefore pake and bounde together with syppe), yea and in Cedre wood, at the tyme of thy markettes. The wyppes of Tharhis were the chiefe of thy occupyng.

Thus thus thou art full, and in moche wyne in the myddel of the see. Thy marchantes were enre dryngyng vnto the oute of many wares. But the east wynde shall ouerblow the vnto the myddel of the see: so that the wares, thy marchandise, thy wythes, thy raim-ments thy wyppes, thy helpers, thy occupyng (that broughte the thynges necessarye) the men of marte that are in the sea and all thy comens shall preysse in the myddel of the see in the daye of thy fall.

The suburbs shall make at the loud crye of thy wyppen. All thy wyppen men, and all marchantes vpon the see, shall leape oute of their bootes, and set them selues vpon the lande. They shall lyke vpon their wyppes because of the, and make a lamentable crye. They shall caue downe vpon their heades, and lye wyne in the ashes. They shall haue them selues, and put sacke cloth vpon them for thy sake.

They shall mourne for the with heartfull sorow, and heare lamentation, yea their children also shall wepe for the. Alas, what crye hath to bene destroyed in the see, as Tyus is? When thy wares and marchandise came from the sees, thou gauest al people ynough. The kynges of the earth haue thou made rich, thou the multitude of thy wares and occupyng.

But thou arte now cast downe into the depe of the see, all thy resort of people is pe-shed with the. All they that dwell in the Jles are abashed at the, and all their kynges are ashyde, yea their faces haue chaunged coloure. The marchantes of the naciōs wondre at the. In that thou art so cleane brought to nought, and comest no more by.

The woide of God agaynst the kynge of Tyus for his pyrry. Daniel. The prophete is moued to bewaile the kynge of Tyus. The woide of the Lord agaynst Tyus. The Lord promyseth to gather together the chyldren of Israel.

CAPL. XXVIII.

The woide of the Lord came vnto me, saying: Thou sonne of man, tell the prince of Tyus. Thus sayeth the Lord God: because thou hast a proude herte and sayest: I am a God, I haue my seate in the myddel of the see like a God: where as thou art but a man and not God, and yet thou dost in thine owne conceit, & thou art God: Behold, thou thinkest thy selfe wyse then Daniel, that there is no secretes hyde frome the.

With thy wysdome and thy vnderstandyng, thou hast gotten the great welchines and gathered treasure of syluer and golde: With thy greates wysdome and occupynge haue thou increased thy power, and because of thy greates wythes, thy herte is proude.

Therefore thus sayeth the Lord God: For so much as thou hast lyfte vp thine herte, as though thou were God behold, I will bringe enemies vpon the, euen the tyrauntes of the Jles: they shall drawe out their swar-des vpon thy beautye and wysdome, and shall despoyle thy glory.

They shall cast the downe to the pytte, so that thou shalt dye in the myddel of the see as they that be slayne.

Let it, & thou wilt say then (before them that slay the) I am God: inhere as thou art but a man & not God, in the handes of them that slay the.

Dye shalt thou, euen as the vndermynesed in the handes of the enemies: for I myselfe haue spoken it: sayeth the Lord God.

Agaync

Moreover, the word of the Lord came unto me saying: Thou sonne of man, make a lamentable complainte once the kyng of Tyre, and tell him: Thus sayeth the Lord God: Thou art a scale of a Iphene, full of wisdom and excellent beaute. Thou hast bene in the pleasant garden of God: thou art here with all manner of precious stones: with Ruby, Topas, Chrysolite, Jacynth, Onix, Sapphir, Smaragde, Carbuncle, and golde. Thy beaute and the holes that be in the were set forth in the daye of thy creation. Thou art a fayre Cherub, stretched out to the court.

I have set thee upon the holy mounte of God, there hast thou bene, & walked amonge the sayre glisteringe stones. From the tyme of thy creation thou hast ben right exalted, tyll wickednesse, was founde in the. Because of thy grete marchaundise, thy heere is full of wickednesse, and thou hast offended. Therefore will I take thee from the mount of God (O thou covering Cherub) and destroye the amonge the glisteringe stones. Thy heere was proude in thy sayre beaute, and thou wast thy beaute thou hast destroyed thy wisdom, I will take thee downe to the ground, & that in the sight of kinglys.

Thou hast despised thy Sanctuary, with the grete wickednesse of thy vnyghteous covetysse. I will bynne a fyre from the mid-bell of the, to consume the: and will make the to ashes, in the sight of all the that loke upon the. All the that have bene acquainted with the amonge the heathen, shall be abashed at the: for they shall see in cleane broughte to nought, and commeth no more up.

And the word of the Lord came unto me saying: Thou sonne of man, see thy face agayne Sidon.

Prophecy upon it, and speake. Thus sayeth the Lord God: Beholde O Sidon, I will upon the, and get me honoure in the: that it maye be knowne, howe that I am the Lord when I punyssh her, and get me honoure in her. For I will sende pestilence and bloude weeping into her streets, so that those which shee shalpe with the swerde, shall see aboute in the myddell of her: and they shall knowe, that I am the Lord. She shall no more be a pryncesse thome, and an buyryng place: unto the house of Israel, ne unto them that live rounde about her and hate her: and they shall knowe, that I am the Lord.

Thus sayeth the Lord God: when I gather the householde of Israel together agayne from the nations amonge whom they be scattered: then shall I be sanctified in them, in the sight of the Gentyles, and they shall dwell in I land, that I gave to my servaunte Jacob. They shall dwell safely therein, by the handes and plantes by the handes: yea safely shall they dwell therein, when I have punysshed all those that despise them rounde aboute: and then shall they knowe, that I am the Lord God.

The prophecy upon Pharaos. The prophecy of the destruction of Egypt, and the sparinge of the of the Egyptians. The Lord promyseth that he will restore Egypt agayne after forty years. Egypt in the swerde of the kyng Nabuchodonosor for the labour whiche he toke agayne Tyre.

CAPL.

XXIX.

In the tenth yere upon the thirteenth daye of the first moneth, the word of the Lord came unto me saying: O thou sonne of man, set nowe thy face agayne Pharaos the kyng of Egypt, prophecy agayne him, agayne the hole lande of Egypt: Speake and tell him, thus sayeth the Lord God: Beholde, O Pharaos thou kyng of Egypt, I will upon the, thou grete dragon, that lyest in the waters: thou that sayest: the water is mine. I have made it my selfe. I will put an hook in thy chawes, and hange all the fyshes in thy waters upon thy scales: after that I will drawe the oute of thy waters: Yea and all the fyshes of thy waters that hange upon thy scales. I will take the oute upon the dry land with the fyshes of the waters, so that thou shalt lye upon the felde. Thou shalt not be gathered ne taken up: but shalt be meate for the beastes of the felde, and for the foules of the ayre: that all they whiche dwell in Egypt, maye knowe, that I am the Lord: because thou hast bene a floure of reede to the house of Israel. When they shal be holde of the with their hande thou shalt be pycked them on every syde: and they shall be upon the, thou shalt be buried in the reynes of their baches. Therefore, thus sayeth the Lord God: beholde, I will bynne a swerde upon the, and rote out of the bette man and beaste. Yea the lande of Egypt shall be desolate and waste, and they shall knowe, that I am the Lord: Because he sayeth: I water is myne, I my selfe have made it: Beholde therefore, I will upon the, and bynne the waters: I will make the lande of Egypte waste and desolate, from the towne of Syene, unto the borders of the Egyptian lande so that in xl. yeres there shall no more of man walke there, neither fote of cattell goe there, neither shall it be inhabited. I will make the lande of Egypte to be desolate, & amonges other wylde countreyes, and I will give it to the byrds of the ayre, and to the bestiall eyes: And I will scatte the Egyptians amonge the heathen and nations.

Agayne, thus sayeth the Lord God: When the xl. yeres are expired, I will gather the Egyptians to synne agayne, out of the nations, amonges whom they were scattered. I will bynne the prisoners of Egypt agayne into the lande of Pharaos their owne true countrey, that they maye be there a litle tyme: for they shall be the smallest amonge other kyngdomes lest they make them selves aboute the heathen: for I will so menasse them that they shall no more tene the heathen.

They shall no more be an hope unto the house of Israel, neither shall they be any more unto the heathen.

unto wickednes, to cause the turne backe and to solowe them: and they shall knowe that I am the Lord God.

In the xxv. yere, the first daye of the first moneth, came the word of the Lord unto me saying: Thou sonne of man, Nabuchodonosor the kyng of Babylon hath made his hoste, with grete travayle and labour to come before Tyre: that every deed maye be halde, and every shoulder bare. Yet hath hee grete neede neither him ne his hoste any more, for the grete travayle that he hath taken there.

Therefore thus sayeth the Lord God: Beholde, I will give the lande of Egypt vnto Nabuchodonosor the kyng of Babylon, that he maye take away all her substance, rob her chibberes, and spoyle her spoiles, to pay his hoste wages withal. I will give him the land of Egypt for his labour, that he toke for me before Tyre.

At the same tyme will I cause the home of the house of Israel to growe forth, and open my mouth agayne amonge them: that they maye knowe, how that I am the Lord.

The destruction of Egypt and of his cyties is brought.

CAPL.

XXX.

The word of the Lord came more once unto me, saying: O thou sonne of man, prophecy and speake: thus sayeth the Lord God: Beholde, this daye is here, the daye of the Lord is come: the darke daye of the heathen, the daye is at hande, the swerde cometh upon Egypte.

When I have made me sal downe in Egypte, when her people are taken away, & when her foundations are destroyed, the Egyptians shall be as they were the moyses lande, as the land of Ibia, all these common people, and shall all that be confederate vnto them, shall fall with them thowme the swerde.

Thus sayeth the Lord: the maynteyners of the lande of Egypte shall fall, the pyde of her power shall come downe: even unto the towne of Syene shall they be layne downe with the swerde, sayeth the Lord God: & amonge other desolate countreyes they shall be made desolate, and amonge other waste cyties they shall be wasted. And they shall knowe, that I am the Lord, when I bynde a fyre in Egypte, and when all her helpers are destroyed.

At that tyme, shall their messengers goe forth to me in Egypte, to make the carelesse Egyptians as they were, and so they shall come vnto me in the daye of Egypte for doublet it shall come.

Thus sayeth the Lord God: I will make an ende of the people of Egypte thowme the lande of Nabuchodonosor kyng of Babylon. And his people with him, yea and the cruel tyrantes of the heathen shall be broughte to despoyle the lande.

They shall drawe out their swerdes vnto Egypte and sell the lande full of sayne me I will bye by the handes of water, and sell the lande into the handes of wicked people. The lande and all that is therein, will I destroye thowme the enemyes. Even I the Lord have sayde it.

And thus sayeth the Lord God: I will destroye the Idollers, and bynne the images of Apych to an ende. There shall no more be a pryncesse of Egypte, and a fearfullnesse will I sende in to the Egyptians land. As for Pharaos, I will make it desolate, and bynde a fyre in Zoan. Alexandria will I punyssh, and poure my wrathfull indignacion upon Sin whiche is the strength of Egypte. All the substance of Alexandria will I destroye, and bynde a fyre in Egypte.

Sin shall be in grece bynne, Alexandria shall be rote out, and Noph shall have despoyle for ever. The best men of Heliopolis and Bubasta shall be layne with the swerde, and carryed away captives. At Raphis the daye shall be darke, when I bynne there the scepter of the lande of Egypte, and when the pompe of her power shall have an ende. A cloude shall cover her and her daughters shall be led away into captivitye. Thus will I punyssh the Egypte, that they may knowe, how that I am the Lord.

It happened in the xl. yere, vnto the seventh daye of the first moneth, that the Lordes word came unto me, saying: Beholde thou sonne of man, I will bynne the arme of Pharaos kyng of Egypte: and so it shall not be bound up to be healed, neither shall any playe be layne upon it, so to ease it, or to make it so strong, as to void a swerde. Therefore, thus sayeth the Lord God: Beholde, I will upon Pharaos the kyng of Egypte, and bynne his stronge arme (yet is it but a broken one) and will smyte the swerde out of his hand.

As for the Egyptians, I will scatte them amonge the heathen, and strowe them in I landes aboute. Agayne I will strength the arme of the kyng of Babylon, & give him my sword in his hand: but I will bynne Pharaos arme so that he shall holde it before him pitously like a wounded man.

Yea I will bynne the kyng of Babylon's arme: and the armes of Pharaos shall fall downe: that it maye be knowne, that I am the Lord, whiche give the kyng of Babylon my swerde in his hande, that he maye drawe it oute upon the lande of Egypte: & that when I scatte the Egyptians amonge the Gentyles, and strowe them in the landes aboute, they maye knowe, that I am the Lord.

A comparison of the prosperite of Pharaos, with the prosperite of the Egyptians. The prophecy of a lyke destruction vnto them both.

EZECHIEL

ff. 111.

Moreover, it happened in the xi. yeare the fyfte daye of the thirde moneth that the worde of the Lorde came vnto me sayinge: Thou sonne of man speake vnto Pharao the kynge of Egypte, and to al his people: Who art thou lyke in thy greatesse? Beholde Assur was lyke a Cedre tree vpon the moor of Libanus with fayre braunches: so thicke, that he gaue shadowes and shor out brye hygge. His toppes reached vnto the cloudes. The waters made him greatesse, and the depe set him vp an hygge. Rounde about the roots of him ranne there floudes of water: he sente oute his lytle ryuers vnto all the trees of the felde. Therefore was he hygge then all the trees of the felde, and thowme the multitude of waters that he sent from him he cōpryned many longe braunches. All foules of the ayre made their nestes in his braunches, vnder his bowes genyded all their beades of the felde, and vnder his shadow dwelt all people. Fayre and beautifull was he in his greatesse and in the length of his braunches, for his rote stode by the greatesse waters. No Cedre tre myghte hyge him. In the pleasant garden of God, there was no fyre tre lyke his braunches, the playne trees were not like the bowes of him. All the trees in the garden of God might not be compared vnto him in his beautie: he was fayre and goodlye had I made him with the multitude of his braunches: In so moche that all the trees in the pleasant garden of God, had enuy at him.

Therefore thus sayth the Lorde God: For so moche as he hath lyfte vp him selfe so hygge and stretched his top into the cloudes, and seinge his heete is proude in his hyghnesse: I wyll deliuer him in to the handes of the myghtyest amonges the hepten, whiche shall rote him out. Accordinge to his wyckednesse will I cast him awaye, the enemyes shall destroye him, and the myghty men of the hepten shall so scattere him that his braunches shall lye vpon all mountaynes and in al valleyes, his bowes shall be broken downe to the grounde thowm out the lande. Then all the people of the lande shall goe from his shadow and forsake him. When he is fallen, all the foules of the ayre shall lye vpon him, and all wyld beastes of the felde shall goe about amonges his braunches: so that some hiee for the, no tree in the water shall attayne to his hyghnesse, nor reache his toppes vnto the cloudes, neither shall any tree of the water stande so hygge, as he hath done. For vnto death shall they all be deliuered vnder the earth, and goe downe to the graue, lyke other men.

Moreover, thus sayth the Lorde God: In the daye when he goeth downe to the graue I wyll cause a lamentacion to be made. I wyll couer the dyce vpon him, I will shauche his floudes, and the greatesse waters shall be cōstrayned. I will cause Libanus to be sorowfull for his sake, and all the trees of the felde shall be smytten.

I wyll make the hepten shake at the sound of his fall, when I cast him downe to hell, with them that descende in to the pytt. All the trees of Eden, withal the chosen and best trees of Libanus, yea and all they that are planted vpon the waters, shall moue with him also in the lower habytacions: for they shall goe downe to hell with him, vnto them that be slayne with the sword, which dwelt afore vnder the shadowe of his arme among the hepten. To whom shall they be lyke, that are so gloriously and great, among the trees of Eden? Per art thou cast downe vnder the earth (amonges the trees of Eden) where thou must lye amonges vncircumcised, with them that be slayne with the sword. Thus is it with Pharao and all his people, sayth the Lorde God.

The Prophete is cōmāded to bewyle Pharao. He prophesyeth that destruction shall come to Egypte thynge the hygge or Libanus.

CAPL. XXXII.

In the xii. yeare, the fyfte daye of the xi. moneth, the worde of the Lorde came vnto me, sayinge: Thou sonne of man, take vp a lamentacion vpon Pharao kynge of Egypte, and saye vnto him: Thou art cōmāded as a lion of the hygge, and as a whole sheepe in the see.

Thou caldest thy waters aboute the, thou troudest the waters with thy feet, and stampst in their floudes. Thus sayth the Lorde God: I wyll lynd my net ouer the, namely, a greatesse multitude of people: these shall dyspue the in to my pytt, for I will cast the vpon the lande, and let the lye vpon the felde that all the foules of the ayre maye lye vpon the: I wyll geue all the beastes of the felde prouynge of the.

For aske wyll I caste vpon the hilles, I will fill the valleyes with thy hyghnesse. I will make the lande with the abundance of thy bloude euen to the mountaynes, and the valleyes shall be full of the. When thou art put out, I wyll couer the heauen, and make his harte dymme. I will speede a cloude ouer the Sunne, and the Moone shall not geue her lght.

All the lghtes of heuen wyll I put out ouer the, and bynge darkenesse vpon the. Thus sayth the Lorde God. I wyll trouble the hartes of many people, when I bynge the destruction amonges the hepten: I cōstrayne whom thou knowest not. Yea I wyll make many people with their hynges so aske the, that they were shall stand by. When I shall my swerde at thy face, and deadly shall they be assayed, every man in him selfe, at the daye of thy fall.

For thus sayth the Lorde God: the kynge of Babylons swerde shall come vpon the, with the swerdes of the moyses wyll I smyte downe the people.

All they that be myghty amonges the hepten, shall make the prouynge of Egypte and byng downe al her people. All the of Egypte wyll I destroye, that they shall come no more vpon the waters: so that neither mans foot ne beastes clawe, shall there any more. Then wyll I make their waters cleare, and cause their floudes to runne the oyle, sayth the Lorde God: when I make the lande of Egypte desolate, and when the mountaynes with all that is therein, shall be layde waste: and when I smyte all them which dwell in it, that they maye knowe, that I am the Lorde. This is the mourning, that I brought of the hepten: shall make: Yea a sorrow and lamentacion shall they take vpon Egypte and all her people, sayth the Lorde God.

In the xii. yeare, the xi. daye of the moneth, the worde of the Lorde came vnto me, sayinge: Thou sonne of man, take vp a lamentacion vpon the people of Egypte, and saye vnto them, yea and the myghty people of the hepten also euen with the that dwell therein: and with them that goe downe in to the graue. Downe (howe saye so euer thou be) and laye the with the vncircumcised, amonges those that be slayne with the sword, shall they lye.

The swerde is geuen alreadye, he shall be hewen forth and al his people. The myghty men and his helpers, that be gone to dwene and lye with the vncircumcised & with them that be slayne with the sword: shall speake to him out of the myddest of hell.

There is there also with his company, and there graues round about, which were slayne with the sword, whose graues lye before him in the lowe pytt. His companions are layed rounde about his graue: all togither bounded and slayne with the sword, which afore tyme brought feare into the land of the lyuynge.

There is I am also with all his people, & their graues rounde about: which all being bounded and slayne with the sword, are gone downe vncircumcised vnder the earth, whiche neuertheles somtyme brought feare into the lande of the lyuynge: for the whiche they bare their shame, with the other that be gone downe to the graue.

Their buriall is geuen them and all their people, amonges them that be slayne. Their graues are round about all them which be vncircumcised, and with them that be slayne with the sword: for seinge that in times past they made the lād of the lyuynge afraid, they muste nowe heare their owne shame, with them that goe downe to the pytt, & lye amonges them that be slayne.

There is Meserch also and Tubal, & their people, and their graues round about. These all are amonges the vncircumcised, and they shall be slayne with the sword, because afore tyme they made the lande of the lyuynge ashyed.

Shalbe not they then lye amonges the hepten, and vncircumcised Gyantes? whiche with their weapons are gone downe to hell: whose swerdes are layed vnder their bodies, whose wickednesse is vpon their bodies.

nes: because that as worthyes, they haue brought feare in to the lande of the lyuynge? Yea amonges the vncircumcised shall thou be destroyed, and slepe with them, that perished thorow the swerde.

There is the lande of Edom with her kynge & prynces also, whiche with their strength are layed by them that be slayne with the sword, yea amonges the vncircumcised, and them whiche are gone downe into the pytt. Moreover, there be all the prynces of the north, with all the Sidonians, whiche are gone downe to the slayne.

With their feare & strength they are come to confusyon, and lye there vncircumcised, amonges those that be slayne with the sword, and beate their owne shame, with them that be gone downe to the pytt.

Howe when Pharao seith this, he shall be comforted ouer all his people, that is slayne with the sword: both Pharao and all his house, sayth the Lorde God. For I haue gyuen my teare in the land of the lyuynge. But Pharao and al his people shall lye amonges the vncircumcised, and amonges them that be slayne with the sword sayth the Lorde God.

He setteth out the offyce of a preacher. He strengtheneth them that oswayre, and holdensthem with the promyse of mercy. So the former eyghtousnesse helpeyth not the ryghtous, yf he geue hym selfe agayne to synne: so the synners done before are not imputed to the wycked that amēdeth. The worde of the Lorde agaynst the rest of the people. Agaynst the mockers of the wordes of the Prophete.

CAPL. XXXII.

Agayne, the worde of the Lorde came vnto me sayinge: Thou sonne of man, speake to the chyldren of thy people, and tell them: When I sende a swerde vpon a lande, yf the people of the lande take a man of their cōuntry, and sette him to be their watchman: the same man (when he seyth the swerde come vpon the lande) shall blowe the trompette, and warne the people.

If a man now heare the noyse of the trompette and wyll not be warned, and the swerde come and take him awaye: his bloude shall be vpon his owne heed: for he herde the sound of the trompette, and made not take hede, therefore his bloude be vpon him. But yf he wyll receyue warnynge, he shall saue his lyfe.

Agayne, yf the watchman se the swerde come and seue it not with the trompette, so that the people is not warned: if the swerde come then, and take any man from amonges the: the same shall be taken awaye in his owne synne, but his bloude wyll I requyre of the watchmans hand.

And nowe (O thou sonne of man) I haue made the a watchman vnto the house of Israel:

fringe thou lapell waste for bloude, therefore shall bloud persecute the. Thus will I make the mount Seir desolate and waste, and bring to passe that there shall no man go thither, ne come from thence. His mountaynes will I fill with his slayne men: thy hylls, dales, and valles shall lye full of them that are slayne with the swerde. I will make the a perpetuall wyldernesse, so that no man shall dwell in thy cyties: that ye maye knowe how that I am the Lorde.

And because thou hast sayd: what, bothe these nations, and bothe these landes muste be myne, and I will haue them in possession, where as the Lorde was there. Therefore, thus sayth the Lorde God: As truly as I live I will handle the accordinge to thy wylthe and gelousye, lyke as thou hast deale cruelly with them: that I maye be knowne among them, howe I haue punished the. Yea, and that thou shalt be sure that I the Lorde haue herde all thy despytfull wordes, which thou hast spoken agaynst the mountaynes of Israel, sayinge: Lo, they are made waste, and gauen vs to beuoute. Thus with your mouthes ye haue made your booke agaynst me, yea, and multiplied your proude wordes agaynst me, which I haue herde all toge-Ezech. xlii. D therunto thus sayth the Lorde God: When the hole worlde is in mealthe, then will I make the waste. And lyke as thou (O mount Seir) wast glad, because the heritage of the house of Israel was destroyed: euen so will I do vnto the also, that thou and hole doom shall be destroyed, and know that I am the Lorde.

The promyseth deliuerance from the Gentiles vnto Israel. The benefices done vnto the Jewes are to be ascribed to the mercy of God, not vnto their deseruings. God reuoketh our heresies that we maye walke in his commaundmentes.

CAPL XXXVI.

Ezech. xlii. Thou sonne of man, prophete vpon the mountaynes of Israel, and speake. Heare the worde of the Lorde. O ye mountaynes of Israel. Thus sayth the Lorde God: Because your enemy hath sayd vpon you: Aha, the hye euelladynge places are now become ours: Prophecie therefore and speake: thus sayth the Lorde God: Seeing ye be wasted and troden downe on euery syde, and become a possession vnto the residue of the Gentiles, which haue brought you in to menes mouthes, and vnto an euill name amonges the people. Therefore heare the worde of the Lorde God, O ye mountaynes of Israel: Thus sayth the Lorde God vnto the mountaynes and hylls, balters and dales, to the wyldernesses, and desolate cyties, which are spoiled, and habd in derision on euery syde, amonges the residue of the Gentiles: Yea, euen thus sayth the Lorde God: In the fyre of my gelousye haue I taken a deuyce, agaynst the residue of the Gentiles, and agaynst all doom: which haue taken in my lande vnto them selues for a possession, which also reioysed from theyr habite, with a despytfull stomache to waite and to spoyle it.

Prophecie therefore vpon the lande of Israel, speake vnto the mountaynes and hylls, to balters and dales, thus sayth the Lorde God. Beholde, thus haue I deuised in my ge-Ezech. xlii. D lousye and terrible wylthe: for so moche as ye haue suffered reproche of the Heathen: therefore, thus sayth the Lorde God: I haue sworne that the Gentiles which lye about you, shall beare your confusion thymself. And as for you (O mountaynes of Israel) ye shall wote vnto your balters, and bynge forth your frute to my people of Israel: for it is harde by that will come. Beholde, I come vnto you, and vnto you will I tourne me, that ye maye be tyllid and sowed.

I will sende you moche people, which shall be all of the house of Israel: the cyties shall be inhabited, and the decayed places shall be repaired agayne. I will proude you with moche people & catel, which shall encrease and bynge frute. I will restore you also to your owne estate, and wyte you more habundantly then euer ye hadde before: wherby ye shall knowe that I am the Lorde. Yea, people of Israel, I sende vnto you (O my folke of Israel) which shall haue the in possession, and then shall be their inheritance, so that thou shalt no more be without them. Agayne, thus sayth the Lorde God: for so moche as they saye vnto you: Ye are an eater vp of men, & a waster of the people: therefore thou shalt eat no more men, neyther destroye the people any more, sayth the Lorde God. And I will not suffer the to be heare thine owne confusion amonges the Gentiles from henceforth. Thou shalt not beare the reproche of the nations, nor cast oute thine owne people any more, sayth the Lorde God.

Moreover, the worde of the Lorde came vnto me, sayng: O thou son of man, when the house of Israel dwelt vpon their own ground they despyed them selues with thy: wylthe and ymaginacions: so I in my sight theyr wylthe was lyke the unclennesse of a filthy woman. Wherefore I poured my wrath full displeasure vpon them, because of the bloude that they had shed in the lande, and because of their ydoles, wherewith they had tyld them selues. I scattered them also among the Heathen, so that they were strowed about in the landes. Accordinge to their wayes, and after theyr owne inuencions, so dyd I punish the.

Nowe when they were gone vnto the Heathen, and come in amonges them, they dishonoured my holy name: so that it was sayd of them: See these the people of God, and what they do: And these the people of God, and what they do: go out of their owne land: Then spake I my holy name which the house of Israel had dishonoured amonges the Gentiles, to whom they came. Therefore tell the house of Israel: Thus sayth the Lorde God: I will not be for your sake (O house of Israel) but for my holys sake, which ye dishonoured amonges the Heathen, when ye came to them. Therefore, I will halowe my greates name agayne, which amonges the Gentiles is spoken of: for ye your selues haue dishonoured it amonges them. And the Gentiles shall knowe that I am the Lorde, when I am honoured in you before their eyes, sayth the Lorde God.

As for you, I will take you from amonges the Heathen, and gather you together oute of all countreies, and bynge you agayne in to your owne lande. Then will I poure cleare water vpon you, and ye shall be cleane: yea from all your uncleennesse, and I will geue you a newe harte, and a newe spirite will I put in to you: so that: Nonne here, I will take it oute of your bowe, and geue you a newe harte. I will geue my spirite amonge you, and cause you to walke in my commaundmentes, so haue my lawes, and to kepe them.

And I will dwell in the lande that I gaue to your fore fathers, and ye shall be my people, and I will be your God. I will help you out of all your uncleennesse. I will call in the coigne, and will encrease it, and will let you haue no hongre. I will multiply the seede as the tereers, and the increase of the tribe by you, so that ye shall beare no more reproche amonges the Heathen. Then shall ye remembre your owne wicked wayes, and your ymaginacions, which were not good: so that ye shall take displeasure at your owne liues, by reason of your synnes and abominacions.

But I will not doo this for your sakes (sayth the Lorde God) but for the sake of the house of Israel, that they be ashamed of your synnes. Moreover, thus sayth the Lorde God: what tyme as I shall cleanse you from all your offences, then will I make the cyties to be accupped agayne, and will repaire the places that be decayed. The desolate land shall be builded agayne, which afore tyme laye waste in the sight of all them that were by.

Then shall it be sayd: this waste lande is become lyke a garden of pleasure, and the wyldernesse, desolate and broken downe cyties are nowe stronge and fenced agayne. Then the residue of the Heathen that lye rounde aboute you, shall knowe that I am the Lorde which repaire that was broken downe, and plante agayne that was made waste. Euen so the Lorde haue spoken it, and will do it in tyme.

Thus sayth the Lorde God: I will yet more be sounde agayne of the house of Israel, and doo this for them: I will encrease them as a flocke of men. Lyke as the flocke, and the flocke of Jerusalem are in the hygh solemne feastes: so that also the wyldernesse cyties be tyld with flockes of men: and they shall knowe that I am the Lorde.

The prophete the bynginge agayne of the people byng in captiuyte. He sheweth the vpon of the ten tribes with the two. Chryste is the kyng of the Chycken people alone, and the only euelladynge shepherde therof.

CAPL XXXVII.

The hande of the Lorde came vpon me, and caried me oute in the spirite of the Lorde, & let me downe in a playne field, that laye full of bones, and he led me rounde about: by twent: and begode the bones that laye vpon the felde were verie many, and marueylous ope also. When said he vnto me: Thou sonne of man: speakest thou these bones maye lyue agayne? I answered: O Lorde God, thou knowest. And he sayde vnto me: Prophecie thou vpon these bones, and speake vnto them: Ye dyde bones, heare the worde of the Lorde. Thus sayth the Lorde God vnto these bones: Beholde, I will put breeth in to you, that ye maye liue: I will giue you newe fleshe, and make fleshe grow vpon you and couer you ouer with skin, and so geue you breeth that ye maye liue and knowe that I am the Lorde.

So I prophesied as he hadde commaunded me. And as I was prophesyinge, there came a noyse and a greates motion, so that the bones came curre oute to an other. And when I had looked, beholde, they had synowes, and fleshe grew vpon them, and about they were couered with skin, but there was no breath in them: Then said he vnto me: Thou sonne of man, prophecie thou towarde the wynde: prophecie, and speake to the wynde: Thus sayth the Lorde God: a wynde (O thou wynde) come from the four wyndes, and blow vpon these bones, that they maye be restored to lyfe. So I prophesied, as he had commaunded me, then came the wynde in to them, and they receyued lyfe, and stood vp vpon their fete, a marueylous great lyfte.

Moreover, he sayd vnto me: Thou sonne of man, these bones are the hole house of Israel. Beholde, they saye: Our bones are dried vp, our hope is gone, we are cleane cut of. Therefore prophecie thou, and speake vnto them: thus sayth the Lorde God: Beholde, I will open your graues (O my people) and take you oute of your sepulchres, and bynge you in to the lande of Israel agayne. So shall ye knowe that I am the Lorde, when I open your graues, and bynge you oute of them. My spirite also will I put in you, and ye shall lyue: I will sette you agayne in your owne lande, and ye shall knowe, that I am the Lorde, which haue sayd, and fulfilled it in dede.

The worde of the Lorde came vnto me, sayng: Thou sonne of man, take a shepe and wyte vpon it: vnto Iuda and to the chyldren of Israel his companions. Then take an other shepe, and wyte vpon it: vnto Joseph & to the flocke of Ephraim, and to all the householde of Israel his companions. And the shepe bothe yet together in thyne hande, so shall there be one speche therof. Now of the chyldren of thy people I saye unto the: I wyll the not know what thou meanest by these: the gynethem this answer: thus sayth the Lorde God: behold I will take the stocke of I-scop, which is in the lande of Ephraim, and of the tribes of Israel his fellows, and will put them to the stocke of Iuda, and make the one stocke, and they shall be one in my hand.

And the two stockes wherupon thou wastest shalt thou have in thine hand, that they may be, and shalt saye unto them:

Thus sayth the Lorde God: behold, I will take awaye the chyliden of Israel from among the heathen, unto whom they be gone and will gather them together on every syde, and bring them agayne in to their owne land.
yea I will make one people of the in I land, upon the mountaynes of Israel, and they all shall have but one kyng. They shall no more be two peoples from henceforth, neyther be divided in to two kyngdomes: they shall also be like them selves no more with their ab-ominacions, ydoles, and all their wicked devices. I will peipe them out of all their dwelling places wher they have synned, & will so cleanse them, that they shall be my people, and I their God.

Eze. xxxiii. 1.
John. 8. 12.

David my servant shall be theyr kyng, and they all shall have one shepheard onely.
They shall walke in my lawes and my com-mandementes, whiche they bothe hope and fulfill. They shall dwell in the lande that I gave unto Jacob my servant, where as your fathers also have dwelt. Yea eue in the same lande shall they, theyr chyliden, and theyr chyliden chyliden dwell for ever more: and my seruante David shall be theyr shepherd pynne.

Moreover, I will make a bande of peac with them, which shall be unto them an euerlasting conuenaunt. I will settle them also, and multiply them, my Sanctuary will I set among them for euermore. My dwelling shall be with them: yea I will be their God, and they shall be my people. Thus the heathen also shall knowe that I the Lorde am the holy maker of Israel: when my Sanctuary shall be amonges them for euer more.

The propheth that Gog and Magog shall come with an appointed host in to the lande of promys.
Theyr intent. He rehereth that the companye of Gog was before prophethed of the Prophets.
The destruction of hym.

CAPL. XXXVIII.

Ezech. xxxviii.
Apoc. xix.

At the worde of the Lorde came unto me, sayinge: Thou sonne of man, toure the face toward Gog in the lande of Magog, which is the chiefe prince at Mesech and Tubal: prophete agaynst him, and saye: Thus sayth the Lorde God: O Gog thou chiefe prince Mesech and Tu-bal: Beholde, I will upon the, and will toure the about, and put a bytte in thy chawes: I will bringe the forth and all these hoste, bothe horse and horse men, whiche be all weaponed of the best fayson, a great people, that handle all together speeres, bowes, and swordes: the Perles, Assyrians, and with them the 2 ybians, whiche all beare bylles and helmettes: Gomer and all his hostes:

the house of Mogogma oute of the North quarters, and all his hostes, yea and moche people with the.

Therefore prepare the, let thy life be a-raye with all thy people that are come unto the by heapes, and be thou theyr defence.
After many dayes thou shalt be visited, and in the latter peres thou shalt come in to the lande, that hath bene despoiled with the sword, and now is replenished agayne with dyuers people upon the mountaynes of Israel, whiche haue longe yren waste. Yea, they be broughte oute of the caryons, and dwell all safe. Thou shalt come to lyke a stronge wyther, to coner the lande, and as it were a darke cloude: thou with all thyne hostes, and a greates multitude of people with the.

Moreover, thus sayth the Lorde God: At the same tyme shall many thinges come in to thy mynde, so that thou shalt imagine mys-chief and say: I will go to yonder plaine land lying theyr at ease, and dwell so safely (for they dwell all without any walles, they haue neither barres nor wozes) to spoyle them, to robbe them, to laye hands upon theyr so wel inhabited wyldernesse: agaynst that people, that is gathered together frome amonge the heathen, whiche haue gotten cattell and good, and dwell in the myddes of the land.
Then shall Haba, and Dedan, and the marchantes of Tharbis with all their wozens saye unto the: Art thou come to robbe? had thou gathered thy people together, because thou wyllt spoyle to take speler and golde to carry awaye cattell and good: and to have a greace praye?

Therefore, O thou sonne of man, thou shalte prophete, and saye thus unto Gog: Thus sayth the Lorde God: In that daye thou shalt knowe that my people of Israel dwell in safety: and shalt come frs the place out of the North partes: thou a moche people with the, whiche shal be upon horses, wher of there is a great multitude and an innumerable sorte. Yea, thou shalt come upon my people of Israel, as a cloude to couer the lande. This shall come to passe in the latter dayes. I will bringe the by in to my land, that the heathen maye knowe me, when I gette me honour upon the, O Gog, before their eyes.

Thus sayth the Lorde God: Thou art he, of whome I haue spoken afore tyme, by my seruantes the Prophets of Israel, whiche the prophethed in those dayes and peres, that I would bringe the upon them. At the same tyme, when Gog cometh by in to the lande of Israel (sayth the Lorde God) shall my indignacion goe forth in to my wythe.
For in my gelousie and boote dyspleasure I handed myself, that there shall be a great trouble in the lande of Israel at that tyme. The very wythes in the see, the foules of the ayre, the beastes of the felde, and all the men that are upon the earthe, shall tremble for feare of me.

The bylles also shall be turned by syde downe, the flayres of stone shall fall, and all walles shall syncke to the ground. I will fall so: a sword upon them in all my moun-taynes, sayth the Lorde God: so that euery mans sword shal be upon an other. With prillence and bloode wyll I punishe hym: downe rayne and hayle stones, fyre & byrstone wyll I cause to rayne upon him, and al his heape: yea and upon all that great people that is with him. Thus wyll I be magnified, honoured, and knowne amonges the heathen: that they maye be sure how that I am the Lorde.

He sheweth the destruction of Gog and Magog.
The goue of Gog and of his hoste. He prophetheth that Gog and his companye shal be deuoured of byr-des and beastes. Wherfore the house of Israel is walled. Theyr byrnyng agayne from captiuitie is promysed.

CAPL. XXXIX.

Therefore, O thou sonne of man, prophete agaynst Gog, and speake. Thus sayth the Lorde God: Beholde, O Gog thou chiefe prince at Mesech and Tubal: I will upon the, and touene the aboute, and carye the forth, and lede the from the North partes, and bringe the by to the mountaynes of Israel. As for thy horse I will smyte it out of thy left hand, and cast thyne arrowes one of thy right hand. Thou with all thyne heape and all the people that is with the, must fall upon the mountaynes of Israel. Then wil I gyre the into the foules and wyll beestes of the ayre, to be deuoured: there must thou lye upon the felde: for euen I the Lorde haue spoken it, sayth the Lorde God.

In to Magog, and amonge those that lye in the ples: wyll I sende a fyre, and they shall knowe, that I am the Lorde.
I will make also the name of my holynesse to be knowne amonges my people of Israel: I will not let my holy name to be euill spoken of any more: but the very heathen also shall knowe that I am the Lorde, the holse one of Israel. Beholde it cometh and shall be fulfilled in dede, sayth the Lorde God. This is the daye wherof I haue spoken: They that dwell in the cyres of Israel, shall goe forth and let fyre upon the weapons, and burne them: bylles and speeres, bowes and arrowes bylles and clubbes: seven peres shall they burne therof, so that they shall elles wyll to speches from the felde, neither haue ende to hewe downe any oue of the woodde:
for they shall haue weapons pough to burne.
They shall robbe those that robbed them, and spoyle those that spoiled them, sayth the Lorde God.

At the same tyme wyll I gyre into Gog a place to be buried in, in Israel: euen the baley, wherthow men go from the East to the see ward. Those that trauelle thereby shall abhorre it: There shall Gog and all his people be buried: and it shall be called the baley of the people of Gog. Seven monethes long shall the house of Israel be burying of them, tha: they maye cleanse the lande. Yea all the people of the land shall bury them. It shall be a glorious daye, when I get me that ho-noure, sayth the Lorde God. They shall ordaine men also to be deed buryers, euer goyng the thow the lande, and appoynte them certayne places to burye those in whiche re-mayne vpon the felde, that the lande maye be cleansed, from ende to ende shall they seke, & that seven monethes longe. Now shall they go thow the lande, where they se a mannes bone, they shall set by a taken by it, till the deed buryers haue buried it also, in the baley of people of Gog. And the name of the city shall be called Hamonah: Thus shall they make the land cleane.

And thou sonne of man: thus sayth the Lorde God: Speake unto all the foules, and every byrde/yea and to all the wyld beasts, of the felde/haue you together and come, gather you rou about vpon my slaughter, that I haue layde for you: euen a great slaughter vpon the mountaynes of Israel: eate flesh, and drinke bloode. Ye will eate the fleshe of the wythes, and drinke the bloode of the princes of the land: of the wythes, of the bes, of the goates, and of the oxen that be all slayne at Balan. Eate the fat your hely full, and drinke bloode till ye be drunken of the slaughter which I haue layde vnto you. Fill you at my table, with horses an stronge byrmen: with capitaynes and all men of warre sayth the Lorde God.

I will bringe my gloire also amonges the Gentyles, that all the heathen maye se my iudgement that I haue kept, and my hande whiche I haue layde vpon them: that the house of Israel maye knowe how that I am the Lorde their God, from that day forth.
And the heathen shall knowe, that where as the house of Israel were led in to captiuitie it was for their wickednesse sake, because they offended me.

For the whiche cause I hydde my face frome them, and deliuered them in to the handes of theyr ennemyes, that they myghte all be slayne with the swerde. Accorde to theyr wickednesse, and vncharitable dealynge, so haue I entreated them, and hydde my face frome them. Therefore thus sayth the Lorde God: Now wyll I bringe agayne the captiues of Jacob, and haue mercy vpon the hole house of Israel, and be gelous for my holy names sake. All theyr confusion and offence, that they haue done agaynst me, shall be taken awaye: and so safely shall they dwell in their lande, that no man shall make them afraid. And when I haue broughte the agayne from amonges the people, when I haue gathered them together out of theyr ennemyes hands, and am pierced in them before me: I will be their God, which suffered them to be led in to captiuitie among the Heathen, but now haue brought them agayne in to their owne land, and not left one of them ponder.

After that will I hide my face no more from them, but will poure out my spirit vpon the house of Israel, sayth the Lord God.

The redouynge of the temple and of the temple that was to come is shewed vnto the Prophete.

CAP. XL.

XL.

In the xlv. yere of our captiuitie, in the beginning of the yere, the tenth day of the moneth: that is the xlv. yere after that the city was smitten downe: the same day came the hand of the Lord vpon me, and carried me forth, euen in to the land of Israel brought he me in the visions of God: & set me downe vpon a mount: vpon a high mountayne, where vpon there was a building (as it had ben of a city) toward the north.

Againe he caried me: and beholde, there was a man, whose similitude was like brasse: whose hand was like a thorne in his hand, and a meereod also. He stood in the way and sayde vnto me: make well with thine eyes, hearken to thine eares, and fasten it in thine heart: what thou shalt see, and what thou shalt heare, thou shalt write it in a booke, and thou shalt be a prophet to the house of Israel.

Behold, there was a wall on the outside rounde about the house: the meereod that he had in his hand was six cubites long and a spanne. So he measured the breadth of the building, which was a meereod, & the height also a meereod. Then came he vnto the East doore, and wente vnto the pillars, and measured the postes of the doore, which were of euerie one was a meereod thicke. Every chamber was a meereod long and broad, betwene the chambers were fyue cubites. The post of the doore within the porch, was one meereod. He measured also the porch of the innermost doore, which concerned a meereod. Then measured he the entree of the doore that concerned eight cubites, and his pillars two cubites: and this entree was toward the East.

The chambers of the doore Eastward, were three on euery side, aske broad and long. The pillars also that stood of both the sides, were of one measure. After this, he measured the thickness of the doore, which was ten cubites, and the height of the doore thirtie cubites. The edge betwene the chambers was one cubit broad vpon both the sides, and the chambers six cubites wide of euery side. He measured also the distance from the eegge of one chamber to another, whose thickness was xlv. cubites, and one doore stood agaynst another. He made pillars also the scope cubites high, rounde about the course here. Before the inward part was to the fore entree of the innermost doore, were fyue cubites. The chambers and the pillars within, rounde about vnto the doore, hadde fyue wyndowes: So hadde the four entrees also, whose wyndowes were rounde about within. And vpon the pillars there were date trees.

Then brought he me in to the fore court, where as were chambers and paved workes, made in the fore court rounde about thirtie chambers vpon one paved worke. Above the paved worke was a longe beside the doore, and that was the lower paved worke. After this, he measured the breadth from the lower doore vnto the innermost court of the out side which had an hundred cubites vpon the East and the South parte. And the doore in the uttermost court toward the North, measured he after the length and breadth, his chambers also on either side, with his pillars and fore entrees, which had euen the measure of the fyue doore. His height was fyue cubites, the breadth xlv. cubites: his wyndowes and porches with his date trees, hadde euen the measure as the doore toward the East, there were seven steeppes to go vpon and the porch before them. Now the work of the innermost court stood straight ouer against the doore that was toward the North East. From one way to another he measured an hundred cubites.

After that, he brought me to the South side, where there stood a doore toward the South: whose pillars and porches he measured, they hadde the first measure, and with these porches, they hadde wyndowes rounde about, like the first wyndowes. The height was. l. cubites, the breadth xlv. with steeppes to go vpon: his porch stood before him, with his pillars and date trees on either side. And the doore of the innermost court stood toward the South, and he measured from one work to another an hundred cubites.

So he brought me in to the innermost court thowen the doore of the South side, which he measured, and it had the measure afore sayd. In the mance his chambers, pillars, & fore entrees, hadde euen the fore sayd measure also. And he had with his porches rounde about wyndowes of fyue cubites height, and had and twerpe cubites broad. The porch rounde about were xlv. cubites long, and fyue cubites broad: and his porch reached vnto the uttermost court: vpon his pillars there were date trees, and eeghe steeppes to go vpon.

He brought me also in to the innermost court: vpon the East side, and measured the doore, according to the measure afore sayd. His chambers, pillars, and porches hadde euen the same measure as the first had: and with his porches he hadde wyndowes rounde about. The height was fyue cubites, the breadth xlv. cubites: his porch reached vnto the uttermost court: his pillars also hadde date trees on either side, and eeghe steeppes to go vpon.

And he brought me to the north doore, and measured it, which also had the fore sayd measure. His chambers, pillars and porches hadde wyndowes rounde about: whose height was. l. cubites, & the breadth xlv. His pillars stood toward the uttermost court, and vpon them both were date trees, and eeghe steeppes to go vpon. There stood a chamber also, whose entrance was at the doore pillars and there the burnt offerings were washed.

In the doore porch, there stood on either side two tables for the slaughter: to slay the burnt offerings, & the burnt offerings, and the burnt offerings thereupon. And on the outside as men go forth to the north doore, there stood two tables. Four tables stood on either side of the doore, that is eeghe tables, whereupon they slaughtered. Four tables were of hewen stone for the burnt offerings, of a cubite and a half long & broad, and one cubite high: whereupon were layd the vessels and ornaments, which were used to the burnt and the burnt offerings, when they were slaughtered. And within there were bakes four spungers broad rounde about, to hang flesh vpon and vpon the tables was layd the offering flame. On the outside of the innermost doore were the spungers chambers in the inward court beside the North doore: one agaynst the South. There stood one also, beside the East doore northward.

And he sayde vnto me: This chamber on the South side belongeth to the priests that kepe the habitation: and this toward the North, is the Priestes that waite vpon the altar: which be the sonnes of Sadoch, & so stand before the Lord in seade of the children of Leui. So he measured the fore court, which had in length an. l. cubites, and as much in breadth by the four corners. Now the altar stood before the house: and he brought me to the fore entree of the house and measured the wall by the entree doore: which were fyue cubites long on either side. The thickness also of the doore on either side was thre cubites. The length of the porch was xlv. cubites, the breadth. xl. cubites, and vpon steeppes went men vnto it: by the wall also were pillars, on either side one.

The disposition and deuyce of building agaynst the temple, and of the other thynges thereto belonnging.

CAP. XLI.

XLI.

After this he brought me to the temple and measured the postes: which were of both the sides. vi. cubites thicke, according to the measure afore sayd. The breadth of the doore was. x. cubites & the halles of the doore on either side fyue cubites. He measured the length thereof, which concerned forty cubites, and the breadth. xl. The height was. x. cubites, and the doore postes, which were two cubites thicke: but the doore itselfe was fyue cubites, and the breadth of the doore was seven cubites. He measured the length & breadth thereof, which were euery one xx. cubites before the temple.

And he sayde vnto me: this is the holiest of all. we measured also the wall of the house, which was ix. cubites. The chambers that stood rounde about the house, were euery one four cubites wide, and one stone hadde vpon another, whereof there were thirtie and thre. And there stood postes beneath by the wall rounde about the house, to beare the wall: but in the wall of the house, they were not fastened. The fyue chambers were the highest & wider, and had steeppes thowen them rounde about the house. Thus was it toward the North, and toward the South, I sawe also that the house was very high rounde about. The foundation of the side chambers was a meereod (that is. vi. cubites) broad. The thickness of the fyue wall without, concerned. v. cubites, and so by the out wall of the chambers in the house.

Between the chambers, was the wyndew x. cubites rounde about the house. The chambers stood oueragaynst the out wall, & one doore was toward the North, the other toward the South: and the thickness of the out wall was fyue cubites rounde about. Now the building that was separated toward the West, was the scope and ten cubites wide: the wall of the building was. v. cubites thicke rounde about, and the length foure score cubites and ten. So he measured the house which was an. l. cubites long, and separated building with the wall was an. l. cubites long also. The thickness of the house and of it that was separated toward the East, was an. l. cubites.

And he measured the length of the building before and behinde with the chambers vpon both the sides: and it concerned an. l. cubites. The innermost temple, the porch of the fore court, the fyue postes, these thre hadde fyue wyndowes, and pillars rounde about ouer agaynst the postes, from the ground vnto the wyndowes.

The wyndowes them selues were syled ouer with boies: and thus was it above the wall, vnto the innermost house, and without also: yea the hole wall on euery side bothe within and without was syled ouer with greete boies.

There were Cherubyns and date trees made also, so that one date tree stood euer betwixt two Cherubyns: One Cherub hadde two faces, the face of a man looking aske toward the date tree, and a Lyons face on the other side.

Thus was it made rounde about in all the house: yea the Cherubyns and date trees were made from the ground vnto the doore and so stood they also vpon the wall of the temple.

The by postes of the temple were foure squared, & the fashion of the Sanctuary was euen as it appeared vnto me afore in the vision. The table was of wood. ix. cubites high and. ix. cubites long: his corners, the length the sonnes of Sadoch, that kept the holy ordynaunces of my sanctuary, when the children of Israel were gone fro me: shall come to me, to do me seruyce, to stande before me, and to offer me the fat and the bloud, saythe the Lorde God.

E They shall go in to my Sanctuary, and tread before my table, to do me sacrifice, and to waite vpon myne ordinances. How wile they go in at the dores of the innermost court they shall put on linnen clothes, so that no woollen come vpon them: wyle they do seruice vnder the soles of the innermost court, and within. They shall haue sayre linnen bonettes vpon their heades, and linnen breches vpon their loyns, wyle in their laboure they shall not put aboute them: And when they go forth to the people in to the outwarde court, they shall put on the clothes wherein they haue ministered, and lase them in the habitation of the Sanctuary, and put on other apparel, lest they vnhalowe the people with their clothes.

They shall not haue theyr beades, ne notyke the bulke of theyr herte, but rounde theyr beades only. All the pysses that go in to the inmost coute, shall bounde no wyne.
They shal mary no wydhows, neither one that is put from her husband: but a mayde of the frede of the house of Israel, or a wyghow, that hath had a wyl before.

And when he is cleansed, there shall be re-hened vnto him, by daies: and if he go into the Sanctuary agayne to do seruice, he shall bring a leuincost offering saye the Lord God.
They shall haue an heritage, yea I my selfe will be their heritage: els shall I saye the ye polluted in Israel, for I am their possession.
The meate offering, spynke offering, and treelpace offering shall they eate, and euery dedicate thinge in Israel, shall be theirs.
The synninges of all the synne feutes, and all fee will offerings shall be the priestes.

This shall be his owne lande in Israel: & my prince be no more chargeable, vnto my people. And soche as remaineth yet sauemy launce, shall be giuen to the house of Israel according to their tribes. Thus saith the Lord God: O ye pynners, ye haue now spoiled & destroyed: now leaue of, & do no more according to the thinge, that is equal and lawfull: and thinke out my people no more, saith the Lord God. I shall haue a true weight, a true Ephah, & a true Bath. The Ephah and the Bath shall be alike. One Bath shall contayne the thirteenth part of an Homer, and so shall one Ephah be: thirte measure shall be after the Homer. One Seckle maketh .xx. Geras. So .xx. Seckles, and .xxv. and .xv. Seckles make a pounce. This is the heauy seckle, that I shall geue wch heaued: namelye, the xviij. part of an Ephah, out of an Homer of wheate: & the xviij. part of an Ephah, out of an Homer of barley. for a burnt offering vnto the Lorde: & he shall giue daily for a synnecoffryng. For the meat offerings, he shall giue euery an Ephah in a bulloche, an Ephah to a ramme, and an ephah of oyle to an Ephah. Upon the .xv. daye of the seventh moneth, he shall kepe the seuen dayes holpe one after an other, euen as the other seuen dayes: with the synnecoffry-

Thus sayeth the Lorde God: the doore of innermer court toward the East, shall be shut the. vi. worke dayes: but in the Sabboth and in day of the new mone it shall be open. Then shall the prince come under the doore porch, and stande tyll with-by the doore cheke. So the priests shall there be burnt and breathofferings. And he shall worshipp at the doorepore, and go his way forth agayne: but the doore shall no more be shut tyll the euenynge.

In the same maner shal the people of the land also do their worshipp before the Lord without this doze vpon the Sabbathes and their Moones. This is to wote the burnt offering, that the prince shall bringe twice y^e Lord vpon the Sabbath: syre lambes with one blisyngh, and a ram withoute blisyngh, and an Ephah for a meateoffering, with the wine for the lambes, he maye geue as ma ny meateoffringes to them, as he will, and a hin of oyle to an Ephah. In the daye of the first moneth, it shal be a pong bullocke withoute blisyngh, syre lambes and a ram al withoute blisyngh. With the bullocke be were of one like measure, and there wente a yggge wall rounde about them al four, under the walche there were barthes made rounde aboute. Then sayd he vnto me: This is the church, where the mynster of y house shal be the flayne stringes of y people.

The bysson of the waters that come out of the temple. The costes of the lande of promysse, and the temple shal be by the bysson.

CAP. XLVII.

After this he brought me agayne be-tore the doore of the house: and behold there gushyd out waters from vnder the postes of y house eastward (to the house flowe toward the east) that ranne downe vpon the ryght syde of the house, whiche sy-de to the altar south ward. Then caried he me out to the north doore, and brought me forth there rounde aboute by the byrmouth doore that turneth eastward. Behold, there came forth the water vpon the ryght syde.
Nowe when the men that had the meccod in his hande went vnto the east doore, he measured a. M. cubites, and then he brought me thorow the water, euen to the ankles: so he measured yet a thousand, and brought me thorow the water agayne vnto the knees:
yet measured he a thousand, and brought me thorow the water vnto the loynes. After this he measured a thousande agayne, then was it such a spere, that I myght not wade thorow it: The water was so depe, y it was needfull to haue swymmed, for it myght not be waded ouer. And he sayd vnto me: hast y sent this, O thou sonne of man? and with that, he brought me to the ryche bancke a-gayne.

Nowe when I came there, there stode many trees vpon either syde of the ryche bancke.
Then said he vnto me: This water that flo-weth out toward the east, y runneth downe in to the playne felde, cometh into the see:
and from the see it runneth out, and maketh the waters hole. Yea all that syde and moue wherevnto this ryche cometh, shal recouer. And where this water cometh, there shall be much fruite. For all that cometh to this water, shall be lufy and hole. By this ryche shal the syders stande from Engad-in vnto the glayme, y there synde out their nettes: for there shal be great heapes of fish like as in the mayne see. As for his clay, y pyttes, they shal not be hole, for why, it shal be occupied for salte.

By this ryche vpon bothe the sydes of the woye, there shall growe all maner of frutful trees, whose leaues shall not fall of, neither shall there frute perishe: but euer be ryche at their monethes, for their water runneth out of their Sanctuary.

This frute is good to eat, and his leafe profitable for medecine. Thus sayth the Lorde God: Let this be the border, wher shal be the land vnto the. M. tribes of Israel.

with the lyne.
Parte it indifferently vnto one as vnto an other: of the which lande I swore vnto your fathers, that it shoulde fall to your inheritance.

This is the border of the lande vpon the north syde, from the mayne see, as men goe to Zadada: namely Demath, Beretha, Sabarim: from the borders of Damascus and Be-math vnto Hazer Eith, and that speth by the costes of Hauran.

Thus the borders from the see forth, shall be Hazer Eith, the border of Damascus the North, and the borders of Demath: that is the north parte.

The east syde shall ye measure from Beueran and Damascus from Galesad and the land of Israel by Jordan and so forth, from the see coast, that speth eastward: and this is the east parte.

The south syde is, from Thamar south to the waters of Serpe vnto Lades, the ry-che, to the mayne see: and that is the south parte.

The west parte: namely the greatesee, and the borders thereof: yll a man come vnto Be-math: this is the west parte.

This lande shall ye part amonge you, ac-cordinge to the tribes of Israel, y shoulde to be an heritage for you, y for the stranger that dwelle amonge you, and beget children.
For ye shal take them amonge y, yll a man of Israel, like as though they were of your own householde y to litle, and they shal haue heritage with you amonge the children of Israel.

Loke in what syde the stranger dwelleth, in the same syde shall ye geue him his heritage, sayth the Lorde God.

The lottes of the seven tribes. The partes of the possession of the prestes and of the temple, of the keynes, of the crye, of the pynte, are rehared. The lottes of the other tribes. The gates of the citye.

CAP. XLVIII.

These are the names of the tribes that lye vpon the north syde, by the waye of Herion, yll a man come vnto Demath and Hazer Enan, the borders of Damascus toward the North by syde Demath: Dan shall haue his portion from the east quarter vnto the west. Upon the borders of Dan from the east syde vnto the west, shall Asher haue his portion. Upon the borders of Asher from the east part vnto the west, shall Naphthali haue his portion.

Upon the borders of Nephthali from the east quarter vnto the west, shall Manasse haue his portion. Upon the borders of Ma-nasse from the east syde vnto the west, shall Ephraim haue his portion.

Upon the borders of Ephraim from the east part vnto y west, shall Ruben haue his portion. Upon the borders of Ruben from the east quarter vnto the west, shall Iuda haue his portion. Upon the borders of Iuda from the east part to the west, ye shal set asyde one portion of. M. meters, as longe y wyde, (like as an other portion from the east syde vnto the west) therein the Sanctuary shall stand.

As for the portion that ye shal separate out for the Lorde, it shal be. M. long, and ten thousand wyde. Which separated holy portio shall belong vnto these: namely to the prestes toward the north. M. and toward y west ten thousand wyde, toward the east ten thousand wyde also, and toward the south. M. long, wher the Sanctuary of the Lorde shal stand. Yea this same place shal be the prestes that are of the children of Sadoch, and haue kept my holy ordynance, which went not awaye in the error of the children of Israel, like as the Leuites are gone astray: and this separated part that they haue of the lsd, shal be the most holy, hach vpon the borders of the Leuites.

And next vnto the prestes, shal the Leuites have. M. hundred long, and ten. M. wyde.
The shal be on every syde. M. long, and ten. M. wyde. Of this portion they shal set no thing, ne make any permutation thereof, lest the churche of the lande fall vnto other, for it is holowed vnto the Lorde.

The other. M. after the bredth that lyeth by the. M. hundred, shal be common: it shal belong to the city and to the suburbs for habitations, and the citye shal stande in the middle thereof. Let this be y measure: toward the north part. M. hundred and four. M. toward the south part. M. and four. M. toward the east part. M. and four. M. toward the west part. M. and four thousand.

The suburbs hard vpon the city, shal haue toward the north. I. and two. C. toward the south. I. and two. C. toward the east. I. and two. C. toward the west also. I. and two hundred.
As for the residue of the length y speth backe vpon the separated holy ground: namely. X.
M. toward the east, and ten. M. toward the west, vnto the holy portion: it and the entrails thereof, shal serue for the meate that laboure in the citye. They y laboure for the wyth of the city, shal mapntis this also, one of what tribe so euer they be in Israel.

All that is separated of the. M. thousande long and. M. thousand wyde on the four par-tes, that shal ye put a spere for the separated portion of the sanctuary, and for the possession of the city. The residue vpon bothe the sydes of the sanctuary and possession of the city shal belonge to the prince, before the place of the
M. thousande vnto the east end, and before the place of the. M. M. westward, vnto the borders of the city: this shal be the prince's portion. This shal be the holy place, and the house of the sanctuary shal stand in the middle. Moreover, from the Leuites and y city's possession that lyeth in the middle of the prince's part: loke what remayneth betwixt the border of Iuda and the border of Ben Iamin, it
shal be the prince's.

Now of the other tribes.
From the east part vnto the west, shal Ben Iamin haue his portion. Upon the borders of Ben Iamin from the east part vnto the west, shal Simeon haue his portion. Upon y borders of Simeon from the east part vnto the west, shal Iudah haue his portion. Upon the border of Iudah from the east part vnto the west, shal Sabelon haue his portion. Upon the borders of Sabelon from the east part vnto the west, shal Gad haue his portion. Upon the borders of Gad southward, the costes shal reache from Thamar south vnto the waters of Serpe to Lades, and to the Rode, euen vnto
the mayne see.

This is the land with his portions which ye shal distribute vnto the tribes of Israel
sayth the Lorde God. Thus wyl the city reache: Upon the north part. M. C. and four thousand measures. The portes of the citye shall haue the names of the tribes of Israel.
The portes of the north syde: one Ruben, an other Iuda, the thirde Zent.

Upon the east side. M. C. and four thousand measures, with thre portes: The one Joseph an other Ben Iamin, the thirde Dan. Vnto the south side. M. hundred and four thousand measures, with the thre portes: the one Syme-
on, an other Iudah, the thirde Sabelon.
And vpon the west side. M. C. and four. M. measures, with thre portes also, the one Gad
an other Acher, y thirde Nephthali. Thus shal it haue. M. thousand measures round about. And from that tyme forth the name of the city shal be:
The Lorde is there.

portion of the sanctuary, and for the possession of the city. The residue vpon bothe the sydes
of the sanctuary and possession of the city shal belonge to the prince, before the place of the
M. thousande vnto the east end, and before the place of the. M. M. westward, vnto the borders of the city: this shal be the prince's portion. This shal be the holy place, and the house of the sanctuary shal stand in the middle. Moreover, from the Leuites and y city's possession that lyeth in the middle of the prince's part: loke what remayneth betwixt the border of Iuda and the border of Ben Iamin, it
shal be the prince's.

Now of the other tribes.
From the east part vnto the west, shal Ben Iamin haue his portion. Upon the borders of Ben Iamin from the east part vnto the west,
shal Simeon haue his portion. Upon y borders of Simeon from the east part vnto the west, shal Iudah haue his portion. Upon the border of Iudah from the east part vnto the west, shal Sabelon haue his portion. Upon the borders of Sabelon from the east part vnto
the west, shal Gad haue his portion. Upon the borders of Gad southward, the costes shal
reache from Thamar south vnto the waters
of Serpe to Lades, and to the Rode, euen vnto
the mayne see.

This is the land with his portions which
ye shal distribute vnto the tribes of Israel
sayth the Lorde God. Thus wyl the city reache: Upon the north part. M. C. and four thousand measures. The portes of the citye shall haue the names of the tribes of Israel.
The portes of the north syde: one Ruben, an other Iuda, the thirde Zent.

Upon the east side. M. C. and four thousand measures, with thre portes: The one Joseph an other Ben Iamin, the thirde Dan. Vnto
the south side. M. hundred and four thousand measures, with the thre portes: the one Syme-
on, an other Iudah, the thirde Sabelon.
And vpon the west side. M. C. and four. M. measures, with thre portes also, the one Gad
an other Acher, y thirde Nephthali. Thus shal it haue. M. thousand measures round about. And from that tyme forth
the name of the city shal be:
The Lorde is there.

THE BOKE OF THE PROPHECY
DANIEL.

The Prophet: Moweth the captivity of Joahim kynge of Juda. Of the sonnes that were in captivite, the kynge commaundeth to chese whiche of them shoulde be taught the lernyng and language of the Caldees. They are allowed the kynge's lernyng. Daniel abstarfeth from the meate of the kynge of Babylon. The science and instruction of these chyldren.

I.

111. B. 211. a
113. B. 211. a

In the thyrde yere of the captivite of Joahim kynge of Juda, came Nabuchodonosor kynge of Babylon unto Jerusalem, and besieged it: and the Lord delivered Joahim the kynge of Juda into his hand: with certayne ornaments of the house of God: which he caried away unto the land of Sennar, to the house of his God, and there he brought them in to his goddes treasury. And the kynge spake unto Asphanas the chiefe chamberlayne, that he wolde bringe him certayne of the chyldren of Israel that were come of the kynges seed, and of wyse men, yonge spryngolde withoute any blemyshe, but faire and wel favoured, instructed in all wysdome, connyng and understanding, which were hable to stande in the kynges palace, to rede, and to lerne for to speake Caldeish.

Unto these the kynge appoynted a certeyn portion of his owne meate, and of the wyne, whiche he drank him selfe, so to nouryshe them the yere, that afterwarde they myght stande before the kynge. Amonge these now were certayne of the chyldren of Juda, namely Daniel, Ananias, Misael, and Azarias. Unto these the chiefe chamberlayne gave other names, and called Daniel Balthazar: Ananias Sydrach: Misael Mithras: and Azarias Abednago. But Daniel was at a poynte with him selfe, that he wolde not be despyled thowgh the kynges meate, & the wyne whiche he drinke. And this he trespas of the chiefe chamberlayne, lest he wolde be despyled him selfe. So God gave Daniel favour and grace before the chiefe chamberlayne, that he sayde unto him: I am asfraid of my lord & kynge, whiche hath appoynted you your meate and drynke, lest he spee your faces to be worse lernyng then the other spryngolde of your age, and so ye shall make me lose my good unto the kynge.

Gene. xli. c.

Jud. x. xli. a

Then Daniel answered Melassar, to whome the chiefe chamberlayne had set out Daniel, Ananias, Misael, and Azarias, and sayde: O praye but ten dayes with thy seruantes, and let us have potage to eate, and water to drynke: then loke upon our faces, and chesyn that tair of the kynges meate. And as shon let us, so deale with thy seruantes. So he consented to them in this matter, and prayed them ten dayes. And after the ten dayes their faces were better lernyng, and fairer then all the yonge spryngolde whiche ate of the kynges meate.

Thus Melassar toke away their meate and wyne, and gave them potage therfor. God gave now to these foure spryngolde connyng and lernyng in all scripture and wysdome, but unto Daniel specially he gave understanding of all visions and dreames. Now when the tyme was cummyng that the kynge had appoynted to bringe in these yonge spryngolde unto him: the chiefe chamberlayne brought him before Nabuchodonosor, and the kynge commaunded to them. But amonge them all were founde none such as Daniel, Ananias, Misael, and Azarias.

Therfor he bode they before the kynge, whiche in all wysdome, and matters of understanding that he enquired of them, found them ten tymes better then all the soothsayers and charmers, that were in all his realm. And Daniel abode still unto the fyfte yere of kynge Cyrus.

The dreame of Nabuchodonosor he tolde him to hym soothsayers, and requyred of them, with the dreame and the interpretation therof. They answered that they can not shewe it. The kynge commaundeth all the wyse men of Babylon to lerne. Daniel requyred tyme to solve the question. The Lord openeth the mystry unto Daniel. Daniel is brought unto the kynge, and sheweth him his dreame and the interpretation therof. Of the chiefe spryngolde of the kynge. Of the chiefe spryngolde of the kynge.

CAPL.

II.

In the seconde yere of the captivite of Nabuchodonosor, had Nabuchodonosor a dreame, wherein he sawe his spere was broken, and his slepe brake from hym. When the kynge commaunded to call together all the soothsayers, charmers, witches and Caldees, for to shewe the kynge his dreame. So they came and stode before the kynge. And the kynge said unto them: I have dreamed a dreame, and my spere was so troubled therwith, that I have bene forgotten what I dreamed. Upon this the Caldees answered the kynge in the Syriens forche: O kynge, God save thy lyfe, for euer. Shewe thy seruantes the dreame, and we shall shewe the what it meaneth. The kynge gave the Caldees their answer, and sayde: It is gone fro me: Ye ye will not make me understande the dreame, with the interpretation therof, ye shall dye, and your houses shall be pulled down. But ye tell me the dreame and the meanyng therof, ye shall have of me gyftes, rewards, and great honoure: onely, shewe me the dreame and the signification of it.

The

They answered agayne and sayde: The kynge must shewe his seruantes the dreame, and so shall we declare what it meaneth.

Then the kynge answered, saying: I perceive of a trespas, that ye do but prolonge the tyme: for so moche as ye se that the thyng is gone fro me. Therfor ye will not tell me the dreame, ye shall all have one judgement. But ye saye and dissemble with vayne wordes, whiche ye speake before me, to save of the tyme.

Therfor tell me the dreame, and so shall I knowe if ye can shewe me what it meaneth. Upon this the Caldees gave answer before the kynge, and sayde: there is no man upon earth that can tell the thyng, whiche the kynge speaketh of: Yea, there is neyther kynge, prince nor lord, that cure alked these thynges at a soothsayer, charmer or Calde: for it is a harde matter, that the kynge requyred. Forther there is none, that can certifye the kynge therof, excepte the god: whose dwellinge is not amonge the mortales.

For the whiche cause the kynge was with the high grete indignation, and commaunded to destroye all the wyse men at Babylon, and the proclamation went forth, that the wyse men shoulde be slayne. They soughte also to slay Daniel with his companions. Then Daniel requyred Arioch the kynge's steward, of the judgement and sentence, that was gone forth agaynste to apell such as were wyse at Babylon.

He answered and sayd unto Arioch bringe unto the kynges depute: Why hath the kyng commaunded to cruelle a sentence? So Arioch tolde Daniel the matter. Upon this went Daniel up, and bespied the kynge that he myght have leave to shewe the kynge the interpretation: and then came he home agayne, and shewed the thyng unto Ananias, Misael, and Azarias his companions, that they shoulde beseeche the God of heven for grace in this service, that Daniel and his fellows, which were such as were wyse in Babylon, perished not.

Then was the mystry shewed unto Daniel in a vision by night. And Daniel prayed to God of heven. Daniel also cryed loud and sayd: O that the name of God might be prayd for euer and euer, for wysdome & strengthe be his owne: he chaungeth the tymes and ages: he putteth downe kynges: he setteth up kynges: he giveth wysdome unto the wyse, and understandinge to those that understande: he openeth the depe secrettes: he maketh the thyng that is hid in darkness, to be light: he dwelleth with him. I thanke the, and praye the (O thou God of my fathers) that thou hast lent me wysdome and strengthe, and hast shewed me the thyng that was hid of the, for thou hast opened the kynges meate unto me.

Upon this went Daniel in unto Arioch, to whome the kynge hadde ordeyned to destroye the wyse men of Babylon: he went unto him and sayd: Destroye not suche as are wyse in Babylon, but bringe me in to the kynge, and I shall shewe the the interpretation of the dreame.

Babylon, but bringe me in to the kynge, and I shall shewe the the interpretation.

Then Arioch brought Daniel in to the kynge in all the halle, and sayde unto him: I have founde a man amonge the prysoners of Juda, that shall shewe the the interpretation. Then answered the kynge, and sayd unto Daniel, whose name was Balthazar: Art thou he that can shewe me the dreame, whiche I have sent, and the interpretation therof? Daniel answered the kynge to his face, and sayd: As for this secret, for the whiche the kynge maketh inquisition: it is neyther the wyse, the soothsayer, the charmer, ne the deuyll conuiter, that can certifye the kynge of it: Onely God in heauen can open secrettes, and he it is that sheweth the kynge his dreame. Nabuchodonosor, what is for to come in the last dayes.

For dreame, and that which thou hast sent in thyne heed, vpon the bed, is this: O kynge, I have seen in thy mynde what shoulde come hereafter. So he is the opener of mysteries, & telleth what is for to come. As for me, this secret is not shewed me for any wysdome that I have more then any other lernyng: but onely that I myght shewe the the interpretation, and that he might knowe the thoughtes of his owne heart. Thou kynge sawest, and beholdest, these stode before the a great ymage, whose figure was marvellous great, and his vesture gyrmine. The ymage heere was of fine golde, his brest and armes of silver, his benches & legges were of copper, his legges were of yron, his feet were parte of yron and parte of earthe.

This thou sawest, till the tyme (I withoute any handes) there was shewen of a stone, whiche smote the ymage vpon the feet, that were botome of yron and earthe, and brake the to pieces: then was the yron, the earthe, the copper, the silver and gold broken all together in peeces: and became lyke the chaffe of corne, that the wynde bloweth awaye from the sommers floores, that they can no more be found. But the stone that smote the ymage became a great mountayne, which filleth the hole earth: this is the dreame. And now will we shewe before the kynge, what it meaneth.

O kynge, thou arte a kynge of kynges: for the God of heauen hath gyven the a kyngedome, strength, and maiesty: and hath delivered the all thynges that are amonge the chyldren of men: the beastes of the feild, and the foules under the heven, and gyven the domynion over everyng all. Thou arte that golden heed. After the, there shall arise an other kyngedome, whiche shall be lesse then thine. The thyrde kyngedome shall be lyke copper, and have dampnation in all landes. The fourthe kyngedome shall be as stronge as yron. For lyke as yron breaketh and breaketh all thynges: Yea quen as yron beateth euerie thyng downe, so shall it beate downe and destroye.

Where as thou sawest the ferte and tores parte of earth and parte of yron, that is a vnyversall kyngedome, whiche neuerthelesse shall be destroyed.

haue some of the yron grounde myxe with it for so moche as thou hast sene the yron myxe wold clape.

The toes of the fete that were part of yron and part of clape, signifyth that it shall be a kingdome partly wronge, and partly wyse.
And where as I sawe yron myxe with clape, they shall myxe them selues with the seed of simple people, and yet not continue one w an other, lyke as yron will not be toultered with a potsherd.

In the dayes of these kynges, shall the God of heuen let vp an euill kyng kyngdome, whiche shall not perishe, and his kingdome shall not be gyuen ouer to an other people: yea the same shall breake and despoyle all these kyngdomes, but it shall endure for euer.

And where as I sawe that without anye handes there was cut out of the mount a stone, which brake the yron, the copper, the ceth, the silver and gold in peeces: by that hath the great God shewed the kyng what wil come after this. This is a true dreme, and the interpretation therof is sure.

Then the kyng Nabuchodonosor fell downe vpon his face, and bowed him self vnto Daniel, and commaunded that they shoulde ouer meate offeringes and iweete shewres vnto him. The kyng answered Daniel, and sayd: yea of a trouth your God is a God about all goddes, a Lord aboue all kynges, and an opener of secretis, for he hath causid discovert this mynister. So the king made Daniel a great man, and gaue him many a great spites.

He made him ruler of all the countreys of Babylon, and lord of all the nobles that were at Babylon. Some Daniel entreated the king for Sydrach, Misach, and Abednago so that he made them rulers ouer all the offices in the lande of Babylon. But Daniel him selfe remayned still in the court by the kyng.

The kyng scratcht by a golden Image, whiche he commaunded to be worshipped. Sydrach, Misach, and Abednago are accused, because they disobeyed the kynges commaundement. They are brought vnto the kyng and commaunded to wor-shipp the Image. They refuse to do it, and are put in to a burninge oven. By this in God, they are deliuered from the fyre. Nabuchodonosor confe-sseth the power of God after the sight of the myracle.

CAP.

III.

Nabuchodonosor the kyng caused a golden Image to be made, which was thre score cubites hygh, and sixe cubites thik.
This he made to be set vp in the felde of Dura in the lande of Babylon, and sente oute to gather together the dukes, lordes, and nobles, Iudges and officers, the debities & tribunes, with all the rulers of the land: that they myght come to the dedication of the Image whiche Nabuchodonosor the kyng hadde set vp. So the dukes, lordes and nobles, the Iudges and officers, deppities and tribunes, with all the rulers of the lande gathered together, and came vnto the dedyng of the Image that Nabuchodonosor the kyng had set vp.

Nowe when they stode before the Image, whiche Nabuchodonosor sette vp, the beu-cred oute with all his myght: O ye people, kynges and luges, to you be it sayd: that when ye heare the noyse of the trompettes whiche shall be blowne, with the harpes, shawmes, psalteries, symphonies, and all maner of musike: ye fall downe and wor-shipp the golden Image that Nabuchodonosor the kyng hath set vp. Who so then falleth not downe and boweth him selfe, shall euen the same houre be cast in to an hote bur-ninge oven. Therefore, when all the folke heere the noyse of the Trompettes that were blowne, with the Harpes, Shawmes, Psalter-ies, Symphonies, and all kynde of melodye:
then all the people, kynges and nations fell downe, and bowed them selues vnto the golden Image that Nabuchodonosor the kyng had set vp.

Nowe were there certayne men of the Lawes, that went euen then and accused the Je-wes, and sayd vnto the kyng Nabuchodonosor: O king, God saue thy life for euer. Thou being kyng, hast gyuen a commaundement, that all men, when they heare noyse of the trompettes, harpes, shawmes, psalteries, symphonies, and all the other melodyes: shall fall downe and bow them selues toward the golden Image: who so then fell not downe, and worshipped not, that he shoulde be cast in to an hote burninge oven.

Nowe are there certeyn Jewes, whom thou hast set ouer the offces of the land of Babylon: namely, Sydrach, Misach and Abednago. These men (O kyng) regarde not the commaundement, yea they wil not serue the god-des, ne bow them selues to the golden Image that thou hast set vp.

Then Nabuchodonosor, in a cruell wrath and displeasure, commaunded, that Sydrach, Misach, and Abednago shoulde be brought vnto him. So these men were brought before the kyng. Then Nabuchodonosor spake vnto the kyng and sayd: O Sydrach, Misach and Abednago, wil ye serue my goddes? or bowe your selues to the golden Image, that I haue set vp? well be redye hereafter, when ye heare the noyse of the trompettes blowne with I harpes, Shawmes, Psalteries, symphonies, and all the other melodyes: that ye fall downe and worshipp the Image whiche I haue made. But ye refuse to do it, and are cast in to an hote burninge oven. Lette se, what God is that that Image deliuer you oute of my handes?
Sydrach, Misach, and Abednago answered the kyng, and sayde: O Nabuchodonosor, we ought not to consent vnto the Image, for we knowe that our God is able to kepe vs from the hote burninge oven (O kyng) and can ryght well de-liuer us out of thy handes. And though he wil not, yet shall thou knowe (O kyng) that we wil not serue thy goddes, nor bowe our selues to the Image, whiche thou hast set vp. Then was Na-buchodonosor full of indignacion, so that he commaunded of his face chaunged vpon Sydrach, Misach, and Abednago. Therefore he commaunded that the oven shoulde be made seven tymes hotter, and it was more heate, and spake vnto the strongest workmen that were in his booke, for to bryde Sydrach, Misach, and Abednago, and to cast them in to the hote burninge oven.

So these men were bounde in their cofes, with their other garmentes, and cast in to the hote burninge oven: for the kyng commaundement was so stryke, and the heat was exceeding hote. As for the men that were with Sydrach, Misach, and Abednago, the fume of the fyre destroyed them. And these three men: Sydrach, Misach, and Abednago, fell downe in the hote burninge oven, being all bounde.

Then Nabuchodonosor the kyng marueyled, and stode vp in all haste: he spake vnto his counsell and sayde: dyo ye not cast these three men bounde in to the fyre? They answered, and sayde vnto the kyng: Yea, O kyng. He answered and sayde: Lo for all that, yet two or thre men goynge lookt in the myddell of the fyre, and nothinge commynge, and the fourth is spae an aungell to save them.

Vpon this wente Nabuchodonosor vnto the mouth of the hote burninge oven, he spake vnto the God of Sydrach, Misach, and Abednago, and sayde: O God, go forth and come hither. And so Sydrach, Misach, and Abednago went oute of the fyre. Then the dukes, lordes, and nobles, and the kyngs counsell came together to se these men, whom the fyre had no maner of power in theyr bodies. In so moche that they were all as newe, and their clothes unchanged: Yea there was no smell of fyre left vpon them.

Then spake Nabuchodonosor, and sayde:
Blessed be the God of Sydrach, Misach, and Abednago: whiche hath sente his aungell, and defended his seruantes, that put their trust in him: that haue altered the kynges commaundement, and scaped their bodies therefrom, rather then they wolde serue any other God, excepte their owne God only.

Therefore I will and commaunde, that Sydrach, Misach, and Abednago, whiche haue anpe blasphemie agaynst the God of Sydrach, Misach, and Abednago, shall be, and theyr houses shall be perished: dying there is no God that maye save, as thou sayest. So the kyng promoted Sydrach, Misach, and Abednago, in the lande of Babylon.

Nabuchodonosor dreameth agayne. Daniel interpretyth it. Nabuchodonosor is put oute of his kingdome, and cast into the felde. He is restored to the kingdome of God, and is restored in to his kyngdome.

CAP.

IIII.

Nabuchodonosor kyngdome was alone, and luges that dwell vpon the hole earthe: peax be multiplied amonges you: I thought it good to shew the tokens and marceplous workes, that the God hath wrought vpon me. O howe great are his tokens, and howe myghty are his wonders: his kyngdome is an euillating kyngdome, and his power lasteth for euer and euer.

I Nabuchodonosor beyng at rest in myne house, and stouyng in my palace, sawe a dreme, whiche made me ashyde, and the thoughtes that I had vpon my bed, with the visions of my heed troubled me. When I out a commaundment, that all they which were of wisdom at Babylon shoulde be brought before me, to tell me the interpretation of the dreme.

So there came the soothsayers, charmers, Caldees and conuersers of deuys: to whom I tolde the dreme, but what it betokened they could not shew me: tyl at the last there came one Daniel (otherwyle called Balthasar, accordyng to the name of my God) whiche hath the spure of the holy goddes in him: to whome I tolde the dreme, sayinge: O Balthasar, thou Prynce of soothsayers: for so moche as I knowe that thou hast the spi-rite of the holy Goddes, and no secret is hid frome the: tell me therefore what the vision of my dreme (that I haue sene) maye signify. I sawe a vision in my heed vpon my bed: and beholde there stode a tre vpon the ground whiche was very hygh, greate, and myghty: the veryth reached vnto the heuen, and the bredthe extended to all the endes of the earthe: his leaues were fapre, he hadde very moche fruite, so that every man had ynough to eat thereof.

The braches of the felde hadde shawmes vnder it, and the foules of the ayre dwelt in the bowes thereof. Shortly, all creatures fed of it. I sawe in my heed a bysson vpon my bedde: and beholde, a watcher came downe frome heuen, and cryed myghtyly, sayinge: Hewe downe the tre, brake of his branches, wake of his leaues, and scatter his fruite abrode: that all the beastes maye gette them awaye from vnder him, and the foules frome his braches. For this cause, leaue the grounde of his roote dryl in the earthe, and bynde hym vpon the playne felde, with theynes of yron and scle. With the dewe of he-nen shall he be wet, and he shall haue his part in the herbes of the ground with other wyld beastes.

That mannes herbe of his shall be taken from him, and a beastes herbe shall be gyuen him, till seven yeres he come and gone vpon
hym.

This traunde of the watcher, is a commaundement grounded and soughte oute in the counsell of him that is mooste holpe: so lerne men for to vnderstande that the highest hath power ouer the kyngdomes of men, and 202.15. Spure

into them, and the kynge to be bntifast. But Daniel excused all thre pnyces and lordes, for the spure of God was pteous in him: so that the kynge was minded to set him ouer the hole traime. Wherefore the pnyces and lordes soughte, to pteke oute in Daniel some quarel against the kingdom: yet coult they fynde none occasion ne faulte vpon him. For wher he was so farythfull, & there was no blame ne dysconforte founde in him.

Then sayde these men: we wyll get no quarel agaynst this Daniel, excepte it be in the lawe of his God. Upon this, wente the pnyces and lordes together vnto the kynge, and sayde thus vnto him: kynge Darius God haue the lyfe for euer. At the great estates of the realme: as the pnyces, Dukes, Senatours, and Judges, are decremed to put out a commaundment of the kynge, & to make sure statute namely, that who so bestreth any petition, righte of any God or man (withyn this xxx. dayes) excepte it be onely of the, & kynge: the same person maye be cast into the Lyons denne. Wherefore, O king confirme this statute, and make a wytyng that the thinge whiche the Deities and Pces haue ordeyned be not altered ne broken.

So Darius made the wytyng, and confirmed it. Nowe when Daniel vnderstode that the wytyng was made, he went in to his house: and the windowes of his hall, towarde Jerusalem stode open. There knelled he downe vpon his knees, thre tymes a daye: there he made his petition, and prayled his God, lyke as his maner was to doo afoze tyme.

Then these men made searche, and founde Daniel makinge his petition, and prayenge vnto his God: so they came to the kynge, & spake befoze him concerninge his commaundment, sayenge: O kynge, haue thou not subscribed the statute, & withyn thre dayes who so requyeth his petition of any God or man but onely of thy self, O kynge: he shal be cast into the den of the Lyons? The kynge answered, and sayde: yea it is true. It must be as a lawe of the Rjdes and Pces, that maye not be broken.

Then answered they, and sayde vnto the kynge: Daniel one of the pnyces of Iuda O king, regardeth neither the, ne thy statute that thou hast made, but maketh his petition thre tymes a daye. When the kynge heard these wordes, he was soze greued, and wold haue reuised Daniel, to deliuer him: & put of the matter, vnto the Sunne wente downe to the intent that he myght saue him.

These men ptecyng the kingly mynde sayde vnto him: knowe this O kynge: the lawe of the Medes and Perses is that the commaundment and statute which the kynge maketh, maye not be altered. Then the kynge had them byng Daniel, and they cast him into the Lyons den.

The kynge also spake vnto Daniel, and sayde: thy God, whom thou alwayes seruist, euene he shall defende the. And there was brought a stone, and layde vpon the hole of the den, this the kynge sealed with his owne sygne, & with the signet of his pnyces: that the kynges commaundment concerninge Daniel, shoulde not be broken.

So the kynge wente into his palace, and kept him sodre all nyght, so that there was no table spred before him, neither coult he take any slepe. But by tymes in the morninge at the breake of the daye, the kynge arose, and went in all haste vnto the denne of the Lyons.

Now as he came nigh vnto the denne, he cryed with a pteous voyce vnto Daniel: & the kynge spake, and sayde vnto Daniel: O Daniel, thou seruant of the lyfynge God is not thy God (whom thou a may seruist) habile to deliuer the fram the Lyons? Daniel sayde vnto the kynge: O kynge, God saue thy lyfe for euer. My God hath sent his angel, whiche hath shut the Lyons mouthes, so that they myght not hurte me. For wher myne vngyltynesse is founde out before him, and as for the, O kynge, I neuer offendid the.

Then was the kynge exceeding glad, and commaunded to take Daniel out of the den. So Daniel was brought out of the denne, & no maner of hurt was founde vpon him. For he put his trust in his God. And as for those men whiche had accused Daniel, the kynge commaunded to bynge them, and to caste them in the Lyons denne, then their chyldren and their wyues. So the Lyons had the mastery of them, and brake all their bones a sondre, or euer they came at the grounde.

After this, wrote kynge Darius vnto all people kyntredes, and tungen, that dwelte in all landes: peace be multiplyed with you: My commaundment is, in all my domynion and kyngdome, that men feare and stande in awe of Daniels God.

For he is the lyfynge God, whiche abideth euer: his kyngdome shal not faile, and his power is euerslastynge. It is he that deliuereth, & sauerh: he wth wordes & maraculous workes, in heauen and in earth: he hath preserued Daniel from the power of the Lyons. This Daniel prospered in the regne of Darius and Lucus of Persia.

A vision of four beastes is shewed vnto Daniel. The vision is interpreted of four kyngdomes of the world. Of the power and increase of the euerslastynge kyngdome of Christe.

CAPL. VII.

In the firste yere of Balthazar kynge of Babilon, take Daniel a dreame, and a vision was in his head vpon his bedde. Whiche dreame he wrote, and the tenor of the matter is this: Daniel spake and said, I sawe in my vision by nyght, and behelde the four kyngdomes of the heauen stur aboute the seer, and four grate beastes came by fro the seer onely an other.

The first was as a lyon, and yet had he gynges wynges. I sawe, that his wynges were plucked from him, and he taken awaye frome earth: that he stode vpon his fete as a man, and that there was gyuen hym a mans heet. Behold, the seconde beast was lyke a beere, & stode vpon fone lyde. Amonges his teeth in his mouth he had thre greates long tery, & it was sayde vnto him: Arise, eate vp, moche fallye.

Then I looked, and behelde, there was another lyke vnto a Leopard: this had wynges as a foule, euen four vpon the backe. This beast had four heades, and there was power gyuen hym.

After this I sawe in a vision by nyght, & beheld the fourth beast was gyrm & horrible, & maraculous stronge. It had greates pnyces, it deuoured and destroyed, and stamped the earth vnder his fete. It was farr vnlyke the other beastes that were befoze it: for it hadde ten hoynes, wherof I take good hyl.

And behelde, there came by among them, another lytle hoine, befoze whome there were thre of the fynde hoynes plucked away. Behold this hoine had eyes lyke a man, and a mouth speakinge presumptuous thynges. I looked till the seates were prepared, and till the olde aged sat hym downe. His clothing was as whete as snowe, and the heares of his head lyke the pure well. His throne was lyke the fyre flame, and his wheles as the dumpege fyre. There byewe forth a fyre flame, and went out from hym. A thousande tymes a thousande feared hym. & thre tymes a thousande stode before him. The iudgement was set, and the booke opened. Then take I hyl ther vnto, because of the voyce of the proude wordes, whiche that hoine spake. Behelde, till the beast was slayne, and his body destroyed, and gyuen ouer to be byente in the fyre.

As for the power of the other beastes also it was taken awaye, but these lyces were pnyced for a tyme and season. I sawe in a vision by nyght, and behelde, there came out in the cloudes of heauen lyke the sonne of a man, whiche went vnto the olde aged, befoze whom they brought him: Then gaue he hym power & dygnytie regall, that al people, dyces and tungen shoulde serue him. His power is an euerslastynge power, whiche shal wate be put downe: and his kyngdome endurth vnconrupt. My herte was vexed, and I Daniel had a troubled spytte within me, & the visions of my head made me aspayde: till I gaue me vnto one of them that stode by, to knowe the truth, concerninge all these thynges. So he tolde me, and made me vnderstande the interpretation of these thynges.

These four grate beastes, are four kyngdomes whiche shal arysse out of the earth. These shal take in the kyngdome of the sayntes of the most hygh, and possesse it xlii moze and moze for a longe season. After this I requy-red diligently to knowe the truthe, concerninge the fourth beaste, which was so farr vnlyke the other beastes, & so horrible: whose teeth were of yron, and his napyles of brasse: whiche deuoured and destroyed, and stamped the respyue vnder his fete. I desired also to knowe the truth, as touchinge the ten hoynes that he hadde vpon his heade, and this other whiche came by afterwarde, befoze whose face there fell downe thre: whiche hoine had eyes and a mouth that spake presumptuous thynges, and looked with a gyrm & byfage then his felowes. I beheld, and I sawe hoine made battayle agaynst the sayntes, yea and gat the bytoye of them vntill the tyme that the olde aged came, that the iudgement was gyuen to the chiefe sayntes: and till the tyme that the sayntes had the kyngdome in posselpon. He gaue me this answer: That fourth beast shal be the fourth kyngdome vpon earth: it shal be moze then all other kyngdomes, it shal deuoure, & eade downe, and destroye all other landes.

The ten hoynes, are ten kynges, that shal arysse out of the kyngdome, after whome there shal stande by an ofger, whiche shal be greater then the fynde. He shal subdue thre kynges, and shal speake wordes agaynst the vpyght of all: he shal destroye the sayntes of the most hygh, and thynke, that he may change tymes and lawes. They shal be gyuen vnder his power, but xlii a tyme, two tymes, and halfe a tyme.

But the iudgement shal be kepte, so that his power shal be taken from hym, for he shal be destroyed, and pershe at the laste. As for the kyngdome, power, and all myght that is vnder the heuen: it shal be gyuen to the holpe people of the most hygh, whose kyngdome is euerslastynge / yea all powers shal serue and obeye hym. Thus farr extende the wordes. Neuerthelesse, I Daniel was so vexed in my thoughtes, that my countenance chaunged but the wordes I kepte xlii in my herte.

A vision of a rymme betwene a ramme and an he goat. The vnderstandynge of the vision, is of the battell betwene the kynge of Persia, and the kynge of the Grecians. Of the famousse kyng Darius.

CAPL. VIII.

In the thryde yere of the rayne of kynge Balthazar, there appeared a vision vnto me Daniel, after that I had sent the first I sawe in a vision (and when I sawe it, I was at Susis in the chiefe city, whiche lieth in the lande of Elam) and in the vision me thought I was by the stur Elai.

Then I looked by, and sawe: and behelde, there stode befoze the ryuer, a ramme, whiche had hoynes: and these hoynes were hygh, but one was hygher then an other, & the highest came by laste.

I sawe that this ramme pushed with his hoynes, agaynst the walles, agaynst the north agaynst the south: so that no beasts might stand before him, ne defende them from his power: but he dyd as him selfe, and waxed greatly. I toke hede vnto this, and then came there an he gotte from the well ouer the hole earth, and touched not the ground.

B This goate had a marvellous goodly horn betwix his eyes, and came vnto the ramme: he had the iiij. hornes, whom I had sene afore by the ryuer: he and ranne fearfully vpon him with his might. I sawe hym dawe nigh vnto the ramme, beinge vnto the ramme by him: he gaue hym such a stroke, that he brake his two hornes: he had the ramme so much strength as to stand before him: but he cast him downe, trod him vnder his feet: and no man was able to helpe the ramme out of his power.

E The goate waxed exceedinge greafe, and when he was at the stronge, his great horn was broken also. Then grewe there other foure such lyke in the fild, towards the mynches of the heauen. Yea one of one of the lenth of these hornes, there came by per an other hoine, whiche waxed mercurious great: towards the south, toward the east, and towards the sayde piteous lande. It grewe by to the house of heauen, wherof it did cast some downe to the ground, and of the laste also, and trode him vnder feet.

Yea it grewe by vnto the pynce of the house, from whom the dayly offerynge was taken, and the place of his Sanctuary called downe. And a reuerent sealon was gyuen vnto it, agaynst the dayly offerynge: because of wickednesse, that it myghte call downe the brecke to the ground, and so to prosper in all thynges, that it went about.

D Upon this I herd one of the Saintes speake, whiche sayde vnto me: that asked this question: How long shall this byspon of the dayly sacrifice and of the Sanctuary abhominacion endure: that the Sanctuary and the power shall be troden vnder foot? And he answered him: Vnto the cummyng of the moynge, even two thousande and thre hundred dayes: then shall the Sanctuary be cleensed agayne.

E Some when I Daniel had sene this byspon, and sought for the vnderstandyng of it: beholde, there stode before me a chynge lyke vnto a man. And I herd a mans voyce in the ryuer of Eilat, whiche cryed, and sayde: O Gabriel, make this man vnderstande the vision. So he came, and stode by me. But I was as a sleape at his cummyng, and fel downe vnto my face.

Then sayde he vnto me: O thou sonne of man, make well, for in the laste tyme shall this byspon be fulfilled. Some as he was speakinge vnto me, I waxed fayne, so that I suncke downe to the grounde. But he toke hold vpon me, and set me by agayne, saying: Beholde, I will shewe the, what shall happen in the laste tyme: for in the tyme appointed it shall be fulfilled.

The ramme whiche thou sawest with the two hornes, is the kynge of the Syrians and Perles: but the goate is the kynge of the lande: the greafe horn that stode betwix his eyes, that is the principall kynge. And wher as it brake, and foure other hornes by the fild: it signifyeth, that out of this people shall stand by foure kyngdomes, vnto myghty as it.

After these kyngdomes (whiche bygynne) is a growynge: there shall arise a kynge of an vngodly face, whiche shall be wile in darke speakinges.

He shall be myghty and stronge, but not in his owne strength. He shall destroye abundance, and all that he goeth aboute shall prosper: he shall slaye the stronge and holp people. And the power of his creaturys, shall be prosper in his hande, his hande shall be pynche, and manye one shall be put to death in his wyllynnes, he shall stand by agaynst the pynce of Syrces, but he shall be destroyed without hande. And this vision that is shewed vnto the, is as sure as the cummyng and the moynge. Therefore wyte thou by this syght, for it will be longe or it come to passe.

Upon this was I Daniel very fayne, so that I laye by the cummyng dayes: but when I rose by, I went aboute the kynges byssesse, and was occupied at the byspon, vnto the laste no man knewe of it.

D Daniel desyryth to heare that performed of God whiche he had promysed concerninge the returne of the people from theyr banishment in Babylon. A true confession. Danes prayer is here. Gabriel the Angel expoundeth vnto hym the byspon of the thre score and ten weekes. The annoucyng of Chyrie. The bysspon agaynst Jerusalem vnder Achemas. The death of Chyrie. The bysspon of the wicked Jewes.

CAP. IX.

In the thre score and thre of the sonne of Aduerus, whiche was of the seide of the Medes, and was made kynge ouer the realme of the Caldees: yea in the first yere of his reygne, I Daniel desyred to knowe the peryll nombe out of the bookes, wherof the Loide spake vnto Jeremy the Prophet: that Jerusalem shoulde lye wast thre score and thre yeres: and I turned me vnto God the Loide for to praye a make myne intercession, with fasting, sackcloth and ashes, I prayed before the Loide my God, and knowledged, sayinge:

O Loide, thou greafe and fearfull God, thou that kepest cōfession and mercy with them, which loue the, and do thy commandmentes: We haue sinned, we haue disobeyed, we haue bene disobedient, and gone backe: yea we haue departed from all thy preceptes and iudgements.

We woulde neuer folowe thy seruantes the Prophets, that spake in thy name to our kynges and pynces, to our lordes and to all the people of the lande. O Loide, thy gentylnesse belongeth vnto the, and to thy thy gentylnesse but open shame: as it is cometo passe this daye vnto euery man of Iuda, and to them that dwell at Jerusalem: yea vnto all Israel, whether they be farre or nigh the towne out all landes: wher in thou hast shewed them, because of the offences they had done agaynst the.

E Yea O Loide, vnto us to our kynges and pynces, to our lordes and fathers: turne to us all, that haue offended, belongeth open shame. But vnto the, O Loide our God, petytyngh mercy and forgiveness. As for us, we are gone backe from him, and haue not obeyed the voyce of the Loide our God, to walke in his lawes, whiche he layed before us by his seruantes the Prophets: yea all Israel haue transgressed, and gone backe from thy lawe, so that they haue not hearkened vnto thy voyce.

Wherefore the curse and oath, that is written in the lawe of Moses the seruante of God agaynst whom we haue offended, is pouerish vnto us. And he hath perfourmed his word, whiche he spake agaynst us, and agaynst our fathers that iudged us: to bynne vpon us like a great plague, as neuer was vnder heauen lyke as it is: nowe come to passe in Jerusalem. Yea all this plague, as it is written in the lawe of Moses, is come vpon us. Yet made we not our prayer before O Loide our God, that we myghte turne agayne from our wickednesse, to be lerned in thy veryte. Therefore hath the Loide made haste, to bynne this plague vpon us: for the Loide our God is ryghteous, in all his workes whiche he doeth: for we woulde not hearken vnto thy voyce.

D And now, O Loide our God, thou that with a myghty hande hast brought thy people out of Egypt, to get thy self a name, whiche thy name is: we haue sinned, O Loide, and done wickedly agaynst all thy commandmentes: yet let thy wrathfull byssesse be turned awaye (I beseeche the) from the citye Jerusalem thy holy byl. And wherof our fathers sake and for the wickednesse of our fore fathers to Jerusalem and thy people abhorred, of all them that are about us. Some therefore, O our God, here the prayer of thy seruante, and his intercession. O let not thy face thine ouer thy Sanctuary, that hath lye wast.

O my God, encline thine eare, and hearken at the laste for thyne owne sake: open thine eyes: behold how we be desolated, yea and the citye also, whiche is called after thy name: for we do not cast our prayers before the in our owne righteousness, no: but only in thy great mercies. O Loide, heere: O Loide, O Loide confesse, saye not a longe: but for thyne owne sake do it. O my God: for thy cōfession and thy people is called after thy name.

As I was yet speakinge at my prayers, I knowledged myne owne synnes, and the synnes of my people, makinge so myne in transgression before the Loide my God, for the gentylnesse of my God: yea whyle I was yet speakinge in my prayer, beholde, the man Gabriel (whom I had sene afore in the vision) came flyinge to me, and touched me aboute the offerynge tyme in the euenynge. He informed me and spake vnto me: O Daniel sayde he, I am nowe come to make the vnderstande it: for as soone as thou beganst to make thy prayer, it was so deuised, & therfore am I come to shewe the. And why? for thou art a man greatly beloued.

Wherefore, pōdize the matter well, that thou mayest lerne, to vnderstande the vision, thre score and ten weekes are determined ouer thy people, and ouer the holpe city: that the wickednesse maye be consumed, that the sin maye haue an ende, that the offence maye be reconciled, and to bynne in euerylastyng righteousness, to fulfill the visions and the prophetes, and to anoynte the most holpe out. Vnderstande this then, and marke it well: that frome the tyme it shall be concluded, to go & repaire Jerusalem agayne, vnto the thre score and ten weekes: there shall be scul weekes. Then shall the stretes and walles be buylded agayne. Ixij. weeks, but with harde troublous tyme. After these. Ixij. weeks, shall Chyrie be slayne, and they shall haue no pleasure in hym. Then shall there come a people with the pynce, and destroye the citye and the Sanctuary: and his ende shall come as the water floude. But the desolation shall contynue vnto the ende of the battayle.

He shall make a stronge boude with maner, for the space of a weke: and when the weke is halfe gone, he shall put downe the saynt and meat offerynge. And in the thre score and ten weekes, shall be an abhominable desolation, vnto the ende of the battayle. And it is concluded, that this wastynge shall contynue vnto the ende.

E There appereth vnto Daniel a man clothed in linnen, whiche sheweth hym wherof he is seut.

CAP. X.

In the thre score and thre of the sonne of Aduerus, there was shewed vnto Daniel (of his wife called Balthazar) a mater, yea a true matter, but it is yet a longe tyme vnto it. He vnderstode the mater well & perceyued what the vision was. At the same tyme, I Daniel mourned for the space of thre weekes, so that I had no luste to eat brede: as for sleep & wyne there came none with my mourne. No, I dyd not once anoynte my selfe, vnto the hole thre weekes were out.

Upon the xijij. daye of the firste moneth, I was by the greafe floude, called Tigris: I lyfte by myne eyes, and looked: and beholde, a man clothed in linnen, whose loynes were girded by with fyne golde of Araby: his body was lyke the Chyrolite stone, his face (so lyke vnto) was lyke the lyghtenynge, his eyes as the flame of fire, his armes and feete were lyke saynt gyltynge metall, but the voyce of his wordes was lyke the voyce of a mul-tyude.

I Daniel

The tyme will come also that the great prince Michaell, whiche standeth on thy people for that tyme, for tyme that come a tyme of trouble, such as neuer was there began to be any people, unto that same tyme. Then shall thy people be deliuered, yea all those that be founde written in the booke.
Many of them that slepe in the dust of y^e earth shall awake, some to the euellasting lyfe, some to perpetuall shame and reprobation. The wyse (suche as haue taught other) shall glorie as the wyngs of heauen, and those that haue instructed the multitude vnto goodnesse, shall be as the steeles, withoute ende.

And thou, O Daniel, that by these wordes, and seals the booke in the last tyme. Many shall go about here and there, and then shall know lege increase. So I Daniel tolke, and beheld, there were vnto me two: one vpon this wyse of the water, the other vpon yonder syde. And one of them said vnto him, which was clothed in lynen, and stood about vpon the waters of the flood: How longe shall it be to the ende of thys worldous tyme, he?

Then heroe I the man with the linc clothes which stood about vpon the waters of y^e flood when he leide by his right and left hand vnto heuen, & swore by him which liueth for euer:
that it shall last for a tyme, two tymes & half a tyme: when the power of the holy people is cleue scattered abroad, then shall all these thinges be fulfilled.

I heroe it well, but I vnderstode it not. Then said I: O my Lord, what shall happen after that? he answered: So thy way Daniel, for these wordes shall be closed vp, and sealed, til the last tyme: and many shall be purified, clen-sed, and tried. But the vngodly shall liue wickedly, and those wicked (as many of them as they be) shall haue no vnderstandinge. As for suche as haue vnderstandinge, they shall regrete it. And from that tyme forth that the daye of ringe shall be put to tyme, and the abominable desolation set vp, there shall be a thousande, two hundred, and xxiij. dayes. O well is that that wasteth, and cometh to the. A. thys hundred, and xxxij. dayes. God thou thy waye now til it be ended, take thy rest, and byde in thy lot, till the dayes haue
an ende.

The ende of the prophete of Daniel.

THE BOKE OF THE PROPHETE OSEAS.

The tyme wherein Oseas propheted. Oseas by takinge an harlotte to his wyfe, signified the desolation of the people. The destruction of the olliuynge of Jeru, and of the Israelites in pa-phozah.

CAPL.

L

This is the word of the Lord, that came vnto Oseas the sonne of Beery in the dayes of Oseas, Joash, Azas, and Zacharias synge of Juda: and in the tyme of Jeroboam the son of Joas kynge of Israel.

For when the Lord spake vnto Oseas, he said vnto him: So thy waye, take an harlot to thy wyfe, and get chyldren by her: for the land hath committed great harlotrye agaynst the Lord. So he went, and toke Gomere the daughter of Deblaam: which conceived and brought forth a sonne. And the Lord said vnto him: call his name Jezrael, for I wil thus auenge the blood of Jezrael vpon the house of Jeru, and wil synge the bryn-dome of the house of Israel to an ende. Then wil I breake the bowe of Israel in the daye of Jezrael.

She conceived yet agayne, and bare a daughter. And he sayde vnto him: call her name Lozibamah (that is, not openinge mercy) for I wil haue no pittie vpon the house of Israel, but forget them, and put them cleue out of remembrance. Reuerselyse, I wil haue mercy vpon the house of Juda, and wil saue them, euen thou shalt see the Lord there God. But I wil not saue them thowme anye bowe, swerde, battell, bowes of hoisemen.

Now when she had weaned Lozibamah, he conceived agayne, and bare a sonne. Then sayd he: call his name. Lo amy, for wyfe ye are not my people, therefore wil I not be your father. And though the nombre of the chyldren of Israel be as the sande of the see, yet the can neither be measured ne tolde: yet in the place, where it is sayde vnto them, ye be not my people: eue then shall it be thus repared of them: they be the chyldren of the livinge God. Then shall the chyldren of Juda, and the chyldren of Israel be gathered together, and saye and chole them selues one breth, & then departe out of the land: for great shall be the daye of Jezrael.

The people is called vnto repentance.

CAPL.

II.

All your brethren, that they are my people: and your synners, that they haue obteyned mercy. As for your mother, ye shall curse with her, and reprobate her: for she is not my wyfe, neyther am I her husbande, saith the Lord. I wil put away her harlotrye out of my sight, and her adoultre from her bysses. Yf I shall see her naked, and let her euen as she came in to the world: yea, I shall lay her bare, and make her lyke a wyldernesse, and her cities shall be as a wasteland. I shall haue no pittie also vnto her chyldren, for they be the chyldren of fornication.

Thy mother hath broken her wedlocke, and she that bare them, is come to confusion.
In the daye, I wil goo after my louers, that geue me my water and my bread, my holle and flaxe, my oyle and my byrke. But I wil hedge her waye with thornes, and hedge it, that she shall not fynde her footstepes: and though she runne after her lo-uers, yet shall she not get them: she shall see them, but not fynde them. Then shall she say vnto me, I wil goo souene agayne to my synne and harlotrye, for at that tyme was I better at ease, then now. But this wylde she knowe, whereas I yet gaue her corne, wynd, oyle, siluer and golde, whiche she hath hanged vpon Baal.

Wherfore now wil I go take my corne and wyne agayne in theyr season, and set a garde my wolle and my flaxe whiche I gaue her to couer her shame. And now wil I dis-couer her follye, euen in the sight of her louers, and no man shall deliuer her oute of my handes. Wherfore, I wil take away all her myght, her holy dayes, her newe moons, her Saboths, and all her solempne feastys. I wil despoyle her vndergarde and her linc clothes, as she sayde: so, here are my testimonies that my louers haue gyuen me. I wil make it a wodde, and the wylder herdes shall eat it: I wil punyssh her also for the daye of Baal, wherein she crucified him, because she was with her care synge and cherynes:
for she folowed her louers, and forgot me, saith the Lord.

Wherfore beholde, I wil call her agayne, bringe her in to a wyldernesse, and speake vnto her: there wil I geue her her vndergarde agayne: yea, and the halleye of Jehu also to the we her hope and comforte.
Then shall she synge there, as in the tyme of her yowthe, and lyke as in the daye when she came out of the land of Egypt.

Then (saith the Lord) she shall saye vnto me: O my husbande, and shall call me my Baal: for I wil take awaye those names of Baal from her mouth: yea she shall remember theyr names anye more. Then wil I make a covenante with them, with the wild brastles, with the foules of the ayre, and with every thyng that creepeth vpon the wythe.

As for bowe, swerde and battaile, I wil take them oute of the lande, and wil take them a slepe safely. Thus wil I make vnto myne owne selfe for euer more:

yea, euen to my selfe wil I make the, in righteousnesse, in equitie, in iustye bynde-nesse and mercy. In sayd also wil I make the vnto my selfe, and thou shalt knowe the Lord. At the same tyme wil I shewe my life frendly and gracious vnto the vyrgens, saith the Lord: and the heuens shall helpe the earth, and the earth shall helpe the corne, wyne and oyle. And they shall helpe Jezrael.
I wil sowe them vpon earth, as a seed to myne owne selfe, and wil haue mercy vpon her that was my house mercede: and to them which were not my people, I wil saye: thou art my people. And he shall saye: thou art my God.

The lone of God towards the people.

CAPL.

III.

Then sayd the Lord to me: Go yet thy waye, and mowe an adoultress womans house, the neyghbour loueth, as the Lord hath the chyldren of Israel: how be it they haue respect to strange goddes, and loue the wyne cannes. So I gat her for .xx. silver penynges, and for an house and an half of oarelye, and sayde vnto her: thou shalt byde with me a long season, but se that thou playest not the harlot, and loke thou meddle with none other man, and then wil I kepe my selfe for the.

Thus the chyld of Israel shall be a great whore without kynge and pryce, without assuring and aulter, without priest and euellaction. But afterwarde shall the chyldren of Israel conuert, and shall the Lord theyr God, and Danid theyr kynge: and in the latter dayes they shall worship the Lord, and his louing kyndnesse.

A complaint agaynst the people and the prestes of Israel.

CAPL.

IIII.

Hear the wordes of the Lord, O ye children of Israel: for the Lord muste punyssh them that dwell in the lande.
And why? There is no faythfulnesse, there is no mercy, there is no knowledge of God in the lande: but swearinge, lyenge, manslaughter, thefte, and adoultre, haue gotten the ouerhande, and one bloudgytynesse fol-loweth an other. Wherfore shall the lande be in a miserable case, and all they that dwell there in, shall mourne. The bestes in the felde, the foules in the ayre, and the fyshes in the see shall dye. Yet is there none that wil chaunge nor reprobate an other. The prestes whiche shoulde reforme other men, are become lyke the people.

Wherfore stumbled thou in the daye tyme and the prophet with the in the night. I wil byngne thy mother to silence, and why? my people perishe, because they haue no knowledge.

into Egypt, and take thence thengs among the Assyrians. They poure out no wine for a brynkefyringe vnto the Lozde, neyther gve they hym their dayne offeringes: but they be vnto me as mourners meales, wherein all they that ate them are defiled. For the bread that they haue suche luste vnto, shall not come in to the house of the Lozde. What wyl ye do then in the folowynge dayes, and in the feaste of the Lozde? Lo, they shall get them away for the destruction, Egypt shall receyue them, and Assyria shall bury them.

B The nettles shall ouergrowe their pleasure goodes, and burres shall be in their tabernacles. Be ye sure (O Israel) the tyme of visitation is come, the dayes of recompensynge are at hande. As for the Prophete, he holdeth him for a fool: and him that is ryche in the spiryte for a madde man: so greates is your wickednesse and malice. Ephraim hath made hym selfe a watchman of my God, a Prophete that is become a snare to two turcs in euery strete, and abhominacion in the house of his God. They be gone to farr, and haue destroyed them selues, lyke as they did afore tyme at Saba. Therefore their wickednesse shall be remembred, and their synnes punished.

A I founde Israel lyke grapes in the wyldernes, and sawe theyr fathers as the fyre fynges in the top of the fygge tree, but they are gone to Baal Peor, and runne away from me to that wylful poble, and are become as abhominable as their loners. Ephraim stretcheth lyke a byrde, so shall they gloye also. In so moche that they shall neyther begette, nor yet beare chyldren. And though they bynge vpon any, yet wyl I make them chyldlesse among men. Yea two shall come to them, when I depart fro the Ephraim (as me think) is planted in wilderness, lyke as Tyus, but now must he bynge her owne chyldren forth to the maner.

D Lozde thou shalt gve them what shall thou gve them? Gve them an vnfruitfull wombe, and byrde byrdes. All their wickednes is come at Galgal, there wyl I abhorre them. For the vngreatynesse of their owne inuencions, I wyl bynge them out of my house. I wyl loue them no more, for all their pyntes are vnfaithfull. Ephraim is hewen downe, their rocke is byrd vpon, so that they shall bynge no more frute: yea, and though they bynge forth any, yet wyl I see euen the best beloued frute of their body. My God shall call them away, for they haue not ben obedient vnto hym, therefore shall they goo astraye amonge the Heathen.

Agaynst Israel and his Idols.

I Israel was a goodly byne, but he hath brought forth vnprofitable frute: yea the more frute he had, the more aulcers he made:

the more good I dō to their lande, the more frunt they wylled they vnto their ymagyn. Theyr herte is deuyed: therefore wyl they be destroyed. The Lozde shall breake downe their ymagyn, he shall destroye their aulter. Then shall they say: we haue no kynge: for why? we haue not feared the Lozde. And what shall then the kynge do to vs? They comon together, and swere bayne othes: they be confederate together, therefore groweth thyn punysshment, as the weeds in the foyntes of the lande.

They that dwell in Samaria haue bysspyed the cause of Bethaen: therefore shall the people mourne ouer them: yea, and the pyntes also that in theyr welthynesse they had with them: and why? It shall passe awaye from them. It shall be brought to the Assyrians for a present vnto kynge Iereb. Ephraim shall receyue full punysshment: Israel shall be confounded for his owne ymagynations: Samaria with his kynge shall be as a byrde as the scowme in the water. The hye places of Auen, where Israel to lyme, shall be caste downe: the pyntes and thornes shall grow vpon their aulter. Then shall they say to the mountaynes, couer vs: and to the hylles, fall vpon vs.

O Israel, thou hast sinned as Gaba dō afore tyme, where they remayned: woldst thou the battayle then come vpon the wyrded chylidren as well as vpon the Gabaonites: I wyl chadden them, euen after myne owne desire, the people shall be gathered together ouer them, when I punyssh them for their greue wickednesse.

Ephraim was vnto me, as a cower that is bled to go to plow, therefore I lound hym, and fell vpon his sayre necke. I dōne Ephraim, Iuda plowd, and Jacob plowd the vnderman: that they myght some vnto ryghteousnesse, and reape the frutes of well doing: that they myght plow vpon theyr freewylle land, and seke the Lozde, till he came, and lerne them ryghteousnesse.

But now they haue plowd them wyrdednesse, therefore shall they reape thynne, and eate the frute of lyes. Seinge thou puttist thy confidence in thynne owne wayes, and lymest to the multitude of thy wordes: theyr shall growe a sedicion amonges thy people. All thy strange cyties shall be layde waste, euen as Salmata was destroyed with his synners, thowse hym that was auenged of Rebel in the daye of battayle, where the mother perished with her chyldren. Euen so shall it goo with you (O Bethel) because of your makynous wickednesse. Like as the merange groweth awaye, so shall the bynge of Israel passe.

Agaynst the vngreatynesse of Israel.

CAPL

XL

When Israel was strong, I lound him, and called him my sonne out of the lande of Egypt. But the more they were called, the more they went backe, offering vnto Idols and enyngage ymagyns: I lerned Ephraim to go, and bare them in myne armes, but they regarded not me, that wolde haue helped them. I led them with cordes of friendship, and with bandes of loue. I was euen he, that layde the poeke vpon their neckes. I gaue them their fodder my selfe, that they wold not go agayne into Egypt. And now is Asure their kynge: for they wolde not turne vnto me. Therefore shall the swerde begynne in their cyties, the Lozde that they haue layed vpon, shall be destroyed and eaten: and that be cause of their owne ymagynations. My people hath no lust to turne vnto me, thier prophetes lay the poeke vpon the, but they case them not of their buccorn.

What great thynges haue I gauen the, O Ephraim? how faynfull haue I defended the, O Israel? haue I dealt with the as with Adams: or haue I increased the lyke Adam? No: my hert is otherwyse mynded.

Yea my mercy is to scoure: therefore haue I not turned me to destroye Ephraim in my wrathful displeasure. For I am God and no man, I am euen that golp one in the myddest of the, though I come not within the cytye.

The Lozde cōfesseth lyke a lyon, that they may folowe him: yea as a lyon cōfesseth he they may be strayed lyke the chyldren of the ly: that they may be scattered awaye from Egypt, as wen scatte byrdes: and straped awaye (as boues bte to be) from the Assyrians land: and that because I wolde haue them say at home, saye the Lozde. But Ephraim goth about me with lyes, and the house of Israel dissembleth. Only Iuda polseth hym with God, and wyl the true holy thynges.

Agaynst the bayne trust of the people.

CAPL

XII.

Ephraim kepeth the ayze, and foloweth after the east wynde: he is euer increasing lyes and destruction. They confederate with the Assyrians, thier oyle is carped in to Egypt. The Lozde hath a cōuerse to holden Iuda, and wyl punyssh Jacob: After their owne wayes accordyng to theyr owne inuencions, shall he recd pte the. He toke his byrder by the helle, when he was yet in his mothers wombe: in his Arrenged he was lashed with God. He stroue with he angel, and gat the victory: so that he playd and despyed hym. He found him at Bethel, and there he talked with vs.

Yea the Lozde God of hostes, euen the Lozde hym selfe remembre hym: When I turne to thy God, kepe mercy and equite, and vowe shall in thy God. But the marcouant hath a false weight in his bande, he hath a pleasure to occupy extortion. Ephraim cōfesseth thus: I am ryche, I haue good enough: In all my workes shall not one fault be founde, that I haue offeared. Yet am I the Lozde thy God, euen as was I brought out of the lande of Egypt, and set them in thy tentes, and as in the highe feaste dayes.

I haue spoken thorow the Prophetes, and showed byncre blyssions, and declared my self by the mynstracion of the prophetes. But at Galaad is the abhominacion, they are fallen to vanitie. At Galgal they haue layne oxen: and as many heapes of stones as they had in their lande for oxen, so many aulteris haue they made. Jacob fled into the lande of Siria, and Israel leuied for a wyfe, and for a wyfe he kept there.

By a Prophete the Lozde brought them out of Egypt, and by a Prophet he preserued them. But Ephraim hath prouoked him to displeasure thorow his abhominacions, therefore shall his blood be poured vpon him self and the Lozde his God shall rewarde hym his blasphemies.

Of the abhominacions of Israel.

CAPL

XIII.

The abhominacion of Ephraim is come also into Israel. He is gone backe to Baal, therefore must he dye. And now they synne more and more: of theyr synnes they make the most ymagyns, lyke the Idols of the Heathen, and yet all is nothyng but the worke of the craftesman. Nor withstanding they preache of the same: who so wyl lyse the calures, offereth to men. Therefore they shall be as the morninge cloude, and as the dewe that early passeth awaye, and lyke as the duff that the wynde taketh away from the floure, and as smoke that goeth out of the chymney.

I am the Lozde thy God, whiche brought the out of the land of Egypt: that thou woldst knowe no God but me onely: and that thou woldst haue no Saviour but onely me. I toke diligent heed of the in the wyldernes that dye lande. But when they were forsed and had ynough, they waxed proude and forgot me. Therefore wyl I be vnto them as a lyon, and as a Leopard in the waye to the Assyrians. I wyl come vpon them as a thebete, that is robbed of her whelpes, and I wyl breake that synnfull heart of theires. There wyl I deuoure them as a lyon: yea the wyld be bralles shall teare them.

O Israel, thou woldst but destroye thy selfe. In me onely is thy helpe. Where are thy kyn ges now, that wold be helpe the in all thy troubles? Yea and thy iudges, of whom thou saydest, grue me a kynge and pyncers? Well, I gaue the a kynge in my wrath, and in my displeasure wyl I take him from the agayne. The wickednesse of Ephraim is bounde together, and his synne lymed byrde. Therefore shall I sowe vnto them as vpon a man that reapeleth. An vnprofitable sowne is he, for he considereth not, that he shold not haue bent habile to haue endured in y tyme of his byrth, had not I defendd hym from the geare, and delyuered hym from death.

O death. I wyl be thy death: O death, I wyl be thy synge. Yea can I be no comforte.

ISRAEL

THE BOKE OF THE PROPHETE AMOS.

The type of the prophete of Amos. The word understand agaynst Izrah, agaynst Tyre, agaynst Gaza, and agaynst the sonnes of Judah.

Against Moab, Juda, and Israel.

CAPL:

These are the sermons that were shewed vnto Amos (who the was one of the shepherdes at Shecua) vpon Israel, in the tyme of Oshah kinge of Iuda, & in the tyme of Ieroboam the sonne of Ioah kinge of Israel, two yere before the earth quake. And he sayde: The Lord shall roze out of Sion, & shewe his voyce fro Iherusalem: so that the pastures of the shepherdes shall be in a miserable case, and frop of Charnel dried vp. Thus sayth the Lord in the and foure wickednes of Damazk, I will not spare her: because they haue distressed Galaad with yron stailles: But I will sende a fyre into the house of Hazeel, & him that consume the palaces of Benadab. Thus will I breake the bannes of Damazk, and rote out the inhabiter from the feld of Iarm, and him that holdeth the scepter, out of the pleasant house: so the people shall be dryen out of sayre Siria, saith the Lord. Thus saith the Lord: so: thre and foure wickednes of Gaza, I will not spare her: because they make the prsones yet more captiue, and haue dryen them in to the law of Edom. Therefore will I sende a fyre in to the walles of Gaza, whiche shall deuoure her houses. I will rote out them that dwell at Ashdod and him that holdeth the scepter of Ekרון, and stretch out myne hande ouer Assaron, that the reminaunce of the Philistines shall perishe saith the Lord.

Thus saythe the Lorde: for thye and four wickednesses of Moab, I will not spare him: because he brente the bones of the king of Edom to ashes. Therefore wyl I sende a fyre into Moab, whiche shall consume the palaces of Cariorh: so that Moab shall perishe w ith a noyse and the soude of a watyme. I will rote oute the iudge from amonge them and slaye all his princes with him sayth the Lorde. Thus sayth the Lorde: for thye and four wickednesses of Iuda, I wyl not spare him: because he hath caste asyde the lawe of the Lorde, and not kept his commandementes: so; why, they wolde ne-des be discepued with þ lyes, that their forefathers folowed. Therefore wyl I send a fyre into Iuda, which shall consume the palaces of Ierusalem.

Thus saith the Lord: for thre and foure wickednesses of Israel, I wil not spare him: because he hath sold the righteous for money, and the poore for shoes. They trade vpon poore mens heads, in the dust of the earth, and troke the wayes of the meke. The sonne and I father go to the harlot, to disho-noure my holpe name, they lye beyde euery auiter vpon clothes taken to pledge, and in the house of their goddess they drinke I wine of the oppressed.

Yet destroyed I the Amorite before them that was as hygh as the Cedar trees, and as stronge as the oaks : not withstandynge I destroyed his sente frome above and his rote frome vnder.

Agayne: I brought you oute of the lande of Egypt, and led you xl. yeares thorow the wilderness, that ye myght haue the Amoytes lande in possession. I rayed bp. Prophetes amonge your chyldren, and abspapers amonge your yonge men. Is it not so, O ye chyldren of Israhel, sayth the Lorde? But ye gaue the abspapers wine to drynke, yea ye commaunded the prophetes, saying, Prophecy not. Beholde, I wil craue you in sonde lyke as a wayne craueth, that is full of theasurs, so that the swyfte shall not escape, neither the stronge be able to do any thinge, no, the giuant shall not saue his owne lyfe.
The archer shall not abyde, & the swyfte of foote shall not escape. The horsman shall not saue his lyfe, and he that is as many of stomache as a giuant, shall in that daye be faine to runne his waye naked, sayth the Lorde.

The reproacheth the house of Israel of my wickednes.

Hear, what the Lord speaketh unto you, O ye children of Israel: I have brought out of Egypt and said: you only have I accepted from all the generations of the earth: therefore will I visit you in all your wickednesses. Are they any wayne make together except they be agreed among them selves? Doth a lion roare in the wood, except he have a prey? Or creepeth a lion without his den, except he have gotten some thing? Doth he a byrde fall in a snare upon the earth where no fowler is? Taketh a man his snare upon the ground, afore he catch somwhat? Orpe they ouce Alarum with the trumpet in the citie, and the people not afraid? Commerth there any place in a city without it be a Lords house? Nowe doth the Lord God no manner of thing, but he telleth his secrets before unto his seruantes, the prophetes. When a lion roareth, who will not be afraid? When the Lord God shall speak, who will not prophesie?

Encache in the palaces at Asdod, and in the palaces of the lande of Egypt, and say: gather you together upon the mountaynes of Samaria. Shall ye be great murderers and violent oppressors amonges them: for why, they regard not the thing that is right sayeth the Lord, they gather to gether euell gotten goodes, and laye robbery in their houses.

Therefore thus sayeth the Lord God: This lande shall be troubled and beleeged rounde about, the strength shall be plucked from the, and the palaces robbed. Thus sayeth the Lord, lyke as an herdeman taketh two legges of a peece of an eare out of the Lyons mouth: So will I take the children of Israel (that dwell in Samaria, haunge their couches in the corners, and their beddes at Damascus) shall be plucked awaye. Heare, and heare recorde in the house of Jacob (sayeth the Lord God of hostes): that when I begyn to visit the wickednesse of Israel, I will visit the aulders at Bethel also: so that the houses of aulders shall be broken of, and fall to the ground.

As for the winter house and summer house, I will smyte them downe: and the houses of Ierusalem and many other houses shall be destroyed, sayeth the Lord.

Against the gouernours of Samaria.

CAPL

III.

Psal. xlii.

Hear ye two, be ye sat byne, that be upon the hill of Samaria: ye that do poyse men twinge, and oppresse the neabyr: that saye to you: be ye: bring hithe let be drinke. Therefore the Lord hath sworne by his holynesse: The dayes shall come upon you, that ye shall be left vpon speares, your posterite carryed away in fyres pang: as one that getteth you out at the gappes one after another, and in Armon shall ye be cast away, sayeth the Lord.

Ye came to Bethel for to worke iniquitie, and haue increased your sinnes at Gaual: ye brought your sacrifices in the morning and your tythes unto the thide daye. Ye made a thankoffering of leuen, ye promysed freewill offerings, and proclaimed them. Such luste had ye, O ye children of Israel, saith the Lord God. Therefore haue I gaue you ydle rest in all your cyties, and scarcenesse of bread in all your places yet will ye not turne vnto me sayeth the Lord. When there were but thre monethes vnto the harvest, I withheld the raine from you: ye sayned vpon one cite, and not vpon another one peece of ground was moistured with raine and the grounde that I sayned nor vnto was dry. Wherefore two, yea thre cyties came vnto one to drinke water: but they were not satisfied, yet will ye not turne vnto me, saith the Lord.

I haue smytte you with drought and blinding and loke how many orchardes, vineyardes, figgettes and olpue trees ye had: the caterpillers hath eaten them up. But yet will ye not turne vnto me, sayeth the Lord. Therefore haue I sent among you, as I byd in Egypt your pong men haue I dayne with the sword and caused your houses be taken captiue: I made the sinchange fauour of your sentis to come vnto you: yet will ye not turne vnto me, sayeth the Lord. Some of you haue I ouerthrowen, as I ouerthrew Sodome and Gomorrah: so that ye were as a bynde plucked out of the tree. Yet will ye not turne vnto me, sayeth the Lord. Therefore thus will I handle the agayne, O Israel, ye euen thus will I handle the. Make them ready then to meete the God, O Israel for lo, he maketh the mountaynes, he ordeyneth the wynde, he smeth man what he is about to do, he maketh the moynge and the darkness, he treadeth vpon the high places of the earth: the Lord God of hostes is his name.

Against the captiue of Israel.

CAPL

V.

Hear this worde, O ye house of Israel, and wher? I must make this more for you: The byrgn Israel shall fall, and neuer rise by agayne: the wall be cald downe vpon her owne grounde, and no man shall helpe her vp. For thus sayeth the Lord God: Where as there dwelt a thousand in one cytye, there shall be left scarce an hundred therein: and wher there dwelt an hundred there shall scarce ten be left for the house of Israel.

Reuerence, thus sayeth the Lord vnto the house of Israel: Seke after me, and ye shall fynde me: but seke not after Bethel, nor at Gaual, nor to Bethaba: for Gaual shall be carryed awaye captiue, and Bethel shall come to nought. Seke the Lord, ye maye lyue: lest the house of Joseph be cutt with fire and consumed, as I cutt the house of Bethel.

Ye turne the lawe to your mouth, and call your rightnesse vnto the grounde. The Lord maketh the seven steres and the O-gone, he turneth the myghte in to daye, and of the daye he maketh darkness. He callet the waves of the see, and pouerth them out vpon the playne ground: the Lord is his name.

Destruction vpon the myghte people, and bynged downe the strong hold: but they shall saye: we will not feare, for we are as a myghte people, and we will not feare. The myghte people, they abhorre him, for so make they as ye oppresse the poore, and robbe him of his best substance: therefore were as ye haue buylded houses of square stone, ye shall not dwell in them. Marvellous pleasure haue they in the plant, but the wynde of the myghte people, and wher? as for the multitude of your wickednesse, and your house synes, I knowe them right well. Therefore are ye of the myghte people, ye take the myghte people, ye oppresse the poore in iudgement. Therefore the myghte people shall be carryed awaye captiue, so will I take a tyme.

After the thinge that is good, and not evil, shall ye lyue: yea the Lord God of hostes shall be with you, according to your owne desire: Hate the cup, and loue good: yet bynged agayne in the poore and (no doubt) the Lord God of hostes shall be mercifull vnto the remnant of Joseph. Yea (sayeth the Lord God, the God of hostes) there shall be mourning in all cities: yea they shall saye in euery strete, as in Asdod.

They shall cal the husbandman to lamen, and such as can mourne to mourne. In all bynged there shall be heynesse, for I will come amonges you, sayeth the Lord.

When they shall saye the daye of the Lord: Wherefore wolde ye haue it? As for that daye of the Lord, it shall be darkness and not clere: Yea lyke as when a man runneth from a lyb, and a breame meteth with him: when he cometh in to the house, and leaue his hande vpon the wall, and a serpent biteth him, shall not the daye of the Lord be darkness, and not clere? Shall it not be clowdy, as in the daye of the Lord?

I hate and abhorre your holpe dayes, and wher as ye cense me when ye come to myn: I will not accepte it. And though ye offer burnt offerings and meate offerings, yet haue I no pleasure therein. As for your thankoffringes, I will not loke vpon them.

Awaye with that noyse of thy songes, I will not heare thy playes of musyke: but let the quyte home as the water, and ryde vnto the sea, as a myghte people. O ye house of Israel, gaue ye me offerings and sacrifices? ye haue ye set up tabernacles to your Asdod, and ymagis of your ydols, yea and the name of your god Rempha, figures wher made to worship them. Therefore will

I cause you be carryed awaye beyonde Damascus, sayeth the Lord, whose name is the God of hostes.

Against the pyntes of Israel lynged in pleasures.

CAPL

VI.

O be to the proude welch in Syon: to such as thynke they are sure vpon the mount of Samaria: which holde them selves for the best of the world, a rule the house of Israel, eue as they lyb. Go vnto Laine, and se: and from thence get you to the math the great rye, as so go downe to Gath of the Philistines: be they better at ease then these byngdomes, or the borders of theyr land wyder then yours? Ye are taken out for the cupl daye, euen ye that lyt in the shoole of wisdom: Ye that lyt vpon beddes of Iurpe, and vnto your wantonnesse vpon your couches: ye that eate the best lambes of the flocke, and the sacrest calves of the dowe: ye that synge to the flute, and in playng the instrumentes compare your selves vnto David: ye that synge wyne ouce of god-blesses, and annopne your selves with the best oyle, but no man is soye for Josephs hurt. Therefore now shall ye be the bynged of them, that shall be leade awaye captiue and the ludy chere of the wyllfull shall come to an ende.

The Lord God hath sworne vnto him selfe (sayeth the Lord God of hostes) I hate the pyntes of Jacob, and I abhorre his palaces: and I will gyue ouer the cite, with all that is therein: so that though there remayne ten men in one house, they shall be. So their next kynfolkes, and the deed buyers shall take them, and carrye awaye theyr bones, and laye vnto hym that is in the innermost house: is there yet any mo by the? And he shall answer they are all gone: holde thy tounge (shall be saye) for they wolde not remembre the name of the Lord.

Behold, the Lord is mynded to smyte the greute houses, so that they shall decaye: and the lytle houses shall theyr wall cleaue asunder. Who can run with horses, or plow with oxen vpon the harde rockes of stone? for why, ye haue touchted true iudgemente in to bytternesse, and the frute of rightnesse in to wormewood. Yea, euen ye that eclypse in byrnes bynges, ye that saye: haue not we observed bynges in oure owne strengthe? Well take heed, O ye house of Israel, sayeth the Lord God of hostes: I will byng a people vpon you, which shall trouble you, from the waye that goeth towards Hemath in to the broke in the medow.

Against the captiue of Israel and Iuda.

VII.

DE THE

The Lorde God shewed me such a vision: beholde there was one that made gr. Woppers, even when the coine was shewing forth, after the king had shipe his wyse.

After when they undertoke to rate by at the grene thynges in the lande, I sayde: O Lorde God, be mercifull I beseeche the: who shouldest helpe by Jacob that is brought so lowe? So the Lorde was gracious therein, and the Lorde sayde: well, it shall not be. Agayne the Lorde shewed me this vision: beholde, the Lorde God called the fyre to punyssh the withall, and it deuoured the grete depe: yea it consumed a parte alreder. Then sayd I: O Lorde God, holde thyne hande: for who shouldest helpe by Jacob that is brought so lowe? So the Lorde was mercifull therein, and the Lorde God sayd: well, it shall not be.

Wherefore he shewed me this bysion: Beholde, the Lorde shode upon a plaine waste, and a maions towrell in his hande. And the Lorde sayd unto me: Amos, what seest thou? I answered: a maion towrell. Then sayde the Lorde: Beholde, I will lape the towrell amonge my people of Israel, and will no more ouersee them: but the bygbe will chapelles of Isaac make be layde waste, and the churches of Israel made desolate, and as for the house of Jeroboam, I will stande by agayn it with the swerde.

Upon this sente Amasiah the Priest to Bethel, unto Jeroboam the kynge of Israel, sayinge: Amos maketh the house of Israel to rebell agaynste the, the lande can not a waye with his wordes. For Amos sayth, Jeroboam shall dye with the swerde, and Israel shall be led awaye captiue out of their owne lande.

And Amasiah sayde unto Amos: Get the hence (thou that canst se so well) and see in to the land of Iuda: get the there thy tynge and prophete there, and prophete no more at Bethel, for it is the kynge's chapel, & the kynge's court.

Amos answered: and sayde to Amasiah: As for me, I am neyther prophete ne prophetes sonne, but a keeper of cattell. Now as I was bycakyng downe mulberyes, and goyng after the cattell, the Lorde toke me, and sayde unto me: God thy wyse and prophete vnto my people of Israel. And therefore heare thou now the word of the Lorde: Thou sayest: prophete not agaynste Israel, and speake not thyng agaynste the house of Isaac. Wherfore thus sayth the Lorde: Thy wyse shall be despyed in the cite, thy sonnes and daughters shall be slayne with the swerde, and thy lande shall be measured out with the lye. Thou thy selfe shalt dye in an vnclene lande, and Israel shall be byrgen out of his owne countrey.

Agaynste the rulers of Israel. The Lorde shewed me that he will tuler the thynges whiche he hath decreyned agaynste Israel.

The Lorde God shewed me this vision: and beholde, there was a maion towrell somer. And he sayd Amos, what seest thou? I answered: a maion towrell somer frute. Then sayde the Lorde vnto me: the cite commeth vpon my people of Israel, I will no more ouersee them. In that tyme shall the forges of the temple be remoued in to sojorne, sayth the Lorde God. Many bodies shall lye in euery place, and be made for a tyme.

Heare this, O ye that oppresse the poore, and despise the nedre in the lande, sayinge: When will the newe month be gone, that we may sell byraille, and the Sabbath, that we maye haue scarcensse of coine: to make the buyell lesse, and the lye greater? We shall set by false wayghe, that we may get the poore vnder vs with their money, and the nedre also for: yea let vs sell the chaffe for coine.

The Lorde hath sworne agaynste the kyn of Jacob: these wordes of theirs will I not forget. Shall not the land tremble, shall they that dwell therein moune for this? Shall not their destruction come vpon them like a water streame, and flowe ouer them, as the flood of Egypt? At the same tyme (sayth the Lorde God) I shall cause the sunne to go downe at none, and the lande to be darke in the cleare daye. Your byrlees will I turne to sawe, and your songes to mourninge: I will bypge sacke clothe vpon all your backs, and baldnes vpon euery head: yea such a mourninge will I sende them, as is made vpon an onely begotten sonne, and they shall haue a miserable ende.

Beholde, the tyme cometh (sayth the Lorde God) that I shall sende an hunger in to the earth, not the hunger of bread, nor the thyng of water: but an hunger to heare the word of the Lorde: so that they shall goe from the one lee to the other, yea from the founteyne vnto the well, runnyng as byrgens like the wynde of the Lorde, and shall not fynde it. In that tyme shall the saye byrgens and the poung men perishe for thyng: yea euen they that shone in the office of Samaria, and saye: as truly as the God lyueth at Bethaba, these shall fall, and neuer rise vp agayne.

The threatennges agaynste Israel. No man can escape the hande of God.

Some the Lorde standynge vpon the wall, and he sayde: smyte the walle, for that the postes were walle withall. For they countenances shall fall vpon all their heades, and they posterites shall be slayne with the swerde. They shall not flee away, there shall not one of them escape, nor be left.

Though they were byrgen in the hell, my hande shall fetch them from thence: though they hymme by to heauen, yet shall I caste them downe: though they byde them selues vpon the toppes of Carmel, yet shall I seke them out, and bypge them from thence: though they crie downe fro my syghte in to the depe of the see, I shall commaunde the wynde euen there to byrge them: yf they goe before their enemies in to captiuite, then shall I commaunde the swerde there to slay them.

Thus will I set myne eyes vpon them, sayth the Lorde, and not for theyr welth. For when the Lorde God of hostes toucheth a lande, it consumeth awaye, and all they that dwelle therein, muste needs moune: And theyr destruction shall aryse as euerye streame, and runne ouer them as the flood of Egypt.

Behold, hath his dwellynge in heuen, and groundeth his tabernacle in the earth: he that callith the waters of the see, and pouereth them out vpon the playne ground: his name is the Lorde. O ye chyldren of Israel, crye not vnto me, euen as the Moyses, sayth the Lorde: I haue not broughte Israel out of the lande of Egypt, the Philistynes from Captho, and the Sircians from Assy: Beholde, the eyes of the Lorde are vpon the realme that synneth, to roote it out of the earth: heuene deselle I will utterly destroye the house of Jacob sayth the Lorde.

Forso, this I promysse: though I lyfte the house of Israel amonges all nacyns (lyke as they be to lyfte in a syue) yet shall not the smallest grauell stone fall vpon the earth: but all the wicked doers of my people, that lye: thus, the plage is not so nye, to come so hastily vpon vs: those shall perishe with the swerde.

At that tyme will I buyde agayne the tabernacle of David, that is fallen downe, and geode by his gappes: and I will what is broken, I will repaie it: yea I will buyde it agayne, as it was afore tyme, that eue maye possesse the remmaunt of Eoom: yea, and all such people as sail vpon my name with them, sayth the Lorde, whiche doye these thynges.

Beholde, the tyme cometh (sayth the Lorde) that the plowman shall ouertake the mower, and the reeder of shepes hym that soweth seed. The mountaynes shall droppe sweete wyne, and the hylls shall be fruitful, and I will tounne the captiuite of my people of Israel: they shall repaie the waste ctytes, and haue them in possession: they shall plant bynerardes, and bynke the wine chere of: they shall make gardens, and entoye the frutes of them. And I will plante them vpon theyr owne grounde, so that I will neuer roote them out, agayne to theyr land whiche I haue gauen them, sayth the Lorde God.

This is the byson
that was shewed vnto Abdi: Thus hath heroe
Lorde God spoken vnto Edom: We haue herd of the Lorde that there is an imballage sent amonges the heathen:
Yea, let vs asyle and flee agaynste them. Beholde, I will make the small amonge the heathen, so that thou shalt be utterly despyed. The pyde of thyne herte hath lyfte the vp, thou that dwelled in the strong holdes of stone, and had made the an hye seate: Thou sayd in thyne herte: Who shall caste me downe to the ground? But though thou wentest by as hye as the Eagle, and made thy nest aboute amonge the litters: yet wolde I plucke the downe frome thence. If the thunes and robbers came to the by nyght, thou takynge thy rest, wolde they not steale, till they had enoughe? If the grape gatherers came vpon the, wolde they not leaue the some grapes? But howe shall they reape Esau, and take oute his treasures?

Yea, the men that were sworne vnto the shall byrue the oute of the borders of thyne owne lande. They that be sworne at one with the, shall discorde the and overcome the: Euen they that eate thy byerd shall betraye the or eue thou perceyue it. Shall not I of the same tyme destroye all the wise men at Edom, and those that haue understandinge frome the mount of Esau? Thy gyantes, O Theman, shall be asrayde, for thou wert the laughter they shall be all ouerthrowen vpon the mount of Esau. Shame shall come vpon the, for the malice that thou shewedst to thy brother Jacob: yea for euermore shalt thou perishe, and that bycause of the tyme when thou didst let thy selfe agaynste him, euen when the enimies caried awaye his holle, and when the alpautes came in at his portes, and cast torres vpon Ierusalem, a thou thy selfe wast as one of them.

Thou shalt no more se the daye of thy bio-thy, thou shalt no more beholde the cure of his captiuitie, thou shalt no more reioyse ouer the children of Iuda, in the daye of their deliuacion, thou shalt triumphe no more in thyne of their trouble. Thou shalt no more come in at the gates of my people, in the tyme of their decay, thou shalt not se their misery in the daye of their fall.

Thou shalt sende oute no man agaynste their holle, in the daye of their abidinge: neither shalt thou stande waytinge any more at the corners of the Arctes, to murder such as are fledde, or to take them prisoners, that remayne in the daye of their trouble.

For the daye of the Lorde is hard by vpon all the heathen. Yke as thou hast done, so shalt thou be dealt withall: yea, thou shalt be rewarded euen vpon thyne head.
For yke as thou hast drunken vpon myne boyle byll, so shall all heathen drynke con-spually: yea, drynke shall they, and swa-lowe vp, so that ye shall be, as though ye had neuer ben.

But vpon the mounte Syon, there shall a remnant escape: these shall be holy, and the house of Jacob shall possesse euen those that had them selues afore in possession. More-ouer, the house of Jacob shall be a fyre, the house of Joseph a flame, and the house of Esau shall be the floure, whiche they shall tradle and consume, so that nothinge shall be left of the house of Esau, for the Lorde himselfe hath sayd it.

They of the South shall haue the mount of Esau in possession, and loke what they vpon the ground, that shall the Philistines haue: the playne feldees shall Ephraim & Maria possesse: and the mountaynes of Ga-lad shall Beniamin haue. And the holle shall be the chyldre of Israels prisoners. Now what so theyd from Canaan vnto Zarephath, and in Sepharad, that shall be vnder the subiection of Ierusalem: and the cyties of the South shall enserpe it. Thus they that escape vpon the hyll of Syon, shall go vp to puny the mounte of Esau,
and the kyngdome shall be the Lordes.

THE BOKE OF THE PROPHETE
IONAS.

Of the sighte of Ionas when he was sent to Nine. A tempest aroose, and calld him in the in his byobedience.

CAPL.

I.

The worde of the Lorde came vnto Ionas the sonne of Amithai, sayinge: Arise, and get the to Ninine that great citye, & preache vnto them, howe that their wickednesse is come vnto me. And Ionas made him redye to go vnto Tharsh from the presence of the Lorde, and gat him to Joppa, where he found a shippe readye for to go vnto Tharsh. So he payde his fare, & went aborde, that he mighte go with them vnto Tharsh, from the presence of the Lorde. But the Lorde hurled a great wynde in to the see, and there was a myghty tempest in the see, so that the shippe was in perill of gorynge in peces. Then the mariners were asrayde, and cryed euery man vnto his god: and the goods that were in the shippe, they cast in to the see to lighten it of them. But Ionas gat hym vnder the batches, where he layde him downe and slept.

So the master of the shippe came to him and sayd vnto him, why sleepest thou? Up, call vnto thy God: yf God (happily) wil thinke vpon vs, that we perishe not. And they sayd one to another: come, let vs cast lottes, that we may knowe for whose cause we are thus troubled. And so they caste lottes, and the lot fell vpon Ionas.

Then said they vnto him: tel vs for whose cause we are thus troubled? what is thyne occupation? whence comest thou? what country man art thou, and of what nation?
He answered them: I am an Ebryne, and I fear the Lorde God of heuen, whiche made both the see and drye lande. Then were the men exceedingly asrayde, and sayde vnto hym: why hast thou done this? (for they knewe that he was fled from the presence of the Lorde, by-cause he had tolde them) and sayd moreover vnto him: What shouldest thou do vnto the, that the see maye cease from troublinge vs? (for the see wrought and was troublous) he answered them: Take me and cast me in to the see, so shall I let you be in rest: for I wote, it is for my sake, that this great tempest is comme vpon you.

Then they arose, the men assayed with rowing to drynge the shippe to lande, but it wolde not be, because the see wrought so, and was so troublous agaynste them. Wherefore they arose vnto the Lorde, and sayd: O Lorde, let us not perishe for this mans death, neyther laye thou innocent bloude vnto our charge, for thou, O Lorde, hast done euen as thy pleasure was.

So they toke Ionas and cast him in to the see, and the see left sayng. And the men feared the Lorde exceedingly, doinge sacrifices and makinge vowes vnto the Lorde.

Ionas is swallowed of a whale. The prayer of Ionas.

CAPL.

II.

But the Lorde prepared a great fysh to swallowe vp Ionas. So was Ionas in the belly of the fish, thre dayes and thre nigh-tes. And Ionas prayed vnto the Lorde his God out of the fysh, and said: In my trouble I called vnto the Lorde, and he herde me: out of the belly of hell I cried, and thou per-dest my voyce. Thou haddest caste me downe depe in the miodes of the see, and the floude compassed me about: yea all thy waues and roules of water toerced ouer me, I thoughte that I had ben cast awaye oute of thy sighte:
but I will yet agayne loke towards the holy temple.

The waters compassed me, eue to the very soule: the depe laye about me, and the weedes were twyned about myne heed. I went downe to the bottome of the helles, and was barred in with erth for euer. But thou, O Lorde my God, hast brought vp my lyfe agayne out of corruption. When my soule synned withi-ne me, I thought vpon the Lorde, and my prayer came in vnto the, euen in to the holy temple.
They that holde of vayne vanities will for-saake his mercy. But I will do the sacrifice of the voyce of thanksgyng, and will paye that I haue vowed: for thy saluation commeth of the Lorde. And the Lorde spake vnto the fysh, and it cast out Ionas agayne vpon the drye lande.

Ionas is sende agayne to Ninine. The repentance of the kyng of Ninine.

CAPL.

III.

Then came the worde of the Lorde vnto Ionas agayne, sayinge: vp & get the to Ninine that great cytye, and preache vnto them the preaching whiche I had the. So Jonas arose, and went to Ninine at the Lordes comaundement. Ninine was a great cytye vnto God, namely of thre dayes iourney.

And Ionas went to, & entred in to the cytye: eue a dayes iourney, and cryed, saying: There are yet xl dayes, and then shall Ninine be ouer-throwen. And the people of Ninine byleued God, and proclaimed fasting, and arrayed the selu s in sackcloth, as wel the great as the smal of them. And the tidynge came vnto the kyng of Ninine, whiche arose out of his seate, & did his apparell of, and put on sackcloth, and sat him downe in ashes.

And it was cryed and commaunded in Ninine, by the auctorite of the kyng and his lordes sayinge: Let that nerther man nor beest, oxe or shepe eate ought at all, and that they nerther sede, ne drynke water, but put on sackcloth both men and beest, a cry mightily unto God: yea so that every man turne from his evil waye, & from the wickednesse that he hath in hand.

Who can tell? God may turne, and repent and cease fro his fierce wrath, that we perish not. And when God sawe these thynges, how they turned from their wicked wayes, he repented on the evil which he sayd he woulde do unto them, and did it not.

Jonas is repoynd of God.

CAPL.

IIII.

Therfore Jonas was sore discontent and angry. And he prayed unto the Lorde, & sayd: O Lorde was not this my saying (I pray the) when I was yet in my countrey? therfore I hated rather to be vnto Tharlis, for I know wel pough that thou art a merciful God, full of compassion, longe suffering, and of great kyndnesse, and repented when I wolde take punishment. And now, O Lorde, take my lyfe fro me (I beseeche the) for I had rather dye then lyue. Then sayde the Lorde: art thou so angry? And Jonas gat him out of the city, and sate him on the east side thereof, and there made him a boother, and sat vnder it in the shadowe till he might see what shoulde chaunce vnto the city.

And the Lorde God prepared a hynde by which sprang by ouer Jonas, that he might haue shadowe about his heed to deliuer him out of his payne. And Jonas was exceeding glad of the wynde bynde. But upon the next morow against the spring of the day, the Lorde ordeyned a wynde, which made the wynde bynde, so that it withered awaye. And when the sunne was up, God prepared a feruent East wynde: and the sunne bet ouer the head of Jonas that he saynted agayne, and wished vnto his soule, that he might dye, and sayde: It is better for me to dye, then to lyue. And God sayd vnto Jonas: Set thou so angry for the wynde bynde? And he said: yea, very angry am I, euen vnto death. And the Lorde sayd: thou hast compassion vpon a wynde bynde, wherof thou hast knowledg no labour, ne makst it grow: which sprang by in one night, and perished in an other, and wold not I then haue compassion vpon Ninus that great city, wherin there are aboute an hundred and twenty thousand persons, that knowe not thy right hande frome thy left, besyde moche cattell?

MICHEAS.

Of the destruction of Samaria, because of therr idolatry.

The threatenynge agaynst the synfull people.

CAPL.

I.

CAPL.

II.

This is the word of the Lorde which came vnto Micheas the Bethlathite, in the dayes of Jothan, Achas and Ezechias kinges of Iuda: which was shewed him vnto Samaria and Ierusalem. Heare al ye people marke this well, O earthe, and that therein is: Yea the Lorde God him self be witness amonge you, euen the Lorde from his holpe temple. For why? behold, the Lorde shal go out of his place, and come downe, and treade vpon the hygh things of the earth. The mountaynes shal consume vnder him, and the hilles shal cleaue asunder: lyke as wax is burned at the fyre, and as the waters runne downwarde. And al this shal be for the wickednesse of Jacob, & the synnes of the house of Israel.

But what is the wickednesse of Jacob? Is not Samaria? Which are the high places of Iuda? Is not Ierusalem? Therefore I shal make Samaria an heape of stones in the feild to lay about the vineyard: her stones shal I cast in to the valley, and discouer her foundations. Al her images shal be broken downe, and all her mannynges shal be bent in the fyre: yea all her Idols will I destroye: for why they are gathered out of the byre of an hore, and into an hores byre shal they be turned agayne. Wherfore I will mourne and make lamentacion, bare and naked will I go: I will mourne like the dragons, and take mourning as the Churches: for their wound is past remedy: And why? it is come in to Iuda and hath touched the port of my people at Ierusalem alreadye. Wepe not, lest they at Beth perceyue it.

Thou at Beraphtia, walke thy selfe in the bud and almes. Thou that dwellest at Sepht, get the hence with shame. The proude shal haue no more for very sorowe: & why? her neighbour shal take from her what she hath. The rebellious cite hopeth, & it shal not be so euell: but for al that, the plague shal come from the Lorde, euen into the porte of Ierusalem. The great nople of the charrettes shal leave them: that dwell at Lachis, which is an occasion of the synne of the daughter of Zion, for in came by the wickednes of Israel. Yea she sent her couriers into the lande of Beth.

The courses of Iudas will discerne the kinges of Israel. And as for the (O thou that dwellest at Sepht) I shal bringe a pestilence vnto the, and the plague of Israel shal reach vnto Sepht. Make the balde, & haue the balde as an Eagle for they shal be caught awaye captiue from the.

O wnto them, that ymagyn to doo harme, and deuyse vngenerousnes vnto their breddes, to persourne it in the clere daye: for their power is agaynst God. When they couet land, they take it by violence, they rob men of their houses.

Thus they oppresse a man for his house, & euery man for his heritage. Therefore thus sayth the Lorde: Behold agaynst this house holde haue I deuyled a plague, wherof ye shal not plucke your neckes: Ye shal no more go so proudly, for it will be a perillous tyme. In that daye shal this terme be bled, and a mournynge shal be made ouer you on this maner: We be bitterly desolate, the porcyon of my people is translated. When will he part vnto vs the land, that he hath taken fro vs?

Nevertheless there shal be no man to be- uide the thy porcyon in the congregation of the Lorde. Yea, holde your tounge (say they) It shal not fall vpon this people, we shal not come so to confusyon, sayth the house of Jacob? Is the spirite of the Lorde so cleane awaye? or is he so mynded? Truth it is, my wordes are trewly vnto the that I yue righte but my people doth the contrarye, therfore must I take parte agaynst them: for they take awaye both roote and cloke frome the symple.

Ye haue turned your selues to fighte, the women of my people haue ye shot out from their good houses, and taken away my excellent giftes fro their chyldre. Wipe get you hence for here shal ye haue no rest.

Because of their Idolatrye they are corrupt, and shall miserably perishe. If I were a swiftp fellowe and a preacher of lyes, & told the that they myght lye bybyng & holynge and be broken: O that were a Prophet for this people. But I will gather the in dede, O Jacob, and diue the remnant of Israel altogether I shal carry them one with an other as a flocke in the folde, and as the cattell in their stables, that they maye be disquyeted of other men. Who so breaketh the gappe, he shal go before. They shal breake by the port and go in and out at it. Their kinge shal go before them, and the Lorde shal be vpon the heade of them.

Agaynst the tyrannye of pyrgnes, and false prophetes.

CAPL.

III.

Hear, O ye heades of the house of Jacob, and ye leaders of the house of Israel: Shulde not ye knowe, what were lawfull and right? But ye hate the good, & loue the euell: ye plucke of mens shynnes, & the

the flabe from their bones: ye eate the flesh of my people, flaye of their skynne: ye breake their bones, ye chop them in peces as it were into a cauldre, and as flesh into a pot. Some tyme shall come, that when they call on to the Lord, he shall not heare them, but hide his face from them, because that they have their owne imaginations they have dealt so wickedly.

B And as concerning the Prophetes that differre my people, thus the Lord sayth agaynst them: When they have any thing to saye upon, then they praye that all shall be well: but if a man put not some thing in to their mouths, they praye of warre agaynst him.

E Therefore your vision shall be turned to nought, and your prophesying to darkness. The tunc shall go downe out of those Prophetes, and the daye shall be darke unto the. When shall the vision seeme to be ashamed, and the soothsayers confounded: yea they shall saye, all the people of them, to stoppe their mouths, for they have not Gods word. As for me, I am full of strength, and of the spirit of the Lord, full of iudgement and boldnesse: so shewe the house of Jacob their wickednesse, and the house of Israel their ignominy.

D I heare this ye rulers of the house of Jacob, and ye iudges of the house of Israel: ye that abhorre the thinge that is iust, and mye it as the thinge that is straight: ye that buyde by silver with bloud, and Jerusalem with beinge wronge. O ye iudges, ye geue sentence for gyftes: O ye prestes, ye teache for lye: O ye prophetes, ye prophete for money. Yet will they be taken as those that holde upon God, and saye: Is not the Lord among vs? Yea, there can no mysfortune happen vs. Therefore shall Zion (for your sakes) be plowed like a feld, Jerusalem shall become a grape of thornes, and the hyll of the temple shall be turned to an hye wood.

Of the callinge of the Gentyles, and conversion of the Jewes.

CAPL IIII.

B ut in the latter dayes it will come to passe that the hyll of the Lords house shall be set by hyer then any mountayns or hilles: yea the people shall praye unto it, and the multitude of the Gentyles shall haue them thither, sayinge: Come, let vs goe up to the hyll of the Lord, and to the house of the God of Jacob, that he may teache vs his waye, and that we may walke in his pathes. For the lawe shall come out of Sion, and the worde of the Lord from Jerusalem, and shall geue sentence amonge the multitude of the heathen, and restore the people of Ierusalem: so that of theyr swordes they shall make plowshares, and of theyr speeres.

B One people shall not lyfte up a swerde agaynst an other: yea, they shall no more learne to fyght: but euery man shall sit under his vineyard, and under his figge, and no man shall feare him a waye: for the mouth of the Lord of hostes hath spoken it. Therefore where as all the people have walked euery man in the name of his owne God, we will walke in the name of our God for euer and euer. At the same tyme sayth the Lord, will I gather by the lame and the outcast, and such as I haue chaunced: and will geue them vnto the lame, I make of the outcast a greare people, and the Lord himselfe shall be their kinge vpon the mount Zion, from this tyme forth for euermore. And thus the Lord sayth, thou stronge holde of the daughter Zion, vnto the which cometh euen the lordship and kingdom of the daughter Ierusalem. Why then art thou now so drepe? is there no kinge in theare thy counsellors awaye that thou arte so payned, as a woman in her tearyng? And now (O thou daughter Zion) be stronge, let it grene as a vine, labouryng with childe: for now must thou get the out of the cye, and dwell vpon the playn feld: yea vnto Babylon shalt thou go, there shalt thou be deliuered, & there the Lord shall loose the from the hand of thine enemyes.

Nowe also are there many people gathered together agaynst the, sayinge: what shall be done vnto this? what shall we do vnto this? But they knowe not the thoughts of the Lord, they vnderstand not his counsel, that shall gather them together as the sheepe in the barne.

Therefore get the by, O thou daughter Zion, and thyselfe out the cove: for I will make thy home yron, and thy ciuies brasse, that thou mayst geue many people: thine goodnes shall thou appropriate vnto the Lord, and thine substaunce vnto the ruler of the world.

Of the destruction of Jerusalem.

CAPL X.

A fter that thou be robbed thy selfe, O thou daughter Zion, be robbed: they shall laye siege agaynst vs, and they shall luge of Ierusalem with a rodde vpon the cheeke. And thou Bethleem Ephrata, art lyke as amonge the thousandes of Iude, but of the shall come but one, which shall be the go: uernour in Ierusalem: whose out goynge shall bene from the begynnyng, and from euerlastyng.

In the meane whyle he shall geue them for a season, vntill the tyme that he (which shall beare) haue bozme: then shall the remnant of his brethren be charged vnto the child of Ierusalem. He shall stande fast, and geue sode in the strength of the Lord, and in the bynde of the name of the Lord his God: when they be converted, he shall be magnified vnto the farthest partes of the world.

Then shall there be peace, so that the Assirian maye come into our lande, and make in our houses. We shall bringe by sheepe shepherdes and egge pysses vpon them.

we shall subdue the lande of Assur with weapons, and the lande of Nimrod with their naked weapons. Thus shall he deliuer vs from the Assirian, when he cometh within our lande, and setteth his fote within our borders.

And the remnant of Jacob shall be amogges the multitude of people, as the dew of the Lord, and as the droppes vpon the grashe, that sayeth for no man, and waiteth of no daye. Yea the residue of Jacob shall be amogges the Gentyles, and the multitude of people, as the iron amonge the brasse, of the warre, and as the Lyons whelp amonge a flocke of shepe: whiche when he goeth thow, he treadeth downe, teareth in peces, and there is no man that can helpe. Thine hande shall be lyfte by vpon thine enemyes, and all thine aduersaries shall perishe.

D The tyme shall come also, sayth the Lord, that I will take thine horses from the, and destroye thy charrettes. I will breake downe the cyties of thy lande, and ouerthrowe all thy stronge holdes. All wickedcraftes will I cutte out of thine hande, there shall no more sorceryes be within the. Thine Idols and thine Images will I destroye out of the, so that thou shalt no more bowe thy selfe vnto the workes of thine owne handes. Thy grones will I plucke up by the rootes, and breake downe the citis. Thus will I be avenge of the, vpon all the heathen that will not heare.

In exhortation to heare the iudgement against Ierusalem, and to heare the voice of the Lord.

CAPL VI.

H earken now what the Lord sayth: Reproue the mountaynes, and let the hylls heare thy voyce. O heare the prophesyinge of the Lord, ye mountaynes, and ye myghty foundations of the earth: for the Lord will reprove his people, and reasen with Israel: O my people, what haue I done vnto the? or wherein haue I hurt the? geue me answere. Because I brought the fro the lande of Egypt, and deliuered the out of the house of bondage? Because I made Moyses, Aaron and Miriam to lede the? Remember (O my people) what Balach king of Moab had imagined agaynst the, and what an swere that Balaam the sonne of Beor gaue him, from Sethim vnto Baigall, that he maye knowe the louinge kindnesse of the Lord.

What acceptable thinge shall I offer vnto the Lord? Shall I bowe my knee to the high God? Shall I come before him with byrnt offerings, and with calves of a yere olde? Hath the Lord a pleasure in manye thow sande lammes, or innumerable streames of oyle? Shall I geue my firstborne for mine offeringe, and the frute of my body for the sin of my soule? I will shewe the, O man, what is good, and what the Lord requirith of the:

namely, to do right, to haue pleasure in louinge kindnesse, to be lowlye, and to walke with thy God: that thou mayst be called a clepe of the Lord, and that thy name may be right out of the. Heare (O ye tribes) who would els geue you suche warnyng? Shal I not be displeased, for the vniuersall good in the houses of the wicked, and because the measure is mynished? O shal I multiplye the false balauces, and the bagge of disceytfull weyghtes, among those that be full of cythes vniuersally gotten: where the citisyns deale with falschod, speake lyes, & haue disceytful tungen in their mouthes?

Therefore I will take in hande to punyssh the, & to make the desolate, because of thy synnes. Thou shalt rate, and not haue ynough: yea thou shalt bringe thy selfe downe. Thou shalt lie, but not escape: and those that thou wilt sell saue, will I deliuer to the sword. Thou shalt sow, but not reape: thou shalt presse oute olyues, but oyle shalt thou not haue to anoynte thy selfe withall: thou shalt treade oute sweete muste, but shalt drynke no wine. Ye kepe the ordynances of Amos, and all the customes of the house of Achab: ye followe their pleasures, therefore will I make the waste, and cause thy inhabytors to be abhorred: O my people: and thus shalt thou beare thine owne shame.

In complaynt of the lytel nombre of the rightous. Agaynst the truthe ought we not to holde with our greates frendes.

CAPL VII.

W hat is me: I am become as one, that goeth a gleanynge in the harvest. There are no more grapes to eate, yet wolde I sayne (with al my heart) haue of the best frute. There is not a godly man vpon earth, there is not one rightous amonge men. They laboure all to web bloude, and euery man hunteth his brother to death: yet they saye they do well when they do euill. As the prince wil so sayth the iudge: that he maye doo him a pleasure agayne. The greates man speaketh what his heart desireth: and the hearers allowe him. The best of them is but as a chyld, and the most rightous of them is but as a byer in the hedge. But when the daye of thy preachers cometh, that thou shalt be dyspyred: then shall they be walked away. Let no man blyue his frend, ne put his confidence in a pryue. Kepe the porte of thy mouth, lest he that lyeth in thy bosome, for the sonne shall put his father to dishonour, the daughter shall lyse agaynst her mother, the daughter in lawe agaynst her mother in lawe: & a mans foes shall be euen they of his owne house.

Therefore I will loke by vnto the Lord, I will patiently abyde God my sauyour: O my God shall heare me, O thou enemye of myne reioyse not at my fall, for I shall gette by agayne: and though I ly in darkness, yet the Lord is my light. I will beare the punysshment punishment of the Lorde for whp, I haue offended him: (pl he sit in iudgement vpon my cause, & se that I haue ryght. he will bunge me forth to the lyght, & I shall se his rygh-tousnesse.

E He that is myne enemye shall loke vpon it, and be confounded, whiche now sayth.
Where is thy Lorde God? Whose eyes shall beholde her, when she shall be troden downe as the clay in the stretes. The tyme will come that the gappes shall be made vp, and I shall go abrode: and at that tyme shall they come vnto the, from Assur vnto the stronge egyptes, and from the stronge cities vnto the ryuer: from the one see, to the other, from the one mountayne to the other.

Notwithstandinge the lande must be washed, because of them, that dwell therein, and for the feutes of their owne Imaginations.
Therefore seeth the people with the rodde, the floske of thynne herirage whiche dwell besote in the wodde: that they maye be led vpon the mounte of Charnell, Balam, & Galaad as afore tyme. Macerous thynges will I do vnto them, lyke as when they came out of Egypt. This shall the heithen se, and be ashamed for all their power, so that they shall laye their hande vpon theyr mouth, and stoppe their eares. They shall lyche the duke lyke a serpent, & as the wormes of the earth, that tremble in their holes. They shall be asfraid of the Lorde oure God, and they shall fear the.

Where is there such a God as thou? that pardoneth wickednesse, and forgiveth the offences of the remnant of thine herirage.
He keepeth not his wrath for ever. And whp? his desire is to haue compassio: he shall turne agayne, and be mercifull to vs: he shall put downe oure wickednesse, and caste all oure synnes into y^e bottom of the see. Thou shalt hepe thy truste with Jacob, and thy me-cy for Abraham, lyke as thou haue sworne vnto our fathers longe ago.

PROPHETE
NAHV. M.

Of the destruction of Samaria, and of the destruction of Irael.

CAPL

Ihis is the heuie burthen of Samaria, whiche Nabum of Elchos dyd write as he sawe it. The Lorde is a giante God and a taker of vengeance: he is a taker of vengeance: he is the Lorde, and inuincible. The Lorde taketh vengeance of his enemy, and restreth his pleasure for his aduersaries. The Lorde suffereth longe, he is of greates power, and so inuincible that he leaueth no man faultlesse before him.
The Lorde goeth forth in tempest, and stormy weather, the cloudes are the dust of his fete.
When he reproveth the see, he dyeth it vp, & turneth all the foudes to drye lande. Balam is desolate, Charnell and the pleasure of Li-banus wasteth awaye. The mountaynes rebyle for him, the hilles consume. At the sighte of him, the earth quaketh, & the hole world and all that dwell therein. Who maye endure before his wrath? Or who is habile to abyde his geym displeasure? His anger taketh on lyke fyre, and the hard rocks budge in low-der before him.

Full gracious is the Lorde, and a stronge holde in the tyme of trouble, he knoweth the that put their trust in him: when the foudes cenneth oure, and destroyeth the place, and when the barchementes foloweth vpon his enemies. What do ye praye then agaynst the Lorde on this maner? (Lyd, when he hathe ones made an ende, there shall come no more trouble.) For lyke as the thornes that like together, and as the drye strawe, so shall the vionchardes be consumed together, cum when they be full. There come out of y^e foudes as Imagyn myghtes, & gyne vngreuous con-cell agaynst the Lorde.

Therefore thus sayth the Lorde: Let the be as wel prepared, yea and as many as they can, for they shall be betwene downe, and passe awaye. And as for the, I will beare the, but not utterly destroye the. And nowe will I bryeke his rod, from thy back, and bryeke the bondes in foudes. But the Lorde hath gyuen a comandement concerning the, that there shall come no more febe of thy name. The carued and casten Images will I rote out of y^e house of the God. Thy grace shall I prepare for and thou shalt be confounded.

Of the destruction of the vntowles of the Lydians.

CAPL

Behold, vpon the mountaynes cometh fete of him, that bryngeth good tyden-ges, & prayeth for praye. O Iuda, hope in
the

holp dayes, persourne the promyses: for he shall come no more in the, he is utterly rested out.

The scatterer shall come by agaynst the, & laye siege to the castell. Loke thou wel to the castell, make the loynes strong, arme the self with all thy myght: for the Lorde shall all restore agaynst the glory of Jacob, lyke as the glory of Irael. The destroyers haue broken them downe, and marred the wyne braunches the wyne of his gyanntes glystereth, his men of warre are clothed in purple, his charrettes are as fyre, when he maketh him forward, his archers are well decked and trimmed. The charrettes rolle vpon the stretes, & bette in the high wayes. They are to loke vpon lyke cressets of fyre, and go swifly, as the hyndes. When he doth but warn his gyanntes, they fall in their aray, and fally they elpe by the walles: yea the en-gins of warre are prepared a lode. The water portes shall be opened, and the hinges power shall fall. The gyene her selfe shall be led awaye captiue, and her gentylwomen shall surrender as the houses, and gone withun their fowles. Samaria is lyke a pole full of water, when they shall be fayne to se. Stande, stande, (shall they crye) and there shall not one turne back. A waye with the silke, awaye with the golde: for there is no ende of treasure. There shall be a multitude of all maner of ornaments. Thus must we be spoyled ruined and cleane depreded out: that their ber-tes may be melted away, their knees tremble all their loynes be weak, & their faces blacke as a pot.

Where is now the dwelling of the Lyons and the pasture of the Lyons whelpes: where the lion and the Lyons whelpes wet with the whele pre, and no man leaped them away? But the Lyons whelpes enough for his ponge ones, and broued for his whelpes: he spoiled his den with his praye, and his dwelling place with his praye. Beholde, I will laye the, sayth the Lorde of hostes, and will let fyre vpon the charrettes, & they shall smoke with all, and the swarthe shall deuoure the ponge Lyons. I will make an ende of the spoy-les from oute of the earth, and the voyce of the messengers shall no more be heard.

Of the fall of Samaria.

CAPL

III.

Who to the bland churche crye, whiche is all full of lyres and rabbery, and will not leane of frome ransoming, there a man maye here stouryng, ransoming, the wyke of wyles, the cryng of the hostes, and the rolling of the charrettes. There the hostes were get by with naked swordes, and glyste-ring speares: There lyeth a multytude of fyre, and a greates heape of deade bodies: there is no ende of deade corpes, yea men fall vpon theyr bodies: And that for the greates and manyfolde holodom, of the sayre and benyfull barlot: whiche is a mactresse of wickednesse, yea and selleth the people thorogh her holodom, and the narrows theore her with chafte.

Beholde, I will vpon the (sayth the Lorde of hostes) and will pull the clothes ouer thy heade: that I maye shewe the nakednesse amonge the heithen, and thy name amonge kingdomes, I will caste duce vpon the, to make y^e be abhorred, & a gasing stock: yea al they that loke vpon the, shall starte backe, & say: Samaria is destroyed.

Who will haue piete vpon the, where shall I like out to comfort the? Art thou better the the greates cite of Alexandria? that laye in waters, and had the waters rounde aboute it: whiche was strongly fenced and walled with the see? Ethiopia and Egypt were her stronge, and that exceeding greates aboue measures. Affrica and Libia were her helpes: yet was she dyrted awaye and brought into captiue: her ponge children were swypt downe at the heed of euery strete, the lottes were call for the moste surpysent men in her, and all her myghty men were bounde in chaynes. Euen so shall y^e also be dyrted, and dyde thy selfe, and seke some helpe agaynst thyne enemye. All thy stronge cyties shall be lyke syttees with ripe frages: whiche when a man maketh, they shall fall in to the mouth of the eater.

Behold, thy people within the are but women: the portes of thy lande shall be opened vnto thynne enemies, and the fyre shall beuote thy barres. Dism water now agaynst thou be helleged, make by thy stronge holdes go in to the claps, tempe the moster, make along byrke: yet the fyre shall consume the,
the swarthe shall destroye the, yea as the locutt dord, so shall it eate the vp. It shall fall heuely vpon the as the vionches, yea as the heuely shall it fall vpon the, such as the grete hoppers. Thy marchauntes haue bene nombyed with the dardes of heuen: but now shall they spye abrode as the locusts, & see their waye: Thy loynes are as the grete hoppers, & thy capteynes as the multytude of grete ho-pers: whiche when they be cold, remayne in y^e hedges: but when the Sunne is by, they fle away, and no man can tel where they are become. Thy shepherdes are a shepe (O kinge of Assur) thy workes are layde downe: the people is scattered abrode vpon the moun-taynes and no man gathereth them together agayne. Thy woud can not be byd, thy plage is to sore. All thy that heart this of the shall clappe their handes ouer the.
For what is he, to whome y^e hast not alwaye bene doyng hurt.

Lorde, when I

woorde that thou hast sayd, I have heard in myn ear, O Lorde, and when the time cometh, I shall declare it. In thy very wrath thou
thynkest vpon mercy. God cometh from the mount of Sion, & the help one from the mount of Zion.

His glorye conereth the heavens, and the earth is full of his prayse. His wynde is as the floure, and brames of lyghte goo oute
of his mouth,
there is his power vpon the waters. He maketh the earth to quake, and burnyng
refrettes go forth before him, and burnyng
refrettes go

him. He standeth and masureth the earth. He looketh, and the people
consume awaye, the mountaynes
of the world
fall downe
under, and the hilles are fayned to bowe
the floure, for his goynges
are euery-
where.

I sawe that the paupers of the world
were, and the tenters of the lande of Babylon were dried for weepnesse. Wilt thou not an-
grye, O Lorde,
in the waters?
Was not thy wrath in that floudes, and thy displeasure in the sea? Yes, when thou
sattest vpon thyne throne, and when thy charettes had the victory. Thou openedst
the bowe openly,
lyke as thou haddest promysed

with an othe cruel. Selah.

Thou
dost denye
the waters of the earth. When the mountaynes
sawe the,
they were afraid, the water streame
went awaye:
the depe made a noyse at the lpyng up of thyne hande.
The sunne
and moone remayned
still in their habitation.
Thyne arrowes
went out
glistering,
and thy speere as
the floure of the lightening.
Thou treadest
downe the lande in thyne anger, and dost crush the heathen
in thy displea-

camest forth to helpe thy people, to helpe thyne
anoynted.
Thou
inuested downe the head, the house of the ungodly,
and discovered his foundations:
even vnto
the necke of
hym. Selah.

Thou
cursedst

Thou
makest

great waters.
When
I heare
this,
my voys therof,

my bones cor-rup, I am afraid where
I
stande.
O
that
might

that
might goe by vnto our people, which are all prepared.

For
the

shall not be grene,
and
the vynes
shall beare
no fruite.
The

but loste,
and
the

the shepe
shall be taken out of
the foldes,
and there
shall be no

as for me,
I
will be glad in
the Lorde,
and will reioyce

The Lorde
God

THE BOKE OF THE PROPHECYE SOPHONY.

Threatenings agaynst Iuda and Jerusalem, because of their Idolatry.

CAPL.

I.

This is the worde of the Lorde, whiche came vnto Sophony the sonne of Chusi, the sonne of Gedolai, the sonne of Amariah the sonne of Sechiah in the time of Iosiah the sonne of Amon kynge of Iuda.

Ill. Reg. xxi.
xxv.

I will gather vp all thynges in the lande (sayth the Lorde) I will gather vp man and beest. I will gather vp the foules in the ayre, and the fyshes in the see (to the greates decaye of the wycked) and will vtterly destroye the men oute of the lande, sayth the Lorde.
I will stretch oute myne hande vpon Iu-da, and vpon all suche as dwell at Ierusalem.

Deut. xxi. b
Jerem. x. b

Thus will I roote oute the remnant of Baal from this place, and the names of the Remourys and Priestes: yea, and suche as vpon their house toppis worship and bowe them selues vnto the hoste of heuen. whiche swore by the Lorde, and by their Malchom also: whiche made a backe frame the Lorde, and neyther seke after the Lorde, ne regarde
 hym.

Ill. Reg. xxi. b
Jerem. xxi. b

We will at the presence of the Lorde God for the daye of the Lorde is at hande: yea the Lorde hath prepared a floure offeringe, and called his gesses thereto, and thus will it happen in the daye of the Lordes floure offeringe: I will vylle the pynces, the knyghtes chyldre, and all suche as weare straunge cloyng. In the the same daye also will I vylle all those that recade ouer the thesholde so proude, whiche sell their Lordes house with robbery and falschod.

At the same tyme (sayth the Lorde) there shall be herbe a great crye from the shypporte, and an howlyng from the other porte, and a great mutther from the hilles. howe ye that dwell in the myll, for all the marchant people are gone, and all they that were laden w-spice, are roted out.

At the same tyme will I seke thorow Ieru-salem with lancenes, and vispe them that continue in theyr dyegges, and laye in theyr herbes: Thus, the Lorde will doo neyther good, nor euill. Theyr goodes shall be spoy-led, and theyr houses layde waste: they shall burye houses, and not dwell in them: they shall plante vineyardes, but not drynke the wyne thereof. For the great daye of the Lorde is at hande, it is hard by, and cometh on a pace. For the tynnynges of the Lordes daye, then shall the graunt crye out: for that daye is a daye of watre, a daye of trouble and heynesse, a daye of vltter destruction and miserie, a darke and glomyng daye, a cloudyng and stormyng daye, a daye of the noyse of trumpettes and shawmes, agaynst the strong cities and highe towres.

I will bringe the people into such a des-tion, that they shall go about like blind men because they haue sinned agaynst the Lorde.
Their bloude shall be shed as the duste, and their bodies as the myze. Neither shall they uerne their golde: shall be hable to deliuer them in the wordfull daye of the Lorde, but the hole lande shall be consumed the waye the fye of his gelloupye: for he shall consume with cleane vndoance of all theyr that dwell in the lande.

The moueth to retorne to God, prophesying vnto the one destruction, and to the other deliuerance.

CAPL.

II.

Come together and gather you. O seruante people: of the thinge go forth that is concluded, and of the tyme be past awaye as the dawe: of the fearefull maye of the Lorde come vpon you, yea of the daye of the Lordes soke displeasure, come vpon you. Seke the Lorde all ye mache herted vpon earth, ye that make after his iudgemente: sekerightfullnesse, the holpnesse: that ye maye be defended in the wofull daye of the Lorde. For Gaza shall be destroyed, and Ascalon shall be layd waste.
They shall call out Aloud at the noone day, and Accaron shall be plucked by the re-
tes.

Who vnto you that dwell vpon the seacoast ye murderous people: the waste of Iuda shall come vpon you. O Canaan thou lande of the phylistines, I will destroye the, so that there shall no man dwell in the any more: yea as for the seacoost, it shall be herdemens cogges and wyne foldes: yea it shall be a portion for suche as remayne of the house of Iu-da, to fide ther vpon. In the houses of Ieru-salem shall they crye toward night: for the Lorde their God shall vylle them, and turne away their captiuitie. I haue herde the dispyte of Moab, and the blasphemies of the chylde of Ammon howe they haue shamefully in-terted my people, and magnified them selues withen the borders of their lande. Therefore as truly as I lyue (sayth the Lorde of hostes the God of Israel) Moab shall be as So-dome, and Ammon as Gomora: euen vnto thorne hedges, salte pyttis and a perpetuall wylterne.

The residue of my folke shall spoyle the the remnant of my people shall haue them in possession. This shall happen vnto them for their pryde, because they haue deale so shamefully with the Lord of hostes people, and magnified them selues about them.
The Lorde shall be geym vpon them, and destroye all the goodes in the lande. And all the Iles of the heuhen shall worship him vnto man in his place.

Ye Moabians also shall pryncesse with my people.

for ye shall stretch out his hand ouer the South, and destroye Ascalon. As for Minue, he shall make it desolate, drye and waste. The hills and all the beestes of the people shall be in the myddell of it pelicanes and fozkes shall abyde in the bytter podes of it, foules shall sing in the wyndowes, and rauens shall be vpon the balters, for the joybers of Cedre shall be vtterly downe. This is the proude and castell city, that said in her herte: I am, and there is els none. O how is she made so waste that the beastes lye thereon? Who so geth by nether her, and pyneth at her with his fytter.

Therof the gouerners of Ierusalem. Of the wylde of all the Gentyles. I comfote to the reig-nyng of Israel.

CAPL.

III.

In the abominable, spylth and cruel war: which wil not beare, ne be reles-sed. The truth is not in Iuda, neither will she holde her to her God. Her rulers be in her, as forynge spous: her iudges are as beastes in the cleyng, whiche leaue nothing behind them till the moztow. Her Prophets are lyght perians and vnfaithfull men: her gouernors be like the Sanctuaries, and women vnder the pience of the lawe. But the Lorde that dothe no vnryght, was amonges them, euen moztowng shewing them his lawe cleerly, and ceased not. But the vngely wil not lette to be ashamed. Therefore will I rote out this people, and destroye theyr towers: yea and make their Actes so voyde, as men shall go thern. Their cities shall be broken downe, so that no body shall be left, ne dwelle there any more.

I layd vnto them: seate me, and be confide to be reformed, that their dwellinge be not destroyed, and that there happen vnto theym none of these thynges, wherewith I was vispe them. But neuerthelesse, they stande by early to folowe the spylthnesse of their owne yma-ginacions. Therefore ye shall wepe vpon me for the Lorde, vnto the tyme that I stand vnto the: I am determyne to gather the people, and to bringe the kyngdomes together, that I may proue out myne ayre, yea all my wofull displeasure vpon them. For all the world shall be consumed with the fye of my gelloupye. And then will I cleanse the lypes of I people, that they maye euery one call vpon the name of the Lorde, and serue him with one shoulde. Such as I haue subdued, and my chylde also whos I haue reared abrode, shall bring me priestes beyond the waters of Ethiopia.

In that tyme shall thou be no more confident in thyne imaginacions, wherewith thou hast hadt offended me: for I will take awaye the proude borders of thyne honour fro the, so that thou shalt no more triumphe by cause of my holy vyl. In the also will I leaue a small poore symple people, whiche shall trust in the name of the Lorde. The remnant of Israel shall do no wickednesse, nor speke lies: neither shall any discreffull tonge be founde in their moutyes. For they shall be fedow, and take theyr rest, and no man shall make them atrayde. O due thynges, O daughter Syon, be ioyful, O Israel: reioyse and be glad from the hole yert, O daughter Ierusalem: for the Lorde hath taken awaye thy punishment, and turned backe thyne enemyes. The kynge of Israel, euen the Lorde him selfe is with the, so that thou needest no more to feare anye misfortune.

In that tyme it shall be sayd to Ierusalem: seate not, and to Sion: let not thyne eyes be shacke, for the Lorde thy God is with the, it is he that hath power to saue: he hath a speciall pleasure in the, and a marueylous loue towards the: yea he reioyseth ouer the with glanell. Suche as haue ben in heynesse, will I gather together, I take out of thy con-gregacio: yea and the lame and reioyce that hath ben layd vpon the, shall be sarre from the. And so, in that tyme will I destroye all those that vexe the: I will helpe the lame, and gather vp the cait awaye: yea I will get them people and honoure in all landes, where they haue ben put to shame. At the same tyme will I bringe you in,
and at the same tyme will I gather you. I will get you a name and a good repoyte amonge all people
of the earth, when I turne
backe your captiuitie before your eyes,
sayth the Lorde.

In the seconde yere of kinge Darius, in the first moneth, the first daye of the moneth, came the word of the Lorde (by the Prophete Ag-geus) vnto Zorobabel the son of Salathiel the pynce of Iuda, and to Jesus the sonne of Josedeck the hie prier, saying: Thus speaketh the Lorde of hostes, and sayth: This people dothe saye: The tyme is not yet come to buyde vpon the Lorde's house.
Then spake the Lorde by the Prophete Ag-geus, and sayd: Ye your selues can fynd tyme to dwell inyled houses, and shall this house be waste?

Consider now your owne wayes in your herres, sayth the Lorde of hostes: ye sow much but ye bringe litle in: ye eate, but ye haue not ynough: ye drynke, but ye are not filled: ye decke your selues, but ye are not warmed: and ye that earneth any wage, putteth it in a byoken purse.

Thus sayth the Lorde of hostes: Consider your owne wayes in your herres, get you vp to the mountayne, ferce wode, and buyde vpon the house, that it maye be acceptable vnto me, and that I maye dwelle myne house, sayth the Lorde. Ye looked for much, and lo, it is come to lytle: and thought ye byng it home, yet do I bringe it a waye. And why so sayth the Lorde of hostes? Even because that my house is to be waste, and ye see euery man vnto his owne house. Wherefore the he-uen is forbydden to geue you any dewe, and the earth is forbydden to geue you increase.
I haue called for a drouthe, both vpon the lande, and vpon the mountaynes, vpon corne vpon wyne, and vpon oyle, vpon euery thyng that the ground bringeth forth, vpon men and vpon cattell: yea and vpon all handye laboure.

Now when Zorobabel the sonne of Salathiel, and Jesus the sonne of Josedeck the hie prier, with the remnant of the people, heard the voyce of the Lorde theyr God, and the wordes of the Prophete Aggeus (lyke as the Lorde their God had sent him), the people did fear the Lorde. Then Aggeus the Lorde's angell sayd in the Lorde's message vnto the people: I am with you sayth the Lorde. So the Lorde waked by the spyrte of Zorobabel the pynce of Iuda, and the spyrte of Jesus the sonne of Josedeck the hie prier, & the spyrte of the remnant of all the people, that they came and laboured in the house of the Lorde of hostes their God.

The sheweth that the goodnesse of the seconde temple shall exceede the firste, because of the comynge of Christ.

CAPL.

II.

Vpon the xliij. daye of the firste moneth in the seconde yere of kinge Darius, the one and twenty daye of the fourth mo-neth, came the word of the Lorde by the Pro-phete Aggeus, sayinge: Speake to Zorobabel the sonne of Salathiel pynce of Iuda, & to Jesus the sonne of Josedeck the hie prier, and to the residue of the people, say: Who is left amonges you, that sawe this house her first beauty? But what thinke ye now by it? Is it not in your eyes, even as though it were nothing? Howe the lesse be of good chere O Zorobabel (sayth the Lorde) be of good chere, O Jesus thou son of Josedeck be prier:
take good herres vnto you also, all ye people of the lande, sayth the Lorde of hostes, and doe accordynge to the word (for I am with you sayth the Lorde of hostes) lyke as I agreed with you, when ye came oute of the lande of Egypte, and my spyrte shall be amonge you, fear ye not.

For thus sayth the Lorde of hostes: yet ones more will I wake brauen and earth, the see, and the drye lande: yea, I will move all heathen, and the comferte of all heathen shall come, and so will I fill this house with honoure, sayth the Lorde of hostes.
The siluer is myne, and the golde is myne, sayth the Lorde of hostes. Thus the glorye of the last house shall be greater then the first, sayth the Lorde of hostes: and in this place will I gyue peace, sayth the Lorde of hostes.

The xliij. daye of the fourth moneth, in the seconde yere of kinge Darius, came the word of the Lorde vnto the Prophete Ag-geus, sayinge: Thus sayth the Lorde God of hostes: Aske the prieres concerninge the lawe, and saye: yf one beare holpe himselfe in his tote lap, and with his lap doe touche the breed, porage, wyne, oyle, or any other meate: shall he be holpe also? The prieres answered and sayd: No. Then sayd Aggeus: Now yf one beynge defyled by a dead carcase, touche any of these, shall it also be vncleane? The prieres gaue answer and sayd: yea, it shall be vncleane. Then Aggeus answered, and said: even so is this people and this nation before me, sayth the Lorde, and so are all the workes of their handes: yea, and all that they offer is vncleane.

And now (I praye you) consider from this daye forth, and how it hath gone with you also, or euer there was layde our stone vpon an other in the temple of the Lorde, that while ye came to a corne heape of twenty bushels, there were scarce ten: and that when ye came to the wyne presse for to poure oute fifty bottles of wyne, there were scarce thre for I smote you with beat, blasphe and hable flames in all the labours of your handes: yet was there none of you that wolde turne vnto me sayth the Lorde.

CAPL.

I.

In the eyght mo-neth of the seconde yere of kinge Darius, came the word of the Lorde vnto Zachary the son of Barachias, the son of Addo the Prophete sayinge: the Lorde hath bene sore displeased at your fore fathers. And saye thou vnto them: thus sayth the Lorde of hostes. Turne you vnto me (sayth the Lorde of hostes) and I will carne me vnto you, sayth the Lorde of hostes.

Be not ye lyke your fore fathers vnto whom the Prophetes cryed afore tyme, saying: thus sayth the Lorde God of hostes. Turne you from your full wayes, and from your wicked ymaginations. But they wolde not heare, ne regarde me, sayth the Lorde.

What is now become of your fore fathers and the Prophetes? are they yet still alpye?
Yet yd not my wordes and statutes, which I commaunded by my seruantes the Prophetes) touche your fore fathers? Upon this they gaue answer, and said: lyke as the Lorde of hostes deuoted to vnto vs, accordynge to our owne wayes and ymaginations, even so hath he delt with vs.

Upon the xliij. daye of the firste moneth, whiche is the moneth Sebat, in the second yere of Darius, came the word of the Lorde vnto Zachary the son of Barachias, the son of Addo the Prophet, sayinge: I sawe by night, and lo, there sate one vpon a red hoxe, and rode sil among the myrre trees that were beneth vpon the ground: and behynd him were three red, speckled, and whyte horses. Then sayd Jesus my Lorde, what are these? And the angell that talked with me, sayde vnto me: I will shewe the what these be. And the man I rode amonges the myrre trees answered and said:
These are they whom the Lorde hath sent to goe thowowe the wynde. And they answered the angell of the Lorde that rode among the myrre trees, and said: We haue gone thowow the wynde, and beholde all the wynde dwelt at ease, and are carelesse.

Then the Lorde's angell gaue answer, and sayd: O Lorde of hostes, how long wilt thou be vnmerryful to Ierusalem, and to the cites of Iuda, which whom thou hast ben displeased nolye these thyre fortye & ten yeres? So the Lorde gaue a louynge and comfortable answer vnto the angell that talked with me. And the angell that talked with me, sayd vnto me. Arise thou, and speake: Thus sayth the Lorde of hostes: I am accordynge
p. p. u. g. lous

gelous ouer Ierusalem and Syon, and sore dyspleased at the carnellie heauie: so; where as I was but a lytle angrie they dyd there; but that I might destroye the. Therefore thus sayeth the Lorde: I will touchre me agayne in mercy towarde Ierusalem, so that my house shall be buylded in it, saythe the Lorde of hostes: yea, and the ploommet shall be layde abrode in Ierusalem, saythe the Lorde of hostes.

D Lette also, and speake: Thus saythe the Lorde of hostes: My cyres shall be in good prosperitie agayne, the Lorde shall yet com-forte Sion, and crole Ierusalem. Then spake I by myne eyes and sawe, and beholde, foure hoynes. And I said vnto the aungel that tal-keth with me: what be these? he answered me: These are the hoynes whiche haue leaue red Iuda, Israel, and Ierusalem abrode. And the Lorde shewed me foure carpenters. Then said I, what doylt these doo? He answered and said: these are the hoynes, whiche haue so drownd Iuda abrode, that no man durst lyfte vp his heed: but these are come to fray them away, and to call out the hoynes of the Gentyles, whiche lift vp their hoine ouer the lande of Iuda, to scater it abrode.

CAPL. II.

Ezek. xlvi. b
Apoc. xli. b

I Lyft vp myne eyes agayne and looked / and beholde, a man with a measure lyne in his hande. Then saye I : whither goest thou? And he saye vnto me, to measure Ierusalem, that I may lay it how long and how broad it is. And he maketh the aunge that talketh with me, to wend his way forth. Then went there out an other aunge, to mete him and sayd vnto him: Run, speake to this pong man, and saye : Ierusalem that he inhabiteo without any wal, for the very multitude of people and cattell, that shall be therein. Yea I my self sayeth the Lord, will be vnto her a wall of fyre round aboute and will be honoured in her.

B O get you forth, O he from the land of the South, sayeth the Lord, ye whom I haue scattered in to the four windes vnles heuen, sayeth the Lord. Saue thy selfe, O Sion: thou that dweldest with the daughter of Babylon, for thus sayeth the Lord of hostes: with a glorious power hath he sent me out to ſpeake vnto you: which spoiled you: for who is touching you, ſhall touche the apple of his owne eye. Behold I will ſette vp myne hand ouer them, ſo ſhall they be spoiled of thofe whiche afore ſcuerd them, and ye ſhall knowe that the Lord of hostes hath ſent me.

E We glad and reioyce, O daughter of Sion for lo, I am come to dwell in the middest of the, saith the Lorde: At the same tyme there shall manye Heathen cleaue to the Lorde, and shall be my people. Thus will I dwell in the middest of the, and thou Walte knowe that the Lorde of hostes hath sent me vnto
the. The Lorde shall haue Iuda in possesion for this parte in the holy ground, and shall chose Jerusalem yet againe. Lette all stand be still before the Loide, for he is rich in of his holy place.

R Of the lawe and hygh estate of Chyrche, becom the figure of Iesus the priest. A prophete of Ch.

CAPL. III

And he shewed me Iesus the high priest standing before the sunnell of the Lorde, and Satan stood at his right hande to respell him. And the Lorde sayd unto Satan: The Lorde reprove the (thou Satan) yea the Lorde that hath chosen Ierusalem reprove the. Is not this a branched out of the fyre?

Howe Iesus was clothed in his newe ray-ment, & rode before the angel: which an-red and said vnto those that rode before him take awaye the foule clothes from him. And vnto him he sayd: Beholde, I haue taken awaye thy spynne from thee, and will becke the twich change of rayment. He sayd moreover, set a sayre mytter vpon his head. So they set a sayre mytter vpon his head, and put on clothes vpon him, and the aungell of the Lorde rode there.

Then the anngel of the Lord testified to Iesus, and spake: thus saide the Lord of hostes: If thou wilt walke in my wayes, and kepe my watche: thou shalt rule my house, and kepe my courtes, and I will geue the place among these that stande here. Heare O Iesus thou hye priest, thou and thy brethers that dwell before the, for they are won-derous people.

Beholde, I will bring forth the brennende of my seruante: for so, the stone that I haue layd before Iesus / vpon one stone shall be leuid eyes. Beholde, I will hewe him oute (sayth the Lorde of hostes) and take away the graine of that lande in one daye. Then shall euery man call for his neyghboure vnder the beere, and vnder the figge tre, sayth the Lorde of hostes.

¶ The vision of the golden candlestick, and the exposition thereof.

CAPL IIII

And the sungeill that talked with me, came agayne, and waked me by, as a man that is rapted out of his slepe, and sayd vnto me: What seek thou. And I sayd: I haue looked, and beholde a cantrell by the sill of golde, and a bolle vpon it, and his seven lampes therein, and vpon euerie lampe, by the helmes. And two olīue trees therby, one vpon the right syde of the bolle, and the other vpon the lesser syde.

So I answered and spake to the angel that talked with me, saying: O my lord, what are these? The angel that talked with me, answered and said: True men have we here, but they are mad. And I said: How long shall this continue? And he said: Until the Lord shall visit them. And I said: And what shall be the sign of their visitation? And he said: When the Lord shall visit them, he shall visit them with his angels, and they shall be made perfect. And I said: And how long shall this continue? And he said: Until the Lord shall visit them. And I said: And what shall be the sign of their visitation? And he said: When the Lord shall visit them, he shall visit them with his angels, and they shall be made perfect.

to my lord. He answered and sayde vnto me: This is the worde of the Lord vnto Zerobabel, sayinge: Neither thowme an host of men, nor thowme strengthe, but thow-me my spirite, saythe the Lord of Heauen. What art thou, thou greate moun-taine, before Zerobabel? thou must be made cum. And he shall byngne vp the gyfte stone, for that men shall crye vnto him: good lucke good lucke.

Wherefore, the word of the Lord came vnto me, saying: The handes of Zorobabell haue layde the foundation of this house, his handes shal also finish it, that ye may knowe that the Lord of hostes hath sent me vnto you.

For he that hath ben despysed a lytle season, shall crye, when he seeth the kynne brought in Zorobabels hand. The seven eyes are the Lorde whiche god thowste the hole world. Then answered I, and sayde vnto him: What are these two olpue trees vpon the ryghte and lesse syde of the candellspike? I spake mozeouer, and sayd vnto him: what be these two olpue bzaunches (which thowwseth the golden pyres) emptye them selues wth the golde? He answered and sayd: knowest thou not what these be? And I sayd, no my Lorde. Then sayd he: These are the two olpue bzaunches that stande before the ruler of the hole erth.

The byrion of the dyeling boke, signifyinge the

By the byrion of the measure, is signified the byn-gynge of Iuda to Babilon.

CAPT. V.

I turned, me iſpyinge by myne eyes and looked, and beholde a ſpyng boke. And he ſayd vnto me: what ſeeſt thou? I anſwered: I ſee a ſpyenge boke of twenty cuby-tes longe, and ten cubytes brode. Then ſayde he vnto me: this is the curſe that goeth forth out the hole earthe: for all churues ſhall be waged after this boke, and all ſwerers ſhall be iudged accordynge to the ſame, I wil bring it forth (ſaythe the Lorde of Bookes) ſo that it ſhall come to the houſe of the theſe, and to the houſe of him that faulſely ſworeth by my name: and ſhall remayne in his houſe and conſume it, with the tymbre and bones thereof.

¶ Then the aungel that talked with me, witte feth, and sayd vnto me: I sette by thyne eyes and se, what this is that gorch forth. And I sayd, what is it? He answered: this is a mea sure goynge out. He sayde moreover: When thou art there (that dwel vpon the hole cart) to loke vpon. And beholde, there was I set by a talent of trebe: and lo, a woman sat in the myddell of the measure. And he sayde this is bagnolporile. So he caste her in to the mid de of the measure, and there was the sonne o f the measure, and he set her in to a hole.

Then lift I up mine eyes, and looked / and beholde there came out two women, and the winde was in their winges (for they hadde winges lyke the winges of a fowle) and they lyfte up the measure betwixte the earth and the heauen.

Then spake I to the iungell that talked with me: whether will these beare the measure? And he sayes vnto me: in to the land of Synear, to buyde them an house, whiche when it is prepared, the measure shall be set there in his place.

¶ By the four charettes, he describeth the profane perjury of the four kyngdomes:

CAPL. . . VL

Moreouer I turned me, looking by myne eyes and looked: and behold there came foure charettes out from betwixt two hylls, whiche hylls were of brasse: In the fyrste charcet were redde hoyle, in the seconde charcet were blacke hoyle, in the thyrde charcet were whyte hoyle, in the fourth charcet were hoyles of dyuers colours, and strange. Then spake I, and sayd vnto the aungell that called wiche me: O Royde, what are these: The aungell answered and sayd vnto me: These are the foure wyndes of the heauen, whiche be come soythe to stande befoze the euile of all the erth.

That with the blacke horse wente in to the lande of the North, and the wyche folowed them, and the speckled horses wente forth towarde the South. These horses were deepe Bronze, and wente oute, and soughte to go and take their journey ouer the hole earth. And he sayd: get you hence, and go thorow the world. So they wente thorow ouer the world. Then cryed he vpon me, and spake vnto me, saying: behold: these that go towarde the North, shall kill my ward in the North countrey.

And the worde of the Lorde came vnto me, & saying: Take of the prisoners that are come from Babylon: namely Belshazzar, Tubiah, and Jeda: and come thou the same daye, and go in to the house of Iosiah the son of Saphan. They take gold and silver, and make crownes therof, and set them vpon the head of Iesus the son of Ioseph the high priest, and speake vnto him: thus saith the Lord of hosts: Behold the man whose name is the braunche, and he that shall spring vp after him, shall buye the temple of the Lord: he shall breake & praise the temple of the Lord: he shall breake & praise he shall sit vpon the Lordes throne, and haue the dominion.

A preſent ſhall be alſo vpon his throne, and a peaceable counſell ſhall be betwixt them both. And the crowne ſhall be in the temple of the Lorde, for a remembrance vnto Helem, Tobiah, Iſaia, and Ben the ſonne of Sophony. And ſuch as be farre off, ſhall come and buye the temple of the Lorde, that ye maye knowe how that the Lorde of Hoſtes.
pp. iiii. hath hath sent me unto you. And this wall come to passe, if ye will hearken diligently unto the voyce of the Lorde your God.

The estimation of saynge without merite. The despaynge of charite, and the obstinacye of the people.

VII.

It happened also in the fourth yere of kynge Darius, that the word of the Lorde came unto Zachary, in the fourth daye of the fourth moneth, which is called a clew, what time as Sacar and Bogamolech and the men that were wth them sent unto Bethel for to praye before the Lorde: and that they shoulde saye unto the Priestes which were in the house of the Lorde of hostes, and to the Prophetes, shoulde I wepe in the fifti moneth, and abrayne as I have done nowe certayne yeres?

Then came the word of the Lorde of hostes unto me sayinge: Speake vnto al the people of the lande, and to the priestes, and saye, when ye sated and mourned in the five and seven moneth (nowe is this the scoe and ten yeres) byd ye fast vnto me? When ye ate alle and dronke, byd ye not eate and drinke for your owne felices? Are not these the wordes which the Lorde spake by his Prophetes afore tyme, when Ierusalem was inhabited and welthye, for the cupes rounde aboute her: when there dwelte men, bothe towards the South, and in the plaine countreys.

And the word of the Lorde came vnto Zachary, sayinge: Thus sayeth the Lorde of hostes: Execute true iudgement, shewe mercy and lowpunge kyndnesse, euerie man to his brother. Do the widow, the fatherlesse, the stranger, and poore no wronge: and let no man ymagyn euill agaynst his brother in his heart.

Neuerthelesse, they wolde not take hede, but turned theyr backs, and stopped theyr eares, that they shoulde not heare: yea, they made theyr hearts as an Adamante stone, lest they shoulde heare the lawe and wordes, which the Lorde of hostes sent in his holie spirite by the Prophetes afore tyme.

Wherefore the Lorde of hostes was verye wrothe at them. And thus is it come to passe that lyke as he spake, and they wolde not heare: euen so they cryed, and I wolde not heare (sayeth the Lorde of hostes) but scattered them amonge all Gentyles, whom they knewe not. Thus the lande was made so desolate, that there traueled no man in it neither to nor fro, for that pleasaunt lande was vicerly laped walle.

Of the returne of the people vnto Ierusalem, and of the mercy of God towards them. Of good wordes. The callinge of the Gentyles.

CAPL

VIII.

So the word of the Lorde came vnto me sayinge: Thus sayeth the Lorde of hostes: I was in a zelousie ouer Syn, yea I haue ben verye zelous ouer her in a great displeasure, thus sayeth the Lorde of hostes: I will turne me agayne vnto Syn, and I will dwell in the myddest of Ierusalem: so that Ierusalem shall be called a faithful and true cite, the hill of the Lorde of hostes yea an holy hill.

Thus sayeth the Lorde of hostes: There shall yet olde men and women dwell agayne in the stretes of Ierusalem: yea and such as gos with flauers in theyr handes for verye age. The stretes of the cite also shall be full of younge boyes and damoysels playinge vpon the stretes.

Thus sayeth the Lorde of hostes: of the residue of this people thynke it to be impossible in these dayes, shoulde it therefore be impossible in my sight, sayeth the Lorde of hostes? Thus sayeth the Lorde of hostes: Beholde, I will deliuer my people from the lande of the East and West, and will byynge them agayne, that they maye dwelle at Ierusalem. They shall be my people, and I will be theyr God in truth and righte conscience.

Thus sayeth the Lorde of hostes: lette your handes be stronge, yea that nowe here these wordes by the mouthe of the Prophetes which be in these dayes, that the sanctuary is layde vpon the Lorde of hostes house, that the temple maye be builded. for wher before these dayes, myght myghte tell coude wyne any thinge, neither myght anye man come in and oute in tyme, for trouble: but I let euerie man go agayne his neyghbour.

Neuerthelesse, I will nowe intreate the residue of this people no moze as afore tyme, sayeth the Lorde of hostes, but they shall be a seide of peax. The bynnyngarde shall growe ber frute, the grounde shall geue her increase, and the heauens shall geue theyr dewe: and I shall cause the remnant of this people to haue all these in possession. And it shall come to passe, that lyke as ye were a curse amonge the Heathen (O ye house of Iuda and ye house of Israel) euen so will I deliuer you, that ye shall be a blessing: feare not, but let your handes be stronge.

For thus sayeth the Lorde of hostes: lyke as I decyded to punyssh you, what tyme as your fathers prouoked me vnto wrath, sayeth the Lorde of hostes, and I feared not. Euen so am I determynd now in these dayes, for to do well vnto the house of Iuda and Ierusalem, therefore feare ye not. Nowe the thinges that ye shall do, are these: Spake euerie man the truth vnto his neyghbour, execute iudgement trulye, and peaccabylly within your portes, none of you ymagyn euill in his heart agaynst his neyghbour, and loue no false othe: for all these are the thynges that I hate, sayeth the Lorde.

And the word of the Lorde of hostes came vnto me, sayinge: thus sayeth the Lorde of hostes: The fast of the fourth moneth, the faste of the fifti, the faste of the seuenth, and the fast of the tenth, shall be ioye and gladnesse, and prosperous by the seales vnto the house of Iuda: surely, lone the truth and peax.

Thus sayeth the Lorde of hostes: There shall yet come people, and the inhabitants of many cyties: and they that dwell in one cite shall go to an other, sayinge: Let vs go, we praye before the Lorde, let vs like the Lorde of hostes, I will go with you: yea much people and myghty heithen shall come and seke the Lorde of hostes at Ierusalem, and to praye before the Lorde. Thus sayeth the Lorde of hostes: In that tyme shall ten men (oute of all maner of languages of the Gentyles) take one Iyme by the hemme of his garment: & saye: we will go with you, for we haue herd, that God is amonge you.

The conspurion of the Gentyles. The chynge of theyr lyfynge on an Aile.

CAPL

IX.

The word of the Lorde shall be receyued at Admach, and Damastus shall be his offeringe: for the eyes of all men of the tribes of Israel shall loke vnto the Lorde. The borders of Ieremach shall be hard thyn, thus also and Sion, for they are myr myle.

Thus shall make her selfe stronge, braye by plure as the lande, and haide as the claye of the stretes. Beholde the Lorde shall take her in, & haue her in possession: he shall smyte downe her power in to the see, and she shall be consumed with fyre. This shall Aicalon fe and be strayed. Gaze that be verye loy, to what Ieremach also, because her hope is come to con fallon. for the kinge of Gasa shall perishe, & Aicalon shall no man dwell.

Strangers shall dwell at Asdod, and as for the pyde of Philistines, I shall rote it out. I will bloude I take awaye fro their mouth and their abhominacions from amonge them. Thus they shall be left for our God, yea they shall be as a price i Iuda. & Ieremach like as Jebus. And so will I comfort my house round about with my men of warre goynge to and fro: that no oppressour maye vpon them any moze. for that haue I nowe with myne eyes.

Krist thou great Iye, O daughter Sion be gladd, O daughter Ierusalem. for lo, thy kinge cometh vnto the, euen the ryghteous and Sauoure: Lowly and humble is he, he rydeth vpon an alle, and vpon the foale of an alle. I will rote out the chaettes from Ephraim and the horse from Ierusalem, the battel bowes shall be destroyed. He shall geue peace vnto the heythens, and his do myrion shall be from the one see to the other, and from the floudes to the endes of the world.

Thus also shoulde the bloude of thy corne haunt shall let thy pylowes out of the pitte wherein is no water. Turne you nowe to the stronge holde, yea that be in pylon, and longe soze to be deliuered: And this daye I byynge the word, that I will rewarde the double a gayne. For Iuda haue I bent out as a bowe for me, and Ephraim haue I fylled. Thy sonnes (O Sion) I will I rayle by aduante & Gre kes, and make the as a gyautes swerde: the Lorde God shall be sene aboue them, and his barres shall goe forth as the lyghtenynge. The Lorde God shall blowe the trompette, and shall come forth as a flame oute of the southe.

The Lorde of hostes shall defend them, they shall consume and deuoure, and subdue them with synge stones. They shall drinke and rage, as it were thozow wine. They shall be fylled lyke the basens, and as the boynes of all the aulter.

The Lorde shall God shall deliuer them in the daye, as the flocke of his people: for stones of his sounde shall be set by in his lande. O howe prosperous and goodly a thinge shall that be? The corne shall make the yonge men chearefull, and the newe wine the maydens.

The people is moued to requyre the doctrine of truth of the Lorde. The Lorde promyseth to byle and comfort the house of Israel.

X.

Make the Lorde then by tyme to tyme your the latter rayne, so shall the Lorde make cloudes, and geue you rayne y enough for all the increase of the felde: for darne is the answer of Idols.

The sothsayers se lyes, and tell but bayne dreames: the comforte that they geue, is no thinge worth. Therefore go they astraye like a flocke of shepe, & are troubled, because they haue no shepherde.

My wrothful displeasure is moued at the Prophetes, and I will byfyt the gates. for the Lorde of hostes will graciouslye blyss his flocke, the house of Iuda, and holde them as a goodly fayre hoile in the battayle. Oute of Iuda shall come the helmet, the nall, the batelbowe, and all the pynces together. They shall be as the gyautes, which in the battayle trede downe the myr vpon the stretes. They shall fight, for the Lorde shall be with them, so that the heithens shall be confounded.

I will comfort the house of Iuda, and pre ferue the house of Ioseph. I will turne the also, for I ppye them: and they shall be like as they were, when I had not cast them of. for I the Lorde am their God, and I will heare them.

Ephraim shall be as a gyaunte, and their heite shall be cheerefull as thozow wine: yea their chyldren shall se it, and be gladd, & they these best shall rejoyce in the Lorde. I will blow for them and gather them together, for I will reedme them. They shall increase, as they increased at first. I will sow them among the people, that they maye thinke vpon me in farre countreies: they shall saye with their chylde, and turne agayne. I will bring the agayne also from the lande of Egypte, and gather them out of Assyria. I will carpe them into the lande of Galaad and to Lybanus: they shall want nothinge. He shall go vpon eye see of trouble, and smyre the waues: so that al the depe floutes shall be dyed vpon. The proude boylinge of Assur shall be take away. I will comforte them in the Lorde, that they maye walke in his name, sayn the Lorde.

Cap. x. s. 1. s. 2.

The destruction of the temple. The care of the faithful is commytted to Christe, by the father. A greuous byrgon agaynst Ierusalem and Iuda.

CAPL. XI.

Open thy doores, O Libanus, that the cyre maye consume thy Cedre trees. Howle ye fere trees, for the Cedre is fallen, yea all the trees of Baalan (for I might the strong wood is cut downe. When maye heare the Shepherdes moune, for their glorie is destroyed. When maye heare the Lyons whelpes rooye for the pyde of Iordane is wasted away.

Thus sayth the Lorde my God: fede the shepe of the slaughter, which shall be slayne of those that possesse the, yet they take it for no sinne, but they that sell them saye: The Lorde be thanked, I am rich: yea their stone Shepherdes spare them not. Therefore will I no more spare those that dwell in the lande (sayn the Lorde) but so, I will deliuer the people, eury man in to his neighbours hand and in to the hande of his kinge: that they maye smyte the lande, and out of their handes will not I deliuer them.

I my selfe fed the slaughter shepe (a poore flocke brecke) and toke vnto me two floutes: the one I called louinge meknesse, the other I called wo, and so I kepte the shepe. These Shepherdes destroyed I in one moneth, for I maynt not away wth the, neither had they any deliue in me. Then saye I: I will see you no more, the tynge that byeth, let it dye: and that will perishe, let it perishe, and let the cernaunce rate, eury one the fleshe of his neygghbour. I toke also my louinge meknesse and brake it, that I myght disaunt the cernaunt, which I made with al people. And so it was broken in that daye.

When the poore symple shepe that hadde a respecte vnto me, knewe therby, that it was the voyde of the Lorde. And I sayd vnto the: ye thinke it good, bringe hither my pyce: yf no, even leaue. So they wayed downe xxx silver pennes, the value that I was pyced at. And the Lorde sayd vnto me: canst thou not ter (a good pyce for me to be holud at of them) and I toke the xxx silver pennes, and ad them to the pottre in the house of the Lorde. Then brake I my other floute also (namely wo) that I myght lowse the brotherly shepe: Iuda and Irael. And the Lorde sayd vnto me: Take to the also the floute of a lypth Shepherde: for so, I will carpe vpon a shepe herde in the lande, which shall not seke. After the thynges that be losse, ne care for such as go astray: he shall not heale his wounde, he shall not norye the thing that is hole: but he shall eate the fleshe of such as be fat, & cleare their clawes in pices.

So I tolles Shepherde, that leaue the flocke. The swerde shall come vpon his arme, and vpon his eyght eye. His arme shall be cleane dyed vpon, & his eyght eye shall be losse bynded.

Of the destruction and byrgon agaynst Ierusalem.

CAPL. XII.

The heape burthen whiche the Lorde hath deuyd for Irael. Thus sayth the Lorde, which sayd the heuens abode, layde the foundation of the earth, and gyrdeth man the breache of Ipe: Beholde, I will make Ierusalem a cuppe of fureur, vnto all the people that are round about her: yea Iuda him selfe also shall be in the siege agaynst Ierusalem. At the same tyme will I make Ierusalem an heap of stones for all people, so that all seche as lyfe it vpon, shall be toyme and rent, and al the people of the earth shall be gathered together agaynst it.

In that daye, sayth the Lorde, I will make al houses abashed, and those that ryde vpon them, to be out of their wyttes. I will open mine eyes vpon the house of Iuda, and smyte all the houses of the people with byndnesse. And the pynnes of Iuda shall say in their heretes: The inhabitants of Ierusalem shall giue me consolacion in the Lorde of hostes the God. In that tyme will I make the pynnes of Iuda like an hote burning out with wod, and lyke a cresset of fyre amonge the strabe, so that they shall consume al the people rounde about them, both vpon the right hande and the left. Ierusalem also shall be inhabited as Iuda, agayne namely, in the same place where Iuda salem standeth.

The Lorde shall preserue the tentis of Iuda lyke as afore tyme: so that the glorie of the house of David and the glorie of the cytelis of Ierusalem, shall be bat lyte regatid, in comparison of the glorie of Iuda. In that daye shall the Lorde defende the cytelis of Ierusalem: so that the weaked the ambges them shall be as David: and the house of David shall be lyke as Gods house, and as the angel of the Lorde before them.

At the same tyme will I go about to destroye al such people as come agaynst Ierusalem. Sozoner, vpon the house of David and vpon the cytelis of Ierusalem, will I pour out the spirite of grace and prayer, so that they shall loke vpon me, whome they have perished: and they shall be wepe him, as men mourne for theyr onely begotten sonne: yea and be loy for hym, as men are loy for their first chylde.

Then shall there be a greates mourninge at Ierusalem, lyke as the lamentacion at Remmon in the seide of Baggadon. And the lande shall bewaile eury kynde by them set: The kynde of the house of David them selues alone, and their wyues by them selues. The kynde of the house of Nathan them selues alone, and their wyues by them selues: The kynde of the house of Levi them selues alone, and their wyues by them selues: The kynde of the house of Simeon them selues alone, and their wyues by them selues: In the manner, al the other generacions, eury chone by them selues alone, & their wyues by them selues.

Of the well of grace and trithe Christe. Of the destruction of Idoles, and of the false prophes.

CAPL. XIII.

In that tyme shall the house of David & the cytelis of Ierusalem haue an open well to wash of synne and vncleannes. And then (with the Lorde of hostes) I will destroye the names of Idoles oute of the lande: so that they shall no more be put in remembrance.

As for the false prophetes also and the vncleane spirite, I shall take them out of the lande: so that yf any of them prophere as my more, his owne father and mother that beget him, shall saye vnto him: Thou walte by, for thou speakest lyes vnder the name of the Lorde, yea his owne father and mother shall beget him, shall wounde him, when he propherteth.

And the shall those prophetes be cofounded: eury one of his byson when he propherteth: neither shall they were sackclothes as my more, to dyscuse men withal. But he shall be lyke to saye: I am no prophete: I am an husbande man, for so am I taught by Adam to my yowth vpon.

And yf it be sayde vnto him: Howe camest thou woundes then in thine handes? He shall answer: Thus am I wounded in the house of myne owne frendes.

Lyke, O thou swerd, vpon my Shepherde, and vpon the prince of my people, sayth the Lorde of hostes: Smyte the Shepherde, & the shepe shall be scattered abode, and so will I turne myne hande to the lytle ones. And it shall come to passe (sayth the Lorde) that in all the lande two partes shall be roted out, but the thyrde parte shall remayne therin.

And the same thyrde parte will I bringe vnto the fyre, and will cleanse them as the siluer is clenched: yea & tye them like as golde is tryed. Then shall they call vpon my name, and I will heare them: I will say: it is my people. And they shall say: Lorde my God.

The mourninge of the churche vnder the figure of Ierusalem. Of the byrgon of the Lorde.

CAPL. XIII.

Behold, the daye of the Lorde cometh, & that thou shalt be spoyled and robbed: for I gather together all the kythen, to fyght agaynst Ierusalem: so that the cytelis shall be won, the houses spoyled, and the women despyled. The halfe of the cytelis shall go away into captyuptye, and the residue of the people shall not be carped out of the cytelis. After that shall the Lorde go forth to fyghte agaynst those kythen, as men ble to fyghte in the day of battayle. Then shall his feete stand vpon the mounte Olyuete, that lyeth vpon the east syde of Ierusalem. And the mount Olyuete shall cleane in two, eastwarde, & westwarde, so that there shall be a greates valley: and the halfe mounte shall remoue toward the north, and the other toward the south. And ye shall see vnto the valley of my bulles, for the valley of the bulles shall reue vnto Irael. Yea he shall see, like as ye did for earth quake in the dayes of Osiak kinge of Iuda. And the Lorde my God shall come, and all sayntes with him. In that daye shall it not be lyght, but colde and frost. This shall be that speciall day, which is knowne vnto the Lorde: whether daye ne nyght, but about the euening tyme it shall be lyght. In that tyme shall these waters of Ipe runne oure frome Ierusalem: the halfe parte of them toward the east see, and the other halfe toward the westmost see, and shall contynue both summer and winter. And the Lorde him selfe shall be kinge ouer al the earth.

At that tyme shall there be one Lorde and his name shall be but one. Men shall go about the hole earth, as vpon a fride: frome Gibea to Remmon, & from the south to Ierusalem, she shall be set vpon, and inhabited in her place: frome Ben Iaminus pozt, vnto the place of the spylle pozt, and vnto the corner pozt: and from the tower of Iuanuel, vnto the kinges wine presses. There shall men dwell, and there shall be no more cursing, but Ierusalem shall be safely inhabited. This shall be the plage, wherewith the Lorde will smyte al people, that haue fought agaynst Ierusalem: namely, their flesch shall consume awaye, though they stande vpon their feete: their eyes shall be corrupte in their holes, and their tynge shall consume in their mouth.

In that daye shall the Lorde make a great sedicion amonges them, so that one man shall take an other by the hande, & lape his handes vpon the handes of his neygghours. Iuda shall fyght also agaynst Ierusalem, and the goodes of all heithen shall be gathered together rounde about: golde and silver and a very greates multitude of clothes. And so shall this plage go oure houses, mules, camels, asses, and all the bestes that shall be in the

THE PROPHECYE OF MALACHI.

Will not open the windows of heauen to you, and poure you oute a blessinge plenteouslie. Yea I shall reioyce the con-uerter to your labors, so that he shall not eat up the fruit of your ground, neither shall the vnder be barren in the seede, sayth the Lorde of hostes: In so muche that all people shall say that ye be blessed, for ye shall be a pleasant land, sayth the Lorde of hostes.

Ye speake hard words agaynst me, sayth the Lorde. And yet ye say: What haue we spoken agaynst the? Ye haue said:

P It is but idle labour, to serue God: What profit haue we for keepinge his commaun-mentes, and for walking humbly before the Lorde of hostes? Therefore maye we say, that the proude are happy, and that they which deale with vngodlynesse, are set vp: for they tempte God, and yet escape.

But they that feare God, say thus one to another: the Lorde conuerseth and heareth
it. Yea it is before him a memoriall booke written for such as feare the Lorde, and remember his name. And in that day that I will make (sayth the Lorde of hostes) they shall be myne owne possession: and I will saue them, like as a man sauieth his owne son, that doth him wronge. Turne you therefore, and sayd: what difference is betwixt the righteeous & vngodly: betwixt him that seruet God and him that serueth him not.

Malachi.

For marke, the day cometh that shall burne as an oven: and all the proude, yea and all such as do wickednesse, shall be stricken and the daye that is for to come, shall burne them up (sayth the Lorde of hostes) so that it shall leaue them neither rote nor branch.

But vnto you that feare my name, shall that Sonne of righteouslye saye, a healeth shall be vnder his winges: ye shall go forth & multiplye as the fat calves. Ye shall tread downe the vngodlye: for they shall be like the ashes vnder the soles of your feete, in the daye that I shall make, sayth the Lorde of hostes. Remember the Josias holdeth possession. After his death is Je-chonias his sonne made kynge in his steade: whom the kynge of Egypt putteth oute, and letteth in his brother Zedekiah. Jerusalem is destroyed, and Jehoiachin taken.

CAP. I.

AND Josias helde
the feaste of Easter in Jerusalem vnto the Lorde and slewe the passouer the fourteenth daye of the first moneth. He set the priestes also in their dayes (by courses) beinge astraid in long garmentes in the temple of the Lorde. And he spake vnto the Levites the holy ministers of Israel, that they shoulde ha-lowe them selves vnto the Lorde, to set the holp arche of the Lorde in the house that king Salomon the sonne of David hadde buylded and sayde: Ye shall no more beare the arke vpon your shoulders. Now serue your Lorde, and take the charge of his people of Israel, after your byllages and your trybes: accor-dyng as kynge David the kynge of Israel hath ordeyned, and accordyng as Salomon his sonne hath honourably prepared: yea loke that ye all doe scrupce in the temple, accor-dyng to the ordynynge and distribution of the principall men, whiche are appoynted out of the trybes, to two scrupce for the chyldren of Israel. Kill the passouer, and prepare offerin-ges for your brethren, and do accordyng to the commaundment of the Lorde, whiche he gaue vnto Moyses. And vnto the people that was found, Josias gaue xxx. thousand shepe, lam-bes, kyddes and goates, and thre thousand oxen.
These the kynge (of his princely liberalitie) gaue vnto the people, accordyng as he had promised: and to the priestes for the passouer he gaue two thousand shepe, and an hundred oxen. Moreover Jechonias and Semcias, and Athabaiel brethren, and Sababias, Ichiel, and Josabab gaue them to the passouer, foure thousand shepe, and foure hundred bul-locks.

And when these thynges were broughte to passe, the priestes and the Levites stode goodly in their ordynance, and had the bulcened breed showour the tribes. And after the ordynynge of the principall men in the trybes, they offered vnto the Lorde in the sight of the prople, accordyng as it is wyrtten in the boke of Josias, and so they roasted the Easter lambe, as accordyng was. As for the thankofferinges and the other, they dyght them in kettels and pottes, and set them before the people in good wyll, and afterwarde before them selles, and the priestes. For the priestes offered the fatte, but all the tyme was cryed, but the Levites prepared for them selues and for their brethren the chyldren of Aaron. The sugers also the chyldren of Asaph, stode in their ordynance, accordyng as David had devised. So did Asaph Zachary and Jothum, whiche were appoynted by the king. Moreover the porters and the keepers stode by the doores and that diligently, so that none went out of his standing and service for their brethren (the Levites) prepared for them. Thus were all thynges performed, that belonged to the offeringe of the Lorde. In that day they held the passouer, and offered thankofferings beynge the sacrifice of the Lorde, accordyng to the commaundment of kynge Josias.

So the chyldren of Israel whiche were then present, held an honourable passouer, and the feast of sweete byed leuen duren long. Yea fure a passouer was not kept in Israel from the tyme of the prophet Samuell. And all the kynges of Israel held not suche an Easter as this whiche kynge Josias helde, and the priestes, the Levites, the Jewes and all Israel, of all the that were at Jerusalem. And in the xxviij. yere of the reigne of Josias was this passouer kept. And with a perfect heart vnder kynge Josias ordeyned all his workes before the Lorde, and the thynges that were wyrtten of him in tymes past, concernynge those that sinned and were vngodly agaynste the Lorde before all people, and that sought not the worde of the Lorde vpon Israel.

After all these actes of kynge Josias, Pharaoh the king of Egypt went by and came toward Carchemis by Euphrates, and Josias went to meete him. Then sent the kynge of Egypt vnto Josias, saying: what haue I to do with the, O king of Juda? I am not sent of the Lorde to fight agaynste the, for my watre is by Euphrates, go thou thy waye home agayn in all the haste. And Josias wolde not turne agayn vpon his charret, but undertooke to fighte a-gaynste him, and harkened not vnto the word of the prophete, whiche he tolde him oute of the mouth of God, but preched a battayle a-gaynste him in the felde of Megiddo. And the princes pleased to kynge Josias. Then said the kynge vnto his seruantes: Carre me awaye out of the battayle, for I am sore wounded.
And immediatly his seruantes toke him away out of the front of the battayle. The day he vpon the seconde charret, came to Jerusalem, died, and was buried in his fathers sepulchre.
And in all Ierusalem they mourned for Josias, yea the rulers also with their wives made lamentation for him vnto this daye. And this was done euer sith in Israel.

These thynges are wyrtten in the boke of the saydes of the kynges of Juda: namely Ipe all the actes and workes of kynge Josias, his power copall and maynteyne, his vnderstandinge in the lawe of God, and what he dide / yea thynges whiche are not wyrtten in the boke of the kynges of Israel and Juda.
And the people toke Jechonias the sonne of Josias, and made him kynge in steede of Je-chonias his father, when he was xxxviij. yere olde.

And

ii. Reg. xxiij.

iii. Reg. xxiij.

ii. Reg. xxiij.

And he reigned ouer Israel .iii. monethes. And the kynge of Egypt put him downe. & he shold not reigne in Ierusalem, and rayled vp a rate of the people: namely an hundred talentes of silver and one talent of golde. The kynge of Egypt also made Ioachim his brother kynge of Iuda and Ierusalem. As for them of Iudges counsell with the king him selfe and Zaccabiles his brother, he toke them & caried them away prisoners in to Egypt. True and twenty yere olde was Ioachim, when he was made kynge in the lande of Iuda and Ierusalem, & he did euill before the Lorde. After this Nabuchodonosor the kynge of Babylon came vp, bound him with bandes of yron, & caried him vnto Babylon. Nabuchodonosor also toke all the vessels that were halowed in the temple of the Lorde, and all the iewels, & caried them vnto Babylon, and broughte them in to his owne temple at Babylon. Of his wickednesse and vngodlinesse it is written in the booke of the actes of the kynges. And Ioachim his son reigned in his stede. He was made kynge being xiiij. yere old, and reigned but thre monethes and .x. dayes at Ierusalem, and dyd euill before the Lorde. So after a yere Nabuchodonosor sent and caused him be brought vnto Babylon with the holy vessels of the Lorde, and made Sedechias his brother kynge of Iuda and Ierusalem, when he was .xij. yere olde, and he reigned .xj. yere.

And he dyd euill also in the sight of the Lorde, and cared not for the wordes that were spoken vnto him by the prophete Jeremie, at the mouth of the Lorde. And where as he hadde made an othe vnto the kynge Nabuchodonosor, he manwore him selfe, and toke from him, hauing a litle necke and belt, and transgressed all the statutes and ordinaunces of the Lorde God of Israel. The rulers also and heedes of the people of the Lorde did moche euill, & became vngodly more then the heathen, being desired in all maner of abominations: yea and defiled the holy temple at Ierusalem. And the God of their fathers sent his messengers vnto the, to turne them backe and to call them agayne from their synnes, for he wold sayne haue spared them, for his holy tabernacles sake. Nevertheless they had his messengers in detest: and loke what God spake vnto them by his prophetes, they made but a sport of it. This dwelt on so longe, til the Lorde was wrothe with his people for their vngodlinesse, and til he caused the kynge of the Caldees to come vp, which heere there yonge men with yfwerde: yea euen in the compasse of their holy temple and spared no bodie, neyther yonge man nor olde, neyther mayden nor younge man: but they were all deliuered in to the power of the kynge of the Caldees, and at the holy vessels of the Lorde, and the kynge's treasures toke they, and caried them vnto Babylon. As for the house of the Lorde, they bent it, & brake downe the walles of Ierusalem, set fyre vpon her tomes, destroyed all her noble buydynge, and brought them to nought, and the people that were not slayne with the sword, they caried vnto Babylon.

Thus became they prisoners and bondmen of the kynge of Babylon, till they were deliuered and rayned for them selues, & when the wordes of the Lorde were fulfilled, which he promysed them by the mouth of the prophete Jeremie, and till the land had her rest: namely all the tyme that it lay waste, hadde it rest and quyetnesse. .xxvij. yeres.

Cyrus gyueth licence to the Jewes to returne to Ierusalem, and reioyce them the vessels of the temple. After that are these letters sende to Artaxerxes, which accuse the Jewes for buydynge of the temple: and so is the buydynge begun of, vntil the seconde yere of Darius.

CAPL.

II.

NOW when kynge Cyrus reigned ouer the Persians, and when the Lorde wolde perfourme the worde that he had promysed by the mouth of the prophete Jeremie: the Lorde rayled by the spyrte of Cyrus the kynge of Persians, so that he caused this wyrtynge to be proclaimed thowme out his hole realme, saying: Thus sayth the kynge of Persians: the Lorde of Israel thus sayth the Lorde hath made me kynge of the lande and commaunded me to buyde him an house at Ierusalem in Iude. If there be anye now at your people, the Lorde be with him, and goe vp with him to Ierusalem. And all they that dwell rounde about the place, shal helpe them, whether it be with golde, with silver, with wyrtynge, with horses and necessarye cattle, and all other thynges that are brought with a free wyll to the house of the Lorde at Ierusalem.

Then the pryncypall men oute of the tribes and bylages of Iuda and Beniamin rose vp: so did the prelates also and the Levites (whom the Lorde had moued) to goe up and to buyde the house of the Lorde at Ierusalem. And they that were about them, helpe them with all maner of golde, and silver, and cattell also, and with many lycell gyses, & this dyd many one, whose mynde was stirred by therto. & Cyrus also brought forth the vessels and ornaments that were halowed vnto the Lorde (which Nabuchodonosor the kynge of Babylon had caried awaye from Ierusalem, and consecrated them to Belshazzar and his treasurers, and by him they were deliuered to Salmanafer the deputie in Iude. And this was the nombze of them: Two thousande and ceure hundred silver boules, thirtie silver basens, thirtie basens of golde two thousande and foure hundred boules of silver, and a thousande besydre. All the vessels of golde and silver, were fyue thousande eight hundred and .ix. These were nombred vnto Salmanafer, and them that were come agayne with him to Ierusalem out of Iude: Artaxerxes the kynge of Persia, these men: Balchamus, and Mitridatus, Sabellius, Barchimus, Balchamus, Seimeus the scribe, and other that dwelte in Samaria and in other places vnder the dominion therof, wrote a letter vnto kynge Artaxerxes, wherein they complained vnto the kynge of them in Iude and Ierusalem. The letter was made after this maner.

By the seruantes, Balchimus the scribe, Sabellius the scribe, and other indiges of the court in Celosyria, and Phenices. Be it known and manifest to our Lorde the kynge, that the Jewes whiche are come by fro you vnto be in to the rebellious and wycked city, begyn to buyde it agayne, and the walles aboute it, and to set vp the temple a new. Howe if this cytye and the walles therof be set by agayne, they shall not onely refuse to geue tributes and taxes, but also rebel vnterly agaynst the kynge. And for so moche as they take this in hande now about the temple, we thought it reason, to thynke no scoine of it, but to shewe it vnto our Lorde the kynge, and to certifie him therof: to thintent that if it please the kynge, he maye cause it be soughte in the booke of old, and thou shalt fynde suche warning wyrtten, and shalt vnderstande that this city hath alwaye ben rebellious and disobedient, that it hath subdued kynges & cities, and that the Jewes which dwel therein, haue entred in a rebellious, obstinate, vnsubdued, and fighyng people, for the which cause this city is walled. Wherefore now we certifie our Lorde the kynge, that if this city be buyded & occupied agayne, and the walles therof set by new, thou shalt haue no passage in to Celosyria, and Phenices.

Then wrote the kynge to Balchimus the scribe wyrtter, to Balchamus, to Sabellius the scribe, and to the other officers and dwelers in Siria and Phenices, after this maner: I haue red the epistle whiche thou sendest vnto me, and haue commaunded to make diligent searche, and haue founde that the city hath euer rebelled agaynst the kynge, that the same people are disobedient, and haue caused moche warre, and that wycked kynges haue rayged in Ierusalem, whiche also haue rayled by laces of Siria and Phenices. Wherefore I haue commaunded those people that they shall not buyde the city, that they make no more of it, and that they procede no farther with the buydynge: for so moche as it might be the cause of warre and displeasure vnto kynges.

Howe when Balchimus and Sabellius the scribes, and the rulers in the lande hadde red the wyrtynge of kynge Artaxerxes, they gat them together, and came in all haste to Ierusalem, with an hoste of horsemen, and with moche people of foote, and forbad them to buyde. And so they left from buydynge of the temple, vnto the seconde yere of kynge Darius.

Cyrus maketh a feast. The thre sentences of the yonge men, of whiche the synne is declar-

CAPL.

III.

KYNGE Darius made a greafe feast vnto his seruantes, vnto all his court, and to all the officers of Media and Persia, yea to all the deputes and rulers that were vnder him from India vnto Ethiopia, an hundred and .xxvij. countreys. So when they had eaten and dronken, being satisfied, and were gone home agayne. Darius the kynge went in to his chambze, layde him downe to slepe, and so awaked.

Then the thre yonge men that kepte the kynge's person, and watched his bodie commoned amonge them selues, and spake one to another: let euerye one of vs saye some thyng, and loke whose sentence is wyrtter and more excellent then the other, vnto him shall kynge Darius geue great gyftes, and clothe him with purple. We shall geue him vessels of golde to dyne in, clothes of golde and coueringes: he shall make him a costly charer, and a bydle of golde, he shall geue him a bonet of hytte sphe, and a cheyne of golde about his necke: yea he shall be the seconde and princypall next vnto kynge Darius, and that because of his wisdom, and that he be called the kynge's kynsmen.

So euerye one wrote his meanynge, sealed it, and layd it vnder the kynge's pylow, and sayd: when the kynge awaketh, we wyll geue him oure wyrtynge, and loke whose wyrtynge the kynge and his chiefe lordes iudge to be the moost wyrtly spoken, the same shall haue the byrt. One wrote: Wyne is a strong thyng. The seconde wrote: The kynge is stronger. The thirde wrote: Women haue yet more strengthe, but aboue all thynges the truth beareth awaye the victory. Now when the kynge was woken by, they toke theyr wyrtynge, and deliuered them vnto him, and so he red them. Then sent he forth to call all his chiefe lordes, all the deputes and rulers of the countreys of Media & Persia. And when they were set downe in the counsell, the wyrtynge were red before them. And he commaunded to call for the yonge men, that they might declare their meaninges the selues by mouth. So when they were sent for and came in, the king said vnto them: shewe vs and make vs to vnderstande what the thynges are that ye haue wyrtten.

Then began the fyrst (whiche hadde spoken of the strengthe of wyne) and sayd: O ye yonge men, wyne is marueylous strong, and ouercometh them that dyneke it: it dyspucth the mynde, and byngeth both the poore man and the kynge to dotage and vanitie. Thus dothe it also with the bondman and with the free: with the poore, and ryche: it taketh awaye theyr vnderstandynge, and maketh them catelesse and meere, so that none of them remembreth anye beuynesse. bette, oute: It causeth a man to thynke also that the thyng whiche he dothe is honest and good: and remembreth not that he is a kynge, nor that he is in authority, and that he ought not to doe suche thynges.

Moreover, when men are drunken, they forget all friendship, all brotherly fellowship, and love: but as soon as they are drunken, they draw out the sword and will fight: and when they are layd downe from the wine, and so risen up againe, they can not tell what they say: Iudge ye now, is not wine the first good? for who wolde els take in hande to do suche thynges? And when he had spoken this he helde his tongue.

The declaration of the two last sentences of the ponge men, propounded in the Chapter before: of which last, that is, that verity beareth the victory in all thynges, is most commended and allowed. Darius wryteth letters to all the rulers under him, that they shoulde ayde Zorobabel in the buyldinge of Jerusalem.

CAPL.

IIII.

Then the seconde (whiche had sayde that the kyng was stronger) began to speke saying: O ye men, are not they the good and mooste excellent, that conquere the lande and the see, and all that is in the see, & in the earth? Now is the kyng lord of all these thynges, and hath dominion of them all: and loke what he commaundeth, it is doone. If he sende his men forth a martch, they goe, and breake downe hylls, wailles, and towres. They are slayne, and see (other men) them selues, and ouer passe not the kynges word. If they get the victory, they bring the kyng all the spoyle. Aphenwile the other that meyle not with warres and fighting, but till the grounde: when they see the kynges tribune to the kyng. And if the kyng alone do but commaunde to hyll, they hyll: if he commaunde to fozgoue, they fozgoue: if he commaunde to smyte, they smyte: if he byd buye awaye, they buye awaye: if he commaunde to buyde, they buyde: if he commaunde to breake downe, they breake downe: if he commaunde to plante, they plante. The common people and the rulers are obedient vnto him.

B And the kyng in the meane season spyteth him domne, catech and drunken, and taketh his rest: then kepe they watche rounde about the kyng, and not one of them dare gette him out of the waye to do his owne busynesse, but must be obedient vnto the kyng at a word. Iudge ye now, O ye men, how wolde not he goe farre about, vnto whom men are thus obedient? And when he had spoke this, he helde his tongue.

The thyrde, whose name was Zorobabel, whiche had spoken of women and of truthe, began to saye after this maner: O ye men, it is not the great kyng, it is not the multitude of men, neither is it wine that excelleth: Who is it then that hath the lordshipp ouer them? Haue not women borne the kyng and all the people that rule those thynges? Haue not women borne them, & brought the by, that plant the vines wherout the wine cometh? They make garmentes for all men, they geue honour vnto all men, & without women can not men lyue. If they gather gold and siluer, & all precious thynges, and se a fayre well fauoured woman, they leane all together and turne they eyes onely vnto the woman, & gaze vpon her and haue more desire vnto her, then vnto siluer and gold, or any manner of precious thing. A man leaueh his father that brought him by he leueth his own natural country & church, vnto the woman: yea he receiueh his life in the woman, and remembreth neither father, nor mother, ne countrey. By this the ye must knowe that women haue the dominion ouer you.

C Dothe it greeue you? A man catech his swerde, and goeth his waye to slea, to kill, to martcher, to sayle vpon the see, and seeth a lyon, and goeth in the darckenesse: and when he hath slessen, disceyued and robbed, he bringeth it vnto his loue. Agayne, a man loneth his wyfe better then father or mother: yea, manye one there be that renne out of they wyttes, and become bondemen for they wyues sake: many one also haue perished, and haue bene slayne, and haue synned because of women.

And nowe byleue me, I knowe a kyng, whiche is great in his power, and all landes stande in awe of him, and no man dare laye hand vpon him: yett did I se that Apame (the daughter of the great kyng Bartacus) the kynges concubine, sat besyde the kyng vpon his ryght hande, and toke of his crowne from his heed, and set it vpon her owne heed, and smote the kyng with her left hande. Howe ouer the kyng looked vpon her in open mouth: if she laughed vpon him, he laughed also: but if she toke any displeasure with him, the kyng was fayne to flatter her, and to geue her good wordes, till he hadde gotten her favour agayne.

O ye men, are not women then stronger? Great is the earth, and grete is the heuen that do these thynges. Then the kyng and the princes looked one vpon another. So he began to speake of the truthe. O ye men, are not women stronger? Great is the earth, grete is the heuen, swyfte is the course of the sunne, he compasseth the heuen rounde about, and fetcheth his course agayne to his owne place in one daye. Is he not excellent that doth this? Yea great is the truthe, and stronger then all thynges. All the earth calleth vpon the truthe, the heuen prayeth it, all workes make and tremble at it, and with it is no vneyghtous thing. What is vneyghtous: the kyng is vneyghtous, & men are vneyghtous, all the chyldren of men are vneyghtous, yea all they workes are vneyghtous, and there is no truthe in them, in they vneyghtousnesse also shall they be destroyed and perishe. As for the truthe, it endureth, and is alwaye stronge: it is truthe and conquereth, for euermore wolde without ende.

The truthe accepteth no personnes, it putteth no difference betwixt: it is the same, betwixt the myghtye or simple, but bothe eygh vnto euery man, whether they be euill or good, and all men are louingly deale with all in the workes of it. In the iudge ment of it there is no vneyghtous thing, but strength, kingdom and power, & maynteyn for euermore. Blessed be the God of truthe.

And with that he helde his tongue, and all the people cryed and sayd: Great is the truthe, and about all. Then sayd the kyng vnto him: What thou wylt, more then is appoynted in the wytyng, and I shall geue it the, for thou arte founde wiser then thy companions: thou walke yett nexte me, and be my husband. Then sayd he vnto the kyng: Remember the promise and vow which thou hadst soken and promysed (in the daye when thou camest to the kyngdome) to buyde vnto Jerusalem, and to sende agayne all the vessels and iuwels that were taken awaye out of Jerusalem: whiche Cyrus separated when he entred in Babylon, and wolde haue resold them agayne euere there. And thy mynde was to buyde vnto the temple, whiche the Chaldeans bent when Jerusalem was destroyed by the Chaldeans. This onely (O kyng) is the thyng that I requyre, this is the maiestye, whiche I desire and aske of the: that thou prytourne the vowe whiche thou with thyne owne mouth hast made vnto the kyng of heuen.

Then Darius the kyng nodde vp, and kissed him, and wrote a lettre vnto all the wytyngs and officers, to all the Lordes and nobles, that they shoulde conuey him forth, & all them that wolde goe vp with him. He wrote a lettre also vnto all the officers that were in Babylon and Phenicia, & vnto Apbanus, that they shoulde drawe Cedre trees from Lybanus vnto Jerusalem, to buyde the city with all. Howouer he wrote vnto all the Jewes that were gone out of his realme in to Jery, because of the freedome, that no officer no ruler no officer, shoulde come to their doores: and that all they lande whiche they had conquered, shoulde be free and not tributary. And that the Chaldeans shoulde geue ouer the cities and villages of the Jewes whiche they had taken in: yea and that they shoulde yett geue xx. talents to the buylding of the temple, vntill the time that it were finished, and to the daye following of the burnt offerings (as it is commaunded) ten talents yett also: and that all they which come from Babylon to buyde the city shoulde haue free libertie, they and their chyldren and all the priestes.

He wrote the greatnesse also and commaundment of the holy garment shoulde be geuen them when they ministred, and wrote that commaundmentes shoulde be geuen to the Levites vntill the day that the house were finished, & Jerusalem buylded vp: and commaunded that they that watched the city shoulde haue their portions and wages.

He gaue ouer also all the vessels that Cyrus had separated from Babylon, and all that Cyrus had geuen in commaundment, the same charged he also that it shoulde be done and sent vnto Jerusalem. Now when this yonge man was gone forth, he turned his face toward Jerusalem, and prayed the king of heuen and said: O God that commaundeth the victory, of the cometh thynges & clevenesse, and I am thy seruant, blessed art thou whiche hast geuen me wisdom: the thyng I praye, O Lord, thou God of our fathers.

And so he toke the letters, and went vnto Babylon, and when he came there, he tolde this vnto all his brethren that were at Babylon, and they prayed the God of they fathers, that he hadde geuen them restlesynge and libertie to goo vp and to buyde Jerusalem, and the temple (whiche is there called after the name of the Lord) and they reioysed with instrumentes and gladde leuen dayes longe.

They that retorne to Jerusalem are nombred, they began to laye the foundacyon of the temple, but are let by the meanes of enemies, and so is the buyldinge dyspayned by the space of two yeres.

CAPL.

V.

After this were the principal men of all the villages, chosen in the tribes & kynredes, that they shoulde goe vp, with their wyues and chyldren, with they seruantes and maydens, with all they cattell and substance. And Darius the kyng sent with them a thousande horsemen, to conuey them safely vnto Jerusalem: and they brethren were glad, playing vpon instrumentes, and singing. And these are the names of the men whiche went vp out of the villages, according to the tribes. Of the priestes, the sonne of Phinehas, the sonne of Aaron: Jesus the sonne of Josede, Joachim the sonne of Zorobabel, the sonne of Salathiel (of the kynred of David, out of the kynred of Phares, of the tribe of Juda) whiche spake wonderfull thynges vnder Darius the kyng of Persia, in the seconde yere of his raigne in the first moneth of Nisan.

These also are they of Jery whiche came vp and turned agayne vnto Jerusalem, out of the captivite that Nabucodonosor the kyng of Babylon had brought vnto Babilon. And euery man sought his portion agayne in Jery his city, they that came with Zorobabel, & with Jesus, Nehemias, Saraias, Raiaias, Elimeas, Eimannus, Harbodorus, Drester, Herodias, Idchor, Odius, Eimannus, one of their princes.

The hole nombre of these from twelue years was the thousande fouce hundred & lxxij. Of the sonnes, daughters and wives, y hole summe was, a thousande, two hundred and foure and two. The sonnes of the Priestes that prayled God in the temple: The sonns of Elaph, of whome there were an hundred and xxviij. But the dooze keepers were: The chyldren of Elimeus, the chyldre of Aier, the chyldren of amon, the chyldren of Acuba, Espar, the chyldren of Tobl, an hundred thetye and nyne in all.

The Priests that serued in the temple:
The sonnes of Seli, the sonnes of Galspha, the sonnes of Tobloch, the sonnes of Earia, The sonnes of Sub, the sonnes of Yeliu, the sonnes of Abana, the sonnes of Amacha, the sonnes of Aegab, the sonnes of Acha, the sonnes of Aetha, the sonnes of Aggab, the sonnes of Day, the sonnes of Quant, the sonnes of Cana, the sonnes of Sedou, the sonnes of Au, the sonnes of Kadin, the son-nes o. Delamon, the sonnes of Hecyoba, the sonnes of Calaba, the sonnes of Giza, the sonnes of Ozul, the sonnes of Sinona, the sonnes of Iara, the sonnes of Hiltam, the sonnes o. Ahana, the sonnes of Hancet, the sonnes of Hushin, the sonnes of Adufa, the sonnes of Agua, the sonnes of Azur, the son-nes of Hazon, the sonnes of Pailalon, the sonnes of Aceda, the sonnes of Husa, the sonnes of Careb, the sonnes of Bacus, the sonnes o. Surra, the sonnes of Loch, the sonnes o. Hahit, the sonnes of Agida, the sonnes of Dedon : Salomon his sonnes, the sonnes of Asaphot, the sonnes of Phasida, the sonnes of Aeli, the sonnes of Dedon, the sonnes of Gaddabel the sonnes of Zaphen, the sonnes of Aggia, the sonnes of Sachere, the sonnes of Sabathem, the sonnes of Saroneth, the sonnes of Safat, the sonnes of Ania, the sonnes of Safus, the sonnes of Ad-rus, the sonnes of Suba, the sonnes of En-ra, the sonnes of Rabotis, the sonnes of Phas-phat, the sonnes of Salomon. All these my-nistrd in the Sanctuary, and were thre hundred of Salomon : euen foure hundred thye score and ten.

These following are they, that went by his Chelmellat Zbelaria (whose pilces were Eze melâ and Eareb) and might not them forthe these cities and kynedes, how they were of Israel: the sonnes of Salarus, the sonnes of Zuben, the sonnes of Rechoaicus. Of the pcedes that executed the office of the pcedhode, and were not found: the sonnes of O-bis, the sonnes of Achilos, the sonnes of Ab-din, whiche maryed one of the daughters of Bargelen, and were named after him. The wyppinge of the same kyned was sought in register of their generacion, but it was not founde: and therefore were they forbydden to execute the office of pcedhode. Unto the son Rehemias a Zbheras, that they shold have no pacion in the Sanctuace, tll there cõe by an hye pced, that were well instruct in the playne clerenselle and truth. Of all Israel (besyde seruautes and mapbens) there were. xij. thousande, thye hundred and. xl. Some were there of seruautes and mapbens, seven. xij. thye hundred and. xxvj. Of spynge men and singinge women, there were two. C. and. lxx.
Four hundred and. xxvj. Camels. Seven. C.
and. xxxvj. hoxis. Two hundred thousande foyre and fyue milis. Fyue thousande and xxxv assis.

They beedes also, and the rulers of the scribes, when they came to Ierusalem, and made buyde and set vp the temple of God agayne in his place, they gaue after them a brikt, vnto the temple, to the sacrifice, and to the seruice of the Sanctuary twelue thousande poundes of golde, foue thousande of siluer, and an hundred pices of garments. And so dwelre the pices and the Jewes, and the people that wence out to Ierusalem, and the countrey there aboute, the Iungers also the porters eury one of Israell in his owne lanec.

So when the seventh moneth came, and when the children of Israel were cusey man at his busynesse, they came all with one consent into the court, whiche was before the Gate doore. And there stood Jechaa the sonne of Josheber, and his brethren, the priests, and Zorobabel the sonne of Salathiel, and his brethren, setting up an altar to offer burnt sacrifices vpon it, as it is written in the lawe of Moses.

Where came people who of other countries, & the heathen & of all kinds to see by and see in his place, and with families and birds examples

offerings vnto the Lorde in the morninge.
And so they helde the feast of tabernacles as it is commaunded in the lawe: And dayly offred they as accordeinge was. and made the sacrifices appoynted, the offerings also of the Sabbathes and of the newe Moones, & all holy feastes. And all they that bowed of-ferrings vnto the Lorde, beganne at the newe Moone of the seventh moneth to offer vnto God, for the temple of the Lorde was not yet builded. And they gaue vnto the workmen carpenters, moneys, meate, and drinke with chearefulness. Vnto them of Sidon also and Tyre they gaue carres, that they shoulde carry cedre trees frome Libanus to Beithers and breames, and that they shoulde make wyppes for the heauen of Ioppe, accordeinge as it was appoynted and ordeyned by Tyrrus kinge of the Persians.

And in the seconde yere they came in to the temple of God at Ierusalem. In the second moneth beganne Zorobabell the sonne of Salathiel, and Iesur the sonne of Josede & their brethzen the priests and Levites, and all they that were come vnto Ierusalem out of the captiuitie of Babilon, and lapde the foundation of the temple, in the newe moneth of the second moneth in the second yere that they were come in to Ieruzal and Ierusalem. And they appoynted the Levites (that were about .xx. yere olde) vnto the scrupce of the Lozde: so Iesua and his sonnes and his brethern all the Levites stode to gyther, and performed the lawe and ordynance in the house of the Lozde.

And the priests shode, and had their garments and trumpets, and the Levites, the sonnes of Asaph haddeymballes, gurninge thanks and prayles vnto the Lorde, accordinge as Dauid the kinge of Israel had ordeyned. And the songe that they dyd sing vnto the Lorde, was after this maner: O sing vnto the Lorde, for he is gracious, and his goodnes vpon Israel endureth for euer. And all the people blew out with trumpettes, and songe with loude voyce, praisinge the Lorde together in the reespynge vp of the house of the Lorde. There came also frome amonge the priests and Levites the rulers and elders, accordinge to the tribes and kindredes (suche as had sent the house afore) to the buyldinge of this temple with greate crye and greate mourninge, many also with trumpettes and great voyce: In so moche, that the trumpettes myght not well be hearde for the weeping and mourninge. For the common people blew goodly vpon the trumpettes.

Then came the enemies of the tribes of Judah and Benjamin, to knowe what that tumult was, and noyle of their names might be. And they pleyued that it was they which were come agayne out of captiuitie, & would dyspote the temple by a newe bnd to the King of Israel. So they went to Zorobabel and Telsus, and to the rulers of the villages and sayde vnto them: Shal we be made powello? for we like wylde beastes haue heard your loyes, and we walke after the same maner, from the dayes of Ahasareth the king of Assiria, which brought vs hyther. Then Zoro-babel and Iesus and the rulers of the vyllages of Iſrael ſayd vnto them: It is not meete that ye ſhoulde buyde the temple of our God with vs: we oure ſelues alone wyll buyde vnto the Lorde, lyke as Cyrus the kinge of the Perſians hath commanded vs.

But the heithen in the lande lapde them selues agaynste those that were in Jernye, helpe by the buydrynge from them, laped wapte vpon them pzeurpe, stopped suche as brought any thing to the, forbad the to build, and hyndered those that made them passage, that the buydryng wuld not be so punyshed:
and this continued so longe as kinge Cristyened: and so they put of the buydrynge for the space of two yeres, vntyll the raggne of kyng Darius.

Haggai and zachary prophete. They build the temple without let or hynderaunce, by the cōmandement of Darius.

CAPT.

VI.

Notwithstandinge in the seconde pere
Of the raigne of Darius, Aggeus and Zachary the sonne of Addo prophesied vpon them in Zewry and Jerusalem, in the name of the God of Israel. Then Zorobabel the sonne of Salathiel and Jesus the sonne of Josedec stode vp, and beganne to buylde s house of the Lorde at Jerusalem, when the Prophetes of the Lorde helped them.

At the same time came Silennes the vnder Shewe in Syria and Phences, with the lāh loves and his companions, and sayde vnto them: Who hath bydden and commanded you to burie the house, to make the rose & all other thynges agayne? And who are the worke men, that buryde them? Nevertheless the elders of the Jewes had such grace of a Word that they wold not be let (though they were prouoked thereto) but buryed on syl, vntill a tyme of kyng Darius were certified ther of, as an answer receyued from him. The letter was that these men sent vnto kyng Dārus, was after this maner.

Sithence the vnder Shyrene in Siria and phenices, and the landloides with their coparagons, which are made rulers in Siria & phenices, sende their Salutation vnto Dauidus the kinge. We scrpye oure Loide the hpyre, that we came into the lande of Iewry and went to Jerusalem: where we founde them buryinge the great house of God and the temple, with greace cofier: free stone and with goodle crumbe for the walles: so they in the greace had with the wothe, and heire and a seker, and it goth forth vnsperous to the hmyre, and with greace diligence & wothspayit mad.

While others in the streets, who had come in from the country to make up the house and the brothering, with this mind to the intent that they might escape the persecution, sought to do so, the names of those that were the first fers of the worke. So they went, as this an-swereth: we are the seruantes of y^e Lord, which made heauen and earth: and as for this house it hath bene buylded & set vp afore tyme by y^e great and myghty kyng of Israel. But whē our fathers sinned agaynst the God of Israel, he gaue them ouer in to the power of Nabuchodonosor kyng of Babylon the kyng of the Chaldees, which brake downe the house, and brest it, and caryed awaye the people prisoners unto Babylon. Reuertheles, in the fyfth yere that kyng Cyrus reigned at Babylon, Cirus the kyng wote and commaunded to buyld by this house agayne: and all the ornaments that Nabuchodonosor caryed away from Jerusalem unto Babylon, and appropriated vnto his own temple: these brought Cyrus forth agayne, & deliuered the to Zo-robabel & to Salmanasar the vnder Shire commaundynge them that they shoulde bring those same ornaments agayne to Jerusalem in to the temple, & to begynne to tyme forth, to buyld y^e temple agayne in his own place. The Salmanasar layde the foundation of the Lords house at Jerusalem, and euer sence haue they buylded, & yet it is not ended. And euer sence, y^e kyng, if thou thyngest it good, let it be sought in the Lpzyaces and rolls of kyng Cyrus: for it is founde then, that it is done with y^e counsell and consent of kyng Cyrus, and of our Lord the kyng be so mynted, let him wyte vnto us therof.

i. Esdr. vi. a
ii. Esdr. vi. c.

Then commaunded kyng Darius, to seke in the Lpzyaces: and so at Egbathanis in a lytle cytye in Media there was founde such a wytyng: In the fyfth yere of the raygne of Cyrus the same kyng Cyrus commaunded that the house of the Lord at Jerusalem shoulde be buylded agayne (and ordour to be made there continually vnto the Lord) whose hegyth shall be x. cubytes, and the brydeith
xi. cubytes, and my square with thye hewen stones, with a sort of cymbe of the same cos-tury, yea with a newe last, and the expences therof to be gyven of the house of kyng Cyrus.

And the ornaments of golde and syluer, y^e Nabuchodonosor toke out of the house of y^e Lord at Jerusalem, shall be set agayne in y^e temple at Jerusalem, where they were afore.
Shennes also the vnder Shire in Siria and Phenices, the panyes and theyr companyons, and the other that be heade rulers in Siria & Phenices, shall not medle nor haue any thyng to do with that place.

Darius haue commaunded also, that they shall buyld the house of the Lord hole vp, and haue ordeyned them, to helpe those that be come out of captiuyte: till the house of the Lord be syned: and out of the trebutte and taxinge that is yearlye rayld by in Si-ria and Phenices, diligently to geue them a certayne summe to the offyce of the Lord and the same to be deliuered vnto Zorobabel y^e off. cer. that he therewithal may ordeyne burne, sacrifices, lambes, and corne, sake, wyne and oyle, and that continuallye euer y^e yere:

after the expences whiche the prestes that be at Jerusalem, shewe to be made dayly: this shall be geuen vnto them without delaye: for they may offer sacrifices dayly to the blessed God, for the kyng and for his seruantes, and to praye for their liues. And it be pro-myssed also on euery syde, that whosoever breketh y^e despyeth this commaundement of y^e kyng, shall be hanged vpon a gallows (made of his owne good) and all his goodes shalbe seised vnto the kyng.

The Lord therefore (whose name is there called vpon) rote out and despoyle all the ky-nges and people, that undertake by violence to hinder the same, or to deale vntruly with the house of the Lord at Jerusalem. y^e Darius the kyng haue ordeyned, that these thynges shall be done with all diligence.

The temple is syned and dedicate: and the feast of vnturned byed is holden.

CAPL VII.

Then shennes the vnder Shire in Si-ria, and Phenices, and the other Landlordes with theyr companions, abeyed the thynges that kyng Darius had ordeyned, were diligent in the holy wyth and were felow helpers with the elders of the Jewes. And so the worke of the house went forth and prospered, when Aggeus and Zachary prophesied.

And they performed all thynges that the commaundement of the Lord God of Israel, and after the deuyce of Cyrus, Darius, us, and Artaxerxes kynges of yere.

And thus was our house syned vnto y^e the xiii. daye of the moneth Adar in the ii. yere of kyng Darius. And the chyldren of Israel the prestes and the Leuites, and the other that were come out of captiuyte, and such as were ioynd vnto them, byd away as it is wytyen in the booke of Esdras.
And in the dedycation of the temple they of-fired an hundred oxen, an hundred rammes, xiiij. hundred lambes, and xiiij. goates for the synnes of all the people of Israel. After the nombre of the tybes of Israel. The prestes also & the Leuites stode arrayed in the prestes garmentes, after the tybes, ouer at the wyth of the Lord God of Israel: and theye to the booke of Esdras, and the prestes by all the voyces.

And the chyldren of Israel (with those that were come out of captiuyte) helde the pas-uer the xiii. daye of the fyfth moneth, when the prestes and the Leuites were sanctified.
They that came out of captiuyte, were not all sanctified together: but the Leuites were all sanctified together. Also all they that came out of captiuyte, helde y^e sacrifice lambes for theyr brethren, for the prestes and for the leuites. And the chyldren of Israel that came out of captiuyte, and escaped from all cheapominacions of y^e heathen, sought the Lord, and helpe the feast of vnturned byed.

dayes longe, eatyng and drynyng and were merry before the Lord: that the Lord had turned the deuyce of the kyng of Assiria, and comforted their handes to the workes of y^e Lord God of Israel.

Esdras causeth the people to assemble and come together, and then readeth them the lawe. They kepe the feast of Tabernacles.

CAPL VIII.

Ad after him, when Artaxerxes the kyng of the Persians reigned, there wente vnto him Esdras the sonne of Sarias, the sonne of Azarias, the son of Hei-chab, the sonne of Sallum, the sonne of Sadai, the sonne of Achitob, the sonne of Amarias, the son of Azarias, the son of Bocrus, the sonne of Abisai, the sonne of Phineas, the sonne of Eleazar, the sonne of Aarō the fyfth yere. This Esdras went by from Babylon for he had good vnderstandinge in the lawe, of Moses, that was gyven of the Lord God of Israel, to be taught and done in deede. And the kyng fauoured him, and byd him great mayte and honoure, after all his desires.
There went by with him also certayne of the chyldren of Israel, of the prestes of y^e Le-uites, of the syngers, porters and mynisters of the temple at Jerusalem.

In the vij. yere of the raygne of kyng Artaxerxes, in the v. moneth, that is in the
vij. yere of the raygne, they wente frome Babylon in the nyete moone of the fyfth month, and came the hygge waye to Jerusalem after his commaundemente, lyke as the Lord hadde prospered theiourney. For in this Esdras gat greete instruction that he shoulde leaue none of the thynges despyde, whiche are in the lawe and commaundemen-tes of God. And he taughte hole Israel all the goodnes and iudgement.

Then came the Secretaries of kyng Artaxerxes, and deliuered the wytynges (that were come from Artaxerxes the kyng) to Esdras the preste and reder of the lawe of the Lord: And this is the cōpye of the letter.
Kyng Artaxerxes sendeth his greetynge vnto Esdras the preste and reder of the lawe of the Lord: Of synthyng and good will I haue ordeyned and charged, p^r there be anye of the Jewes, of the prestes and Leuites in myrealm, which despyeth and is contente to go with the vnto Jerusalem, that he may do it. Therefore p^r any be minded to breake the company, let them come together, & go with the (lyke as I am content and my seuen fredes my counsellers) to se what they do at Jerusalem and in Jeryco, and helpe the thynges arowynge as thou hast in the lawe of the Lord: and to byngne the gyftes vnto God y^e Lord of Israel, that I and my frendes haue promysed to Jerusalem, and all the syluer & golde that is in the countrey of Babylon, vnto the Lord to Jerusalem, with the thyng that is gyven for the people in the Leydes temple at Jerusalem: Yea that the same sh uer and golde maye be gathered, and oren, & mes, shepe and goates and other that be long to these thynges: and that they maye offer sacrifices vnto the Lord, whiche is at Jerusalem.

And what so euer thou and thy brethren wyl doo with syluer and golde, that doo after thy mynde, and after the commaunde-ment of the Lord thy God: & lyke wyse with all the doyle vessels, that are gyven the for y^e seruyce of the house of the Lord thy God: and other thynges wharsoeuer is necessary for the
to the worke of the temple, that shal be gyue y^e of the kynges treasure: and loke what thou wylt doo with the golde and syluer, that doo after the wyll of the Lord.

And y^e kyng Artaxerxes haue commaunded the keepers of the treasures in Siria and Phenices, that wharsoeuer Esdras the preste and reder of the lawe of the Lord doth wyte, it shall be gyven him: till an. c. talents of siluer, and of golde in lyke maner: & come also an hundred measures, and till an hundred bessels of wyne, and other plentous thynges without nombre. Let all thynges be done after the lawe of the hygher God, that y^e mayth of God aple not in the realme of the kyng and of his sonnes. I commaund you also, that ye requyre no tax ne trebutte of the prestes, Leuites syngers, and mynisters of the temple, ne of the wyters: and that no man haue auctorite to medle any thyng agaynst the.
As for the (y^e Esdras) let thou iudges and arbiters in the hole land of Siria and Phenices, after the wyldome of God: and learne al such as are ignorant in the lawe of God thy Lord, & let al them that offende agaynst the lawe, be punysshed: whether it be with payne, to be condemned in money, or to be banysht.

Then sayde Esdras the wyter. Blessed be the God of our fathers, that hath gyven so good a mynde and wyll in to the herte of the kyng to magnifye his house that is at Jerusalem, and hath made me to be accepted in the syght of the kyng, of his counsell, of his freendes and of his nobles.

And so I was stedfast in my mynde, accor-dyng as the Lord my God helpe me, and I chose out men of Israel to go by with me.

And these are the heades (after their kindredes) and houses of their fathers (that went by me frome Babylon, out of the kingdome of Artaxerxes: Of the sonnes of Phares, Gersho-nius. Of y^e sonnes of Simeon, Amelius. Of the sonnes of Dauid, Acus, y^e sonne of Lelia.

Of the sonnes of Phares, Zachary: & with him there turned agayne an hundred and fye tye men. Of the sonnes of the captayne of Babylon, Zarei, and with him. iij. hundred and. l. men. Of the sonnes of Zachary, Jeho-mas, Zecholy, & with him. iij. c. and. l. men.
Of the sonnes of Salamaas, & Getholie, & lxx. with him. Of y^e sonnes of Zaphacia, Zarias & Idelle, & with him. lxx. Of the sonnes of Job, Abdias & Jehiel, and with hym. iij. c. & twelue

Twelve men. Of the sonnes of Banai, Sal-moth the son of Josaphia, & with hym an, &
a. l. m. Of the sonnes of Becr, Zachary, Beber, and with him. i. l. and. viij. men. Of the sonnes of Eled, Johannes Ezechia, & with
hym. a. l. x. men. Of the sonnes of Adoniam those that were the last, and these are they names: Elyshalam the sonne of Sebell and Semetias, and with him. lxx. men. All these called together by the water Ebia, where we pitched our tents the dayes, and there I murdered them.

As for the sonnes of the priests and Leuites, I founde none there. Then sent I unto Elezar, and Eccelom, and Halmam, and Malobam, and Enathan, and Samea, and Jozibmarhan, Sunagan, Zachary, Mosol-lamum (these were the leaders and men of experience) and I sent them word, that they shulde come unto Loddeus, which was by place of the treasure, and commaunded them that they shulde speake unto Loddeus and to his brethren and to those that were in the treasure, to sende vs suche men, as myght execute the priestes office in the house of the Lorde our God. And with the myghte hande of our Lorde God, they brought unto vs men of good experience, some amonges the sonnes of Moasius, the sonne of Aul, the sonne of Israel, Sebeclam and the son-nes and his brethren Asbin and Amin, of whiche there were. xviij. from amonges the chyldren of the sonnes of Cananeus, and their sonnes were. xx. men. And of them that served in the temple, whom David had ordeyned, and the pryncipall men that ministered for the worke unto the Leuites in the temple two. L. and ewentye men, whose names are all cokened by in wyrtynge.

When commaunded I a ladyng into the pouge men before the Lorde, that I myght besyde of him a prosperous journey & a good waye for vs, yea for vs, for our chyldren, and for the catel, because of the saynges awayte, and I durst not requyre of the kynge men of hoile and of rote, to conueye vs safely agaynst oure enemies, for we had sayd unto hym, that the power of the Lorde our God shulde be with them, that seke hym with theyr hole herte. And therefore we besought God our Lorde earnestly because of these thynges, & he was mercifull unto vs, and hearde our prayer. And I separated from amonge the rulers of the people, and fro the priestes of the temple. xij. men, & Sebeclam and Alania, and ten men of their brethren with them. And I weied them the golde & the syluer and all the priestly ornamentes of the house of our God, which the kynge & his conseil, and his prynces, & hole Israel had geuen. And whiche I had weied it,
I gaue the an. a. l. talentes in syluer, & a. l. talentes of syluer besell, an. l. talentes of gold, & of golde besell I leue tympes twentye, & bessell of other metall (yea of good metall). xij. gyltynges as the golde, & sayd unto them: ye also are holy unto the lorde, & the vessels are holy, & the golde and the syluer is promysed unto the lorde & God of our fathers, & be diligent now and kepe it, untill the tyme that ye deliuer it to the rulers of the people, to the priestes, to the Leuite, and to the prynci-pall men of the cyties of Israel in Jerusalem, and in the chambrye of the house of our God.

So the priestes and the Leuites which returned of me the golde, the syluer and the bessell, brought it to Jerusalem into the temple of the Lorde. And from Ebia we brake by the. xij. daye of the first moneth, till we came to Jerusalem. And when the thyrde day was past, the wynde golde & syluer was deliuered in the house of the Lorde the fourth daye, by to Jethimoth the sonne of Jos the priest, and with him was Eleazar the sonne of Phineas, and with them were Josabbus the sonne of Jehiel, Sebeclam and the sonne of Banus, and certayne of the Leuites to the nombre and to the wyght: and the wyght of them were wyrtyn by the same tyme. As for those that were come out of captiuite, they offered sacrifice unto the Lorde the God of Israel: euen. xij. oxen for all Israel. lxxviij. rammes lxxij. shepe. xij. goates for synne. xij. hyne for a thankoffering, al to a sacrifice of the Lorde.
And the kynge commysyon deliuered they unto the stewerdes and debites of the kynge, and to the under shennes in Telolysia and Phenices.

Nowe when these thynges were done, the rulers came unto me, and sayd: The generacyon of Israel, the prynces, the priestes and Leuites, the strange people and labourers of the land, haue not put awaye theyr uncleynesse from the Canaanites, Hittites, Phereites, from the Moabites, Egyptians and Soomites.

For bothe they and theyr sonnes haue men-gled them selues with the daughters of the land, and the hole seide is myxt with the outlandysh weathen, and thus the begynnyng of theyr rapyne haue the rulers and heades bin partakers of theyr wyckednesse.

As soone as I had hearde these thynges immediatly I rente my holy garmentes, and pulled out the beere of my head & my beard, & sat me downe sorrowful & heuy. So al they that were moued thow the word of God of Israel, came unto me: I sat full of heuyennesse untill the euenyng sacrifice. Then saide I by this sayng, hauing rente clothes and the holy garment, kneeled downe upon my knees, & seide out my handes unto the Lorde, & sayde: O Lorde, I am confounded & ashamed before thy face, for our synnes are become many upon our brekes, and our wickednesse are exalted unto the heu: for since the tyme of our fore fathers, we are in great syn unto this day. And for the synnes of vs & our fathers, we with our brethren and with our priestres haue ben deliuered unto the handes of the enemy, in to the swerde, and in to captiuite, and became a spoyle with confusion & shame unto this daye. And now, O Lorde God, how greate is the meerce that we haue gotten of the: in that thou hast left vs a rote & name in the place of thy Sanctuarie, to distour our Ight in the house of the Lorde our God, & grum be meate at al tymes of our mynystra-cyon. And when we were in captiuite, we were not forsaken of the Lorde our God: but he made the kinges of Persia gracious and favourable unto vs, so that they gaue vs vi-cayles and meate, yea and leane to buyde by the temple of our Lorde God agayne, to repaye the wasted places of Zion, & to dwell in Jewry and Jerusalem. And now, O Lorde, what shall we saye, hauinge all these thynges in possession? for we haue broken thy com-mendementes, whiche thou gauest unto vs by the handes of thy seruantes the prophetes, sayng: The land that ye go vnto, and that is geyuen you for an heritage to haue in possession, is defyled with the vncleennes and fil-thynesse of the brethen, and with their abhominacion haue they polluted it all together.

Therefore shall ye not ioyne your daughters vnto their sonnes ne marry your sonnes vnto their daughters: for ever, ye shal neuer seke to make pear in the, & ye may increase & eat & best in the land: & that ye may dryue the inhabitantes of the land vnto poure captiuite in euermore. As for the thinge that nowe happeth vnto vs, it cometh all for our wycked wykes & great synnes, yet hast thou geuen vs suche a rote, & we are come agayne into our owne land: and we are so wycked that we haue broken thy statutes and com-mendementes agayne, & mingled our selues with the vncleennes of the outlandyshe weathen. O Lorde, arte thou angepe with vs?
wyll thou rote vs cleane out? that our rote and name remaine no more? O Lorde God of Israel thou arte true, for our rote endureth yet vnto this present daye. And beuolde, now we be before the in our synnes, now can we not stande before the in them.

And when Esdras with this prayer had knowledged the synne, weeping, and lpyng hate upon the grounde before the temple, there gathered vnto hym from Jerusalem a great multitude of men and women, of pong men & mappens, for there was a very greate weepyng and mourning in the congregacyon, so when Jechonias the sonne of Jehiel one of the chyldren of Israel cryed, he sayd vnto Esdras: we haue synned agaynst the Lorde, because we haue married outlandyshe wome of the weathen. Nowe arte thou sure all Israel. We wyll swere an othe therefore vnto the Lorde, that we shall put awaye all oure wyues, whiche we haue taken of the weathen with theyr chyldren: lyke as it is appoynted for before our fore elders. Stande by then, open thou it, and declare it plainly vnto vs, accordinge to the lawe of the Lorde: for the matte belongeth vnto the, & we wyll helpe the, quyle thy selfe manly. So Esdras arose, and toke an othe of the rulers of the priestes and of the Leuites, and of Israel, to do after these thynges: and they swore.

After Esdras had read the laws, the people put awaye theyr strange wyues: and then returneth they man merily vnto his owne dwellinge.

Then Esdras stode by from the court of the temple with out, & went in to the chamber of Jonathas the son of Pasabus, and remayned there, and eat no meate nor dronke wyne, for the multitude of the wyckednes of the people. And there was made a proclamacyon in al Jewrye and at Jerusalem, for all suche as were gathered at Jerusalem out of captiuite, that whosoever came not to Jerusalem within two or. iij. dayes ac-cordinge to the iudgement of the olde lordes of counsell, his goodes shulde be taken from him, and be excluded from the congregacyon of the captiuite. And in the dayes were all they of the tyebe of Juda and Beniamin gathered together at Jerusalem, the. xx. daye of the. ix. moneth. And the hole multitude sette tremblinge in the court of the temple, for it was winter. So Esdras arose by, and sayd vnto them: ye haue done vnyghtynesse, in that ye haue taken outlandyshe wyues to marryage, and so to encrease the synnes of Israel. And now knowledge the same, and gve praye vnto the Lorde God of our fathers, and pcesourme his wyll, departyng frome the weathen of the lande, and from the out-landyshe wyues. Then cryed the hole multitude with loud voice, and sayd: lyke as thou haste spoken, so wyll we do: but for somoche as the people are many, and the wycker here, we may not stand without the house agayne, this wycke is not a thyng, that can be synched in a daye or two, for we be many that haue synned in these thynges: & ordeyne therefore, that the rulers of the multitude & all they that dwell with vs, and as many as haue outlandyshe wyues, the priestes also and iudges of entere place may stande in the tyme appoynted, tyl they lose by the wyrt of the Lorde in his busynes.

When Jonathas the sonne of Eziel, and Onias and Tocam receiued a charge of this matter, & Bozozanius, and Lelus, and Sabatheus helped them thereto. After this, all they stode by that were come out of capti-uite. And Esdras the prest chose vnto him the pryncipall men from amonge the farmers ac-cordinge to theyr names, & in the newe mone of the tenth moneth they iatte together, to examine this matter. And so the matter was a detempnyng (concernyng the men that had outlandyshe wyues) vntill the newe mone of the first moneth. And of the priestes that had myxt them selues with outlandyshe wy-ues, there were founde: of the sonnes of Jela the sonne of Josedech and his brethren, Mazias, Eleazar, Jozubus, and Joadus, whiche offred them selues to put awaye their wyues, and to offe a ram for their ignorauce. And of the sonnes of Semmeti, Malchas, and Elies, and Jeelech, Azarias. Of the sonnes of Jofera, Amobias, Blimaen, Nathanea, Jusio, Jo-bus and Talias. And of the Leuites Josabbus, Semetis, and Colmis, Calctas, fanteas, Colnas, and Etionas. Of the syngers of the Sanctuarie, Elarib, Zachary. Of the pri-fers, Salimius and Tolbanes. And of Israel, of the chyldren of Foz, Os, and Kemias, a Sedrias, and Melchias, and Helius, Eleazarn, Jammias, and Hannas. And of the chyldren of Solaman, Chantas, Zachari, Je-reus, Jodius, Ermoth and Elias. And of the sonnes of Jotham, Eliadas, Liasanus, and Zochias, Larimoth, Sabbis and Zebdias. And of the sonnes of Zebis, Jodannes, Amarias, Zabbias, and Emmeus. And of the sonnes of Hannus, Olammus, Ma-luchus, Jeddus, Jafub, Asabus, Jerimoth.

And of the sonnes of Abdim, Raatus, and Hoothis, and Calcus, and Kaanis, Maas-tuas, Bathachias, Beliel, Hannus and Ma-nasses. And of the sonnes of Naue, Rones, Kkas, Melchias, Samcas, Simon, Ben-Jamin, Malchus and Hattas. And of the sonnes of Aloni, Carlanus, Bathachias, Bannus, Eliphalan, Manasses, Semel. Of the sonnes of Bannus, Jeremy, Woodias, Abamas, Tobel, Bencas, Pelias, Jona, Marimoth, Enath, Matheneus, Eliatis, Orias, Dielus, Semebius, Zambis and Joseph. Of the sonnes of Nobus, Jodelus, Ba-thachias, Sababus, Zetheas, Hecmi, Jelle-us, and Bencas. All these had taken our andylthe women to marpage, and they put the a waye with theyr chyldren. The pyres and Leuites, and all they that were of Israel, dwelt at Jerusalem and throughout all the lande, in the nyewe moone of the viij. moneth and the chyldren of Israel were in theyr dwellinges. And the hole multitude came together vpon the floore at the east syde of the holy porte of the temple. And they spake vnto E-dras the hye priefte and reader, that he wolde brynge the lawe of Moyses, whiche was geue of the Lorde God of Israel. So Edras the hye priefte brought the lawe vnto the hole multitude, to man and woman, and to all pyccles, that they myght heare the lawe, in the newe moone of the viij. moneth. And he red in the floore that is before the holy porte of the temple, from the morninge early vnto the evening, before men and women. And they applyed their mynde all vnto the lawe.

And Edras the priefte and reader of the lawe stode vpon a scafold of wood, which was made therfore: and vpon his right hand there stode by him Bathachias, Samus, E-nauas, Arias, Elias, Zechias, and Belsamus: vpon his left hand stode Jafubus, Malachias, Abucias, Sabus, Nababias and Zachary. Then toke Edras the booke before the hole multitude, for he was the priefte, and had in moost honour of them all. And when he had red out the lawe, they stode all streight vpon theyr feete. So Edras prayed the Lorde the moste hygh God, the almighty God of hostes. And all the people answered: Amen: and held vp theyr handes, fell downe flat vpon the earth, and prayed for him. And Jesus, Bencas, Sarebias, Jaddimus, Accubus, Sabbathus, Calchus, Arias, Jozabus, Ananias, and Philias the Leuites lyfte vp theyr handes vnto the Lorde, and bowed theyr faces to the ground, and prayed the Lorde: Those were they which taught the lawe of the Lorde, and red the lawe of the Lorde in the congregacyon: and euery man let those before that vnderstode the lawe. Then spake Atharates vnto Edras the hye priefte and re-der, and to the Leuites that taught the multitude, sayinge: This daye is holy vnto the Lorde: for all they that heare the lawe, wepte So Edras said: Departe your waye this, and eat the best and drynke the sweetest, and lend gyftes vnto them that haue nothinge: for this daye is holy vnto the Lorde, and be not ye seyre. Then wente theyr waye euery chone, ate and dronke, and were merye, and sent rewardes vnto them that had nothinge that they myght also eat with gladnesse: for they were exceedingly reioyced, because the wordes that were red vnto them in the lawe.

And so they were all gathered together at Jerusalem to holde the feast, accordynge to the covenant of the Lorde God of Israel.

CAP.

I.

The seconde boke of the Prophet Edras (the sonne of Arias, the son of Melchias, the sonne of Sallum, the son of Sador, the sonne of Achi-tob, the sonne of Ameri-
as, the sonne of Arias
the sonne of Maraioth, the son of Saabias, the sonne of Azi, the sonne of Boreus, the sonne of Abisu, the sonne of Abineas, the sonne of Eleazar, the sonne of Aaron, of the trybe of Levi: which was prisoner in the land of Medes, in the reygne of Artaxerxes king of Persia.

And the word of the Lorde came vnto me, sayinge: go thy waye, and shew my people their synfull dedes, and their chyldren their wickednes, which they haue done against me, that they maye tell their chylders chylren the same: for the synnes of their fathers are increased in them. And why? they haue forgotten me and haue offered vnto strange goddesses. Am not I euen he, that broughte the out of the land of Egypt, from the house of bondage? But they haue prouoked me vnto wrath, and despised my counsels. Pull thou out then the heere of thy heade, and cast al euill ouer them, for they haue not bene obedient vnto my lawe.

It is a people without lernyng and nour-ture. How longe shal I forbear them vnto whom I haue done so moche good? Manye tynges haue I destroyed for their sake: Pharaos with his seruantes and all his powe haue I smytten downe and slayne: all the nations haue I destroyed and roted oute before them: and in the east haue I broughte two landes and people to nought, euen Cyre & Hydon, and haue slayne all their enemyes.
I praye thou therfore vnto them, sayinge:
Thus sayeth the Lorde: I ledde you through the see, and haue geuen you sure fyttes and the begynnynge. I gaue you Moyses to be your captayne, and Aaron to be the priefte.
I gaue you lyght in a pyller of fyre, and grete wonders haue I done amonge you: yet haue ye forgotten me, sayeth the Lorde.

Thus sayeth the almyghty Lorde: I gaue you quayles to eat, and futes for your sheepoure: Nevertheless ye murmured, and ascribed not the byctory of your enemyes vnto my name: yea this same daye do ye yet mur-moure. Where are the benefites, that I haue done for you? When ye were hongry in the wyldernes, dyd ye not crye vnto me: Why didst thou broughte vs in to this wyldernes, sayeth the Lorde? It had bene better for vs, to haue serued the Egipcians, then to die in this wil-dernes. When had I pitie vpon your mour-nynges, and gaue you Hanna to be your aunt? Ye ate angels fode. When ye were thursty, dyd not I breke the harde stone, and caused water to flowe therout? For the heate I covered you with the leaues of the trees. A good pleasaunt fat lande gaue I you: I cast oute the Cananites, the Pherezites and Philistines before you. What shall I doo more for you, sayeth the Lorde.

Thus sayeth the almyghty Lorde: When ye were in the wyldernes, in the water of the Amorytes, bringe a thyrtie and blasphe-myng my name: I gaue you not fyre for your blaspemyes, but caste a tree in to the water, and made the ryuer swete. What shal I doo vnto the, o Jacob? Thou Juda wol-dest not obeye me. I wyll tourne me to an other people, and vnto those wyll I geue my name, that they maye kepe my statutes.

Seynge ye haue forsaken me, I wyll forsake you also. When ye desyre me to be gracious vnto you, I wyll haue no mercy vpon you: when ye call vpon me, I wyll not heare you. For ye haue despised your handes with honde, and your feete are swifte to com-myt manslaughter. Ye haue not forsaken me (in a manner) but your owne selues sayeth the Lorde.

Thus sayeth the almyghty Lorde: haue I not prayed you, as a father his sonnes, as a mother her daughters, and as a nurse her younge babes, that ye wolde be my people, and I shoulde be your God: that ye wolde be my chyldren, and I shoulde be your owne father? I gathered you together, as an henne gathereth her chyckens vnder her wynges.
But now what shal I doo vnto you? I shal cast you oute fro my face. When ye offer vnto me, I shal turne my face from you: for your solenne feaste dayes, your newe moones, and your circumcisions haue I forsaken, I sente vnto you my seruantes the Prophetes, whom ye haue taken and slayne, and to rme their bodies in peces, whose blood
I wyll requyre of your handes, sayeth the Lorde.

Thus sayeth the almyghty Lorde: your house must be desolate. I wyll caste you oute as the wynd doth the strawe: your chyldren shal not be frutefull, for they haue despised my commaundement, and doone the thyng that is euill before me. Your houses wyll I geue vnto a people that shal come, and they shal neuer herd me, shal bilyue in me: and they vnto whom I neuer shewed token, shal doo the thyng that I commaunde them. They haue sene no Prophetes, yet shal they call their synnes to remembrance, and knowlege theym. I repoynte me vnto the grace, that I wil doo for the people which is to come, whose chyldren reioyse in gladnesse: and though they haue not sene me with bodily eyes, yet in spirite they shal see the thyng that I saye.

¶ And

And now brother, befolde what great woꝝe thou and se the pople that cometh from the East, vnto whom I will geue the dukedom of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, of Elias, Amos, and Michas: of Joel, Abdi, Jonas, Na-um, and Abacuc: of Sophony, Aggeus, Zachary, and Salachi, with is called also an aungell (or messenger) of the Loꝝde.

The Synagoga syneth faulce with her owne chylde. The Gentylis are called.

CAPL.

II.

Thus sayth the Loꝝde, I haue broughte this people out of bondage, I gaue the my commandmentes by my seruau-tes the Prophets, whome thou woldest not heare, but despyed my counsels. The mother that bare them, sayth vnto them: God your waye you chylde, for I am a wydow and forsaken: I brought you vp with glad-nesse, but with sorowe and heynesse haue I losse you: for ye haue synned before the Loꝝde your God, and done the thyng that is euil before him. But what shall I now doo vnto you? I am a wydow and forsaken: goo your waye, o my chylde, and aske mercede of the Loꝝde. As for me, o father, I cal vpon the for a wyne over the mother of these chylde, whiche wolde not kepe my counsaunt: that thou bringe them to confusion, and their mother to a spyle, that she beare no more. Let their names be scattered abrode amonge the heathen, let them be put out of the erth, for they haue thought scoꝝe of my counsaunt.

Gen. xix.

Woo be vnto the Assur, thou that hydest thy rightous by the. Thou wicked people, re-membꝛe what I dyd to Sodome & Gomorre whose lande is turned to pythe and ashes.
Euen so also wil I do vnto all them that heeme not, sayth the Loꝝde. Thus sayth the Loꝝde vnto Esdras: tel my people, that I wil geue them the kyngdom of Ierusalem which I wold haue geuen vnto Israel: their glory also wil I take vnto me, and geue the the euerlasting tabernacles, whiche I had prepared for those.

The tre of lyfe shall be onto them a swete succynge oꝛnement: they shall neyther laboure nor be weery. Goo ye your waye, and ye shall receyue it. Praye for your selues a fewe daies, that they maye dwelle therein.
Nowe is the kyngdome prepared for you, therefore wathe, take heuen and erth to wit-nesse, for I haue broken the euil in peeces, and created the good. For I haue sayth the Loꝝde.
Mother embrace thy chylde, and bringe them vp with gladnesse: make theye fete as fast as a pylle, for I haue chosen the, sayth the Loꝝde.

And those that be dead, wil I raise vp a-gayne from their places, and bring them out of the graues. For I haue now a riuyn in Israel. Feare not thou mother of the chylde, for I haue chosen the sayth the Loꝝde.

And for thy helpe, I shall send the my seruates Esay and Jeremy, after whole counsell I haue sanctified and prepared for the twelue trees with bynes frutes, and as manye wal-les flowynge with mylke and honny, and seuen mountaynes, wher vpon there grow roses and lylles, wher in I wil fyll my chylde with ioye.

Execute iustyce for the widow, be iudges the fatherlesse: geue to the poore, defende the comfotelesse, clothe the naked, heale the wounded & sicke, laugh not a lame man to scorn, defende the crippe, and let the bynde come in to the syghte of my clerkenesse. Kepe the olde and pouge within thy walles, where to rure thou syndest the deede, taken them, and bury them, and I shall geue the, the syt place in my resurrection. Holde still, o my people, and take thy rest, for thy quietnesse is come, take thy chylde, o thou good nurse, stablish thy fete. As for the seruantes whome I haue gyfte, there shall not one of them perishe, for I wil seke them from thy nombre, beere me thy selfe.

For when the daye of trouble and heunesse cometh, other shall wepe and be sorowfull, but thou shalt be merce and pla-cous. The heathen shall be gelous, but they shall be habile to doo nothyng agaynst the, sayth the Loꝝde. My handes shall couer the,
so that thy chylde shall not se the fyre: cursallunge, be ioyfull, o thou mother with thy chylde, for I wil deliuer the, sayth the Loꝝde. Remembꝛe thy deede chylde, for I shall bringe them out of the erth, and shewe mercy vnto them, for I am mercefull sayth the Loꝝde almyghty.

Embrace thy chylde vnto I come, and shewe merce vnto the, for my welles run out and my grace shall not faile.

I Esdras receyued a charge of the Loꝝde vpon the mount Syon, that I sholde go vnto Israel. But when I came vnto Israel they let me at nought, & despyed the commandment of the Loꝝde. And therefore I saye vnto you, o ye heathen, that heare & vnderstand: Loke for your shepherde, he shall geue you curra-lynge rest: for he is nye at hande that shall come in the ende of the woꝝde. Be redy to rewarde of the kyngdom, for the euerlasting lyght shall shyne vpon you for euermore. Fit the shadowe of this woꝝde, receyue the woꝝe fulnesse of your glorie. I testifie my sam-oure openly: I receyue the gyft that is geuen you, and be glad, guyng thanks vnto hym, that hath called you to the heauynly kyngdome.

Arise vp and stand fast: behold the number of those that be sealed in the frasse of the Loꝝde whiche are departed from the dwelers of the woꝝde, and haue receyued a glorious garme-tes of the Loꝝde. And I haue chosen the, and that by thy name, I haue chosen the, and led the law of the Loꝝde. I haue chosen the chylde: vnto whom thou longest, for as fulled: belesche, hope, vnto the Loꝝde that thy people, whiche haue been called from the gynnyng, may be halowed.

Jemas

I Esdras sawe vpon the mount Syon a greate people, whome I coude not nombre, and they al prayed the Loꝝde with songes of thankespyng. And in the myddes of them there was a yong man of an hie stature, moze excellent then all they, and vpon euery one of his heades he set a crowne, and was euery higher and higher, whiche I marueled at greatly. So I asked the aungell and sayde: Syn what are these? he answered and sayde: vnto me: These be they that haue put of the mortalitee, and put on the immortall, and haue testifed and knowledged the name of God. Nowe are they crowned and receyue the reward.

Then sayd I vnto the aungell: what yong pion is it that crownech them, and spureth them the palmes in their handes? So he answered and sayd vnto me: It is the sonne of God, whome they haue knowledged in the woꝝde. Then began I greatly to commend him, that hadde so hygh for the name of the Loꝝde. And so the aungell sayd vnto me: Go thy waye and tell my people what maner of thynges, and how great wondrous of the Loꝝde thy God thou hast seene.

The wondrous woꝝkes whiche God dyd for the people are recyued. Esdras marueled that God wold the Babylonians to haue rule ouer his people, whiche yett are synners also.

CAPL.

III.

In the thirtie yere of the fall of the cty,
I was at Babylon, and sawe trouble vpon my bedde, and my thoughtes came vnto my herte: for I sawe the desolacyon of Syon, and the pientous wealth of them that dwelle at Babylon, and my sperte was for moue: so that I began to speake fearefull woꝝdes to the hyghes, & sayd: O Loꝝde, Loꝝde, thou spakest at the begynnyng, when thou plantedst the erth (and that the selfe alone) and gauest commaundment vnto the people, and a bodye vnto Adam, whiche was a creature of thy handes, and haste dycted in hym the thyng of lyfe: and so he lyued before the, and thou leddest him in to paradysse, whiche garden of pleasure thy ryghte hande had planted: o euer the earthe was made.
And vnto hym thou gauest commaundment to leue thy waye, whiche he transgressed, and immediatly thou appoyntedst death in hym, and in his generations. Of hym came many synners, synners people and kynredes out of number. And euery people walked after their owne will, and dyd nyce thynges before the, but the commandmentes they despyed. And in prouerbes of tyme, thou broughtest the water flood vpon those that dwelle in the woꝝde, and destroyedst them. And as the death was in Adam, so was the water flood also in the.
I haue belesche one of them thou ledest, euen as with his doubtlesse, of whome came all wicked men. And it happened, that when they dwelle vpon the earth began to increase, and hadde gotten many chylde, and were a greate people, they began to be more ungodly then the synners. Nowe when they al-lyued so wickedly before the, thou dydest chose the a man amonge them, whose name was Abraham. Hym thou loudest, and to him only thou shewedst thy will, and made an euerlasting couenaunt with him, pꝛoꝝp-singe hym thou woldest neuer forsake his seed. And vnto hym thou gauest Isaac, vnto Isaac also thou gauest Jacob and Esau. As for Jacob, thou dydest chose him, and put backe Esau. And so Jacob became a greate multitude.

And it happened that when thou leddest his seed out of Egypt, thou broughtest them vp to the mount Syon, bowynge downe the heauens, & styng fast the earthe, mourning the grounde, makinge the depths to shake, and troublinge the woꝝde: And thy glorie went thorow foure partes of fyre, and earth quakes, and wyndes, and colde: that thou myghtest geue the lawe vnto the seed of Jacob, and diligence vnto the generation of Israel. And yett thou not awake from the that myghtedst, that thy lawe myghte bring forth fruite in them. For the syt Adam bare a wyched herte, transgressed, and was ouer-come, and so be all they that are borne of him.
Thus remembꝛe wepnesse with the lawe in the herte of the people, with the wyched-nesse of the roote: so that the good departed awake, and the euill abode styll. So the tymes passed awaye, and the yeres were brought to an ende. Then dydest thou saye the by a seruaunte called Dauid, whome thou com-maundedst to buyde a wyfe vnto thy name, and to offe by incense and a sacrifice vnto the therein. This was doone now many yeres.
Then the inhabitants of the cty soughte the
and in all thynges did, euen as Adam, and all his generations had done: for they also had a wyched herte.

And so thou gauest the ctye oute in to the handes of thyne enemyes. See they of Babylon then better and more epythous then thy people, that they shall therefore haue the dominion of Syon: For when I came there, and sawe theye vngodlynesse, and so greate wychednesse that it coude not be nombꝛed:
yea, when my soule saw so many euill dares in the thirtie yere, my herte sayled me: for I saw how thou sufferedest them in such vngodlynesse, and sparest the wyched doers: but thyne owne people hast thou rooted out, and preserued thyne enemyes, and this hast thou not shewed me.

I can not perceyue howe this happe-neth. Doo they of Babylon then better then they of Syon? Or is there any other people, that knoweth the sayynge the people of Israel? Or what generation hath so dyced the couenauntes, as Jacob? And per theye re-warde appeareth not, and theye laboure hath no frute. For I haue gone here and there tho-rowe the heathen, and I se they be ryche and welthe, and theye not vpon thy commaundmentes.

Webb. 4. Wey

Wepe thou therefore our wickednesse now in the ballance, and thus also that dwelle in the world, and so shall thy name be no where founde, but in Iſraell. If thou were there a people vpon earth, that hadde not synned befoze the? Or what people hadde to kepe thy commandementes? Thou walte synde that Iſraell by name hadde kepe thy preceptes, but not the other people and heathen.

The Tengel expoweth Eſdras, because he seemed to curre. a to the profounde iudgement of God.

CAPL

IIII.

And the aungell that was sente unto me (whose name was Uriel) gaue me an answer, and sayd: Thy heart hath taken to moche vpon it in this world, and thou thyself to compasse the waye of the byrd. Then sayde I: Yea my Lord. And he answered me and sayde: I am sente to shewe the thyre wayes, and to set forth thyre similitude befoze the: whereof if thou canst declare me one, I will shewe the also the waye that thou desirest to see, and I shall shewe the where the wyrded herbe cometh. And I sayd: Tell on my Lord. Then sayd he vnto me: So thy waye, wepe me the weighte of the fyre, or measure me the blast of the wynde, or call me agayne the dape that is past. Then answered I and sayd: What man borne is habile to doo this? Why requyrest thou suche of me? And he sayd vnto me: If I should ake the, how depe dwellings are on the see? Or how greute water springes are vpon the tryma-ment? Or how greute water springes are in the begynnyng of the depe? Or whiche are the out goynge of Paradyse? Peradventure thou wouldest saye vnto me: I neuer wente downe yet in to the depe nor hel, neither oyd I euer climbe vp in to heuen. Answereth hee now haue I asked the but onlie of fyre and wynde, and of the dape thowome whiche thou halt traualled, and from whence thou canst not be fild: and yet canst thou geue me no answer of them.

He sayd moreover vnto me: Thyne owne thynges, and such as are growen by with the can thou not knowe: how shouldst thou be able to compasse the waye of the wyrd, and now outwardly in the corrupte world to vnderstande the corruption that is euident in my sight? Then sayde I vnto him: It were better we were not at all, then we should lyue in wickednesse, and suffice, a not to knowe wherfoze. He answered me and sayd: I wente in a woo, and the trees toke such a deuice and sayd: Come let vs go, and fyghe agaynst the see, that it maye departe awaye befoze vs, and that we may make vs yet moze wooddes. The floudes of the see also in like maner toke this deuice as sayd: Come let vs go up and fyghe agaynst the trees of the woodde, that we may make our lande the wyrd. The thought and deuice of the woodde was but vayne, and nothyng was the, for the fyre came and consumed the woodde: The thought of the floudes of the see came to kepe to nought, for the sand rode vp and stopped them. If thou wouldest iudge nowe bytwene these two, whom wouldest thou iustifie, or whom wouldest thou condemn? I answered and sayd: Clearly it is a folysh thought that they bothe haue had. For the grounde is giuen vnto the wyrd, and the see also hath his place to beare his floudes. Then answered he me and said: Thou hast giuen a right iudgement, why iudgest thou not thy selfe also? For lyke as the ground is giuen vnto the woodde, and the see to his floudes: euen so they that dwell vpon earth maye vnderstande nothing but that which is vpon earth: and he that dwelleth about the heuens, maye onely vnderstande the thynges that are about the heuens.

Then answered I and sayd: I desire the O Lord, let me haue vnderstandyng: for it was not my mynde to be curious of thy high thynges, but such as we dayly medle withal: namely, wherfoze that Iſraell is blasphe- mous of the Deathe, and for what cause the people (whome thou euer hast loued) is giuen ouer to be punished of vngodly nationes: and why the lawe of our fathers is brought to nought, and the mystryen counsailes come to nought, and we passe away out of the world as the geſtoppys, and our lyfe is a brep fyre, and we are not worthy to be eternally. What wyll he do then vnto his name, which is called vpon euer vs? Of these thynges haue I asked quethion.

Then answered he me and said: The more thou seest, the more thou shalt maraile, for the worlde hasterly falle to passe awaye, and can not compasse the thynges, that are promysed for vs: vngodly nationes come, for this world is full of vngodly nationes and wretchednesse.

But as concernyng the thynges wherof thou asked me, I will tell the. The cupyl is sowen, but the oſtendion therof is not yet come. If the cupyl now that is sowen, be not reuened by the dowe, and yet the place where the cupyl is sowen, passe not awaye, then can not the thyng come that is sowen with good. For the come of cupyl seide hadde ben sowen in the herbe of man ſeomete be- gynnynge, and how more vngodly nationes haue brought vp vnto this time? and how much shall he yet byngge forth vntill he come in to the barne?

And now by thy selfe, when the come of cupyl is cut downe, how great a barne shall it be? I answered and sayd: How and when shall these thynges come to passe? Wherfoze are our peres tyme and cupyl? And he answered me, sayinge: Hast thou then to moche vpon the byrd, for thy hapnesse to be about him is but vayne, thou makest to much ado. Dyd not the foules also of the right: and aske quethion of these thynges in thyr vayne- nesse, sayinge: How longe shall I hope of this facion? When cometh the sente of my barne, and my reward? And vpon this I answered met the Zechanigel gaue them answer, and sayd: Euen when the nombre of the seides is filled in you: for he hath weped the world in the ballance: in measure and nombre hath he measured the tyme, and moueth it not, vntill the same measure be fulfilled. Then answered I and sayd: O Lord, how are we all full of synne, and for our sakes perad- venture it is not that the barne of the right- ous shall not be filled, because of the synnes of them that dwell vpon the earth.

So he answered me and sayde: Soe thy waye to a woman with chylde, and aske of her when she hath fulfilled her tyme: mene- thyng, if she chylde be made kepe the byrd a- ny longer within her. Then sayd I: So Lord that can be not. And he said vnto me: In hel the secret places of ladies are lyke the priuy chamber of a woman. For lyke as a woman that tranuelyth, maketh haste when the time and necessity of the byrthe is at hande: So in the dothe we haue to deliuer it that is com- mitted vnto her. Like what thou desirest to see, shall be shewed the from the begynnyng. Then answered I and sayde: If I haue founde fauour in thy sight, and if it be pos- sible, and if I be meete therfoze, shewe me the whether there be moze to come then is passe, or more passe then is for to come? What is passe I knowe: but what is for to come, I knowe not.

And he sayd vnto me: Stande by vpon the right syde, and I shall expounde the similitude vnto the. So I rode, and beholde, an hie burnpage ouen wente ouer befoze me: and it happened that when the flambe was gone by, the smoke hadde the upper hande. After this there wente ouer befoze me a wa- try cloude, and sent downe moche rayne with a hoyme: and when the hoyme rayne was past, the droppes remained still. Then sayde he vnto me: Lyke as the rayne is moze then the droppes, and as the fyre excadeth the smoke: euen so the measure of the thynges that are past, hadde the upper hande. Then said the droppes and the smoke about: and I sayed and sayde: Maye I lyue (thyngest thou) vntill that tyme? Or what shall hap- pen in those dayes? He answered me, and sayde: As for the tokens wherof thou asked me, I may tell the of them in a parte: but as touchyng the lyfe, I may not shewe the, for I am not sent therfoze.

Eſdras and the Tengel comen together.

V.

Next heſſe, as concernyng the tokens make this. Beholde, the dayes shall come, that they which dwell vpon earth shall be taken in a great nombre, and the way of the truth shall be byrd, and the lande shall be barren from sayd, but iniquite shall haue the upper hande. lyke as thou hast seene now, and as thou hast herd long ago. And the land that thou seest now to haue life, shall be thow- ously waste. But if God graunte the to lyue, thou shalt see after the thryde tyme, that the sunne shall suddenly synne away in the nyght, and the mone three tymes in a day, and bloude shall drop out of wood, and if some shall geue his hope, and the people shall be vngodly: and euen he shall rule, whome they hope not that dwell vpon earth, and the foules shall flyt, and the Sommitly see shall cast out his fish, and make a noise in the night, which many shall not know, but they shall all heere the voyce therof.

There shall be a confusion also in many places, and the fere shall be ofte sent agayne, and the wyld beastes shall go their way, and in- struous women shall beare wonders, and salt waters shall be found in the sweete one: frend shall fight agaynst an other, then shall all trust and vnderstandyng be byrd and put aside in to their secrete places, and shall be sought of many, and yet not be founde: then shall vngodly- founesse, and voluptuousnesse haue the upper hande vpon earth. One lande also shall aske an other and saye: Is rightousnes gone thowow the? And it shall say, no. At the same tyme shall men hope, but nothinge obteyne: they shall labour, but their wayes shall not prosper.

To shewe the suche tokens I had seue, and if thou wilt pray agayne, and wepe as now, and fast seue dayes, thou shalt heere yet greater thynges. When I awaked, and a fearful- nesse went thowow al my body, and my minde was feble and carefull, so that I almost sow- ned withal. So the aungell thowas come to talke with me, helpe me, comforte me, & let me by vpon my fere.

And in the seconde nyght it happened, that Salathiel the Capitayne of the people came vnto me, sayinge: Where haste thou bene? and why is thy countenance so haw? Knowest thou not that Iſraell is committed vnto the in the lande of the captiuitie? Thy then and eat, and forsake vs not, as the wyrd- herde that leaueh his flocke in the handes of wycked men. Then sayd I vnto him: Go thy waye fro me, and come not nye me: and he herd it, and as I sayd, so went he his waye fro me.

And so I fasted seuen dayes, mournynge and weepynge, lyke as Uriel the aungell com- manded me. And after seuen dayes, it hap- pened that the thoughtes of my heart were verie greuous vnto me agayne, and my soule receyued the spirite of vnderstandyng, and I beganne to talke with the mooste hyghell agayne, and sayd: O Lord, Lord, of eue- ry woodde of the earth, and of all the trees therof, thou haste chosen the one onely byne- yard, and of al landes of the hole world thou hast chosen the one pyt: and of all floures of the ground, thou hast chosen the one ioy: and of all the depthes of the see, thou hast fylled the one ryuer: and of all buylded cyties thou hast halowed syon vnto thy selfe: and of all the foules that are created, thou hast namd the one toue: and of al the catel that are made.

Web.ij. thou

thou had provided the one theye, and among all the multitudes of folkys, thou hadst gotten the one people, and unto this people thou hadst thou gawest a lawe that is proued of all.

And now, O Lorde, why hadst thou given this one people oute unto many? and upon the one coue thou hadst prepared others, and why hadst thou scattered thy one onely people among many? why hadst thou treade them downe, yea why hadst thou euer withstande thy promys, and neuer vpleued thy couenantes? And though thou wouldest ransome vnto the people yet wouldest thou punishe them with thynne owne handes.

Now when I had spokē these wordes, the angel that came to me the nyght afore, was sent vnto me and sayde vnto me: Heare me &arken to the thynges that I saye, and I shall tell thee more. And I sayd: Speke on my Lorde. Then sayd he vnto me: Thou art soze vexed and troubled for Israels sake. Wouldest thou people better than him that made them? And I sayd: No Lorde, but of verie greefe & compassion haue I spoken. For my reynes payne me euer houre, because I wolde haue experience of the waye of the most high, & to seeke out part of his iudgement. And he sayde vnto me: That thou mayst not. And I sayd: Wherefore Lorde? Wherefore was I borne then? O why was not my mothers chylde then my grace? So had I not sene & miserie & trouble of Jacob, and the traueyle of my people of Israel.

And he sayd vnto me: Nembze me the thynges that are not yet come / gather me together & droppe that are scattered abrode: make me the flowers getne agayne that are withered: open me the thynges that are closed: and bypunge me forth the thynges that are whete by: shewe me the pynge of a voyce, & then shall I declare the, the thynges that thou labourest to know. And I sayd: O Lorde, Lorde who maye knowe these thynges, but he that hath not his dwellinge with men? As for me I am vntowse: Howe maye I then speake of these thynges wherof thou asked me. Then sayd he vnto me: I like as thou canst be none of these thynges that I haue spoken of, euen so canst thou not fynde out my iudgement, or in the ende the loue that I haue promised vnto my people.

And I sayd: beholde, O Lorde, yet art thou nye vnto them that haue no end: and what shall they doo that haue bene before me, or we that be nowe, or they that shall come after vs? And he sayde vnto me: I wyll loken my iudgement vnto a tynge. Like as there is no slacknesse of the lawe, euen so is there no slacknesse of the fyre. So I answered and sayde: Wouldest thou not make those (that haue bene made, and that be nowe, and that are for to come) in one, that thou myghtest shewe thy iudgement the sooner? Then answered he me and sayde: The creature maye not haue aboute the maker, neyther maye the worlde holde them at ones, that shall be created.

And I sayde: Howe haue thou sayde them vnto thy seruante, that thou hast made the creature lyunge at ones, and the creature bare it? euen so might it now also beate them that be present at ones. And he sayde vnto me: Aske the chylde of a woman, and saye vnto her: If thou byrdest for the chylde, why dost thou it not for thyself, but one after another? Praye her therefore to byrre forth ten chylde at ones. And I sayd: He can not, but muste do it one after another.

Then sayd he vnto me: Euen so haue I gyuen a chylde vnto the earth, forsoke that be sowne vpon it by pynesse of tyme. For lyke as a yonge chylde maye not byrre forth the thynges that belonge to the earth, euen so haue I ordeyned the worlde wher I made.

And I asked and sayde: Seinge thou hadst nowe gyuen me awaye, I wyll speake before the: for our mother of whom thou hadst tolde me, is yet younge, and nowe she shal be vnto age. He answered me and sayd: Aske a woman that beareth chylde, and she shal tell the. Saye vnto her: Wherefore art thou not chylde (whome thou hast nowe brought forth) lyke those that were before the, but lesse of stature: and she shal aunswere the: They that be borne in the pynche of strenght, are of one facion: and they that are borne in the tyme of age (when the chylde be sapelye) are of another facion. Consydre nowe thy selfe, howe that thou art lesse of stature than those that were before you, and so are they that come after you like then ye, as the creatures whiche nowe begyn to be olde, and haue passed ouer the strenght of yowthe. Then sayde I: Lorde I beseeche the, if I haue founde fauoure in thy syde, shewe thy seruante, by whome dost thou bypse the creature?

The Angel instructed Edras, and gawest him answere to his questions.

And he sayde vnto me: In the begynnyng when the grounde was made: before the worlde was, or euer the windes blew, before it thundered and lightened, or euer foundations of Paradise were layde, before the fyer flowers were sene, & euer & manerly powers were stablyshed, before the innumerable multitude of angels were gathered together, or euer the dynnesse of the aye were lyfted vp, afore the measures of the firmament were named, or euer the chymneys in Sion were bore, and euer the present peeces were sought oute, and euer the inuencions of them that now lyue were put asyde, before they were sealed that nowe gather sapte for a tecture: then I consydre and ponder all these thynges, and they all were made thowme me, and thowme none other, by me also they be ended, & by none other.

Then answered I and sayde: whiche shall be the partyng of the tynes? O when shall be the ende of the fyre. and the begynnyng of it that foloweth? And he said vnto me: From Abraham vnto Isaac, when Jacob and Esau were borne of him, Jacobs hande be the fyre the hyle of Esau: for Esau is the ende of this worlde, and Jacob is the begynnyng of it that foloweth. The hande of man betwixt the hyle and the hande. O the question (Esdras) aske thou not.

I answered then, and sayde: O Lorde, if I haue founde fauoure in thy sight I beseeche the, shewe thy seruante the ende of thy tokens, wherof thou shewdest me parte the last nyght. So he answered and sayd vnto me: Stande vp vpon thy fete, and heare the perfecte voyce and sounde. There shall come a greete motion, but the place wher thou standest shall not be moued. And therefore when thou hearst the wordes, be not affrayde: for of the ende shall the worlde and foundaciō of the earth be vnderstande. And why? the worlde therof trembleth and quaketh for it knoweth, that it muste be chaunged at the ende. And it happened, that wher I had herd it, I rode vp vpon my fete, and herd: and beholde there was a voyce that spake, & the sounde of it was lyke the sounde of many waters, and it sayde. Beholde, the dayes come, that I wyll begynne to drame nyght, and to bypse them that dwell vpon earth, and wyll begynne to make inquisitiō of them, what they be that hurt euylte with wyrghtounes, and when the lowe estate of Sion shall be fulfilled: and when the worlde that shall vanishe awaye, shall be ouerscaled, then wyll I do these tokens.

The bookes shall be opened before the firmament, and they shall be all together, & the chylde of a yere olde shall speake with their voyces: the women with chylde shall bring forth vntymely chylde: of thre or foure monethes olde, and they shall lyue, & be raysed by: & suddenly shall the sowne places appeare as the blosme, the ful floe houses shall suddenly be founde emptye, and the trumpet shall geue a sounde, whiche when euer man heareth, they shall be hastily affrayde. At that tyme shall frendes fight one against another like enemies, and the earth shall stande in feare with them.

The springes of the welles shall stande dryll, and in thre houres they shall not renne. Whosoeuer remayneth fro all these thynges that I haue tolde the, shall escape, and be my saluacion, and the ende of your worlde. And the men that are receyued, shall see it, they that haue not tasted death frome they: byrth: and the hert of the indwellers shall be chaunged, and turned into another meaning: for euill shall be put out, & dysceyte shall be quenched: as for sayth, it shall floe, the corrupciō shalbe ouer come: and the truth, whiche hath bene so longe withoute frute, shalbe declared. And it happened when he tolde this, that I looked demurely vpon him, before whome I rode, and these wordes sayde he vnto me: I am come to shewe the, the tyme of nyght for to come.

If thou wilt praye yet more, and fast seuen dayes agayne, I shall tell the more thynges, and greater then before: for thy voyce is heard before the highest: for why? the mighte hath sene thy righteous dealinge, he hath sene also thy chastyte, whiche thou hast had euer sence thy youth: and therefore hath he sent me to shewe the all these thynges, and to saye vnto the: Be of good comfort, & feare not, and haue not with the tynes that are past to thynke vayne thynges, and make not haste of the latter tynes.

And it happened after this, that I wrote agayne, and fasted seuen dayes in lyke maner that I myght fulfill the thre weekes, whiche he tolde me. In the eyght night was my hert vexed within me agayne, and I beganne to speke before the highest: for my spirite was greatly set on fyre, and my soule was in distress, and I sayde: O Lorde, thou spakest vnto thy creature from the begynninge: euen the fyre daye and saydest: Let heauen and earth be made, and thy worlde was a perfecte worke. And then was there the spirite, and the darknesse were yet on euery syde, and silence: there was no mans voyce as yet fro the. Then commaundest thou a fyer lyght to come forth out of thy treasures, that the worlde myght appeare and be sene.

Upon the seconde daye thou madest the spirite of the firmament, and commaundedst it to parte a sundre, and to make a deuision betwixt the waters, that the one part myght remayne aboue, and the other beneath. Upon the thre daye thou broughtest to passe, that the waters were gathered in the south parte of the earth: sixe partes hast thou dryed vp and kept them, to chynent that men myghte sowe and occupie husbandrye therein. As soone as thy worlde went forth, the worlde was made. For immediatly there was great innumerable frutes, and manye dyuers pleasures and deyses of temptacion, floures of chaungeable colour and smel, and this was done the thre daye.

Upon the fourth daye thou commaundedst that the sonne should geue his hyne, and the moone her lyght: the starres bydest thou set in ordre, and gawest them a charge: to do seruyce eue vnto man: that was for to be made. Upon the fyft daye thou saydest vnto the seuen part: wher the waters were gathered: that they shulde bypunge forth the dyuerse beastes, foules, & fyshes. And so it came to passe, that the dom water & withoute soule, brought forth lyunge beastes at the commaundement of God, that all people myghte prayse thy wonderous workes. And he diddest thou preserue two soules, the one I calledst Enoch and the other Lemethan, & bydest separate the one fro the other: for the south parte, namely, wher the water was gathered together, myght not holde them bothe. Vnto Enoch thou gawest one parte, whiche was dryed by the thre daye, that he shulde dwell in the same parte, wher in are a thou-

CAPT. VII.

And it happened after that I had spoke out these wordes, there was sent vnto me an aungell, whiche had bene by me also the yeghres afore, and he sayd vnto me: Rise vp soe, and heare the wordes that I am come to tell the. And I sayd: speake vnto Lorde my God. Then sayd he vnto me: The lee is litle in a wyde place, that it myght be depe and great: but the entraunce is narrow and small like a ryuer. For who wolde goo into the lee, to loke vpon it, and to tulle it?
If he went not thowhe the narrowe, howe myght he come into the brooke?

Item an other: A cyer is hupided and sette vpon a hynde teldre, and is full of goodes: the entrance is narrowe and fodeyn, lyke as if there were a eye at the ryght hande, and a bryte water at the left, and as it were onely one threape pathe betwixke them bothe, so small that there coude but one mā go thre.

¶ It this yett now were giuen to an heire, & he neuer went thowme the perilsous waye, howe wolde he recyue his inheritaunce? And I saye: it is so Lorde. Then sayd he: Then so is iſrael alſo a poore. And wherfor they ſake haue I made the waye: and when Adam tranſgreſſed my ſtatutes, then was the thynge iudged that was done. Then were the entraunces of the waye made narrow, full of ſorrowe and trouble: They are due ſewe and euell, full of perils and labour.

For the entraunces of the face woulde were wyde and sure, and brought immortal frute:
If they now which entered in this world maye not comprehend these straite and bayne thynges, moche lesse may they comhende and vnderstande the secret thynges: Why trauailest thou thy selfe then, saying thou arte but a corruptible man? And what mouldst thou knowe, where as thou arte but mortal? And why haile thou not ioyfully to thine owne herte the thyng that is to come, but that is present?

Then sayd J: O Lorde Lorde, thou haue b ordered in thy lawe, that þe ryghtous shoulde inherite thise thynges, but that the vnfaithfull and vngetyfe write perjury. And ther fore the ryghtous shall suffice thynge and hope for wyde: for they that haue leaue vngetyfe and suffred heauye thynges, shal not see the wyde.

And he sayd vnto me: There is no fudge about God, & none that hath vnderstanding about the hysell. for there be many that presyphe, becauise they despise the lawe of God that is witten before them. for God hath geuen strytle commaundmēt to such as come, that they know what they do, and how they shulde līue: and yet they kept this they shuld not be punysshed.

Reuerendest they were not obedient to him, but spake agaynst hym: ymagyndayne tynges, and purposed to synne, & sayd moreouer that there was no God, and that God regarded it not. his wayes haue they not knowne/his lawe haue they despised, & denyed his promys: In his statutes and o-beynances vane they not ben faithfull and fidelitie, and haue not presumed his commandment.

And therefore Elias, vnto the full plenty, and to the empty, emynesse. Beholde, the tyme shall come, that those tokens which I haue tolde you, shall come to passe, and the byrde shall appere: and the earth that now passeth away, shall be shewed: and whosoever is deliuered from the foresaid euilles, shall see my wonders. For my sonne Iesus shall open his declare, with those that be with hym: and they that remaine, shall be in mercy in foure hundred years.

After these same peares shall my sonne & Thysse be, and all men that haue life, and the worlde shall be turned into the obli-uion, by dayes, yea as in the fore iudgment so that no man shall remayne. And after thi-dayes, the worlde that yet awaketh not, that be cayed vp, and shall be corrupte. And he eache shall restore those that haue sinned in her, and so shall the dust those that dwell in silence, and the secret places shall deli-uer those that be committed vnto them. And the moste part shall be open, y^e declared vpon seats of iudgement, and all my tery shall be nyshe away, and longe suffering shall be thetted together. But the iudgment shall retenu, the rumber shall remayne, and sayne shall waxe stronge, the worke shall rebolue and the reward shall be the woe, the wof-fuulnesse shall warcke, and y^e vntygallnes-ses shall beate no rule.

Then says 3: Abraham prayed for the the Sodomiters, and Moles for the fathers that sinned in wyldernes, & he that came after him for Israel, in the tyme of Achas and Samuel: and Dauid for the destruccyon, and Solomon for them that came in to the Sanctuary, and Elias for those that receiued same and for the deede, that he myght lyeue: and E-zechias for the people in the tyme of Senna-chib: and diuers other in lyke maner, which have prayed for many.

Sum nowe spunge the corrupte is growe by, and myracles increased, and the pygh-ious have prayed for the vngodly, wherefore shall it not be so nowe also?

He answered me, and sayd: This present world is not the end: there remaineth much honour in it, therfore haue they prayd for y triste. But the hope of dome shalbe the ende of this tyme, and the beginning of immor-talitie for to come, wherein al corrupcyon, banished, al superuouines is lowed al mispense taken a way cryghouinesse growne, & by the bruce sponge bp. Then shall no m^a be habile to loue by m^a that is deuyced, nor to opprelle him that hath gotten the bytropy.

I answered then, and sayd: This is my case and I say thus: that it had ben better, not to haue opened the cart bynto Adam: or els whē it was gauen him, to kepe him ſ he wuld not ſinne. For what promiſe is it for men now in this preſent tyme to lye in heuynes, and after deat to loke for punyſhment? O thou Adam, what haſt thou done? For though it waſt thou that ſinned, thou arte not fallen alone, but we all that come of the. For what proſper wete li bynto vs, yf there be promyſed vs an immortall tyme, where as we medde with deadly worke: ſ? and that there is promyſed vs an euell ſpange hope, where as we ouſe ſciſus are euill and vayne? For that there are laide vp for vs dwellinges of health and freedome, where as we haue lyued euill? and that the wayſhopp of the hells is kepte to deſtroye them, which haue ledde a pacyent yſe where as we haue walked in the moſte tyer-red wayes of all? And ſ there ſhalbe ſetwed a paradiſe, whoſe fruite endureth for euer, wherein is freedome and medecyne, where as we ſhall not goo in? For we haue walked in diſpleaſant places: And that the faces of the wyche haue abyſſed, ſhal ſhynne about the ſunne, where as our faces ſhalbe blacke and dark: For whyle we lyued and dyd vanyſh tynge, we conſidered not, that we ſhoulde ſuffre therfore after deat?

Then answered he me, and sayd: This is the comfortacion & thought of the batapic, whiche man hath vpon earth: that yf he be o-uercome, he shall suffice as thou hast sayde.
But yf he geete the victorie, he shall receyue the thynge that I saye. For this is the lyfe, whiche Moyses spake vnto the people, whyle he lyued, saying: A hole the lyfe, & thou maist lyue. Nevertheless they helpeyd him not, nether the Prophetes after him. No nor me which haue spoken vnto them, that heynes shalde not reach vnto them: to the; dedre= man lyke as I saye is for to come ouer those,

that have suffered them selves to be enfolded in salvation.

I answered then and sayd: I knowe Lorde, that the brest is mercifull, in that he hath mercy vpon them, which are not yet in the worlde, and vpon those also that walcke in his lawe: and that he is patient and longe sufferinge, towardes those that haue sinned in theyr yokes: and that he is liberal to great where as it requirerh: and that he is of great mercy, for he multiplieth his longye kynd-nesses towardes those that are present, and that are past, & to the whiche are for to come. for yf he multiplie not his mercyes, I wold shall not be made lpyunge, with those that dwel therein: He graunteth also, for yf he gaue not of his goodnesse, that they whiche haue done euell, myght be saved, the ten thousand partes of men shulde not be made lpyunge.
And yf the iudge forgaue not those that be healed with his word, and yf he wold destroy the multitude that cryeth, there shulde be very fewe left in an innumerable multitude,

Aldose prayeth God, rather to looke vpon his owne mercy, than on the sinnes of the people.

CAPL. VIII.

And he answered me, sayinge: The most hysse made this worlde for many, but the worlde so come for fewe.
I will tell the a simplicitude, Ecclias. 1. 2. As w^{ch} thou askest the earth, it shall saye vnto the,
that it geueth moche moulde, where of earthen vessels are made, but litle of it that gold cometh of, Ecclias. 1. 2. Even so is it with þ^e worlde of this worlde. There be many created, Math. xx. 16.
but fewe shall be p^{er}serued. Ecclias. 1. 2. Then answered I and saye: Then shall we v^{er}ie v^{er}ie the w^{ch} (thou saist) I desire the vnderstande, for thou art agreed to hearken and to geue eare, and wyllyng to prophesie: for thou hadst no longer space geuen þ^e, but only to tyme. O Lorde mye thou dost not geue thy seruants leaue, that we may pray before thee, and that thou mayst geue leaue vnto our herte, and buyld our babelles and byng, that there may come sente of it: and that euerie one which is corrupte, and beareth the state and place of a man, maye p^{er}seue.

For thou art alone, & we al are one worke-manship of thy handes, lyke as thou haſte ſayd, and lyke as the body is faſhionned nowe in the chyldbed, and thou grewed the members, and thy creature is preſerued in fyre & water: and .ii. monethes bothe thy worke ſuffice thy creature, which is faſhionned in her but the thyng that preſerueth and it that is preſerued, ſhall bothe be kepte together: and when tyme is, the chyldbedbed deliuereth the thyng, that is kepte and growne in her.

For thou hast commaunded the birds to mike unto the faine, & the thyng which giue is created and fashioned, may be nourished for a tyme: and than thou byposist and ordrest it with thy mercy, byngest it by with the spoke

righteousnes, nurture it in thy lawe, and reforme it with thy vnderstandynge, moztified it as thy creature, and make it lyvinge as thy worke. Seeinge then that thou hast created hym, which with so greute laboure is created and fashioned thowme thy commaundement, thou couldest lyghtly ordeyne, also that the thyng whiche is made, myght be preserved.

And this I speake now of all men in generall, as thou knowest: but of thy people, for whose sake I am sorowful: and of thy inheritance: for whose cause I mourne, and of Israel, for whose sake I am wofull: and for Jacob, for whose sake I am grieved: therefore begynne I to praye before the, for my selfe and for them, for I see the fall of vs, even of vs, dwelle byd earth. But I have herd the sweetnes of thy iudge, which is to come: therefore heare my voyce, and vnderstand my wordes, and I will speake before the.

This is the begynnyng of the wordes of Esdras, before he was receyved: O Lorde, thou that dwellest in euerlastyngnes, whose eyes are lyft up in the ayre, whose sight is exceedinge hie, whose gloire and maiesty maye not be comprehended, before whose face the cherubims of heauen stand with trembling, whose heping is turned in wynde and fyre, whose word is true, whose sayng is as redde, whose commaundement is stronge, whose ordeynance is fearfull, whose loke aspyeth by the depthes, whose wyth maketh the mountaynes to melt awaye, and whose truth beareth witness: O heare the prayes of thy seruant, and make with thyne eares the petition of thy creature.

For while I lyue, I will speake, and so longe as I haue vnderstandynge, I will answer. O loke not vpon the synnes of thy people, whiche serue in the trowth. Haue no respecte vnto the wicked studies of the heithen, but to the desyre of those that kepe thy testimonies with soowes. Think not vpon those that haue walked faynely before the, but vpon them, which wyl haue knowe thy feare.

Let it not be thy wyl to destroye the whiche haue had beastly maners, but to loke vpon them that haue clearly taught thy lawe. Take thou no indignacion at them, whiche are worse then beastes: but loue them, that alway put their trust in thy rightousnes and gloire: for we and our fathers haue all the same synnes and disease but because of our synnes thou shalt be called mercifull.

For if thou hast mercy vpon vs, thou shalt be called mercifull, where as we haue no workes of rightousnes: for the rightous which haue layde by many good workes together that out of their dees receiue reward. For what is man, that thou shouldest take displeasure at him? O what is the corruptible mortal generation, that thou shouldest be so rough toward him?

For of a truth there is no man amoges the that be borne, but he hath dealt wickedly:

and amoges the faythful there is none, whiche hath not done amysse. For I this O Lorde thy rightousnes and thy goodnes shall be prayed and declared, yf thou be mercifull vnto them, whiche are not ryght in good workes.

Then answered he me and sayde: Some thynges hast thou spoken a right, and accorde vnto thy word: it shall be. For I will not verely consyde the workes of the, whiche haue sinned before death, before the iudgement, before destruction, but I will reioyce ouer the worke & thought of the rightous. I wyl remembre also the pilgrimage the holy makinge and the reward. As for as I haue spoken now so shall it come to passe. For as the husbilde man planteth moche fede vpon the ground, and planteth many trees, and yet alwaye the thyng that is sowne of platted is not al kept safe, neither doth it al take rote: Euen so is it of them that are sowne in the worlde, they shall not all be preserved.

I answered then and sayd: If I haue found grace, then let me speake. As for as the husbilde mans fede perysheth, if it receiue not rayne in due season, or if there come to moche rayne vpon it: Euen so perysheth man also, whiche is created with thy handes, and is like vnto thine owne image & to thy self. For whose sake thou hast made all thynges, and lykened him vnto the husbilde mans fede. Be not wroth at vs, O Lorde, but spare thy people, and haue mercy vpon thine owne inheritance: O be mercifull vnto thy creature.

Then answered he me and sayde: Thynges present are for the present thynges to come: for such as be to come. For thou wouldest moche, seinge thou maydest loue my creature about me: I haue oft tymes dytome nigh vnto the, but neuer to the vnrightous. In this also thou art maruelous before the hyghest in that thou hast humbled thy selfe as it becometh the, and hast not regarded thine owne selfe, that thou art had in such honour amoges the rightous. Therefore shall great wretchednes and mysfere come vpon them, that in the latter tyme shall dwell in the worlde, for they haue walked in great pryde.

But vnderstande thou for thy selfe, a like out gloire for such as be like the: for vnto you is paradise opened, the tre of lyfe is platted, the tyme to come is prepared, plantousnes made readye as it is buylded for you, and a rest is prepared, yea peryfite goodnes and myshame. The rote of euill is marked from you, the weaknes and moche in hyd is you, and into hell flyeth corruption in forgesitnes. Sorowes are banysed awaye, and the ende is shewed the treasure of immortall lyfe. And therefore aske thou no more questions, concerning the multitude of them that perysh. For they haue taken lybertye, despised the hyghest, thought scorn of his lawe, and forsaken his wordes.

Howeuer, they haue troden vnto the rightous, and sayd in their heart, that there is no is no God, yea and that wytyngly, for they are. For lyke as the thyng that I haue spoken of, is made ready for you: Euen so is thurst and payne prepared for them. For it was not his wyl that man shoulde come to nought: but they whiche be created, haue despised the name of him that made them, & are vnto back-fall vnto him, which prepared lyfe for them. And therefore is my iudgement now at hand. These thynges haue I not shewed vnto all men, but vnto fewe: namely vnto the, and such as be lyke the.

Then answered I and sayde: Beholde O Lorde, now hast thou shewed me the multitude of the tokens, whiche thou wylt begyn to do at the last: but at what tyme and what thou hast not shewed me.

Esdras hath byspone shewed vnto hym.

CAP. IX.

Then answered he me then and sayde: Beasure thou the tyme diligently in it self when thou seest that one part of the tokens come to passe, whiche I haue tolde the before: so shalt thou vnderstande, that it is the very same tyme when the hyghest wyl bypynne to bylet the worlde, which he made.

And when there shall be sene earthquake and vjroze of the people in the worlde, then shalt thou well vnderstande, that the moost hygh spake of those thynges, from the dayes that were before the, euen from the beginning.

For lyke as all that is made in the worlde, hath a begynnyng and ende, and the ende is manifest: Euen so the tymes also of the hyghest haue playne begynnynges in wordes and tymes, and the ende in workynge and in tokens. And euery one that shall be saved, and shall be able to escape by his workes and by saythe, wherein he haue beleued, shall be preserved from the sayde perils, and shall be my labour in my lande and within my borders, for I haue halowed me from the worlde. Then shall they be in carefulesse, whiche now haue abused my wayes: and they that haue cast them out despytfully, shall dwell in paynes.

For such as in their lyfe haue receiued benedictions, and haue not knowe me, and they that haue abhorred my lawe, while they had yett freedom, and when they had yett open volume of amercement and conuersyon, and vnderstande not: but despised it: the same must knowe it after death in payne. And therefore be thou no more carefull: howe the vngodly shall be punished, & howe the rightous shall be saved, and whose the worlde is, & for whose the worlde, and when it is. Then answered I and sayde: I haue tolde the before, and now I shalke, and wylt speake also hereafter, that there be many mo of them whiche perysh, than shall be saved, lyke as the flood is greater then the dryppes.

And he answered me, sayinge: lyke as the flood is also the fede: as the founteyne be so are the colours also: such as the workman is also the worke: and as the husbilde man is him selfe, so is his husbilde also, for it was the tyme of the worlde. And when I prepared for them that are now, or euer the worlde was made, wherein they shoulde dwell, then was there no man that withstode me. Now when euery one was, and the make also in the worlde whiche is now prepared, & the money that ceaseth not, and the lawe which is vnsearchable, they maners were corrupte. So I consyded the worlde, and beholde, there was perill, because of the thoughtes that were come in to it. And I saw, and spared them greatly, and haue kepte me a wynebery of the grapes, and a plant from among many generacions. Let the multitude perysh then, whiche are growen by in payne, and let my grape and wynebery be kepte: euen my plant: for with great labour haue I made it up.

Neuertheless yf thou wylt take vpon the yett seuen dayes mo (but thou shalt not fast in them) go thy waye then in to the felde of floures, where no house is buylded, and eate only of the floures of the felde, fast nor fleshy, drinke no wyne, but eate floures only. Pray vnto the hygh continually, so wylt I come, and take with the.

So I went my waye, and came in to the felde which is called Ardath (lyke as he commaunded me) and there I late among the floures: and ate of the herbes of the felde, and the meate of the same satisfied me. After seuen dayes, I late vpon the grasse, & my herte was vexed within me lyke as afore, and I opened my mouth, and began to talke before the hygh, and sayde: O Lorde, thou that dwellest thy self vnto vs, thou hast declared and opened thy self vnto our fathers in thy wyldernes, in a place where no man dwelleth, in a barren place, when they came out of Egypt, and thou spakest, sayinge: Heare me O Israel, and mark my wordes thou seide of Jacob. Beholde, I sawe my lawe in you, and it shall bypynne frute in you, and ye shall be honoured in it for euer. For our fathers which receiued the lawe, kepte not, and obserued not thy ordinaunces and statutes, and the frute of thy lawe was not declared: for it myght not, for why? it was thyne. For they that receiued it peryshed, because they kepte not the thynges that was sowne in them.

It is a custome when the ground receiuethe seed, or the see a shipp, or a vessel meate and drynke, that when it perysheth or is broken, wherein a thyng is sown, or wherein any thing is put: the thynges also peryshe & are byroke, which are sowne or put therein. But vnto vs it hath not happened so: for we that haue receiued the lawe, perysh in synne, and our brethren whiche also receiued the lawe: not withstanding the lawe perysheth not, but remaineth in his labour.

And when I considered these thynges in my herte after this maner, I looked about me vnto myne eyes, and vpon the right hyde, I saw a woman, whiche mourned sore, made great lamentacion, and wepte with loude voyce: her clothes were rent in peces, & she had had affes upon her heade:

Then let I my thoughtes go, & I was in, and turned me vnto her, & sayde: wherfore wepest thou? why art thou so forp and discomforted? And she said vnto me: Sye, let me bewaile my selfe and take yet more sorow: for I am soe bereid in my mynde, and broughte very lowe. And I sayde vnto her: what ayleth the? O: who hath done any thing to thee? She sayde: I haue bene vntruffull and barren, and haue had an husbnde thyrty yeres. And these thyrty yeres I do nothyng els daye & night and al fourcs, but make my prayer to the highest. After thyrty yeres God herde me thy handmayden, looked vpon my mystry, conspyred my trouble, and gaue me a sonne, and I was glad of him, so was my husbnde also, and all my neighbours and we gaue greates honoure vnto the myghtye. And I noryshed him in great trauaile. So when he grew vp, and came to the tyme that he shulde haue a wyfe, I made a feast.

Esdras and the woman that appeareth vnto him common together.

CAPL. X.

And it happened that when my sonne went in to his chambere, he fell downe and dyed, then ouerthrew we all the lyghtes, and all my neyghbours rose vp to comforte me. Then toke I my rest vnto the second day at night: & when they had al rested that they myghte comforte me, I rested also, and rose vp by nyght, and fled, and am come hither in to this feilde, as thou seist: and am purposed not to come in the cytye, but to remayne here, and neither to eate ne drinke but continually to mourne and to fast, vntyll I dye.

Then let I my meditations and thoughtes fall, that I was in, and spake to her in displeasure: Thou folysthe woman, seist thou not our heuynesse and mournyng, & what happeneth vnto vs? howe Zion our mother is al wofull and sorre, and howe she is cleane brought downe and in mystrye: scringe we be all now in heuynesse, and make our mone (for we be all sorowfull) As for the heuynesse that thou takest, it is but for one sonne. Demaunde the earth, and she shall tell the: & it is she which oughte by reaso, to mourne for the fall of so manye that growe vpon her.

For from the begynnyng al men are borne of her, and other shall come: and beholde, they walke al moste all in to destruction, and many of them shall be rote out.

Who shulde then by reason make more mournyng, then she, that hath lost so greates a multitude? and not thou, which art sorre but for one. But yf thou woldest saye vnto me: My mournyng is not lyke the mournyng of the earth, for I haue lost the frute of my body, which I bere with heuynesse: but the earth is accordege to the maner of the earthe, & the present multitude groweth agayne into her, as it is come to passe: Then saye I vnto the: I he as thou hast doyne with trauaile and sorow, turn to the earth also, for the begynnyng groweth her frute vnto man, for him I made her. And therefore withholde thy sorow and heuynesse by thy selfe, and loke what happeneth vnto the, beate it strange. For yf thou indigest the marche and ende of God to be ryghtous and good, and receyue his counsell in tyme, thou shalt be commended therein. So thy way then into the cytye to thy husbnde.

And he sayd vnto me: that wyl not do, I wyl not go into the cytye, but beate wyl I saye. So I comoned more with her, and sayde: Do not so, but be counsellid, and folowe me: for how manye fallies hath Zion? Be of good courage because of the sorow of Jerusalem, for thou seist that our Sanctuary is layd waste, our altire broken, our temple destroyed, our playng of instruments and syngynge layde downe, the chancke of cupynge put to silence, sure mythe is banished awaye the light of our candelstykke is quenched, & one of the couenaunte is taken from vs, all our holy thynges are despyled, and the name that is called vpon our vs, is dishonoured: our chyldren are put to shame, our prestes are burnt, our Leuites are carped awaye in to captiuyte, our byrgens are despyled, and our wyues caustred, our ryghtous men spoyled, and our chyldren defiled, our yong me are brought in bondage, and our stronge moostyes are become weak: and Zion (which is the greatest of all) is looked by from her towre: for she is deliuered into the handes of them that hate vs.

And therefore make of thy greates heuynesse, and put awaye the multitude of sorowes: that the myghtye maye be mercifull vnto the, and that the byrgens maye geue the rest from thy labour and trauaile. And it happened, that when I was talkynge with her, her face dyd wyse and glyste, so that I was ashyd of her, and mused what it might be. And immediately we caste out a greates voyce, verye fearfull, so that the earth shoke at the noyse of the woman: and I looked, and beholde, the woman appeared vnto me no more: but there was a cytye builded, and a place was shewed from the ground and foundation.

When was I ashyd, and cryed with loude voyce, and sayde where is thyng the angel, which came to me at the fyrste? For he hath caused me to come in many considerations & bygh thoughtes, and myne ende is turned to corruption, and my prayer to rebuke. And as I was speakinge these wordes, he came vnto me, and looked vpon me, and I laye as one to me, and looked vpon me, and I laye as one that had bene deed, and myne understanding was auitered. And he toke me by the ryghte hande & comforted me, & set me vp vpon my feete, and sayde vnto me: what ayleth the? and why is thine vntruffall vnderstanding vnderstanding of thy heerte, and wherfore art thou sorre? And I sayde: Because thou hast forlaken me, and I haue done accordyng vnto thy wordes, I wet in to the feilde, & there haue I done thynges, that I am not habile to expresse. He said vnto me: Stand vp, and be manly, & I shall geue the exhortacion.

Then sayd I: Spake on to me my Lorde, forlake me not, lest I die in wayn: for I haue seene that I knew not, and herd that I do not know. O: that my vnderstanding be discypled, and my mynde: But now I beseeche the, that thou wilt shew thy seruante of this wonder, he answered me then & said: beate me and I shall enforme the, and tell the wherfore thou art ashyd: & the best hath opned many secret thynges vnto the.

He hath shewed that thy way is right, & that thou takest sorow continually for thy people and makest great lamentacion for Zion, and therefore vnderstande the vision which thou sawest a litle while agoe after this maner: Thou sawest a woman mourning, and thou hast comforted her. Nevertheless now seist thou the liues of the woman no more, but thou thoughtest there was a cytye builded: & lyke as he tolde the of the fall of her sonne, so is this the answer: the woman whom thou sawest is Zion, and where as he tolde the that she hath ben xxx. yeres vntruffull & barren, those are the xxx. yeres, wherein there was no offering made in her.

But after thyrty yeres Salomon builded her, and offered, and then bare she bareyn a sonne. And where as he tolde the that she noryshed him with labour, that was the dwellynge of Jerusalem, but where as the sonne dyed in her chambere, that is the fall of Jerusalem. And thou sawest her lykenesse howe she mourned for her sonne: and what els happened vnto her, I haue shewed the. And now God seeth that thou art sorre in thy mynde, & turned from thy heerte for her, and so hath he shewed the her clerkenesse, and the fayrnesse of her beauty.

And therefore I hadde the remayne in the feilde, where no house is builded, for I knew that the highest wolde shewe this vnto the, therefore I commaunded the to goe in to the feilde, where no foundation nor buildynge is: for in the place where the best wil shewe his cytye, there shall be no mans buildynge. And therefore feare not, and let not thy heerte be ashyd, but goo thy waye in, and se the gloriouse and fayre buildynge, and howe greates it is, and howe greates thou thyngest after the measure of thyne eyes, and then shalt thou heare as moche as thyne eares maye comprehend. For thou arte blessed above many other, and art called in the best, as the fewe. But to morowe at nyght thou shalt remayne here, and so shalt the best shewe the visions of hye thynges, which he wyl do vnto them that dwell vpon earthe in the last dayes, so I shewe the same nyghte lyke as he commaunded me.

In this chapter and in the two next ensuyng, he sheweth of certayne visions and of the interpretyng thereof.

CAPL. XI.

Then said I a dreme: and beholde, there came vp from the see an Eggle, which had twelue wynges and thyr herdes.

And I sawe and beholde, he spred his wynges ouer all the earth, and all the wyndes of the ayre blew in them, and so they were put together agayne. And I behelde, and out of his fetters there grewe other lytle contrary fetters: the herdes rested, the heed in the midst was greates then the other, yet rested it with the restyng.

Moreover I saw, that the Eggle flew in his wynges, and raigned vpon erth, and ouer all them that dwell vpon the erth: and I sawe & all thynges vnder heuyn were subiecte vnto him, and no ma spake against him no not one creature vpon erth. I saw also that the Eggle rode vp vpon his clewes, and gaue a sound with his fetters, & a voyce, sayinge after this maner: watche not all together, slepe euery ma in his own place, and watche for a tyme, but let the heed be preferred at the last. Nevertheless I sawe that a voyce went not out of his herdes, but from the myddest of his body. And I nombred his contrary fetters, and beholde there were ryght of them. And I looked, and beholde vpon the right syde there arose one fetter, and raigned ouer al the erth. And it happened & when it raigned, the ende of it came, and the place therof appeared no more. So the next following rode and raigned and had a great tyme: and it happened, that when it raigned, the ende of it came also, lyke as the fyrste, so that it appeared no more.

Then came ther a voyce vnto it, and said: beate thou that haste kepte in the earthe so longe, this I saye vnto the before thou be gynneth to appere no more. There shall none after the, attayne vnto thy tyme. Then arose the thyrde, and raigned as the other afore, and appered no more also. So went it with all the restyng one after an other, so that euery one raigned, & then appeared no more. Then I looked, & beholde, in pcesse of tyme the fetters that followed, were set vp vpon the ryght syde, that they myghte rule also: & some of them ruled, but within a while they appered no more: for some of them were set vp, but ruled not.

After this I looked, and beholde the twelue fetters appered no more, and & two wynges: and there was no more vpon the Egles body, but two herdes that rested, & fyre fetters. Then sawe I also that the fyre fetters were parted in two, and remayned vnder the heed that was vpon the right syde, for the four continued in their place. So I looked, & beholde, they that were vnder the wynges thought to set vp them selues, and to haue the rule. The was there one set vp, but shortly it appered no more, and the seconde was sooner awaye then the fyrst. And I behelde, and so, the two thought also by the selues to raigne: & when they so thoughte: beholde, there waked one of & herdes that were at rest, namely, it that was in the middell, for that was the greater of the two heedes. And then I sawe that the two heedes were filled with him, and þe heed was touned with them that were by hym, & ate vp the two vnder wynges þe wolde haue raigned.

But this heed put the hole erth in feare, & bare rule in it, ouer all those that dwelt vpon erth with moch labour, and he had the gouernance of the two; id, ouer all the soules that haue ben. After this I loked, and beholde, the heed þe was in the middell, suddenly appered no more, lyke as the wynges: then came the two heedes, which ruled vpon earth, & ouer those dwelt therein. And I beheld, and lo, the heed vpon the right syde, deuoured it þe was vpon the left syde. And I herd a voyce, which the sayd vnto me: loke befoze the, and conseyde the thing that thou seist. Then I sawe, & beholde, as it were a lyon that roareth, rennyng hastily ouer of the wodde, and he sent out a mannes voyce vnto the Eggle, and said: Heare thou, I wyll talke with the, and the byest shal say vnto the: Is it not thou þe hast the victorie of the foure beastes, whom I made to raigne vpon erth, & in my wo: lde, and that the ende of their tymes might come vpon them?

And the fourth came, and ouertwau al the beestes that were past, and had power ouer the wo: lde with great fearfulness, and ouer the hole compasse of the erth in the most wicked labour, and so long tyme dwelt he vpon the erth with discreete, and the erth had thou iudged not with truth. For thou hast troubled the meke, thou hast hurt the peaceable & quyet, thou hast loued lyers, and destroyed the dwellynge of them that brought forth the frute, and hast cast down the walles of such as did the no harme. Therefore is thy wrogous dealing and blasphemye come vnto the byest, and thy pryde vnto þe myghty. The byest also hath loked vpon the proud tymes, and beholde, they are ended, and they abominacions are fulfilled. And therefore appere no more thou Eggle, and thy horrible wynges and thy wycked fethers, and thy vngacious heedes, and thy synfull clauens, and all thy wayne body: that the earthe maye be refreshed, and come agayne to her selfe, when she is deliuered from thy vyolence, and þe maye hope for the iudgement and merce of hym that made her.

CAPL.

XII.

Ad it happened when the Lyon spake these wordes vnto the Eggle, I sawe, & beholde, the heed that afore had the vpper hande appered no more: neyther dyd the four wynges appere any more, that came to hym, & were set vp to raigne, and their kingdom was smal and ful of vproye. And I sawe and beholde, they appered no more, & the hole body of the Eggle was byest, and the erth was in grete feare. When awaked I out of the trance of my mynde, and from grete feare, and sayd vnto my spirite: lo, this haste thou gyuen me, in that thou scruest out þe waye of the byest: lo yet am I wry in my mynde, and very weyhe in my spirite, & litle strenght is there in me, for the grete feare that I receyued this nyght. Therefore wyll I now be seche the byest, that he wyll comfote me vnto the ende: and I sayde, Lord, Lord, yf I haue founde grace befoze thy syghte, and yf I am iustified with the, befoze many other, and yf my prayer be com vp befoze thy face, comfote me then, and shewe me thy seruante the interpretation and playne difference of this horrible syght, that thou mayst perfectly comfote my soule: for thou haste iudged me wo: the, to shewe me the lade of tymes.

And he sayd vnto me: this is the interpretation of this syght. The Eggle whome thou sawest come vp from the see, is the kyngdom whiche was lene in the vision of thy brother Daniel, but it was not expounded vnto him for now I declare it vnto the. Beholde, the dayes come, that there shal ryse vp a kyngdome vpon erth, and it shal be feared aboue all the kyngdomes that were befoze it. In the same kyngdome shal twelue kynges raygne one after an other. For þe second shal begyn to raygne, & shal haue more tyme than the other, and this do the twelue wynges signify which thou sawest. As for the voyce þe spake, and that thou sawest go out from the beestes, but not from the body, it betokeneth that after the tyme of that kyngdome, there shal arys grete strynges, and it shal had in peryl of falling: neuertheless it shal not yet fall, but shal be set in to his begynnyng. And the eyght vnder wynges which thou sawest hange vnto the wynges of hym, befoze that in him there shal a ryse eyght kynges, whose tyme shal be but smal, and their very swyft, & two of them shal beate. But when the middell tyme cometh, there shal be four kept in the tyme, when his tyme begynnet to come, that it maye be ended, but two shal be kepte vnto the ende.

And where as thou sawest the heedes raigning, this is the interpretation: In his last shal the byest rayse vp the kyngdomes, and call manye agayne in to them, and they shal haue the domination of the earth, and of those that dwell therein, with moche labour aboue all those that were befoze them. Therefore are they called the heedes of the Eggle: for it is they that shal byrge forth the byest wyckednesse agayne, and that shal performe and say the his laste. And where as thou sawest that the grete heed appered no more, it signifyeth that one of them shal dye vpon his bedde, and yet with payne, for the two that remaine shal be slayne with the swerde, for the swerde of the one shal deuoure the other, but at the last shal he fall vpon the sword hym selfe.

And where as thou sawest two vnder twynge vpon the head that is on the right syde, it signifyeth that it is they, whom the byghst hath kepte vnto the ende: this is a small kyngdom, & ful of trouble. The lyon whome thou thou sawest ryse vpon out of the wod, and wynges and speake vnto the Eggle, and rebuke hym for his vngyngtounesse, is the wynde, whiche the byest hath kepte for them & for they wyckednesse vnto the ende: he shal repproue them, and reuele them asunber befoze them. For he shal sette them lyryng befoze the iudgement, and shal rebuke them: for the resydue of my people shal be deliuered with trouble, those that be preserued our myne endes: and he shal make the ioyful, vnto the comyng of the day of iudgement, wherof I haue spoken vnto the from the begynnyng. This is the dreame that thou sawest, and this is the interpretation. Thou only hadst bene mete to knowe the secretes of the byest.

Therefore wyte all these thynges that thou hast lene in a booke, and hyde them, and teache them the wyse in þe people, whose heretous thou knowest, maye comprehend & kepe these secretes. But mayte thou here thy selfe yet seuen dayes mo, that it maye be the midde, what to euer it pleaseth the byghst to declare vnto the, and with that he wente his waye.

And when al the people perceyued, that þe first dayes were past, and I not come agayne into the city, they gathered them al togither from the leest vnto the most, and came vnto me, & sayd: what haue we offended the? and what wyll haue we done agaynst the, that þe forsakest vs, and littest here in this place? for of all people thou only art left vs as a grape of the vine, and as a candle in a darke place, and as an haue and shyp preserued from the tempest. Haue we not els aduersitee ynough, but thou must forsake vs? Were it not better for vs, that we had ben bent with Sion. For we are no better then they þe dyed there: and they wepte with loud voyce. Then answered I them and sayde: Be of good comfote, O Irael, and be not heuy thou house of Jacob, for the byest hath you in remembrance, and the myghty hath not forgotten you in temptation. As for me, I haue not forsaken you, neyther am I departed from you: but am come in to this place to pray, because of the mysce of Irael, that I myghte see mercy for the lowe estate of your Sanctuare. And now goo youre waye home euerye man, and after these dayes wyll I come vnto you. So the people went their waye in to the city, lyke as I commaunded them: but I remained styl in the felde seuen dayes, as the angell hadde me: and I ate onely of the flowers of the felde, and had my meat of the birds in those dayes.

CAPL.

XIII.

Ad it happened after the seuen dayes, that I dreamed a dreame by nyght. And beholde, there arose a wynde from the se, that it moued all the cloudes therof. And I loked, and beholde, the man was stronge, & increased with the cloudes of heuen, & when he turned his countenance to consyde, all the thynges trembled þe were lene vnder him: and when the voyce went out of his mouth, all they bent that herd him, lyke as the erth when it seeth the fyre.

After these I sawe, and beholde, there was gathered togither a multitude of men out of nombie from the foure wyndes of the heuen, to fight agaynst the man that came out from the see. And I loked, and beholde, he graued him selfe a grete mountayne, and flemme vpon it. But I wolde haue lene the byghst of place, wherout the byll was grauen, and I coulde not.

I sawe after these, that all they whiche came to fyghte agaynst hym, were soze a frayde, and yet durst they fyghte. Neertheless, when he sawe the fearfulness and vyolence of the people, he neyther lyste by his hande, ne helde swerde nor any wepyn: but onely (as I sawe) he sent out of his mouth as it had ben a blast of fyre, & out of his lypes the wynde of the flambe: and out of his tonge he caste oute sparkes and stormes, and they were all myrte togither the blast of fyre, the wynde of the flambe, and the grete storme, and fell with a rustle vpon the people whiche was prepared to fight, and bent them vp euerychone: so that of the innumerable multitude there was nothing lene, but onely duste and smoke. When I sawe this, I was afrayde.

Afterwarde sawe I the same man come downe from the mountayne, and callenge vnto hym an other peaceable people: and there came moche people vnto hym: some be eye gladde some verye soze, some of theym were bounde, so that they were caried and brought forth.

Then was I syche thorow grete feare, and I awaked, and sayd: thou haste shewed thy seruant al thy wonders from the begynnyng, and haste counted me wo: the, that þe myghtest receyue my prayer: shewe me now yet the interpretation of this dreame. For thus I consyde in my vnderstandyng: Who vnto them that shal be leste in thole dayes: and moche more woo vnto them that are not leste behynde: for they that were not leste, were in heuynde.

Nowe vnderstande I the thynges that are layde vp in the latter dayes, which shal happen vnto them, and to those that are not leste behynde. Therefore are they come in to grete peryll, and many necessities, lyke as these dreames declare. Yet is it easer, that be with the suffereth hurte, come in these, then to passe awaye as a cloude out of the wo: lde, and now to se the thynges that shal happen in the last.

Then answered he me, and sayd: The interpretation of the syghte shal I shewe the, and I wil open vnto the, the thing that thou hast required. For thou haste spoken of them that are leste behynde, and this is the interpretation. He that taketh awaye the peryll in that tyme hath kepte hym selfe. He that be fallen in to harme, are such as haue wo: lde.

kes and sayth vnto the most myghty. I knowe this therfore, that they which be left behynd are more blessed then they that be deed. This is the meanyng of þe visyon. Where as thou sawest a man comynge vp from the depe of the see, the same is he which God the hyghest hath kept a great season, whom by his owne selfe shal deliuer his creature, & he shal ordeyne them that be left behynd. And where as thou sawest, that oute of his mouth there came a blast of wynde, fyre, and storme, & how that he lyfte vp neyther swerde nor weapon, but that the rushing in of hym destroyed þe hole multitude that came to fyght agaynst hym: it signifieth, that the dayes come, when God wyll deliuer them that are vpon earthe, and in a traunce of mynde shal he come vpon the earth. And one shal vnder- take to fyght agaynst an other, one citee agaynst an other, one place agaynst an other, one people agaynst an other, and one realme agaynst an other. When this cometh to passe then shal the tokens come that I shewed the before, and then shall my sonne be declared, to whome thou sawest clyme vp as a man. And when all the people here his voyce, euerye man shall in theyr owne lande leaue the bayle that they haue one agaynst an other, & an innumerable multitude shall be gathered together, as they þe wyllinge to come & to ouercom hym by fyghtyng. But he shal stād vpon the top of the mount Syon. Neuerthelesse Sion shall come, and shal be shewed, bringe prepared and buylded for all men, lyke as thou sawest the hyl grauen forþ without any handes. But my sonne shal rebuke þe people that are come for theyr wickednes, with the tempest, and for their euill ymagynacions: and theyr paynes wherewith they shal be punyshed, are lykened vnto þe flambe, and without any labour shall he destroye them, even by the lawe, whiche is compared vnto the fyre.

And where as thou sawest, that he gathered an other peaceable people vnto hym: those are the ten tribes which are carryed away prysoners out of their owne land, in the tyme of Oseas the kyng, whom Salmanasar the kyng of Assyria toke prisoner and caried them ouer the water, and so came they in to an other lande.

But they gaue them this counsel, that they shold leaue the multitude of the heathē, and to go forth in to a farther countrey, where neuer mannynde dwelt: that they myght there kepe theyr statutes, which they neuer kept in theyr owne land, and so they entred in at the narrow passages of the water of Euphrates, and God shewed tokens for them, and helde still the floud till they were passed ouer: for thowow that countrey there was a great way namely of a yere and a halfe iourney, for the same region is called Astaroth.

Then dwelt they there vnto þe latter tyme: and when they come forth agayne, the hyst shall holde still the springes of the streame agayne, that they maye go thowow, therfore sawest thou the multitude with peace. And they that be left behynd of thy people, are those that be found with in a y border. Now when he destroyeth the multitude that is gathered together, he shall defende his people & remayne, and then shall he shewe them great wonders.

Then sayd I: O Lord, Lo, de, shewe me this, wherfore haue I sent the man comynge vp from the depe of the see? And he sayd vnto me: like as thou canst neither see out nor know these thinges that are in the depe of the see, even so mayst thou not see my son, or those that be with him, but in the tyme of the day. This is the interpretation of the dremt which thou sawest, therfore thou onely art here lightened: for thou hast forsake thine owne lawe, and applyed thy diligence vnto mine, and sought it. Thy lyfe haue thou ordeyned in wisdom, and hast called vnderstandyng thy mother, and therfore haue I shewed the, the treasure of the hyst. After the dayes I wyll shewe the more, and talke with the at more large, yea heuy and wondrous thynges wil I declare vnto the.

Then wente I forth in to the felde, gyuyng prayse and thankes greatly vnto God by cause of his wonders whiche he dyd in tyme, and by cause he gouerneth the same, and suche as is in tyme, and there I sat the dayes.

God appeareth vnto Esdras in the bush, and sheweth hym what he shall do.

CAPL XIII.

Vpon the thyrdaye I sat vnder an oke tree, then came there a voyce vnto me out of the bush, and said: Esdras, Esdras? And I said: here am I Lord, and stode vp vpon my fete. Then spake he vnto me: In the bush dyd I appere vnto Moyses, and tal- ked to him, when my people serued in Egypt: and I sent him, and led my people out of Egypt, and brought him vpon the mount Syon where I helde hym by me a longe season, and tolde hym my wondrous workes, & shewed him the secrettes of the tymes and the ende, & commaunded him, saying: these wordes shall thou declare, and not hyde them.

And now I saie vnto the, that thou laye vp in thine herte, the dremes that thou hast seene, and the interpretations whiche I haue shewed the: for thou shalt be receyued of all, thou shalt be touned, and remayne with my counsell, and with suche as be lyked, vntill the tymes be ended. For the world hath lost his youth, and the tymes begyn to waxe old. For the tyme is denyded in to twelue pryttes, and ten pryttes of it are gone already, and halfe of the tenth parte: yet remayneth there that, which is after the half of the tenth parte.

Therfore praye and ordey thy house, & reforme thy people: comfote suche of them as be in trouble, and tell now of the destruction, let go from the mortal thoughtes, and awaye the burthens of mā, put of the wycked nature: laye vp in some places the thoughtes that are moost heuy vnto the, and haile þe to flyt from these tymes: for suche euill and wyckednesse as thou hast nowe seene happen, shall they doo yet moche worse. For the wea- ther that the world and the tyme is, & more shall synne and wyckednesse increase, in them that dwell vpon earthe. For the truthe is fled farre awaye, and lesynge is harde at hande. For now hasteth the visyon to come, þe thou hast seene.

Then answered I and sayde: Beholde Lord, I wyll go as thou hast commaunded me, and reforme the people which are prynted. But they that shal be boyme afterwarde who wyll exhorte or rebuke them? Thus the world is set in darkenesse, and they that dwell therein are without light: for thy lawe is hynbled, by cause no man knoweth þe thinges that are done in the, or that shal be done. If I haue founde grace before the, sende the holy ghost in to me, and I shal wytte al that hath bene doone in the world: since the begynnyng, whiche was wyrtten in thy lawe, that men maye fynde the pathe, and that they whiche wyll lyue in the latter dayes, maye lyue.

And he answered me, sayinge: Goo thy waye, gather thy people together, and saie vnto the that they see the not for .xl. dayes, but loke thou gather the manye bore trees, and take with the Sarcas, Dabzia, Selemia, Echanus, and Alial: these fyue whiche are rebbe to wytte swyftly, and come byther, and I shal lyght a candle of vnderstandyng in thine herte, whiche shal not be put out, tyll the thynges be perfozmed, whiche thou shalt begyn to wytte. And then shalt thou declare some thynges openly vnto the perfecte, and some thynges shalt thou shewe secretly vnto the wyse. O moztow this houre shalt thou begyn to wytte.

Then wente I forth (as he commaunded me) and gathered al the people together, and sayd: Heare these wordes, O Israel: Sure fathers from the begynnyng were straungers in Egypte, from whence they were deliuered, and receyued, the lawe of lyfe, whiche they kepte not, whiche ye also haue transgressed after them. Then was this land and the lande of Syon parted among you by lot to possesse. But your fathers and ye your selues also haue doone vnyghtousnesse, and haue not kepte the wayes whiche the hyghest commaunded you. And so: so much as he is a righteous iudge, he toke from you in time the thyng that he had gyuen you. And now are ye here, & your brether amonges you. Therfore ye so be that ye wyll subdue your euill vnderstandyng, and reforme youre herte, ye shal be kepte alyue, & after death shal ye obteyne mercye. For after death shal the iudgemente come, when we shal lyue agayne: and then shal the names of the righteous be manifest, and the names of the vngodly: with theyr workes, shal be declared. Lett: no man therfore come nowe vn-

to me, ne aske anye questyon of me these forty dayes.

So I toke the fyue men (as he commaunded me) and we went in to the felde, and remayned there, the nexte daye a voyce called me, sayinge: Esdras, open thy mouth, and drynke that I gyue the. Then opened I my mouth, and beholde he reached me a full cup whiche was full of water, but the colour of it was lyke fyre. And I toke it and dranke. And when I had dronken it, my hert hadde vnderstandyng, and wyddome grewe in my breste: for my spirite was kepte in remembrance, and my mouth was opened, and thus no moze. The hyst gaue vnderstandyng vnto the fyue men, that they wrote the hyst thynges of the nyght, whiche they vnderstode not. But in the nyght they ate bread: as for me, I spake in the day, and held my tong by night. In forty dayes they wrote two hundred and four bokes.

And it happened when the forty dayes were fulfilled, that the hyst spake, sayinge: The fyre that thou hast wyrtten, spake openly, that the world and vnto: thy may rede it. But the thre score and ten laste, that thou mayst shewe it onely to suche as be wise amonges thy people. For in them is the springe of vnderstandyng, the fountayne of wyddome, and the streame of knowlege. And I dyd so.

The punishment the tenp people shall haue, whiche God commaundeth Esdras to shewe vnto them.

CAPL XV.

Beholde, speake thou in the eares of my people the wordes of the prophety, whiche I will put in thy mouth, say the the Lord, & cause them to be wyrtten in a letter, for it is the truthe, feare not the imaginacions agaynst the, let not the vnfaithfulness of the trouble the, that speke agaynst the. For al the vnfaithful shal dye in theyr vnfaithfulness. Beholde, say the Lord, I will byynge plagges vpon þe world, the swerde, hunger, death and destruction, for wickednes hath the byper hand in all the erth, and theyr shameful workes are fulfilled.

Therfore say the the Lord: I wyll holde my tonge no moze vnto theyr wyckednesse, whiche they doo so vngodly: neyther wyll I suffre them in the thynges that they deale withall so wyckedly.

Beholde, the innocent bloude of the from- bled cryeth vnto me, and the soules of þe righteous complayne continually: and therfore (say the the Lord) I wyll surely auenge, and receyue vnto me all the innocent bloude from amonges them.

Behold, my people is led as a flock of shepe to be slayne, I wyll not suffre them noze to dwell in Egypte, but wyll byynge them out with a mighty hand, & a stretched out arme, and smyte it with plagges as afore, and wyll destroy all the land of it. Egypt shall mourne and the foundations of it shall be smitten in the plague and punishment: God shall bring upon it.

B They that till the ground shall mourne: for they shall be destroyed thowto the blaynge and hayle, and an horrible sterre. Wo worth the world, and them that dwell therein, for the sterre and they: destruction draweth nye, and one people shall stande by to fyghte agaynste an other, and swerdes in their handes. For men shall be vntedfast, & some shall do violence vnto other: they shall not regarde their kyng & prynces: the wayes of they: doynges and handelynges in they: potuer. A man shall desyre to go in to the cite, & shall not be habile. For because of they: pryde, the cities shall be brought in feare, the houses shall shake, and men shall be asfayde. A man shall haue no pryde vpon his neyghbour, but one shall prouoke an other vnto battayle to spoyle they: goodes, because of of the hunger of byed, & because of the great trouble.

B Beholde, I gather and cal together all the kynges of the earth, which are from the byrylyng, from the South, from the East and Libanus, to turne vnto them, and restore the thinges that they haue given them. Like as they do yet this daye vnto my chosen, so will I do also, and recompence them in their homes. Thus sayth the Lord God: my right hand shall not spare the synners, & my sword shall not cease ouer them that thede & immo- cent blood vpon earth. The fyre is gone out from his wrath, and hath consumed the foundations of the earth, and the synners like the straw that is kyndled. Wo worth them that synne, and hepe not my commaundementes, sayth the Lord. I will not spare them. Goo your waye you chyldren of violence, defyle not my Sanctuary, for the Lord knoweth all them that synne agaynste hym, and therefore deliuereth he them vnto deathe and destruction. For now are the plagis come vnto the world, and ye shall reuayne in them, for God shall not deliuer you, because ye haue synned agaynste hym.

B Behold, an horrible vision cometh from the East, where generacions of Dragons shall come out, and the people of the Arabes, with many charrettes, and the multitude of them shall be as the wynde vpon earth, that all they which beate them ragynge in their wyathe, maye feare and be asfayde: and as the wynde boozes out of the wodde, so shall they goo out, and with greater power shall they come, and stande fyghtynge with them, and shall waste the porcion of the lande of the Assyrians.

And then shall the Dragons haue the vpper hande, not remembryng they: byrthe, and shall tourne aboute swarynge togither in grete power, to persecute them. But these shall be asfayde, and hepe silence at they: potuer, and shall flee: and one out of the lande of the Assyrians shall besiege them, and consume one of them, and in their house shall be feare and dyde, and stryfe amonge they: kynges.

Beholde cloudes from the East and from the North vnto the South, and they are verrey horrible to loke vpon, full of wyathe and sterre. They shall smyte one vpon another, and they shall smyte at the great sterre vpon earth and they: sterre, and the bloude shall be from the sterre vnto the helpe, and the smoke of man vnto the camelles lyttre. And there shall be grete fearefulnesse and tremblynge vpon earth, and they that se the wyeth shall be asfayde, and a trembling shall come vpon them.

And then shall there come grete rayns from the South, and from the North, and parte from the weste, and from the southe wynde from the East, and shall shut them by agayne, and the cloude which be rayned by in wyathe, and the sterre to cause feare towarde the East and west wynde, shall be destroyed: and the great cloudes shall be lyfte by, and the myghty cloudes full of wyath, & the sterre, that they may make all the earth asfayde, and them that dwell therein, and that they may poure out ouer all places an horrible sterre, fyre and hayle, and fleing swerdes, and many waters: that all felde maye be full, and all ryuers, and they that beake downe the cities and walles, mountaynes and hylles, all trees, wod, and the grass of the meadowes, & all their frute. And they shall goo sedfaste vnto Babylon, and make her asfayde, they shall come to her & besiege her, the sterre and all wyath shall they poure out vpon her.

B Then shall the duste and smoke goo by vnto the heauens, and all they that be aboute her, shall bewaile her: and they that remayne vnder her, shall do scryppe vnto them that haue put her in feare. And thou Asia that comfortest thy selfe also vpon the hope of Babylon, and arte a woorthy of her person. Wo be vnto the thou wythe, because thou haste made thy selfe like vnto her, and hast decked thy daughters in hoo: dome, that they myghte triumphe and please thy lours which haue alway deliuered to comyt hoo: dome with the: thou hast folowed the abhominable cite, in all her wythes and inuencions.

Therefore sayth God: I will send plagis vpon the, widowhod, pouertie, hunger, warres, and pestilence, to waste thy houses with destruction and deeth, and the gloze of thy potuer shall be dyed by as a flower, when the heat ariseth that is sent ouer the. Thou shalt be lyke as a poore wyfe that is plagued and beaten of women: so that the myghty and lo- uer shall not be habile to receyue the. Wo be I so hate they: sayth the Lord. Yet thou haddest not alwaie synne my chosen, crastynge the stroke of thy hades, and said ouer their deeth, when thou wast drunken: set forth the beautie of thy countenance.

The rewarde of thy hoo: dome shall be recompensed in thy bosom, therefore shalt thou be requited.

Lxx

Like as thou haste done vnto my chosen (sayth the Lord) euen so shall God do vnto the, and shall deliuer the into the plague. Thy chyldren shall dye of hunger, and thou shalt fall thowto the sterre. Thy cities shall be broken downe: and al thyne shall perishe with the sterre in the felde. They that be in the mountaynes shall dye of hunger, and eat their own flesh, and drynke their owne blood for very hunger of byed and thysse of water. Thou vnhappie shalt come thowto the see and receyue plagis agayne.

In the passage they shall caste downe the sayne (sayth) and shall rote out one parte of the land, and consume the porcion of thy gloze. They shall treade the downe lyke rubble, and they shall be the fyre and shall consume the: thy cyties and thy lande, thy wod and thy frutfull trees shall they burne by with fyre. Thy chyldren shall they carry awaye captiue, & loke what thou hast, they shall spoyle it, and make the beawtye of thy face.

The heithen shall be punished.

CAPIT. XVI.

Wo be vnto the Babylon and Asia, wo be vnto the Egypte and Siria: gyde your selues with clothes of sacke and heere, and mourne for your chyldren, be soye for your destruction is at hande. A sterre is sent vpon you, and who wyl turne it backe? A fyre is kyndled amonge you, and who wyl quench it? Plages are sent vnto you, & what is he that wyl dymme them awaye? May any man dymme awaye an hungry lion in the wod? May any man quench the fyre in the stubble, when it hath begonne to burne? Maye any turne agaynste the arrowe, that is shot of a stronge archer: The myghtie Lord is ideth the plagis, and what is he that wyl dymme them awaye? The fyre is kyndled and gone forth in his wyathe, and what is he that wyl quench it? We shall call lyghtenynge, and who shall not feare? We shall tumbre, and who shall not be asfayde? The Lord shall threaten, and who shall not be drede? he bea- ten to pouer at his presence?

The earth quake, and the foundations thereof: the see ariseth by with waues from the bepe, and the cloudes of it are vngyree, and the fyres therof also befoze the Lord, and before the gloze of his patuer. For as his righte hande that holdeth the bowe his arrowes that be shure are warpe, and shall not misse, when they begin to be shot vnto the endes of the world.

B Beholde, the plagis are sent, and shall, not turne agayne, for they come vpon earth. The fyre is kyndled, and shall not be put out till it consume the foundations of the earth. Like as an arrow which is shot of a myghty archer, returneth not backe: euen so the plagis that shall be sent vpon earth, shall not turne agayne. Wo be vnto you, who wyl deliuer: wo be vnto you, who wyl begin lynge of sorowes and great mournynge: the begynnyng of deeth and great deeth: the begynnyng of warres, and the powers shall stande in feare of the begynnyng of cupis, & they shall tremble eury one. What shall I do in these thynges, when the plagis come? Beholde, hunger, and plague, trouble and angur are sent, as scourges for amendement. But for all these thynges they shall not turne from they: wickednesse, ne be alway mynd- full of the scourges.

B Beholde, bytapes shall be so good cheape vpon the earth, that they shall thynke them selues to be in good case: and euen then shall mychese grow vpon earth, warres, deeth, and great dysquyrenesse. For many of them that dwell vpon earth shall perishe of hunger, and the other that escape the hunger, shall be swerd destroyed: & the deeth shall be cast out as bong, and there shall be no man to comforte them. For the earth shall be wasted, and the cyties shall be caste downe: there shall be no man left to till the earth, and to sowe it. The trees shall geue frute, and who so shall pluck them of & gather them? The grapes shall be rype, and who shall seed them? For all places shall be desolate of men, so that one man shall despyte to se an other, or to heare his voyce. For of one hole cytie there shall not be x. left, and two in the felde, which shall hyde them selues in the thyn bushes, & in the clyffes of stones: like as when there remaine thre or four olyues vpon the olyue tre, or as when a byneparde is gathered: there are leste some grapes, of them that diligently sought thowto the byneparde.

B Euen so in those dayes thre shall be thre or four left, for them that search their houses with the sterre. And the earth shall be left wast and the felde thereof shall wax olde: & her wythes and all her patches shall grow full of thornes, because no man shall trauallye there thowto. The daughters shall mourne, haupng no bydegromes: & womē shall make lamentation, haupng no husbandes, they: daughters shall mourne, haupng no helpe of they: bydegromes. In the warres shall they be destroyed, and they: husbandes shall perishe of hunger. O ye seruantes of the Lord, heere these thynges, and make them. Behold the wordes of the Lord, & receyue it: behold, the plagis draw nigh: and are not slacke in tapyng, lyke as a traulyng woman, which after the. ii. moneth byngeth forth a sonne, when the houre of byrth is come, an houre two or thre afore that the paynes come vpon her body, and when the chyld cometh to the byrth, they say not the thynnyng of an eyer. Euen so shall not the plagis be slacke to come vpon the earth, and the world shall mourne, and sorowes shall come vpon it on eurye lyde.

O my people, heate my wothe, make you ready to the battel: and in all tuel he euen as pylgrymes vpon earth, for that telleth he him be as he that styeth his waye: and he styeth, as one that wyl lefe. Who so shall be ready in a chandele, as he that wyl staye.

and he that buyeth, as he that shall not dwell therein: he that soweth, as one that shall not reap: he that soweth the vineyard, as he that shall not gather the grapes: they that marry, as they that shall get no child: and therefore they that labour, labour in vaine. For strangers shall reap their fruits, and spoile their goods, overthrow their houses, and take their children captive, for in captivity and hunger shall they get children. And they shall occupy their merchandise with robbery, howe longe decke they their cities, their houses, their possessions, and persons: the more will I punish the them. For their synnes sayth the Lorde. Like as an hore enueth an honest woman, so shall rightousnes hate iniquitie, why she decketh her selfe and shall accuse her to her face, why she cometh that defendeth, which shall make inquisition for all synne upon earth. And therefore be not ye like therunto, ne to the workers thereof: for once it be lōg, iniquitie shall be taken awaye out of the earth, and rightousnes shall raygne amonges you.

Let not the synner saye, that he hath not synned: for coles of fyre shall burne vpon his heade, which sayth before the Lorde God & his glory: I haue not synned. Beholde, the Lorde knoweth all the workes of men, their imaginations, their thoughtes & their vertes. For he spake but the word: let the earth be made, and it was made, let the heuen be made and it was made. In this worlde were the starres made, and he knoweth the number of them. He searcheth the ground of the depe, and the treasures therof: he hath measured the see, & what it containeth. He hath put the see in the myddell of the waters, & with his worde hath he hanged the earth vpon the waters. He spredeth out the heauen like a bawle, vpon the waters hath he founded it. In the deserte and drye wyldernes hath he made springes of water, and poles vpon the toppes of the mountaynes, that the fowles myght poure downe from the Rony rocks to water the earth. He made man, & put his berte in the myddell of the body, & gaue hym breath, lyfe and vnderstandynge, yea & the sperte of the almyghty God, whiche made all thynges, and hath fered the ground of all the secretes of the earth.

He knoweth your imaginations and intentions, and what ye thynke when ye syn, and wold hyde your synnes. Therefore hath the Lorde searched and sought out all your wayes, and he shall betraye you all. And when your synnes are broughte forth, ye shall be ashamed before men, and your owne synnes shall be your accusers in that daye. What will ye do? Or howe will ye hyde your synnes before God and his Angels? Beholde, God him selfe is the iudge, feare him, leaue of from your synnes, and forget your vnyghteousnes: and medle no more with them, so shall God leade you forth, and deliuer you from all trouble. For beholde, the heate of a great multitude is kindled ouer you, & they shall take awaye certayne of you, and fete the pole with yoles: and they that consent vnto them, shall be had in derision, laughed to scoone, and troden vnder fote.

For vnto the places there shall be a place, and in the nexte cities a greace miseration vpon those that feare the Lorde. They shall be lyke mad men, they shall spare no man: they shall spoyle & make such as feare the Lorde, they goods shall they take from them, and shut them out of their houses. Then shall it be knowne who are my chosen, & they shall be ceryed as the gold in the fyre. Where I ye my beloued, sayth the Lorde: beholde, the dayes of trouble are at hande, but I will deliuer you from the same. Be not ye astayed: paye not, for God is your captayne.

Who so keepeth my commandementes and preceptes, sayth the Lorde God: let not your synnes weye you downe, and let not your vnyghteousnes be lyfte vp. Woe vnto them that are subdued vnto their synnes, and tangled in their wyckednes, lyke as a felde is hedged in with bushes, and the pasture thereof covered with thornes, that no man maye transpasse thence:

THE BOOKE OF TOBIAS.

Tobias beinge taken prisoner, for he was not a slave of truth. He merited and charite of Tobias, and the maners of him in his youth. He takerh Hannah to wyfe, by whome he hath a sonne named Tobias. He succoureth Gabell for money. He and his are sayne to sye, but after the death of Sennacherib they retorne agayne.

CAP. I.

Tobias was of the cytye and cite of Nephtali, whiche lyeth in the high countreys of Galilee aboute Raason the waye towardes the west hauyng the cytye of Sepphet vpon the left syde.

Though he was taken prisoner in 3 dayes of Salmanasar king of the Assyrians, neuertheless beinge in captivity, he forsooke not the waye of truth: in so moche that whosoever he myghte get, he parted it daylye with his felow prisoners & with them that were of his kynred. And though he were yonger the al in the cytye of Nephtali, yet vnder not he behaue him selfe childly in his workes. And when al the other went to the golden calues, which Jeroboam the kynge of Israel had made, he him selfe alone fled all their compaynes, and gat hym to Jerusalem vnto the temple of the Lorde and there worshipped the Lorde God of Israel, saythfully offeringe of all his lytle frutes and tythes, so that in the thyrde yere he ministered all the tythes vnto the strangers and conuerter. These and such lyke thynges he he accordynge to the lawe of God, whiche he was yet but yonge.

But when he was a man, he toke out of his owne cytye a wyfe called Anna, and of her he begat a sonne whome he called after his owne name, and taught him frome his yowth by, to feare God, and to refraine from all synne.

Some when he with his wyfe, his sonne and with all his kynred was come in captivity vnto Ninue, what time as they al ate of the meates of the heithen, he kepte his soule, and was neuer defiled in their meates. And for so moche as he was myndfull of the Lorde in all his hert, God gaue him fauoure in the presence of Salmanasar the king whiche gaue him power to go where he wold, and to haue he lybertie to doo what hym list.

So went Tobias vnto al them that were in prison, and comforted them, and gaue the halfe some exhortations. And when he came to Ragas a cytye of the Medes, hauyng ten talents of syluer of the thynges wherewith the kynge had honoured him: a salwe amonge a greace compayne of people of his kynred, ouer Gabellus (whiche was of his owne tribe) beinge in necessity, he gaue him the sayde weight of syluer vnder an hand wytyng.

After a longe season when Salmanasar the kynge was deed, and Sennacherib his sonne ragened in his steade, whiche hated the children of Israel, Tobias went daylye thowt out all his kynred, and comforted them, and gaue of his goodes to euery one of them as moche as he myght: he fed the hungrye, clothed the naked, and buryed the deed and slayn. And that diligently.

And when Sennacherib the kynge came agayne and fled out of Assyria (what tyme as God punished him for his blasphemy) and in his wyath, he took many of the children of Israel. Tobias buryed their bodies. But when it was tolde the kynge, he commaunded to slay him, and toke awaye all his goodes. Neuertheless Tobias with his sonne & with his wyfe, fled his waye, and was byd naked, for there were many that loued hym. But after .xv. dayes, the kynge was slayne of his owne sonnes. Then came Tobias agayne to his house, and all his goodes recoyred vnto hym.

Tobias byddeth suche of his frendes as feare God, to a buckett of seale. He is rejoyced of his frendes. He feareth God more then the kynge. He becommeth blynde, by the pemyssyon and suffraunce of God. His kynred makes moche hym.

CAP. II.

After these thynges vpon a solemne daye of the Lorde, Tobias made a good feast in his house, and sayd vnto his sonne: So thy wyfe and byrge byther some of our tythe, suche as feare God, that they maye make mery with vs. And when he was gone, he came agayne, and tolde his father, that one of the chyldren of Israel laye slayne vpon the strete. And immediately he lepte from his table, left the feast, came fastynge to the deed coofse, toke hym and bare hym pryuelye in to his house, that when the Sunne was downe, he myghte safelye burye hym. And when he had bydder the coofse, he ate his meate with mournynge and fear, remembryng the wordes that the Lorde sayth by the prophete Amos: your hye feastes shall be turned to sorowe and heynnesse.

But when the sonne was downe, he went his way and buryed hym. Then at his neyghbours reproued hym, saying: It is not longe, fence it was commaunded to slay the bycause of this matter, and haue scarce escaped the daunger of death, and buryest thou the deed agayne? Neuertheless Tobias fearyng God more then the kynge, toke the bodies of the slayne, byd them in his house, and buryed the at mydnyght.

It happened vpon a daye, that he had buryed the deade, and was wery, came home, and layed hym downe by the wall and slept. And

And whyle he was a slepe, there fell downe upon his eyes warme donge out of the swalowes nest, so that he was blynd. This temp-tacion dyd God suffer to happen vnto hym, that they which came after, myght haue an example of his patience, lyke as of holy Job. for in so moche as he curre feared God from his youth vp, and kepte his commandementes, he was not heuie agaynst God, that þ plage of blyndnes chaunfed vnto him but remayned steadfast in þ feare of God, and tha-ked God all the dayes of his lyfe.

For like as blessed Job was had in derisio of kynnes, euen so was he laughed to scoone of his elders and kynfolkes, which sayde vnto him: where is thy hope, for the which thou hast done almes and buried the deade? But Tobias rebuked them, and spake: Say not so, for we are the chylidren of holy men, and loke for the lyfe, which God shal gyue vnto them that neuer turen thre belene from him.
Anna his wyfe went dayly to the weeping worke, and loke what luyng she coude get with the labour of her handes, she brought it. And it hapned that she toke a kynd and brought it home.

And when her husband herd it crye, he said loke that it be not stolen, reioyce it agayne to the owners: for it is not lawfull for vs to eat or to touche any thyng of thest. The was his wyfe angere, and sayd: Now is thy hope become bayne openlye, and thy almes deeds are manifest. With these and such like woydes dyd she call hym in the tecth.

The prayer of Tobias. Sara the daughter of Anaguel, is slaundered of her fathers seruante. The prayer and fastinge of Sara: And also the innocency and chastite of her. The prayres of Tobias of Sara are herde.

CAPIT. III.

Mal. xlii. b

Then Tobias take it henclye, and with teares began to make his prayer sayinge: O Lord thou arte ryghtheous, & all thy iudgements are true, rea al thy way-es are mercy, saythfulnes and iudgement. And now, O Lord, be myndfull of me, and take no vengeance of my synnes, neither remembre my mysdoes, neither the mysdoes of my elders. For we haue not bene obedyent vnto thy commandmentes, therefore are we spoy-brought in to captiuyte, into deathe, in terion and shame vnto all nations, among whom thou hast scattered vs. And now O Lord thy iudgements are great, for we haue not bene accorde to thy commandementes neither haue we walked innocently before the. And now O Lord, deale with me accorde to thy will, and commaunde my spierre to be receyued in pear, for more expedyente were it for me to dye, then to lyue.

At the same tyme it happened, that Sara the daughter of Anaguel at Rages a cytye of the Medes was slaundered of one of her fathers handmaydes, that she shoulde bene hadde leuen husbandes, whiche as thone as they were gone in vnto her, were layne of the deuyll called Amodeus. Therefore when she reponed the mayden for her faulte, she answered her, sayinge: God let vs neuer senor doughte of the moze vpon earth, thou kyller of thy husbandes. Wylt thou slaye me also, as thou hast slayne leuen men? At this woyde wente, Sara in to an hygge chambie of her house, and the dayes and the nyghtes she neyther ate ne dranke, but continued in prayer, and besoughte God with teares, that he wolde deliuer her from this rebuke.

Upon the thyrde daye it chaunced, that when she had made an ende of her prayer, she prayed the Lord sayinge: Blessed be thy name O God of our fathers, whiche when thou art wroth, thou west mercy, and in tyme of trouble thou sojournest the synners of the,
that call vpon the. Vnto the O Lord I tume I my face, vnto the lyfte I by myne eyes. I beseeche the O Lord, loose me out of the bon-des of this rebuke, or els take me vnto a way from of the earth. Thou knowest Lord, that I neuer had desyre vnto man, and that I haue kepte my soule cleane from all unlawful lynde. I haue not kepte company with those that passe the tyme in spoyte, neyther haue I made my self partaker with the y walke in lyght behauour. Neuertheles, an husbande haue I consented to take, not for my pleasure, but in thy feare.

Now peradventure eynher I haue bene woyde of the, or els were they namede for me, for thou happily hast kepte me to an other husbande. For wylt thou counsell is not in power of man. But who to cure souerth the,
and serue the a ryghte, is sure, that if his lyfe be tempted and proued, it standeth in the strength: and if he endure in patience, he shall haue a rewarde and be hylye crowned, and be in trouble, that God (no doubt) shall deliuer him: and if his lyfe be in chastyng, that he shall haue leaue to come vnto the mercy.

For thou hast no pleasure in our damnacion: and wher after a noyme thou makest whether saye and spyl: after weprunge and heynesse, then geueth great loye. Thy name O God of Israel, be praised for euer. At the same tyme were both they: prayres heard in the lyght of the mayesty of the hygher God.
And Raphael the holy Angell of the Lord was sent to helpe them bothe, whyle they came together before God.

Tobias thynkyng to dye, gryneth a godly prayer: and monyng to his sonne.

CAPIT. IIII.

When Tobias thought his prayer to be herde, that he myght dye, he called vnto hym his sonne Tobias: and sayd vnto hym: My sonne, heare the woyses of a mouthe, and saye them in thyn heart as a foundacion. When God taketh awaye a
soule,

he shal burye thou my body, and holde thy mother in honour all the dayes of her lyfe. For thou oughtest to remembre, what and howe grace peris she suffered for the in her wylde.
And when she also hath fulfilled the tyme of her lyfe, burye her besyde me. Haue God in thy thought all the dayes of thy lyfe, and be ware, lest at any tyme thou consent vnto sin, and lest thou let slip the commandmentes of the Lord our God.

Myne almes of thy goodes, and tume never thy face from the poore: and so shall it come to pass, that the face of the Lord shal not be turned awaye from the. Be mercifull after thy power. If thou hast moche, gyue pletously: if thou hast lytle, do thy dylygence, gladly to geue of that lytle. For so gathe-rest thou thy selfe a good rewarde in the day of necessite. For almes deliuereth fro deeth. gladly not the soule to come in darkness.
A grete comferte is almes by fore the hygher
God, vnto all them that do it.

My sonne, kepe the well frome all boye-dome, and (besyde thy wyfe) let that no faulte be knowne of the. Let neuer pryde haue rule in thy mynde nor in thy woide, for in pryde began all destruction.

Whosoever worketh any thyng for the, immediatly gyue hym his hye, & loke that thy hye seruante to ages remayne not by the our nyght. Loke that thou neuer do vnto an othe- man, the thyng that thou wol-dest not an othe- ma shoulde do vnto the. Sale thy bled with the hungry and poore, and couer the naked with thy clothes. Set thy bled and wyne vpon the buryal of the ryghteous, and doo not thou eate and drynke therof with the synners. Alike euer countayle at þ lyfe.

Be alwaye thankfull vnto God, and be-lyue hym, for he wyll orde thy wayes, and that whateuer thou deuicest or taken I had I may remayne in ynn. I certyfy the also my fame, that (when thou wast yet but a babe) I deliuered ten talen. es of syluer vnto Gabelus, at Rages a cytye of the Medes, and his handwyprunge haue I by me. And therfore like some meanes, how thou maist come by hym, and receyue of him the sayd wepright of syluer, and gyue him his handwyprunge agayne.

My sonne, be not a frayde: truly it is, we leade hre a poore lyfe: but grete good shal we haue, if we feare God, and departe from all synne and do well.

The obedience of yonge Tobias to his father, whiche is sent in to Rages. An angell accompanysing with hym in his iourney.

CAPIT. V.

Then answered Tobias his father, and sayde: father all that thou hast commaunded me, wyl I do, & that delyfully. But how I shal requyre this mony I ca-not tel. Neither doth he knowe me, ne I him.

What token shal I gyue him? And as for þ waye thither, I neuer knew it. Then his father answered hym, and sayd: I haue his had wyprunge by me, whiche when thou shewest him, immediatly he shal paye the. But go thy waye now, and get the some sayd full man to go with the for an hye, that thou mayest receyue the money, whyle I am yet lyuyng.

Then went Tobias out, and vpon the strete, he found a yonge yonge man standyng, gyrded vp, and as it were one readye to take his iourney. And he knewe not that it was an Angell of God, but saluted hym, and sayd: From whence art thou, thou yonge man? He answered: Of the chylidren of Israel.

And Tobias sayd vnto hym: knowest thou the waye that leadech vnto the countrey of the Medes? He answered: I knowe it well, and all those stretes haue I gone oft tymes, and haue lodged with our brother Gabelus that dwelleth in Rages, a cytye of the Me-des, whiche lyeth vpon the mounte Egathanis. Tobias sayd vnto hym: I praye the tary for me, vntill I haue tolde my father these thynges. Then went Tobias in, and tolde his father all. At the wyche his father mar-uelled, and prayed that he wold come in vnto hym.

Now when the Angell came in, he salated hym and sayd: Joye be with the for euer: moze. And olde Tobias sayd: what loye can I haue that yet here in darkness, and se not the lyght of beauen? The yonge man sayde vnto hym: Be of good cheare, God shal helpe the shortly. And Tobias sayd vnto him: I aske thou byng my sonne to Gabelus, vnto the cytye of Rages in Medes? And when thou comest agayne, I shal paye the thy hye.
And the Angell sayd vnto hym: I shal leade thy sonne, and byng hym to the agayne.
Then Tobias answered hym: tell me I pray þ, of what house, or of what cytye art thou?
The Angell Raphael sayd vnto hym: Askest thou after the kynred of an hyepryng, or sekest thou a gyde for thy sonne to go with hym? But that I make the not carefull, I am Arias the sonne of grete Bananias.
And Tobias answered: thou arte come of a grete kynred: but I pray the be not dyspleased that I desired to knowe thy kynred. The Angell sayd vnto hym: thy sonne that I lede for the safelye, and byng hym hole to the agayne.

Then answered Tobias, and sayd: well god on youre waye, and God be in youre iourney, and his Angell beare you companye.
So when they had prepared all thynges, þ they wolde take with them in their iourney: Tobias had his father and his mothe face well, and they went on their waye bothe together. Now when they were gone, his mother began to wepe, and sayd: The staffe of our age hath thou taken awaye, and sent hym
from vs.

Wolde God that money had neuer bene, for the

for the which thou had sent him away. If we had bene content with our pouertie, this had bene great riches vnto vs, that we sawe our sonne here. Then sayd Tobias vnto her: wepe not, our sonne shall come to vs agayne safe and sounde, and thine eyes shall se him. For I trust, that the good Angell of God shall beare hym company, and ordeyne well all the thynges that he doeth: so that he shall come to vs agayne with ioye. At these wordes his mother lette of from weeping, and helde her tongue.

¶ Younger Tobias is deliuered from the fyre, by the Angell. The Angell exhorteth Tobias to seeke Sara to his wyfe.

CAPL.

VI.

S Tobias went on his waye, and a dog followed hym, and the first nyght they abode by the water of Egypt. Then went he out to waiche his fete, and beholde, there came forth an horrible fyre to deuoure him. Of whom Tobias was afraide, and cryed with a loude voyce, saying: Lorde, he cometh vpon me. And the Angell sayde vnto hym: Take him by the cheke blade, and draw hym to the. And he dyd so, and drew hym vpon the lande. And the fyre began to leape at his fete.

Then sayd the Angell vnto hym: Take out the bowels of this fyre, and as for the better, the gal, and the liver, kepe them by the. For these thynges are necessary and good for medecyne. Tobias dyd so, and toke the fyre, & they toke hym with them in theyr iourney, the residue they salted, as moche as was sufficient for them, till they came to Raguel. Then Tobias asked the Angell, & sayde vnto hym: I pray the brother Azariah, tell me wherto are these thynges good of the fyre, that thou hast brydged me hepe?

The angell answered hym and sayde: If thou layest a peece of the herte vpon the coles the smoke therof dyueth awaye all maner of euill spites, whether it be from man or from woman, so for the which I praye that thou come no more vnto them. The gal is good to anoynt oyes to kepe them from weeping, where as there is any blemish in them, so that they be hale.

¶ And Tobias sayde vnto him: where wilt thou that we remaine? The angel answered and sayde here is a myghty kynsman of thine, one Raguel by name, which hath a daughter called Sara, & hath neither sonne nor daughter but her. All his good belongeth vnto her, and thou must marrye his daughter: and therefore desyre her of her father, and he shall gyue her the to wyfe. Then answered Tobias & sayd: As I vnderstand, we hath bene marryed vnto such husbandes, and they all are deade: and I haue herde saye, that the deuill slayeth them. I am afraide therefore, lest such thynges happen vnto me also: which if it came to passe I praye I am the onely sonne of my father &

my mother: I shoulde bypasse them in theyr age, and so to the theyr graues.

Then sayd the Angell Raphael vnto him: Dears me, and I will tell the what they be, of whom the deuill hath the power. Namely, they that receiue marriage of such a fadyon, that they put God out from them and from theyr herte, & gyue them selues to chere and lust, euen as it were an horse and mule, which haue no vnderstandyng, vpon such hath the deuill power. But when thou takest her, and art come in to the chambre, withholde thy self from her the first dayes, and geue thy diligence vnto nothyng but vnto praye with her.

And in the first nyght, toke the lyuer of the fyre, and the deuill shall be dyueth awaye. The seconde nyght, walke thou be weryth to the companye of the holie patriarches. The thyrde nyght, walke thou obtayne the blessinge of God, so that hole chylidren shall be borne of you. After the thyrde nyght take the mayden in the feare of God, and more for the desyre of chylidren, then for any fleshy lust, that in the feare of Abraham thou mayest obtayne the blessinge in chylidren.

¶ Younger Tobias and the Angell come to the house of Raguel. He requyeth Raguel's daughter to wyfe, and obtayneth her.

CAPL.

VII.

Then wente they in to Raguel, while the receyued them for ioy. And when Raguel looked vpon Tobias, he sayde vnto Anna his wyfe: how lyke is this yonge man vnto my ffyners sonne. And when he had spoken this, he sayd: whence be ye good byrthens? They sayd: Of the trybe of Issachar out the captiuitie of Babilon. Then sayde Raguel vnto them: know ye my brother Tobias? They sayd: yea, we know hym well. And when he had spoken much good of him, the Angell sayde vnto Raguel: Tobie of whom thou askest, is this yong mans father. Then Raguel bowed him selfe downe, and wepte, toke him about the necke and kyssed hym, and sayd: Gods blessinge be thou my sonne, for thou arte the sonne of a good vertuous man. And Anna his wyfe and Sara his daughter wepte also.

Now when they had talked together, Raguel had kyll a wether, and to make a feast. And when he prayed them to sit downe to dinner, Tobias sayd: I will neither eate nor dryncke here this daye, excepte thou fynde graunte me my petition, and promyse me to gyue me thy daughter Sara. When Raguel hearde this, he was adonised, for he knewe what had happened vnto the other kyd man that went in vnto her: and he began to feare that it shoulde chaunce vnto him also in like maner.

And whyle he stode so in doubt, and gaue the yonge man no answer, the Angell sayd vnto him: feare not to gyue him thy daughter, for vnto this man that feareth God, becometh the daughter to wyfe, therefore mayest thou not other haue her.

Then said Raguel: I doubt not, but God hath accepted my prayers and tears in his sight: and I trust he caused you to come vnto me for the same intent, that this daughter of mine myght be married in her owne kyn, accordinge to the lawe of Moses. And now doubt thou not, but I will gyue her vnto the: So he toke the ryght hande of his daughter, and gaue her in to the ryght hande of Tobias, and sayd: The God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob, be with you: ioyne you together, and fulfill his blessinge in you. And they toke a letter and made a wytyng of the marriage. And then made they mery, and prayed God. And Raguel called Anna his wyfe vnto hym, and had her prepare an other chambre, and thyr he broughte Sara his daughter, and the wyfe. Then sayde he vnto her: Be of good chere my daughter, the Lorde of heauen gyue the ioye, for the heuynelle that thou haste suffered.

¶ The Angell byndeth the deuill. Tobias exhorteth his wyfe to praye, and they praye the dayes beyng they lye together.

CAPL.

VIII.

Now after that they hadde supped, they brought the yonge man in to her. Then thoughte Tobias vpon the wordes of the angell, and toke out of his bagge a peece of the lyuer of the fyre, and layd it vpon the hote coles. So the angell Raphael toke holde of the deuill, and sent him awaye, and bound him in the wilderness of hyper Egypt. Then spake Tobias vnto the virgin, & said: My Sara, let vs make our prayer vnto God to day, to morrow, and ouer morrow: for these thynges will we reconcile our selues to God: and when the thyrde holy night is past we shall ioyne together in the duty of marriage. For we are the children of holy me, and we may not come together as the heathen & know not God.

Then stode they by both together, and besought God earnestly that he wolde preserue them. And Tobias sayde: O Lorde God of our fathers, prayed be thou of heauen and earth, of the see, welles, and founteyns, and of all the creatures that be therein. Thou make Adam of the mould of the earth, and gauest him Eua for an helper. And now Lorde thou knowest, that it is not because of voluptuousnes that I take this lyuer of mine to wyfe, but only for the loue of chylidren, in whome thy name be blessed for euer. And Sara said: haue mercy vpon vs, O Lorde, haue mercy vpon vs and let vs bothe come hole and sounde to a good age.

And aboute the cocke crowe, it happened & Raguel called his seruantes, and they wrote with him to make a graue. For he sayd: it is chaunced vnto him peradventure, as it did vnto the other Iouen man, that he will be vnto her. Now wher they had made the graue, Raguel came agayne to his wyfe, and sayd vnto her: send one of thy maydes to loke yt he be dead, that I may burye hym afore it be light daye. So he sent a mayden to se, whiche when she came in to the chambre, she founde them hole and sound sleeping together. And so she came agayne, and brought good tydynges. Then Raguel and Anna his wife, prayed & Lorde and sayd: Prayed be thou, O Lorde God of Israel, for: it is not happened vnto vs as we thought. For thou hast bene mercifully with vs, and put awaye from vs, the enemy that persecuted vs, and hast shewed merce vnto yonder two beloued. O Lorde cause them to magnify the more perfectly, and to offer the the sacrifice of thy praise and of their heil: that all people may know, that thou only art God in all the earth.

And immediately Raguel commaunded his seruantes to fill the graue & they had made with erth afore it was light: and had his wyfe prepare a feast, & to make retye at thynges that were necessary for meat, to such as were by the waye. He caused two fat kyne also, and foure wethers to be slayne, & meates to be prepared for all his neyghbours & frendes. And Raguel charged Tobias to remaine with him two weekes. As for all the good that he had, he gaue Tobias the one halfe of it, & made this wytyng, that the halfe which remaine, shoulde fall vnto Tobias after their death.

¶ The Angell goeth to Gabelus, at the desyre of Tobias, which deliuereth the leure, and receyue the money.

CAPL.

IX.

Then Tobias called vnto him the angell, whome he thought to haue bene a man, and sayd vnto hym. Brother Azarias, I pray the barren vnto my wyfe: If I wolde gyue my selfe to be thy seruante, I shall not deserue thy prouidence. For the leste I beseeche the, that thou wilt take the beastes and the seruantes, and go vnto Gabelus in Raguel the city of Medes, and deliuer hym his hande wytyng, and receyue the money of hym, and praye hym to come to my marriage. For thou knowest thy selfe, that my father telleth the dayes: and yf I tary one day to longe, he will be sorre in his mynde. Nowe tell thou how earnestly Raguel hath requyred me, so that I can not say hym nay.

Then toke Raphael four of Raguel's seruantes & two camels, & went vnto Raguel's city of the Medes: and when he had founde Gabelus, he gaue him his hand wytyng and receyued all the money. He told hym also of Tobias the son of Tobie, how all thynges had happened, and caused hym to come with him to the marriage. Now wher he came in to the house of Raguel, he found Tobias sitting at the table: and he lepte vp, and they kyssed one another, and Gabelus wepte, and prayed God and said: the blessing of the God of Israel

Isracel haue thou, for thou art the sonne of a right vertuous and iust man, and of one that feareth God, and giveth great almes. And blessing haue thy wife, and your elders that ye maye be your chyldren and your chylders chyldren, vnto the thyrd and fourthe generation, and that your name maye be blessed of the God of Isracel, whiche reygneyth worlde without ende. And when they had sayde: Amen, they wente to the feaste, but with the feare of the Lorde, helde they the feast of the marriage.

Tobias and his wyfe are sad for the taryance of theys sonne. Raguel sendeth agayne Tobias with his wyfe.

CAPL. X.

Nowe whyle yonge Tobias made long taryinge by reason of the marriage his father was full of care and heynesse, and thought what shoulde be the cause, that my sonne taryeth so longe? Why shoulde he be kepte so long there? Peradventure Gabelus is dead, and no man wyll gyue hym the money. Thus began he to be very sorrowfull he Anna his wyfe with him, & began to wepe bothe togyther, because their sonne was not come agayne vnto them at the dape appoynted. As for his mother, she wept with discomfor-table teares, and said: Wo is me, my son wh what ayled vs to sende the awaye in to a strange country, thou lyght of our eyes, & fraile of our age, & comfort of our lyfe, thou hope of our generation? Seing all the thinges that we haue are onely of the, we shoulde not haue sent the away from vs.

Then Tobias comforted her, & said: hold thy tonge, and be not discomforred, our son is hole and sound: the man that we sent him withall is saythfull ynowhe. Peruerthelisse the might in no wyse be comforted: but dayly went out, looked about, and went about all the streets, whereby he thought he shold come agayne, that if it were possible, he myght see him commyng a farre of.

But Raguel sayd vnto his son in law: O tary here, & I shall send a messenger vnto thy father Tobias, to tel hym that I art in good helth. Tobias said vnto him: I am sure that my father and my mother count every dape, and that they beketes are soye.

So when Raguel prayed Tobias with manye wordes, and wolde in no wyse heare hym, he deliuered Sara vnto hym, and the halfe parte of all his good: in seruantes, & handmaydens, in shepe in camels, & in hyne, and moche money, and so sente hym awaye from him with pear and ioye, and sayd: the holpe angell of the Lorde be with you in youre iourney, and bying you forth safe and sounde, that ye maye fynde all thynges in good case with youre elders, and that myn-ces maye be your chyldren afore I dye. So the elders embraced theys daughter, kysed her, and let her go, & bying her to honour her father & mother in lawe, to loue her husband, to rule well her household, to kepe her house in good orde, and to spewe her selfe faultlesse.

Yonge Tobias leuyng his wyfe and household in the myd waye, commeth before with the Angell. The dycame of his mother, loyng after her sonne. He is ioyfully receyued of his father and mother. Sara commeth tenen dayes after.

CAPL. XI.

As they now were goryng homeward agayne, vpon the xi. dape they came to Charra, whiche lyeth in the halfe waye toward Nimue. And the angell said: Brother Tobias thou knowest howe thou hast left thy father: therfore if it please the we two wyll go before, and let the household with thy wyfe and the cattell come toste and say: ly after vs. And when Tobias was content that they shold go before, Raphael sayd vnto hym: Take of the gail of the fish with the, for it shal be necessary. So Tobias toke of the gail, and they wente they waye. But Anna the mother of Tobias sat dayly by the waye syde vpon the top of an hylle, frome whence the myghte be farre aboute her. And whyle she was watyng there for his commyng, she looked awaie of, and among the receyued her sonne commyng, and ran and told her husband, saying: Beholde, thy son commeth. And Raphael sayd vnto Tobias: As soone as thou comest in to the house, immedialy thou shyp the Lorde thy God, and gyue thankes vnto hym: then goo to thy father & kysse hym, and drype his eyes out with the gail of the fish, that thou hast brought with the. For be sure that his eyes shal straye waye be opened, and thy father shal see the lyghte of heuen, and shal reioyse at the syghte of the. Then the dogge that had bene with them in theyr iourneys, ranne before, and came as a messenger, and wagged with his taylor gladnesse.

So the blynd father arose, & began to run and hombled with his fete, & gaue a seruante his hande, ran to mete his son, receyued hym and kysed hym and his wyfe, and began to wepe for ioye.

Now when they had troshipped & thanked God, they sat downe. Then toke Tobias of the fishes gail, & anoynted his fathers eyes: and taryed half an houre, and then began the blynd to go out of his eyes, like as it had bene the wyne of an egge, which Tobias as toke and drinke from his eyes, and immediatly he receyued his syghte.

Then they prayed god, he and his wife, & all they that were with them. And Tobias said: O Lorde God of Isracel, I gyue the prayse and thankes, for thou hast chastened me, & made me hole. And lo, now do I see my son Tobias. After seven dayes came Sara his sonnes wyfe also hole and sound, with all the household and cattell, with camels & moche money of his

of his wyne, and with þ money that he had receyued of Gabelus: and he told his father and mother al the benefytes, which God had done for him, by the man that ledde hym. And also and Nabath Tobias systers sonnes came, and were glad, and reioyced with hym, by reason of al the good, that God had shewed vnto hym. And so for þ space of ten dayes they made merre, and were ryght ioyfull every chone.

Yonge Tobias rekeneth by vnto his father the pleasures that the Angell had vnto hym. He cometh vnto the Angell halke the goodes that he brought with hym.

CAPL. XII.

Then Tobias called his son vnto him, & sayd: what may we gyue this holy ma that wet with the? Tobias answered his father, and sayd: father what rewarde shal we gyue him? or what thyng can deserue his benefytes? He hath bene my guyde, and brought me safe agayne: he receyued the money of Gabelus, he caused me to get my wife by the euil spirit from her, he hath ben a morallion of gladnesse to her father & mother, he deliuered me, that I was not deuoured of the fyth, he hath made the to see þ lyghte of heu, yea we all haue receyued great good of hym. How shold we mo: thyly deserue these thinges vnto him? But I pray the my father that thou wylt deliue him, & happily he wil vnto us to take with hym the halfe of all þ we haue brought.

So the father and the sonne called hym, toke him alyde, and began to pray him, that he wolde be content to take in good wo: the the halfe parte of all that he hadde brought. Then sayd he secretly vnto them: Prayse þ God of heuen, and gyue thankes vnto hym, before al men lyuyng, for he hath shewed his mercy vnto vs. It is good for vs to hyde the thynges secreete, but to shew and to prayse the wo: kes of God, it is an honourable thyng. Prayer is good with fastyng, and to gyue almes, is better then to ho: d by treasures of golde: for almes deliuereth from deathe, cleanseth synne, and causeth to fynde euery thyng lyfe. But they that do synne & unrigh- tounesse, are the enemyes of theyr owne soules.

Wherfore I tell you the truth, & wyl hyde nothing from you. While thou praydest with trares, and burydest the deede, and lestest thy prayse, and hydest the deede in thy house vnto the dape tyme, that thou myghtest bury them in the nyght. I offered thy prayse before the Lorde. And because thou wast accepted and beloued of God, it was necessary that tempta- tion shoulde trye the. And now hath the Lorde let me to heale the, & to deliuer Sara thy sonnes wyfe from the euil spirit. For I am Raphael an angell, one of þ seven that stand before God.

When they herd this, they were sore afraid and trembled, and fel downe vpon theyr faces vnto the ground. Then sayd the angell: D fear be with you, fear not. Wher as I haue ben with you, it is þ wyl of God, gyue prayse and thankes vnto him.

You thought that I did eate and drynke with you, but I did meate that is inuisible, & drynke that can not be tene of men.

Now therfore is the tyme þ I muste turne agayne vnto him þ sent me: but he ye thankfull vnto God, and tel out all his wonderous wo: kes.

And when he hadde spoken these wordes, he was taken awaye out of theyr syghte, so that they sawe him no more. Then fell they downe flatte vpon theyr faces by the space of thre houres, and praysed God: and when they rose vp, they tolde all his wonderous wo: kes.

Tobias the eldier gyueeth thankes vnto God.

CAPL. XIII.

Then olde Tobias opened his mouth & praysed the Lorde, and said: great art thou, o Lorde, for euermore, and thy kyngdome, worlde withoute ende: for thou scourgest and healest, thou ledest vnto hell, and byngest out agayne, and there is none þ may escape thyne hande. O gyue thankes vnto the Lorde, ye chyldren of Isracel, & prayse hym in the syght of the heathen. For among the heathen whiche knowe hym not hath he scattered you, to thintent that ye shoulde serue forth his marvelous wo: kes: and cause the for to knowe, that there is none other God almyghty but he. He hath chastened vs for oure mysdedes, and for his owne mercy sake shal he saue vs.

Consider then how he hath delt with you, and praise him with feare and drede, and acknowlyte the euerydaye hyng in your wo: kes. I wyl praye hym, euen in the land of my captiuitie, for he hath shewed his mercie vnto a synfull people. Turne you therfore, O ye sinners, and do rightounesse before God, and be ye sure that he wyl shewe his mercy vpon you. As for me and my soule, we wyl reioyse in God. O prayse the Lorde al ye his chosen, holde the dayes of gladnesse, and be thankfull vnto hym. O Jerusalem thou city of God, the Lorde hath punished the for the wo: kes of thyne owne handes. O prayse the Lorde in thy good thinges, and gyue thankes to the euerydaye God, that he maye burye vs his tabernacle agayne in the, that he may call agayne vnto the, all suche as be in captiuitie, and that thou mayest haue ioye for euermore. With a sayre light shalt thou fynde and ale the endes of the worlde shal honour the. The people shal come vnto the fro far, they shal bying gyltes, & wo: shyp the Lorde in the, and thy land shal they haue for a sanctuary, for the shal call vpon the great name in the.

Cursed shall they be that despyse the, and all that blasphem the, shal be condemnid: Amen.

but blessed that they be that buyld the wy. As for the, thou shalt reioyce in thy chyldren, for they all shall be blessed and gathered together vnto the Lord. Blessed are they all that loue the, & be glad of thy pear. Praise thou the Lord, o my soule, for the Lord our God hath deliuered his city Jerusalem from all her troubles. I wyll counte my selfe happye if my seide remayne to se the clearence of Jerusalem.

Tobias. xii.

The gates of Jerusalem shall be buylded with Saphyre, & Smaragde, and all the compasse of her walles with pious stones. All her streets shall be paved with white marble stone, and in all her streets shall Alleluya be song. Praise be the Lord, which hath created her, that his kyngdome may be vpon her for euermore. Amen. And so Tobias made an ende of his talynge.

Tobias propheth the destruction of Ninue.
His sonne returneth to Raguel, after the death of his father and mother.

CAPL. XIII.

Tobias. xiii.

After that Tobias had gotten his syght agayne, he lyued. xlii. yeres, and sawe his nephewes chyldren. Nowe when he was an hundred and two yere olde, he dyed: and was buryed honourably in Niniue. For when he was sixe and fyfthe yeres of age, he lost his syght of his eyes, and when he was thre score yere olde, he gat his syght agaayne. The residue of his life led he in ioy, and increased well in the feare of God, and departed in pear.

But in the houre of his death he called vnto hym his sonne Tobias, and seven yonge spryngholde his sonnes chyldren, and sayde vnto them: The destruction of Ninue is at hand, for the word of the Lord can not fayle, and our brethren that are scatred out of the lande of Israel, shall come thither agayne.

Tobias. xiii.

And the hole lande of it that hath ben waste, shall be filled, and the house of God that was brent in it, shall be buylded agayne, & all such as feare God, shall returne thither: the heathen also shall forsake their ydols, & come to Jerusalem, & dwell there, and all the kynges of the erth shall be glad of her, and worship the Lord God of Israel.

And therefore my chyldren, heare your father: Serue the Lord in faythfulnesse, & after his will, and do the thing that pleaseth
hym. & commaund your chyldren that they do right, & give almes, be myndfull of God, and euer to be thankfull vnto hym in trueth, and with all their power. Heare me therefore my chyldren, & abyde not here: but in what day so euer ye haue buryed your mother besyde me, gette you frome hence. For I fe, that the wickednesse of it shall bring it to destruction and ende.

After the death of his mother, Tobias departed awaye from Ninue, with his wyfe & chyldren, and with his chylders chyldren, and came agayne to his father and mother in law, and found them hole and in a good age, and toke the care of the. And he closed their eyes and was happye vnto all Raguels goodes, & sawe the fyfth generacion and chylders children. And when he was. xxi. yere of age, he dyed in the feare of the Lord, and his husband folkes buryed hym: And all his posteri-tie continued in a good life, and holy conuersacion: so that they were loued and accepted bothe of God and men, and of al
the people of the
lande.

The buyldynge of Ecbathanis. The bydoyn of Nabuchodonosor agaynst Arpharat. The mact-ys of Nabuchodonosor are despyled.

CAPL.

Arpharat the kinge
of the Medes, submoued many people vnto his dominion, and buylded
a noble stronge cite, which he called Echathanis. The walles of it made he of fre stone, four squared, scuentye cubites hie, & thirti cubites wyde. He made towers therbyen of an hundred cubites hie.
But vnto the. iiii. corners, euerie side was. xx. fote wyde. He made the portes in the beygethe like as the towres. This king trusted in his mighty host, and in his glorious charrettes.

So in the twelfth yere of his raygne, it happened that Nabuchodonosor the kyng of the Assyrians, which raygned in the great city of Ninue, fought agaynst Arpharat, and ouercame hym in the grete felde called Ragan besyde Euphrates and Tigris, and Iadalon, in the felde of Erioth the kyng of the Elites.

Then was the kyngdome of Nabuchodo-nosor exalted, and his heret was lytte by:
and he sent vnto all them that dwelte in Ce-licia, in Damascus, in Libanus, and vnto the heathen that dwelte in Carmel, and Cedar, and to such as dwelte in Galile in the grete felde of Esdrelon, to all theym that were in Samaria, and beyonde the water of Jordan vnto Jerusalem, and the hole lande of Jude, vnto the mountaynes of Ethiopia.
Vnto all these byd Nabuchodonosor the kyng of the Assyrians sende messengers.
But they all with one consente wolde not agree vnto hym, and sente the messengers a-gayne emptye, and put them awaye without honour. Then Nabuchodonosor the kyng toke indignacion at all those landes, and swore by his throne, and by his kyngdome, that he wolde be auenged of all those countries.

Holofernes is sent of Nabuchodonosor, to subdue all the world. The preparation and pursute of Holofernes.

CAPL.

II.

In the thyrtyent yere of kyng Nabuchodonosor, vpon the. xxi. daye of the fyfthe moneth, it was deuised in the court of Na-buchodonosor the kyng of the Assyrians, that he wolde defende hym selfe. So he called vnto hym all the elders, all his capitaynes, & men of warre, and shewed them his secreete counsell, and tolde them that his purpose was to wyng the hole earth vnder his dominion.

Pointe when they were all content with his sayng: Nabuchodonosor the kyng called Holofernes the chiefe capitayne of his war-res, and sayd vnto him: goo thy waye forth agaynst all the kyngdomes of the weste, and specially agaynst those that haue despyled my commaundment. Thou shalt spare no realme, all stronge cities shalt thou bring in subiectioun vnto me.

Then Holofernes called together all the Capitaynes and rulers of all the power in Assyria, and mustred the souldyers vnto the hoste (lyke as the kyng commaunded hym) namely an hundred and twenye thousande fyrtyng men vpon foote, and twelue thousande archers vpon horsebacke. All his ordinance sente he before with an innumerable multitude of camelles, so that the hoste was wel prouyded for with oren and smel catel, and that without nombre. He caused corn to be prepared out of all Siria for his hoste.
Moche golde and syluer also toke he oute of the kynges house. So he toke his iourney, he and all his host, with charrettes, horsemen, and archers: of whom there were so many, that they couered the ground of the land, lyke the gretthoppers.

And when he was gone past the borders of the Assyrians, he came towarde the grete mountaynes of Euge, which lyen vpon the left syde of Celicia: and so he went in to all theyr castels, and warne euerie stronge hold. As for the welthy city of Belochus, he brake it downe, and spoyled all the chyldren of Charis and the Simacites, which laye towarde the wyldernes, and vpon the south side of the land of Belon. He went ouer Euphrates also, and came in to Mesopotamia, and brake downe all the byc. x. castles that were there, from the brooke of Hambe, til a man come to the see: & he toke the borders in fere Celicia, vnto the coastes of Japut towarde the southe. He caried awaye all the Assyrianites, and spoyled all theyr goodes: & who so euer withstode hym, he slew them with the sword. After this he wente downe in to the felde of Damascus in the tyme of barnefle and burnt by all the corne and all the trees, and caused the byns to be cut downe. And the feare of hym fel vpon all them that dwelt in the earth.

Kynges become willingly subiect to Holofernes.
The tyrannye and crueltye of hym.

CAPL.

III.

So the kynges and prynces of all syrre, & of landes sent their embassadors, namely they of Syria and Mesopotamia, Si-ria Sobal, and Lybia, and Celicia, which came to Holofernes, and sayde: Lette thy wyathe cease toward vs: It is better for vs to serue the grete kyng Nabuchodonosor with our lyues, and to be subiecte vnto the,
than to be destroyed.

then that we sholde dye, and be slayne, & receyue greater hurte. All our ctytes and possessions, all mountaynes and hylles, all fel-des great, and smal catel, shepe, goates, horyes and camels, all our goddes and householdes, be in thy power, vnder thy subiectioe be it all together. We oure selues also and our chyldren wyll be thyne owne, come vnto vs a peaceable Lorde, and vse our seruyce at thy pleasure.

Then came Holofernes downe from the mountaynes with horyemen and grete power, and conquered all stronge fenced ctytes, and all that dwelt in the land. And out of all ctytes he toke stronge men, and suche as were mete for the warre, to helpe hym.

Judith. 5.

There came such a fear also vpon those countreys, that the indwellers of all the ctytes, the Prynces and rulers, and the people togyther wente for the to mete hym as he came, and receyued him honourably with garlandes and tozches, with daunses, tabyettes, & pypes.

Nevertheless though they dyd this, yet might they not swage his rigorous stomach but he destroyed their ctytes, & hewed down their woddes. For Nabuchodonosor the kynge had commaunded hym, that he shoulde roote oute all the goddes of the lande: to the intent that he onely might be called and taken for God of the nations, whiche Holofernes with his power brought vnder hym. So went he thowowe Syria Sabal, and thowowe all Appamia, and all Mesopotamia, came to the Idumeans, in the lande of Gabaa, and Septopolis, and toke theyr ctytes, & remayned there thretye dayes, wherein he caused al the hole multitude of his hoste to be gathered togyther.

Israel requyeth helpe of God, agaynst Holofernes. They fast and praye.

CAPL III.

When the chyldren of Israel that dwelt in Iurye herde this, they were sooze a frayd of hym. There came suche tremblynge also and feare vpon them, that they forowd he sholde do vnto the ctyte of Jerusalem and the temple of the Lorde, as he had done to other ctytes and their temples. So they sent in to all Samaria round about vnto Jericho, toke in and occupied all the topes of the mountaynes, made fast & towynes with walles, and prepared corne for them agaynst the battayle.

Eliachim also the Pryest went vnto all them that dwelt towarde Eldelon (whiche lyeth oueragaynst the great felde by Dothaim) and vnto all those by whome men myghte haue passage vnto them, that they shoulde take in the wayes of the mountaynes wherby there myghte be any waye and passage to Jerusalem, and that they shoulde hold diligent watche wher any straye way was betwixt the mountaynes. And the chyldren of Israel dyd, as Eliachim the Pryest offe-Lorde had commaunded them. And all the people cried earnestly, and humbled their son-les with fastynges and prayers, they & theyr wyues. The Pryestes put on heere clothes, and layde the younge babes before the temple of the Lorde, and covered the altare of Lorde with an heere clothe. And with one accorde they cryed vnto the Lorde God of Israel, that their chyldren shoulde not be geyue in to a pray, & their wyues in to a spoyle, that theyr ctytes shoulde not be layde waste, and that their Sanctuary shoulde not be unhalowed, and so they to be a shame and rebuke vnto

the heathen.

Then Eliachim the hie Pryest of the Lorde wente rounde aboute all Israel, and spake vnto them, sayinge: Be ye sure, & the Lorde wyll heare your peticyons, yf ye continue fastfast in fastynges and prayers in the sighte of the Lorde. Remember howes the seruants of the Lorde, whiche ouerthrew the Amalechites (that trusted in theyr myghte and power, in theyr hoste, in theyr thyldes, in theyr charrettes and horyemen) not with weapons, but with holy prayers. Euen so shall all the enemys of Israel be, yf ye continue in this worke that ye haue begon. So vpon this exhortacyon, they continued in prayer before the Lorde. In so moche that they whiche offered bynter sacrifices vnto the Lorde, offered the offerynges vnto the Lorde, bringe arrayed in heere clothes, and had alshes vpon theyr heades. And they all besoughte God from theyr hole herte, that he wolde vlyte his people of Israel.

Holofernes is discontent with the Jewes Achiodor cometh vnto Holofernes the marshall of the Lorde, done vnto the Jewes, for whiche thyng, the Lords under Holofernes were very angry with him.

CAPL V.

Ad word came to Holofernes the Pryest of the warres of the Assyrians, that the chyldren of Israel prepared them selues to make resystance, and howe they had stopped the wayes betwixt the moun-taynes. Then was he exceeding wythe, and called all the Prynces of Assyria, and the capitaynes of Ammon, and said vnto them: tel me, what people is this & kepeth in the moun-taynes? or what maner of ctytes are they?
what is theyr power? or what maner of hoste haue they, who is their capitayne? And wher do they despyse vs (more than all those that dwell in the East) and come not to mete vs, that they myght receyue vs in peere?
Then Achior the capitayne of al the Ammo-nites, answered and sayde: Syr, yf it please the to heare me, I wyll tell the truth before the concerning this people that dwell in the mountaynes, and there shall no lye goe oute of my mouth.

This people is of the generation of the Caldees, they dwelte fyrst in Mesopotamia, for they wold not folow the goddes of their fathers that were in the lande of the Chaldees, & so forsake they the customes of theyr fore fathers (whiche had many goddes) and worshipped one God, that made heauen and earth: whiche also commaunded them & they wold goe from thence, and dwell at Baran.

Now when there came a deth in to the hole lande, they went downe to Egypt, and there they dwelt foure hundred yeres, in the whiche they multiplied so greatly, that they host might not be nombred. And when the King of Egypt oppressed them, and subdued them in buydyng of his ctytes, with makynge of dape and bypche, they cryed vnto God theyr Lorde, whiche punished the hole lande of Egypt, with dyuers plagues.

Now when the kynge of Egypt let them go theyr way, and the plague ceased, and then followed after them, to take them, & so buyng them agayne in to his seruyce, whyle they were slepyng awaye, the God of heauen opened the see, so that the water stode fast, vpon bothe the sydes as a wall, and they wente thowow the bottom of the see: dyde God. In the which place, when an innumerable people of Egyptians folowed vpon them, they were so ouerwhelmed with the waters, that there remayned not one, to tell them that came after, how it happened. So when this people was passed thowowe the red see, they came vnto the wyldernes of the mount Synai, wher neuer man myght dwell afore, and wher the sonne of man had neuer rested.

Where were the bytter waters made swete for them, that they myght drynke, and foxye pyres had they meate from heauen. Where soeuer they went (withowt bowe and arrow, withowt bukler or swerde) their God fought for them, and caused them to haue the vycto-ry. Yea no man was hable to hurte this people, except it were so, that they departed vnto the lande of the Canaanites. But as oft as they wozshipped any other besyde theyr God, he gaue them ouer to be spoyled, to be slayne, and to be put to confusyon. Nevertheless as oft as they were soyr for departyng from the wozshipp of theyr God, the same God of heauen gaue them power and strength to withstand their enemyes.

Moreover they slewe the kynge of the Canaanites, Jebusites, Pherezites, Hethtites, Emites, and Amozites, and all the myghtye in helebon, and toke theyr landes and ctytes in possession: and so long as they synned not in the sight of theyr God, it wente well with them, for theyr God hateth vngyftousnesse. For in the tymes past when they wente out of Egipte, whiche God had geyuen them, that they shoulde walke in it, they were destroyed in dyuers battayles of manye nations: and many of them were carped awaye prisoners vnto a straunge countrey. But now lately they haue turned them selues agayne vnto the Lorde theyr God, and are come together agayne out of the countreys wher they were scattered abrode: and thus haue they conquered these mountaynes, and dwell there in: and as for Jerusalem wher their Sanctuary is, they haue it agayne in possession.

And therfore my Lorde, make diligent inquyryson, of this people haue done wyckednesse in the sight of theyr God, then let vs go by agaynst them, for doubtlesse theyr God shall deliuer them into thy handes, and subdue them vnto thy power. But if this people haue not displeased theyr God, we shall not be hable to withstande them, for their God shall defend them, and so shall we be a shame to all the world.

Judith. 6.

Now when Achior had spoken out these wordes, all the Prynces of Holofernes were wyth and thoughte to slay hym, and sayde one to an other: what is he this, whiche dare say that the chyldren of Israel are hable to withstande Nabuchodonosor the kynge and his host: where as they are an vnweapened people, without strength or vnderstandynge of the feates of war? That Achior therfore may knowe that he hath dysceyued vs, we wyll go vnto the mountaynes: and wher the myghtye men of them are taken, he also shall be styckt with the swerde, that all people may know, that Nabuchodonosor is the God of the earth, and that there is none other without hym.

Achior is committed into the handes of the Je-wes by Holofernes. He is tyed to a tree, but is loosed of the Jewes. The prayer of the people. Achior is comforted of the Jewes.

CAPL VI.

So when they had leste of speakyng, Holofernes toke soze indignacion, and sayd vnto Achior. For so moche as thou haue prophecyed vnto vs, sayinge: that the people of Israel shall be defended of theyr God, I wyll sweare the, that there is no God but Nabuchodonosor. Yea when we see them al as one man, thou also shalte praye with the thowow the swerde of the Assyrians, and all Israel shall be destroyed with the, and then shalt thou see, that Nabuchodonosor is the Lorde of the hole earth. When shal the swerd of my knyghthod go thowow thy sydes, and thou shalt fall downe styckt amonge the wounded of Israel, and shalt not come to thy selfe agayne, but be vityerly destroyed with them.

But yf thou thynekst thy prophecy to be true, why dost thou then chaunge thy colour? why art thou afrayed? Thynekst thou that my wordes are not hable to be perforemed?
But that thou mayst know, that thou shalt see these thynges with them, beholde, from this houre forth the wyll I sende the vnto ponder people, that when the punishment of my swerde (whiche they haue wythelye deser-ued) falleth vpon them, thou mayst be punished with them.

So Holofernes commaunded his seruan-tes to take Achior, and to cary hym vnto Be-thulia.

VII.

thulla, and to deliuer hym into the handes of the chylidren of Israel. Then Holofernes seruantes toke hym, and wente thowowe the playne felde. But when they drew nye vnto the mountaynes, the spyng casters came out agaynst them. Hetherelisse they gat them away by the syde of the mountayne, & beside Achur hande and fote to a tree, and so lefte hym bound with withyes, and turned agayn vnto the Loide.

Notwithstandynge the chylidren of Israel went downe from Bethulia, came vnto hym, looked hym, brought hym in to Bethulia, set hym in the myddell of the people, & asked hym what the matter was, that the Assyrians had left hym bounde.

Olus the sonne of Micha, of the tribe of Simeon, and Chamin (which is also called Gethoniel) were the principall rulers at the same tyme. Nowe when Achior stode in the myddell of the Senarouers, and before them at he tolde them, what answere he gaue Holofernes, to the thyng that he asked hym, and how Holofernes people wolde haue slayne hym for saying: and how Holofernes hym selfe was mych, and commaunded hym for the same cause to be deliuered vnto the Israelites: that when he ouercame the chylidren of Israel, he myght commaunde Achior also to be put to death with dyuers tormentes, because he sayde the God of heauen is there defender. And when Achior had playnly tolde out all these thynges, all the people fel downe vpon their faces, praisynge the Loide, and poured out their prayres togyther vnto the Loide, with a generall complaynt and weeping, and sayde: O Loide of heauen and of earth, beholde thy people, and loke vpon our lowlynesse, and consyde how it standeth with thy sayntes, and make it to be knowne that thou forsake not those, which holde them fast by the, and how that thou byngest them lowe, that presume of them selues, and make their boode in their owne strength.

So when the weppynge and prayer of the people (whiche they had made the hole daye longe) was ended, they comforted Achior, sayynge: The God of our fathers, whose power and strength thou hast praised, shall so orde the, that thou shalte rather see their destruction. When the Loide our God then shall geue his seruantes this lybertie, God be also with the amonges vs: so that if it please the, thou wilt thyne maped dwell with vs.

Nowe when Olus had ended the counsell, he toke hym into his house, and made a great supper, called the elders to it, and so they refreshed them selues after the fastynge. And afterwarde was all the people called togyther, which made their prayres all the nyght longe in the congregacion, and besought the God of Israel for helpe.

Bethulia is besieged of Holofernes. The people requyre helpe of God. They of Bethulia wolde geue ouer the cyte for want of water. The prayer of the people with teares and lamentation.

The next day, Holofernes commaunded his hoste, to go vpon agaynst Bethulia. There were an. x. thousande fygghynge men on fote, and two and twenty thousande horsemen, besyde the preparing of them that were warre: and came to the on every syde out of the countreys and dyces to hithe he had taken. All these prepared them selues vnto the battayle agaynst the Israelites, and came on by the hyl syde, vnto the toppe that loketh ouer agaynst Bethulia, from the place whiche is called Belma, vnto the helmon that lyeth toward the bylon.

Nowe when the chylidren of Israel sawe so great a multytude of the Assyrians, they fel downe flat vpon the ground, drawed ashyes vpon their heades, and prayed with our accorde, that the God of Israel wolde haue his mercy vpon his people. And so they toke their weapons, and sat betwixte the mountaynes in the narrow place, & kept the waye daye and nyght.

But whyle Holofernes was goynge aboute, he founde the water springe, whiche from the South syde was conuered into the cyte by a condyte: this commaunded he to be directe an other way, and to cut theyr condyte in sundre. There were welles also not farre from the welles, whiche they bled secretly, more for pleasure then for necessity.

Then went the Ammonites and the Moabites vnto Holofernes, and sayde: The chylidren of Israel truste neyther in speere nor arrowe, but haue taken in, and kepte the mountaynes and hylles. What thou makest overcome them, therefore without the striking of any battayle, let me to kepe the welles, that they drawe no water out of them: so walte thou destroy them without sword, or at the lesse they shall be so feble, that they make be lerne to geue ouer the cyte, whiche they thynke not hable to be wonne, for so moche as it lyeth in the mountaynes.

These wordes pleased Holofernes well, & all his men of warre, and he let an. x. men at every well rounde about. And when this watch had endured twenty dayes, the Assyrians and all that had water, sayled thence that dwelle in the cyte of Bethulia, so that in the hole cyte they had not drynke enough for one daye, for the people had water geue them dayly in a measure.

Then came the men and women, yongge persons and chylidren all vnto Olus, and sayde all with one voyce: God be widge betwixte vs and the, for thou hast dealt cruelly with vs: thou wouldest not speake peaceably with the kyng of the Assyrians, therefore hath God solde vs in theyr handes, and there is no man to help vs, where as we are brought downe before theyr eyes in thyr great destruction.

Therefore gather now togyther all the people that be in the cyte, that we may all pite ent selues bylengly vnto the people of Holofernes: for better it is that we be captiue and praye the Loide with oure synes, then to be slayne and perishe, and to be laughed to scorne and shamed of every man, when we se oure wyues and chylidren be before oure eyes. We take heauen and earth this daye to recorde, and the God of our fathers (whiche punissheth vs accordynge to the deservynge of oure synes) and geue you warnynge, that ye geue vpon the cyte now in is the power of Holofernes hoste, that oure ende maye be worke with the swerde, whiche els shall endure longe, for wante of water and drythede.

When they had spoken out these wordes, there was a great weppynge and howlynge in the hole congregacion, and that of euery man, and they cryed an hole houre long vnto God with one voyce, sayynge: we haue synned with oure fathers, we haue done amysse, we haue deale wyckedly. Thou that art gracyous, haue mercy vpon vs, punishe our vngyftounesse with thyne owne iourage, and geue not those ocher that knoweledge the, vnto a people which knowe the not, lest they laye amonges the hepythen: where is theyr God.

And when they were so wepte with this crynge and weppynge, that they helde theyr eyes: Olus stode vpon with watery eyes, and sayde: O take good hertes vnto you, (deare chylidren) and be of good cheare, and let vs waite yet these fyue dayes for mercy of the Loide: peraduenture he shall cut awaye his indignacion, and geue glory vnto his name. But if he helpe vs not when these fyue dayes are past, we shall do as ye haue sayde.

Of the vertuous woman Judith, which representeth chastitee and chastitee, and how she saved the people, and how she her counsell agaynst the enemyes of the Jewes.

CAPL

VIII.

And it happened when these wordes came to the eares of Judith, a wyddowe, whiche was the daughter of Merap, the sonne of Doer, the sonne of Joseph, the sonne of Olus, the sonne of Elai, the sonne of Jamma, the sonne of Jacon, the sonne of Haphoun, the sonne of Achitob, the son of Melchior, the sonne of Euan, the son of Nathania, the sonne of Salathiel, the son of Simeon, the sonne of Ruben. And her husbande was called Manasses, whiche dyed in the dayes of the dary heruel.

For whyle he was byndynge the weanes togyther in the felde, the heate came vpon his herd, and he dyed at Bethulia his cyte, and there was he buried besyde his fathers. Nowe was Judith his desolace in widow. In yeres and six monethes. And in the fyve partes of her house, she made her selfe a pynny chambre, where she dwelle, beyng closed in with her maydens. She ware a smock of heere, and sashed at the daries of her lyfe, except the Sabbathes, and newe moones and the foiretyme dayes that the people of Israel kepte. She was a very saye and beutyfull person. Her husbande also hadde left her great riches, a plentious householde, great vnmouable possions and many catell. This Judith was a woman of a verie good report with every one, for she feared the Loide greatly, and there was no body that spake an euill word of her.

When this Judith herde, how Olus had Judith, she prompted the people, that after the fifti daye he wolde geue vpon the cyte vnto the Assyrians we let for the elders Chamin and Chamin and when they came to her she sayde: what thyng is this, wherein Olus hath consented that if God helpe not within fyue dayes, he will geue ouer the cyte to the Assyrians? What are ye, that ye tempt the Loide? This deuice optayneth no mercy of God, but prouoketh hym vnto wrath & displeasure. Will ye see the mercy of the Loide a tyme and apoynte him a daye after your myll?

Hetherelisse for so moche as the Loide is patient, let vs rather amende oure selues, pourynge out teares, and beseechynge hym of grace. For God threatheneth not as a man, neither will he be prouoked vnto wrath as the chylidren of men. And therefore let vs hertely fal downe before him, and scue hym with a meke suppre, and with weppynge eyes saye vnto the Loide, that he deale with vs as we dyng to his owne wyl and mercy: that like as our herte is now brened, and brought lowe thow to the pyre of them, it may so be so mforted thow his grace: in so moche as we so lowe not the synnes of oure fathers, whiche forsoke their God, and worshipped other goddes: for the which synne they perished with the swerde: were spoyled and broughte to shame of all their enemyes. As for vs, we knowe none other God but onelye hym, for whose comfote let vs take with mekenes. He shall requyre and make inquiry for our bloude, from the veracions of our enemyes: he shall bynge downe all the synne that eyle vpon agaynst vs, and put them to byshonour, such the Loide our God.

Therefore deare chylidren, sernge ye are honorable and eldes in the people of God, vnto whom all the people haue respect, and vpon whome the life of the people standeth, lyke by their hertes with your exhortacion that they may cal to remembrance, how our fathers also in tymes past were tempted, that they myght be proued, if they worshipped their God a right. They ought to remembre, howe our father Abraham beynge tamed, and tryed thow many tribulacions, was founde a louer and frende of God. So was Isaac, so was Jacob, so was Moses, and all they that pleased God beynge tryed thow many troubles, were founde redde in faith. Agayne they that receyued not their temacions with the feare of God, but put them selues forth with vnpacience & murmure agaynst against God, perished of the destroyer, and were slayne as serpents. And therefore should not we undertake to be avenged, for þe thing that is done unto vs but to consyde, that at thei punishmentes are farre lesse then oure synnes and misdoedes. Wherupon also that this correction cometh unto vs (as to the seruantes of God) for amendment, & not for our destruction.

Then sayd Othas and the elders unto Judith: All that thou speakest, is true, and no man can reprove thy wordes. Pray thou for vs now therefore unto God, for thou art an holy woman, and fearest God. And Judith sayd unto them: Seinge ye knowe, that my wordes are of God, then proue my counsell and deuice, if it be of God: and beseeche God, that he will byngne my counsell to good ende.

Thus haue I deuyed: Ye shall stand this nyght before the porte, and I will go forth with Abia my mayden: Pray ye therefore vnto God, that he will graciously remembre his people of Israel, within fyue dayes, as ye haue sayde. As for the thyng that I go in hande withall, aske ye no questions of it, tyl I open it vnto you my self: do ye nothing els but pray vnto the Lorde your God for me. Then Othas the pyncer of the people of Iuda sayde vnto her: Go thy waye in peax, the Lorde be with the, that we maye be aduenged of our enemyes. And so they wente from her agayne.

The prayer of Judith for the victory.

CAP. IX.

Now when they were gone they waye, Judith went in to her oratory, put on heare smocke, drawed ashyes vpon her heed, fell downe before the Lorde, and cryed vnto him, sayng: O Lorde God of my father Symeon, whiche gauest him a swerde for a defence agaynst that enemyes, that byed by violence and wylfulnesse, and that rauyned the byrgyn, and put her to dishonoure. Thou that gauest they wyues in to a praye, and cheyryng daughters in to captiuitie, & all they pray for a spoyle vnto thy seruantes, which haue a zeale vnto the, helpe me widdowe, O Lorde my God, I beseeche the. For thou hast done all thynges from the begynnyng, and and loke what thou hast taken in hand & deuyed, it came euer to passe. For all thy wayes are prepared, and thy iudgements are done in thy curiall synge to be knowlege. O loke vnto vpon the armys of the Assyrians, lyke as it was thy pleasure sometime to loke vpon the hooste of the Egyptians, when they bepage was opened, persecuted thy seruantes, and put they trust in they charrettes hoysmen, and in the multitude of they men of warre. But thou lookedst vpon theyr dooie calyng a thycke darknes before them: and when they came in to the depe, the waters ouerwhelmed them.

Then so Lorde let it go with these, that trust in þe power and multitude of theyr men of warre, in they charrettes, armys and hoysmen, and knowe not, that thou only art our God, whiche destroyest warres from the begynnyng, and that thou arte the Lorde. I praye by thyne arme now lyke as euer from the begynnyng, and in thy power byng they power is nauyght, cause theyr myght to fall in thy wrath.

They make theyr booke, that they will by halow and despyle thy Sanctuary, & to waste the tabernacle of thy name and to cast downe the house of thyne auerter with theyr swerde. Saying to passe: O Lorde, if þe power of thy enemy maye be cut downe with his own swerde, that he maye be taken with the snare of his eyes in me and that thou mayst smite him with þe lippes of my loue. O giue me a stedfast minde that I maye despyle hym and his strength, and that I maye destroy hym.

This shall byngne thy name an euertlasting remembraunce, of the hande of a woman. O uerthow him for, for thy power. O Lorde, standeth not in the power of men, neither hast thou any pleasure in the strength of hoysmen. There was neuer proude person, pleased the, but in the prayer of the humble and meke hath thy pleasure bene euermore.

O thou God of the heauens, thou maker of the waters, and Lorde of all creatures, heare me poore woman, calling vpon the, puttynge my trust in thy mercy. Remembre thy couenant, O Lorde, and mynster wordes in my mouth, and stablish this deuyse in my heart, that thy house maye continue in holynes, and that all the heuens maye knowe and vnderstande, that thou art God and that there is none other but thou.

¶ Judith teacheth her self to go to Holofernes. The blessing that the Elders gaue Judith. Holofernes is in loue with Judith.

CAP. X.

And when she had left of cryng vnto the Lorde, she rose vp from the place, where she had lye flat before the Lorde, and called her mayde, went downe in to her house, layde the heere cloth from her, put the garmentes of her widdowhode, washed her body, anointed her self w precious thynges of sweete sauour, byorded & platted her heed, set an honour vpon her heabe, and put on such apparell as belongeth vnto gladnes, shippes vpon her fete, armettes, spanges, carriages synge rynges, and deckt her self with all her best atape.

The Lorde gaue her also a speciall beautye and faynesse (for all this deckynge of her selfe was not done for any voluptuousnesse, and pleasure of the flesh, but of a right discrecion & vertue, therefore by the Lorde increasde her beauty) so that she was exceeding amiable and wel fauoured in all mens eyes.

She gaue her mayde also a bottle of wine a pot with oyle, potage, cake byed and chese, and went her waye.

¶ Nowe when she came to the porte of the cite, she founde Othas and the elders of the cite wayting there. Which when they sawe her, they were astonysed, and merueled greatly at her betwye, neuerthelesse they asked no question at her, but let her go, sayng: The God of oure fathers gyue the his grace, and with his power personne all the deuyce of thy heart: that Jerusalem maye restore ouer the, and that thy name maye be in the nombe of the holpe and rightous. And all they that were there, sayd with one voyce: so be it, so be it. Judith made her prayer vnto the Lorde, and went out at the porte, and her mayde.

And as she was goinge downe the moun- tayne, it happened that about the springe of the dape, the spyes of the Assyrians met with her, and toke her, sayng: whence comest thou? whither goest thou? She answered: I am a daughter of the Hebrues, and am fled from them, for I knowe, that they shall be gynn vnto you to be spoiled: because they thought some to seide the selues vnto you, that they myght fynde mercy in youre sight. Therefore haue I deuyed by my selfe after this maner: I will go before the pyncer Ho- lofernes, and tell hym all theyr secrettes, and will shew him, how he maye come by them, and wyne them, so that not one man of his hoost shall perishe.

¶ And when these men had herde her wordes, and consyded her fayre face, they were astonysed (for they wondred at her excellent betwye) and sayd vnto her: Thou hast saued thy selfe by synnyng oute this deuice, that thou woldest come downe to our Lorde: and be thou sure, that when thou comest vnto hym, he shall increate the well, & thou shalt please him at the best. So they brought her in to Holofernes pauphon, and tolde him of her. Now when he came in before hym, immediately he was overcome and taken with her betwye. Then sayd his seruantes: to who woldest despyse the people of the Jewes, that haue so fayre women? Should we not by reason syght agaynst them for these? So when Judith saw Holofernes sytting in a canopy, that was brought of purple, spike, gold, sinagde and precious stones, she looked fast vpon hym, and fell downe vpon the carth. And Holofernes seruantes toke her vp agayne, at theyr Lordes commandment.

¶ Holofernes requyeth of Judith the cause of her comynge, whiche gyueh hym a tubyl answer.

CAP. XI.

¶ Then sayd Holofernes vnto her: Be of good cheere, and feare not in thyne heart, for I neuer hurt a man, that would serue Nabuchodonosor the kynge. As for thy people, if they had not deuyed me, I wold not have left by a spere agaynst them. But tell me now what is the cause that thou art departed frome them, and wherfore arte thou come vnto vs.

¶ And Judith sayde vnto hym: Syr, vnder stande the wordes of thy handmayden: for if thou wilt do after the wordes of thy hand mayden, the Lorde shall byngne thy matter to a prosperous effecte. As truly as Nabuchodonosor a Lorde of the land lyueth, & as truly as his power lyueth, whiche is in the to the punishment of all men that go wroth all men shall not onely be subdued vnto him thowm the, but al the beestes also of the fild. For all people speake of thy prudente aduyslye, and if hath euer bene reported, howe thou only art good and myghty in all his kyngdome, and thy discrecion is commended in all landes.

The thyng is manifest also, that Achtoz spake, and it is wel known what thou com maiddest to do vnto him. For this is playne and of a surety, that oure God is so wroth with vs (by the reason of oure synnes) that he hath shewed by his prophetes vnto the people, how that for they synnes be wyl to lyuer them ouer vnto the enemye. And for so much as the children of Israel know that they haue so displeased they God, they are sore afrayde of the.

¶ They suffre greate hunger also, and for want of water, they are dead now in a manner. Wherfore they are appoynted to slaye all their catell, that they maye drynke the bloude of them: and are purposed to sprenge al the holy ornaments of theyr God (which he hath forbydden them to touch) for come, wyne and oyle. Seinge now that thy do these thynges, it is a playne tale, that they must nedes be destroyed. Which when I thy handmayden perceyued, I fled frome them, and the Lorde hath set me vnto the, to shewe the these thynges. For I thy handmayden worship God, euen here nowe beyde the, and thy handmayden shall go forth, and I will make my prayer vnto God, and he shall tell me, when he will rewarde them thy synne: then shall I come and shewe the and byngne the thowme the myddes of Jerusalem so that thou shalt haue al þe people of Israel as the shepe without a shepherde, there shall not so much as as one dog bark agaynst vs for these thynges are shewed me by thy prouidence of God: and for so moche as God is displeased with them, he hath sente me to tell the the the same.

¶ These wordes pleased Holofernes and al his seruantes, which marueled at the widdome of her, and sayd one to an other: there is not suche a woman vpon earth, in beautye and discrecion of wordes. And Holofernes sayde vnto her: God hath done well, that he hath set the hither before the people, that thou mayst gyue them, into our bandes. And for so moche as thy promple is good, if thy God persoune it, vnto me, he shall be my God also, and thou shalt be excellenre and greate in the court of Nabuchodonosor. & thy name shall be spoken of in all the landes.

¶ Holofernes

Holofernes commaundeth that Iudith be well intreated. She despyth his grace to go out in the myght leaue to praye, and obseyeth it. Magao is sent vnto her, to moue her to come in to Holofernes to a banquet, and she commaundeth. Holofernes is drunken.

CAPIT. XII.

Then commaunded he her to go in, where his treasure laye, and charged that she shoulde haue her dwellinge there, and appoynted what shoulde be gyuen her from his table. Iudith answered hym, and sayde: As for the meate that thou hast commaunded to geue me, I maye not eat of it as now (for I despise my God) but wylle eate of suche as I haue brought with me. Then sayd Holofernes vnto her: If these thynges I thou hast brought with the sayle, what wylle we do vnto the? And Iudith sayd: As truly as thou lyest my Lorde, thy handmayde wylle not spende all this, tyll God hath brought to passe in my hande, the thynges that I haue brought.

So his seruantes brought her in to the tent, where as he had appoynted. And as she was goinge in, she despyed that she myght haue leaue to go forth by nyght and before daye, to her prayer and to make intercession vnto the Lorde. Then commaunded Holofernes his chamberlaynes, that she shoulde go out and in at her pleasure to praye vnto God those thre dayes.

And so in the nyght season she went forth in to the valley of Bethulia, and walked her selfe in the well water. Then went she vp, and besought the Lorde God of Israel, that he woulde prosper her waye, for she desired auaunce of his people. And so she went in, and remained cleue in her tent, tyll she toke her meate in the mornynge.

Upon the fourth daye it happened, that Holofernes made a collyre supper vnto his seruantes, and sayd vnto Magao his chamberlayne: Go thy waye, and enseele this he-buyle, that she maye be willinge to consent to kepe company with me. For it were a shame vnto all the Assyrians, that a woman shoulde so laugh a man to scorne, that she woulde come from him vnto a nyght.

Then went Magao vnto Iudith, and sayd: Let not thy good thought be strayed, to come into my Lorde, that she maye be honoured before hym, that she maye eate and drynke wyne, and be merie with him. Vnto whom Iudith answered: Who am I, that I shoulde saye my Lorde naye? What so euer is good before his eyes, I wylle do it: and loke what is his pleasure, that wylle I chyncke well done, as longe as I lyue.

So she stode vp, and deckt her selfe with her apparell, and went in, and stode before hym. And Holofernes heret was thowowhe byrthen, so she dynt in desyre towards her. And Holofernes sayde to her: Drynke now and syt downe, and be merie, for thou hast lauded laudat before me. Then sayde Judith: Sye, I wylle drynke, for my mynde is merier to daye, then euer it was in all my lyfe. And she toke and ate and drank before him the thynges that her mayden had prepared for her. And Holofernes was merie with her, and drank more wyne, then euer he dyd afoze in his lyfe.

Holofernes slepeth for very drunkennes, and Iudith cutteth off his heed, & goeth therewith to her owne people: of whom she is receiued with reioysing. They geue thanks vnto God, for their deliuerance. Iudith speaketh vnto Achior, whiche was useles at her strate done to Holofernes.

CAPIT. XIII.

Nowe when it was late in the nyght his seruantes made hade vnto her to his lodginge. And Magao that the chiefe boyes, and went his waye, for they were all ouerladen with wyne. So was Iudith alone in the chambere. As for Holofernes he lay vpon the bed all drunken, & of dry drunkennes fell a slepe.

Then commaunded Iudith her mayde, to stand with without before the doore and to waite. And Iudith stode before the bed, making her prayer with teares, and moued her lippes secretly, and sayde: Strengthen me O Lorde God of Israel, and haue respect vnto the toyes of my handes in this houre. That thou mayest set vp thy crosse of Ierusalem like as thou hast promysed: O graunt that by the I maye procure the thyng, whiche I haue desired thowowhe I beleue that I haue in the.

And when she had spoken this, she went to the bedde, and loosed the swerde that hanged vpon it, and drew it out. Then toke she the halde of the beere lockes of his heade, & sayde: Strengthen me O Lorde God in this houre: & with that, she gaue hym two strokes vpon the necke, and smote off his heade. Then toke she the canopy awaye, and rolled the deade bodye a syde. Immediately she gat her forth, and despyred the heade of Holofernes vnto her mayden, and had her put it in her wallet.

And so these two went forth together after theyr custome, as though they woulde praye, and so passed by the doore, and came thowowhe the valley vnto the porte of the citty. And Iudith cryed a farre off vnto the men vpon the walles: Open the gates (sayd she) for God is with vs, which hath shewed his power in Israel. And when they hearde her voyce, they called the elders of the citty together. And they came al to mete her little and grete, yonge and olde, for they thought not that she woulde haue come so soone. So they lighted candels, and gathered about her euerychone: but she went by into an hye place and caused silence to be proclaimed.

When euery man nowe helde his tongue, Iudith sayde: O prayse the Lorde our God, for he hath not despyled, nor forsaken them.

that put their trust in hym, & in me his handmaiden he hath performed his mercy, whiche he promised vnto the house of Israel: yea in my hande this same nyght hath he slayne the enemy of his people.

And with that she toke for the the heed of Holofernes out of the wallet, and shewed it them, saying: Beholde the heed of Holofernes the capiteyn of the Assyrians, and this is the canopy wherein he lay in his drunkennes: where the Lorde our God hath slayne him by the hand of a woman.

But as truly as the Lorde liueth his angel hath kept me, going thither, remaining there, and coming hither agayn from thence. And the Lorde hath not suffered me his handmaiden to be defiled, but withoute any filchynesse of syn hath he brought me agayn vnto you, and that with greet victory, so that I am escaped and ye deliuered. O geue thanks vnto hym euerychone, for he is gracious, and his mercy endureth for euer.

So they prayled the Lorde all together, & gaue thanks vnto him. And to her they said: The Lorde hath blessed the in his power, for thowowhe he hath brought oure enemyes to nought. And Sarias the chiefe ruler of the people of Israel, sayd vnto her: Blessed art thou of the Lorde the hyge God, about all women vpon earth.

Blessed be the Lorde, the maker of heuen & earth, which hath guyded the aright, to wound and to smyte of the heed of the capiteyn of our enemyes. For this daye he hath made thy name so honourable, that thy prayse shal neuer come out of the mouth of me, which shal alway remember the power of the Lorde, seeing thou hast not spared thine owne self, but put the in icopardy, considering the enuygh and trouble of thy people, and so hast helped their sal before God our Lorde. And all the people said: Amen, Amen.

Achior also was called, and he came. The sayd Iudith vnto him: The God of Israel vnto whom thou gauest witness, & he woulde be auenged of his enemyes, euen he hath this nyght thowowhe my hand smitten of the heed of all the vntayntfull. And that I maye saye that it is, behold this is the heed of Holofernes which in his presumptuous pryde, despised the God of the people of Israel, & threatened the with destruction, saying: wher the people of Israel is take, I shal cause I also to be thicht with the sword. When Achior saw Holofernes heed he fell downe vpon his face to the ground for very anguish and feare, so that he swooned withall. But after he was come agayn to him selfe, he fel downe before her, & prayled her saying: Blessed art thou of thy God in all the tabernacles of Jacob, for all the people that hear of thy name, shal prayse the God of Israel because of the.

The counsell of Iudith. For as beynge an heathen man, turneth to God. The Assyrians are a layd of the Jewes.

CAPIT. XIII.

Iudith sayd vnto all the people: Brethren, I hear me. Stick vp this heed vpon our walles, and when the sunne ariseth, take euery man his weapon, and sal out violently: not as though ye wold go beside them, but to run vpon them with violence. When the spies in the tentes se this, they shal of necessity be compelled to fle backward, and to raise vp their capiteyn to the batayle. So when their capiteyns come in to Holofernes payllion, and fynde the deede bodye wrapped in the bloude, fearfulness shal fall vpon them, and when ye perceyue that they fle, folowe them without all care, for God shal deliuer them vnto you to be destroyed.

Then Achior feinge the power of God, whiche he had shewed vnto the people of Israel, fell off from his heathenish bylese, and put his trust in God, and let him selfe be circumcised: and so was he nombred among the people of Israel, he and all his posteritie vnto this daye.

Now as soone as it was daye, they sicker vnto Holofernes heed vpon the walles, and euery man toke his weapon, and so they went oute with an horrible crye. When the spies sawe that, they ranne vnto Holofernes tent. And they that were within the tente, came before his chambere, and made a greete rushing to wake him vp, because they thoughte with the noyse to haue rayled hym. For there durst not one of the Assyrians knocke, go in, or open.

But when the Capiteyns and Prynces and all the chiefe in the kynge of the Assyrians hoste came together, they sayde vnto the chamberlaynes: Go your waye in, and wake hym vp, for the nyce are crept out of theyr holes, and dare prouoke vs vnto batayle.

Then wente Magao in to his chambere, & stode before the bedde, and clapped with his handes, for he thought he had ben slepyng w Iudith.

But when he had hardened perfectly with his eares and could see no stirring, he went nere to the bed, and lyft it vp, and then sawe he the deede bodye of Holofernes lying there without a heed, weltered in his bloude, vpon the earthe. Then cryed he with loude voyce, and with wepyng rente his clothes, and went in to Iudiths tent, and founde her not: And so he lepe out vnto the people and sayd vnto a woman of the Jewes had brought all Nabuchodonosors people to shame. For lo, Holofernes lieth vpon the ground, & hath no heed.

When the chief of the Assyrians hoste heerd that, they rent their clothes, and there fel an intolerable feare and tremblyng vpon the, so that they myndes were soze afeard. And there was an exceeding grete crye in the hole hoste.

The spyght of the Assyrians. The pursute of Israel after them. Israel becommeth cythe, by the spores of the Assyrians. Iudith is prayled of Joasim and of the people.

Exc Capit

Now when all the hoste herde that Holofernes was heeded, they mynde and counsell fell from them: and such a feare came vpon them, that they undertoke to defende them selues by fleing away: one spake not to an other, but haged downe their brades, left all behinde them, and made haste to escape frome the hebrues: for they herde that they were hallynge to come after with theyr weapons, and so they fled by the wayes of the felde, and thow all the footpathes of the dales.

And when the children of Israel sawe that they fled, they folowed vpon them, and wet downe with trompettes, blowyng and making a great crye after them: As for the Assirians they had no ordie, and kept not them selues together, but fled their waye. Neuer thelesse the children of Israel fell vpon them with one company and ordie, and discomfited as many as they myghte get. And Olias sent messengers vnto all the ctyes and countrys of Israel.

So all the regions and euery city sent out their best men after them in harnesse, & smote them with the sword, tyl they came to the vermost part of their borders. And sother p were in Bethulia came in to the tentes of the Assirians, and toke all that they which were fled had left behynd them, and so they found great good. And they that came agayn to Bethulia from the battayle, toke with the such thinges as had ben theirs: there was no number of the catell, and of all coslye iewels, so that from the lowest to the hiest, they were all made ryche of the spoyle of them. And Joachim the hye prest at Jerusalem came to Bethulia with al the elders, that they might se Judith.

Nowe when she came out vnto them, they began all to praye her with one voyce, sayinge: thou worshipp of the city of Jerusalem thou ioye of Israel, thou honour of our people, thou haste doone manly, and thy herte is comforted, by cause thou haste loued clenly, masse and chastite, and hast knowne no man but thyne owne husband: therfore hath the hand of the Lorde comforted the, and blessed shalt thou be for euer. And al people sayd: so be it, so be it.

In thyrte dayes could the people of Israel scarce gather vp the spoyle of the Assirians. But all that belonged vnto Holofernes, and had ben his speccally (whether it were of gold, of syluer, of precious stones clothynge and all ornaments) they gaue it vnto Judith. And all the people reioysed, bothe women, maydens, and yong people, with pipes and harpes.

The songe of Judith for the victorie. After the victorie obtained, the people commeth to Jerusalem, to worshippe and praye God.

Then songe Judith this songe vnto the Lorde: Begin vnto the Lorde vpon thy tabrettes, sing vnto the Lorde vpon thy cymbales. Sing vnto him a newe songe of thankesgyuing, be ioyfull and call vpon his name. It is the Lorde p destroyeth warres, euen the Lorde is his name. Which hath pitched his tentes in the middell of his people, p he myght deliuer vs from the hand of al our enemyes. Assur came out of the mountayns in the multitude of his strengthe. His people stopped the water brookes, and their hostes covered p valleys. He purposed to haue bent vp my lande, and to see my yonge men with the sword.

He wolde haue carryed awaye my children and virgyns in to captiuitie, but the almyghty Lorde hurt hym, and deliuered him in to the hades of a woman, which brought hym to confusyon. For they myghte was not destroyed of the yonge men. It was not the sonnes of Citan that sette him, neyther haue the greates grauntes set them selues agaynst hym: but Judith the daughter of Merari with her fayre beauty haue discomfited hym, and broughte hym to noughte. For she layd awaye her wyddowes garment, and put on the apparell of gladnesse in the reioysing of the chyldren of Israel. She anoynted her face, and bounde vp her heere in an houre, to begyle h. Her sylppers rauished his eyes, her beauty captiuated his mynde, with the sword smote he of his necke. The perils were astonied at her steadfastnesse, & the Medes at her boldnesse. Then howled p armies of the Assirians, when my temple appeared, dyes of thirst.

The sonnes of the daughters haue perished them thowome, and slayne them as fugitive chyldren: they perished in the battayle, for the very feare of the Lorde my God. Let vs synge a songe of thankesgyuinge vnto the Lorde, a newe songe of prayse wyl we synge vnto our God. Lorde Lorde, thou art a great God, myghty in power, whom no man maye overcome. All thy creatures shoulde serue the: for thou spakest but the word, and they were made, thou sentest thy spirite, and they were created, and no man can withstand thy voyce. The mountayns shal moue from the foundations with the waters, the stony rockes shal melt before the like warre. But they that feare the, shal be greates with the in all thynges. Woo vnto the people that ryle agaynste my generation, for the almyghty Lorde wyl avenge hym selfe of them, and in the daye of iudgement wyl he visit them. For he shal gyue fyre and wormes in to their fleshe, that they may burne and fele it for euermore.

After this it happened that after the victorye, all the people came to Jerusalem to giue prayse & thankes vnto the Lorde. And when they were purified, they offered at their bent sacrifices, and their promysed offriges. And Judith offered all Holofernes weapons, and all the iewels that the people had gyuen her, and the canopye that she toke frome his bed, and and hanged them vp vnto the Lorde. The people was ioyful as the vs is: and this ioy by reason of the victorie with Judith, endured thre monethes.

So after these dayes, euery man wente home agayne, and Judith was in great reputation at Bethulia, and ryght honourably taken in al the land of Israel. Vnto her ver also was chastite toynd, so that after her husband Manasses died, she neuer knewe man all the dayes of her lyfe. Vpon the hye solenne dayes she went out with great worship. She dwelte in her husbandes house an hundred and fyue yere, and leste her hande mayden free and dyed, and was buried beside her husbande in Bethulia. And all the people mourned for her seuen dayes. So longe as she lyued, there was none that troubled Israel, and many yeres also after her deathe.

The daye wherein this victorie was gotten, was solennely holden and reckened of the Jewes, in the nombre of the holie dayes, and it is yet greatly holden of the iewes euer since, vnto this daye.

The dreame of Mardocheus.

After the laste chap.

Mardocheus the son of Jair, the sonne of Semei, the sonne of Isai of the trybe of Beniamin, a Jewe, which hadde his dwellinge in Susa, a man of greates reputation, and excellent amonge all them that were in the kynge court. Neuerthelesse, he was one of the pyloners whiche Nabuchodonosor the kyng of Babylon had carryed awaye from Jerusalem vnto Babylon with Jeronias p kyng of Iuda. In the seconde yere of the raygne of greates Artaxerxes, in the fyfth daye of the moneth Nisan, hadde this Mardocheus such a dreame: he thoughte he herde a greates tempest, horrible thonderclappes, earthquakes, and greates voyces in the land: and that he sawe two greates dragons reby to fyght one agaynste an other. They crye was greates: At the whiche rotyng and crye, all heathen were vp to fight agaynste the ryghtous people. And the same daye was full of darchennesse, and verye dreare, ful of trouble and angursh, yea a greates fearefulnesse was there in all the land. The ryghtous were amaled, for they feared the plage and cruill that was deuysed ouer them, and were at a poynte with the selues to dye. So they cryed vnto God, a whyle they were cryng, the lytle wel grewe in to a greates ryuer, and in to many waters, and with that it was daye, and the sunne rose vp agayne. And the lowly were exalted, and deuoured p gloryous and proude.

Now when Mardocheus had seene this dreame he awoke, and mused steadfastly in his herte, what God wold do: & so he desired to knowe all the matre, and his mynde was ther vpon vntill the nyght.

Mardocheus vieth the treasoure deuyled agaynste the kynge, and is therfore rewarded of hym.

At the same tyme dwelt Mardocheus with Bagatha and Tares the kynges chamberlayns and porters of the palace. But when he herde their deuyce, and had diligently consydered theyr ymaginary ones, he perceyued that they wente aboute to laye theyr cruel handes vpon the kynge Artaxerxes, and so he certified the king th:rof. Then caused the kynge to examyn the two gelded with tormentes. And when they had graunted it, they were put to death.

¶ This the kyng caused to be put in the Cronicles for an euill remembrance, & Harbocheus wrote by the same matter. So the kyng commaunded Harbocheus to do scrupel in court, & for this faythfulness of his, he gaue him a reward. But Aman the sonne of Amadathu the Agagite, which was holde in great honour & reputation in the kynges court vnder toke to hurt Harbocheus & his people, because of the two chamberlaynes that were put to death.

¶ The coppye of the letters of Artaxerxes, as a pite the Jewes. The prayer of Harbocheus.

CAPL XIII.

The great kyng Artaxerxes which ray- neth from India vnto Ethiopia, our an hundred and .xxv. landes, sendeth his frendly salutation vnto all the princes and deputies of the countrey, which be subiect vnto his dominion. Whē I was made lord ouer many people, and had subdued the hole erth vnto my dominion, my mynde was not with crueltye and wronge to exalte my self by the reason of my power: but purposed with equitie alwaye and gentleness, to gouerne those that be vnder my iurisdiction and holly to let them in a peaceable life, and thereby to bringe my kyngdome vnto tranquillitie, that men myght safely go thowme on euery syde, and to reue peax agayne, whiche all men desire.

¶ Now when I asked my counsellors howe these thynges myght be broughte to a good ende, there was one by vs excellent in wysdome, whose good wyll, trueth, and faythfulness hath ofte bene shewed and proued, (whiche was also the principall and next vnto the kyng) Aman by name: whiche certified vs, howe that in all landes there was crepte in a rebellious folke that make statutes and lawes against al other people, and haue alwayes despised the, proclaimed commaundementes of kynges, and howe that for this cause it were not to be suffered that such rule shoulde contynue by you, and not to be put downe.

¶ Serue now we perceyue the same, & this people alone are contrarye vnto euery man, bringe straunge and other manner of lawes, & withstand our statutes and doynges, and go about to stablish thier owne matters, that our kyngdome shoulde neuer come to good estate and steadfastnesse: Therefore haue we commaunded, that al they that are appointed in writing, & shewed vnto you by Aman, which is ordeyned and set out all oure busynesse, and the moost principall next vnto the kyng, and in manner as a father) shall with their wyues and chyldren be destroyed and roted out with the sword of theyr enemyes and aduersaries: and that there shal be no mercy shewed, and no man spared. And this shal be done in the fourteenth day of the month called Adar, of this yere that they which of old (and nowe also) haue euer bene rebellious, maye in one daye with violence, be thrust downe in to the hell, to the intent that after this maner our empyre maye haue peax and tranquillitie.

¶ But Harbocheus thoughte vpon all the woordes and noble actes of the Lord, & made his prayer vnto hym, saying: O Lord Lord thou balaunt and almyghty kyng, for all thynges are in thy power, and if thou wyll helpe and deliuer Israel, there is no man that can withstande me let the: for thou hast made heuen and erth, and what wonderful thyng so euer is vnder the heuen: thou arte Lord of all thynges, and there is no man that can resist the, O Lord. Thou knowest all thynges, thou wotest Lord, that it was myght of malice, ne presumption, nor for any desire of glorie, that I wolde not bowe downe my self, nor worship yonder proude presumptuous Aman (for I wolde haue bene content, and that with good wyll, if it myght haue done Israel any good, to haue hyme euen his fote steps) but I dyd it because I wolde not let the honour of a man in the sight of the glorie of God, and because I wolde worship none but onely the my Lord. And this haue I done in no pride ne presumption.

¶ And therefore, O Lord, thou God and kyng, haue mercy vpon the people, for they ymagin how they maye bringe vs to nought, yea, they mynde and desire is to destroye, and to ouerthrowe the people that haue neuer ben thine inheritance of old. Despise not thy portion whiche thou hast deliuered and brought out of Egypte for thine owne self. Heare my prayer, and be merciful vnto thy people, whom thou hast chose for an heritage vnto thy self. Turne our complaint and sorowe in to ioye, that we maye say, O Lord, and prayse thy name. O Lord, suffre not the mouthes of them that prayse the, to be destroyed.

¶ All the people of Israel in like maner cryed as earnestly as they could vnto the Lord, for they: death and destruction shoulde destroye they: eyes.

¶ The prayer of Esther, for the deliuerance of her and her people.

CAPL XIII.

Quene Esther also being in the babil- on of death, reioyced vnto the Lord, and alwaye her goynges apparel, & put on the garmentes that were set for light- yng and mourning. In the first of praynes ordynment, she fasted sixe dayes and longed for her heede: and as for her body, she fasted and brought it vnto lowe. And when she was brought to the presence of the kyng, she said vnto the Lord, O Lord, thou God of Abraham, I haue none other hope, and deliuer vs out of the hande of the wicked, and deliuer me out of my feare.

¶ Nowe, well Lord, we haue syned before the, therefore hast thou giuen vs in to the handes of our enemyes, because we worshiped they: goddes. Lord thou art righteous. Nevertheless it satisfieth them not, that we are in bytter and heuie captiuitie, and oppressed amonges them, but thou hast layde they: handes vpon the handes of they: goddes: so that they begyn to take awaye the thyng that thou with thy mouth hast ordeyned and appointed: to destroye thine inheritance, to shut and to stop the mouthes of them that prayse the, to quench the glorie & worship of thy house and thine aulter, and to open the mouthes of the heathen, that they maye prayse the power and vertue of thy goddes, and to magnifye the fleschly kyng for euer.

¶ Thou knowest and wotest my necessitie, & that I hate the token of my preynynce, and worship, whiche I beare vpon my heede, what tyme as I muste shewe my selfe and be seene, and that I abhorre it as an vncleane clothe, and that I weare it not when I am quiet and alone by my selfe. Thou knowest also that I thy handmayden haue not eaten at Amans table, and that I haue had no pleasure nor delecte in the kynges feaste, that I haue not done the bynneffices, and that I thy handmayden haue had no ioye since the daye that I was broughte hither, vnto this daye, but onely in the O Lord. O thou God of Abraham, O thou myghty God aboue al: heare the voyce of them that haue none other hope, and deliuer vs out of the hande of the wicked, and deliuer me out of my feare.

¶ Harbocheus moueth Esther to go in to the kyng, and make intercession for her people, and she performeth his request.

CAPL XV.

Ad vpon the thirde daye it happened that Esther layd awaye the mourning garmentes, and put on her gloriouse apparell, and decked her selfe goodly (after that she had called vpon God, whiche is the beholder and sauyour of all thynges) toke two maydes with her: vpon the one she leaned her selfe, as one that was tender: the other folowed her, and bare the trayne of her vesture. The syne of her beautie made her face rose coloured. The similitude of her face was cherefull and amiable, but her herte was sorrowfull for greafe feare. She wente in thowme all the doores, and stode before the kyng. The kyng late vpon the throne of his kyngdome, & was clothed in his goodly aray all of golde, and set with precious stones, and he was very terrible. He lyfte vp his face that shone in the clemencie, and looked grimly vpon her. When fell the quene downe, was pale and faynt, leaned her selfe vpon the heed of the mayde that went with her.

¶ Nevertheless God turned the kynges mynde, that he was gentle, that he lepte out of his seat for feare, and gat her in his armes and helde her by, till she came to her selfe againe. He haue her louyng wordes also, and sayd vnto her: Esther, what is the matter? I am thy brother, be of good chere, thou shalt not dye: for our commaundement toucheth the commons, not the. Come nye. And with that he held vp his golden wand, and layd it vpon her necke, and embraced her tenderly, & sayd: talke with me. Then sayd she: I laue the, O Lord, as an angell of God, & my herte was troubled for feare of thy maiesty and clemencie. For excellent and wonderful art thou, O Lord, and thy face is full of amitie. But as she was thus speakinge vnto hym, he fell downe agayne for sayntnes: for the whiche cause the kyng was afayde, and all his seruantes comforted her.

¶ The coppye of the letters of Artaxerxes, wherby he reuoketh thole which he fyrst sent forth.

CAPL XVI.

The great kyng Artaxerxes, which ray- neth from India vnto Ethiopia our an hundred and .xxv. landes sendeth vnto the princes & rulers of the same landes suche as loue hym, his frendly salutation. There be many & for the soundy frendshippes and benefices, whiche are dyuerly done vnto them for they: worship, be euer the more proude and hye minded, and vnder take not onely to hurte oure subiectes, for plentyous benefices maye they not suffer, and be- gynn to ymagyn some thyng agaynst those that do them good, and take not only all vn-thankfulness away from men, but in pyde & presumpcion as they that be vnmindful and vnbthankful for þ good dedes they go about to escape the iudgement of God that seith al thynges, which (iudgement) hateth and punisheth all wickednesse. It happeneth oft also, that they whiche be set in office by þ hyer power, and vnto whom the busines and causes of the subiects are committed to be handled ware proude, & defile them selues with shedding of innocent bloude, which bringeth the to intollerable hurte. Whiche also with false and discreytfull wordes, and with lyinge tales, discreyue and betraye the innocent goodnesse of princes.

Now is it profitable & good, that we take hede, make serch thereafter, and considre not onely what hath happened vnto vs of olde, but the shameful, vnhonest, & noysom thynges that the deputies haue now taken in hand before our eyes, and thereby to beware in tyme to come, þ we may make the kyngdom quyet and peaceable for al men, and that we might som tyme draw it to a chaunge: and as for the thyng that now is present before our eyes, to withstande it, and to put it downe, after the most frendly maner.

What tyme nowe as Aman the sonne of Amadathu the Macebonian (a straunger berry of the Persians bloude and farr from oure goodnesse) was come in amonge vs as an alvaunte, and hadde obteyned the frend-shipp that we beate toward all people, so that he was called our father, and hadde in hye honoure of euerye man, as the nexte and principall vnto the kyng, he coulde not for-beare him selfe from his pyde, hath vnder-taken not onely to rob vs of the kyngdome, but of our lyfe.

With many folde discreyfe also hath he de-spoyed to destroy Mardoche our helper and preseruer, whiche hath done vs good in all thynges: and innocent Hester the lyke partaker of our kyngdome with all our people. for his mynde was (when he had taken them out of the way, & robbed vs of them) by this meanes to translate the kyngdom of the Persians vnto the of Macebonia. But we fynde that the Jewes (whiche were accused of the wicked, & they might be destroyed) are no culdoers, but be reasonable and right lawes, & that they be the children of þ most hye living God, by whom the kyngdome of vs, and our progenitours hath ben wel ordeyded byhereto.

Wherefore as for the letters and comman-dementes that were put forth by Aman þ son of Amadathu, ye shal do wel yf ye hold them of none effect: for he þ set them by and inueted them, hangeth at Sulis before the porte, with all his kynred, and God (whiche hath al thynges in his power) hath rewarded him after his deservyng.

And vpon this ye shal publish and set by þ copy of this letter in all places, þ the Jewes maye frely and withoute hindraunce holde them selues after theyr owne statutes, & that they maye be helped, and that vpon the xiiij.
day of the xij. moneth Adar, they may be auē ged of them, which in þ tyme of their anguish and trouble, wolde haue oppressed them. For the God that governeth all thynges hath turned to ioye the day wherein the chosen people shold haue perished.

Howeouer among the hye solemne dayes þ ye haue, ye shall hold this daye also with all gladnesse: that now, and in tyme to come this day maye be a remembraunce to good, for all suche as loue the prosperitie of the Persians:
but a remembraunce of destruction to those þ be sedicious vnto vs.

All cities and landes that do not this, shal horribly perishe and be destroyed with the swerde and fyre, and shall not onely be no more inhabited of men, but be abhorred also of the wyld beastes and foules.

The ende of the rest of the boke of Esther.

THE BOOKE OF VVYSDOME.

Howe we oughte to searche and enqurye after God, and who be those that synne hym. Of the holy ghost. We ought to fye (from backbiting and murmyng. &c.

CAPL.

I.

Set youre affection
vpon wysdome, ye that be iudges of the earth. Haue a good oppynion of the Lord and seke him in the singenesse of herie. For he wyll be foud of them that tempe him not, and appereth vnto such as put theyr trust in him. But the frowarde thoughtes they separe from God, and vertue (if it be allowed) resourmeth the vntwyle. And why? wysdome shall not entre in to a frowarde soule, ne dwell in the body that is sabued vnto synne. For the holpe ghost abhorreth synne nartoure, and withdroweth hym self from the thoughtes that are wte hout vnder handpyng: and to here wickednesse hath the hpyrhande, he fleeth from thence. For the spyrte of wysdome is longyn, gentle and gracious, and wyll haue no pleasure in him that spreketh euyl with his lippes. For God is a wyrtulle of his reynes, a true iercher oute of his berre, and an hearer of his conge. For the spyrte of the Lord sylleth the rounde compasse of the wynde, and the same that upholdeth al thynges, hath knowledg also of the voyce.

Wherefore he that speaketh vnryghtous thynges, can not be hyd, ne theyr maye be escape the iudgement of reprove. And why? inquision shall be made for the thoughtes of the vngodly, and the repute of his wordes shall come vnto God, so that his wickednes shal be punished. For the care of gelousy beareth all thynges, and the noyle of the grud-ginges, shall not be hyd. Therefore beware of murmyng, whiche is nothyng worth and restrayne poure tonge frome sleandrye.
For here is no wynde so darke and secrete, that it shal go for noyght: the mouth that spreketh lyes, slayeth the soule.

Seke not poure owne death in the erreure of poure lyfe, destroye not poure selues thow the workes of poure owne handes. For God hath not made death, neither hath he picture in the destruction of the lyfynge. For he created all thynges, that they myght haue their byng: yea all the people of the earth hath be made that they shoulde haue health, that there shoulde be no destruction in them, and þ the kyngdome of hell shoulde not be vpon earth (for ryghtousnesse is euerylasyng and immortall, but vnryghtousnesse byngeth death.) Neuerthelesse, the vngodly call her vnto them, bothe with wordes and workes, and whyle they thynke to haue a frende of her, they come to nought: for þ vngodly that are confederate with her and take her part:

are worthy of death.

The ymaginacions and desyres of the wycked, and theyr counsell agaynst the faythfull.

CAPL.

II.

For the vngodly talke and ymagin, thus among them selues (but not ryght) The tyme of our lyfe is but woyle and reb-ous, and when a man is onse gone, he hath no moze ioye ne pleasure, neither knowe we any man that turneth agayne frome death for we are borne of nought and we shall be hereafter as though we had neuer bene, for our breath is a smoke in our nostrils, and the woydes as a sparke to moue oure herte. As for oure body, it shall be very alyes that are quenched, and oure soule shall vanysh as the soft ayre. Dure lyfe shall passe awaye as the trace of a cloude, and come to nought as the myste that is bynnen awaye with the beames of the sunne, and put downe with the heate therof. Our name also shall be forgotten by lyle & lytle and no man shal haue our wokes in remembraunce.

For oure tyme is a very shadow that passeth awaye, and after our ende, there is no returnyng, for it is fast sealed, so that no man commeth agayne. Come on therefore, let vs enioye the pleasures that be present, and let vs soone vte þ creature lyke as in yowth. We wyll fyll oure selues with good wyne and oyntment, there shall no shoure of the tyme go by vs. We wyll crowne oure selues with rois: & afoze they be wythered. There shall be no saye medow, but our lust shal go thow it. Let euery one of you be partaker of oure voluptuousnesse. Let vs leane some token of oure pleasure in euery place, for that is oure porcyon, els get we nothyng. Let vs oppresse the poore ryghtous, let vs not spare the wydow ne old man, let vs not regarde þ herdes that are gray for age.

Let the lawe of vnryghtousnesse be oure autoyrtye, for the thyng that is seble is no thyng worth. Therefore let vs defraude the ryghtous, and why? he is not for our profyt, yea he is cleane contrary to our daynges. He checketh vs for offendyng a rayntie the law, and sleaundryeth vs as traitorshoures of all nurtoure. He maketh his booste to haue the knowledge of God, yea he calleth hym selfe Gods sonne. He is þ betwyper of our thoug-tes: He greueth vs also to loke vpon hym, for his lyfe is not lyke other mens, his wayes are of an other fashyon. He counteth vs but vayne presens, he withdroweth hym self from oure wayes as from fylthynesse: he commandeth greatly the latter ende of the wyse, and maketh his booste that God is his father.
Let vs se then yf his wordes be true, let vs proue what shal come vpon hym: shal we knowe what ende he shal haue.

For yf he be the true sonne of God, he wyll

Suche thynges do the vngodly ymagyn, and go astray, for they owne wyckednesse hath blynded them. As for the mystryes of God, they vnderstand them not: they neither hope for the reward of ryghteousnesse, ne regard the worship that holy soules shall haue. For God created man to be vnderstod, yea after the ymage of his owne lykenesse made he hym. Neuerthelesse, thowgh enuie of the deuyll, came death vnto y world, and they that holde of his spede, do as he doth.

But the soules of the ryghteous are in y hande of God, and the payne of death shall not touch them. In the sight of the vntyre they appeare to dye, and theyr ende is taken for very destruction. They are punished but in fewe thynges, neuerthelesse, in many thynges shall they be well rewarded. For God punisheth them, and spyneth them metis for hym selfe: yea as the golde in the furnace doth be trye them, and receyue them as a vynte offryng, and when the tyme cometh: they shall be lokyd vpon.

The ryghteous shall wyne as the sparkes that ren thowgh the red bull. They shall iudge the nacjons, and haue dominion ouer the people, and theyr Lozde shall carye for euer. They that put theyr trust in hym, shall vnderstand the tyme, and such as be sayntfull, wyll agree vnto him in loue: for his chosen shall haue gyftes and peace. But the vngodly shall be punished accordyng to theyr owne ymaginacions, for they haue despyed the ryghteous, and forsaken the Lozde.

Math. xli. d

Who so despyseth wysdome and nurture, he is unhappy, and as for the hope of fortune, it is but payne, thys laboure is vnto fayle, and theyr wykes vnto fayle. Theyr wykes are vnto fayle, and theyr chyldren most vngodly. Theyr creature is cursed. Blessed is rather the barren and vnto fayle, whiche hath not knowen the synfull bedde: she shall haue frute in the reward of the holy soules. And blessed is the gelbed, whiche with his handes hath wrought no vnto fayle, ne ymagined wycked thynges agaynst God. For vnto hym shall be gyuen the spereyall gyfte of saynt, and the most acceptable porcion in y temple of God. For glayous is the frute of good laboure, and the roste of wysdome shall neuer fade awaye.

As for the chyld of aduocates, they shall come to an ende, & the seide of an vnto fayle shall be rote out. And though they lye longe, yet shall they be nothyng regarded, and theyr last age shall be without honoure. Yf they dye basely, they haue no hope, yea they shall be spokyd to in the day of knowlege. For horrible is the death and ende of the vnto fayle.

The chaste generation of the sayntfull, and of the sayntfull. Of the death of the ryghteous and of the conseruacion of the sayntfull.

CAPL. III.

O howe saynt is a chaste generation in vertue? The memory all therof is immortal, for it is known with good men. When it is present, men take example therat: and yf it go away, yet they desire it. It is alway crowned and holden in honoure, and wynteth the reward of the vnto fayle battayle. But y multitude of vnto fayle chylde is vnto fayle, and the thynges that are placid with hysedme, shall take no hope, ne lye any fast foundation. Thowgh they be grene in the braches for a tyme, yet shall they be shaken with the wynde for they stand not fast, and thowgh the beuement of the wynde they shall be rote out. For the vnto fayle braches shall be broken, thys frute shall be vnto fayle and to be eat, yea mete for nothyng. And whysall the chylde that are borne of the wycked, must beare recorde of the wyckednesse agaynst theyr fathers and mothers, whiche they be asked. But thowgh the ryghteous be ouertaken in death, yet shall they be in rest.

Age is an honourable thyng. Neuerthelesse, it standeth not only in the length of tyme, ne the multitude of yeares: but a mans wil some is the graye here, and an vnto fayle life is the olde age. He pleased God, and was be loued of him: so that where as he lyed amonges synners, he translated him. Yea so denly was he taken away, to the intent that wyckednesse shoulde not alter his vnto fayle dngs, and that yocokys shoulde not brylle his soule. For the crafty bewtyfyll of synners make good thynges darke, the vnto fayle nesse also and wyckednesse of volouptuous desyre turne asyde the vnto fayle dngs of the symple. Thowgh he was soone dead, yet fulfilled he much tyme. For his soule pleased God therfore hasted he to take hym away fro amonges the wycked. Whiche the people se and vnderstande it not: they lay not by such thynges in theyr hertes, how that the louing fauoure and mercy of God is vpon his sayntes, and that he hath respyced vnto his chosen.

Thus the ryghteous that is deed, conserueth the vnto fayle whiche are lyuynge: and the poult that is soone brought to an ende, the longe lyfe of the vnto fayle. For they se the ende of the wyse, but they vnderstand not what God hath deuised for him, & whiche for the Lozde hath taken hym away. And whysall the saynt and despyce hym, therfore shall God also laugh them to scorne: So y theyr selues shall dye hereafter (but without honoure) yea in shame amonge the deed for euermore. For whiche any boyce, shall be burst those that be put by, & remoue them from the foundacions, so that they shall be layed waste vnto the best. They shall mourne, and theyr memory all shall perishe. So they byng asrayed shall remember theyr synnes, and theyr owne wyckednesse shall be wyte them.

The constanynesse of the ryghteous before theyr persecuters. The hope of the vnto fayle is vnto fayle and payne. The blessednesse and fortunatenesse of the sayntes and godly.

CAPL. V.

Then shall y ryghteous stande in greate redfastnesse, agaynst suche as haue dealt extremely with them, and taken away theyr laboures. When they se it, they shall be vexed with horrible feare, and shall wonder at the hastynesse of the sodayn helth: growynge for very destresse of mynde, and shall saye within them selues, haunynge inwarde sorrow, and mournynge for very anguyshe of mynde.

These are they, whom we somtyme had in derisyon, & lusted vpon. We foolles thought they lyfe very madnesse, and their ende to be without honoure. But lo, now they are cousted among y chyldren of God, and their porcion is amonge the sayntes. Therfore we haue erred from the way of truth, the lyght of ryghtynesse hath not shyned vnto vs, and the sunne of vnderstandynge, rose not vpon vs. We haue weeped our selues in the waye of wyckednesse and destruction. Tedious wayes haue we gone: but the way of the Lozde we haue not knowen.

What good hath our pyde done vnto vs? Or what profyte hath the pompe of ryche brought vs? All those thynges are passed awaye lyke a shadow, and as a messenger renouynge before: as a wypp that passeth ouer the houses of water, whiche when it is gone by, the trace therof can not be founde, neither the path of it in the floudes. Or as a byrde that flyeth thowgh the ayre, and no man can se eny toke where he is flowne, but only heareth the noyse of her wynges, bearynge the lyght wynde, passynge the ayre thowgh the beuement of her flyght, and flyeth on thakynge her wynges, where as afterwarde no token of her waye can be founde. Or lyke as when an arrowe is shot at a marche, it parteth the ayre, whiche immediatly cometh togyther agayne, so that a man can not knowe where it went thowgh. Euen so we in lyke maner as soone as we were borne, began immediatly to dyue to our ende, and haue shewed no token of vertue, but are consumed in our owne wyckednesse.

Such wordes shall they that haue synned speake in the hell: for the hope of the vnto fayle is lyke a bye thysell floure (or dust) is blowne awaye with the wynde: lyke as thyn scum that is scatered abrode with the floure, lyke as the smoke whiche is disperfed here and there with the wynde, & as the remembrance of a straunger that targeth for a daye, & then departeth. But the ryghteous shall lyue for euermore: their reward also is with the Lozde: and their remembrance lyke the byrde. Therfore shall they receyue a glayous kyngdome and a beuetyfull crowne of the Lozdes hande: for with his right had shall he couer the, and with his owne arme shall he defende them. His gelousy also shall take harnesse, and shall arme the creature to be auenged of the enemyes. He shall put on ryghtynesse for a byrde plate, and take sure iudgemēt in stede of an helmet. The inuincible wynde of equyte shall be take, his cruelly wynd shall be sharpen for a speare, and the hole compass of the world shall fyght with hym agaynst the vnto fayle.

Then shall the thunder boltes go oute of the ryghtynesses, and come out of the capbowle of the cloudes to the place appoynted oute of the harte stony indignacion there shall fall thysse haples, and the water of eye see shall be moeth agaynst them, and the floudes shall renne roughly togyther. Yea a myghty wynde shall stande by agaynst them, and a storme shall scatte them abrode. Thus the vnto fayle dealyng of them shall bynne all the lande to a wyldernes, and whiche wyckednesse shall ouerthrow the dwellynges of the mightye.

The callinge of kynge, prynces, and Iudges: whiche are also exhorted to searce wysdome.

CAPL. VI.

Wysdome is better then strength, and a man of vnderstandynge is moze worth then one that is stronge. Heare therfore (O ye kynge) and vnderstand: O lerne ye that be iudges of the endes of the earth. Gyue eare ye that rule the multytudes, and despyte in moche people. For the power is gyuen you of the Lozde, & the strength from the hyghest: whiche shall tepe your wykes & stretch out your ymagynacions. Now that ye beynge offycers of his kyngdom, haue not executed true iudgement, haue not kepte the lawe of ryghtynesse, nor walked after his wyll. Horribly and that erght soone shall he appeare vnto you: for an haue iudgement shall they haue that beare rule. Heere is graunted vnto the symple, but ther that be in auctorite shall be soe punished. For God whiche is Lozde ouer all, shall receyue no mans person, neither shall he stande in awe of any mans greatnesse: for he hath made the small and grete, and careth for all alike. But the myghty shall haue the soe punishment.

speake, that we may lerne wysdome and not go amylle: for they that kepe ryghteousnesse, shall be ryghtously iudged: and they that are leered in ryghteous thynges, shall synde to make answere. Wherefore let your luf be upon my wordes, and loue them, so shall ye come by nouerous. Wysdome is a noble thyng, and neuer faileth away: yea she is easely sene of them þat loue her, and found off such as like her.

¶ If your desyre be then to rayall seats and cepters (O ye kynges of the people) let your luf be vnto wysdome, that ye may raygne for ever more. O loue the lyght of wysdom, all ye that be rulers of þe people. As for wysdome what she is, and howe she came by, I wyll tell you, and wyll not hyde the mystryes of God from you: but wyll seke her out from the begynnynge of the natyure, and bynne the knowledge of her in to lyght, and wyll not kepe backe the truthe: Neithur wyll I haue to do with consuming enuye, for such a man shall not be partaker of wysdome. But the multitude of the wyle, is the wylfare of the world, and a wyle kyng is the byholdeynge of the people. O receyue natures the thyngs my wordes, and I shall do you good.

Wysdome ought to be preferred before all thynges.

CAPL VII.

¶ My selfe also am a mortall man, lyke as all other, and am come of the earthy generacion of hym that was fyrst made, and in my mothers wombe was I shapponed to be fleshe: In the tyme of ten monethes, was I brought together in blood, the soules the sede of man, and þe comynobious appetite of fleshe. When I was borne, I receyued lyke aspe as other men, and fell vpon the earth (whiche is my nature) cryinge and wepyng at the first, as all other do. I was wrapped in swadlynge clothes, and broughte by with great cares. For ther is no kyng that hath had any other begynnynge of byrth. All men then haue one entranche vnto lyfe, and one goynge out in lyke maner.

Job. i. c
ii. c. vi. b

Wherefore I desyre, and vnderstandynge was gyven me: I called, and the spirite of wysdome came into me. I set more by her then by kyngdomes and rayall seats, and counted cyrces nothyng in comparayson of her. As for petyous stone I compared it not vnto her: for all golde is grauell vnto her, and spylce shall be counted but claye before her spght. I loued her above welfare and beauty, and purposed to take her for my lyght, for her shyne can not be quenched. All good thynges came to me with her, and innumerable cyrces sheweth her handes. I was glad in them all, for this wysdome went before me, and I knewe not that she is my mother of all good thynges. Faine as I my selfe learned vnfaunely, so do I make other men partakers of her, and hyde her cyrces from no man: for she is an insynple treasure vnto men, whiche who so is ble, becom partakers of the loue and frendshipp of God, and are excepted vnto hym for the gyftes of wysdome.

God hath graunted me to take wysdome, and conveniently to handle the thynges that he hath graciously lent me. For it is he þat ledeth vnto wysdome, and teacheth to be wysdom a ryght. In his hande are we and our wordes, yea all our wysdome, our vnderstandynge and knowledg of all our mystryes. For he hath gyven me the true kyngdome of these thynges: so that I knowe how the world was made, and the powers of the elements the begynnynge, endynge and myddel of the tymes: howe the tymes alter, how one gareth after another, and how they are fulfilled the course of the years: the dynamics of the flaktes: the natures and byndes of beastes: the furyousnes of beastes: the power at the wyndes by the ymagynacions of men: the dynamics of yonge plantes, the byrces of rates, and all such thynges as are secret and not loked for, haue I learned. For the workman of all thynges hath taught me wysdome.

In her is the spirite of vnderstanding, whiche is holy, manyfolde, one onely, subtyll, cunctous, discrete, quych, vnderpleid, plaine, swete, lowynge, the thyng that is good, sharpe, whiche sheweth not to doo well, gentle, kynde, sheweth, sure, free: hangynge at byrces, circumspecte in all thynges, receyvinge all spirites of vnderstandynge beyng cleane & sharpe. For wysdom is myblyer then all vnderpleid thynges: she goeth thorow and attayneth to all thynges, because of her clemens. For she is the byrth of the power of God, a pure cleane expyng of the clearenesse of almyghty God. Therefore can no vnderpleid thyng come vnto her: for she is the byrth of the eternall synple lyght, the vnderpleid mystryes of the matery of God, and the ymage of his goodnesse.

And for so much as she is one, we may do all thynges: and beyng sheweth her selfe to requyet all, and amonge the people connecteth she her selfe in to the holy soules. She maketh Gods synples and prophets: for God keth Gods synples and prophets: for God loueth th no man, but hym in whome wysdom dwelleth. For she is more beautifull then the sunne, and greatly more lyght then the

we, and the daye is not to be compared vnto her: for vpon the daye cometh myght. But myghtnesse can not overcome wysdome, and soylshynesse may not be with her.

The effectes of wysdome.

CAPL VIII.

¶ Wysdome teacheth from one ende to another myghtyly, and lowynge both she ordre all thynges. I haue loued her and laboured for her euen fro my yowth by: I be my diligens to marry my selfe with her, suche Iour had I vnto her beauty. Who so hath the company of God, commendeth her nobillite, yea the Loyde of all thynges hym selfe, loue her. For she is the scholemastresse of the natures of God, and the choicer out of his wyl: for a man wold desyre cyrces in this lyfe: what is cyrcer then wysdome, that worketh all thynges? Thou wylt saye: vnderstanding worketh. What is it among all thynges, that worketh more then wysdome? If a man loue vertue and ryghteousnesse, let hym labour for wysdome, for she hath greates vertues. And why? she teacheth sobrynesse and prudence, ryghteousnesse and strength, whiche are suche thynges as men can haue nothyng more profitable in theyr lyfe.

¶ If a man desyre moche knowledg, we can tell the thynges that are past, and byscerne thynges for to come: she knoweth the subtyltyes of wordes, and can expounde backe sentences. She can tell of tokens & wonderous thynges, or euer they come to passe, and the endes of all tymes & ages. So I purposed after this maner: I wyl take her vnto my company, and comen lowynge with her: no doubte, she shall geue me good counsell, and speake comfortably vnto me in my carefullnesse and greife. For she shall take I be wel and honestly taken, amonge the comens and lozdes of the collett. Though I be young, yet shall I haue sharpe vnderstandynge, so that I shall be mactious in the syght of greates men, and the facts of dynics shall wonder at me. When I holde my tonge, they shall hyde my leasure: when I speake, they shall loke vpon me: and yf I take moche, they shall laye theyr handes vpon theyr mouth.

Wherefore by the meanes of her, I shall obtayne immortalltye, and leaue behynde me an eternallynge memorialis, amonge them that come after me. I shall set the people in order, and the natures shall be subdued vnto me. Horrible tyrantes shall be afraied, whiche they do but feare of me: amonge the multitudes I shall be counted good, and myghty in battell. When I come home, I shall fynde my house here: for her company hath no byrces, & her fellowshipp hath no tedyousnesse, but myght and ioye.

Now when I considered these thynges by my selfe, and pondered euen in my herte, how that to be ioynd vnto wysdome is immortalte, a great pleasure to haue her frendshipp: how that in the workes of her handes are insynple cyrces: how that, who so kepeth company with her shall be wyse: and that he whiche talketh with her, shall come to honoure: I went about sekynge, to get her vnto me. For I was a chyld of a type wit, and had a good vnderstandynge.

But when I grew to more vnderstanding I came to an vnderpleid body. Neuerthelesse when I perceyued that I could not kepe my selfe chaste, except God gaue it me (and that was a poynt of wysdom also to knowe whole gyfte it was) I septe vnto the Loyde, and besought hym, and with my hole hert I laud after this maner.

CAPL IX.

¶ God of my fathers, and Loyde of my cyrces (thou that hast made all thynges with thy wynde, and ordeyned ma the roth thy wysdome, that he shalbe haue dominion ouer the creature whiche thou hast made: that he shalbe ordeyn the world accor dyng to equite and ryghteousnesse, and execute iudgement with a true herte) gyfte me wysdome whiche is eue about thy seate: and put me not out from amonge thy chyldren: for I thy seruant and son of thy handmayden am a feble personne of a worst tyme, and to yonge to the vnderstandynge of iudgement, and the lawes. And though a man be neuer so perfecte amonge the chyldren of men, yet yf thy wysdome be not with hym, he shal be nothyng regarded. But thou hast chosen me to be a kyng vnto thy people, & the iudge of thy sonnes and daughters.

Thou hast commanded me to buyde a temple vpon thy holy mount, and an aulcher in the cyrcer wherin thou dwellest: a lykenes of thy holy tabernacle whiche thou hast prepared from the begynnynge, and thy wyl dome with the whiche knoweth thy workes, whiche also was with the, when thou made the world, and knew what was acceptable in thy syght, and eght in thy commande mentes. Sende her out of thy holy beaunty and from the throne of thy maiesty, that she maye be with me, and laboure with me: that I may know, what is acceptable in thy syght.

For she knoweth and vnderstandeth all thynges: and she shall leade me sobryly in my workes, and pfectue me in her power. So shall my workes be acceptable, and then shall I gouerne thy people rightously, & be worthy to syt in my fathers seate. For what man is he, that may knowe the counsaile of God? Or who can thynke what the wyl of God is? For the thoughtes of mortal men are myscable, & ouer folyshes are but vncreytayne. And why? a mortall and corruptible bodye, is heuy vnto the soule and the earthy man: on hepeth downe the vnderstandynge that museth vpon many thynges. Wysdome preferred the first man, whom God made a father of the world, whil he was created alone, brought him out of his offence, take hym out of the moule of the earth, & gaue hym power to rule all thynges. When the vngodly wroghte a waye in his wyach from this wysdome, the brotherhed perished thowm the wyach of murder. Agayne, when the water destroyed the hole world, wysdome preferred the ryghteous thowm a poore tree, wherof he was gouerned her selfe. Agayne, when wyckednesse had gotten the upper hande, so that the nacrons were put vp with pyde, he knewe the ryghteous, preferred him faullesse vnto God, and layed by sure mercy for his chylde. He preferred the ryghteous, when he fled from the vngodly that perished, what tyme as þe fye fell downe vpon the true cyties: What as þe fye fell downe þe vnsefulfull, waste, and smokynge land giveth testimony of thy; wyckednesse: yea the vayne and vntymely futes þe grow vpon the trees.

And for a token of a remembrance of the vnfaithfull soule, there standeth a pylle of salt. For all such as regarded not wysdom gat out only this butte, that they knewe not the thynges which were good, but also leste behynde them vnto men, a memoriall of thers foolyshe: so that in the thynges wherof they sinned, they coude not be wylde. But as for such as take vnto wysdome, we shal deliuer them from sorow.

When the ryghteous fled because of his brothers wyach, wysdome led him the ryght waye, shewed hym the kyngdome of God, gaue him knowledge of holy thynges, made hym ryche in his laboures, and broughte to passe the thynges that he wente aboute. In the discrepynesse of such as defrauded hym, he stood by hym and made hym ryche. He saved hym from the enemyes, and defended hym fro the dyscrepans. He made hym strong in battayll, and gaue hym the vntoyspe, that he myght knowe, how that wysdome is stronger the al thynges. When the ryghteous was sold, he took he hym not, but deliuered him from synners. He went downe with hym in to þe dongeon, and sayled hym not in the bandes: yll he had brought him the keyes of þe cealme, and power agaynst those that oppressed hym. And those that had accused hym, he declared hym to be ryght, and brought hym to perpetual worship.

He deliuered the ryghteous people and faullesse, from the nation that oppressed them. He entred into the soules of the synners of God, and made by hym in wonder and tokens agaynst the horrible kinge. He gaue the ryghteous the rewarde of their laboures, and led the fowle a mercurious waye: on the daye tyme he was a shadowe vnto them, & a light of flares in the myghte season. He brought them thowm the water see and caried them thowm the great water. He brought their enemyes in the see, and brought them out of the depe. So the ryghteous take the spoyle of the vngodly, & pray sed thy holy name, O Lorde, and magnified thy victorious hande with one accord. For wysdom openeth the mouth of the depe, and maketh the tonges of babes to speake.

The myracles done for Israel. The vengeance of synners. The great power and mercy of God.

CAPL

XL

She ordeyde their woyses in the hande, of the holy prophete: so that they went thowm the wyckednesse that was not inhabited, & pitched their tentes in the waste deserte. They rode agaynst their enemyes and were iudged of their aduersaries. Whil they were thirde; they called vpon the, and water was geyued them out of the rock, and their thyrst slaked out of the harde stone. For by the thynges, wher thowm they were punysshed, were they helped in their neede. For vnto the enemyes they gaue a mans bloude in steede of lyfynge water. And wher as they had fearednes in þe rubbe when the chylde were slayne, thou gauch into thyn owne piteous water vnto the for declaringe by the thynges that was a þe tyme, how thou woldest bypasse thyn owne vnto honoure, and slaye their aduersaries.

For when they were tryed and nourished with fatherly mercy, they knowledged how the vngodly were iudged, and punished thowm þe wyach of God. These had þe cryed as a father, & ploughed them: but vnto the other thou hast bene a vngodly kynge, lapped harde to their charge, and condemned them. Whether they were absent or present, they punysshment was alwey. For their grete was double: namely, mourninge, and the remembrance of thynges past. But when they perceived that their punysshmentes byd them good, they thought vpon the Lorde, & wondered at the ende. For at the last they helde much of hym, of whome in the oute calling they thoughte some, as of an abject.

Reuerences the ryghteous ded not so whil they were thirde: but end like as the thoughtes of the fowle were: so was also their kyndenes. Wher as certayne men nome the towe (erroure) byd two: wysdom (erroure) & domme beastes, thou (erroure) a multitude of domme beastes vpon them for a vengeance that they myght knowe that wherwyl a wyl synner, by þe same also shall he be punished. For vnto the almyghty hand, that made the world of nought, it was not vnpossible to send among them an heape of breres, or wood yong, or cruell beastes of a strange kynde, such as are vnknewen, or spout fye, or cast out a smokynge bytch, or thote horrible sparres out of their eyes, which myght not only destroy them with hurtynge, but also kyll the with their horrible syght. Yea without these beastes myght they haue ben slayne with one wynde, byng perlecuted of their owne woyses, and scattered abrode thowm the bytch of the power.

Furtherles thou hast ordeyde al thynges in measure, nombere and weight: for þe hast euer had grete strengthe and might, and who may stand þe power of thine arme? And why? like as the smal thing that the balace weyeth, so is the world before the: yea as a drop of the morning dewe, that falleth downe vpon the rith. Thou hast mercy vpon al, for thou hast power of al thynges, & makest the, as though thou sawest not the synnes of men, bycause they sholde amende. For thou louest al þe thynges that are, and hatest none of them whome thou hast made: neither diddest thou ordeyn or make any thyng of euyl wyll.

How might any thynges endure, yf it were not thy wyll? Or how coude any thyng be preferred, except it were called of the? But thou sparest al, for al are thine, O Lorde, thou louer of soules.

The mercy of God towards synners, the woyses of God are vnrerrounabill. God giveth lyfure to synners.

CAPL

XII.

OLorde, how gracious and swete is thy spirite in all thynges? Therefore chaunceth thou them measurably that go wrong, & warnest them concerning the thynges wherof they offende: thou speakest vnto them, O Lorde, & exhortest them to leaue they; wickednes, and put their trust in the. As for those old inhabitants of thy holy land, þe might not away with them, for they comytted abhominable woyses agaynst the: as witchcraft, sorcery and ydolatre: they slew their own chylde about mercy, they ate vp mens bowels, and deuoured the bloud: yea because of such abhominacions, misbilens & offrynys, thou slewest the fathers of þe desolat soules by the handes of our fore fathers, that the land which thou louest aboue al other might be a dwelling for the chylde of God.

Furtherles thou sparest them also, as men, & sendest the forcrunners of thine host to destroye them out by lytle and lytle. Not that thou wast vnwyllyng to subdue the vngodly vnto the ryghteous in battell, or with cruell beastes, or with one rougher word to destroye them together: But thy myght was to dyspue them out by lytle & lytle, givynge them tyme and place to amende, knowinge wel that it was an vngodly nation, and mycked of nature, & that they; thoughte myght neuer be altered: for it was a curstede seide from the begynnyng, and feared no man: yett hast thou pardoned their synes. For who wil saye vnto the: why hast thou done that? Or who wil stande agaynst thy iudgement? Or who wil come before thy face, an auenger of vngodly men? Or who wil blame þe, yf the people peryshe whome thou hast made? For there is none other God but thou, that carest for all thynges: that þe mayest declare how þe thy iudgement is not vngodly: there dare neither kynge ne tyraunt in the syght requyre accomptes of them whome thou hast destroyed.

For to much then as thou art ryghteous thy selfe, thou ordeyst all thynges ryghtously, & punysshest euery hym that haue not deserued to be punished, and takest hym for a stranger and an alpaist in the land of thy power. For thy power is the begynnyng of rightoutnesse: and because thou art Lorde of al thynges, therefore art þe gracious vnto all. When men thynke the not to be of a full strengthe, thou declarest thy power, and holdly deliuerest thou them out that knowe the not. But thou Lorde of power iudgest quyetly, and ordeyst vs with grete woyshepp, for thou maist do as thou wilt.

By such woyses now hast thou taught thy people, that a man also sholde be iust and lounge, and hast made thy chylde to be of a good hope: for euen when thou iudgest, thou givest roome to amende from synners. For in so moche as thou hast punished, and in such diligence deliuered þe enemies of thy seruantes which were worthy to dye: wherthow thou gauest them tyme and place of amendment, that they might turne fro their wickednesse with howe great diligence then punysshest thou thyn owne chylde vnto whose fathers thou hast sworne and made counsailes of good promysse: so wher as thou dost but chaunce vs, thou punysshest our enemyes by thy wayes, to the intent þe when we punyssh, we shold remembre thy goodnesse: & when we our selues are punysshed, to put our trust in thy mercy.

Wherfore wher as men haue lyued ignorauntly and vngodly thou hast punished them sore, euen thowm the same thynges that they woyshepp: for they went astray very long in the way of errour, and held the beastes (which euen their enemyes despised) for goddes, lyving as chylde of no vnderstanding. Therefore hast thou sent a scornful punishment among them, as among the chylde of ignorance. As for such as wolde not be reformed by those scornes & rebukes, they felt the woyshepp punishment of God. For the thynges that they suffered, they haue them vnpatiently, being not content in them, but vnwyllyng. And whil they perished by the same thynges that they toke for goddes, they knowe leged then that there was but one true God, whome afore they wolde not knowe: therefore came the ende of their damnacion vpon them.

knewe not hym, that of hym selfe is euery-thyng. Neyther take they so moche regarde of the workes that are made, as to knowe who was the crafterman of them: but some take the fire, some the wind, or ayre, some the courtie of the sterres, some the water, some take sun and moone, or the lyghtes of heauen, whiche rule the earth for goddes. But though they had suche pleasure in their beauty, that they thought them to haue ben goddes, yet shoulde they haue knowen howe moche more sayre he is that made them: for the maker of beauty hath ordeyned al these thynges. Or if they marueled, at the power and workes of them they shoulde haue perceyued thereby that he whiche made these thynges is myghtier then they.

Notwithstanding they are the leste to be blamed that sought God, and wold haue found as they went about in his workes, and soughte after them, it is a token that they regarded held moche of his workes that are true, howe

AWayne, an other man purposed to sayle, and begynnyng to take his iour-ney thorow the ragging see, calleth for helpe vnto a shoche that is farre wyther the tree that beareth him. For as for it, cou-tousnesse of money hath founde it out, & the crafterman made it with his cunnyng. But thy prouidence, o father, governeth all thin-ges from the begynning: for thou hast made a waye in the see, and a sure pathe in the middest of the waves: declarunge thereby, that thou hast power to helpe in all thynges, yea though a man went to the see without thy prouidence. Neuerthelesse that the workes of thy prouidence shoulde not be vayne, thou hast caused an arke to be made, and therfore do men commytte theyr lyues to a small peece of wod,

For in the olde tyme also when the prouide graces perished, he (in whom the hope was left to encrease the world) went in to a shyp which was governed thorow thy hand, and so leste seide behynd him vnto the world. For happy is the tre where thorow rightousnes cometh: but curied is the ymage of wod, & is made with handes, yea both it and he that made it. He bycause he made it: and it, by-cause it was called God, where as it is but a frayle thyng, for the vngodly and his godlynesse are bothe like abhominable vnto God. Euen so the worke and he that made it also shall be punysshed together. Therfore shall there a plage come vpon the ymages of the heathen, for ouer of the creature of God they are become an abhominacion, a tempta-cion vnto the soules of men, and a snare for the fete of the vngodly. And why? the scheyne out of ymages is the begynnyng of hoodom and the byrgynge vp of them is the destruction of lyfe. For they were not from the begynning, neither shal they continue for euer.
The welthy psonell of men hath founde the out vpon earth, therfore shall they come shortly to an ende.

When a father mourned for his son that was taken away fro hym, he made him an ymage (in al the best) of his deid son, and he began to worshyp him as a God, whiche was for a deed man, & ordeyned his seruantes to offer vnto hym. Thus by process of tyme, & the same

roto longe custome, this error was kept as a lawe, and tyrantes compelled men by violence to honour ymages. As for those that were lof of, that men myght not worshyp the personally, their pycture was brought frome farre (like the ymage of a kynge whom they wold honour) to the intent that with great diligence they myght worshyp him, whiche was farre of, as though he had ben present.
Agayne, the singular cunnyng of a crafterman gave the ignorant also a greete occasion to worshyp ymages. For the workman willing to doo him a pleasure that set hym a worke, laboured with all his cunnyng to make the ymage of the best facion. And so, thorow the beauty of the work, the common people was disceyued, in to moche that they toke him nowe for a God, whiche a lytle afore was but honoured as a man. And this was the erroure of mans lyfe, when men (either for to serue theyr owne affection or to do some pleasure vnto kynge) ascribed vnto stones and stockes the name of God, whiche ought to be gyuen vnto no man.

However this was not ynough for them that they erred in the knowledge of God: but where as they lyued in the greete warres of ignouance, those manye and greete plagies called theyr pear. For either they stole their owne children, and offered them and did sacri-fyce in the nyght season, or els helde vnrea-sonable wayes: so that they kepte neyther lyfe ne marriage cleue: but eyther one slewe an other to death maliciously, or els greued his neyghbour w aduoutre. And thus were all thynges myxt together: bloude, manslaughter, thefte, dissimulation, corrupcion, unfaythfulnesse, sedicion, perurye, disquietyng of good men, vnthankfulnes, defiling of soules, chaungyng of byth, vntedfastnes of marriage, mistodre, of aduoutre and vnclē wille. And why? the honouryng of abhominable ymages is the cause, the begynnyng and end of all euil. For they that worshyp ydols, either they are mad when they are myrre, or prophesy lyes, or liue vngodly, or els lightly forsooke the felues: for in to moche as their trust is in the ydols, whiche haue neither soul ne vnderstanding, though they swere falsly, yet they thinke it shall not hurte them.

Therfore cometh a great plage vpon the,
and that wretchedly: for they haue an euil opinion of God, giuing here vnto ydols, swering vniuilly to disceyue, and despising rightous-nes: for they swerynge is no vertue, but a plage of them that synne, & goeth euer with the offence of the vngodly.

The voyce of the earthfull prayng the merce of God, for whose graces take they serue not Idols.

CAPL XV.

But thou, o our God, art swete, long suffering and true, and in merce ordeynest thou all thynges. & though we syn, yet art we thyne, for we know thy strengthe. Yf we synne not, then are we sure that thou regardest vs. For to knowe the, is perfect rygh-tousnesse: Yea to knowe thy ryghteousnesse and power, is the roote of immortallite. As for the thyng that men haue founde out tho-rowe theyr euill science, it hath not dis-ceyued vs: as the payntynge of the pycture (an vnproffitable labour) and carued ymage with dyuers colours, whose syght en-ceyeth the ignorant: so that he honoureth and loueth the pycture of a deed ymage that hath no soule.

Neuere thelesse they that loue such euil thin-ges are worthy of death: they trust in them they that make them, they that loue them, & they that honour them. The potter also taketh and tempereth softe earthe, labourereth it, and gyueth it the facion of a vessel, what so euer serueth for our vse: and so of one peece of claye he maketh some cleue vessel for seruice, and some contrary. But where to euer vessel serueth, that knoweth the potter hym selfe. So with his vayne labour he maketh a God of the same clay: this doth euen he whiche a lytle afore was made of erth hym selfe and within a lytle whyle after (when he dyeth) turneth to the erth agayne.

Notwithstanding he careth not the more because he shall labour, ne because his life is short but stryuethe to excell goldsmithes, the syluersmithes & coppersmithes, and taketh it for an honour to make vayne thynges. For his vert is a lye, his hope is but vayne erth, and his lyfe is more vyle then claye: for so moche as he knoweth not his owne maker, & gaue hym his soule to worke, and byleth in hym the byethe of lyfe. They count our lyfe but a paynme, and our conuersacion to be but a market, and that men shoulde euer be gettyng, and that by euill meanes. Nowe he that of earth maketh frayle vessels and ymages, and knoweth hym selfe to offende about all other.

All the enemyes of thy people and that holde them in subiection, are vngodly, vnhap-py, and excedynge proude vnto their owne soules: for they iudge all the ydols of the heathen to be goddes, whiche neyther haue syght to se, nor noyes to helme, ne eares to heare, nor fyngers of handes for to gripe: and as for theyr fete, they are so slowe to go: for man made them, & he hath but a borrowed spirite facioned them. But no man can make a God like vnto him: for being he is but mortall him selfe, it is but mortall that he maketh with vngodly handes. He him selfe is better then they whom he worshippeth, for he lyued though he was mortall, but so did neuer they.
Yea, they worshyp beastes also, whiche are moost miserable: for compare thynges that can not fele vnto them, and they are worse then those. Yet is there not one of these beastes that with his sight can beholde any good thyng, neyther haue they any praye ne thanke vnto God.

The punishment of Idolaters, and the bene-fices done vnto the earthfull.

Att. 9. Capi

For these and suche other thynges haue they suffered worthy punishment, & thorow the multitude of beekes are they tosed oute. In steede of the whiche punishments, thou haste graciously ordred thyne owne people, & gyven them their desyre & they longed for: a newe and straunge taste, & payntinge them quayles to be their meate, to the intent that by the thynges whiche were shewed and sente vnto them, they that were so greddye, might be withdrawen even from the desyre that was necessarye. But these within short tyme were brought vnto pouertie, and tasted a new meate. For it was requysite that (without anye excuse) destruction shoulde come vpon those whiche vsed tyrannye, and to them onely vnto the other, how their enemies were destroyed. For when the euill modnesse of the beekes came vpon them, they perished thorow the synges of cruell serpenetes.

 23 Notwithstandynge thy wrath endured not perpetually, but they were put in feare for a tyme reason, that they might be reformed, having a token of saluacion, to remembre the comaundement of thy lawe. For he that couerted, was not healed by the thing that he saw but by the, o sayoure of all. So in this thou shewest thyne enemyes, that it is thou whiche deliuerest frome all euill. As for them when they were bitten with gnatoppes & flies, they dyed, so they were worthy to perish by such : But nevertheless the teete of dragons ne of venimous wormes ouercame thy chyldren, for thy mercye was euer by them and helped them. Wherefore were they punished to remembre thy wrothes, but harkely were they healed agayne : lest they shold fall in to so depe forgesfullnesse, that they myght not see thy helpe.

It was neyther herbe ne playster that restored them to helth, but thy worde, o Lord, which healeth al thinges. It is thou, o Lord, that hast the power of lyfe and deeth: thou ledest vnto deethes doore, & bringest by agayne.
But man thoroow wickednesse seeketh his owne soule, & whē his spirit goeth forth, it turneth not agayne, neither maye he call agayne the soule that is taken away: It is not possible to escape thy hand. For the vngodly shoulde not knowe the, were punished by the strenght of thyne arme: with straunge waters, haples and rapnes were they persecuted, & thoroowe fyrre were they consumed. For it was a monderous thyng that fyre myghte do moze then water, which guerneth all thinges, but the worlde is the auenger of the righteous. Som-tyme was the fyre so tame, that the beastes which were sent to punyssh the vngodly, brede not: and that because they shoulde be & knowe that they were persecuted with the punyssh-ment of God. And somtyme brent the fyre in the water on euery side, that it mighte destroye the vnrightheous nacion of the earth. Agayne thou hast fed thyne owne people with angels foode, and sent them breed redye from heuen, without they labour, being very pleasaunt and well gusted. And to shew thy riches and sweetenelle vnto thy chyldren, thou gauest e-uery one their desire, so that eueri mā might take what lyked him best. But the snow and ysc abode the violence of the fyre, and melted not: that they might know that the fyre burning in the hayle and rayn, destroyed þe frute of þe enemies, the fire also forgaue his strength agayn, that the righteous might be noysshed.

For the creature that serueth the (whiche arte the maker) is scarce in punishing the burghtous, but is easy and gentle to do good, vnto such as put their trust in the. Therefore byd all thynges alter at the same time, & were all obedient vnto thy grace, whiche is the warde of all thynges, according to the desire of the that had neede thereof, & thy chyldren, & so, vnto whom thou louest, might know that it is nature and þe growing of frutes that sedeth men, but that it is thy worde whiche preferreth the & put their trust in the: for loke what might not be destroyed with the fire, as some as it was waarmed with a lytle sunne beame, it melted: that all myght knowe that thankes oughte to be gyuen vnto the before the sunne ryse, and that thou oughtest to be worshipped before the day spynges: for the hope of the borthankfull shall meler awaye as the wynter ysc, and pryncy as water that is not necessarie.

The judgements of God upon the Egyptians.

CAPL

XVIL

Great are thy iudgements, o Lorde, and thy counsels can not be expressed, therfore men do erre, that wil not be instructed with thy wisdom. For when the braggartous thoughte to haue thy holy people in liberation, they were bound with the bands of darknesse and longe nyghte, that vnder the roste, thinking to escape the cursing wisdom. And while they thought to be hid in darknesse of their synnes, they were scattered abrode in the very myddell of the darke conueryng of forgetfulnes, put to horrible fear and wonderously berred for the correct wher they myghte not kepe them from feare: because the sound came down & berred the: yea manye terribble and straunge vilions made them afryde.

neither myght the clere flambes of þe heris lygheten that horrible night: for there appered vnto them a soden fire very dreadfull. At the which whē they saw nothing they were so afraid, that they thought the thing which they saw to be the more fearfull. As for þe cerry and enchauntment þe they bled, it came to derisio, & the proud wysdom was brought to shame: for they that promised to dysce-way the fearfulness and drede from þe werke soules, were lyke for feare them selues, and that with scoone. And thought none of the wonders feared them, yet were they afraid at the

at the beestes which came vpon them, and at the bityng of the serpentes. In so much that with tremelinge they stownd, and sayde they sawe not the ayre, whiche no man yet may escape.

for it is an heuy thyng, whē a mans owne conscience beeth record: of his wickednesse & condemneth him. And why? a vexed & woun ded conscience, taketh euer cruel thynges in hand, fearfulness is nothing els, but a declar ing that a man lacketh helpe and defence, to answer for him selfe. And loke how moche less the hope is within, the more is the vncer taintie of the mater for the which he is puni shed. But they that came in the mighty night slept the sleep that fell vpon them fro vnder and from aboue: somtyme were they afraid thorow the feare of the wonders, & somtyme they were so weake y they swowned withal:
for an hasty & sodryn fearfulness came vpon them. Afterwarde, yf any of them had fallen he was kept & shut in prison, but without chey ns. But if any dwelt in a village, yf it had ben an herd o; husbandman he suered intol erable necessitie: for they were al bound w one chayne of darknesse.

D. Whether it were a blasynge wynde, or a shorte song of the byrdes amonge the thyeke branches of the trees, or the vehemence of fire running water, or great noyse of the falling downe of stones, or the playing and rinnyng of beestes whom they sawe not, or the mighty noyse of roying beestes, or the sound that answereth agayn in the hye mountaynes, it made them twofolne for very feare. For al the erth thyned with cleere lycht, and no man was hyndred in his labour. Specially vpon them there fell an heape nyght, an ymage of darknesse that was to come vpon them. Yea they were vnto the selues the most heape and horrible darknesse.

CAPI.

XVIII.

Netherthelesse thy holy had a very great lyght: & the cunnynge herd their voyce but they sawe not the figure of them.
And because they insired not þe same thinges, they magnified the, and they that were ver-ed also: because they were not hurt nor chained the, and besought the, o God, that there might be a difference. Therefore hadde they a burning pyller of fyre to lede them in the vnknowen waye, and thou gauest them þe sunne for a free gyft, without any hurt. Reason it was that they shoulde want lyght, and be put in the prison of darknesse, which kept the chylde in captiuitie, by whom the vn-corrupt lyght of the lawe of the world was to be a gyuen.

When they thought to see the babes of the righteous (one being layd out, and prescribed to be leader vnto the other) thou broughtest out the hole multitude of the chyl dren, and destroyedst these in the myghtye water. Of night were our fathers certified afore, that they knowyng vnto what othes they had gi-uen credence, might be of good chere. Thus thy people receiued the helth of the righteous but the vngodly were destroyed. for like as thou hast hurt our enemies, so hast thou promoted vs whom thou calledst afore. for the righteous children of the good men sared secretly, and ordered the lawe of rightousnesse vnto vnite, that the iust shold receiue good and cuil in lyke maner, synging prayles vnto the father of all men. Agayne, there was heard a disacordyng voyce of the enemies, and a pitious cry for chyl dren that were bewayled.

The master and the seruant were punished in lyke maner. for they al together, had innumerable that dyed one death.

Perther were the liuing sufficient to bury the dead, for in the twinkling of an eye, the noblest nacio of them was destroyed. As oft as God helped them afore, yet wolde it not make them vyleue, but in the destruction of þ eyr; þo hore, they knowledg that it was the people of God. for whyle all thynges were still, and when the night was in the middest of her course, thy almighty worde, o Lorde, lept down from heue out of thy royal trone as a rough man of warre, in the myddes of the land that was destroyed: and the sharpe sword perfozmed their streyte commandemet, standing and filling al thinges w de-yea it stode vpon the erth, and reached vnto the heuen. When the sight of the euil be-wared them to deadly, and fearfulnes came vpon them vnamare.

Then laye there one here, an other there, halfe dead, halfe quicke, and shewed the cause of his death. For the visions that vexed them, shewed them these thynges afore: so that they were not ignoraunt wherfore they perished.

¶ The temptation of both touched the right tons also, and amonges the multitude in the wyldernesse there was insurrection, but thy wrath endured not longe. For the faulte lesse man wente in all the battie, and toke the battaile vpon him, broughte forth the weapon of his ministracyon: euen prayer, and the censours of reconceylinge: set hym selfe agaynst the wrath, and so broughte the my-serie to an ende: declaringe thereby, that he was thy seruante. for he ouercame not the multitude with bodily power, ne with weapons of myght: but with the worde he subdued him that bered hym, puttynge the in remembrance of the othe and conenant made vnto the fathers. for when the deed were fallen downe by heapes one vpon an other, he stode in the myddes, pacified the wrath, and parted the waye vnto the tryunge. And why? in his longe garment was all the beau-tie, and in the fourre robes of the stones, was the glory of the fathers graunce, and thy maiestic was written in the crowne of his head.

Unto these the destroyer gave place, & was afraid of them: for it was only a tempta-cion worthy of death.

CAPL. XIX.

AS for the brigodly, & wrath came vnto the without mercy vnto the ende. For he knew what shold happen vnto the, how that when they had consented to let the go, & had sent them out with great diligence they would repent and follow vpon them. For when they were yet mourning and making lamentacion by the graues of the dead, they deuyed an other folyshnesse, so that they persecuted them in their fleeing, whom they had cast out afore with prayer. Worthy necessitie also brought them vnto this end, for they had cleue forgotten the thynges that hadde vnto the afore. But the thyng that was wanting of theyr punishment, was requisite so to be fulfilled vpon them with tormētes:
that thy people might haue a marvelous passage thowow, and that these myghte fynde a straunge death.

Then was every creature facioned again of new, according to the wil of their maker, obeying thy commandementes that thy children myght be kepte without hurte. For the cloude overshadowed their tentes, & the drye erth appered, where afore was water: so in the red see, there was a waye without impediment, and the great depe became a grene felde, where thowow al the people went that were defended with thy hand, seeing thy won-derous and marvelous workes. For as the horses, so were they fed, and lepte lyke lam-bes praysing the, O Lord, which had deliue-red them. And why? they were yet myndfull of the thynges that happened while they dwelt in the land: how the ground brought forth the flayes in fiede of catell, & how the river scrawled with the multitude of frogges in fiede of fylthes.

But at the last they saw a new creation of of bydes, what tyme as they were discyued with luste, and despyed delycate meates.
For when they were speaking of their appete, the quayles came vnto them from the see, and punishmentes came vnto the sinners, not without the tokens which came to passe afore by the vehemence of the strenges: for they suffered worthely according to their wickednesse, they delt so abhominably & chur-lishly with strangers. Some receyved no vntowen gesses, some brought the strangers in to bondage that did the good. Beside all these thynges there were some, & not only receyved no strangers with their wylls, but persecuted those also, and did the moche evil, & receyved them gladly. Therefore were they punished with blyndnesse, lyke as they that were covered with sobeyn darkness at the doores of the ryghtous, so that every one sought the entrance of his doore.

Thus the elementes turned in to them sel-ues, like as when one time is chaunged vpon an instrument of musike, and yet all the rest due kepe their melody, whiche may easily be perceyved by the syghte of the thynges that come to passe. The drye land was turned in to a watery, and the thynges that afore swam in the water, went now vpon the dry ground.
The fyre hath power in the water (contrary to his own verue) and the water forgot his owne kynd, to quench. Agayne, the flambes of the noysome beestes hurte not the flesch of them that went with them, neyther melted they the yse, whiche els melteth lyghtly.

In all thynges hast thou promoted thy people (O Lord) and brought them to honour: thou haste not despyed the, but alwaye and in al places hast thou stand by
them.

The ende of the boke of wysdome.

THE BOKE OF XIESVS THE SONNE OF SI-RACH, VVHICHE IS CALLED IN LATYNE ECCLESIASTICVS.

The prologe of Iesus the sonne of Sirach, vnto his boke.

Wysdome procedeth and cometh of God. & paye of the feare of God. Wyghtynesse is a degree to come by wysdome.

CAPL. I.

Many and greute men haue declared wysdome vnto vs, oufe of the lawe, out of the prophetes, and out of other that folo-wed them. In the which thynges Israel ought to be commended, by the reason of doctrine, & wysdom: Therefore they that haue it, and see it, shoulde not onely them sel-ues be wyle there thowow, but serue other al to with teachyng and wytyng.

After that my groundfater Iesus had gyuen diligent labour to reade the lawe, the propheies, & other boke that were left vs of our fathers, and had well excerpced hym selfe therein: he purposed also, to wyte some thyng of wysdome, and good maners, so the wyt that they which were willing to lerne and to be wyle myght haue the more vnderstandyng, and be the more apt to leade a good conuersation.

Wherfore I exhort you to receyue it lowly ly, to reade it with dylygence, and to take it in good worth, though our wordes be not so eloquent as the famous Oratours. For the thyng that is wyrtten in the Hebrew tonge, soundeth not so well, when it is translated into an other sprache. Not onely this boke of myne, but also the lawe, the propheies, & other boke, sounde farr other wyle, the they do, when they are spoken in theyr owne language.

Nowe in the xxxiii. yere when I came in to Egypt, in the tyme of Ptolomy Euergetes, and conynued there all my lyfe, I gat liberty to reade and wyte many good thynges.
Wherfore I thought it good and necessary, to bestowe my diligence and trauayle to interprete this boke. And consydryng that I had tyme, I laboured and byd my best to perfume this boke, & to byngne it vnto lyght:
that the strangers also whiche are disposed to lerne, myght applye theym selues vnto good maners, and lyue accordyng to the lawe of the Loide.

Wysdome com-
meth of God the Lord, and hath bene euer in hym, and is before all tyme. Who hath nom-bered the land of the see,
the droppes of the rayn,
the daies of the tyme?

Who hath measured the hegthe of heauen, the bredth of the earth, the depeneth of the see? Who hath soughe out the grounde of Gods wysdome, whiche hath bene before all thynges? Wysdom hath bene before all thynges, and the vnderstandyng of prudence from euery thyng. (Gods wyrd is in the hegth, so the well of wysdom, and the euery thyng commandementes are the entrance of her.) Vnto whom hath the rote of wysdom bene declared? Vnto whom hath the wyrd bene knowne? Vnto whom hath the doctrine of wysdom bene discovered? & the weat and who hath vnderstande the manyfolde entrance of her?

There is one: euen the hygher, the maker of all thynges, the almyghty, the kyng of powere (of whom men ought to stande geatly in awe) whiche sytteth vnto his throne, being a God of domynion: He hath created her: & gouerne the hollye ghost: he hath sene her, nom-bered her, and measured her: He hath poured her out vpon all his workes, and vpon all fleshe, accordyng to his gyft: he gyueth her wyrd vnto them that loue hym. The feare of the Loide is wyrd and triumphe, glad-nesse and a ioyfull crowne. The feare of the Loide maketh a merry herte, gyueth gladnes-se, ioye and longe lyfe. Who so feareth the Loide, it shall go well with hym at the last, and in the daye of his death he shall be blessed.

The loue of God is honorable wysdome:
loke vnto whom it appeareth, they loue it, for they se what wonderful thynges it doth.
The feare of the Loide is the begynnyng of wysdome, and was made with the saythfull in the mothers wombe: it shall go with the chosen women, and shall be knowne of the ryghtous and saythfull. The feare of the Loide is the ryghte Gods serupce, that preserueth and iustifyeth the herte, and gyueth myrd a gladnesse. Who so feareth the Loide, shall be happye: and when he haue neede of comfort, he shall be blessed. To feare God is the wysdome that maketh ryche, and byngeth all good with her. She fylleth the hole house with her gyftes: and she garnes with her treasure.
The feare of the Loide, is the crowne of wysdome.

wisdom, and giveth plenteous peace and health. He teacheth her and nourisheth her: knowledge and understanding of wisdom hath he poured out as rayne: and them that heareth her fall, hath he brought unto honour.

The feare of the Lorde is the rote of wisdom, and her branches are longe lyfe. In the treasures of wisdom, is understanding and deuotion of knowledge, but wisdom is abhorred of synners. The feare of the Lorde directeth our synne, for he that is without feare, can not be made righteous, and his wyll full of holynesse is his owne destruction. A patient man wyll suffer vnto the tyme, and the shall he haue the reward of tyme. A good understanding wyll hyde it in wordes for a tyme, and manye mens lippes shall speake of his wisdom.

In the treasures of wisdom is the declaration of oportunitye, but the synner abhorreth the worship of God. My sonne, if thou desire wisdom, kepe the commandment, and God shall gyue thee vnto the: for the feare of the Lorde is wisdom and nurture, he hath pleasure in sayth and louyng mekenesse, and he shall fill thy treasures therof. Be not obstinate and vnfaithfull to the feare of the Lorde, & come not vnto hym with a double heart. We not an hypocrite in the sight of men, and take good hede what thou speakest. Make well these thynges, lest thou happen to fall, and byng thy soule to dishonour, and so God distance thy secrettes, and call the downe in the myddes of the congregacion: because thou woldest not receyue the feare of God, and because thy heart is full of faynednesse and dysceite.

The exhorteth the seruantes of God to rightousnesse, loue, understanding, and patience, as exhorteth hym that feareth God, to helpe, to hope, and to loue: because God neuer confoundeth ne forsaketh them that trust in hym. A curse vpon the falsyll, feare, and impatience of herte.

CAPL

II

My sonne, if thou wylste come into the seruyce of God, stand fast in rightousnesse and feare, and arme thy soule to temptation: sette thyne herte, and be patient: bothe downe thyne care, receyue the wordes of understanding, and thyneke not awaye, when thou arte entyled. Holde the fast vpon God, for he shall seke hym and salve, & the lyfe maye encrease at the last. Whatsoeuer happeneth vnto the, receyue it: suffer in deyrnesse, and be patient in thy trouble, for lyke as golde and syluer are tryed in the fyre, euen so are acceptable men in the furnace of aduersyte.

Belene in God, and he shall helpe: & since thy waye is right, & put thy trust in him. Holde fast his feare, & growe therein. O ye that feare the Lorde, take sure holde of his mercy: synners not awaye fro him, that ye fall not. O ye that feare the Lorde, helpe hym, and poure reward shall not be emptye. O ye that feare the Lorde put your trust in him, and mercy shall come vnto you for pleasure: O ye that feare the Lorde set your love vpon hym, and your hertes shall be lighthened.

Consider the elde generacions of men: & ye chylidren and march them wel: was there euer any one confounded, that put his trust in the Lorde? Who euer continued in his feare and was forsaken? O whome had he curd dyspyle, that called faithfully vpon hym? For God is gracious and mercifull, he forgiveth synnes in the tyme of trouble, and is a defender for all them that seke him in the truth. Who be vnto him? hath a double hearted wycked lippes and euill occupied handes, & so the synner goeth two wayes of wayes. Who be vnto them that are looke of herte, which put not their trust in God, & therefore shall they not be defended of hym. Who be vnto them that haue lost patience, forsaken the righte wayes, and are turned back, into the wayes of synne. What wyll they do, whyle the Lorde shall begyn to dysceit them?

They that feare the Lorde, wyll not trust his word: and they that loue hym, wyll kepe his commandment. They that feare the Lorde wyll seke out the thynges that are pleasant vnto hym: and they that loue him shall fulfill his lawe. They that feare the Lorde wyll prepare thre hertes, and humble theyr soules in his sight. They that feare the Lorde kepe his commandmentes, and wyll be patient till they se hym seife, sayinge: better it is for vs to fall into the handes of the Lorde, then into the handes of men: for his mercy is as greete as hym seife.

To our father and mother oughte we to gyue double honoure. Of the blessing and curse of the father and mother. No man oughte our curysse to searsh our the secrettes of God.

CAPL

The chylidren of wisdom are a congregacion of the righteous, and they are obedient to the father and mother. O ye chylidren, if ye desire to be safe, for the Lorde wyll haue the father honoured of the chylidren, and loke what a mother commandeth her chylidren to do, he wil haue it kept. Who so honoureth his father, his synnes shall be forgiven him: and he that honoureth his mother, shall be safe. Gathereth cresset together. Who so honoureth his father, shall haue the love of his owne chylidren: who he maketh his prayer he shall be heard. He that honoureth his father, shall haue a longe lyfe: and he that is obedient for the Lorde, his mother shall haue joy of hym.

He that feareth the Lorde, honoureth his father and mother, and both them seruyeth, as it is written vnto the Lorde hym seife. Honour the father in the Lorde, in wordes, and in all partyes, that thou mayest haue his blessing: for the blessing of the father blyndeth by the houses of the chylidren, but the mother's ereth out the foundacions. Reioyce not when thy father is reioyced, for it is no honour vnto the, but a shame. For the worship of a mans father, is his owne worship, and where the father is without honour, it is the dishonour of the sonne. My sonne, make moche of thy father in his age, and greue him not as longe as he lyueth. And if his understandinge faile, haue patience with him, and dyspyle him not in thy strength. For the good deede that thou shewest vnto thy father, shall not be forgotten: and when thou thy self wast, it shall be rewarded the: and for thy mother's offence, thou shalt not be recompensed with good, for it shall be founded for the in rightousnesse: and in the day of trouble thou shalt be remembered: thy synnes also shall melt away, lyke as the yce in the saye warm wither.

He that forsaketh his father, shall come to shame: and he that dyspyleth his mother, is cursed of God. My sonne, persourne thy lippes with louyng mekenesse, so shalt thou be loued aboute other men. The greater thou art, the more humble thy self in all thynges: and thou shalt fynde fauoure in the sight of God. For great power belongeth only vnto God, and he is honoured of the lowly.

Take not out the thynges that are aboute thy capacite, and searsh not the ground of the thynges as are to myghte for the: but loke what God hath commaunded the, thyneke vpon that awaye, and be not curysse in many of his wordes. For it is needfull for the to se with thyne eyes, the thynges that are secret. Make not thou to moche searsh in superfluous thynges, and be not curysse in many of his wordes: for many thynges are weyrd vnto the already, which be aboute the capacite of men. The wedding with such hath begyled many a man, and ragled their wittes in vanptrye. Nowe he that loueth peryll, shall perill the them.

An harde herte shall fare euill at the last, & an hert that goeth two wayes, shall not prosper: and he that is slowe of herte, wyll euer be the worse and worse. A wycked hert shall be laden with sorowes, and the vngodly synners wyll deape one syn vpon an other. The counsell of the proude hath no healt, for the plant of syn shall be rooted out in them. The wyte of him that hath understandinge shall perure bygh thynges, and a good care wyll stably beken vnto wisdom. An herte that is wyll and hath understandinge, wyll abygne from synnes, and increase in the wordes of rightousnesse. Water quenchech burninge fyre, and mercy reconyleth synnes. God hath respect vnto hym that is thankfull: he synneth vpon hym agaynst hym tyme to come: so that when he falleth, he shall fynde a strong holde.

Almes must be done with all mekenesse. The duty of wisdom and her fruit. A iudge oughte to be mercifull. An exhortacion to synners euill and to good.

My sonne, befraude not the poore of his almes, and turne not awaye thine eyes from him that hath neede. Dyspyle not an hungry soule, and despye not the poore in his necessity: greue not the herte of hym that is helpelesse, and mediathe not the gyfte from the needy. Refuse not the prayer of one that is in trouble, and turne not awaye thy face from the needy. Call not thyne eyes asyde fro the poore, that thou gyue him not occasyon to speake euill of the. For if he complayne of the in the bytternesse of his soule, his prayer shall be heard: euen he praye him, shall heare him. Be courteous vnto the companye of the poore: humble thy soule vnto the elde, and bowe downe thy herte to a man of worship. Let it not greue the to bowe downe thine eare vnto the poore, but paye thy dette, and gyue him a frendly answer, and that wyll make the.

Delyuer hym that suffreth wronge from the hand of the oppressour, and be not saynt hearted when thou speest in iudgement. Be mercifull vnto the fatherlesse as a father, & be in steede of an husband vnto theyr mother: so shalt thou be as an obedient sonne of the bygher, and he shall loue the more then thy mother doth.

Wisdom beareth lyfe into her chylidren, rectifyeth them that seke her, and wyll goe before them the way of rightousnesse. He that loueth her longeth lyfe: and they that seke her dyspygently, shall haue great sope. They that hepe her, shall haue the heritage of lyfe: for where we entred in, there is blessing of God. They that honoure her, shall be the seruantes of the holy one: and they that loue her, are beloued of God. Who so gyueth care vnto her, shall iudge the Heathen: and he that hath respect vnto her, shall dwell safe lyfe.

He that belongeth her, shall haue her in possession, and his generacion shall endure: for when he falleth, he shall goe with hym before al. Feare, dyte and temptation shall be vnto hym, and eue hym in her doctrine: till we haue so proued hym in his thoughtes, & he compeete his soule vnto her. Then shall the stably hym, byng the right way vnto hym, make hym a glad man, & we shall hee secrettes, and heape vpon hym the treasures of knowledge, understandinge and rightousnesse. But if he goe wronge, we shall forsake him, and gyue hym ouer in to the handes of his enemy.

My sonne make moche of the tyme, elchue the tyme that is euill, and for thy lyfe, shame not to saye the truth. For there is a shame that byngeth synne, and there is a shame that byngeth wisdom and fauoure. Accepte no personne after thyne owne wyll, that thou be not confounded to thyne owne decaie. Be not ashamed of thy neyghboure in his aduersyte, and kepe not back thy counsell when it maye do good, neither hyde the wisdom in thy beauty. For in the longe is wisdom.

come known, so is vnderstandynge, knowledge and learning in the talking of the wyse and stedfastnesse in the wordes of righte-ousnesse.

In no wyse speake agaynst the wordes of truth, but be ashamed of f lyes of thine own ignorance. Shame not to confesse thyne er-rour, submyt not thy self vnto euery ma of cause of syn. Withstand not f face of f myghtyr, and styue not agaynst the vnto deathe, and for the truche styue thou vnto deathe, and God shall fyght for the agaynst thine enne-mies. Be not hasty in thy tong, neither slack and negligent in thy wordes. Be not as a lyon in thine owne house, bestrope the householde folkes, and oppressing them that are vnder the. Let thine hande be stretched out to receyue, and put when thou shouldest gryue.

In synners maye we not put any confidence.
The vengeance of God shal be feared, and to repentance maye we not be slowe.

CAPL V.

Trust not vnto thy riches, and say not:
I have enough for my lyfe. (For it shall not helpe in the tyme of venge-aunce and temptacion.) Follow not the lust of thine owne heart in thy strength, and saye not: I have power, I have strength, or who will byng me vnder because of my wordes?
For doublelesse God shall avenge it. And saye not: I have commytted no synnes, but what cruell hath happened me? For the almyghty is a patient rewarder. Because the syn is forgotten, he is not therfore without feare, nether heape one syn vpon another. And saye not: I have mercy of the Lord, he is great, he shall forgyue me my synnes, he is myuer so maner. For lyke as he is mercifull, so goeth wrath from hym also, and his indignacion commeth downe vpon synners.

Make no taryng to tume vnto the Lord.
And put not of from day to day: for sodaynly shall his wrath come, and in the tyme of vengeaunce he shall destroye the. Trust not in wicked riches, for they shall not helpe in the daye of punishment and wrath. Be not casped about to euery wynde, and go not in to euery waye: for so doeth the synner that hath a double tonge. Stande fast in the waye of the Lord, be stedfast in thy vnderstandynge, abide by the word, and folowe the word of peace & righteousnesse. Be gentle to heare the wordes of God, that thou mayest vnder-stand it, and make a true answer with wysedome. Be swift to heare, but slow and paci-ent in guyng answer. If thou hast vnderstandynge, heape thy neyghboure an an-swere: If no, laye thine hande vpon thy mouth: lest thou be trapped in an vdiscrete word, and so confounded. Honour and worshyp is in a mans wyse talking, but the tong of the vdiscrete, is his owne destruction. Be not a pryue accuser as longe as thou liuest, and be no sklander with thy tong. For shame and sorow goeth ouer the face, and an euill name ouer hym that is double tonged: but he that is a pryue accuser of other men, shall be hated enuyed and confounded. He that thou inuyse the small and great alphe.

It is f propriete of a spinner to be curll wynded.
The doctrine and good counsell of the wyse is to be embraced wylfome shal be searched for. The prophete thereof.

CAPL VI.

Be not thy neyghbours enemye for thy spendes sake: for who so is curll shall be the hye of rebuke and byshonour and who so euer beareth enuy and a double tonge offendeth. Be not proude in the denie of thyne owne vnderstandynge, lest thy leues wither, and thy state be destroyed, so thou be left as a type tree. For a wicked soule de-stroyeth hym that hath it, maketh hym to be laughed to scorn of his enemies (a byngeth him to the porcion of the vngodly) a thre wordes multiplyeth frendes and pacifyeth them that be at variance, and a thankfull tonge wyll be pientous in a good man.

Wolde second wyppes with many, vnderstandynge hath but one counseller of a thousande.
If thou gettest a frende, proue him firste, and be not galy to gyue him credence. For some man is a frende, but for a tyme, & wyll not abide in the daye of trouble. And there is some frende that earnest to tempt, and taketh part agaynst the: and if he knowe ny hurt by the, he telleth it out. Againe, some frende is but a companion at the table, and in the daye of neede he contemneeth not. But a sure frende wyll be vnto the cur as thine owne selfe, and deale faithfully with thy householde folke. If thou suffre trouble and aduersyte, he is with the, and byeth not hym selfe frome the. Departe frome thine neymes, pea and beware of thy synners.

A saythfull frende is a strong defence: who to synners such one, standeth a noble treasure.
A saythfull frende hath no peare, the weight of gold and syluer is not to be compared to f goodnesse of his sayth. A saythfull frende is a medicyn of lyfe, & they that feare the Lord shall fynde hym. Who so seareth the Lord, shall prosper with frendes: and as he is humble selfe so shall his frende be also. If some ceyue doctrine from thy youth vp, so shalte thou fynde wisdom by li thou be olde. Goe thou as one that ploweth, & soweth, & mayest payntly for her good seates. For thou shalt haue but lytle labour in her wyke, but thou shalt eate of her frutes right soone. Howe eredyng warpe is vnto dom to vntelmed mlt an vntelmed body wyll not remane in her.
Vnto lache she is as it were a touchstone, & be casteth her frome hym in all the harte.
For wisdom is with hym but in name, there be put few that haue knowledge of her. But with them that knowe her, she abydeth cum vnto the apperaynge of God.

Spur eate (my sonne) receyue my doctrine, and refuse not my counsaile. Put thy foote in to her synners, and take her yoke vpon thy neck: bowe downe thy shoulde vnder her, be-re payntly, and be not wery of her bades.

Come vnto her with thy hole herte, and kepe her wordes with all thy power. Seke after her, and she shall be shewed the: and when thou hast her, forsake her not. For at the last thou shalt fynde rest in her, and that shall be turned to thy great ioye. When shall her fetters be a stronge defence for the, and her yoke a glorious rayment. For the brette of lyfe is in her, and her bandes are the couplings to-gyther of saluacion. Yea a glorious rayment is it, thou shalt put it on, & the same crowne of ioye shalt thou weare.

My sonne, if thou wilt take hede, thou shalt haue vnderstandynge: and if thou wilt aplye thy mynde, thou shalt be wyse. If thou wilt bowe downe thyne eare, thou shalt receyue doctrine: and if thou belyste in hearyng, thou shalt be wyse. Stande with the multitude of such ryders as haue vnderstandynge, and consent vnto their wysdome with thyne herte: that thou mayest heare all godly sermons, and that the worthy sentences escape the not. And if thou seist a man of discreete vnderstandynge, get the soone vnto hym, and let thy late reb vnto the sheppes of his doxe.
Let thy mynde be vpon the commandementes of God, and be earely occupied in his lawes: so shalt thou be a byp. We thy herte, and gyue the wysdome at thine owne desyre.

Wyldest so: take enyill, and set not iustye our lawes. The behauiour of the wyse, towarde his wyfe, his frende, his chyldren, his seruantes, his father and mother, the prestes, &c.

CAPL VII.

Do not enyill, so shal there no harme happen vnto the. Departe away from the chynge that is wicked, and no mysfortune shall make with the. My sonne, some no enyill thynges in the forwes of vntergh-tynesse. So shalt thou reue them fructifolde.
Labour not vnto man for any loydwyl, neither vnto the kynge for the seate of honoure.
Justly not thy selfe before God: for he knoweth the herte, and desyre not to be reputed wyse in the presence of the kynge. Make no laboure to be made a iudge, except f so were,
that thou couldest myghtey put downe wickednesse: for if thou shouldest stande in awe of the presence of the myghty, thou shouldest sayle in guyng sentence. Offende not in the multitude of the crye, and put not thy selfe amonge the people. Wynde not two synners togyther, for in one syn shalte thou not be vnterghynged. Say not: Iust, God wyll loke vpon the multitude of my oblacions, and when I offer to the byss God, he wyll accept it.

Be not saynte herted when thou makest thy prayer, not her slach in guyng of almes, laughe no man to seare in the heynesse of his soule, for God (whiche seeth all thynges) is he that can byngne downe, and sette vp a-gayne. Accept no lesynge agaynst thy brother (Reg. 11.6) neither do the same agaynst thy frende. Wyle not to make any maner of lye, for f custome thereof is not good. Make not many wordes when thou art amonge the elders: & when thou prayest, make not moche babylng. Let no laborious work be tedious vnto the, neither the husbandrye whiche the almyghty hath created. Make not thy baste in the multitude of thy wickednes, but humble thy self euen frome thine herte: and remembre that the wrath shall not be longe in sayng, and that the vengeance of the fleshe of the vngodly is a very fyre and woyme. Gyue not a ure thy frende for any good, ne thy saythfull brother for the bryd golde.

Depart not frome a discrete and good woman, that is fallen vnto the for thy porcion in the feare of the Lord, for the gyfte of her honesty is above golde. Where as thy seruant wo: hebb tculpe, intreath him not enyill, ne the bysplinge that is saythfull vnto the.
Loue a discrete seruante as thine own soule best, and him not of his lyberty, neither leaue hym a poore man. If thou haue catell, loke well to them: and they be for thy profit kepe them. If thou haue sonnes, byngne them vp in nurture and learning, and holde them in a frowne they: youthe byp. If thou haue daughters, kepe they: body, and shew not the face cheereful toward them. Maye thy daughter, & so thou shalt perforce a weyghyng matter: but gyue her to a man of vnderstandynge.
If thou haue a wyfe after thine own mynde forsake her not (but commit not thy selfe to the hateful).

Honoure thy father from thy hole herte, and forget not the forsworn traunple that thy mother had with the remembre that thou must boine thowm them, and how sad thou recompenie them the thynges that they haue done for the: feare the Lord with all thy soul, and honoure his mynsters. Loue thy makere with all thy strength, and forsake not his seruantes. Feare the Lord with al thy soul, and honoure his prestes. Gyue thrym their porcion of the frutes and increase of the earth, lyke as it is commaunded the gyue them the shuldres, and their appoynted offringes and saylynges. Reach thine had vnto the poore, that God maye blesse the plenteuousnesse. Be lyberall vnto all men lyuynge, yet let not but do good euen to them that are dead.

Let not them that wepe be without comfort, but moune with suche as moune. Let it not greue the to vnter the syche, for that shall make the to be beloued. What so cure f taketh in hande, remembre the ende, and thou shalt neuer do amplye.

Agaynst thy better is no stryunge. Of the deathe of thine enemye mayest thou not reioyce, ne desyre thy neyghbours, ne the wordes of the wyse.

CAPL

VIII.

Strive not with a myghty man, lest thou chance to fall in to his handes. Make no barpaunce with a ryche man. lest he happen to bypnyge by an harde quarel agaynst the. For golde and syluer hath vndone many a man, yea euen the bestes of kynge's hath it made to fall. Strive not with a man that is full of wyrdes, and lape no synches vpon his tye: kepe no compaignie with the vnlearned, lest he greeue thy herted an euill reposte. Despyse not a man that turneth hym self awaye from syn, and cast him not in the scerch with all: but remembre that we are feaple every chone. Thyne scoine of no man in his olde age, for we wax olde also. Be not glad of the deathe of thyne enemye, but remembre that we must dye al the sort of vs (and faine wold we come in to sope.) Despyse not the sermons of suche elders as haue vnderstandynge, but aquaynte thy selfe with the wyle sentences of them: for of them thou shalt learne wysdome and the doctrine of vnderstandynge, and how to serue geate men withoute complaynte.

Bo not scame the doctrine of the elders, for they haue lerned it of thyne fathers. For of them thou shalt learne vnderstandynge, so that thou mayest make answer in tyme of need. Repulse not the cooles of synners, lest thou be blent in the fyre flames of theyr synnes. Repulse not the face of the blasphemour, that he lape not wyrdes for thy mouth. Lend not vnto hym that is myghty: then thy selfe: If thou lendest hym, count it but losse. Be not surtye about thy power: yf thou be, then thyne surtye to paye it. Go not to laue in the iudge, for he wyll iudge accordyng to his owne honoure. Trauayle not by the waye with hym that is bypnyssell, lest he do the euill: for he foloweth his owne wyllfulnesse, and so shalt thou perishe thowth his foie.

See us not with hym that is angye and cruel, and go not with hym in to the wyldernes: for bloude is nothyng in his syde, and where there is no helpe, he shall murder the. Take no counsell at foolles, for they loue no thyng but the thynges that please them selues. Make no counsell before a straunger, for thou canst not tell what wyll come of it. Open not thyne herte vnto euery man, lest he be vnthawfull to the, and put the to reprofe.

The scoperdes of chastelle are to be eschewed. In olde frenche is to be ppyerred before a newe. The glayze and ryche of synners. Ryghtous men should be ppyerred to geit. Labour is the chete thing in a workman, and wyldom is a pygmy.

CAPL.

IX.

Be not gelous ouer the wyse of thy bo: some, that is: wylde not some wyrded porpote of wyrded bo: some vpon the. Geue not the power of thy sye vnto a woman, lest she come in thy myserys, and so thou be confounded. Loke not vpon a woman that is belgious of many men, lest thou fall in to her snares. Take not the compaignie of a woman that is a player and daunser, shee deceyue thee not, lest thou perishe thowth her entyng. Beholde not a mayden, that thou be not hurt in her beautye. Lest not thy mynde vpon barlottes in any maner of thyng, lest thou bestrope both thy selfe and thyne heritage. Go not aboute galyng in euery lane of the cyte, nether wynde thou aboure in the stree thet. Turne awaye thy face from a beauteyfull woman, and loke not vpon the fayntes of other.

Wanpe a man hath persyded thowth the beautey of women, for thowth the deye is hybled as it were a fyre. An adontrous woman shall be troden vnder foete as mye, of euery one that goeth by the waye. Wanye a man wonderynge at the beautye of a strange woman, hath bene cast oute, for her wyrdes kundle as a fyre. Spe not in an other mans wyse by any meanes, spe not with her vpon the bed, make no wordes with her at thyne lest thyne hert consente vnto her, and so thou shalt thy bloude fall in to destruction. For sake not an olde frende, for the newe shall not be lyke hym.

A newe frende is newe wyne: let hym be olde and thou shalt dypke hym with pleasure. Despyse not the honoure and ryche of a synner, for thou knowest not what destruction is for to come vpon hym. Despyse not thowth the thyng that the vngodly haue pleasure in, bypnyssell sure that the vngodly shall not be accepted vntill they geane.

Kepe the from the man that hath the power to slaye, so nedest thou not to be affrayde of deathe. And yf thou comest vnto hym, make no fault, lest he happye to take awaye thy life. Remembre that thou goest in the myddell of snares, and vpon the but wyrdes of the cyte. Beware of thy neyghboure as wyrdes as thou canst, and medle with such as be wyrdes and haue vnderstandynge. Let us men be the gesses, let thy mynde be in the feare of God, let the comfaynce of God be in thy mynde and let all thy talkynge be in the commendementes of the hyghen. In the handes of craftemen shall the wyrdes be commended so shall the prynces of the people in the wyldome of their talkynge. A man ful of wyrdes is prepyous in his cyte: and he that is temerarious and past wame in his talkynge, is to be abhoyred.

Of synners and iudges. Pryde, and courtousnes are to be abhoyred. Labour is ppyerred.

CAPL.

X.

Awyle iudge wil syde his people with discrecion, and where a man of vnderstandynge beareth rule, there goeth it well. As the iudge of the people is hym selfe euen so are his officers: and loke what maner of man the ruler of the cyte is, such are they that dwell therein also. An vngodly destryeth his people, but where they be in autopitite are men of vnderstanding, there the cyte prospereth.

The power of the earth is in the handes of God, and when his time is, he shall set a profitable ruler vpon it, in the hand of God, is the power of man, and vpon the scrybes that he lay his honour. Remembre no wyrd of thy neyghboure, and medle thou with no vnyrded toun wyrdes. Pryde is hatefull before God and man, and all wickednesse of the heathen is to be abhoyred. Because of vnyrdedness of lyng, wyrded, blasphemys, and dyuers dyscreit, a realme shall be translated from one people to an other.

There is nothyng worse then a couctous man. Why art thou proude, o thou erth and affres? There is not a more wyrded thyng then to loue money. And why? such one hath his soule to sell: yet is he but fylthyne vnyrded toyle he lyureth.

And though the phisicion shewe his helpe neuer so longe, yet in conclusion it goeth after this maner, to day a king, to morow tred, for when a man dyeth, he is the heye of serpentes, beestes and wormes. The beginning of mans pryde, is to fal away from God: for why? his herte is gone from his maker, for pryde is the oryginall of all syn. Who so taketh hold therof, shall be fylled with cursynge, and at last it shall ouerthow him. Therefore hath the Lord brought a congregaciō of the wicked to dishonoure, and destroyed them vnto the ende.

God hath destroyed the seates of proude prynces, and set vpon the meche in theyr stede. God hath wythred the rotes of the proude heathen, and planted the lowlye amonge them. God hath ouerthowen the landes of the heathen, and destroyed them oute of the ground. He hath caused them to wyther awaye, he hath brought them to nought, and made the memorial of them to cease fro cūte of the earthe (God hath destroyed the name of the proude, and left the name of the humble of mynde.) Pryde was not made for man, neither to othfulnes for mens chyldren: the seide of man that seareth God shall be brought to honour: but the seide which transgresseth the commandementes of the Lord, shall be shamed. He that is a ruler amonges brethren is holden in honour among them, and he regardeth suche as feare the Lord. The gloze of the ryche, of the honourable, and of the poze is the feare of God.

Despyse not thou the iust poore man, and magnify not the ryche vngodly. Great is the iudge, and mighty in honour, yet is there none greater then he that feareth God. Vnto the trauant that is discrete, shall the fre do lerye. He that is wise and wel noutured, wil not grudge when he is reioyced, and an ignorant sod shall not come to honoure. Be not proude to do thy wyrdes, and dyspayre not in the tyme of aduersitie. Better is he that labourereth, and hath plentyousnesse of all thynges, then he that is gorgeous and wanteth bread.

My sonne, kepe thy soule in mechnes, and gyue her, her due honour. Who shall iustifie him that synneth agaynst him self? who wil honour him that dishonoureth his owne lifer? The poore is honoured for his faythfulnes and truch, but the ryche is had in reputaciō, by cause of his goodes. He that o: d: rch him self honestly in pouertie, how much more shall he behaue him self honestly in riches? And who so o: d: rch him self vnhonestly in ryches, how much more shall he behaue hym selfe vnhonestly in pouertie.

The pryde of humilite. After the outward appearance ought we not to iudge. Of heye and rash iudgement. The ryche is not without offence. All thynges come of God. All men are not to be lought in t: thy house.

CAPL.

XI.

The wysdome of hym that is broughte low, shall lyft vp his heed, and shall make hym to lye among great men. Amend not a mā in his beautie, neither despise a mā in his vttter apperance. The wee is but a smal beest among the foules, yet is her fruce exceedingly swete. Be not proude of thy rayment, and exalt not thy self in the day of thy honoure: for the wyrdes of the hyest onely are wonderful: yea glorious secrete and vknown are his wyrdes. Wanye pyrauntes haue ben sayne to lye downe vpon the earth, and the vnyrdedly bathe wyrdes the crowne. Many myghty men haue ben brought lowe, and the honourable haue ben deluyred in to other mens handes. Condemne no man before thou haue tryed out the matter, and when thou hast made inquisition, the reforme right tounse. Gyue no sentence before thou haue herde the cause, but fynde let men tell oute their tales.

Strive not for a mater that toucheth not thy selfe, and stande not in the iudgement of synners. Gyue son, medle not with many matters: yf thou wilt be ryche, thou shalt not get it: and though yf rennet thy wyrdes afoze, yet shalt thou not escape. There is some mā that labourereth, and the more he meriet him selfe, the lesse he hath. Agayne some man is slouthful, hath nede of helpe, wanteth strength and hath geate pouertie, and Gods eye loketh vpon hym to good, setteth hym vp from his lowe estate, and lyfteth vp his heed, so that many men matuell at hym, and gyue honour vnto God.

Prosperitie and aduersitie, life and deeth, pouertie and riches come of the Lord. (Wysdome, noutour and knowlege of the law are with God: loue, and the wayes of good are with hym. Errour and darkenesse are made for synners: and they that craite the felous in euyl, were olde in euyl.) The gift of God remayneth for the ryghtous, and his good wyll shall haue prosperitie for euer. Some man is ryche by lyfynge nygardly, and that is the po: ciō of his rewarde, in that he sayth nowre haue I gotten tesse, and nowre wyll I eate and d: rch of my goodes my self alone.

Egg And

And yet he confydreth not, that the tyme by a methyne, that he must leaue al these thynges vnto other men, and dye hym selfe. Stande thou fast in thy councail, and exerce the selfe therein, and remayne in the woꝝke vnto thy age. Continue not in the woꝝkes of synners, but put thy trust in God, and byde in thyne estate: for it is but an easye thyng in the syght of God, to make a poore mā riche, and that suddenly. The blessing of God becometh to the rewarde of the ryghteous, and maketh his frutes sone to floꝝr: yf he and pꝛospere. Say not: what helpeth it me? what shall I haue the while? Agayne, saye not: I haue ynough, how can I want? When thou arte in welfare, forget not aduersitie: and when it goeth not wel with the, haue a good hope: for it shall be better. For it is but a small thyng vnto God in the daye of death to rewarde euery man accordyng to his wayes. The aduersitie of an houre maketh one to forget all pleasure: and when a man dyeth, his woꝝkes are discouered. pꝛaue no body before his deathe, for a man shall be known in his chyldren.

Byng not euery man in to thyne house, for the dysceyful layeth awaye byuerlye. Lyke as a partryche in a maunde, so is the hert of the proude: and lyke as a fyre that lokech vnto the sal of his neighbour. For he turneth good vnto euil, and sleanderech the chofe. Of one sparke is made a greete fyre, and an vngodly mā laicth waye for bloud. Beware of the dysceyfull, for he ymagyneth wicked thynges to byng the in to a ppetual shame. Yf thou takest an aleaunt vnto the, he shall destroy the in vnquietnesse, and byng the from thyne owne wayes.

¶ Vnto whom we oughte to do good. Enemys oughte to be clythwed.

CAPL.

XII.

When thou wilt do good, know to whō thou doest it, and so shalt thou be greatly thanked for thy benefytes. Doo good vnto the ryghteous, and thou shalt fynd great rewarde: though not of hym, yet (no doubt) the Loꝝde hym selfe shall rewarde the. He standeth not in a good case that is alway occupied in euyl, and giveth no almes: for the hert hateth synners, and hath mercy vpon them that shewe the woꝝkes of repentaunce. Gue thou vnto suche as feare God, and receyue not a synner. As for the vngodlye and synners, he shall recompence vengeance vnto them, and kepe them to the day of wrath. Gue thou vnto the good, and receyue not the synner: do wel vnto hym, that is lowly, but gue not vnto the vngodlye. Let not the breed be gyven hym, that he be not myghtyer then thy selfe therein. For so shalt thou receiue twofold as moche euyl, in all the good that thou doest vnto hym: And why? the best hateth synners, and shall rewarde vengeance to the vngodlye.

In prosperitie a frende shall not be knowen, and in aduersitie an enemy shall not be hyd. For when a man is in welch, it greuteth his enemies: but in heynesse and trouble a man shall knowe his frende. Truste neuere thyne enemy, for lyke as an yron rusteth, so doth his wyckednes. And though he make moche crouching and knelyng, yet kepe wel thy mynde, and beware of hym. Set him not by the, neither let him sit at thy right hand, lest he couene hym, get in to thy place, take thy towne and seke thy seate, and so thou at the last remembre my woꝝdes, and be pꝛycked at my sayynges.

Bynde not two synnes together, for there shall not be one unpunished. Who wilt haue pity of the charmer that is kinged of the serpents, or of all suche as come nye the beestes? Euen so is it with him that kepeth company with a wycked man, and lappeth hym self in his synnes. For a leason wilt he byde with the, but yf thou stumbe, he taryeth not. An enemy is swete in his lippes, he can make many woꝝdes, and speke many good thynges: Yea he can wepe in his eyes, but in his herte he ymagyneth how to thꝛow the in to the pit, and yf he may fynde oportunitie, he will not be satisfied with bloude. Yf aduersitie come vpon the, thou shalt fynde hym there fyrst, and though he pꝛetende to do the helpe, yet shall he vndermyne the. He that shake his heed and clap his handes ouer the, for deere gladnesse, and while he maketh many woꝝdes, he shall dysguyse his countenaunce.

¶ The companyes of the proude and of the ryche are to be clythwed. The loue of God. Lyke doth company with the ryche.

CAPL.

XIII.

Who so toucheth pytche, shall be fylled withall: and he that is samplier with the proude, shall clothe hym selfe with pryde. He taketh a burthen vpon hym, that accompanieth a more honourable man then hym selfe. Therefore kepe no familiaritie with our selfe rycher then thy selfe. How agreeth the kettle and the pot together? for yf the one be smitten agaynst the other, it shall be broken. The ryche delecth vnryghtously, and thꝛetneth withall: but the poore being oppressed and wrongously delt withal, suffereth scarcenesse, and giveth saye woꝝdes. Yf thou be for his pꝛofyt, he vseth the: but yf thou haue nothyng, he shall for sake the. As long as thou hast any thyng of thyne owne, he shall be a good felowe with the: yea he shall make the a bare man, and not be for ye for the. Yf he haue neede of the, he shall defraude the: and with a pryng moche shall he put the in an hope, and geue the all good woꝝdes, and saye: what wantest thou? Thus shall he shame the in his meate, vntyll he haue supped the clement of thyne: and at the last shall he laugh the to scorn. Afterwarde when he seith that thou thou hast nothyng, he shall forsake the, and shake his heed at the.

Beware thou be not dysceyued and broughte downe in thy synplenesse. Be not to humble in thy wysdome, lest when thou art brought low, thou be dysceyued thowow foolishnesse. Yf thou be called a myghtye man, absent thy selfe, so shall he call the to hym the more oft. pꝛaue not vnto hym, that thou be not shot out: and go not farre of, lest he for get the. Withstande not thy selfe from his speache, but byleue not his manye woꝝdes. For with moche communicacion shall he tempte the, and with a pryng moche shall he queyten the of thy secrettes. The vniuersyfull mynde of his shall marke thy woꝝdes, he shall not spare to doo the hurte, and to put the in pꝛyson, beware, and take good hede to thy selfe, for thou walkest in peryll of thy ouerthyng.

How wilt thou heare his woꝝdes, make as though thou werest in a dreme, and wake vp. Loue God all thy lyfe long, and call vpon him in thy neede. Euerie beest loueth his like, euen so let euery man loue his neyghbour. Al flesh wil reioyse to their lyke. And euery mā will kepe companye with suche as he is him selfe. But as the wolfe agreeth with the lambe, so doth the vngodly with the ryghteous. What felowshipp shalde an holye man haue with a dog? How can the ryche and the poore agree together? The wyld alle is the Lyons praye in the wyldernes, euen so are poore men the meat of the ryche. Like as a pꝛoude may not atway with lowlynesse, euen so doth the ryche abhorre the poore. Yf a ryche man fall, his frendes let hym by agayne, but when a poore man fall, his frendes forsake hym. Yf a ryche man fall in to an errour, he hath many helppers, he speaketh pꝛoude woꝝdes, and yet men wither hym.

But yf a poore man go wrong, he is punished: yea though he syke himselfe, yet can it haue no place. When the ryche man speaketh euery body holdeth his tong, and loke what he sayeth, they pꝛaise it vnto the cloudes. But yf the poore man speake, they saye: What folowe is this? And yf he doo amysse, they shal destroy hym. Ryches are good vnto him that hath no synne in his conscience, and povertie is a wycked thyng in the mouche of the vngodly. The hert of mā chaungeth his countenaunce, whether it be in good or euyl. A cherefull countenaunce is a token of a good herte, for els it is an harde thyng to knowe the thoughte.

¶ The effence of the tonge. Man is but a voyce. Happy is he that conuinceth in wysdome.

CAPL.

XIII.

Blessed is the man, that hath not fallen with the word of his mouth, and is not pꝛycked with the conscience of synne. Happy is he that hath the no leynesse in his mynde, and is not fallen from his hope. Is becometh not a conscious man? a nygarde to be ryche: and what shalde a nygarde doo with golde? He that with all his carefullnesse heapeth together vnryghtously, gathereth for other folkes, and an other mā shall make good there with his goodes. He that is wycked vnto hym selfe, howe shalde he be good vnto other men? How can such one haue any pleasure of his goodes? There is nothyng woꝝs then when one disfauoureth hym selfe, and this is a rewarde of his wickednesse. Yf he do any good, he doth it not knowyng therof, and agaynst his wyl, and at the last he declareth his vngraciounes. A nygarde hath a wycked eye, he turneth away his face, and despyseth his owne soule. A conscious mans eye hath neuer ynough in the porcion of wyckednesse, vntyll he be wyther awaye, and haue losse his owne soule.

A wycked eye spareth byed, and ther is scarcenesse vpon his table. My son, do good to thy self of that thou hast, and geue the Loꝝde his due offerynges. Remembre that deeth taryeth not, and that the councail of the graue is shewed vnto the: for the councail of this worlde shal bye the deeth. Do good vnto thy frend before thou dye, and accordyng to thy habilitie, reche out thy hande and geue vnto the poore. Be not dyspoynted of a good day, and let not the porcion of the good day ouer passe the. Shalt thou not leaue thy traueyles and labours vnto other men? In the branding of the heritage geue and take, and sanctifye thy soule. Woꝝke thou ryghtously before thy deeth, for in the hel there is no meat to find. Al flesh shal fade awaye lyke grasse, and lyke a flouysshing lese in a grene tre. Some growe some are cast downe: euen so is the generaciō of flesh and bloud, one cometh to an ende, an other is borne.

All transitorye thynges shall sayle at the last, and the woꝝker therof shall go withall. Euerie chosen woꝝke shall be iustified, and he that medleth withall, shall haue honoure therein. Blessed is the mā that kepeth hym in wysdome, and exerceyth hym selfe in vnderstandyng, and with discrecion shal he thinke vpon the foreknowledge of God. Which considereth the wayes of wysdome in his herte, hath vnderstandyng in her secrettes, goeth after her (as one that seeth her out) and correcteth in her wayes. He loketh in at her windowes, and bareneth at her doores: he taketh his rest besyde her house, and fasteneth his stake in her walles: he shall pytche his tent nye vnto her hand, and in his tent shall good thynges rest for euermore: he shall set his chyldren vnder her couerynge, and shall dwel vnder her braunches. Vnder her couerynge shal he be defended fro the heate, and in her glorye shal he rest.

¶ The goodnesse which foloweth him that feareth God. God reioyseth and callyeth of the iust. God is not the auctor of euyl.

John. xlii. b

HE that feareth God, wyl do good: and who so keepeth the lawe, shall obtayne wysdome. As an honourable mother shall she mete him, and as a virgin shall she receyue hym. With the byrd of life and vnder standing shall she fede hym, and gyue him the water of holysme wysdom to drynke. Yf he be constant in her, he shall not be moued: and if he holde him fast by her, he shall not come to confusio. She shall byrde him to honour among his neyghbours, and i the myddell of the congregacion shall she open his mouthe. With the spirite of wysdom and vnderstandyng shall she fyl him, and clothe hym with þe garment of gloze. She shall heape the treasure of myght and ioy vpon him, and gyue him an euerslastyng name to heritage. For he wyl not take hold vpon her, but suche as haue vnderstandyng, wyl mete her, for she is far fro pryde and disceyte. Men that go about with lyes, wyl not remembre her: but men of trouth shall be found in her: eue vnto the beholding of God. Praise is not seemly in the mouth of the vngodly, for he is not sent of þe Lord. For of God cometh wysdom, and þe prayse shall stand by the wysdom of God, and shall be plentifulous in a faryful mouth, and the Lord shall gyue her vnto him.

Say not thou: It is the Lordes fault that I am gone by, for thou shalt not do the thing that God hateth. Say not thou: he hath caused me to go wronge, for he hath no nede of the vngodly. God hateth al abhominacion of errour, & they that feare God wyl loue none suche. God made man at the begynnyng, and left hym in the hand of his counsell. He gaue him his commaundementes and preceptes, if thou wylt obserue the commaundementes, and kepe acceptable farythfulnesse for euer, they shall preserue the. He hath set water and fyre before the, reache out thyne hande vnto which thou wylt. Before man is lyfe & deeth, good and euill: loke what him lyketh, shall be giuen him: for þe wysdom of God is great and myghty in power, and beholde al men continually. The eyes of the Lord are vpon them that feare hym, and he knoweth all the wothes of man. He hath commaunded no man to do vngodly, neyther hath he gyue any man leue to synne.

Of the happy and wretched chyldren. No man can hyde hym selfe from God. In exhortacion to the receyvinge of instruction.

CAPL.

XVI.

DElyte not thou in the multitude of vngodly chyldren, and haue no pleasure in them, yf they feare not God. Trust not thou to thine lyfe, and regarde not they labours: for one sonne that receiveth God, is better then a thousande vngodly. And better it is better for a man to dye vngodly, then to leue behynde hym such chyldren as are vngodly. For by one that hath vnderstandyng, may a hole cite be upholde, but though the vngodly be manye, yet shall it be washed thowd they. Many such thinges hath mine eye seene, and greater thinges then these haue I herde with myne eares. In the congregacion of the vngodlye shall a fyre burne, and amonges vnfaythfull people shall the ioynt be kyndled.

The olde gyauntes obtayned no grace for they synnes which were destroyed, trusting to their owne strengthe. Neither spared he them amonges whom Loth was stranger, but smote them and abhorred them because of the pryde of theyr wordes. He had no pity vpon them, but destroyed all the people that were so stout in synne. And for so moche as he ouersawe not the fyre hundred thousande that gathered them selues together in þe hardnesse of their hert, it were maruell yf one being hardnecked shold be free. For mercy and ioynt is with him: he is both myghty to forgyue, and to poure out displeasure. The as his mercy is great, turn so is his punishment also, he iudgeth a man accordyng to his wothes. The vngodly shall not escape in his ioynt, and the long pacience of him þe sheweth mercy, shall not byde behynde. Al mercy shall make place vnto euery man accordyng to the destruyng of his wothes, and after the vnderstandyng of his pylgrymage.

Saye not thou: I wyl hyde my selfe from God, for who wyl thynke vpon me from a boue? I shall not be known in so greata heape of people, for what is my soule among so many creatures? Beholde, the heuen, yea the heuen of heuens, the depe, the earth, and all þe therein shall be moued at his presence: the mountaynes, the hylls, and the foundations of the earth shall shake for feare, when God visiteth them.

These thinges dothe no hert vnderstand, but he vnderstandeth euery herte, and who vnderstandeth his wothes? No man seith his noyme, and the most part of his wothes are secrete. Who wyl declare the wothes of his ryghtousnesse? Or who shall be able to abyde them? For the counaunt is farr from some, and the trynginge oute of men is in the fulfylling. He that is humble of hert, thynketh vpon such thinges: but an vbrutle and erroneous man casteth his mynde vnto foolyshe thinges.

My sonne harken thou vnto me, and lerne vnderstandyng, and make my wothes with thyne hert: I wyl gyue the a sure doctrine, and playnly shall I instruct the. God hath set his wothes in good orde from the begynnyng, and parte of them hath he sundred from the other. He hath garnished his wothes from euerslastyng, and they be gyngynges, accordyng to theyr generacions. None of them tribured an other, neyther was anye of them disobedient vnto his wothe. After this, God looked vpon the earth, and fylled it with his goodnes. With al manner of lyving beastes hath he couered the grounde, and they all shall be touned vnto earth agayne.

The creation of man, and the goodnesse that God hath doone vnto hym. Of almes and repenitance.

CAPL.

XVII.

God hope man of the earth, and touned hym vnto earth agayne. He gaue hym the nombre of dayes and certayn tyme, yea and gaue hym power of the thynge that are vpon earth. He clothed hym in strength, and made hym after his owne lyke. He made all fleshe to stande in awe of hym, so that he had the dominion of all beastes and foules. He made out of hym an helper lyke vnto hym selfe, and gaue them discrecion and tonge, eyes and eares, and a hert to vnderstande, & fylled them with instructioun and vnderstandyng. He created for them also the knowlege of the spirite, fylled their hertes with vnderstandyng, and shewed the good and euill, he set his eye vpon they heret, declaring vnto them his great and noble wothes, that they shold praise his holy name together, reioyse of his wonders, and be telling of his noble actes. Weyde this he gaue them instruction and the lawe of lyfe for an heritage.

He made him an euerslastyng counaunt with them, and shewed them his rightousnesse and iudgements. They saw his gloze with their eyes, and they eares herde the maicesty of his voyce. And he sayd vnto them: beware of al vngodly thinges. He gaue euery man also a commaundement concerning his neyghbour.

They wapes are euer before hym, and are not hydde from his eyes. He hath set a ruler vpon euery people, but Israell is the Lordes porcion. Al they wothes are as the sunne in the syghte of God, and his eyes are alwaye lookinge vpon they wapes. Al they vngodlynesse are manifest vnto hym, and all they wretchednesse are open in his syghte. The mercy that a man sheweth, is as if were a purse with hym, and a mannes good dede preserue hym as the apple of an eye. At the laste shall he awake, and rewarde euery man vpon his heed as he hath deserved, and shal tounne them together in to the uttermost partes of the earth. Vnto them that wyl repent, he hath gyuen the way of ryghtousnesse. As for such as be wycke he comforteth them, suffereth them, and sendeth them the porcion of the veritie.

Turne then vnto the Lord, forsake thy syns, make thy prayer before the Lord, do the lesse offence, tounne agayne vnto the Lord, forsake thyne vngodlynesse, be an be in amyny to abhominacion, lerne to know the ryghtousnesse and iudgements of God, stand in the porcion that is set forth for the, and in the prayer of the moste hygh God. Go in to the porcion of the holie wothe, with suche as be lyvinge, and gyue thankes vnto God.

Who wyl prayse the Lord in the helle? And not in the error of the vngod.

lye, but gyue hym thankes before deathe. As for the deede, thankesfulnesse persyueth frome hym as nothyng. Gyue thou thankes in thy lyfe, yea wyle thou arte lyvinge and hole, shall thou giue thankes, and prayse God, and reioyse in his mercy. How great is the louynge kyndnesse of the Lord, and his mercifull goodnesse vnto suche as tounne vnto hym? For all thinges may not be in man: And why? the sonne of man is not immortall, and he hath pleasure in the vanitie of wretchednesse. What is more cleere then the sunne? yet shall it fayle. Or what is more wycked then the thynge that fleshe and bloude hath ymagyned: and that same shall be repoued. The Lord seith the power of the hye heuen, and all are but earth and ashes.

The meruelous wothes of God, the mylery and wretchednesse of man. Agayne God ought we not to complayne. Prayse must we continually.

CAPL.

XVIII.

HE that lyueth for euermore, made all thinges together. God only is ryghteous, & remaineth a victor, yong for euer. Who shall be able to expelle the wothes of hym? Who hath soughte oute the grounde of his noble actes? Who shall declare the power of his greatnesse? Or who wyl take vpon hym to tel out his mercy? As for the wonderful wothes of þe Lord, there maye nothyng be taken from them, nothyng maye be put vnto them, neyther maye the grounde of them be sounde out. But when a man hath doone his beste, he muste begyn agayne: and when he thynketh to be come to an ende, he muste goo agayne to his labour. What is man? Wherto is he worthy? What good or euill can he do? Yf the nombre of a mans dayes be almost an hundred yeres, it is moche.

Like as the droppes of rayne are vnto the ser, and as a grauell stone is in comparyson of the sande: so are these fewe yeres to the dayes euerslastyng. Therefore is the Lord patient with them, and poureth out his mercy vpon them. He sawe and perceyued the thoughtes and ymaginacions of their hert, that they were euill: therefore heaped he vpon his mercy. All goodnesse vpon them, and shewed them the waye of ryghtousnesse. The mercy that a man hath, reacheth to his neyghbour, but the mercy of God is vpon al fleshe. He chasteneth, he teacheth and nourtoureth: yea euen as a shepherde tounneth agayne his flocke, so dothe he all them that receyue chastenynge, nourtoure and doctrine. Mercy full is he vnto them that stand in awe of his iudgements.

My son, when thou doest good, make no grudging at it: and what so euer thou giuest speake no discomfortable wothes. Shal not the deue coule the heat? Euen so is a wothe better then a gyfte. Is not a friendly wothe a good good honest gyfte: but a gracious man gyueth them bothe. A foole shall call a man in the teeth, and that roughly, and a gyfte of the mygarde putteth out the eyes. Get the righ-tousnesse before y come to iudgement: let me before thou speake, and goo to physycke or euer thou be sycke: examyn and iudge thy selfe before the iudgement come, and so shalt thou fynde grace in the syght of God. Humble thy selfe before thou be sycke, and in tyme of thy disease shewe thy conuersation. Lette not to praye alwaye, and stande not in feare to be reformed vnto death, for the rewarde of God endureth for euer. Before thou pray est prepare thy soule, and be not as one that tempteth God. Thinke vpon the wrathfull indignation that shall be at the ende, and the houre of vengeance, when he shall turne awaye his face. When thou hast ynoughe, remembere the tyme of hunger, and when thou arte sycke, thinke vpon the tyme of pouertie and scarcenesse.

From the morning vntyl the euenyng the tyme is chynge, and all suche thynges are sone done in the syght of God. A wise mā se-areth God in all thynges, & in the dayes of traf-fession, he kepeth hym self from syn. A discrete man hath pleasure in wysdome, and he that synneth her, maketh moche of her. They that haue had vnderstanding, haue delt wisely in wordes, haue vnderstande the truth and rightousnesse, and haue sought out wyse sentences & iudgements. Follow not thy lustes but turne the from thyne owne wyll. For if y giuest thy soul her desires, it shall make thine enemies to laugh & to scoorne. Take not thy pleasure in great voluptuousnes, and medie not to moche wall. Make not to great chere of the thyng that thou hast won by auauntage, lest thou fall in to pouertie, and haue nothyng in thy purse.

ference of the wysdome of God and man. wherby thou mayest knowe what is in a man. Correction wyse.

women.

A Labouryng man that is gyuen vnto drunkennesse, shall not be sycke: and he that maketh not moche of smal thin-ges, shall fall by litle and litle. Wyse & women, make wyse men remygates, & put men of vnderstanding to reprofe, and he that ac-companyeth aduocaters, shall become a wicked mā. Mothes and womes shall haue hym to heritage, yea he shall be set vp to a greater example, and his soule shall be rooted out of the nombre. He that is hally to giue credence is lyght mynded, and doth against him selfe.
Who so reioyseth in wickednesse shall he punished: he shall be set to be reformed, his lyfe shall be thortned: and he that abhorreth bablyng of wordes, quencheth wickednes. He that offendeth agaynst his own soule, shall repent it: and he that reioyseth in wickednes shall be punished.

Rebelle not a wyched and churlysh word twise, and thou shalt not be hindered. Shewe thy secretes, neyther to frend nor foe, and yf thou hast offended, tel it not out. For he that harken vnto the and marke the, and when he findeth oportunitie, he shall hate the. Yf thou hast herde a worde agaynst thy neyghbour, let it be deed within the: and be lured shall haue no harme thereby. A foole transacteth a worde, lyke as a woman y is payned with bearing of chyldre. Lyke as an arrow that in a dogges thigh, so is a worde in a folles hart.
Tell thy frend his fault, lest he be ignorant, saye: I haue not done it, or yf he haue done it, that he do it no more. Reproue thy neygh-bour, that he kepe his tonge, & yf he haue spoken, that he say it no more.

Tell thy neyghbour his fault, for ofte tymes an offence is made, and gyue not credence to euery word. A man falleth somtyme with his tonge, but not with his wyll. For what is he that hath not offended in his tonge?
Gyue thy neyghbour warning before thou threaten hym, and gyue place vnto the lawe of the Loyde. The feare of God is all wysdome, and he that is a ryghteous man kepeth the lawe. As for the doctrine of wickednesse it is no wysdome, and the prudence of synners is no good vnderstandyng: it is but wychednesse and abhominacion, and a blas-pheming of wysdom. A symple man of smal vnderstandyng that feareth God, is better then one that hath moche wysdom, and trau-gresth the lawe of the hyest. A crafty sub-tyll man can be wyse, but he is verrygious, and with gyftes he wyseth the open & manifeste lawe. A wyched man can be haue hym selfe humblye, and can douke with his berd, and yet is he but a disceyuer within. He by-deth his face, and dysguyseth it: and because he shoulde not be knowne, he pteumeth
the.

And though he be so wyke that he can doo the no harme, yet when he maye fynde oportunitie, he shall doo some euill. A man maye be knowne by his face, and one that hath vnderstandyng maye be perceyued by the loke of his countenance. A mans garment, laughter, and gorynge, declare what he is.

Of correction and repentance. Of the gyfte of the wyse man and of the foole. Of yunge.

CAPL. XX.

Some man reproueth his neyghbour ofte tymes, but not in due season. Agayne, some man holdeth his tonge, and he is wyse and discrete. It is moche better to gyue warning, and to reprove, then to beere euill wyll: for he that knowledgeth hym selfe openly, shall be preserved from hurte and destruction. Lyke as when a geibed mā thorow desire and lust despyeth a mayden, com to is it with him that vseth byforce, and verrygiousnesse in the lawe: O how good a thyng is it, a man that is reioyced, to shewe openly his repentance, for so shalte thou escape wyllful syn.

Some man kepeth silence, and is founde wyse: but he that is not ashamed what he sayeth: is vatefull. Some man holdeth his tonge, because he hath not the vnderstandyng of the language: and some man kepeth sy-lence, waytinge a conuenient tyme. A wyse man wyll holde his tonge tyll he se oportu-nitye, but a wanton and vndiscrete body shal regarde no tyme. He that vseth manye wodes, shall hurte his owne soule: and he that taketh auctoryte vpon hym verrygiously shal be hated. Some man hath oft tymes prospered in wyched thynges: Agayne, some man getteth moche, and hathe harme and losse.
There is some gyfte that is nothyng worth: Agayne, there is some gyfte, whose rewarde is double. Some man getteth a fall, for beyng to proude, and some cometh to wor-shipp from the lowe estate. Some man byeth moche for a litle pyper, and must paye for it seuenfold.

A wyse man with his wordes maketh him selfe to be loued, but the fauours of foolles shall be poured out. The gyfte of the vntwyse shall do the no good, for his eyes are scurfouled: He shall gyue lyke, and saue he gaue moche: he openeth his mouth and ceptyth out, as it were one that ceptyth out wyne. To daye he lendeth, to morowe he asketh it agayne, and suche a man is to be hated. The foole sayeth: I haue no frende, I haue no thanke for all my good dedes: yea euen they that rate my byed, speake no good of me. O how oft, and of how many shall he be laughed to scoorne? He taketh a more perillous sal by such wordes, then yf he fell vpon the grounde: euen so shall the falles of wyched men come baste. In the mouth of him y is vntaught, are many vnconuenient and vnmeete wordes.
A wyse sentence shall not be allowed, at the mouth of the foole, for he speaketh it not in due season.

Some man synneth not, because he hath not wherewithall, and in his rest he shall be spinged. Some man there is that destroyeth his owne soule with shame, and for an vn-wyse bodys sake, destroyeth he it, and with acceptyng of persons, shall he vndo him selfe.
Some man promyseth his frende a gyfte for byre shame, and getteth an enemye of hym for nought. A fre is a wyched shame in a mā, yet shall it be euer in the mouth of y vntwyse.
A thete is better then a man that is accusmed to lye, but they bothe shall haue destru-cion to heritage. The condicions of lyers are vnboned, and theyr shame is euer with them.

A wyse man shall byng him selfe to honour with his wordes, and he that hath vnderstandyng shall be set by amonge grete men. He that tylleth his land, shall encrease his heape of corne: he that worketh ryghtoutnesse, shall be exalted, and he that pleaseth grete me, shall eschape moche euill. He wardes and gyftes bynde the eyes of the wyse, and make him dom, that he can not tell men their fautes. Wyldome that is byd, and treasure y is hooded by, what profyte is in the both?

Better is he that kepeth his ignozance secrete, then a man that bydeth his wyldome.

Of the repentance of synne we may not heape synne vpon synne. The boldnesse of an heretike.
The ende of synners. Of the foole and of the wyse man. Of him that curieth the deuyll.

CAPL. XXI.

My sonne yf thou hast synned, do it no-more: but praye for thy forgyffnes, & that they maye be forgyuen the. Flee from synne, euen as from a serpent: for yf thou comest to nyghe her, she wil bite the.
The teeth therof are as the teeth of a lyon, to see the soules of men. The wychednes of man is as a sharpe two edged swerde, which maketh suche woundes that they can not be healed.

Steepe and wrongous dealing shall waste alwaye a mans goodes: and thowowe pyde a sycke house shall be brought to nought: so the ryches of the proude shall be roced oute.
The prayer of the poore goeth oute of the mouth, and cometh vnto the eares, and his vengeaunce (or defence) shall come, and that hastelye. Who so hateth to be reformed it is a token of an vngodly person: but he that feareth God, wyll remembre hym selfe. A myghty man is knowne a far of by his tong but he that hath vnderstandyng perceyuet that he shall haue a fall.

Who so buydeth his house with other mens cos, is lyke one that gathereth stones in winter. The congregacion of the vngodly is lyke bubble gathered together, their ende is a name of fyre. The waye of the vngodly is set with stones, but in their ende is hell, darknes & paynes. He that kepeth the lawe wyll holde faste the vnderstandyng, therof and the ende of the feare of God is wysdom.
He that is not wyse, wyll not be taughte in good: but the vntwyse mā aboundeth in wickednesse: and where bitterness is there is no vnderstandyng. The knowledge of the wyse shall flowe lyke water that runneth ouer, and his counsell is lyke a fountayne of lyfe.

The heart of a foole is lyke a broken vessel, he can kepe no wysdome. When a man of vnderstandyng heareth a wyse worde, he shal commende it, and make moche of it. But yf a voluptuous man heare it, he shall haue no pleasure therein, but cast it behynde his backe.
The talkyng of a foole is lyke an beuy burthen by the waye: but to heare a wyse man speake it is a picaure. Where a doubte is in the congregacion, it is asked at the mouth of the wyse, and they shall poude his wodes in their heeres. Like as a house that is re-stroyed, euen so is wysdome vnto a foole: so for the knowledge of the vntwyse, it is but barthe wordes. Doctryne is vnto him the hathe no vnderstandynge, euen as fetters a-boute his fete, and lyke manacles vpon his ryght hande. A foole yfseth vpon his voyce laughter, but a wyse man shall scarce laughe secretely.

Eccles. xix. b

Remynge is vnto a wyse man a iweill of golde, and lyke an armee vpon his ryght arme. A foolyshe mans fete is loose in his neighboures house, but one that hath experience, shall be ashamed at the persone of the wyghter. A foole wyll pepe in at the wyne-dome in to the house, but he that is wel nurtured, wyll stande withour. A foolyshe man standeth bethering at the doer, but he that is wyse, wyll be ashamed.

The lippes of the vntyse wyll be tellynge foolyshe thynges, but the wordes of suche as haue vnderstandynge, shall be weyed in the balace. The hert of folles is in thery mouth, but the mouth of the wyse is in thery hert.
When the vngodly curseth the blasphemers, he curseth his owne soule. A pryue accuser of other men shall despyle his owne soule, and be hated of euery man: (but he that keepeth his tonge and is discrete, shall come to honour.)

The purgation of the mouthfull. Of the foolyshe sonne and daughter, we must haue discretion, how and to whom we ought to praye, of sorowpunge vpon the deed. A foole is not to be moche talked withall. Inuyses and wponges do breake frende-ship and amysse.

XXII.

A Slouthful body is moulded of a stone or claye: he that toucheth him, must wash his handes agayne. A misshapen sonne is the dishonour of the father. A folyshe daughter shall be lytell regarded. A wyse daughter is an heritage vnto her husband:
but she that commeth to dishonour, byngeth her father in to brupasse. A daughter that as past shame, dishonoureth her father and her husband: the vngodly shall reuerde her, but they bothe shall dysplee her, the play-nge of mulke is not mete to beke heupnes is, euen so is the correction & doctrine of wis-dome euen vnpleasunt vnto folles.

Who so reacheth a foole, is euen as one that gleweth a pot shode together: as one that telleth a tale to hym that heareth hym not, and as one that rapeth a man out of an henge slepe. Who so telleth a foole of mys-dome, is euen as a man, whiche speaketh to one that is a pe. When he hath to tolde his tale, he sayeth what is the matter: When one dyeth, lamentacion is made for hym, because the lyght faileth him: euen so let men mourne ouer a foole: for he wanteth vnderstandynge. Make but lytle wepynge because of the deed: for he is come to rest, but the life of the foole is worse then the death. Seuen dayes do men mourne for hym that is deed, but I lamented ouer the vntyse and vngod-ly whiche endure all the dayes of thery lyfe.

Talk not word with a foole, and go not with hym that hath no vnderstandynge. Beware of hym, lest it turne the to traspyle, and thou shalt not be despyled with his lyne. He paste from hym, and thou shalt synne rest, thou shalt not be wroth the back into his folow-er. What is heper then leader? And what shall a foole be called els but leader? Hande, sale, and a lump of yron is easer to beare, then an vntyse, foolyshe, and vngodly man. Lyke as the bande of wod bounde together in the foundation of the house can not be loosed, euen so is it with the herte that is stablyshed in the thought of counsell. The thought of the wyse, shall neither feare ne be offended at any tyme.

Lyke as a fayne playnter wall in a wynetre house, and an hygge byldynge, may not abide the wynde and stormes: euen so is a fo-les herte a fayne in his ymagynacion: he fe-reth at euery thyng, and can not endure.
He that appereth a mans eye, byngeth forth spares: and he that pycketh the herte, byn-geth forth the meanynge and thought. Who so cauleth a stone at the bydes, stryke them away: and he that blasphemeth his frende breakech the frendship: though thou dyest a swerde at thy frende, yet helpe not, for thou mayst come agayne to thy frende. If he speake to thy frende, feare not, for ye maye be agreed together agayne: excepte it be that thou blasphemest hym, byspayne him as pen his secretes & wound him treytounly for all suche thynges, shall dysur awaye a frende.

We saythfull vnto thy neyghbour in his pouertie, that thou mayest receyue much hym also in his prosperite. Shew not cold vnto hym in the tyme of his trouble, that thou mayest be hyre with hym in heritage. Lyke as the vapour and smoke goeth out at the ouerdrfore the fyre, euen so euell wordes, rebukes and threatnynges go before bloudshedynge.
Be not ashamed to defende thy frende as for me, I wyll not hyde my face frome hym, though he shoulde do me harme. Whosoure heareth it shall beware of hym. Who shall let a watch before my mouth, & a sure scale vpon my lippes, that I fall not with therym, and that my tonge dyspaye me not?

A prayer agaynst pryde, lecherie, and glotony.
Of othes, blasphemie, and of wyse communycation.
Of the thre kyndes of synnes. Whan ymages ppecede of aduourte. Of the feare of God.

CAPL

XXIII.

O Lorde, father and gentleness of my lyfe, leaue me not in thine ymagi-nacion and counsell. O let me not fall into such trippes. Who wil kepe my thought with the scourge, and the doctrine of wysedome in myne herte? that he spare not mine ignorance, that I fall not with them, lest myne ignorances increase, that myne offences be not many in nombre, and that my frends excede not: lest I fall before myne enemies.

myne, and so my aduersarye receyue. O Lorde then father and God of my lyfe, leaue me not in thine ymagynacion. O let me not haue a proude loke, but turne away all balaptyous-ness from me. Take from me the lusses of the body, let not the desyres of vncleynesse take hold vpon me, and greeue me not ouer in so an dishonourfull and obdurate mynde.

Heare me (O ye chyldren) I wyll greeue you with a doctrine, how ye shall ordeyne youre mouth:
who so kepeth it, shall not perishe thowgh his lippes, ne be hurte thowgh wycked workes.
As for the synner, he shall be taken in his owne banlyte: he that is proude and cursed, shall fall therein. Let not thy mouth be accused with swearyng, for in it there are many falles. Let not the naming of God be continually in thy mouth: for lyke as a seruant whiche is oft punysshed, can not be without some sore, euen so what so curst be he that swareth and nameth God, shall not be cleane poured from synne. A man that blyeth much swearynge, shall be fylled with wyckednesse, and the plage shall neuer go from his house.
If he begyle his brother, his faute shall be vpon hym: if he knowlege not his synne, he maketh a double offence, and yf he sweare in vayne, he shall not be founde ryghteous, for his house shall be full of plagis.

The wordes of a sweare byngeth death, (God graunte that it be not founde in the house of Jacob.) But they that feare God, shew all such, and lye not wylkepunge in syn.
Let not thy mouth be vntowen and spithye talkyng, for in it is the wyrd of syn. Remember thy father and thy mother, when thou art set amonge greete men: lest God forget the in thry: lyghte, and lest thou do tynge in thy custom, suffre rebuke, and wyll be not so haue bene vntowen, and so curse the dape of thy natyuite. The man that is accustomed with the wordes of blasphemie, wyll neuer be reformed at the dayes of his lyfe. No synner is to moche, but the thyrde byngeth death and destruction. An hote stomache can not be quenched (euen lyke a burnynge fyre) till he haue swalowed vpon somthyng: euen so an vnquered man hath no rest in his fleshe:
till he haue byndled a fyre.

All bread is swete to an hoymonger, he wyll not leaue of, till he haue his purpose.
A man that breaketh wedlock, an regardeth not his soule, but saythe: Iust, who seeth me? I am compassed aboute with darknesse, the walles couer me, no body seeth me: whom neede I to feare? The hygher wyll not remember my synnes: he vnderstandeth not that his lyfe is all thynges, for all suche feare of men dysur awaye the feare of God from hym, so: he feareth only the eyes of men, and considereth not that the eyes of the Lorde are clearer then the Sunne, beholdynge all the dayes of men, and the grounde of the depe, and lokeynge euen to mens heres in secret places. The Lorde God knowe all thynges euen they were made, and after they be brought to passe also, he lokech vpon them al.
The same man shall be openly punysshed in the stretes of the cytye, and shall be chased abode lyke a ponge horse sole: and when he thinketh lest vpon it, he shall be taken. Thus shall he be put to shame of euery man, because he wolde not vnderstande the feare of the Lorde. And thus shall it goe also with euery myse that leauech her husbunde, and gettech inherytance by a strange maryage. First we hath bene vnfaithfull vnto the lawe of the hygher: Secondly, we hath forsaken her owne husbunde: Thirde, we hath played the hoore in aduourte, and gotten her chyldren by an other man. She shall be brought oute of the congregacyon, and her chyldren shall be loked vpon. Her chyldren shall not take rote, and as for sente, her braynches shall bynge forth none. A shamefull repute shall she leaue behynde her, and her dyshonour shall not be put out. And they that remayne, shall knowe that there is nothyng better then, the feare of God: and that ther is nothyng sweter then to take hede vnto the comandementes of the Lorde. A greete wo: whyp is it to folow the Lorde, for log life shall be receyued of hym.

A prayse of wysdome proceedinge forth of the mouth of God. Of her workes and place where she relieth.

CAPL

XXIII.

Wysdome shall prayse her self, and be honoured in God, and reioyce in the myd-dest of his people: In the congrega-cyon of the hygher shall she open her mouth, and triumphe in the beholdynge of his power: In the myddest of her people shall she be exalted, & wondered at in the holy fulnes.
In the multitude of the chosen she shall be commended, and amonge such as be blessed she shall be praysed, and shall saye: I am come out of the mouth of the hygher, wysdome before all creatures. I caused the lyght that faileth not, to arysse in the heauen, & couered all the earth as a cloude. My dwellynge is aboue in the heith, and my seate is in the piller of the cloude. I my selfe alone haue gone rounde aboute the compass of heauen, and perfed the grounde of the depe: I haue walked in the floudes of the see, and haue stande in all landes: my domynyon is in euery people and in euery nacyon, and with my potuer haue I troden downe the hertes of all, both hygge and lowe.

In all these thynges also I soughte rest, & and a dwellynge in some inherytance. So the creatoure of all thynges gaue me a commandement: and he that made me, appoynted me a tabernacle, and sayde vnto me: Let thy dwellynge be in Jacob, and thynce in herytaunce in Israel, and rote thy selfe among ges my chosen. I was created some the begynnyng and before the worlde, and shall not leaue the worlde to come. In the holy ba-tylacion haue I serued before hym, & so was I stablyshid in Zion.

In the holy cytye rested I in hie maner:
and in Ierusalem was my potuer, I toke rote

Eccles. xix. c

Psalm. In an honorable people, even in the porcion of the Lord and in his heretage, and kept me in the fulness of the lapners. I am set upon by the Lord upon Libanus, and as a Cypress tree upon the mount Hermon: I am exalted like a palm tree in Aades, and as a rose plant in Jericho: As a saye olive tree in the telde, and am exalted like a planteyn tree by the waters syde. I have given a smell in the strates, as the Cynamom and Balme, that bathe in good a sauoure: yea a sweete sauoure have I given, as it were Myrris of the hill.

C I have made my dwellynges to smell as it were of rosen, Galbanum, Cloves, and Incense, and as Libanus when it is not broken downe, and myne odour is as the pure Balme. As the Treebome have I shewed out my bryanches, and my bryanches are bryanches of honour and souynge sauoure. As the dyne, have I brought forth the frute of a sweete sauoure, and my flowers are the frute of honour and exchele. I am the mother of betwylle, of loue, of feare, of knowledg and of holy hope. In me is all grace of lyfe & truth: In me is all hope of lyfe and betwylle. Come unto me, all ye that be desyous of me, and fyll your selues with my frutes: for my spete is sweeter then honye, and so is myne inherytaunce more then the hony combe: the remembrance of me endureth to evermore. They that eat me, shall have the more hunger: & they that drynke me, shall thirde the more. Who is hekeneth unto me, shall not come to confusions: and they that waite in me, shall not offend. They that make me to be knowe, shall have euerydaye lyfe.

Exod. 24. 8 All these thynges are the boke of lyfe, the couenant of the best, and the knowledge of the truth. Moses commaundeth the law in the preceptes of ryghtousnesse, for an heretage vnto the house of Jacob, and commaunded the promysse vnto Israel. Out of Dauid his seruante, he ordeyned to saye by a moost myghty kyng, styng in the state of honour for evermore. This spelleth with wysdome, lyke as the house of Epyon, and as the house of Egipt, when the newe frutes are a geowynge.

Isa. 41. 10 This bringeth a plenteous understanding like Euphrates: and filleth it by as Jordan in the tyme of haruest. This maketh natures to breake forth as the legde, and as the water Egipt in the haruest. The spyl had not knowen her plesure, nomore shall the last seke out the ground of her. For her thought is fuller then the see, and her counsell is profounder then the greates depe.

I wysdome have cast out floudes. I am as a grete waterbroke out of the mount. I am as the ryuer Dour, and as a water condree am I come out of the garden of pleasure. I sayd: I will water the garden of my younge plantis, and fyll the frute of my byrch. So my water broke became a crydng grete, and my crye appoynted vnto the see. For I make heare to be vnto all men, as light as the saye in the mynne, and I shall make it to be euer the clearer, I will pearle thow all the lower partes of the earth. I will lye upon all such as styte, and lyghen all them that put their trust in the Lord. I shall yet pouer out doctrine, lyke as prophete, and leave it vnto such as like after wysdome, and their generations shall I neuer faile, vnto the holy euerydaye worlde. Beholde howe that I have not laboured for my selfe onely, but for all them that seke after the truth.

C Of the thynges which please God, and of the which he hateth. Of anye thynges I be not to be wylle, and of the tenth: chesly of the mayne of a woman.

CAPL XXV.

The thynges there are, that my spete I sauoureth, whiche be also allowed before God and men: The vertye of the chyn, the loue of neighbours, and man and wyfe that age will to gyther.

These thynges there be whiche my soule hateth and I betteyly abhorre the lyfe of them. A poore man that is proude. A rich man that is a lyer, and an olde bodye that doerth, and is vnchaste.

If thou hast gathered nothyng in thy youth, what wyte thou fynde then in thyne age? How pleasaunt a thyng is it when graye headed men are disceite, and when the elders can geue good counsell? How comly a thyng is wysdom vnto aged men: vnto understanding and counsell is a gloriouse thyng. The crowne of olde men is to haue moche reverence, and the feare of God is their wyf.

C There be nyne thynges, whiche I haue lodged in my herte to be happye and the tenth wyll I tell forth vnto men with my tonge. A man that wyll be iust, hath more of his chyldren, and seeth the fall of his enemyes. Well is hym that dwelleth with an honest wyfe of understandinge, and that hath not faile with his tonge, and that hath not bene sayne to serue such as are vanyte for hym. Well is hym, that fyndeth a saythful frend, and well is hym, whiche taketh of wysdom to an eare that heareth hym.

How grete is he that fyndeth wysdome and knowledg? Yet is he not alone hym, that feareth the Lord. The feare of God hath set it selfe aboue all thynges. Blessed is the man, vnto whom it is graunted to haue the feare of God. Vnto whom it shall be belphened, that heareth it sayd: The feare of God is the begynnyng of his loue, and the begynnyng of sayth is to cleare faith vnto it. The begynnyng of the herte is a punishment, and the wychednes of a woman goeth aboue all. All punishment and plage is nothyng in comparison of the plage of the herte, even so all wychednes is nothyng to the wychednes of a woman.

What so euer happeneth vnto a man, is nothyng in comparison of it, for his capill wyll killers be vnto hym: and all vengeance is nothyng to the vengeance of the enemye.

There is not a moze wyched hee then the hee of the serpent, and there is no wyath as the wyath of a woman. I will rather dwell with a lyon and dragon, then to kepe house with a wyched wyfe. The wychednesse of a woman chaungeh her face, she shall most fill her countenance as it were a Beer, and as a sack shall she wythe it among the neyghbours. Her husbnde is brought to shame among his neyghbours, and when he beareth it, it maketh hym to spghe. All wychednesse is but lyte to the wychednesse of a woman, the porcion of the vngodlye shall fall vpon her.

Lyke as to clyme by a sandye waye is to the lere of the aged, euen so is a wyfe full of wythes to a spyl quete man. Take not to narrowly vpon the bewtye of a woman, lest thou be prouoked in desyre toward her. The wyath of a woman is dishonoure and grete confusion. If a woman get the mastre, then is the contrarye to her husbnde. A wyched wyfe maketh a soyre herte, an heuye countenance, and a deed wounde. Of the woman came the begynnyng of synne, and thowowe her we all are deed. Gyue thy water no passage, no not a lytle, neyther geue a wyched woman her wyll. If she walke not after thy bynde, she shall confounde the in the syghte of thy enemyes. Cut her of then frome thy selfe, that she do not alwaye abuse the.

C The praye of a good woman. Of the feare of the thynges, and of the fourth. Of the feare of the broken woman. Of the thynges that cause sorrowe, and of the thynges whiche moueth wyath. It is hard to fynde a marchante without dyllyte, of a sturmer without synne in his tonge.

CAPL XXVI.

Happy is the man that hath a vertuous wyfe, for the nombze of his peres shall be double. An honest woman maketh her husbnde a ioyfull man, and she shall fyll the peres of his lyfe in peace. A vertuous woman is a noble gyfte, whiche shall be geuen for a good porcion, vnto such as feare God. Whether a man be ryche or poore, he maye haue euer a mery herte, and a cherefull countenance, there be thre thynges that my herte feareth, and my face is afraied of the fourth. Treason in a crite, a feyrcyous people, and noyson tonges, all these are heuier the deeth. But whoe one is gelous ouer his wyfe, it byngeth payne and sorowe vnto the herte: and a woman that tellet oute all thynges, is a scourge of the tonge. When one hath an enly wyfe, it is euen as when an vnlyphre part of ane must dyuue togyther, be that getteth her, getteth a scorpion. A broken woman is a grete plage, for she can not couer her own name.

The hoynesse of a woman maye be knowen in the pryde of her eyes, and eyelodes. If thy daughter be not wamefast, tolde her straytlye, lest she abuse her selfe thowow outmoch lybertie. Beware of all the dyshonoure of her eyes, and marueyle not yf she do agaynst the. Lyke one that goeth by the waye and is thurlye, so shall she open her mouth, and drynke of euery nyxe water that she maye get. By euery hedg shall she fynde downe, and open her quiver to euery arrowe. A souynge wyfe reioyseth her husbnde and fedeth his bones with her wysdome. A woman of fewe wordes, is a gyfte of God, and to a well nurtoured mynde maye nothyng be compared.

An honest and manerly woman is a gyfte aboute other gyftes, and there is no weyghte to be compared, vnto a mynde that can rule it selfe. Lyke as the sunne when it aryseth, is an ornament in the hygh beate of the Lord: so is a vertuous wyfe the beaute of all her house. Lyke as the cleare lyght is vpon the holy candell, so is the beaute of the face vpon an honest body. Lyke as the golden pylfers are vpon the lockets of spure, so are the saye legges vpon a woman that hath a constant mynde. Perpetuall are the foundacions that be layd vpon a hole stony rocke, so are the comaundementes of God vpon an honest woman.

There be two thynges that grene my herte and in the thynde is displeasure come vpon me. When an experte man of warre suffreth scarcenes and poverty. When men of vnderstandynge and wysdome are not set by: And when one departed frome rightousnes vnto synne. Who is both such, the Lord hath prepared hym vnto the sword. There be two maner of thynges, whiche me thynke to be harde and perillous. A marchante can not lyghtly kepe hym frome wronge, neyther a sturmer hym selfe from synne.

C Of the poore that wolde be ryche. The probabon of the man that feareth God. The vnconstancye of a foole. The secretes of a frende are not to be vttered. The wyched ymagyneth euil, whiche reuoluneth vpon hym selfe.

CAPL XXVII.

Because of pouertie haue many one offe ded: and he that seeth to be ryche, eueneth aspyde. Lyke as a nayle in the wall sytheth fast betwixt two stones, euen so doth synne lye betwixt the byer and seller. If he holde hym not dyligently in the feare of the Lord, his house shall soone be overthrowen. Lyke as when one sytheth, the sythynes remaineth in the sue: so remaineth there some vndeane thyng in the thoughte of man. The ouen proueth the potters besell so both temprayon of trouble tye ryghtous men. The tye of the felde is knowen by his frute, so is the thought of mans herte knowen by his wordes.

Prayse no man excepte thou haue herde hym, for a man is knowen by his wordes. If thou folowest rightousnes, thou shalt see by her, a put her vpon the as a saye garment. And thou shalt dwell with her, and she shall defende the for ever, and in the day of know ledge, thou shalt fynde redress. The bydes reforte vnto they lyke, so dothe the fruche vnto them that be occupied withall. The iron wayteth for the the praye: so do the synners lurk vpon the workers of wyckednes. The talking of him that feareth God, is no thyng but wylsome: as for a fool, he chaungeth as the wynde. If thou be amonges the vnderstande, kepe thy wynde to a conuenient tyme, but amonge such as be wylle, speake on hardly. The talking of a fool is an abhominacion, and they spere is voluptuynesse and withoute. Douth swearing maketh the heere to stand up, and to argue with such, as peth the cases.

Ecclesi. 1. 2. 3.

The wyse of the proude is bloudshedding, and they blaspheminge is heuie to beare. Who so discovereth secretes, loseth his credence, and synneth as frende after his will. Haue thy frende, and bynde thy selfe in faithfulness with him: but if thou betwixt his secretes, thou shalt not get him agayne: for lyke as the man is that destroyed his enemy, so is he also that believeth falsly in his frende.

As for as one that letteth a byde go out of his hand, can not take her agayne: turn so thou, if thou givest out thy frende, thou canst not get him agayne: Yea thou canst not come by him, for he is to farre of. We is vnto the as a roo shaped out of the snare, for his soule is wounded. As for woundes, they may be bounde by agayne, and an euill word may be reconciled: but who so betwixt his secretes of a frende, there is no more hope to be had vnto him.

Prover. 1. 2.

He that winketh with the eyes, smaggeth some euill, and no man shall take hym from it. When thou art present, be thou hye commende and praye thy wynde, but at the laste, he shall turne his tale, and shall vnderstande thy sayinge. Many thynges haue I hated, but not hynde is euill, for the Lord he himselfe also abhorreth such one.

Eccl. 1. 2.

Who so castrerh a stone on hye, it shall fall vpon his owne heed: and he that smyteth idlye, woundeth him selfe. Who so dygeth a pye, shall fall therein: and he that layeth a snare, shall be taken in it himselfe. Who so gyueth a wycked naysome counsell, it shall come vpon hym selfe, and he shall not knowe from whence. The proude blasphemie and are scornfull, but vengeance lurketh for them as a lea. They that reioyce at the fall of the righteous, shall be taken in the snare, anguished of herte shall consume them before they dye. Anger and rage out of the are two abhominable thynges, and the vngodly hath them both vpon hym.

We ought not to desyre vengeance, but to forgive the offence. Of the byes of the tongue, and of the dangers thereof.

Howbeit seeketh vengeance, shall fynde vengeance of the Lord. Who so keepeth hym from his synne, shall kepe hym from his synne. Forgyt thy neyghbour the hurt that he hath done the, and so shall thy synnes be forgyuen the also, when thou prayest. And that beareth hatred agaynste an other, how dare he desyre forgyuenesse of God? He that desyreth mercy to a man whiche is lyke hym selfe, how dare he aske forgyuenesse of synnes? He that is but fleshe, beareth hatred and heareth it, who will intreate for his synnes? Remember the end, and let enmitie passe whiche seeketh death and destruction, and abyde thou in the commandementes. Remember the commandement, so shall thou not be rygourous ouer thy neyghbour. Synne vpon the couenant of the hygh, and forgyue thy neyghbours iniquite. Beware of synne, and thou shalt make thy synnes fewe. For an angere man synneth vngodly and the vngodly synneth vngodly and putterh discorde amonges them that be at pear. The more wode there is, the more vehement is the fyre: and the myghter the men be, the greater is the wrath: so the longer the synne endureth the more it burneth.

An hasty bysnyng synneth a fyre, and an hasty synne sheddeth bloud. If thou blaste the synne: it shall burne: If thou spee vnto it: it goeth for the, and bothe these go out of thy mouth. The slanderer and duble tongued is curst, for many are that be leered secretly he at vngodly. The thynge hath disquyeted many one, and dyed them from one lande to an other. Stronger is the hath it broken downe, and ouerthrowen the houses of great men. The thynge hath called out many an honest woman, and robbed them of their labours. Who so berkeueth vnto such, shall neuer synne rest dwell safely. The stroke of the rodde maketh yddlers, but the stroke of the tongue synneth synners in sundrie. There be many that haue perished with the sword, but many mothe come the tongue.

Well is hym that is kepte from an euill tongue, and commeth not in the anger thereof whiche draweth not the yoke of such, and is not bounde in the bandes of it. For the yoke thereof is of syn, and the band of it of deie. The deare, thereof is a very euill deare: yett more better for any, then such a tongue. And the fyre of it maye not oppresse them that feare God, and the flame thereof maye not burne them. Such as for sake the Lord, shall fall therein: and it shall burne them, and no man shall be able to quene it. It shall fall vpon them as a lion, and deuoure them as a Leopard. Thou beddest thy goode thynges: why dost thou not rather make doyes and barres for thy mouth? Thou sayest thy goode and sinner: why dost thou not way thy mores also vnto falsly? Beware that thou synne not in thy tongue: so shall before thyne enemies, that laye wait for the.

How we ought to lende our money, and do almes. Of a saythfull man answering for his frende. Of the synne and of the synne.

CAPL

XXIX.

Who so will shewe mercy, let hym lende vnto his neyghbour: and he that is hable let hym kepe the commandement. Lende vnto thy neyghbour in tyme of his need, and paye thou thy neyghbour agayne in due season. Kepe thy word, and deale faythfully with him, and thou shalt alway fynde the thyng that is necessarye for the. Where haue ben many, that when a thyng was lent them, reckened it to be founde, and made the trauayle and labour that had helped them. While they receyue any thyng, they hym the handes of such as gyue them, and for their neyghbours good they humble their voyce. But when they shoulde paye agayne, they kepe it backe, and gyue euill wordes, and make many excuses by reason of the tyme: and thoughte he be hable, yet gyue he scarce the halfe agayne, and reckeneth the other to be founde. And if he withhold not his money, yett he be an enemye of hym, and that vnderstande.

Be payeth hym with cursyng and rebuke, and gyue hym euill wordes for his good dede. There be many one whiche are not glad for to lende, not because of euill, but they feare to lose the thyng that they lende. Yet haue thou patience with the simple, and wholde not merce from hym. Helpe the poore for the commandementes sake, and let hym not go empty from the by cause of his necessitie. Let thy money for thy brother and neyghbours sake, and burye it not vnder a stone, where it rusteth and corrupteth. Gather thy treasure after the commandementes of the Lord, and so shalt it byrge the more profyte thyn golde. Laye by the almes in the handes of the poore, and it shall kepe the from all euill. A mans almes is a purse with hym, and shall kepe a mans fauour, as the rpyle of an eye: and afterwarde shall it arpe, and paye euery man his reward vpon his heed. It shall fyght for the agaynst thyne enemies, better then the hyde of a gyante, or spere of the myghty.

A good honest man is surety for his neyghbour, but a wicked person letteth hym come to shame. Forgyt not the frendshipp of thy surety, for he hath gyuen his soule for the. The vngodly despyseth the good dede of his surety, and the vngodly man and ingrate, letteth his surety in daunger. Some man prayeth for his neyghbour: and when he hath lost his honesty, he shall forsake hym. Suretyship hath destroyed many a rich man, and remoued them as the waues in the see. Whiche people hath it dyuen away, and caused them to wandre in strange countreies. An vngodly man, transgressinge the commandment of the Lord, shall fall in to an euill suretyship: and though he force hym selfe to get out, yett shall he fall in to iudgement.

Helpe thy neyghbour out after thy power, and beware that thou thy selfe fall not in such det. The chiefe thyng that kepeth in the life, is water and bread, clothyng and lodgyng to couer the shame.

Better is it to haue a poore lyuynge in a mans owne house, then delicate fare amonge the strange. Be it lytle or moche that thou hast, hold the content withal, and thou shalt not be blamed as a vacabonde: for a myste- rable lyfe is it to goe frome house to house: and where a man is frende, he dare not open his mouth. Though one be lodged, and haue meate and drynke, yett shall he be taken as a wythe, and heare many bytter rough wordes, namely thus: Go thy waye thou stranger, and prepare a table for thy selfe, and fede me also of that thou hast. Awaye thou stranger (so that he regardeth his honoure no more) my brother cometh in to my house, and so he tellet hym the necessitie of his house: these thynges are heuie to a man that hath vnderstandyng: namely the forbydyng of the house, and that the lender calleth hym in the tette.

Of the correction of chyldren. Of the commodite of health. Death is better then a forowfull lyfe. Of the wysdome. Of the ioye and forow of the herte.

CAPL

XXX.

Who so loueth his chyld, holdeth hym vnto vnder correction, that he may haue ioye of hym afterwarde, and he be greoue not after his neyghbours doyes. He that teacheth his sonne, shall haue ioye in hym, and neede not to be ashamed of hym amonges his acquaintance. Who so enfourmeth and teacheth his sonne, greueth the enemye: and he for his frendes he maye haue ioye of hym. Though the father dye, yett is he as though he were not deed: for he hath left one behynd hym, that is lyke hym. In his lyfe he saw hym, and had ioye in hym, and was not forye in his deathe, neyther was he ashamed before the enemyes. For he left behynd hym an auenger agaynste his enemyes, and a good doer vnto the frendes. For the lyfe of chyldren he shall bynde the woundes togyther, and his herte is greued at euery crye. An vngodly herte wyl be hard, and a wanton chyld wyl be wyllfull. If thou byrge by thy sonne delicately: he shall make the afraide: and if thou playe with hym, he shall byrge the to heuynesse. Laughe not with hym, lest thou wepe with him also, and lest thy tette be set on edge at the last.

Gyue hym no lybertie in his pouche, and excuse not his folye. For he doth his necke while he is yonge, byt hym vpon the synes while he is yett but a chyld, lest he ware stubborn, and giue no more forre of the, and so shalt thou haue heuynesse of soule. Teache thy chyld, and be diligent therein, lest it be crye.

thy shame. Better is the poore being hole & strong, then a man to be ryche & not to haue his helthe. Healethe and welfare is aboue all golde, and a hole bodye aboue all treasure. There is no ryche about a sound body, and no ioye about the ioye of the herte. Deaeth is better then a wretched lyfe, or continuall sycknesse. The good thynges that are put in a close mouth, are like as when meat is layd vpon the graue.

Daniel. What good dothe the offeringe vnto an ydell? for he can neither eate, taste, nor smel. Euen so be that is chased of the Loyde, and heareth the rewardes of iniquite. He seeth with his eyes, and groweth lyke a gelded man, that lyeth with a virgyn and sygeth. Gyue not ouer thy mynd in to heuynesse, and bere not thy self in thyn owne counsel. The ioye and cherefulness of the herte, is the lyfe of man, and a mannes gladnesse is the prolongynge of his dayes. Loue thyn owne soule, and comforte thyn herte: as for sorowe and heuynesse, byue it farre from the, for heuynesse hath slayne many a man, and byngeth no profyte. Zeale and anger shorten the dayes of the life: carefulnesse and sorowe, bynge age before the tyme. Vnto a mercy herte eury thyng hath a good taste, that he tasteth.

We ought to gyue diligent hede to honestye. Of them that take payne to gather ryches. The prayse of a ryche man without a fault. We ought to bypokennesse, and to folowe sobriety.

CAPL XXXI.

Timot. Hauayle and carefulnesse for ryche taketh awaye the slepe, and maketh the fleshe to consume. When one lyeth & taketh care, he waketh euer by lyke as great sycknesse byraket the slepe. The ryche hath great labour in gatherynge his ryches together, and then with the pleasure of his ryches, he taketh his rest, and is refreshed: but who so labourerth and prospereth not, he is poore: and though he leue of, yet is he a begger. He that loueth ryches, shall not be iustified: and who so foloweth corrupcion, shall haue ynoughe therof. Many one are come in grete myfortune by the reason of golde, and haue founde theyr destruction before them. It is a tree of fallynge vnto them that offre it by, and all suche as be foolyshe fall therein.

Wretched is the ryche which is found without blemish, and hath not gone after golde, ne hoped in money and treasures. Where is there suche one, and we shall commend him, and cal him blessed, for great thynges dothe he amonget his people. Who so is tried, and founde perfect in suche thynges, shall be commended and prayed. Who myght offende, & hath not offended: who could do euill, & hath not done it? Therefore shall his good be stablished, & the hole congregacion shall declare his aduices. If thou lye at a great mans table, open not thy mouth wyde vpon it, and make not many wordes. Remembere that an euill eye is a shewe.

What thyng created is worse then a wicked eye? therfore wretch it before eury mans face: Laye not thyn hande vpon eury thyng that thyn eye seeth, and styue not with hym in the dyshe. Wonder by thy selfe what thy neyghbour wolde saye haue, and be discrete in eury poynte. Eate the thyng that is set before the manerly, as it becometh a man, and eate not to moche, lest thou be abhorred. Leue thou of fynde of all by cause of nourtoure, lest thou be he whom no man maye satisfie, whiche maye tourne to thy decaye. When thou syttest amonget many men, teache not thyn hande oute fynde of all. Howe well contente is a wylde man with a lytle wyne: so that in slepe thou shalt not be sycke therof, nor sele anye payne. A swete holisome slepe shall suche one haue, and fele no inward greife. He resteth by bytymes in the moynge, and is well at ease in hym selfe. But an vnfaciable eate sleepeth vngquietly, and hath ache and payne of the body. If thou seest that thou hast eate to moch, aryls go thy way, cast it of thy stomache, and take thy rest.

My sonne, heare me, and despyse me not: and at the laste thou shalt fynde as I haue tolde the. In all thy wordes be diligent and quyet, so shall there no rycknesse happen vnto the. Who so is lyberall in dealynge oute his meate, many men shall blese hym, and prayse him with theyr lippes: and the same is a sure token of his loue and saythfulness. But he that is vnfaithful in meate, the hole cytre shall complaine of hym: and that in a sure experyence of his infidelitie and wickednesse. Be not thou a wyne bybber, for wyne hath destroyed many a man. A be fyre proueth the harde yron, euen so dothe wyne proueth the hertes of the proude when they be dronken.

Wyne soberly dronken, quickeneth the lyfe of man. If thou bynkest it measurably thou shalt be temperate. What life is it, that maye continue without wyne? Wyne was made frome the begynnyng, to make men glad, and not for dronkennesse. Wyne merrily dronken, is a reioyng of the soule and bodye. But if it be dronken with excess it maketh bytternesse and sorowe vnto the mynde. Drunkennesse fylleth the mynde of the foolish with shame and ruyne, miniseth the strengthe, and maketh woundes. Rebuke not thy neyghbour at the wyne, and despyse hym not in his myrth. Gyue hym no despyfull wordes, and prease not vpon hym with contrary saynges.

Of the dyscription and prayse of the preacher, and of the hearer. Of the lease, sayth, and confidens of God.

CAPL

XXXII.

Yf thou be made a ruler, extoll not thy selfe therein, but be thou as one of the people. Take diligent care for them, and loke well therto: and when thou hast doone all thy dutye, yet the downe, that thou mayest be merie with them, and receyue a crowne of honour, take wysely and honestly. For wysdome becommeth the eyght well. Hynder not musyck. Speke not where there is no audyence: and poure not forth the wysdome oute of tyme, at an importunitie. Lyke as the Carbuncle stone shyneth that is set in golde, so dothe a longe garrysh the wyne stak: and as the Smaragde that is sette in golde so is the sweetnesse of musyck by the myght of wyne.

Thou yonge man, speake that becommeth the, and that is profitable, and yet scarce when thou art wyse asked. Comprehende moche with fewe wordes. In manye thynges be as one that is ignorant, gyue care, & hold thy tong withall. If thou be amonget men of hire auctoritie, desire not to compare thy selfe vnto them: and when an elder speake, make not thou many wordes therein. Be for the thorder goeth lyghtenynge, and be for nourtoure and shamefastnesse goeth loue and fauour. Stand by bytymes, and be not the last, but get the home lone, and thre take thy payme, and doo what thou wylt: so that thou do no euyl, and despyse no man. But for all thynges gyue thankes vnto hym that hath made the, and repleynshed the with his goodes.

Who so feareth the Loyde, wyll receyue his doctryne: and they that get them to him bytymes, shall fynde grace. He that seeth & laboureth, shall be fylled withall: as for him that is but farned, he wyll be offended therat. They that feare the Loyde, shall fynde the iudge ment, and theyr ryghousnesse shall be kindled as a lyght. An vngodly man wyll not be reformed, but can delpe hym selfe with the example of other in his purpose. A man of vnderstanding despyseth no good counsel: but a wyde and proude body hath no feare. My sonne, do nothyng without aduysment, so shall it not repent the after the dede. So not in the waye where thou mayst fall, ne where thou mayst stumbe against the stone. Gyue not thy selfe in to a laborious slipperry way, and beware of thyn oxe chylde. In all thy wordes put thy truste in God frome thy holt herte, for that is the keepynge of the commendementes. Who so bileueth Gods word taketh hede to the commendementes: and he that putteth his truste in the Loyde, shall want nothyng.

The despyerance of him that feareth God. The answer of the wyle. The lytel despyerance of a fool. Who is in the hande of God, as the earth is in the hande of the potter. We ought not to dispole oure selues, to become subiect to other.

CAPL

XXXIII.

There shall no euyl happen vnto hym that feareth God, but when he is in temptation, the Loyde shall deliuer him. A wyse man hateth not the lawe, but an ypocrite is as a thyp in a ragynge water. A man of vnderstandynge gyue credence vnto the lawe of God, and the lawe is saythfull vnto hym.

We sure of the matter, then talke therof: We fynde well instructe, then mayest thou gyue answere. The herte of the foolyshe is lyke a cartte whele, and his thoughtes ren about lyke the arel tree. Lyke as a wylde horse that neyeth vnder eury one that sitteth vpon hym, so is it with a scornfull frende. Why doth one daye excell an other, seynge all the dayes of the yere come of the sunne? The wysdom of the Loyde hath so parted the asunder, and so hath he ordeyned the times and solemne feastes. Some of them hath he chosen and halowed before other dayes. And all men are made of the ground, and out of the earth of Adam.

In the multitude of science hath the Loyde sundered them, and made theyr wayes of diuers facyons. Some of them hath he blessed, made moche of them, halowed them, and claymed them to hym selfe. But some of the hath he cursed, brought them lowe, and put them out of theyr estate. Lyke as the claye is in the potters hande, and all the ordynge therof at his pleasure: so are men also in the hande of him that made them, so that he may gyue them as it lyketh hym best. Agayne euyl is good, and agayne deathe is lyfe: so is the vngodly agayne suche as feare God. Beholde thus all the workes of the byghest, and there are euer & two agayne two, and one set agayne an other. I am awaked by last of all, as one that gathereth after in harvest. In the gyftes of God and in his blessinge I am increased, and haue fylled my wyne presse lyke a grape gatherer. Beholde how I haue not laboured onely for my selfe, but for all suche as loue nourtoure and wysdome.

Heare me, O ye greute men of the people, and harken with your eares ye rulers of the congregacio. Gyue not thy sonne, and wife, thy brother and frend power ouer the, while thou lyest: and gyue not awaye thy substaunce, and good to an other, lest it repent the, and thou be fayne to begge therfore thy selfe. As longe as thou lyest and hast byeth, let no man chaunge the: for better it is thy chylde to praye the, then that thou shouldest be fayne to loke in theyr handes. In all thy wordes be excellent, that thy honoure be neuer slayned. At the tyme when thou shalt ende thy dayes, and fynishe thy lyfe, distybutte thyn enherytaunce. The foddre, the tohyp, and the burden belongeth vnto a felle: Meate, correction, and worke vnto the seruant.

If thou set thy seruante to labour, thou shalt fynd rest. But if thou let him go ydle, he shall seke lybertie. The yoke and the whip bowe downe the necke, but tame thou thy

hgh. g. euyl

enyll seruauit with bondes and correction. Send hym to labour, that he go not yble: for yblynde byngeth moche euyl. Set hym to worke, for that belongeth vnto hym, and becommeth hym well. If he be not obedyence, bynde his fete, but do not to moche vnto him in any wyse, and without discrecion do no thyng. If thou haue a faythfull seruauit, let hym be vnto the as thynne owne soule, for in bloud hast thou gotten hym. If thou haue a seruauit, holde hym as thy selfe, for thou haste made of hym as of thy selfe. If thou intreatest hym euyl, and kepest hym hard, and makest hym to be proude, and to ren awaye from the, thou canst not tel what waye thou shalt see hym.

Of dreames, bynnacions, and enchauntemetes. we ought to confute vayne hope, and lyinge. The praye of them that feare God. Of dyuers workes of men. God doth not allowe the workes of an vn faythfull man.

CAPL. XXXIII.

Vnyse people begile them selues with vayne and discreffull hope, and soles trust in byemes. Who so regardeth byemes, is lyke hym that wil take holde of a shadowe, and folow after the wynde: Euen so is it with apperaynges of byemes. Before the face is the lyknesse of a face. Who can be clyssed of the vnclene? What truch can be spoken of a lyar? Sothsayinge, witchcraft, sorcerye and byemyng is but vancie: lyke as when a woman traunyleth with chyld, and hath many fantasyes in her dert. Where as suche visions come not of God, sette not thynne hert vpon them: for byemes haue discreued many a man, and they failed that put their trust therein.

The lawe that he fulfilled without lyes, wisdom is sufficient to a faythfull mouth. A wyse man that is well instruct, vnderstandeth moche, and he that hath good experience can talke of wisdom. He that hath no experience knoweth lyte, and he that erreth can tel moche wychednesse.

When I was yet in erreure, I learned moche also: yea I was so lerned, that I could not expresse it all, and came oft in peryl of death the rouer, tyll I was deliuered frome it. Nowe I se that they whiche feare God, haue the ryght spirite: for they hope standeth in hym that can help them. Who so feareth the Lorde, standeth in awe of no man, and is not afraid, for the Lorde is his hope and comfort.

Blessed is the soule of hym that feareth the Lorde: In whome putteth he his trust? who is his strengthe? for the eyes of the Lorde haue respect vnto them that loue hym. He is their mighty protection and strong ground: A defence for the heate, a refuge for the hate none daye, a succoure for trouble, and an helpe for fallynge. He setteth vp the soule, and lyghteneth the eyes: he gyuech healethe, lyfe, and blessing. He that gyuech an offering of vnyghtous good, his offeringe is refused: and the scornfull dealynges of the vnyghtous please not God. God hath no de lyte in the offeringes of the vnyghtous, neither maye synne be reconcyled in the multitude of oblations. Who so byngeth an offeringe oute of the goodes of the poore, dothe euen as one that kylleth the soule before the face of the Lorde.

The byed of the nedeful is the lyfe of the poore: he that defraudeth hym therof, is a man of bloode. Who so robbeth his neyghbour of his lyuynge, dothe as grete synne as though he slewe hym to deathe. He that defraudeth the labourer of his bye, is a bloudshedder. When one buyldeth an other byeketh downe, what profyte haue they then but labour? When one prayeth, and an other curseth, whose voyce wyll the Lorde heare? He that wasteth hym selfe by cause of a deed bodye, and then toucheth the deed agayne, what dothe his wastynge? So is it with a man that fasteth for his synnes, and dothe them agayne: who wyll heare his prayer? What dothe his fastynge helpe hym?

It is well done to praye and to do sacrifice. The prayer of the fatherlesse, and of the wyddowe: and of hym that humbleth hym selfe.

CAPL. XXXV.

Who so kepeth the lawe, bringeth offeringe ynough. He that holdeth fast the commandement, offereth the right helthof fring. He that is thankfull, and recompenseth, offereth synne floure. Who so is merciful and gyuech almes, that is the ryght thakof fring. God hath pleasure whi one departeth from synne, and for sake vnyghtousnesse, reconcil leth vs with hym.

Thou shalt not appere empty before the Lorde, for all suche is doone by cause of the commandement. The offeringe of the ryghtous maketh the altier fat, and a sweete smel is it before the hysell. The offeringe of the ryghtous is acceptable vnto God, and shall neuer be forgotton. Gyue God his honoure with a cherefull eye, and kepe not backe the frynges of thy bandes. In all thy gyftes shewe a mery countenance, and halowe thy trybes vnto God with gladnesse. Gyue vnto God, according as he hath caryed and prospered the, and loke what thynne hande is able, that gyue with a cherefull eye, for the Lorde recompenseth, and gyuech the seven times as moche agayne.

Gyue no vnyghtous gyftes, for suche wil he not receyue. Beware of vnyghtous offeringes, for the Lorde is a ryghtous iudge: and regardeth no mans person. He accepteth not the person of the poore, but he heareth the prayer of the oppressed. He despyeth not the byere of the fatherlesse, nor the wyddow, when the pouerth oute her prayer before hym. Doth not God se the teares that runne downe the chekes of the wyddow? Heareth he he not the complayne ouer such as make her to wepe? Who so serueth God after his pleasure that he accepted, and his prayer reacheth vnto the cloudes. The prayer of hym that humbleth hym selfe, goeth thorow the cloudes til he come vnto the. He wyll not be comforted, ne go her waye, tyll the hysell God haue respect vnto her, gyue true sentence, and performe the iudgemente. And the Lorde wyll not be slacke in commynge, ne tary long, tyll he haue smyten in funder the backes of the vnyghtous, and auenged hym selfe of the heathen: tyll he haue taken awaye the multitude of the cruell, and broken the scepter of the vnyghtous: tyll he gyue euery man after his workes, and rewarde them as they haue deserued: tyll he haue deliuered his people, mayn teryd they: cause, and reioyced them in his mercy. Howe saye a thyng is merrey in the tyme of an anguythe and trouble? It is lyke a cloude of rayne that cometh in the tyme of a drouthe.

A proper to God in the person of all faythfull men with the praye of a good woman.

CAPL. XXXVI.

How merrey vnto vs, O Lorde, thou God of all thynges. Haue respect vnto vs, shew vs the lyght of thy mercyes, and send thy feare among the heathen and straungers, whiche seke not after the: that they may knowe how that there is no God but thou, and that they may shew thy wonderous workes. Lyst by thynne hande ouer the outlandyshe heathen, that they maye lerne to knowe thy might and power. Like as thou art halowed in vs before them, so bring to passe that thou mayst be magnified also in them before vs: that they may knowe the, lyke as we knowe the. For there is none other God, but onely thou, O Lorde. Renewe the tokens, and chaunge the wonderous workes. Shewe thynne hande and thy ryghte arme gloriously. Rayse by thy indignacion, and poure out thy wrath. Take awaye the aduersarye, and smyte the enemye. Make the tyme shorte, remember thy covenant, that thy wonderous workes maye be prayled. Let the wrath of the fyre consume them that lyue so carelesse: and let them perishe, that doo thy people hurte. Smile in sondre the heed of the princes, that be our enemyes, and saye: there is none other but we.

Gather all the trybes of Jacob together agayne, that they maye knowe, howe that there is none other God but only thou, that they may shew thy wonderous workes, and be thy people and heritage, lyke as from the begynnyng. O Lorde haue mercy vpon the people that hath thy name, and vpon Israel whome thou haste lyghened to a ryghte borne sonne. O be mercyfull vnto Jerusalem the cite of thy Sanctuarie the cite of thy rest. Fyll syon with thy vnspeakable verities, and thy people with thy glory. Gyue witness vnto thy creature, whome thou madest from the begynnyng, and rayse vp the prophetes that haue ben shewed in thy name. Rewarde them that wayte for the, that thy prophetes maye be found faythfull. O Lorde heare the prayer of thy seruantes at coryng to the blessinge of Aaron ouer thy people: that all they whiche dwell vpon the erth may knowe that thou art the Lorde the eternal God, which is from euerlastynge.

The hely denouret all meates, yet is one meat better then an other. Lyke as the tonge tasteth venyson, so doth an hert of vnderstandynge marke false wordes. A frowde herte gyuech heuynesse, but a man of experience listeth hym vp agayne. The woman receyuethe euery man, yet is one daughter better then an other. A saye wife reioyseth her husband, a ma loueth nothyng better. If he be louing and vertuous withal, then is not her husband lyke other men. He that hath gotten a vertuous woman, hath gotten a goodly possession: she is vnto him an helpe and pillar to her byd be relect. Where no hedg is, there goodes are spoyled, and where no houswife is, there the frendles mourne. Lyke as there is no credence gyuen to a robber that goeth from one cite to an other: So is not the man vile ned, that hath no ned, and must euer in where he may abyde in the night.

How a man should knowe frendes and collesers, and learne the company of a holy man.

CAPL. XXXVII.

Euery frende sayth, I wil be frendly vnto hym also. But there is some frende, which is onely a frend in name. Remayne there not beuynesse vnto deeth, when a companyon and frende, is turned to an enemy? A most wicked presumption: from whence art thou sprung vp, to couer the earth with falschod and discrey? There is some companion which in prosperitie reioyseth with his frende: but in the tyme of trouble he taketh parte agaynst him.

There is some companion that mourneth with his frende for the hely sake: but when trouble cometh, he taketh holde of the shyld. Forget not thy frend in thy mynde, and thynke vpon him in thy ryche. Euerye counsellor byngeth for the his counsell: neuertheless there is some counsellor but for his owne profyt. Beware of the counsellor, and be aduised afore wherto thou wilt vie him, for he wyll counsel for hym selfe. Least he cast the lot vpon the, and saye vnto the: Thy waye and purpose is good, and afterwarde he stande agaynst the, and loke what shall become of the.

Aske no counsell at hym that suspecteth the for an enemy, and hyde thy counsell from suche as hate the. Aske no counsell at a woman, edecurag the thinges that she longeth for: nor at a feartull and fayne herted body.

in matters of warre: or at a marchaunte; how deare he wyl chepe thy wares towarde his: or at a byer, of lyllynge: or at an enuyous man, of thanksgyvinge: or at the binnercyful, of louyng kyndnesse: or at the floutfull, of woxyng: or at an byelyng whiche hath no house, of profyte or wealth. (In yble body wolde not gladly heare speke of moche labour.) Take no suche folkes to counsell, but be diligent to seke counsell at a vertuous man that feareth God, suche one as thou knowest to be a heper of thy comfimentes, whiche hath a mynde after thyne owne mynde, and is soye for the when thou somblest.

End holde thy counsell fast in thyne herte: for there is no man moze saythful to kepe it then thou thy self. For a mans mynde is somtyme moze disposed to tel out, then to watch men that sit about in an hye place loyng about them. And about al this pray the hys that he wyl lede thy way in faithfulness and truthe. Before all thy woyses aske counsell fyrst, and ever thou doest any thyng, be well advised. And here be four thinges that declare a chaunged hert, wherout there spryngeth euil and good, both and lyfe, and a matter ful tong that habileth moche. Some man is apte and wel instruct in many thinges, yet very vayne of his owne wylle. Some man there is that can geue wyse and prudent counsell, and yet is he hard, and contynueth a begger: for that grace is not geuen him of God to be accepted. In other is robbed of al wisdom, yet is he wyse vnto hym selfe, and the frute of vnderstandyng is saythful in his mouth.

DA wyse man maketh his people wyse, and the frutes of his wisdom sayle not. A wyse man shall be plentifully blessed of God, and all they that he hym shall speke good of him. The lyfe of man standeth in the nombere of the dayes, but the dayes of Israel are innumerable. A wyse man shall obteyn saythfulness and credence among his people, and his name shall be perpetual. My sonne proue thy soule in thy lyfe, yet thou se any euill thing, geue it not vnto thy. For all thinges are not profitable for all men, neyther hath euery soule pleasure in euery thing. Be not greedy in euery eating, and be not to hasty vpon all meates. For excess of meates byngeth synnesse, and glory cometh at the last to an vnmeasurable hate: thorow glory haue many one perished: but he that dyeth hym selfe temperately, prolongeth his lyfe.

A Whistepon. In synnesse ought we to pray, and praye a Whistepon which heareth by prayer. The bewepynge of the deuo. Sadnesse. wysdom. And praynes of craftsmen.

CAPL XXXVIII.

Honour the Philicion: honour him because of necessity. God hath created him (for of the best cometh medycyne) and he shall receyue gyftes of the kyng. The wysdome of the Philicion byngeth hym to great woxyng, and in the syght of the great men of this worlde, he shall be honourably taken. The Lord hath created medycyne of the earthe, and he that is wyse wyl not abhorre it.

Was not thy better water made swete in a tree, that men myghte lerne to knowe the vertue therof. The Lord hath geuen men wysdome and vnderstandyng, that he might be honoured in his wondrous woyses. With suche dothe he hys men, and taketh awaye theyr paynes: Of suche dothe the Apotecary make a confection, yet can no man performe all his woyses. For of the Lord cometh prosperous wealthe ouer all the earthe.

My sonne, despyse not this in thy synnesse, but praye vnto the Lord, and he shall make the hole. Vnto of from synne, and order thy handes aright: cleane thyne herte from all wyckednesse, geue a swete sauored offeringe, and the fyne floure for a token of a remembrance: make the offeringe fatte, as one that gyueth the first frutes, and geue rowme to the Philicion. For the Lord hath created hym: let hym not goo frome the, for thou haste neede of hym. The houre maye come, that the synne maye be helpe the to wyse theym, when they praye vnto the Lord, that he maye recouer, and get healtie to lyue longer. He that synneth before his maker, shall fall in to the handes of the Philicion.

My sonne, byngye for the thy teares ouer the dech, and begyn to mourne as yf thou hadst suffred grete harme thy selfe: and then couer his bodye after a conuenient maner, and despyse not his buryall. Ensoyng thy self to wepe and prouoke thy self to mourne and make lamentation expediently, and that a daye or two, lest thou be euill spoken of: and then comforte thy selfe because of the heuynesse. For of heuynesse cometh deathe the heuynesse of the herte breaketh strength. Heuynesse and powertie geueth the herte in temptation and offence. Take no heuynesse to herte, dryue it awaye, and remember the last thinges. For get it not for there is no turning again. Thou shalt do him no good, but hurt thy self. Remembre his iudgement, thynke also shall be lyke wyse: vnto me yester daye, vnto the to daye. Let the remembrance of the dech craue in his rest, and comforte thy selfe agayne ouer hym, seing his spirite is departed from him.

The wysdome of the scribe is at conuenient tyme of rest: and he that ceaseth from exerceise and labour, shall be wyse. He that holdeth the plough, and hath pleasure in ploughyng and byngyng the oxe, and goeth about with such woyses, he can speake of oxe. He setteth his herte to make for oxe, and is diligent to geue the hys fodder. So is euery carpenter also and workman that labouryth byll nyght and daye: he earneth, geueth and cutteth oute, and his desire is in sonde connyng thynges, and his herte ymagineth, howe he maye connynglye cast an ymage his diligence also and watchyng perfourmeth the woike. The yronsmith in hys maner bydeth by his synne, and bothe his diligence to labour the yron. The vapour of the fyre bycureth his fleshe, and he must fyghte with the beate of the fornice. The noise of the hammer soundeth euer in his eares, and his eyes loke still vpon the thing that he maketh. He hath set his mynde there vpon, that he wyl make out his woike, and therefore he watcheth, how he maye set it out, and byngye it to an ende.

So both the potter by his woike, he turneth the whelle about with his fete, he is diligent and carefull in all doynges, and his labour and woik is without nombre. He fasteneth the clape with his arme, and with his fete he tempereth it. His hert ymagineth how he maye make it pleasaunt, and his diligence is to cleanse the ouen. All these hope in theyr handes, and euery one thynketh to be connyng in his woike. Without these maye not the cyties be manteyned, inhabited nor occupied: yet come they not byge in the congregacyon: they vnderstand not the counsaunt of the lawe: they can not declare equite and iudgement: they can not synde out synners sentences, but they knowe them all the creature of the world: be manteyned: they praye conueniently only the work and labour of connyng.

A wyse man. The woyses of God. Vnto the good, good thynges do prosper: but vnto the euill, euill good thynges are euill.

CAPL XXXIX.

Hat aplyeth his mynde to vnderstand the lawe of God, doth diligentely like out wysdome of them of the olde tyme, and exercepeth hym selfe in the prophetes. He kepeth the saynges of famous men, and preacht to the vnderstandyng of darke sentences of wysdome. He sekerth out the mynre of secreete saynges, and exercepeth hym self therein continually. He doth seuer amonge grete men, and appeareth before the prynce. He goeth in to a straunge countrey, and traualleth thorow it: loke what good or euill is among men, he proueth it and sekerth it out. He purporeth in his hert, to reioyce early vnto the Lord that made him, and to pray before the byen God.

He openeth his mouth in prayer, and prayeth for his synnes. When a grete Lord wyl, he shall be fylled with the spere of vnderstandyng, that he maye then poure out wylle sentences, and geue thanks vnto the Lord in his prayer. He shall obeye his trespice, and lede his knowledge aright, and geue hym vnderstandyng of secreete thynges. He shall be reioyce in the science of his lernyng, and reioyce in the counsaunt of the lawe of the Lord. The hole congregacyon shall commend his wysdome, and it shall neuer be put out. The tyme of byngye of hym shall neuer be forgotten, and his name shall conueyue frome one generation to another. His wysdome shall be spoke of, and the hole congregacyon shall openly declare his prayse. Whyle he lyueth, he hath a grete name then a thousande besyde: and after his deathe, the same name remaineth vnto hym. Yet wyl I speake of mo men of vnderstandyng, for I am ful as the moone.

Herken vnto me (ye holy brethren) chylde byngye forth frute, as the rose that is planted by the bykes of the selde, and geue ye a swete smell as Zebanias. Flourish as a rose garden, syngye a songe of prayse. O geue thanks vnto God ouer al his woyses. Syne glory and honoure vnto the Lord, vnto his prayse with your lippes.

Pea euen with a song of your lippes, with harpes and playeng, and in geuing thanks vnto hym. Say after this maner: All the woyses of the Lord are credyngye good, and all his commaundmentes are mete and conuenient in due season.

A man neede not to say: what is that? what is that? for at tyme conuenient they shall all be sought. At his commaundment the water was a wall, and at the woide of his mouth the waters stode still. In his commaundment is euery thyng acceptable and reconcyled, and his healethe can not be mynyshed. The woyses of all fleshe are before hym, and there is no thyng heyd from his eyes. He seeth frome euery synge to euery synge, and there is no thyng to wonderfull or byge vnto hym. A man neede not to saye what is this? what? for he hath made al thynges to do good vnto man. His blessing shall come ouer as the streame, and moysture the earth lyke a floure of water. As he maketh the water for drouth, so shall his wrath fall vpon the heuyn.

His wayes are playne and right vnto the iust, but the vngodly stumbe at them. For the good are good thinges created from the begynnyng, and euill thynges for the vngodly. All thynges necessarye for the lyfe of man are created from the begynnyng: water, fyre, yron and salte, mele, wheat, and hony mylke and wyne, oyle and clothyng. All these thinges are created for the best to the saythful: But to the vngodly shall all these thynges be turned to the hurt and harme. There be spirites that are created for vengeance and in their vngodlines haue they fastened their tormentes. In the tyme of the ende they shall poure out their strength, and payre the wrath of hym that made them. Fyre, hayle, hunger, and deathe: all these thynges are created for vengeance.

The teeth of mylde nopsome beastes, the scorpioun, scorpion, and the swerde are created also for vengeance to the destruction of the vngodly. They shall be glad to do his commaundmentes: and when he shall be ready vpon earth: and when their houre is come, they shall not outpasse the commaundment of the Lord.

Therefore haue I taken a good courage vnto to me from the begynnyng, and thought to put these thynges in wyse, and to leaue them behynde me. All thynges of the Lorde are good, and he giveth cure one in due season, and when nede is, so that a man nede not to saye: this is worse then that. For in due season they are all pleasaunt and good: And therefore praye the Lorde with herte and mouth, and gve thanks unto his name.

Many myscryes light in a mans lyfe. Al thynges passe awaye, but a myscrye and stable fayth remain. Of the blessing of the ryghteous, and pccogatione of the feare of God.

CAPL XL.

Mysecre of
lyte.

A Great treauayle is created for all men, and an heuie yoke upon all mens chylidren, frome the daye that they go out of their mothers wombe, tyll they be buried in the earth: the mother of all thynges: namely, their thoughtes and ymaginacions, feare of the herte, counsell, meditations, longynge and desyre, the daye of death: from the byrth that they are vpon the glorious state, vnto the lowest and most simple vpon the earth: from hym that is gloriously arrayed and weareth a crowne, vntill hym that is but homelye and simple clothed. There is nothyng but wyse, zeile, fearfulness, vnquyetnesse, and feare of death, rygurous anger and drye. And in the nyght when one shoulde rest and slepe vpon his bedde, the slepe chaungeth his vnderstanding and knowledg. A lyte as nothyng is in his rest, in the daye as well as in the daye of labour.

B The feareth and is vnquyeted in the blyss of his bet, as one that cenneth out of a batcapi: and in the tyme of heath he awaketh, and markeleth that the feare was nothyng. Such thynges happen vnto all fleshe, bothe man and best: but leueth to the vngodly. Mysecre of death, blyss of heuynge, drye and swete, oppression, hunger, destruction and punishment: these thynges are all created agaynst the vngodly, and for theyr sake came the floure also. All that is of the earth, shall turne to carch agayne: and all waters ebbe: agayne in to the see. All byrthes and vnrighousnesse shall be put awaye, but saythfulness, a truche shall endure for euer. The substance and goodes of the vngodly shall be dyed vpon, and lyte awaye as a water floure, and they shall make a sounde: lyke a greatchonle in the rapne.

L Lyke as the ryghteous relapseth when he openeth his hande, so shall the transgressours be fapne, when theyr goodes banyshe and consume a way. The chylidren of the vngodly shall not obayne many braynches: and the blyss of the ryghteous shall be as a water floure, and they shall make a sounde: lyke a greatchonle in the rapne.

Freendlyng and lyberalitye in the increase and blessing of God, is lyke a parabyse and garden of pleasure: such merye as a wynges endureth for euer. To labour & to be content with that a man hath, is a swete pleasure: lyte and that is to fynde a treasure about all thynges. To beget chylidren and to reape the crite, maketh a perpetuall name: but an honest woman is more worthy then they both. Wine and mystrye reape the best, but the loue of wysdome is aboue them both.

D Wynges & harpunge make a swete noyse, but a frendly songe goeth beyond the both. Wynges epe deilyrly sauoure and beauty, but a grene scde tyme rather then they both. A frende and companion come together at a popynt, but aboute them both is a wyse that agreeth with her husband. One brother helpeth an other in the tyme of trouble, but almes shall deliuer more then they both. Solde and spere fasten the fete, but a good counsell is more pleasaunt then they both. Tempozall substance and strength lyte by the mynde: but the feare of the Lorde more then they both.

The feare of the Lorde wanteth nothyng and needeth no helpe. The feare of the Lorde is a pleasaunt garden of blyss, and nothyng so beautifull as it is. Wynges, lyte not a beggers lyfe, for better it were to dye then to begge. Wynges to laker to an other mans table, laker no thought for his owne lyfynge how to vpholde his lyfe, for he feareth hym selfe with other mens meat. But a wyse and wel nouetured man wyl beware thereof. Begging is swete in the mouth of the vngodly, but in his herte there burneth a fyre.

Of the remembrance of death. Death is not to be feared. A curse vpon them that forsake the law of God. Iacob name and laus. An exhortation to gve lyte vnto wysdome. Of what thynges a man ought to be ashamed.

CAPL XL.

O Death, how better is the remembrance of the, to a man that feareth red and to fynde in his substance and ryche, vnto the man that hath nothyng to bere him, and that hath prospered in all thynges, vnto hym that yet is hable to receyue meat? O death, how acceptable and good is thy iudgement vnto the nedfull, and vnto hym whose strength faileth, that is nowe in his age, and that in all thynges is full of care & fearfulness: vnto hym also in dyspayre, and hath no hope ne parice: be not thou afraid of death: remembre them that haue bene before the: & that come after the, this is a iudgement of the Lorde ouer al fleshe. And why wouldest thou be agaynst this pleasure of the byrth? Whether it be ten, an hundred, or a thousand yeres: death asketh not how long one hath lyued.

The chylidren of the vngodly are abhominable chylidren and so are they that kepe company with the vngodly. The remembrance of vngodly chylidren shall come to nought, and their posterite shall haue pccogatione name and confusion. The chylidren complayne of an vngodly father: and why? for his sake they are rebuked and despyed. We be vnto you (O ye vngodly) which haue forsaken the lawe of the byghest God: ye be vngodly, ye shall be boine to curynge, ye be dye, the curse shall be poure vpon you.

All that is of the earth, shall turne to earth agayne: so go the vngodly also oute of the earth in to destruction. The sorowe of men is in their body: but the name of the vngodly shall be put out, for it is nothyng worth. Laboure to get the a good name, for that shall contynue sure by the, then a thousande grete treasures of golde. A good lyfe vnto the end of dayes, but a good name endureth euer.

Wynges, kepe wysdome in peace, for wysdome that is hyde, and a treasure that is not seene, what profit is in them both? A man that hyeth his foolyshe, is better then a man that hyeth his wysdome. Therefore be returned at my wordes: for it is not good, in all thynges and alwaye to be ashamed. True sayth must proue and measure it.

Be ashamed of hoynome before father and mother: Be ashamed of leysing before prince and men of authority: O synne, before the iudge and ruler: Of offence before the congregation and people: Of vnrighousnesse, before a companion and frende: Of theft, before the neyghbours. As for the truche of God and his couenaunte, be not ashamed thereof.

Be ashamed to lye with thyne elbowes vpon the byrd: Be ashamed to lye vpon barley: Be ashamed to turne awaye thy face from thy frende: Be ashamed to take, and not to gve: Be ashamed also to lye vpon an other mans wyse, and to make many trynges vnto the with her mayden, or to stande by her bed syde. Be ashamed to vpholde thy kinde: when thou givest any thyng, call him not in the teeth with thall.

Secrecies maye not be opened. The lawe of God must be taught. A daughter. A woman. God knoweth all thynges, pccogatione the secretes of the herte.

CAPL XLII.

R These not a thyng thyse, and disclose not the wordes, that thou hast heere in secretes. Be shamefast and well manerred in bed, so shall every man fauoure the. Of these thynges be not thou ashamed, and accept no person to offende. Namely, of these thynges be not ashamed: Of the lawe of God, of the couenaunte, of iudgement: to byrning the vngodly frome his vngodlynesse vnto ryghousnesse, and to make hym a good man: to deale faythfully with thy neyghbour & company: to distribute & heretage vnto thy frendes: to be diligent to kepe true measure & weyght: to be content, whether thou gett much or lytle: to deale truly with tempozall goodes in byrninge and sellynge: to byrninge by chylidren with diligence: to correct an euill seruaunt, to kepe that thyne is frome an euill wyse: to set a locke where many handes are: what thou deliuerest and givest out to be kept, to tel it and to waite it: to wyse by all the outgynge, and receyvinge: to enforme the vngodly and vngodly: Of the aged, that are iudged of the yonge. If thou be diligent in these thynges, truly thou shalt be learned & wise and accepted of all men.

The daughter maketh the father to watch secretly: and the carefines that he hath for her, taketh awaye his slepe: yea in the youth, leest the wynde succrowe hym: And when he hath an husband, leest the wynde be haled: leest the wynde be despyed or tanyshed in her virginity, or gotten with chylde in her fathers house: Or when he cometh to the mallest he bebaue her selfe not right or contynue vnfrutefull. If thy daughter be waton, kepe her straitly, leest she cause thine enemies to laugh the to scorne, & the holycryte to gve the an euill repoyte, and so thou be fapne to heare the name of euery man, and be confounded before all the people. Be holde not euery bodys beautye, and haue not moche dwellynge amonge women. For lyke as the wyne and moth cometh oute of clothynge, so doth wychednesse come of women.

It is better to be with an euill man, the with a frendly wyse & putteth one to shame and rebuke. I wyl remembre the wordes of the Lorde, and declare the thyng that I haue seene. In the wordes of the Lorde are his wordes. The Sunne ouerlooketh al thynges with his wyne, and all his wordes are full of the clearenes thereof. Hath not the Lorde brought to passe, that his sayntes shoulde sell out all his monderous wordes, which the synners the Lorde hath ablyssed? Al thynges endure in his gloire.

He seeth out the grounde of the depe and the herte, and he knoweth all these ymaginacion and wisdomes. For the Lorde knoweth all science, and he laker in to the to ken of the tyme. He declareth the thynges that are past and for to come, and discloseth thynges that are secretes. No thought maye escape hym, neither may any wynde be hyd from hym. He hath garnished the byrth excellent wordes of his wysdome, and he is to euerlastynge to euerlastynge. Vnto him maye nothyng be added neither can he be minished he hath no nede also of any cofsayle. O how amplye are all his wordes and as a sparke to lye vpon? They lyue all, and endure for euer: and when soeuer nede is, they are all obedyent vnto hym. They are al dubble, one agaynst an other: he hath made nothyng that hath faute or blemish: he hath stablished the goodes of euery thynge: and who maye be satisfyd with his gloire, when he seeth it?

The summe of the creacyon of the wordes of God.

CAPL XLII.

Plal. 118

The glory of the height, is the fayre and cleere spymament, the bewtie of the heauen in his glorjous cleerenesse. The sun when it appeareth, declarith the daye in the goynge out of it, a meruelous worke of the byghth. At noone it burneth the earth, and wha maye abyde for the heat thereof? Who so keepeth an ouen when it is hote, the tymes more both the Sunne burne vpon the mountaynes, when it breatheth out the fyre beames and spyneth: with the byghthnesse of it, it blindeth the eyes. Create is the Lord that made it, and in his commaundement he causeth it to ren haue lye.

Gene. 1. 5

Exod. 31. 1

The Moone also is in all, and at conuenient season it sheweth the tymes, and is a token of the tyme. The token of the tolemaie feall is taken of the Moone, a light that mynistreth and increaseth agayne. The Moone is called after the Moone, it groweth wonderfully in her chaungynge.

Gen. 1. 5

The arnye of heuen also is in the height, in the spymament of heauen it giveth a cleere and glorjous wyne. This is the cleerenesse of the starres, the bewtiful apparell of heuen, the apparell that the Lord lyghteneth in byghth. In his holy worke they continue in their ordie, and not one of them faileth in his watche. Loke vpon the rayne bowe, and prayse him that made it: very bewtyfull is it in his wyne. He commaundeth the heuen about with his cleerenesse and glory, the handes of the byghth haue bened it. Whow his commaundement he maketh the snowe to fall, and the thondie of his iudgement to smyte basly. Whow his commaundement the treasures are opened, and the cloudes flye as the foules. In his power hath he strengthened the cloudes, and broken the hyle stones.

The moystaynes melt at the sight of him, the wynde bloweth accordynge to his wyll. The sounde of his thondie beareth the earth so doth the Royme of the north: the whyle wynde also lyghtheth downe as a feathered fowle, callethe oute and spredeth the snowe as bynde: and as the grethoppers that destroie all, so faileth it downe. The eye maruelous at the bewtie of the wynterliche thews, and the heart is afraid at the tapne of it. He pouereth oute the frost vpon the earth, lyke salte, and when it is frozen, it is as sharpe as y put of a thyle.

When the colde Northwynde bloweth, charde byghthall commeth of the water. He lyghtheth downe vpon all the gaderynge together of water, and putteth on the water as a byll plat. He deuoueth the mountaynes, and burneth the wynterliche, and loke what is gerne. He putteth it oute lyke fyre. The medecyne of all these is, when a cloude commeth basly: and when a dewe commeth vpon the heate, it shall be refecthed agayne.

In his worke he spylteth the wynde. In his counsell he setteth the depe, and the Lord Iesus planted it. They that sayle ouer the see, tell of his peris and haemes: and when we heare it with our eares, we maruell ther-at. For there be strange wondrous wykes byuerly maner of wyke beales, and walestif. Whow him are al thynges set in good ordie and perfourmed, and in his wyke al thynges endure.

I speake much, but I can not sufficiently attayne vnto it, for he hym selfe only is the perfection of all wykes. We shulde prayse the Lord after al our power, for he is great in all his wykes. The Lord is to be feared: pea very great is he, and is merueylous is he power. Whow the Lord, and magnifye him as moche as ye maye, yet both he farre farre excede all prayse. Magnifye hym withal your power, and laboure earnestly, yet are ye in no wise hable sufficiently to prayse him. Who hath sene hym, that he myght tell us? Who can magnifye him so greatly as he is? For there are byd yet greater thynges than these be: as for vs, we haue sene but few of his wykes. For the Lord hath made all thynges, and giuen wisdom to such as feare him.

The prayse of certeyn holy men, Moyses, Aar, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.

CAP. XIII.

XIII.

Let vs commend the noble famous men and the generacon of oure fore fathers. Many more glorjous actes hath the Lord done, and shewed his grete power euer sene the begynnyng. The noble famous men raygned in their kyngdomes, and bare excellent rule. In their wysdom and vnderstandynge, they folowed the counsell shewed in the prophesies. They led the folke whow the counsel a wysdom of the Scrybes of the people. Wyse sentences are founde in their instruction: They sought the swete melody of Psalms, and brought forth the pleasaunte songes in Scrypture. They were wyse also, and coude comfote and pacifye those that dwelt with them. All these were very noble and honourable men in their generacions and were well reposed of in their tymes.

These haue lefte a name behynde them so that their prayse shall alwaye be spoken of. Afterwarde there were some, whose remembrance is gone. They came to noughte and perished, as though they had neuer bene: and became as though they hadde neuer bene borne, yea and they chyldeyn also with them.

Reuerentes these are loutre men whose ryghtousnes shall neuer be forgotten, but continue by their posterite. Their chyldeyn are an holy good heritage: their lawe endureth in the couenaunt. For their lawe shall their chyldeyn and sede continue for euer, and their prayse shall neuer be put down. Their bodyes are buried in peax, but their name lyueth for euermore. The people can calke of their wysdom, and the congregacion can calke of their prayse. Enoch walked ryght and acce-lated for an example of a mendement to the generacions. For was a steadfast & righteous man: and in the tyme of wrath, he became a reconcyllynge. Therefore was he lefte a remnant vnto the earth, when the floude came. An euerylastynge couenaunt was made with him, that al flesh shoulde perissh nomore with the water.

Abraham was a grete father of manye people, in gloire was there none lyke vnto hym. He kepte the lawe of the byghth, and came in to a couenaunt with him. He set the couenaunt in his fleshe, and when he was trespas, he was founde fapthfull. Therefore shoulde God blyss him with an othe, that he shoulde blyss all people in his sede, that he shoulde multiply and increase him as the dust of the earth, and to exalte his sede as the starres: yea and that his sede shoulde haue the possession and inheritaunce of the lande fro se to see, and from the riuer vnto the borders of the lande.

With Isaac did he stablish the same couenaunt, for Abraham his fathers sake. Yea that gracious blyssynge and health of all men, and couenaunt dyd he stablish with Isaac, and made it to rest vpon the heed of Jacob. He benedict hym, in that he prospered hym so well and ryche, and gaue hym an heretage, and sheweth his poynson by it selfe, and parted it among the twelue tribes. Wherof men brought he out of him, which founde fauour before all flesh.

The prayse of Moyses, Aaron, and Phineches.

CAP. XLV.

XLV.

Moses beloued of God and men, whose remembrance is in bygh prayse: hym hath the Lord made lyke in the glory of sayntes, and magnified hym, so that synners shoulde in awe of hym. Whow his wykes he dyd grete wonders. He made him great in the sight of kynges, gaue him commaundement before his people, and shewed hym his glorjous power. He stablished hym with fapthfulnesse and mekenesse, and chose hym out of all men. For he herde his voyce, and led hym in the darke cloude, and there he gaue him the commaundementes, yea & lawe of lyfe and wysdom, that he myght reache Jacob the couenaunt, and Israel his lawes.

He chose Aaron his brother also out of the type of Leui, exalted him and made him such lyke. An euerylastynge couenaunt made he with hym: and gaue him synthetize in the people. He made hym glorjous in bewtyfull aray, and clothed hym with the garment of honoure. He put perfecte lope vpon hym, and gyded hym with strengthe. He deckt hym with syde clothes, and a tuncle, with an owerbodye robe also and a girdle. Round about made he him belies of golde, and that many: that when he went in, he shoulde be heard, that they might make a noise in the Sanctuary, and give the people to be heard. The holy garment was brought a brach with golde, yelow lyke the sun, in. And my blyss, say there was a goodly worke, wherin was fastened lyght and perfectnes.

Vpon the same also there was a worke fastened, a set with costly preous stones, all bound with gold: and this he brought in his ministracion. The stones were fastened for a remembrance, after the xii. tribes of Israel. Vpon his mitre there was a plate of pure golde, a grauen ymage of holynes, a famous and noble worke, garnished, and pleasaunt to loke vpon. Before hym were there sene no such sayntes ornametes, & these it behoued hym alway to vse: There myght none other put them on, but only his chyldeyn, and his chyldeyn chyldeyn perpetually. Daply per fouemed he his buentofferynge two tymes. Moyses fylled his handes, & annoynted hym with holy oyle.

This was now confirmed hym with an euerylastynge couenaunt, and to his sede, as the dayes of heauen: namely that his chyldeyn shoulde alway mynstre before hym, and perfourme the office of the peshode, and with the people good in his name. Before all men lyupuge those be hym, that he shoulde offre before the Lord, and make odours for a swete sauour and remembrance, that he shoulde reconlyte the people of the Lord with hym agayne. He gaue hym autorite also in his commaundementes and in the couenaunt that he shoulde teache Jacob the statutes and testymones, and to insourme Israel in his lame.

Therefore there stode by certayne agaynst hym and had enuye at hym in the wyldernes: namely, they that were of Dathan, and Abiram synners, and the surpous congregacion of Ahoze. This the Lord sawe, and it dis pleased him, and in his wythful indignacion on were they consumed. A grete wondie dyd he doon them, and consumed them with the fire. Welpes this he made Aaron yet more honourable and glorjous. He gaue hym an heretage, and departed the synthe sentes vnto hym. Vnto hym speccially he appoynted the byd for fastenauce: for the prestes ate of the offerynge of the Lord: this gaue he vnto hym and his sede. Other heretage of poynson he had none in the lād, with the people. For the Lord hym self is his poynson and inheritaunce.

The thiede noble and excellent man is Phineches the sonne of Eleazar, whiche pleased the God of Israel, because he had the fele and feare of the Lord. For when the people were turned backe, he put hym selfe for the ryght soone, and that with a good wyll, to pacifye the wrath of the Lord towards Israel. Therefore was there a couenaunt of pear made with hym, that he shoulde be the principall amonges the ryghtous and the people that he and his posterite shoulde haue the of fyce of the peshode for euer. Lyke as there was made a couenaunt with David of the synthe of Juda, that from among his sonnes only there shoulde be a kyng: and that Aaron also and his sede shoulde be the heretage, to gyue vs wysdom in oure herte, to iudge his people upon the enemyes in the rayne, to doo good vnto such as had ordeed their wayes aright. And the bones of the twelue prophetes floyed from out of their place, for they gaue comforte and consolacion vnto Jacob, and deliuered the faithfully. How shal we praise Zorobabel, whiche was as a ryng in the ryght hande?

So was Iesus also the sonne of Iosedec: these men in their tymes buylded the house, & set by the Sanctuare of the Lord: agayne, whiche was prepared for an euertyminge worshipp. And Iehemiah is alwaye to be commended, whiche set by for vs the walles that were broken downe, made the portes and barres agayne, & buylded oure houses of the new. But upon the earth is there no man created lyke Enoch, for he was taken vp fro the earth. And Ioseph whiche was lord of his brethren, and the byholder of his people: his bones were covered and kepte. Seth and Sem were in great honour amonge the people: and so was Adam about all the beastes whan he was created.

Of Simon the sonne of Oniah.

CAPL.

L.

Simon the sonne of Oniah the hye preest, whiche in his lyfe sette vp the house agayne, and in his dayes made faste the temple. The heygth of the temple was founded of hym, the double buyldyng and the hye walles of the temple. In his dayes the welles of water flowed out, and were cedyng full as the see. He took care for his people, and deliuered them from destruction. He kept his cite and made it stronge, that it shoulde not be besieged. He dwelte in honoure and worshyppe amonge his people, and enlarged the intrance of the house and the court. He gyue lighte as the moonyng sterre in the myddes of the cloudes, and as the Moone whan it is full. He shyneth as the sunne in the temple of God, he is as bright as the rayne-bow in the fayre cloudes, and floyeth as the floures and roses in the springe of the yere, and as lylies by the ryuers of water: Lyke as the braunches vpon the mount Libanus in the tyme of sommer: as a fyre and incense that is kyndled: Lyke as an holie ornament of pure golde, set with all maner of precious stones: and as an olyue tree that is frutefull, and as a Cypress tree whiche groweth vp on hygh.

When he put on the garment of honoure, and was clothed with all beautye: when he went to the holie aulter, to garnyshe the offeringe of the Sanctuare: when he took the porcions out of the preestes hand, he him selfe stode by the barth of the aulter, and his brethren rounde aboute in ordre. As the braunches of a grene tre vpon the mount Libanus, so stode they rounde about hym. And as the braunches of the olyue tree, so stode all the sonnes of Aaron in their glorye. And that he myghte sufficiently performe his seruyce vpon the aulter, and garnyshe the offeringe of the hyest God, he stretched out his hande, & took of the bynksofferinge, and poured in of the wyne: so he poured vpon the bottome of the aulter good smell vnto the hyest prince.

Then began the sonnes of Aaron to syng, and to blowe with trumpettes, and to make a great noyse for a remembrance and praye vnto the Lord. Then were the people afraid and fel downe to the earth vpon their faces, to worshippe the Lord theyr God, and to giue thanks to the almyghty God. They songe goodly also with their voyces, so there was a pleasaunte noyse in the grete house of the Lord. And the people in their prayer besought the Lord the hyest that he wolde be mercifull tyll the honour of the Lord were performed. Thus ended they their ministracion and seruise. Then went he downe and stretched out his handes ouer the hole multitude of the people of Israel, that they shoulde gyue praye and thanks out of theyr lippes vnto the Lord, and to reioyce in his name. He began yet ones also to praye, that he myghte openly shewe the thankesgyunge before the hyest, namely thus: O gyue praye and thanks (yea all) vnto the Lord our God, whiche hath euer doone noble and grete thynges: whiche hath increased our dayes from oure mothers wombe, and dealeth with vs according to his mercy: that he wyll gyue vs the ioyfullnesse of herte, and pear for our time in Israel. Whiche sayeth fully kepeth his mercy for vs euer more, and alwaye deliuereth vs in due season.

There be two maner of people that I abhorre fro my herte: as for the thyrd, whom I hate, it is no people: They that lye vpon the mountayne of Samaria, the phylisines and the foolyshe people that dwelle in Sircimis.

I Iesus the sonne of Sirach Eleazarus of Jerusalem, haue toke up these informations and documentes of wysdome and vnderstanding in this boke, and poured out the wysdom of my herte. Blessed is he that exerciseth him self therein: and who so taketh such to hert shal be wysse. If he do these thynges, he shal be strong in all. For the light of the Lord ledeth him.

The prayer of Iesus the sonne of Sirach.

CAPL.

I thank the, O Lord and kyng, and praye the, O God my sauour. I wyll yelde praye vnto thy name, for thou arte my defender and helper, and hast preserved my bodye fro destruction, from the snare of traytous tonges, and from the lippes that are occupied with lyes. Thou hast ben my helper, frome such as stode vp against me, and hast deliuered me after the multitude of thy mercy, and for thy holy names sake: thou hast deliuered me from the roynge of them that prepared them selues to deuour me out of the handes of such as sought after my lyfe: frome the multitude of them that troubled me, & went about to set fyre vpon me on euery syde, so that I am not brent in the myddes of fyre: from the depe of hel, from an vnclene song, from lying wordes, from the wyched kyng, and fro an vnrightous song. My soule shal praye the Lord vnto deith, so: my life shal lye vnto hell.

They compassed me round about on euery syde, & there was no man to helpe me. I looked about me, yet there were any man that wolde succour me, but there was none: the thought I vpon thy mercy, O Lord, & vpon thy actes that thou haste done euer of olde: namely, that thou deliuerest such as put their trust in the, and riddest them out of the handes of the heathen. Thus lyfte I vp my prayer fro the earth, and prayed for deliuerance from deith. I called vpon the Lord my father, & he wolde not leaue me without helpe in the daye of my trouble & in the tyme of the proude. I praised thy name continually, yelding honour & thanke vnto it, & so my prayer was herd. Thou savedst me from destruction, and deliueredst me from the vnrightous tyme. Therefore wil I acknowledge and praye the, and magnifye the name of the Lord.

When I was yet but yong, & euer I went astray, I desired wisdom opely in my prayer. I came therefore before the temple, & soughte her vnto the last. She floyed vnto me as a grape that is lone ripe. My hert reioysed in her, then went my fote the ryght way, yea fro youth vp, soughte after her: I bowed downe myne eare and receyued her. I found in me moche wisdom, and prospered greatly in her. Therefore wil I ascribe the glorye vnto him that giueth me wisdom: for I am advised to wtherafter. I wil be gelous to cleue vnto the thyng that is good, so shal I not be confounded. My soule hath rested in her, and I haue ben diligent to be occupied in her. I lift vp mine handes on hye, the was my soul lightened thowgh to wisdom, & I knowleged my foolyshehede. I asyded my soule after her, she and I were one hert from the beginning, and I found her in clenesse. And therefore shal I not be for taken.

My herte longed after her, & I gat a good treasure. Thowgh she her the Lord hath giuen me a new song, wherewith I wil praise him. Come vnto me ye vnlearned, and dwell in the house of wysdom: withdrawe not your selues from her, but talke & common of these thynges, for your soules are very thursty. I opened my mouth and spake: Come & bye wisdom without money, how downe your necke vnder her yoke, and your soule shal receyue wisdom. She is hard at hand, and is content to be founde. Beholde with youre eyes, howe that I haue hadde but lytle labour, and yet haue found moche rest. I receyue wisdom, and ye shall haue plentousnesse of plure & gold in possession. Let your mynd reioyce in his mercy, and be not ashamed of his praye. Worke his worke by tymes, and he shall gyue you youre rewarde in due tyme.

THE PROPHECYE
THE BOKE OF THE PROPHETE
BARUCH.

These are the wordes of the boke that Baruch the sonne of Nerias, the sonne of Maasia, the son of Sedechias the sonne of Sedei, the son of Iehelchia wrote at Babylon, in the fifth yere, the seventh day of the moneth, what tyme the Caldres wane Jerusalem, and brent it.

CAP. I.

Baruch redeth the boke before the kynge and all the people, whiche sende it with money to Jerusalem.

And Baruch dyd reade the wordes of this boke that Jechonias the sonne of Joacin king of Juda myghte heare: and in the presence of all the people, that were come to heare the boke: yea and before all the noble kynge's sonnes, before the lordes of the counsell and elders: and before the hole people, fro the lowest unto the highest: before all them that dwelt at Babylon by the water of Sedy. Whiche when they herde it, wepte, fasted, and prayed before the Lorde.

They made a collection also of money, according to every mans power, and sent it to Jerusalem unto Joacin the sonne of Iehelchia the sonne of Salon Press, with the other princes, and to all the people whiche were with him at Jerusalem, what tyme as they had gotten the ornaments of the temple of the Lorde (that were taken away out of the temple) that they myghte buye them agayne in to the lande of Juda, the tenth day of the moneth Siban: namely, silver vessels (whiche Sedechias the sonne of Josiah king of Juda had made). After that Nabuchodonosor kynge of Babylon had taken Jechonias, with all his princes, lordes, and all the people, and led them captiue from Jerusalem unto Babylon.

And they sayde: Beholde, we have sente you money to buye you burnt offeringes and incense withall: make you vntended byed And offer for: syne upon the altar of the Lorde our God. And praye for the prosperitie of Nabuchodonosor kynge of Babylon, and of Belshazar his sonne: that they: dayes maye be upon earth, as the dayes of heuen: that God also maye geue us strength and lyghten our eyes: that we maye lyue under the defence of Nabuchodonosor kynge of Babylon, and under the protection of Belshazar his sonne, that we maye longe daye in synne, and fynde fauoure in their synne.

Praye for us also unto the Lorde our God, for we have synned agaynst the Lorde our God, and unto this daye is not his mercy: the tyme yett we have synned. And let us praye for this boke whiche we have sente unto you to be reded in the temple of the Lorde) upon the hye dayes, and at a tyme convenient.

Thus shal ye say: The Lorde our God is Dyrhtous, but we are worthy of confusyon and shame: lyke as it is come to passe this daye vnto all Juda, and to every one that dwelleth at Jerusalem: to our kynge's, princes, priestes, Prophetes, and to our fathers. We have synned before the Lorde our God, we have not put our trust in him, nor gyuen hym credence, we have not obeyed hym, we have not harkened vnto the voyce of the Lorde our God, to walke in the commandementes that he gaue vs. Sithens the daye that he brought our fore fathers out of the lande of Egypt vnto this present daye we have bene euer a mysheluyng, and an vnfaithful people vnto the Lorde our God: destroyinge our selues vterly, and synninge bakke, that we shoulde not heare his voyce.

Wherfore there are come vpon us grete plagis and dyuers curses, lyke as the Lorde Dyrhted by Moyses his seruante: whiche broughte our fore fathers out of the lande of Egypt, to geue us a lande that floweth with mylke and hony, lyke as it is to this daye. Neuerthelesse, we have not harkened vnto the voyce of the Lorde our God, according to all the wordes of the Prophetes whom he sent vnto us, and vnto our rulers, but every man folowed his owne minde and wicked ymaginacion: so offe vnto strange goddes, to do euill in the syght of the Lorde our God.

The Jewes confesse that they synned before the Lorde. The Lorde wyl we obey vnto princes, although they be euill. He promysed that he wyl sell agayns the people from captiue, and geue them a newe and curialynge testament.

CAP. II.

For which cause the Lorde our God hath perfourmed his deuyce, wherof he certified vs and our herdes that ruled in Jerusalem: yea and our kynge's, our princes, with all Israel and Juda. And suche plagis hath the Lorde brought vpon us, as neuer came to passe vnder heuyl, like as it is fulfilled in Jerusalem, according as it is mytten in the lawe of Moyses: that a man shoulde eate the fleshe of his owne sonne, and the fleshe of his owne daughter. Wherfore he hath deliuered them in to the handes of al kynge's that are rounde aboute vs: to be confounded and desolate, and scattered tyme abode in all landes and nacions. Thus are we brought benethe and not aboue, for we have synned agaynst the Lorde our God, and not benedient vnto his voyce: therefore the Lorde our God is dyrhtous, and we with our fathers as reason is are brought to open shame as it is to this daye.

And as for these plagis that are come vpon us already, the Lorde had deuyced them for us: yett wolde we not praye vnto the Lorde our God, that we myghte every man tounne from his vngodly wayes. So the Lorde hath caused suche plagis to come vpon us, for he is dyrhtous in all his workes, which he hath commaunded vs, which we also haue not done: nor harkened vnto his voyce for to walke in the commandementes of the Lorde, that he had gyuen vnto us.

And now, O Lorde God of Israel, thou that hast brought thy people out of the land of Egypt with a myghty hande, with tokens and wonders, with thy grete power and outstretched arme: and hast gotten thyself a name, as it is come to passe this daye. O Lorde our God, we haue synned, we haue doone wyckedly, we haue behaued our selues vngodly in all thy ryghteousnes. Turne thy wrath from vs (we beseeche the): for we are but a fewe left amonge the heathen, where thou hast scattered vs. Heare our prayers, O Lorde, and our petitions, buye vs out of captiuitie, for thyne owne sake: get vs fauoure in the syght of them, which haue led vs away, that al landes may know that thou art the Lorde our God, and that Israel and his generacion calleth vpon thy name.

O Lorde, loke downe from thy holy house vpon us: encline thyne eare, and heare vs. For the deed that he gone down to their graues, and whose soules are out of their bodies ascribe vnto the Lorde neither praye nor right countenayng: but the soule that is vexed for the multitude of her synnes, which goeth on heuily and wyckedly, whose eyes begynne to faile: such a soule ascribeth praye and right countenayng vnto the Lorde. O Lorde, we poure oute our prayers before the, and requyre mercy in thy syght, O Lorde our God: not for anye godlynesse of our fore fathers, but because thou hast sent out thy wrath and indignacion vpon us, according as thou dydest threaten vs by thy seruantes the Prophetes, sayinge:

Thus sayeth the Lorde: Woe downe your shoulders & neckes, and serue the king of Babylon, so shall ye remayne styll in the land, & I gaue vnto your fathers. If ye wyl not do this, nor heare the voyce of the Lorde your God, to serue the kynge of Babylon, I shall destroy you in the cyties of Juda, within Jerusalem and without. I wyl also take from you the voyce of myrth, and the voyce of ioy, the voyce of the bydegrome and the voyce of the byde, and there shal no man dwell more in the land. But they wold not harken vnto thy voyce, to do the kynge of Babylon seruice: and therefore hath thou perfourmed the wordes that thou spakest by thy seruantes the prophetes: namely, that the bones of our kynge's, and the bones of our fathers shoulde be translated out of their place.

And lo now are they layde out in the heate of the sunne, and in the cold of the night, and bed in grete myterye, with hunger, with sweerde, with pestilence, & are clene cast forth. As for the temple wherin thy name was called vpon, thou hast laid it waste, as it is to this day: and that for the wyckednes of the house of Israel & the house of Juda. O Lorde our God, thou hast intreated us after al thy goodnesse, and according to all that great loyng mercy of thyne, like as thou spakest by thy seruante Moyses, in the daye when thou diddest commaunde him to wyte thy lawe before the chyldren of Israel, sayinge: If ye wyl not harken vnto my voyce, then shall this grete multitude be turned in to a very small people, for I wyl scatter the abode. Now with standyng I am sure that this folke wyl not hear me: for it is an hardnecked people. But in the lande of their captiuitie, they shall remember them selues, and lerne to know that I am the Lorde their God, when I gyue them on hereto vnderstande, and eares to heare. Then shal they praise me in the land of their captiuitie, and thinke vpon my name. Then shal they turne them from their hard backs and fro their vngodlynesse: Then shal they remember the thynges, that happened vnto their fore fathers, which synned agaynst me. So wyl I buye them agayne in to the lande, whiche I promysed with an othe vnto thy fathers: Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob: and they shall be lordes of it: yea I wyl encrease them, and not mynyshe them. And I wyl make an other couenaunte with them, such one as shall endure for euer: namely, that I wil be their God, and they shall be my people: and I wil no more buye my people the chyldren of Israel out of the lande that I haue gyuen them.

The prayse wyl come vnto the people, the wylng that so grete aduertayces came vnto them, for the dyspyng thereof. Of the incarnation of Chyrl.

CAP. III.

And now, O Lorde almighty, thou God of Israel: our soules that is in trouble and our spirite that is vexed crieth vnto the: heare vs, O Lorde, and haue pity vpon vs, for thou art a mercifull God, be gracious vnto us, for we haue synned before the. Thou endurest for euer, hold we then vterly perishe? O Lorde almighty, thou God of Israel: heare now the prayer of the deed Israelites and of their chyldren, which haue synned before the, & not harkened vnto the voyce of the Lorde their God, for which cause these plagis hang now vpon us. O Lorde, remember not the wyckednesse of our fore fathers, but thinke vpon thy power and name nowe at this time: for thou art the Lorde our God and the, O Lorde wil we praye. For thou hast put thy feare in our herdes, to the intent we shoulde call vpon thy name, and praye the in our captiuitie, & that we might turne fro the wyckednesse of our fore fathers that synned before the.

Beholde, we are yett this daye in our captiuitie.

Psal. xix. a infinite, where as thou haste scattered vs, to be an abomination, curse, and synne: lyke as it hath happened vnto oure fathers also, bycause of all theyr wickednesse and departyng from the.

Jeremie. ii. b

O Israel heare the commaundementes of life: pondre them wel with thyn eares, that thou mayste lerne wysdome. But howe hap-peneth it Israel that thou art in thyn enemyes land? thou art warden old in a strange country, and despyled with the deed. Why arte thou become lyke them that goe downe to theyr graues? Euen bycause thou haste forsaken the well of wysdome. For yf thou haddest walked in the waye of God, truly thou shouldst haue remayned still safe in thyn owne lande.

Houet. i. a. a

O learne then where discrecyon is, where vertue is, where vnderstandynge is, that thou mayste knowe also from whence cometh longe lyfe, a necessary lyuyng, the light of the eyes, and quyetnesse. Who euer found oute her place? or who came euer in to her treasures?

Psal. xix. b and. xix. c

Where are the pyrrones of the heathen become, and suche as ruled the heathen vpon the earth? They that had the pastyme with the fowles of the ayre, they that hoorded by siluer and gold (wherein men trust so moche) and made no end of theyr gathering? What is doone of them that coynded siluer, and were so carefull, and could not byng their wozkes to passe? They be rooted oute, and bone downe to hell, and other men are come vp in theyr stede. Yonge men haue sene light and dwelte vpon earth: but the waye of reformation, haue they not knowne no? vnder stande the pathes therof: neyther haue their chyldren receyued it: yea ryghte farre is it frome them. It hath not ben herde of, in the lande of Canaan, neyther hath it ben sene at Cheman.

Deute. xlii. a Jeremie. xlii. b
Psal. xix. b

The Agartnes sought after wysdom, but that which is earthly, like as the marchautes of the land do. They of Cheman are cunning also, and they labour for wysdome: vnderstanding, but the way of true wysdome they knowe not, neither do they thinke vpon the pathes therof. O Israel, howe greates is the house of God? and howe large is the place of his confessions? Greates is he, and hath no ende: hygh and vnumeasurabe. What is become of those famous gyafites, that were so great of bodyes, & so worthy me of warre? Those had not the worde chosen, neyther haue they found the way of reformation: therfore were they destroyed: and forasmuche as they had no wysdom, they perished bycause of theyr foolishnesse.

Who hath gone vp in to heuē to take wisdom there, & brought her downe fro the cloude? Who hath gone ouer the see to find her, and hath chose her about gold, & so brought her byther? No man knoweth the wayes of wysdom, neither is there any that can leade oute the pathes. But he that wote all thynges knoweth her, and he hath told her out with his knowledge. This same is he which prepared the earth at the beginning, & fylled it with all maner foules and bestes. When he sendeth out the light, it goeth: and when he calleth it agayne, it obeyeth hym in feare. The sterres kepe their watche, & gyue theyr light, yea and that gladly. When he calleth the, they saye: here we be. And so with there fulnes they shewe lyght vnto him that made them. This is our God, and there shall none other be compared vnto him: It is he that hath found out all wysdom, and hath gyuen her vnto Jacob his seruaunt, and to Israel his beloved. Afterwarde byd he them him selfe vpon earth, and dwelt among men.

CAPL.

IIII.

This is the boke of the commaundementes of God, and the law that endureth for euer. Al they that kepe it shall come to lyfe: but suche as forsake it, shall come to death. Turne the, o Jacob, and take holde of it: walke by this waye thowme his brightnesse and shine. Giue not thyn honour to an other, and thy wozshipp to a strange people. O Israel, howe happy are we, sayth that God hath shewed vs such thynges as are pleasant vnto him? Be of good cheere thou people of God, O thou auient Israel. Nowe art ye solde amonge the heathen, howe be it not for youre bitter destruction: but bycause ye prouoked God the Lorde to wozath and displeasure, therfore were ye deliuered vnto youre enemyes: for ye displeased the euerlastyng God that made you, offeringe vnto deuyls, & not to God. Ye haue forgottē hym that brought you vp, and youre nourice Jerusalem haue ye greued.

When he saw that the wozath of God was commynge vpon you, he sayde: Harken, O ye that dwell aboute Syon, for God hath brought me in to great heynesse: and why? I se the captiuite of my people, of my sonnes and daughters, which the euerlastyng God wil bring vnto them. With ioye did I noyish them, but now must I leue the with weeping and sorow.

Let no man reioyce ouer me widowe & forsaken, which for the synnes of my chyldren am desolate of euery man. For why? they departed fro the law of God, they wold not knowe his rightousnesse, nor walke in the waye of his commaundementes: and as for the pathes of the trouthe and godlinesse, they had no lust to go in them.

O ye dwellers aboute Syon: come, and let vs call to remembraunce the captiuite that the euerlastyng God hath brought vpon my sonnes and my daughters. He hath brought a people vpon them from farre, an vncrent people, & of a strange language, which neyther regarde the olde, nor pynne the yonge.

These haue carped awayne the heate belowd of me a widow, leauyng me alone, both desolate and chyldelesse. But alas, what can I helpe you? Nowe he that hath broughte these plagis vpon you, deliuer you also from the handes of your enemyes.

Go your waye (O my chyldren) go your way: for I am desolate and forsaken. I haue put of the clothynge of peace, & put vpon me the sacke cloth of praye, and for my tyme I wil call vnto the most hygh. Be of good cheere O my chyldren: crye vnto the Lorde, and he shall deliuer you from the power of the pryntes, your enemyes.

For verely, I haue euer a good hope of your prosperous health: yea a very gladnesse to come vpon me from the holy one, bycause of the mercye that ye shall haue of our euerlastyng Sauour.

With mournynge and weeping bid I let you goe from me, but with ioye and perpetual gladnesse shall the Lorde bringe you agayne vnto me. Lyke as the neyghbours of Syon sawe your captiuite fro God: Euen so shall they also se shortly your health in God, whiche shall come on you with great honour and euerlastyng wozshipp.

O my chyldren, suffre patiently the wozath that shall come vpon you. For the synne hath persecuted the, but shortly thou shalt se his destruction, and shalt tread vpon his neck. By drynges haue gone rough wayes, for they are led awaye as a flocke that is scattered abrode with the enemyes. But be of good comfort O my chyldren, and crye vnto the Lorde:

For he that led you awaye, hath you yet in remembraunce: and like as ye haue bene minde to swarne from your God, so shall ye now endeauour shewe ten tymes more, to tume agayne, and to seke him. For he that hath broughte these plagis vpon you, shall bringe you euerlastyng ioye agayne with your health. Take a good heart vnto the, O Jerusalem: for he which gaue the that name, exhorteth the so to do.

The wycked doers that now put the to trouble, shall perishe: and such as haue reioyced at thy fall, shall be punished. The cypres whom thy chyldren serue, and that haue carped awayne thy sonnes, shall be corrected. For lyke as they be nowe glad of thy decaye, so shall they moune in theyr stowe destruction. The ioye of theyr multitude shall be taken awaye, and theyr chere shall be turned to sorowe. For a fyre shall fall vpon them frome the euerlastyng God, longe to endure: and it shall be inhabited of deuyles for a greates season.

Jerusalem is moued vnto gladnesse, for the returne of her people, and vnder the figure thereof, the church.

CAPL.

V.

O Jerusalem loke about the toward the east, and beholde the ioye that cometh vnto the from God. For lo, thy sonnes (whome thou hast forsaken, and that were scattered abrode) come gathered together fro the East and West, reioysynge in the wozd of the holpe one, vnto the honour of God.

Put of thy mournynge clothes (O Jerusalem) and thy sorowe, and decke the with the wozshipp and honoure, that cometh vnto the frome God, with euerlastyng glory. God shall put the cloke of rightousnes vpon the, and set a crowne of euerlastyng wozshipp vpon thyn heade: for vpon the wyll God declare his brightnes, that is vnder the heauen: yea an euerlastyng name shall be giuen the of God, with praye of rightousnes, and the honour of Gods scare.

Arise O Jerusalem, stand by on high: loke about the toward the east, and beholde thy chyldren gathered from the east, vnto the west whiche reioyse in the holpe wozd, haunynge God in remembraunce. They departed from the on sofe, and were led awaye of theyr enemyes: but now shall the Lorde bringe them carped with honoure, as chyldren of the king dome. For God is purposed to bringe downe all stoute mountaynes, yea and all hygh rockes to fyll the baileyes, and so to make the euen with the groude: that Israel maye be diligent to lyue vnto the honour of God. The woddes and all pleasaunt trees shall shadowe Israel, at the commaundement of God. For byther shall God bringe Israel with ioyfull mysch, and in the sight of his marciye: with the mercye and rightousnes that cometh of hym selfe.

CAPL.

VI.

A coppe of the epistle that Jeremie sent vnto the Jewes, whiche were led awaye prisoners by the kyng of Babylon: wherein he exhorteth them of the thynges that was commaunded hym of God.

Because of the synnes that ye haue done agaynst God, ye shall be led away captiue vnto Babylon euen of Nabuchodonosor the kyng of Babylon. So when ye be come into Babylon, ye shall remayne there many yeres: for a long season: namely, vij. generations: and after that wyll I bringe you awaye peaceably from thence. Nowe shall ye se in Babylon goddes of golde, of siluer, of wood, & of stone: borne vpon mens shoulders to cast out a fearfulness before the heathen. But loke that ye do not as the other: be not ye afraid, and let not the feare of them ouer come you.

Therefore whē ye se the multitude of people wozshyppynge them behynde and before saye ye in your heartes: O Lorde, it is thou, that oughtest only to be wozshypped: & yncungel also shall be with you, and I myselfe wil care for your soules. As for the tymber of those goddes, the carpenters hath polished them: yea gylded be they, & layed ouer with siluer, yet are they but vayne thynges, & can not speke. As was a wech that loueth perauours is trulye deade, euen so are these made made and hanged with golde. Crownes of golde haue they: goddes vpon theyr heedes: so the priestes them selues take the golde and spruce from them, and put it to theyr owne uses: yea they gyue of the same vnto barlots, and tyme theyr hoores withall: agayne, they take it from the hoores, and becke theyr goddes therewith. Yet can not these goddes helpe them selues frome rust and mothes. When they haue couered them with clothe of purple, they mype theyr faces for the dust of the temple, wherof there is much among them. One hath a sceptre in his hand, as though he were iudge of the countrey: yet can he not save such as offende hym. Another hath a swerde or an axe in his hand, for all that, is he neyther able to defende hym selfe frome battayle, nor to smyte the-

 Jeremie. p. 2

By this ye maye vnderstande, that they be no goddes, therefore se that ye neither worship them, nor feare them. For lyke as a vessel that at a man vnto, is nothinge worth wher it is broken, euen so is it with theyr goddes. When they be set vp in the temple, their eyes be full of dust, thow the face of those that come in. And lyke as the doxes are waste in, rounde about vpon hym that hath offended the kynge: so as it were a dead body kepte behyde the graue: Euen so the priestes kepe the doxes with barres and lockes, lest theyr goddes be spoyled with robbers. They set vp candels before them (yea verily and that many) wherof they can not se one, but euen as blockes, so stande they in the temple. It is sayd: that the serpentes and wyrmes, whiche come of the earth, gnawe out theyr herres, eatynge them and theyr clothes also, and yet they feele it not. Theyr faces are blacke, thow the smoke that is in the temple. The owles, swallows, and byrdes flye vpon them, yea and the cattes runne ouer theyr heedes.

Settynge vp of candels be-foze ydolles.

By this ye maye be sure, that they are not goddes, therefore feare them not. For golde that they haue, is to make them bewtyfull: and yet neuertheless, onles some body mype of theyr rust, they will gyue no wyne: and when they were cast in to a founne, they fele it not. They are bought for money, and haue no bryeth of lyfe within them. They must be boiue vpon mens shoulers, as those that haue no fete: wherby they declare vnto men, that they be nothinge worth. Confounded be they then, that worship them. For yf they fall to the grounde, they can not rylle vp agayne of them selues. Yea though one helpe them vp and set them right, yet are they not able to stande alone: but must haue proppes set vnder them lyke dead men. As for þe thing that is offred vnto them, theyr priestes sell it, and abuse it: yea þe priestes wyues take therof, but vnto þe sycke & poore they gyue nothinge of it, the women with childe and the meane-
 Jeremie. p. 2

The women sit before the goddes of syluer, gold and wood, & the priestes sit in their temples, haunge open clothes, whose braides and berdes are shauen & haue nothinge vpon their heades: & yonge and crying vpon theyr goddes, as men do at the sea, when one is dead.

The priestes also take away the garments of the ymages, and becke these wyues & chyldren withall. Whether it be good or euill that any man do vnto them, they are not able to recompense it: they can neyther set by a kynge nor put him downe. In lyke maner they may neyther gyue ryghtes, nor rewardes. Thowge a man make a house vnto them and kepe it not, they will not requyte it. They can not restore a blynde man to his syght, ne helpe any at his need. They can shewe no mercy to the wyddow, nor do good to the fatherles. Theyr goddes of wood, stone, golde and syluer, are but euen as other stones, that be betwen of the mountayne. They that worship them shall be confounded. Howe shoulde they then be taken for goddes? yea howe dare men call them goddes? And thowge the Caldees worshipped them not, hearynge that they were but dom and coule not speake: yet theyr them selues offe vnto Bel, and wold fayne haue him to speake: as who saye, they coulede tele, that maye not moue. But when these men come to vnderstandynge, they shall forsake the, for theyr goddes haue no helynge.

A grete sort of women gyde with cordes & sit in the strettes, & burne olyue berres. Thow yf one of them be conueyed away and yf any such as come by: she casteth her nycht-bourell in the eech, because she was not so worthely reputed, nor her corde broken. What so euer is done for the, it is but hapne & loss: howe may it then be thought as sayd that they are goddes? Carpenters and goldsmithes make them, neyther be they anye other thyng, but euen what the wyke men will make of them. Yea the goldsmithes the selues that make them, are of no longe contynuaunce: yow shoulde then the thynges that are made of them, be goddes? Clarye therefore are the thynges (yea verie wame is it, that they leaue behyde the for their posterite. For as soone as there cometh any warre or playe vpon them, the priestes ymagyn, wherby they maye hyde them selues with them. How can men thynke then they be goddes, whiche wil ther may defende them selues frome warre nor be lyue them fro myghtynge? For lyng they be but of wood, of stone, of syluer and of golde: al people and kynge that knowe her after, that they be but vayne thynges: yea it shal be openly declared, that they be no goddes: but euen the very wykes of mens lades, & that God hath nothing to do with the. They can set no kynge in the lande nor gyue sayne vnto men. They can gyue no sentence of a matter, neither defende the lande frome wyng: for they are not able to do so much as a crowe, that flyeth betwene heauen and earth.

When there happeneth a fyre in to the house of those goddes of wood, of syluer and of golde, the priestes will escape and save the selues, but the goddes burne as the balles therein. They can not withstande any kynge or battayle: how maye it then be thought as graunted, that they be goddes? Wherfore, these goddes of wood, of stone, of golde and syluer, maye neither defende them selues fro chere ne robbers: yea the very wyked are stronger then they. These stypp them out of theyr apparell, that they be clothed withall, these take theyr golde and syluer from them, and so get them away: yet can they not helpe them selues. Therefore it is much better for a man to be a kynge, and to shewe his power, or to be a prophete dwelling in a house, wher he hateth wroth it, myght haue pleasure: yea or to be a hoie in a house, to kepe such thynges safe as be therein, then to be such a vayne god. The Sunne, the Moone, and all the starres when they gyue theyr wyne and lyght, are a bepynt, and do men good: When the lyghte wynges gyfeth, all is cleere: The wynde bloweth in euery countrey, and wher God commaundeth the clowdes to go rounde aboute the hole worlde, they do as they are bydden: when the fyre is sent downe from above and commaunded, it burneth by hylls & woodes.

But those goddes are not lyke one of these thynges, neither in bewtye nor in strengthe. Wherfore men shall not thynke nor say that they be goddes, seinge they can neyther gyue sentence in iudgement, nor do men any good. Wherfore for asmoche as ye be now assured, that they be no goddes, se ye feare them not: for they can speake neither good ne euill of anyng. They can shewe no tokens in heauen for the Drythen, neyther wyne as the Sunne, ne gyue lyght as the Moone. Yea the unreasonable beastes are better then they, for they can gett them vnder the shade, and do them selues good. So can ye be certified by no maner of meanes, that they be goddes: therefore feare them not. For lyke as a fray-boggarde in a garden of cucumbers kepeth nothinge, euen so are theyr goddes of wood, of syluer & golde: and lyke as a wyke thorne in an orchard, that euer byde spyteth vpon: yea lyke as a dead body that is cast in þe darke: euen so is it with those goddes of wood, syluer and golde. By the purple and scarlet whiche they haue vpon them, and soone faded away, ye maye vnderstande, that they be no goddes: yea theyr them selues shall be consumed at þe last, whiche shall be a grete confusyon of the lande. Blessed is the godly man, that hath no ymages and worshipeth none, for he shall be far from reppose.

Wherfore all that thou hast broughte vpon vs, and euery thyng that thou haste done to vs, thou hast done the in true iudgement: As in deliuerynge vs into the handes of our enemyes among vngodly and wyked abominacions, and to an vngodly kynge yea the most froward vpon earth. And now we maye not open our mouthes, we are become a shame and reppose vnto thy seruantes and to them that worshippe the. Yet for thy names sake (we beseeche the) call vs not oute for euer, breake not thy couenaunt, and take not away thy mercy from vs, for thy beloued Abrahams sake, for thy seruant Isaac sake and for thy holy Israels sake: to whom thou hast spoken, and promysed that thou wouldest multiplye thine seide as the starres of heuen, and as the sand that lyeth vpon the see shore. For we (O Lord) are become lesse then any people, and be kepte vnder at this daye in all the worlde, because of oure synnes: So that now we haue neither pryncce duke, prophete, burnt offeringe, sacrifice, oblation, incense, ne Sanctuarie before the.

Neuertheless, in a contempte herre and an humble spirite lette vs be receyued that we maye obtayne thy mercy. For as in sacrifice of lambs and bullocks, and in thousandes of fat lambs: so lette our offeringe be in thy sight this daye, that it maye please the, for there is no conuicion vnto us: that put their trust in þe. And now we folow the with all oure herte we feare the, and seke thy face. But vs not to shame, but deal with us after thy louynge kyndnesse, & accordynge to the multitude of thy mercyes. Deliuere be by thy myracles (O Lorde) and get thy name an honour: that all they which do thy seruantes euill, maye be confounded. Let them be ashamed thowow thy almyghty power, and let their strengthe be broken: that they maye knowe, howe that thou only art the Lorde God, and glorious thowowout all the worlde.

And the kynges seruantes that put them in, reasled not to make the ouen hote, with wyde fyre, wyde draue, pythe and sagottes: so that the flame brast forth of the ouen upon a foxy and nyne rubyes, yea it toke awaye, and byent by those Lardes that it gat hoite upon helpe the ouen. But the Angell of the Lorde came downe in to the ouen to Alaria and his fellows, and smote the flame of the fyre out of the ouen, and made the myddell of the ouen, as it had ben a colde wynde blowing, so that the fyre neither leached them, greued them, ne dard them hurt. Then these thre (as oute of one mouthe) prayled, benoureted, and blessed God in the toyname, sayng.

1. Mach. 2. 2. Blessed be thou, O Lorde God of our fathers: for thou art worthy of praye and honoure, yea and to be agnyfied for euermore. THE HISTORIE OF SVSANNA VVHICHE IS THE .XIII. CHAP. OF DANYEL AFTER THE LATYNE.

Here dwelte a man in Babylo, called Joachim, that toke a wyfe whose name was Susanna, the daughter of Helchias, a verye saye woman, and such one as feared God. Her father and her mother also were godly people, & taught theyr doughter to be godly, & taught theyr doughter to be godly, & taught theyr doughter to be godly.

Joachim her husbande was a great ryche man, & had a saye orcharde fornyng vnto his house. And to hym reforted the Jewes comonly, because he was as a man of reputation amonges them. The same yere were made two iudges, such as the Lorde speaketh of: All the wyrdens of Babylo, cometh from the elders (that is) from the iudges, whiche seme to rule the people. These came ofte to Joachim's house, and all such as had any thyng to do in the lawe, came thither vnto them.

Nowe when the people came agayne after noone, Susanna wente in to her husband's orcharde, to walke. The elders seinge this, that she went in daylye, and walked: they were enamoied vpon her, yea they were almost oure of theyr wyttes, and cast downe theyr eyes, that they should not se heauen, ne remembre that God is a righteous iudge. For they were bothe wounded with the loue of her, neither durst one them an other his grete. And for shame they durst not tell her, theyr inordinate lust, that they wolde sayne haue had to do wth her. Yet they layd wayte for her secretly from daye to daye, that they might at the last, haue a syght of her. And the one sayd to the other: Arise, let vs go home, for it is bidne tyme. So they went theyr way fro her.

When they returned agayne, they came together, enqueyrage out a matter betwene them selues, yea the one tolde the other of his wicked lust. Then appoynted they a tyme when they myght take Susanna alone.

It happened also that they espyed out a convenient tyme, when she wente forth to walke (as her maner was) and no body with her, but two maydens, and thought to walke by herself in the garden, for it was an hote season: and there was not one person there, save the two elders, that had byd them selues, to beholde her. So she sayd to her maydens: go sit me oyle and sope, and shut the orcharde doore, that I maye walke me. And they dyd as she bad them, & shut the orchard doore, & went aune them selues at a backe doore, to set the spynges that she had commaunded: but Susanna knewe not, that the elders laye there byd within. Nowe when the maydens were gone forth, the two elders gat them by: and ran vpon her, saying: vnto the orchard doores are shut, that no man can se vs: we haue a lust vnto the, therefore comfyt vnto vs, & lye with vs. If thou wilt not, we shall byngne a feyned mortal agayne the: that there was a yong felowe with the, and that thou hast sent awaye thy maydens for the same cause. Susanna syghed, and sayde: alas, I am in trouble on every side. Though I tolowe your mynde, it myll be my death: and yet I can not vnto you, I can not escape your handes. Well, it is better for me, to fall in to pouce hande without the dede doyng, then to lye in the syght of the Lorde: and with that, she cryed out with a loude voyce: the elders also cryed out agaynst her. Then ran there one to the orchard doore, and smote it open. Nowe when the seruantes of the house herde the crye in the orchard, they rushed in at a back doore, to se what the matter was. So when the elders tolde them the seruantes were greatly ashamed, for why there was neuer such a report made of Susanna. On a morow after came the people to Joachim her husbande & the two elders came also, full of mycheuous ymaginations agaynst Susanna, to byngne her vnto death, and spake thus before the people: Send for Susanna the daughter of Helchias, Joachim's wyfe, and immediately they sent for her. So she came wth her father & mother, & her chyldren & al her kynred. Nowe Susanna was a tender persn, & maruelous saye of face. Therefore the wycked men commaunded to take of the clothes fro her face (for she was couered) at a leese, they myght to be satisfied in her beauty: & the her frendes, yea & al they that knewe her, began to wepe.

These two elders stode by in the myddell of the people, and layd their handes vpon the heade of Susanna: which wept & looked vp towarde heauen, for her herte had a sure trust in the Lorde. And the elders sayde: As we were walkynge in the orchard alone, this woman came in with her two maydens whom she sent awaye frome her, and sparred the orchard doores. With that a yong felowe (whiche there was byd) came vnto her, & layd wth her. As for vs, we stode in a corner of the orchard. And when we saw this wyckednes we ran to her: and perceyued, that they had medled together. But we coude not holde hym, for he was stronger then we: thus he opened the doore, & gat him away. Nowe when we had take this woma, we asked her, what pson she was: but she wolde not tell vs. This is the matter, & we be witnesses of the same. The comen sorte belceid them, as those that were the elders & iudges of the people, & so they condemned her to death. Susanna cryed out with a loud voyce, & sayd. O euerglastynge God, thou searcher of secretes, thou knowest all thynges afoze: they come to pass: thou wotest, if they haue boyned falsly agaynst me: and behold, I must dye where as I neuer dyd any such thynges, as these men haue mayestrouly murthered agaynst me. And the Lorde herde her voyce, for when she was led forth to death, the Lorde rayled vpon the spynges of a yong chyld, whose name was Daniel, whiche cryed wth a loude voyce: I am

I am cleane fed this bloud. Then all the people turned the toward him, and sayd: What meane these wordes, þ thou hast spoken? Daniel stode in the middell of them, & sayd: Are ye such foolcs, & ye children of Israel, þ ye can not discern? Ye haue here condemed a daughter of Israel vnto death, & know not þ euerge toberfoze: Gelyt on iudgement agayne, for they haue spoken false wyneſſe agaynſt her.

Wherfoze the people turned agayne in all þ haile. And the elders (that is the principall brethre) sayde vnto him: come ſet downe here amonges vs, and ſhew vs this matter, ſeing God hath gauen the as greates honour as an elder. And Daniel ſayd vnto them: þur theſe two aſide one from an other, and then ſhal I heare them. Whẽ they were put a ſunder one from an other, he called one of them, and ſaid vnto hym: O thou olde cancherd eale, that haſt bled thy wychedneſſe ſo long: thyne vngacious dedes, whiche thou haſt done afore, are now come to lyght. For thou haſt gauen false iudgements, thou haſt oppreſſed the innocent, and letten the gylty go free, where as yet the Lozde ſayth: The innocent and cryghtous ſe thou ſaye not. Well thankeſt thou haſt ſene her, tell me vnder what tree ſaſt thou haſt ſene her ſaykyng together? He answered: Vnder a Holbery tree. And Daniel ſayd: beſeech well, nowe thou lyest euen vpon thyne heed. As the meſſenger of the Lozde hath receyued the ſentence of hym, to cut the in two. Then put he hym aſide, and called for the other, and ſayd vnto hym: O thou ſede of Canaan, but not of Iuda: ſay meſſe hath diſceyued the, and luſt haſt ſubverted thyne herte. Thus dealeſt thou afore with the daughter of Israel, and they (for feare) conſented vnto you: but the daughter of Iuda wolde not abyde your wychedneſſe. Nowe tell me the vnder what tree oppreſſed thou take them, ſpeakynge together? He answered: Vnder a Pomgranete tree. Then ſayde Daniel vnto hym: Crepe well, nowe thou lyest alſo euen vpon thyne heed. The meſſenger of the Lozde ſtandeth warpyng with the ſwerde to cut the in two, and to ſlape you botche.

With that, all the hole multitude gaue a great ſhout, and prayed God, which alwaye deliuereth them that put theyr truſt in hym. And they came vpon the two elders (to whom Daniel had conuict w̄ theyr owne mouth: þ they had gauen false wyneſſe) & deale with them, euen lykewiſe as they wold haue done with their neyghboure: ſea they d̄d accoꝝding to þ law of Moſes, & put them to death. Thus þ innocent bloud was ſaued þ ſame day. Then Helchias and his wyfe prayſed God, for theyr daughter Suſanna, w̄ Joachim her husband and all the kyned: that there was no diſhoneſtie ſound in her. Fro that day forth, was Daniel had in great reputacyon in the lyght of the people.

The hystorye of Bel and of the Dragon, whiche is the fourtene chapter of Daniel after the Latyne.

Here was at Babylon an ymage, called Bel: & there were spent vpon him euerie daye twelue cakes of yre, and vi. great pottes of wine. Hym d̄d the kynge worſhipp hym ſelfe, and went dayly to honoure him: but Daniel worſhipped his owne God. And the kynge ſayde vnto him: Why doest thou not worſhip Bel? he answered: Becauſe I maye not worſhipp thynges made with handes, but the luyngge God which made heuē and earth, & hath power vpon all fleſh. The kynge ſayde vnto him: thinkest thou not that Bel is a luyngge God? O ſepd thou not, how much he eateth & drynkeſt euerie daye? Daniel ſmyled and ſayde: O kynge diſceyue not thy ſelfe: this is but made of claye with in, and of metall without, neither eateth he euer any thyng. Then the kynge was wroth, and called for his preſtes, & ſayd vnto them: If ye tel me not, who is this, that eateth þeſe expences, ye ſhall dye: but yf ye can aſceyue me, that Bel eateth them, then Daniel ſhall dye, for he hath ſpoken blaſphemy agaynſt Bel. And Daniel ſayde vnto the kynge: let it ſo be, euen as thou haſt ſayde. The preſtes of Bel were iij. beſyde their wyues and chyldren. And the kynge went with Daniel in to the temple of Bel. So Bel's preſtes ſayde: As we wyll go oute and ſet thou the meate there (O kynge) and poure in the wyne: then ſhalt thou ſee, & ſeale it with thine owne ſygnet: and to morowe when thou commeſt in, yf thou ſyndeſt not, that Bel hath eaten vp all, we wyll ſuffre death: oꝝ els Daniel, that hath lyed vnto vs. The preſtes thought the ſelures ſure ynough, for vnder the aulter they had made a preynt inſtaunce, and there went they in euer, & ate vp what there was.

So when they were gone forth, the kynge ſet meates befoze Bel. Nowe Daniel had comanded his ſeruauntes to bynge aſſes & theſe be ſpited choꝝowout all the temple, that the kynge myght ſe. Then went they out, and ſpacerd the doze, ſealyngge it with þ kynge's ſygnet, and ſo departed. In the nyght came the preſtes with their wyues and chyldren (as they were wont to do) and ate and dyonke vp all. In the morninge he ſpyes at the breake of the daye, the kynge aroſe, and Daniel w̄ hym. And the kynge ſayde: Daniel are the ſeales hole yet? he answered: Yea O kynge, they be hole. Nowe as ſoone as he had opened the doze, the kynge looked vnto the aulter, and cryed with a loude voyce: Great art thou O Bel, and with theſe no diſceyue.

diſceyue. Then laughed Daniel, and held the kynge, that he ſould not go in, and ſayd: Behold the pavement, make well, whoſe foote ſtyppes are theſe? The kynge ſayd: I ſe þ ſote ſtyppes of men, women and chyldren. Then the kynge was angry, and toke the preſtes, w̄ theyr wyues and chyldren, and they ſetwed him the preynt dozes, where they came in and ate vp ſuch thynges as were vpon the aulter, for which cauſe the kynge ſlew them, and deliuered Bel in to Daniels power, which deſtroyed him and his temple.

And in that ſame place was a great dragon which they of Babylon worſhipped. And the kynge ſayd vnto Daniel: ſayell thou, this is but a God of metall alſo: lo he lyueth, he eateth and drynkeſt, ſo that thou canſt not ſay that he is no luyngge God, therfoze worſhipp him. Daniel ſayd to þ kynge: I wyll worſhipp the Lozde my God, he is the true luyngge God: ſurely this is not the God of lyfe. But gyue me leue, O kynge, and I ſhall deſtroy this dragon without ſwerd oꝝ ſtaffe. The kynge ſayd: I gyue the leue. Then Daniel toke pitch, fat and herry woll, and d̄d ſet the them together and made lompes therof: this he put in the dragons mouth, and ſo the dragon bꝛaſt in ſunder: and Daniel ſayd: lo, here is he who worſhipped. When they of Babylon herd that, they toke great ioye, and gathered the together agaynſt the kynge, ſayinge: The kynge is become a Jewe alſo, he hath deſtroyed Bel, he hath ſlaine the dragon, and put the preſtes to death. So they came to the kynge, & ſayd: let vs haue Daniel, oꝝ we wyll ſurely deſtroy the and thyne houſe. When the kynge ſaw, that they ruſhed in ſo ſore vpon hym, & that neceſſite conſtrayned him, he deliuered Daniel vnto them, whiche caſt him in to the Lyons den: where he was ſix dayes. In the den were ſeven Lyons, and there gauen them euerie day two bodies, and two ſhepe, which they w̄re not gauen them, to thynke they myght deuoure Daniel.

There was in Jery a Prophet called Abacuc, whiche had made potage, and broken breed in a depe platter, and was goyng in to the ſeld, to byngge it to the moꝝwers. But the angel of the Lozde ſaid vnto Abacuc: go carry the meat that thou haſt, in to Babylon, vnto Daniel whiche is in the Lyons den. And Abacuc ſayd: Lozde, I neuer ſaw Babylon: and the den I know not. Then the angel of the Lozde toke him by the top, and bare hym by the heere of the heed, and (thoꝝow a myghty wynde) ſet hym in Babylon vpon the denne. And Abacuc cryed, ſaying: O Daniel þ ſeruaunt of God, haue, take the breakefaſt that God hath ſent the. And Daniel ſayd, O God haſt thou thought vpon me? wel, thou neuer ſayellſt them that loue the. So Daniel aroſe, and ate: and the angel of the Lozde ſet Abacuc in his owne place agayn ſoꝝthwith.

Vpon the ſeuerth daye, the kynge went to beſeepe Daniel: & when he came to the den, he looked in: and beholde Daniel ſate in the myddell of the Lyons. Then cryed the kynge with a loude voyce, ſaying: Great art thou O Lozde God of Daniel: and he dycted hym out of the den. Then thoſe þ w̄re the cauſe of his deſtruction he d̄d caſte in to the den, and they w̄re ſtraght deuoured befoze his face. After this w̄ore the kynge vnto all people, kynredes and tungen, that dwelte in all countreys, ſaying: pear be multiplied with you. My comauendement is, in all the domination of my realme, that men ſeate and ſtand in awe of Daniels God, for he is the luyngge God, whiche endureth euer: his kynngdome abydeth vncorrupte, and his power is euerlaſtyng. It is he that can deliuer and ſaue: he dothe wonders and marueylous workes in heuen and in earth, for he hath ſaued Daniel fro the power of the Lyons.

The prayer of Manasses kynge of Iuda, when he was holden captiue in Babylon.

Lorde almyghty, God
of oure fathers: Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob: and of þe ryghtous seed of the: whiche thou hast made heuen & earth with al the furniture thereof, whiche thou hast ordeyned the see by the word of thy commaundment: whiche thou hast sette vpon the depe, and hast sealed it for thy fearfull and laudable name, whiche all men feare, and tremble before the face of thy vertue, and for the anger of thy threate-nyng, whiche is impossible to synners. But the mercye of thy pynnyng is grete and vn-searchable: for thou art the Lord God most hygh about all the erth, longe sufferyng, and excedyng mercifull, and repentaunt for the malice of men. Thou Lord after thy goodnesse hast promysed repentaunce of the remission of synnes: and thou þe art the God of the ryghtous hast not put repentaunce to þe ryghtous, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, vnto them that haue not synned agaynst the: But because I haue synned about the nombre of the lades of the see, and that myne iniquities are multiplied, I am humbled with manye bandes of yron, and there is in me no hea-thyng. I haue prouoked thyne anger, & haue done euill before the, in commyttynge abho-minacions and multiplying offences. And now I bowe the knees of my hert, requyrynge goodnesse of the, O Lord. I haue synned Lord, I haue synned, and knowe myne iniquitie. I be-seythe the by prayer, O Lord: forgyue me: forgyue me, and destroye me not with myne ini-quities, neither do thou alwayes remembere myne euils to punish them, but saue me: whiche I praye the euerslastyngly, all the dayes of my lyfe, for all the vertue of heauen prayseth the, and vnto the belongeth glorye: world withoute ende.
Amen.

THE FYRST BOKE OF
THE MACHABEES.

¶ After the death of Alexander kynge of Macedonia, Antiochus the kyng of Syria made commaund-ment with the Jewes, that they shoulde forsake the lawe of God, and kepe the lawes of the Greekes. And he sent vnto Jerusalem, and to all the cities of Iuda, that they shoulde forsake the lawe of God, and kepe the lawes of the Greekes.

CAPL I

After that Alexander the son of Philip, kyng of Macedonia, wrote forth the land of Celethim, and New Darins kyng of Persia and Medes: It happened that he toke grete warres in hand, and won many stronge cities, and sette many kynges of the earth: goyng thow to the endes of the worlde, and gettyng many spoiles of þe prople: In so moche that the worlde stode in grete awe of hym, and therfore was proude in his hert. Now when he had gathered a myghty hoste, and subdued the landes and the people with they: prynces, so that they became tributaries vnto hym: he fell sycke. And when he perceyued, that he must nedes dye, he called for his noble estates (whiche hadde bene brought vnto hym of chyldren) & parted his kyngdome amonges them, whyle he was yet almyghty. So Alexander raygned. xij. yere, and then dyed.

¶ After his deeth fell the kyngdome vnto his prynces, & they obtayned it euerye one in his rowme, and caused the selues to be crowned as kynges: and so did their chyldren: After the many yeres, and moche wickednesse increased in the worlde. Out of these came the vngodly Antiochus, the son of Antiochus, noble Antiochus, the son of Antiochus, the son of Antiochus, and he raygned in the. xxiij. yere of the raigne of the Grekes.

¶ In those dayes wrote there out of Irael wicked men, whiche moued moche people with they: counsell, sayynge: Let vs go and make a couenaunt with the heathen that are round about vs, for: sithens we departed fro them, we haue hadde moche sorow. So this dreyne pleased them well, and certeyn of the people toke vpon them to go vnto the kyng, whiche gaue them licence to do after the ordinaunce of the heathen. Then set they vp an open scole (at Jerusalem) of the lawes of the heathen, and were no more circumcised, but forsoke the holy testament, & forned them sel-ues to the heathen, and were cleue sold to w nischiffe.

¶ So when Antiochus began to be myghty in his kyngdome, he wente aboute to obtayne the land of Egypt also, that he myghte haue the domynion of two realmes. Upon this entred he in to Egypt with a stronge hoste, with

with charrettes, elephantes, horsemen, and a greate nombre of shypes, and began to war-re agaynst Ptolome the kyng of Egypt. But Ptolome was affrayd of him, and fled: and many of his people were wounded to deeth.
Thus Antiochus won many strong cities, & toke awaye grete good out of the lande of Egypt.

¶ And after that Antiochus had myghten Egypt, he turned agayne in the. xliij. yere, & went towardes Irael, and came vnto Jerusalem, whiche was a myghty people, and entred prou-de in to the Sanctuary, and toke awaye the golden altare, the candle stycke, & all the or-namentes therof, the table of þe shewbryd, the pouring vessel, the chargers, the golden spours, the vase, the crowne, & golden apparell of the temple, and brake downe all. He toke also the syluer and gold, the precious iuwels and the secreete treasures that he found. And whiche hadde taken awaye all, he caused a greate myghty of men, and so fulfilled his malicious pryde, and departed in to his own lande.

¶ Thus arose grete heynesse and misery in all þe land of Irael. The prynces and elders of the people mourned, the yong men and the maydes were despyled, and the fayre beaute of women was chaunged: the bydegrome and the byde toke them to mournyng: the lande and those that dw. in therein was morned, for all the house of Jacob was brought to nought.

¶ After two yeres the kyng sent his chiefe treasurer vnto the cyties of Iuda, whiche came to Jerusalem with a greate multitude of people, sayynge peaceable wordes vnto them, but all was disceyfe: for when they had given him reverence, he fel sodynly vpon the cytye, and smote it for, & destroyed moche people of Irael. And when he had spoyled the cytye, he set fyre on it, castynge downe houses and welles on euery syde. The women and they: chyldren toke they captiue, and ledde awaye they: catel. Then buydded they the castell of David with a greate and thick wall, and with myghty towres, and made it a stronge holde for them. Besyde all this, they set wicked people, & vngodly men to kepe it, stowed it with weapons and bitay-les, gathered the goodes of Jerusalem, and layd them vpon there: thus became it a thynny castell.

¶ And this was done to laye waye for þe people that went in to the Sanctuary, and for the cruel destruction of Irael. Thus they shed innocent blood on euery syde of the Sanctuary, and defiled it: In so moche that the city was fayne to departe, and the city became an habitation of straungers, bringe desolacion of her owne seed, for her owne na-tyons were fayne to leaue her. Her Sanctuary was cleue washed, her holy dayes were urged in to mournyng, her Saboths were hid in derision, & her honour brought to nought.
Loke how grete her glory was afore, so grete was her confusyon, and her toye turned in to sorrow.

¶ Antiochus also the kyng sent out a commission vnto all his kyngdome, that all the people shoulde be one. Then they left euery man his lawe, and all the heathen agreed to the commaundment of kyng Antiochus: Yea, many of the Jewes consented therunto, offring vnto ydols, & defiling the Saboth.
So the kyng Antiochus sent his messengers with his commaundment vnto Jerusalem, and to all the cities of Iuda, that they shoulde fo-lowe the lawes of the heathen, and forbade eithur burnt offering, meat offering, or peace-offering to be made in the temple of God, and that they shoulde no Saboth ne hye feast daye be kepte: but commaunded þe Sanctuary, and the holy people of Irael shoulde be defiled.

¶ He commaunded also there shoulde be set vp other altars, temples and ydols: to offere vpon swynes flesh and othere vncleane beastes, that men shoulde leue they: chyldren vncircumci-sed, to defyle they: soules with all maner of vncleannes and abominacions, & they might so forget the lawe, and chaunge al the holy or-dinaunces of God: and þe who so euer wold not do accordyng to the commaundment of kyng Antiochus, shoulde suffre deeth: In the maner commaunded he thow oute all his realme, and set rulers ouer the people, for to compell them to do these thynges, commaundyng the cities of Iuda to do sacrifice vnto ydols.

¶ Then went the people vnto the heathen by heapes, forsoke the lawe of the Lord, and committed moche euill in the land: yea and chaged out the secretes of Iraelites, which had hyd the selues in corners and prynces places. The
xv. daye of the month Adar, in the. xliij. yere, set kyng Antiochus an abhominable y-dole of desolacion vpon the altare of God, & they buydded altars thow oute all the cy-ties of Iuda on euery syde, before the doores of the houses, and in the strettes, wher: they brent incense and did sacrifice. And the bookes of the lawe of God, they bent them in þe fyre, and rent them in peeces. What so euer he was that had a booke of the testament of the Lord founde by hym: yea who so euer endeuoured hym selfe to kepe the lawe of the Lord, the kynges commaundment was, that they shoulde put hym to deeth. And thow his auctorite they executed these thynges euerye moneth, vpon the people of Irael that were found in the cities.

¶ The fyue and twenty daye of the month what tyme as they did sacrifice vpon the altare (whiche stode in the side of the altare of þe Lord) accordyng to the commaundment of kyng Antiochus, they put certeyn women to death, whiche hadde caused they: chyldren to be circumcised: Not only that, but they hanged by the chyldren by the neckes thow oute all they: houses, and sette the circumcisers of them.

¶ Yet were ther many of the people of Irael whiche determined in them selues, that they wold not eat vncleane thyng, but chose rather to suffre deeth, the to be defiled with vncleane flesh.

meates. So because they wolde not bryke the blessed law of God, they were cruelly slayn. And this great tyranny increased verie sore vpon the people of Israel.

The mourning of Mathathias and his sonnes, for the destruction of the holy cite. They refused to do sacrifice vnto Idols. The zeile of Mathathias for the lawe of God. They are slayne and wyl not fyghe agayne because of the Sabbath daye. Mathathias byng commannder hit sonnes to fyghe by the woide of God, after the example of the fathers.

CAPL

II.

Those dayes there did stand by one Mathathias the sonne of Symeon the preeste (out of the kindred of Joariz) from Jerusalem, and dwelt vpon the mount of Modin, & had .v. sonnes: Jhon called Gaddis Symeon called Thasi: Jadas otherwyle called Machabeus: Eleazer, otherwyle called Abas: and Jonathas, whose surname was Apphus. These sawe the euyl that was done amonge the people of Juda and Jerusalem. And Mathathias sayd: Wo is me, alas I euer I was borne, to se this misery of my people, and the pitious destruction of the holy cite, and thus to fyt to fill, it being deliuered in to the handes of the enemies. Her Sanctuary is come in to the power of straungers, her temple is as it were a man & hath losse his good name. Her precious ornaments are caried awaye captiue, her olde me are slayne in the streets and her yong men are falle thowow & sword of the enemies.

Math. i. b

What people is it that hath not some possession in her kyngdome? Who hath not gotten some of her spoyle? All her glorie is taken awaye. She was a quene, and now she is become an handmayde. Beholde our Sanctuary, our beautie and honour is wasted awaye, and despyled by the Gentyles. What helpeth it vs the to lyue? And Mathathias rent his clothes and his sonnes, and put sackcloth vpon them, and mourned verie sore.

Then came the men thither whiche were sent of kyng Antiochus to compell suche as were fled in to the cite of Modin, for to do sacrifice and to burne incense vnto ydols, & to forsake the lawe of God. So many of the people of Israel consented and inclined vnto them, but Mathathias & his sonnes remayned steadfast. Then spake the commissioners of kyng Antiochus, and said vnto Mathathias: thou art a nobleman of high reputation and great in this cite, hauing many chyldren, and fulfyll the kynges commaundement, like as all the heathen haue done. yea & the me of Juda, and such as remayne at Jerusalem: so shalt thou and thy chyldren be in the kynges fauour, and enricheid with gold, silver, & great rewardes.

Mathathias answered and spake with a loud voyce: Though all nations obeye the kyng Antiochus, and fall awaye every man fro keeping the law of their fathers: though they consente to his commaundementes, yet wyl I & my sonnes and my brethren, not fall from the law of our fathers. God forbid we shold, that were not good for vs, & we shold forsake the law and ordinaunces of God, and to agre vnto the commaundement of kyng Antiochus. Therefore we wil do no such sacrifice, neither bryake & statutes of our law, to go an other waye. And when he had spoke these wordes, there came one of the Jewes, which openly in the sight of all, dyd sacrifice vnto the ydols vpon the altare in the cite of Modin, accordyng to the kynges commaundement.

Whē Mathathias saw this, it grieved him at the hert, so that his raynes shoke withall, and his wrath kindled for very zeile of & law. With that he gaue a cry for the, and killed the Jewe belyde the altare: yea and slew the kynges commissioner, that compelled him to do sacrifice, and destroyed the altare at the same time, such a zeile had he vnto the law of God, lyke as Phineches dyd vnto Zambry & sonne of Salom. And Mathathias cryed a loud voyce thowow the cite, saying: Who so is feruent in the law, & wil kepe the countaunt, let him folow me. So he & his sonnes fled in to the mountaynes, and left all that euer they had in the cite. Many other godly men also departed in to the wilderness with theyr chyldren, theyr wyues and their catell, and remayned there, the tyrany increased so sore vpon them.

Nowe when the kynges seruantes and the hoste, whiche was at Jerusalem in the cite of David herde that certayne men had broken the kynges commaundement, and were gone theyr waye to the wilderness in to secret places, and that there were many departed after them: they folowed vnto them to fyghe agaynst them in the Sabbath daye, and sayd: Wyl ye yet rebel? Get you hence, and do the commaundement of kyng Antiochus, and ye shall lyue. They answered: we wyl not goo for the, neyther wyl we doo the kynges commaundement, to despyle the Sabbath daye. Then began they to fyghe agaynst them, neuertheless they gaue them none other answer, neyther caste they one stone at them, nor made fast theyr places, but sayd: We wyl dye all in our innocency, beurn and etch hal scilf with vs, that ye put vs to death wrongously. Then they fought agaynst them vpon the Sabbath, and slew both men and catell, their wyues and theyr chyldren, to the nombre of a thousande people.

When Mathathias and his frendes herde this, they mourned to: them ryot & sore, and sayd one to an other: If so be & we al do as our brethren haue done, & fight not for our liues and for our lawes agaynst & heathen, then shall they the sooner roote vs out of the erth. So they concluded amonge themselves at the same tyme, saying: What to euer be that cometh to make battayle with is vpon the Sabbath daye, we wyl fyghe agaynst him, and not dye al, as our brethren, & were murderd so heynously. Vnto this came the Synagoge of & Jewes vnto the, strong men of Israel, all such as were feruent in the lawe. And all they that were fled for persecution, came to helpe them, and to stande by them: In so moche that they gathered an host of men, and slew the wycked doers in theyr gylously, and the vngodly me in their wrath. Some of the wycked fled vnto the heathen, and escaped.

Thus Mathathias and his frendes went aboute, and destroyed the altars, and circumcised the chyldren, that had not yet receyued circumcision: as many as they founde within the coostes of Israel: and folowed myghtyly vpon the chyldren of pryde, and this acte pceded in theyr handes: In so moche that they kepte the lawe agaynst the power of the Gentyles and the kynges, and gaue not ouer theyr domynyon vnto wycked doers.

After this, when the tyme drew on fast, & Mathathias shold dye, he said vnto his sonnes: Now is the tyme of destruction & wrath ful displeasur: wherfore (o my sonnes) be ye feruent in the law, & leopard your lyues for the testame nt of the fathers: call to remembrance to eat actes our fathers dyd in their tyme, so all ye receyue great honour, and an euerlastyng name.

Remember Abraham, was not he founde faithful in temptation, and it was reckened vnto him: for righteousness: Joseph in tyme of his trouble, kepte the commaundement, and was made a lord of Egypt. Phineches our father was so feruent for the honour of God, that he obteyned the couenaunt of an euerlastyng name. Josue for fullyng the wynde of God, was made the capitayne of Israel. Caleb bare recorde before the congregaciō, and receyued an heritage. David also in his mercifull kyndnesse, obteyned & throne of an euerlastyng kyngdome. Eliah bringe gylous and feruent in the law, was taken vp in to heuen. Hananias Azarias and Misael, remayned steadfast in fayth, and were deliuerd out of the fyre. In lyke maner Daniel being vngilty, was saued from the mouth of the lyons.

And thus ye maye consydre thowout all ages sitens the world began, that who so euer put their trust in God were not ouercome. Feare not ye then the wordes of an vngodly man, for his glorie is but dong & wyl mys: to daye is he set vp, and to morowe is he gone: so he is turned in to erth, and his memorial is come to nought. Wherfore, o my sonnes, take good hertes vnto you, & quyte your selues like men in the law: for ye do the thinges that are commaunded you in the lawe of the Lord your God, ye shal obteyn great honour therein.

And behold I know that your brother Symeon is a man of wisdom, so that ye give care vnto him alway, he shal be a father vnto you

As for Judas Machabeus, he hath euer bene mighty and stronge, from his youth vp: let him be your capiteyn, & o: & the batell of & people: thus shal ye bring vnto you al those that fauour the law, & se ye avenge & wylong of your people, and recompence the heathen agayne, and apply your selues hole to the commaundment of the law. So he gaue them his blessing, and was layde by his fathers: and died in the .c. xvi. yere at Modin, where his sonnes buried him in his fathers sepulchre, and all Israel made greates lamentacion for hym.

Judas is made ruler ouer the Jewes. He brylith Appolonius and Seron the prynces of Syria. The conspience of Judas toward God. Judas determineth to fyghe agaynst Ahas, whom Antiochus had made captayne ouer his host. The praye of the aduysers.

CAPL

III.

Then stode by Judas Machabeus in his fathers steed, and all his brethren belyved him: and so dyd al they that helde with his father, & fought with cherefulness for Israel. So Judas gat his people great honour: he put on a bresplate as a glaunt, and arrayed hym self with his harness, and destroyed the host with his swerde. In his actes he was lyke a lyon, & as a lyons whelp roying at his pray. He was an enemy to the wicked, and hunted them out, and bent vpon those that byred his people: so that his enemies fled for feare of him, and all the workers of vngodlynesse were put to trouble, such lucke and prosperitie was in his hand. This grieved diuers kynges, but Jacob was greatly reioysed thowow his actes, and he gat him self a great name for euer.

He wyl thowow the cities of Juda, destroying the vngodly out of them, turning away the wrath from Israel, and receyvinge suche as were oppressed: & the same of him wyl be vnto the uttermost parte of the erth. When Appolonius (a prync of Siria) gathered a myghty & great hoste of the heathen, and out of Samaria, to fyghe agaynst Israel, whiche when Judas perceyued, he went forth to meete him, fought with him, slew him, and a great multitude with him: the remnaunte fled, and he toke their substance. Judas also toke Appolonius owne swerde, and fought with it all his lyfe longe.

Appolonius.

Now when Seron (an other prync of Siria) herde saye, that Judas had gathered vnto hym the congregation and churche of the faythful, he said: I wil get me a name and a prayse thowow out the realm. So I wyl go fyghe with Judas, and theym that are with hym, as many as haue despyled the kynges commaundement. So he made hym redye, and there went with hym a greates myghty hoste of the vngodlye to stande by hym, and to be auenged of the chyldren of Israel. And when they came nye vnto Bethoron, Judas went forth agaynst them with a small company.

peny. And when his people saw such a great hoste before them, they sayde vnto Judas: how are we habile (beinge so fewe) to fyght against so great a multitude and so stronger? for we be so wery, and haue fasted all this daye.

1. Para. x. b

But Judas sayde: It is a small matter for many to be overcome with few: yea there is no difference to the God of heuen, to deliuer by a great multitude or by a small company: for the victorie of the battell standeth not in the multitude of the hoste, but the strength commeth from heuen. Beholde, they come agaynst vs with a presumptuous and proude multitude, to destroye vs, our wyues and our chyldren, and to robbe vs. But we wyl fyght for our lyues, and for our lawes, and the Lorde hym selfe shall destroye them before our face: therfore be not ye afrayde of them.

1. Chron.

As soon as he had spoken these wordes, he left secretly vpon them. Thus was Seron smitten, and his hoste put to flight, and Judas followed vpon them beyonde Bethoron vnto the playn field, where there were slayne eyght hundred men of them, and the residue fled in to the land of the Philistines. Then all the heathen on euery syde were afrayde for Judas and his brethren: so that the rumour of him came vnto the kinges eares, for all the Gentyles coude tell of the warres of Judas.

So when kyng Antiochus herde these tydings, he was angry in his mynde: wherefore he sent forth and gathered an host of his hole realme, very strong armys, and opened his treasury and gaue his host a yeres wages in hande, commaundynge them to be redye at all tymes.

Nevertheless when he sawe that there was not money ynough in his treasures, & that chozow the dyscorder and persecution, which he made in the lande (to put downe the lawes that hadde ben of olde tymes) his customes and tributes of the lande were mynished: he feared that he was not habile for to heare the costes and charges any longer, nor to haue suche gyftes, to geue so liberally as he dyd afore, more then the kinges that were before him.

1. Macha. vi. a

Lilias.

Wherefore he was heuy in his mynde, and thought to go in to Persides for to take tributes of Persia, & so to gather much money. So he left Lylas (a noble man of the kinges blood) to ouerse the kinges businesse, from the water Euphrates, vnto the borders of Egypt, and to kepe wel his son Antiochus, tyl he came agayne.

Moreover he gaue hym halfe of his hoste, and Elephantas committed vnto him euery thyng of his mynde, concerning the lande which dwelt in Juda and Iherusalem, that he shoulde sende out an armie agaynst them, to destroye and to rote out the power of Israel, and the remnant of Iherusalem: to put oute theyr memorial from that place, so that straungers for to inhabyte all theyr quarters, and to parte theyr lande amonges them. Thus the kyng toke the other part of the host, and departed from Antioch (a citye of his realme) ouer the water of Euphrates, in the hundred and. xlv. yere, and wente thowthe the hygh countreys.

And Lylas chose vnto hym Ptolomee the sonne of Dorymeus, Aicanus, and Gorgias myghty men, and the kinges friends. These he sent with. xl. thousande footemen, and. v. thousande horsemen, for to go in to the land of Juda, and to destroye it, as the kyng commaunded. So they went forth with all theyr power, & came to Emmaus in to the playne felde. When the marchauntes herde the rumour of them, they and theyr seruantes toke very much siluer and gold, to die the chylde of Israel to be their bondmen. There came vnto them also yet more men of warre on euery syde, out of Syria, and from the Palestines.

Now when Judas and his brethren sawe that trouble increased, & that the hoste byrnyed vnto the borders, consideringe the kynges wordes which he commaunded vnto the people: namelye, that they shoulde utterly waste and destroye them. They sayde one to another. Let vs redress the decaye of oure people, let vs fight for our folke, and for our Sanctuarye. Then the congregacion were soone redye gathered to fyght, to praye, and to make supplicacion vnto God for mercy & grace.

As for Iherusalem, it laye boyde, and was as it hadde ben a wyldernesse. There wente no man in nor out at it, and the Sanctuarye was troden downe. The aleuantes kept the castle there was the habitation of the heathen. The myrth of Jacob was taken away, the pype and the harpe was gone fro among them.

The Iheruslytes gathered them togither, and came to Bethphage before Iherusalem: for in Bethphage was the place where they planted a figge tyme. So they fasted that daye, and put sackcloth upon them, cast ashes vpon theyr heades, rente theyr clothes, and layde for the bookes of the lawe (whereunto the heathen soughte the lykenesse of theyr synnes) (and broughte the prestes ornaments the firrillinges and the tyches. They set there also the abitarers (which hadde fulfilled theyr dayes) before God, and cryed with a loude voyce towarde heuen, sayinge: What shall we doo with these? and wherfor shall we carpe them awaye? for the Sanctuarye is troden downe and despyled, the prestes are come to heynesse dishonour: and beholde the heathen are come together for to destroye vs. Thou knowest what thynges they ymagin agaynst vs. How may we stand before them, excepte thou, o God, bringe helpe?

They blew oute the trumpet also with a loude voyce. When Judas ordered saynes ouer the people: ouer thousandes, ouer hundredes, ouer fiftie, and ouer ten. But as for suche as buydded them houses, married wyues, planted them vineyardes, and those that were fearful: he commaunded them euery man to go home, accordynge to the lawe. So the hoste remoued, and pitched vpon the southsyde of Emmaus.

And Judas sayde: Arme your selues, be stronge (O my chyldren) make you redye agaynst to morow in the morning, that ye may fyght with these people, which are agreed together to destroye vs and oure Sanctuarye. Better is it for vs to dye in battayle, then to see our people and our Sanctuarye in such a miserable case. For the helpe, as the wyll is in heauen, so be it.

Judas goeth agaynst Gorgias, which lyeth in wait. He putteth Gorgias and his hoste to flight. Lylas inuadeth Jeryse, but Judas dyspueth him out. Judas purifyeth the temple, and dedycateth the altare.

CAP. III.

Then toke Gorgias foure thousande men of force, and a thousande of his best horsemen: and remoued by nyght, to come nye where the Jewes hoste laye, and so to take them suddenly. Now the men that kepte the castle, were the conueyers of them. Then arose Judas to smyte the chiefe and principal of the kynges host at Emmaus, for the army was not yet come together. In fynes season came Gorgias by nyght in to Judas tentes: and when he founde no man there, he soughte them in the mountaynes, & thoughte they had bene fled away because of hym. But when it was daye, Judas shewed hym selfe in the felde with thye thousande men oulre, which hath neither harness, ne swordes to theyr mynres.

But on the other syde, they sawe that the heathen were myghty and well harnessed, and their horsemen about them, and all these well experie in frates of warre. Then sayde Judas to the men that were with him: Feare not the multitude of them, be not afeard of theyr violence runnyng: remember howe our fathers were deliuered in the red see, when Pharaos threatened them with a great host. Euen so let vs also rye now towarde heauen: and the Lorde shall haue mercy vpon vs, and remembre the couraige of our fathers, yea and destroye this hoste before our face this daye: And all the heathen shall knowe that it is God him self, which deliuereth and saueh Israel.

Then the heathen lyst by theyr eyes: and when they sawe that they were conynge agaynst them, they went out of theyr tentes in to the battayle: and they that were with Judas, blew by the trumpets. So they buckled together, and the heathen were discomfited, and fled ouer the playne felde: but the hymnost of them were aspat. For they followed vpon them vnto Baramoth, and in to the felde of Judea, towarde Bzai and Jamnia: so that there were slayne of them vpon a thye thousande men. So Judas arose agaynst with his hoste, and sayd vnto the people: Be not greedy of the spoyle, we haue yet a battayle to fyghte: for Gorgias and his hoste are here by vs in the mountaynes, but stande ye fast agaynst our encampes, and overcome them: then may ye safely take the spoyle.

As Judas was speakynge these wordes, there appeared one parte of them vpon the mount. But when Gorgias sawe that they of his partye were fled, and the tentes brente vp (for by the smoke they myght vnderstand what was done) they perceyvinge this, were very sore afrayde: and when they sawe also that Judas and his hoste were in the felde ready to fyghte battayle, they fled euerychone in to the lande of the heathen.

So Judas turned agayne to spoyle the tentes, where they gat much golde and syluer, precious stones, purple, and greete ryches. Thus they went home and songe a psalme of thankesguyng and prayed God in beauen for he is gracious, and his mercye endureth for euer: And so Israel had a great victorie in that daye.

Some all the heathen that escaped, came and tolde Lylas euery thyng as it happened. Wherefore Lylas was sore afrayed and grieved in his mynde, because Israel had not got ten suche myffortune as he wolde they shoulde neither as the kyng commaunded. The next yere solowynge, gathered Lylas thye thye thousande chosen men, of Ioseph, & syue thousande horsemen to fyght agaynst them.

So they came in to Jeryse, and pitched theyr tentes at Bethoron, where Judas came agaynst them with ten thousande men. And when he sawe so great myghte an hoste, he made his prayers and sayde: Blessed be thou (O laupoure of Israel) which byddest thy people the violence power of the graunte, in the hand of thy seruant David, and gauest the host of the heathen into the hand of Ionathas (the sonne of Saul) and of his weapō beare.

Put this hoste now into the hande of thy people of Israel, and let them be confounded in their multitude of horsemen. Make them afrayed, and discomfite the boldnes of their strength, that they maye be moued to rewe their destruction. As then downe thou comest the swordes of thy louers, then shall all they that knowe thy name, prayse the with thankesguyng.

So they stroke the battayle, & there were slayne of Lylas hoste, syue thousande men. When Lylas sawe the discomfytynge of his men, and the manynes of the Jewes, home they were ready, rather to fyue or to dye lyke men: he went vnto Antioch and chose oute men of warre: that when they were gathered together, they myght come agayne in to Jeryse. When sayde Judas and his brethren beholde our enemyes are discomfited: Let vs not go by, to cleane and repayre the Sanctuarye.

Then this all the hoste gathered them togither, and went by vnto Baramoth. Nowe when they sawe the Sanctuarye layd waste wasle, the altare defyled, the hazes bent vp, the whorres growng in the courtes, like as the priettes Lelles were broken downe: They rent thei clothes, made great lamentation, sed the Sanctuary, and bare out the defiled stones, in to an vnclene place. And for somoche as the altare of burntofferings was defiled, he toke aduancement, what he myght do with all : so he thought it was best to destroye it : lest it should happen to to the any shame) for the heathen had defiled it, and therefore they brake it downe. As for the stones they layed them by vpon the mountayne, by the house in a conuenient place : till there came a prophete to shew, what should be done with them.

So they take hyle stones accordyng to the lawe, and buylded a newe altare, such one as was before, & made by the Sanctuary within and withoute, and halowed the courtes.
They made newe ornaments, and brought the candelsticke, the altare of incense, and the table into the temple. The incense layed they upon the altare, and lighted the lāpes which were upon the candelstykke, that they myght burne in the temple. They set the Gembrees upon the table, and hanged by the bale, and set by the temple as it was afore. And upon the .xiiij. daye of the nyen moneth, whiche is called the moneth of Caslew, in the .c. xliij. yeere: they rose by byrpymes in the morninge for to do sacrifice accordyng to the lawe bypō, the newe burnt offering altare, that they had made: after the tyme and seaso that the Ar-chen had desired it. The same daye was it set by agayne, with songes, pypes, harpes, and cymbales.

And all the people fell vpon their faces, & two whipping and thankynge the God of heuen which had giuen them the victorie. So they kept the dedication of the altare. viij. dayes, offering burnelacrifices and thankofferings with gladnesse. They deckt the temple also wth crownes and wydes of golde, and halowed y^e postes & relles, and hanged wyres vpon them.

Dedication. Thus there was very great gladnes among his people, because he had purged them of the Heathē that was put away. So Judas & his brethren & the hole congregation of Israel, ordered that the tyme of the dedycacyon of þe altare shoulde be kepte in his season, from feare to feare, by the space of eght dayes, from the twenty a fifth day of the month Assumptra and that with myzth and gladnesse.

And at the same time buylded they by the mount Syon, with hygh walles and strange towers round about: and the Centries shuld come and trade in doayne, as they had afore.
¶ Therefore Judas let them of treat in it, so hope it: and make it strong, for to defend Bethlame:

that the people might haue a refuge against the Edomites.

Andas baynguyfled the heathen that go about to destroy Israel, and is holpen of his brethren Symon and Jonathan. He ouerthreweth the tyte of Ephron, because they denyed hym passage thow it.

CAP: V

It happened also that when the heathen rounde aboute herde, howe that the auter and the Sanctuary were set vp in theye olde state: it displeased theym verie sore wherefore they thought to destroye the generacion of Iacob that was amonges them: In so much that they began to slaye and to pri-uate certayne of the people. Then Iudas fought agaynste the chyldren of Esau in Foumea, and agaynst those which were at Araba thane (for they dwelt round aboute the Israelites) where he slawe and spoyled a great multytude of them. He thoughte also upon the malice and unfaithfulnes of the chyld of Ben, how they were a snare and trappe vnto the people, an howe they layed waite for them in the bygh waie wherefore he shut them vp in to towres, and came vnto them, condemned them, and bent vp their towres with all that were in them.

After wards went he agaynste the chyldre of Ammon, wherof he founde a myghty power, and a greate multytude of people, with Timothy their captayn. So he stroke many battayles with them, whiche were destroyed before hym. And when he had slayne them, he tooke the cite, with the towynes belongyng thereto, and so turned agayne into Jerusalem. The heathen also in Galilee gathered them together, agaynste the israelites that were in their quarters to slay them: but they fled to the call of Dabbenan, and sent letters vnto Judas and his brethren, sayinge:
The heathen are gathered agaynste vs on eu-ery syde, to destroye vs, and now they make them for to come, and laye lege to the cable to herben into we are fled, and Timothy is the captayn of theyr host, come therfore and de-liuer vs out of theyr handes: for there is a greate multytude of vs slayne al readye. Yet and our brethren that were at Tubin, are slayne and destroyed (well nygh a thousand men) and their wyues, theyr chyldren & theyr goodes haue theyr enemyes ledde awaye captyue.

W^hyle these letters were yet a reading, behold, there came other messengers from Salice, with rent clothes, whiche to be cum the same tydynges, and sayde, that they of Ptolemaus, of Tirus and of Sidon were ga thered agaynst them, and that all Salice was fylled with enemyes to destroye Israel.
When Judas and the people herbe this, they came together (a greate conger agayn) to de uyse, what they myght do for their brethren, that were in trouble and besyged of their enemyes.

mites. And Judas sayd vnto Symon his brother: chuse the out certayne men, and go deli-uer thy brethren in Galilee: As for me and my brother Jonathan, we wyl go in to Galaadithim. So he lefte Josephus the sonne of Za-charye, and Acharas to be Captaynes of the people, and to kepe the remnaunt of the hood in Jetyse, and commaunded them, sayinge: Take the ouersight of this people, & se that ye make no warre agaynst the Iewen, vntyll the tyme that we come agayne. And vnto Symon he gaue thre thousande men, for to go into Galilee, but Judas him selfe had eight thousande in Galaadithim.

Then wente Symon in to Galilee, and make byures batayles with the Heiche: who he discomfited, and solatved upon them va-to the porte of Helomais. And there were dayne of the Weithen almost the thousand men. So he toke the spories of them, and ca-erw awaye the Iffracliptes, that were in Galilee and Rebatis, with they; wyues, they chyliden, and all that they had, and brought them in to Jewry with greate gladnesse. Judas Machabens also and his brother Jona-thas, went ouer Jordane, and trauayled thre dayes iourney in the wyldernes: Where the Jebuthes met them, and receyued them louynge, and tolde them euery thyng that had happened vnto they; yethien in Galaad thim, and how that many of them were beseged in Barak, Boso, Altinis, Caspho, Magith & Carnaim (al these are strong walled & myghtye greate cyties) and that they were kept in ordre ctytes of Galaad also: and tomorrow they are apoynted to byng their host vnto these ctytes, to take them and to wynde them in one daye.

So Judas and his host turned in all the haste in the worldenelle towards Bolo, and when the ctye, snewe all the males with the swordes, toke all their goodes, and set fire vpon the ctye. And in the nyght they toke thry townre from thence, and came to the castell. And bytymes in the moynynge when they loked vp, beholde, there was an innumerable people, bearnynge labers & other instruments of warre, to take the castell and to overcome them.

When Judas sawe that the battayle began, and that the people thereof wente by and range in to the heauz, and that there was so great a cry in the cytie: He sayd vnto his folowers, fight this day for your bretheren. And so came be-hinde these enemyes in thie companies, and blew the trompettes, and cryed in their prayer to God.

But as soone as Timotheus had percey-ued that Bachabeus was there, they fledde from him, and the other slewe them downe vppit soire: so that there were killed of them that same day, almost eight thousande men.
Then departed Iudas vnto Maspha, leped stege vnto it and man it, Acto al the males in it, spoiled it, and set fyre vpp it. From thence went he a soke of Hon, Magery, Bofoz, and the other cities in Galad.

After this gathered Timothy another

Forsoe, which pitched these tentes before Ra-phon beyond the water. Judas sente to spye the host, and they brought hym word agayne sayinge: All the heathen that be rounde a-boute vs, are gathered into hym, & the host is very great: yea they haue hired the Ara-bians to helpe them, and haue pitched tentes beyond the water, and are redy to come and feght agaynst vs. So Judas wente on to make them.

And Elmothy sayde vnto the captaynes of his hood: when Judas and his host come nigh the wate: yf he go oure first, we shall not be able to withstande hym: for wh y, he wyl be so stronge for vs. But yf he dare not come ouer so that he pitch his tent beyonde the wate: then wyl we go ouer, for we shall be stronge ynough agaynst hym.
Now as soone as Judas came to the ryuer he appoynted certayne scribes of the people, and commaunded them, sayinge: se that ye leue none behynd byd this syde of the ryuer, but let euerye man come to the battayle. So he went first ouer vnto them and his people after hym.

And all the heathen were discomfeted before hym, and let their weapons fall, and ran in to the temple that was at Carnaim. Which Carnaim crysye Judas wan, and burnt the temple with all that were in it: So was Carnaim subdued and might not withstande Judas. Then Judas gathered al the Israelites that were in Galaabithim, fro the leed vnto the most, with their wives and their chyldren (a very greate host) so; so come in to the lande of Israel.

So they came vnto Ephron, whiche was a myghtye, greate and stronge cytye and laye in their waye. For they coulde not goo by it, neither of the ryght hande ne of the left, but must go thorow it. Neuertheles they that were in the cyty, wold not let the go thorow but walled by the portes with stones. And Judas sent vnto them wth peaceable wordes, sayinge: Let vs passe thorow your lande. & we maye go in to oure owne countrey: there shall no hodge do ye harme, we wyll but only go thorow. But they wold not let the in.
Wherefore Judas commaunded a proclamacion to be made thorow out the host, that euery man shoulde kepe his odyr: and so they dedy their best lyke valyaunt men.

And Judas beslegged the ctye all that daye and all that nyghte, and so towe it : where they slew as many as were males, and destroyed the ctye and spoyled it, and wente thorow all the ctye over them that were slayne. Then went they ouer Jordan into the playne felde before Bethsan. And Judas be-yeth those srowarde that came behynde, and gaue the people good exhortacion at the way thorow till they were come in to thei land of Iuda. Thus they went vp vnto the mounte Sion, where they offered in myrrh and than-keguyng : because there were none of thei slayne, but came home agayne prynces.

Now what time as Judas and Jonathan were in the lande of Galaad, and Symon they brother in Galilee before Jerusalem: Then Josephus the sonne of Zachary, and Asarpas the captaynes, hearing of the acts that were done, and the battayles that were broken, sayd: Let vs get us a name also, and go fight agayn the Perethen that are round about vs.

So they gaue them good a commaundment, and wente toward Jamnyah. When came Sogras and his men out of the ctye, to fight agayn them: Josephus also and Asarias were chafed vnto the borders of Jewry and there were many that daye of people of Israel two. Men: so that there was a great mytery amonges the people, and all because they were not obeyed vnto Judas and his brethren, but thought they shoulde quyte them selues manfully. Nevertheless, they came not of the side of these men, by whom Israel was helped. But the men that were with Judas, were greatly commended in the sight of all Israel and all Iherusalem, where so euer they name was heere vpon, and the people came vnto them, bydynge them to come.

After this wente Judas forthe with his brethren, and fought agayn the chydren of Elau, in the land that lieth toward the south where he wanne the ctye of Iebon, and the countes that lie beynde it: and as for the walles and towres round about it, he dyt them vp. Then remoued he to go in to the lande of the Philistines, and went thowto Samaria. At the same tyme were there many prestes Rayne in battayle, which wyfully and without aduylment went out for to fight to get them honour. And when Judas came to fight in the Philistines land, he brake downe their altars, byt the ymages of their Idols, spoyled the cytyes, and came agayne into the land of Juda.

¶ Antiochus wyllinge to take the ctye of Elimas for agayne, is dyuen awaye of the Euzyns. He faulth in to Iherusalem and dyeth. His sonne Antiochus is made king. The beleage of the towre of Ierusalem. Eupator cometh to Jewry with a great armye. The boldnesse of Elazar.

CAPL VI.

Josephus cap. lvi. lib. vii.

Antiq.

Now when kynge Antiochus traunpled thowto the hye countreyes, he herde of Elimas in Preia was a noble and piteous ctye in siluer and gold, and that there was in it a verye temple: where as were clothes, cote armours, and wyldes of golde, whiche Alexander the sonne of Philip kynge of Macedonia had left behynde him. Wherefore he wente about to take the ctye and to spoyl it, but he was not able: for the ctyezins were warned of it, & fought with hym. And so he fled and departed with great heuynesse, and came agayne in to Babylon. Dore ouer there came one whiche brought him tydynge to Iherusalem, that his doctes whiche were in the lande of Juda, were dyuen awaye, and how that Lillas went forthe with a great power, and was dyuen awaye of the Jewes: howe that they had won the bytch, and gotten grete goodes out of the handes of the Perethen: how they had broken downe the abhominacion, which he set vpon the altare at Jerusalem, and fenced the Sanctuary with hygh walles, like as it was afore yea and Bethsura his ctye also.

So it chaunced, that when the kynge had herde these wordes, he was asfayde and gned verye soze. Wherefore he layde hym down vpon his bed, and fell speke for verye soze: and all because it hadde not happened as he had deuyed. And there continued he longe, for his grete was cur moze and moze, so he sawe he must nedes dye. Therefore he sente for his frendes: and sayd vnto them, the shepe is gone from myne eyes for the verye soze and byracion of herte that I haue. For whiche I conseye in my mynde the great aduersity that I am come vnto, & the shoules of mynnes which I am come in, where as afore tyme I was so merry and so greatly set by (by reason of my power) agayne, conspyng the euill that I haue done at Jerusalem, from where I take all the riches of golde and silver that were in it, and sent to fetch awaye the inuoytantes of Jewrye without anye reason why: I knowe, that these troubles are come vpon me for the same cause. And beholde, I must dye with great soze in a strange land. Then called he for one Philip a frende of his whom he made ruler of all his realme, and gaue hym the crowne, his robe and his ring: that he shoulde take his sonne Antiochus vnto hym, and byngge hym vp, tyll he myght saygne him self. So the kynge Antiochus dyed there, in the xlii. yere. Wher Lillas herde that the kynge was dead, he ordeyned Antiochus his sonne (whom he had brought vp) to raygne in his fathers Rebe, and called him Eupator. Nowe they that were in the castell (at Jerusalem) kepte in the Jewes reuerence about the Sanctuary, and fought euerye daye to do them harme, for the strengthe of the weathen.

Wherefore Judas thought to bestrope the, and called all the people together, that they myght laye siege vnto them. So they came together in the xl. yere, and beleaged them, layinge forthe their ordynance and instrumentes of warre. Then certayne of them that were beleaged went forth (vnto whom some vngodly men of Israel torped them selues also) and went vnto the kynge sayinge: How longe will it be, as thou punyssh and aunge our brethren? We haue cur bene mynded to do thy father scrupre to walke in his statutes and to obeye his commaundmentes. Therefore our people fell from vs, & wher so euer they founde anye of vs, they slew the and they haue not only me dyd with vs, but with all our countreyes: and beholde, this daye are they beleagynge the castell at Jerusalem, and haue made by the stronge holden in Bethsura: And if thou dost not procure them to fighte soone, they will doo more than these, and thou shalt not be able to ouercome them.

When the kynge herde this, he was verye angere, and called all his frendes, the captaynes of his foremen and of all his hoysmen together. He byzed men of warre also out of other realmes, and out of the fles of the see, which came vnto hym. And the nombre of his host was an hundred thowande fotemen, & x. thowande hoysmen, and xxxi. Elephanthes well exercysed in battayle. These came thowto Judea vnto Bethsura, and beleaged it a longe season, and made dyuers instrumentes of warre agayn it. But the Jewes came oute and bent them, and fought lyke men. Then departed Judas from the castell at Jerusalem, and remoued his host toward Bethsura ouer agayn the kynge's armye.

So the kynge arose before the daye, and brought the power of his host in to the waye to Bethsura, where the hoysmen made the to the battayle, blowinge the trumpettes. And to prouoke the Elephanthes for to fight, they shewed them the sap of red grapes, and molberpes. And deuyed the Elephanthes amonge the host: so that by euery Elephant there shode a thowande men well armed, and helmettes of stele vpon their heedes: yea vnto euery one of the Elephanthes also, were ordeyned fyue hundred hoysmen of the best, whiche wayted of the Elephante, goynge wher so euer he wente, and departed not fro hym. Euery elephaut was couered w a strong tower of wod, wherevpon were charyte and two baleant men, with weapons to fight, and within it was a man of Inde to rule the bea.

As for the remnant of the hoysmen, he set them vpon bothe the sides in two partes with trumpettes, to prouoke the hoste, and to fyre by suche as were shewe in the armye. And wher the sunne shone vpon their wyldes of golde and stele, the mountaynes gliddered agayne at them, and were as byght as the metettes of fyre. The kynge's host also was byght, one parte vpon the hye mountaynes, the other some beneth: so they wente on as a hye good hede, and kepynge theyr ordie. And all they that dwelt in the lande, were asfayed at the noyse of theyr host, when the multitude went forth, and when the weaps smote together, for the host was both great and myghty. Judas also and his host entered in to the battayle, and slew vi. c. men of the kynge's armye. Nowe when Elazar the son of Saura dyd se one of the Elephanthes hit with the kynge's badge, and was a moze goodly bea then the other: he thoughte the kynge shoulde be vpon hym, and leoparde him self to respyer his people, and to get him a perpetual name.

Wherefore he ran with a corage vnto the Elephaut in the myddest of the host, smytynge them downe of both the sides, and slew many aboute hym. So wente he to the Elephanthes fete, and gat hym vnder hym, and slewe him: then fell the Elephante downe vpon hym, and there he dyed. Judas also and his men seinge the power of the kynge, and the myghtye byelence of his host, departed from them. And the kynge's armye wente by agayn them toward Jerusalem, & prched their tentes in Jewrye beynde mount Zion. At Ierusalem, the kynge toke cruce with them that were in Bethsura.

But when they came out of the ctye because they had no bytchles within, and the lande laye vntyled the kynge toke Bethsura, and set men to kepe it, and turned his host to the place of the Sanctuary, and layd siege to it a great whyle. Where he made all manner ordynance: handbowes, fyre dartes, rackets to cast stones, scopyons to throw arrows, and spynges. The Jewes also made ordynance agaynste theyr, and foughte a long season.

But in the ctye there were no bytchles, for it was the seuenthy yere of the weares, & those heathen that remayned in Jewrye had eaten by all their floze. And in the Sanctuary were fewe men left for the hunger came so vpon them, that they were scattered abode euery man to his owne place.

So when Lillas herde that Philippe (whom Antiochus the kynge whyle he was yet lyvinge, had ordeyned to byngge by Antiochus his sonne, that he myght be kynge) was come agayne out of Persia & Medea to the kynge's host and thought to optayne a kyngdome: he gat hym to the kynge in all the haste, and to the captaynes of the host, and sayde we decreafe dapipe, and our bytchles are but small: agayne, the place that we laye siege vnto is verye stronge, and it were sure parte to se for the realme. Let vs agree with these men & take cruce with them, and with all their people and graunte them to lyue after their lawe as they dyd afore. For they be greued & do all these thynges agaynste vs, because we haue despyed their lawe. So the kynge and the prynces were content, and sent vnto them to make peaz, and they receyued it. Nowe when the kynge & the prynces had made an oth vnto them they came oute of the castell, and the kynge went vp to mount Zion. But wher he sawe that the place was well fenced, he brake the oth that he had made, & commaunded to bestrope the wal rounde aboute. Then departed he in all the haste, & returned vnto Antioch, where he founde Philip haupinge dominion of the cty. So he fought agaynste him and toke the ctye agayne into his handes.

¶ Demetrius raygneth after he had kyled Antiochus and Lillas. He troubleth the chydren of Israel thowto the counsell of certayne wycked personnes. The prayer of the prestes agaynste Apcanos. Judas kyleth Apcanos, after he hadde made his prayer.

CAPL VII.

In the xli. yere came Demetrius the son of Seleucus frome the ctye of Rome with a small compaigne of men, vnto a ctye of the see cooste, and there he bare rule. And it chaunced, that when he came to Antioch the ctye of his progenitors, his

Howe the Antiochus & Lillas, to hyng the unto him. But whē it was tolde him, he sayde: let me not se their faces. So þe boote put them to death: Howe when Demetrius was set upon the throne of his kyngdome, there came unto him myked and vngodly men of Israel: whose captayne was Alcimus, that wolde haue bene made hye pree: These men accused the people of Israel vnto the kyng, sayinge: Judas & his bretheren haue slayne the felles, and dyuen vs out of our owne lande. Howe fore sente now some man (to whom thou gy-uest credence) that he may go & se all the destruction, which he hath done vnto vs and to the kynges lande, and let him be punished with all his frenes and fauourers.

Alcimus high
pree.

Then the kyng chose Bacchides a friend of his, which was a man of great power in the realme (beyond the great water) & sayde full vnto the kyng: and sent him to se the destruction that Judas had done. And as for that myked Alcimus, he made him hye pree, and comanded him to be iudged of the churche of Israel. So they stode by, and came to a great hoof in the lande of Juda, sendyng messengers to Judas & his brether, and speaking vnto them with peaceable wordes: but vnder discepte. Therefore Judas and his people be-leued not their sayinge, for they sawe þe they were come with a great hoof.

After this came the scribes together vnto Alcimus & Bacchides, tendinge the best vnto them. And syth þe Alcimus requyred peace of them, sayng: Alcimus the pree is come of the felles of Aard, how can he discepe vs? So they gaue the louyng wordes, and swore vnto the,
and sayde: we wyll do you no harme, neyther your frenes: and they beleued them. But the very same day roke they. It men of them, and

Isa. lxxi.

lew them accordyng to the wordes that are wryte: They haue cast þe felles of the sayners, and shed their blood rounde about Jerusalem, and there was no man that wolde burye them.
So there came a great feare & dyde among þe people, sayinge: there is neyther trethe nor ryghtousnesse in them, for they haue broken the appoyntment and ethe that they made.
And Bacchides remoued his hoof from Jerusalem, and pitched his tente at Bethzachar where he sent for the, and toke many of them that had forsaken him: He lewe many of the people also, and cast them in to a grete pyt.
Then comytred he the land vnto Alcimus, and left men of war with him to helpe hym, and Bacchides him self went vnto the kyng.
And thus Alcimus defended his hye preehode, and all suche as were of Israel, resoyced vnto him: In so much that they obtayned the land of Juda, and dyd moche euyl vnto the Israelites.

Now when Judas sawe all the myschefe that Alcimus and his company had done (pea-noye them the wythen them felles) vnto þe Israelites: He went for the rounde about all the borders of Jewry, & punished those unfaithful renagates, so that they came nomore out in the country. So when Alcimus sawe, that Judas and his people had gotten the upperhand, and that he was not hable to a-byde them: he went agayne to the kyng, & sayde all the worst of them that he coude.

Then the kyng sent Alcimus, one of his churpynces (whiche bare euyl wyll vnto Je-rael) and comanded hym that he shoulde bitterly despoyle the people.

So Alcimus came to Jerusalem with a great hoof, and sent vnto Judas and his bretheren with feblly wordes (but vnder discepte) sayinge: there shal be no warre betwixt me and you: I wyll come with a few men, to se how ye do, with freddyng. And this he came vnto Judas, and they saluted one an other peaceably: but the enuyes were appoynted to take Judas by violence: Heuyl be to the
it was tolde Judas, that he came vnto hym but vnder discepte: wherefore he gat hym a way fro him, & wolde se his face nomore. The Alcimus perceyued that his counsel was betrayed, he went out to fyghte agaynst Judas beynde Ephraïm: where there were slayne of Alcimus hoost. v. M. men: the rest dye fled vnto the cauel of David.

After this came Alcimus by vnto mounte Syon: and the pries with the elders of þe people went forth to salute hym peaceably and to welcome him the burnt offeryces that were offered for the kyng. But he laughed them to scorn, mocked them, despyled they offeryces, and spake by daynedly yea & noye in his mouth, sayinge: If Judas and his hoost be not helpereed now in to my hande, as soone as euer I come agayne (and fare well) I shal burne up this house. With that wyl he out in a grete anger. Then the pries came in, and stode before the auter of the temple, wepyng and sayinge: For so moche as thou, O Lord, hast chosen this house, that thy name myght be called vpon them and it shoulde be an house of prayre an prayson vnto the people: Be aunged of this man & his hoost, & let them be slayne with the sword: remember the blasphemys of them, and let fre them not to contynue any longer.

When Alcimus was gone from Jerusalem he pitched his tent at Bethzachar, and there he met hym out of Syria. And Judas came to Abarta with the. M. men and made his prayer vnto God, sayinge: O Lord, because the messengers of kyng Demetrius blaime med the, the angell went forth, and slay
the. x. thousand of them: Euen so despoyle thou this hoost before us to day & other people maye knowe howe þe hath blasphemed the Sanctuary: & punish hym, accordyng to his malyciousnes.

And so the hostes stroke the felde, the xiiij.
day of the moneth Adar: and Alcimus hoost was discomfyred and he hym self was hye slayne in the battayle. When Alcimus men of warre sawe that he was hyled, they ran away they weapons & fled: but the Jewes to lowed by the an hole dayes iourney fro A-dazer vnto Gazara, blowyng with the ad-pers, & makyng tokens after them. So the Jewes came forth of all the towne that about & blew out their hoynes vpon them & turned turned agaynst them: thus were all slayne, and not one of them left.

Then they toke their substance for a pray and snate of Alcimus hoost & his right had which he helde by so proudly) and brought it with them, and haged it by afore Jerusalem: wherefore the people were exceedingly reioy-sed, and passed ouer that daye in great glad-nesse. And Judas ordeyned that the same day (namely þe. xiiij. day of þe moneth Adar) shoulde be kept in myrth euery yere. Thus the lande of Juda was in rest a litle whyle.

Judas conspyring the power and godly polite-the Romaynes, maketh peace with them. The myrte of the Romaynes sent vnto the Jewes.

CAPL VIII.

Judas herd also þe fame of the Romayns that they were mighty & dauntles men, and agreable to all thynges that are requyred of them, and make peace with all men whiche come vnto them, and howe they were doughty men of strength. Besides that it was tolde him of their battayls and noble actes which they dyd in Galacia, how they had conquered them, and brought them vnder tribute: and what great thynges they had done in Spayn, how they with their wysdom and sobre behauiour, they had won þe mynes of silver and gold that are there, and obteyned all the land, with other places far from them, howe they had discomfyted and slayne downe the kynges that came vpon them, fro the bittermost part of the earth, & howe other people gaue them tribute euery yere. Howe they had slayne and overcome Philip & Pertes kyng of Artim, and other mo in battaye, whiche had brought they ordinance agaynst them: how they discomfyted grete Antiochus kyng of Asia, & wold nedes fight with the, hauyng an. xxx. Elephanes, with hoostmen, charrettes, and a very great hoost:
how they toke him selfe ayur, and ordeyned hym with such as shoulde raygne after him: to paye them a grete tribute, yea and to synde them good luteyes and pcedge: besydes all this, howe they had taken frome him India, Arabia and Lidia (his best lades) and geyuen them to kyng Eumenes.

Agayne, how they perceyuyng þe Grekes were comyng to ver the: sent agaynst thim a capteyn of an hoost, which gaue them battayle, slew many of them, led away they wyues and chyldren captiue, spoyled them, toke possession of their land, destrayed they stronge holdes, and subdued them to be their bondmen vnto this day. Howe cometh how that as for other kyngdomes & Jles, which so came with the: them, they destrayed them, & brought them vnder their dominion: but helped euer their own frenes and those þe were confederate with them, and conquered king-domes bothe far & nye: and that who so euer herd of their renoume, was afrayd of them: so whom they wolde helpe to their kyngdomes, those raygned: and whome it lyked not the to raygne, they put him downe. And how they were com to grete preeminence: hauyng no kyng among them, neyther any man clothed in purple, to he magnified ther thynges, but had ordeyned them felles a parlyament, wherin there sat the. c. and. xx. Senateurs dayly vpon the counsell, to dispatche euer the busynesse of the people, and to kepe good ordre: And howe that euery yere they chose a Mayre, to haue the gouernance of all they lande: to whom euery man was obedient, & that there was neyther euyl wil ne discepte among them.

Then Judas chose Eupolemus the son of Jhon, the son of Jacob, and Jason the son of Eleazar, & sent them vnto Rome for to make friendship and a bond of loue with the, that they might take fro them the bondage of the Grekes, for the Jewes sawe þe the Grekes wolde subdue the kingdom of Israel. So they went vnto Rome (a very grete iourney) & came in to the parlyament, & said: Judas Machabeus with his brether & the people of the Jewes hath sent vs vnto you, to make a boode of frendship and peace with you, and ye to note vs as your louers and frenes. And the matter ple-sed the Romayns right wel, wherefore it was wrytten by: of the which the Romayns made a wryting in tables of latyn, and sent it to Jerusalem, that they might haue by them a memorial of the same peace & bond of frendship after this maner: God saue the Romayns, & the people of the Jewes, both by se & by land, and kepe the swerde and enemy from the for euermore. If there come fyrst any war vpon the Romayns, or any of their felles, they shoulde out at their dominion, the people of þe Jewes shal helpe them (as the time requyred) & that with all their vertes. Also they shal neyther gyue nor send vnto they: enemyes vitayles, weapons, money, ne thynges: but fulfyll this charge at the Romayns pleasure, & take nothyng from them therfore. Agayne, if the people of the Jewes happen first to haue warre, the Romayns shal stande by theym with a good wyll, accordyng as the tyme wyll suffere. Neyther shal they gyue vnto the Jewes enemyes, vitayles, weapons, money, nor thynges. Thus are the Romayns content to do, and shal fulfyll their charge without any discepte.

Accordyng to these articles, the Romaynes made the bonde with the Jewes. Howe after these articles, sayde they, ye anye of the parties wyll put to them, or take anye thyng from them: they shal do it with the consent of both: and what so euer they adde vnto them or take from them, it shal stande fast. And as touchyng the euyl that Demetrius hath done vnto the Jewes, we haue wrytten vnto hym, sayinge: Wherefore lay-est thou thy cruell yoke vpon the Jewes our frenes and louers? If they make anye complaynte of the agayne vnto us, we shal defende them, and fyght with the by se and by lande.

After the death of Alexander Demetrius senteth his armye agaynst Judas. Judas is slayne. Jonathan is put in the seide of his brother. The strife between Jonathan and Bachides. Alcimus is taken with the palpe and dyeth. Bachides returneth agayne vnto the kynge. He cometh vpon Jonathan by the counsel of certayne wicked persons, and is overcome. The truce of Jonathan and Bachides.

CAPL

IX.

In the meane season, when Demetrius heard of Alexander and his host was slayne in the felde, he proceeded further, to sende Bachides and Alcimus agayne in to Iury, & those that were in the ryght wing of his host with them. So they went forth by the way that ledeth vnto Galgala, and pitched their tentes before Bethsalem, which is in Arbellis, & was the city, & slew much people. In the first moneth of the .xlii. yere, they brought their hoste to Jerusalem, and rose vp and came to Berta, with .xx. thousand footmen, and two thousand horsemen.

Now Judas had pitched his tent at Laissa with three .v. thousand men. And when they sawe the multitude of the other army, that it was so greates, they were sore afrayde, and many conueyed them selues out of the hoste. In so moche that there abode no moore of them but eight hundred men. When Judas sawe his hoste fayled him, and he must nedes fight, he brake his heart, that he had no time to gather the together: wherefore he was in extreme trouble. Nevertheless he said vnto them that remayned with him: Up, let vs go agaynst our enemies, gaduethure we shal be habile to fight with them. But they wold haue stopped him saying: we shal be habile, therefore let vs now saue our liues, & turne agayne to our brethren and then wil we fight agaynst them, for we are here but fewe.

B And Judas sayde: God forbyd, that we shoulde fle from them. Wherefore if our time be come, let vs die manfully for our brethren, and let vs not slayne our honour. Then the hoste remoued out of the tentes, and rode agaynst them. The horsemen were diuided in two partes: the syngers casters, and the archers wente before the hoste, and all the myghty men were foremost in the felde. Bachides him self was in the right wing of the hoste, and the hoste dyed in two partes, and blew the trompettes. They of Judas syde blew the trompettes also, & the earth shoke at the noyse of the hostes, and they stroke a felde from the mo:ow till nyght. And when Judas sawe that Bachides hoste was stronger of the ryght syde, he toke with hym all the hardy men, and brake the right wing of their ord:re, and folowed vpon them vnto the mount Aiof.

Now when they whiche were of the lesse synges sawe that the ryght syde was discomfited, they persecuted Judas and them that were with him. Then was there a sore batell for manye were slayne: and much dead of bothe the partes: Judas also hym selfe was kyl-led, and the remnant fled. So Jonathan and Symon toke Judas their brother, and buryed him in his fathers sepulchre, in the cite of Bethan. And all the people of Israel made great lamentacion for him, and mourned long saying: Alas that this worthy shoulde be slayne which deliuered the people of Israel. As for other thinges pertainyng to the battayles of Judas, the noble actes that he did, and of his worthynesse: they are not written, for they were very many.

And after the death of Judas, wicked men came vp in all the costes of Israel, and there arose all such as were vngodlynes. In those dayes was there a great death in the land, & all the country gaue ouer them selues and theirs vnto Bachides. So Bachides chose wicked men, & made them lordes in the land. These sought out, and made serch for Judas frendes, and brought them vnto Bachides: which auenged him self vpon them, in great despite. And there came so greates trouble in Israel, as was not sens the time that no prophet was sent there.

Then came all Judas frendes together, & said vnto Jonathan: For so moche as thy brother Judas is dead, there is none lyke hym to go forth agaynst our enemies, agaynst Bachides, and such as are aduersariis vnto our people. Wherefore this daye we chose the for him, to be our prince & capitayn, to orde our battel. And Jonathan toke the gouernance vpon him at the same time, and ruled in seide of his brother Judas. When Bachides gat knowlege therof, he soughte for to see him: But Jonathan and Symon his brother perceyuing that, fled in to the wilderness of Cherua with all their company, and pitched their tentes by the water pole of Asphar.

Which when Bachides vnderstode, he came ouer Jordan with all his host vpon the Sabbath daye. Now had Jonathan sent his brother Jhon, a capitayn of the people to praye his frendes the Rabuthites, that they wolde lend the their ordnance, for they had moche. So the chyldren of Jambry came out of Gadaba, and toke Jhon, and all that he had, and wente their way withall. Then came word vnto Jonathan and Symon his brother, that the chyldren of Jambry made a great marriage and brought the bride from Gadaba in great pompe: for she was daughter to one of the noble princes of Canaan. Wherefore they remembered the bloude of Jhon their brother, & went vp, & hid them selues vnder the shadowe of the mountayne.

So they lyft vp their eyes, and looked, and beholde there was moche ado, and great reuoyce, for the hydegrome came forth, & his frendes and his brethren met them with trumpets, instrumentes of musycke, and many weapons. Then Jonathan and they were with him, rose out of their lurking places agaynst them, and slew many of them. As for the remnant, they fled in to the mountayne, and they toke all they substance. Thus the marriage was turned to mourning, and the noyse of their melody in to lamentacion. And

And so when they had auenged the bloude of their brother, they tourned agayne vnto Jordan.

Bachides hearing this, came vnto the very border of Jordan with a greates power vpon the Sabbath daye. And Jonathan sayd to his company: let vs get vp, and fight agaynst our enemies: for it standeth not with vs to daye as in times past. Behold, our enemies are in our way, the water of Jordan vpon the one syde of vs, with bankes, fennes and woddes at the other syde, so that there is no place for vs to depart vnto. Wherefore cry now vnto heuen, that ye may be deliuered from the power of your enemies. So they stroke the battel. And Jonathan stretched out his hande to synge Bachides, but he fled backward. The Jonathan and they that were with him lepte in to Jordan, and swymmed ouer Jordan vnto hym, & there were slayne of Bachides side that daye, a .v. men.

Therefore Bachides with his hoste turned agayne to Jerusalem, and buyld vp the castles & strong holdes that were in Iury, Jericho, Emmaus, Betho, Bethet, Chamnata, & Dara & Co:po, with hye walles, with portes, and with lockes, and set me to kepe them, & they might do theyr malice vpon Israel. He walled vp Bethsurah, Gazatab, and the castel at Jerusalem also, & prouided the with men & vitayles. He toke also the chiefe & men sonnes in the country for pledges, & put them in the castel at Jerusalem to be kepte.

Afterward in the .xliij. yere in the second moneth, Alcimus commaunded that the wallis of the inmost sanctuary shoulde be destroyed, and the buildinges of the prophetes also. And when he began to destroy them, the thinges that he went about were hyndred, for he was smytten with a palsy, & his mouth shut so that he coulde no moore speke, ne commaunde any of his house concerning his busynesse. Thus dyed Alcimus in great miserie at the same tyme, and when Bachides sawe that Alcimus was dead, he turned agayne to the king and so the land was in rest two yeres. Then all the vngodly men helde a counsell, saying: Beholde, Jonathan and his companye are at rest, and dwell without care. Wherefore let vs bring Bachides hither, & he shal take the all in one nyght.

So they went & gaue Bachides this counsell, which arose to come with a great host, & sent letters pryncially to his adherentes whiche were in Iurye, to take Jonathan & those that were with him: but they mighte not, for the other had gotten knowlege of theyr deuise. And Jonathan toke .l. me of his country (whiche were the ryng leaders of them) & slew the. Then Jonathan and Symon, with their company departed vnto the cite Bethsalem, which was in the wilderness, and repayred the decaytherof, and made it stronge. When Bachides knew this, he gathered all his hoste, & sent word to them that were of Iurye. And he came & layd siege to Bethsalem, & soughte agayne if it longe season, and made infinitu- nities of war. Now Jonathan left his brother ther Symon in the cite, and went forth hym self in the country, and came with a certein nombre, and slew Odares and his brethren, and the chyldren of Phasaron in their cities: so that he began to be strong, and to increase in power.

As for Symon & his company, they wente out of the cite, and bent vp the instrumentes of warre, and fought agaynst Bachides, and discomfited hym. And Bachides was sore bered because his counsell and traualle was in vayne. Wherefore he was wroth at the wicked men (that gaue him counsell to come in to their land) and slew many of them. The purpose he with his company to go away in to his owne country: wherof when Jonathan had knowlege, he set embassayours vnto him for to make peace with him, and that he shoulde deliuer him his prisoners agayne. To which the Bachides consented gladly, and dyd according to his desire, yea & made an oth that he shoulde neuer do him harme all the dayes of his lyfe. So he restored vnto him all the prisoners that he had take out of the land of Judas, and then turned and went his waye in to his owne land, neither proceeded he any further to com vnto the borders of Judas. Thus Israel had no moore war. And Jonathan dwelte at Bethsalem, and began there to gouern the people, and destroyed the vngodly men ouer of Israel.

Demetrius despayeth to haue peace with Jonathan. Alexander moueth war agaynst Demetrius. Demetrius is slayne. The frendship of Ptolemus and Alexander.

In the .xlj. yere, came Alexander, the son of noble Antioch, and toke Ptolemas, whose citizens receiued him, and there he raygned. When Demetrius herde therof, he gathered an exceeding great hoste, and went forth agaynst hym to fyght. Wherefore Demetrius sent letters vnto Jonathan with louynge wordes, and prayed hym greatlye. For he saide: we will fyghte make peace with him, before he hyrd him self with Alexander agaynst vs, els he shal remembre the euil that we haue done agaynst him, his brother & his people, and so he gaue Jonathan leue to gather an hoste, to make weapons, and to be confederate with hym, and commaunded the pledges that were in the castel to be deliuered vnto hym.

Then came Jonathan to Jerusalem, & red the letters, in the audience of all the people, and of them that were in the castel. And there fore were they sore afrayde, because they herde that the kynge had gyuen hym licence to gather an hoste. Thus were the pledges deliuered vnto Jonathan, whiche deliuered them to their elders. Jonathan also dwelt at Jerusalem, and began to buyld vp and to repaire the cite, commaundynge the workemen to wall it, and the mounte Syon round about with fere stone, to be a stronge holde, 211.4. and and so they did. As for the heathen that were in the castle which Achides had made by, they fled, so that every man left the place, and went in to his own country. Only at Bethsura remained certain of the Jewes, which had for taken the law & commandements of God, for Bethsura was their refuge.

Now when king Alexander heard of the promises that Demetrius had made unto Jonathan, and when it was told him of the battles and noble acts, which he & his brethren had done, and of the great trauals that they had taken, he said: where shall we find such a man? well, we will make him our friend, and he will federate with him. And this he wrote a letter unto him, with these words: King Alexander saluteth his brother Jonathan. We have heard of thee, that thou art a valiant man, and meet to be our friend: wherefore this day we ordain thee to be the hye priest of thy people, and to be called the kynge's friend. And this, he sent him a purple clothyng, and a crowne of golde, that thou mayest conspyre what is for our profyte, and kepe friendship toward us.

B So in the seventh moneth of the 41. yere, upon the solemn feast day of the tabernacles, Jonathan put the holie rayment upon him. Then gathered he an hoste, and made many weapons. Which when Demetrius heard, he was maruelous forry, & said: Alas, what have we done, that Alexander hath presented us in getting the friendship of the Jewes, for his owne defence? Yet will I write lovingly unto them also, yea & promise them dignities and rewardes, that they may be of my lyde. Whereupon he wrote unto the these words: King Demetrius sendeth greeting unto the people of the Jewes. Where as ye have kept your countaunt toward us, and continued in our friendship, not inclining to our enemies we were glad, when we heard thereof. Wherefore remaine still and be faithful to us: and we shall recompence you for the thinges, that ye have done on your part: we shall releafe you of many charges, & gyve you rewardes. And now I discharge you and all the Jewes from tributes, I forgive you the customes of salt, and lease you of the crowne taxes, of the thirde parte of seide, and halfe of the frute of trees, which is mine own duty. These I leue for you, from this day forth: so that they shall not be taken of the land of Juda, nor of the the cities which are added therunto out of Samaria and Galilee, from this day forth for evermore. Jerusalem also with all thinges belonging thereto, shall be holy and free: yea the tithes and tributes that pertaine unto it. As for the power of the castle which is at Jerusalem, I remit and give unto the hye priest, that ye maye sit in it such men, as he shall chuse to kepe it. I freely deliuer all the Jewes that are prisoners thowowe oute all my realme: so that every one of them shall be free from payinge any tribute, yea even of they: cattell.

All the solemn feastes, Sabothes, newmoones, the dayes appointed, the the dayes before & after the feast, shall be free for all the Jewes in my realme, so that in them no man shall have power to do any thing, or to move any business against any of them, in any manner of cause. Where shall. xxx. Also of the Jewes be written by in the kynge's host, and have they: wages payde, as all other men of warre of the kynge's hold have, and of them shall be ordeyned certeyn to kepe the kynge's strong holdes: yea and some of them shall be set oute the kynge's business, & they may faith fully dele with the same. The Jewes also shall have princes of their owne, & walke in they: owne lawes, as the kynge hath commanded in the land of Juda.

And the the cities that are fallen unto us from the country of Samaria and Galilee, shall be taken as Jure, and be under our: neither be subiect to any strange lord, but to the hye priest. As for Ptolomais & the land pertainyng thereto, I gyve it unto the Sanctuary at Jerusalem, for the necessary expenses of the holy thinges. Moreover I will gyve every yere. xv. thousande sicles of sylver out of the kynge's cheker, which pertaineth unto me, to the worke of the temple: yea and loke what remaineth (which they that had our matters in hand in tymes past have not payde) that same shall they give unto them also. And besides all this, the fyve thousand sicles which they take yearly of the rentes of the Sanctuary, shall belonge unto the priests & do service.

Item, who so ever they be that fle unto the temple at Jerusalem, or within the liberties thereof, where as they are fallen in to the kinges daunger for any manner of business, they shall be pardoned, and all the goodes that they have in my realme, shall be free. For the buying also and repaying of the worke of the Sanctuary, expenses shall be gyven out of the kynge's cheker: yea and for the making of the walles rounde about Jerusalem, for the brekyng downe of the olde, & for the settinge up of the strong holdes in Jure, shall the colles and charges be gyven oute of the kynge's cheker.

But when Jonathan and the people heard these wordes, they gave no credence unto the, neither discyued them: for they remembered the great wyckednesse that he had done unto Israel, and howe soze he had ben vexed them. Wherefore they agreed unto Alexander, for he was a prince that had deile friendly with them, and so they rode by him allway. When gathered king Alexander a great hoste, and brought his armye agaynst Demetrius. So the two kynge's stroke battayle together, but Demetrius hoste fled, and Alexander followed after and fell upon them. A mighty force seide was it, contrynnyng the sunnethunt downe, and Demetrius was slayne the same daye.

And Alexander sente embassadours unto Ptolomy the kynge of Egypt with these wordes, saying: for so much as I am come again to my realme, and am sette in the throne of my progenytours, and have gotten the dominion minion over comed Demetrius, conquered the lande, & styken a seide with hym, so that we have discomfeted both him and his host, and set in the throne of his kyngdom: Let us now make frendshipp together, gyve me thy daughter to wyfe: so shall I be thy sonne in lawe, and gyve thee the rewardes, and her grate bigytte. Ptolomy the kynge gave aunswere, saying: I happye be the daye wherein thou art come agayne to the land of thy progenytours, and set in the throne of thy kyngdome. And now will I fulfill thy wyrtynge: but mete me at Ptolomais, that we maye se one another, and I may marry my daughter unto the accordyng to thy desire. So Ptolomy went out of Egypt with his daughter Cleopatra, and came unto Ptolomais in the 41. yere, where king Alexander met hym, and he gave Alexander his daughter Cleopatra, and married them at Ptolomais in great merrynge, lyke as the manner of kynge's is to be. Then wrote king Alexander unto Jonathan, that he shoulde come and mete hym. So he went honourably unto Ptolomais, and there he met the two kynge's, and gaue them great presentes of golde and sylver, & found favour in their sight. And there came together agaynst Jonathan certeyn wycked men, and ungracious persons of Israel, makinge complaintes of him, but the king regarded them not. As for Jonathan the kynge commanded to take of his garments, and to clothe hym in purple: and so they dyd. Then the kynge appointed him to sit by hym, and sayd unto his princes: Go with hym in to the myddest of the cite, and make a proclamation, that no man complayne agaynst him of any matter, and that no man trouble him, for any manner of cause.

So it happened that when his accusers sawe the worship which was proclaimed of hym, and that he was clothed in purple, they fled everychone. And the king made moche of him, wrote him amonge his chiefe frendes, made him a duke, and partaker of his dominion. Thus Jonathan went agayne to Jerusalem, with peace and gladnesse. In the 41. yere came Demetrius the son of Demetrius from Syria in to his fathers lande, wherof when Alexander heard tell, he was ryght forry, and returned unto Antioche. And Demetrius chose Apollonius, which had the gouernance of Cilicia, to be his captayn.

So he gathered a great hoste, and came vnto Jamnia, and sende worde unto Jonathan the hye priest, saying: Darest thou with stande vs thy selfe alone? As for me, I am but laughed to scoone and shamed, because thou proudest thy strength agaynst vs in the mountaynes. Nowe therefore if thou trustest in thyne owne strength, come downe to vs in to the playne felde, and there let vs proue our strength together: thou shalt fynd, that I have valeaunt men of warre with me, and shalt knowe whome I am, and the other that stande by me.

Which saye that your force is not hable to stande before our face, for thy fathers haue ben twice chased in to their owne land. And now, howe wilt thou be hable to abyde so great an host of horsmen and fotemen in the felde, where as is neither rock, stone ne place to fle vnto?

When Jonathan heard the wordes of Apollonius, he was moued in his mynde, wherfore he chose. x. thousand men, and went out of Jerusalem, and Symon his brother mette hym, for to help him: and they pitched their tentes at Joppa, but the city kept hym forth, for Joppa was an hold of Apollonius. The Jonathan layde siege to it, and they were in the cite for very feare let hym in: and so Jonathan wan Joppa. Apollonius hearing of this, toke the the thousande horsmen, with a great hoste of fote, and went as though he wolde goo to Azotus, and came immediatly in to the playne felde: because he had so many horsmen, and put his truste in them. So Jonathan followed upon hym to Azotus, and there they stroke the battayle. Now had Apollonius left a thousande horsmen behynde the priuily in the tentes. And when Jonathan knewe that such wayte was layde behynde them, they went rounde about the runnyng host, and shot darters at the people from the morning to the euenyng. As for Jonathan's people, they kepte they: ordres as he had commanded them, and the enemy's horses were euer labouryng.

Then brought Symon forth his host, and set them agaynst the fotemen. For the horsmen were very alrebye. So he discomfeted them, and they fled. And they that were scattered in the felde, gat them to Azotus, and came in to the temple of Dagon they: ydol, & they myght there saue they: liues. But Jonathan set fyre vpon Azotus, and all the cities round about it, and toke their goddes, and bent up the temple of Dagon with all them that were fled in to it.

Thus were slayne and bent wel nye eight thousande men. So Jonathan removed the hoste from thence, and brought them to Ascalon, where the men of the cite came forth, and met him with great worship. After this went Jonathan and his hoste agayne to Jerusalem, with greute substance of good. And when king Alexander heard these thinges, he thought to doo Jonathan more worship, and sent hym a coler of gold, as the vse is to be gyven unto suche as are of the kynge's nexte bloude. He gaue hym also the cite of Accaron, with the landes belongyng thereto, in possession.

The 42. yere upon betwixt Ptolomys and Alexander his sonne in lawe. The death of Alexander. Demetrius rageth after the death of Ptolomys. Symon is besieged of Jonathan. Joseph. 2. 8.
bu. 1. 67. xiii.

And the kynge of Egypt gathered an host (lyke the land that lyeth upon the see shore) and many thyppes: and went about thowm dyscrete to obeyne the kyngdome of Alexander, and to ioyne it vnto his owne realme. Upon this he toke his iourney in to Siria, and was letten in to the cytyes, and men came forth to mete him: for kynge Alexander had commaunded them so to do, bycause he was his father in lawe. Nowe when Ptolomy entred in to any city, he left men of warre to kepe it, and this he dyd thowt out all the cytyes. And when he came to Azotus, they shewed hym the temple of Dagon and Azotus that was byent vp, with the other thinges which were destroyed, the dead bodies cast abrode, and the graues that they had made by the way syde, for suche as were slayne in the felde: And tolde the kynge that Jonathas had doone all these thynges, to the intent they myghte get him cupill wyll. But the kynge sayde not a worde thereto. And Jonathas met the kynge with greete honour at Joppa, where they saluted one an other, and toke their rest. So when Jonathas had gone with the kynge, vnto the water that is called Eleutherus, he turned agayne to Jerusalem. Now Ptolomy had gotten the dominion of the cytyes vnto Seleucia vpon the see coste, ymagynynge wyched counsels agaynst Alexander, and sente embassadours vnto Demetrius, sayinge: Come, lette vs make a bonde bitwixte vs, so shall I gyue the my doughter that Alexander hath, & thou shalt raygne in thy fathers kyngdome. I repente that I gaue Alexander my doughter, for he goeth about to slaye me. And thus he sleaundred Alexander, bycause he wolde haue hadde his realme.

Thus he toke his doughter from him, gaue her vnto Demetrius, and forsoke Alexander so that his malice was openly knowne. And Ptolomy came to Antioch, where he set two crownes vpon his own heed: the crowne of Egypt and of Asia. In the mean season was kynge Alexander in Cilicia, for they þ dwelt in those places, had rebelled agaynst him. But when Alexander herd of this, he came to war agaynst him. So kynge Ptolomy broughte forth his hoste, and met him with a myghtye power, and chased him away. Then fled Alexander into Araby, there to be defended, & kynge Ptolomys honour increased. And Zabdai the Arabian smote of Alexanders heed, & sent it vnto Ptolomy. At the third day after dyed kynge Ptolomy hym selfe, and they whom he had set in the stronge holdes, were slayne of those that were within the cytyes. And Demetrius reigned in þ hundred. lxxij. yere.

is slayne.

At the same tyme gathered Jonathas them that were in Jemey to lay siege vnto the castell whiche was of Jerusalem, and so they made many wylmurmes of warre agaynst it. Then went there out a benigodly pershe whiche whate the name of the people vnto kynge Demetrius, and tolde hym that Jonathas had sent hym the keye of the castell, and that he was angry, & immediatly came vnto Ptolomais, and wrote vnto Jonathas that he sholde not laye siege to the castell, but come and speake with hym in all the haste. Neurethelesse whē Jonathas herde this, he commaunded to be siege it. He chose also certeyn of the elders & prestes of Israel, and put hym selfe in the peryll: and toke with hym golde, syluer, clothyng, and dyuers presentis: and wente to Ptolomais vnto the kynge, and founde hym gracious.

And though certayne benigodly men of his own people made complayntes vnto him, yet the kynge intreated him, lyke as his prestesfours had done before, and promoted him in the sight of al his frendes, confirmed him in the hye presthod, with al þ wo:thipp þ he had afore, & made him his chief frend. Jonathas also desired the kynge that he wolde make Jurefre, with the thre head cytyes in Samaria and the landes petynginge therto: vpon this dyd Jonathas promyse him thre. Calentes. Wher vnto the kynge consented and gaue Jonathas wryting of the same, cōteyning these wordes: I synge Demetrius sendeth greeting vnto his brother Jonathas, and to the people of the Jewes. We sende you here a copy of the lettre whiche we dyd wyte vnto our elder Lashenus, concernynge you, that ye sholde knowe it.

Kynge Demetrius sendeth greeting vnto Lashenus his elder. For the faythfulness of our frendes the people of the Jewes arpe vnto vs, and for the louynge kyndnesse whiche they beare towarde vs: we are determyned to do them good. Wherfore we ordeyne all the costes of Jewrye with thre cytyes, Lyda and Ramatha, whiche are added vnto Jurefre from Samaria, and all þ landes petynginge therto, to be freely separated for suche as do sacrifice in Jerusalem: bothe concerning the paymentes whiche the kynge toke yertly afore tyme, and the frutes also of the carthe and trees. As for other tythes and trybutes þ belonged vnto vs, we discharge them therto of from this tyme forth. In lyke maner we graunt vnto them all the customes of salt & crowne farcs which were brought vnto vs. And this freedom shall they haue firme and Redfast, from this tyme forth for euermore. Therfore se that ye make a copy of these our letters, and deliuer it vnto Jonathas: that it may be kept vpon the holy mount in a cōmument place.

After this, when Demetrius the kynge sawe that his lande was in resse, and that no resistance was made hym: he sent away all his hoste euerye man to his owne place, excepte an armye of straungers, whome he brought from the ryes of the heathen, wherfore al his fathers hoste had euill wil at him. Nowe was there one Tryphon, that had ben of Alexanders parte afore, whiche when he sawe that all the hoste murmured agaynst Demetrius, he wet to Emalcuel the Arabian (that broughte vnto Antiochus the sonne of Alexander) and layd forth vnto him to deliuer hym this yonge Antiochus: that he myghte raygne in his fathers stede. He tolde him also what greete cupill Demetrius had done, and his men of warre loued him not: and so remayned there a longe season.

And Jonathas sent vnto kynge Demetrius, to dyscuss them out whiche were in the castell at Jerusalem: in the other resygges, for they dyd Israel grea harme. So Demetrius sent word vnto Jonathas, sayinge: I wil not only do these thinges for the and the people, but at tyme conuenient I wil do bothe the and the people grea wo:thipp. But now thou shalt do me a pleasure, if thou wilt sende me men to helpe me: for all myne armie is gone to me. So Jonathas sent him thre. M. lxxij. men vnto Antioche, and they came vnto the kynge, wherfore the kynge was very glad at theyr comynge. But they that were of the cytye (euē an. c. xx. thousande men) gathered them together, and wold haue slayne þ kynge, whiche fled in to his court: and the cytyens kepte the stretes of the cytye, and beganne to fyght.

Then þ kynge called for the Jewes helpe, which came vnto him al together, and went abrode thowm the cytye, and slewe the same daye an. c. xx. men: the cytye dyd the cytye, gat many spoyles in that daye, and deliuered the kynge. So when the cytyens sawe that the Jewes had gotten their wyl of the cytye, and theyr selues dyspoynted of their purpose they made their supplication vnto the kynge, sayinge: Graunte vs peace, and let the Jewes cease from troubyng vs and the cytye, and vnto this they cast away their weapens. Thus they made peace, and the Jewes gat grea wo:thipp in the sight of the kynge, and in the sight of al that were in his realme, and were spoken of thowm out þ kyngdome: and so they came agayne to Jerusalem with grea goodes.

So the kynge Demetrius sat in the trone of his kyngdome, and had peace in his lande. Neurethelesse he dyssembled in all that euer bespake, and withdrew him selfe from Jonathas, neither rewarded him accordyng to the benefytes whiche he had done for hym, but troubled him very sore. After this came Tryphon agayne with yonge Antiochus, whiche reigned and was crowned kynge. Then there gathered vnto him all the men of war, whō Demetrius had put away: these fought agaynst Demetrius, whiche fled and turned his back. So Tryphon toke the Elephantes, and ban Antioche. And yonge Antiochus wrote vnto Jonathas, sayinge: I con firme the in the presthod, and make the ruler of foure countreys, that thou mayst be a frend of the kynge.

Upon this he sent hym golden bellis to be reuered in, and gaue him leaue to dyscuss in golde to be clothed in purple, and to weare a coler of golde. He made his brother Symon also captayne, from the costes of Tyrys vnto the borders of Egypt. Then Jonathas toke his iourney, and wente thowm the cytyes beyonde the warre of Jordane, and all the men of warre of Syria gathered the vnto hym for to help hym. So he came vnto Asralon, and they of the cytye receyued hym honourably: and from thence wente he vnto Gaza, but they wold not let hym in: wherfore he layde siege vnto it burnynge vp and spoylynge þ places that were about the cytye.

And the cytyens of Gaza submytted the selues vnto the Jonathas, whiche made pear with the, but toke of their sonnes to pledge sent them to Jerusalem, and went thowm the countrey vnto Damaſcus. Nowe when Jonathas herde þ Demetrius prynces were come in to Lades (whiche is in Galilee) with a grea host, purposynge to put Demetrius out from medlynge in the realme: he came agaynst them, and left Symon his brother in the lande: whiche came to Bethsura, and layde siege to it a longe season, and dyscomfyed the. So they belyved to haue pear with hym whiche he graunted them and afterward put them out from thence toke the cytye, & set men to kepe it. And Jonathas with his host came to the water of Genesar, & bytymes in the mornynge gat them to the playne felde of Azot.

And beholde, the hostes of the heathen met them in the felde, & layed watch for them in the mountaynes: so that when Jonathas came agaynst them þ other (whiche were layd to watch) rose out of their places, & fought, & they that were of Jonathas syde, fled euerye man: there was not one of them left, excepte Machathias the son of Absalomus, and Judas the sonne of Laphi the captayne of the host. When Jonathas rent his clothes, layd earth vpon his heade, made his prayer, and turned agayne to them in þ felde: where they fought together, and he put them to flyght. Nowe when his owne men that were fled, saw this: they turned agayne vnto him, and helped hym to folowe vpon all theyr enemyes vnto their rētes at Lades. So there were slayne of þ heathen the same daye. an. m. & Jonathas turned agayne to Jerusalem.

Jonathas sendeth embassadours to Rome and to the people of Sparta to renewe their cōuenante of frendshipp. Jonathas putteyth to flyght the prynces of Demetrius. Tryphon taketh Jonathas by dyscrete.

CAP. XII.

Jonathas seinge that the tyme was mete for hym, chose certayne men and sente the vnto Rome for to Rabyſche and to renewe the frendshipp with them. He sent letters also vnto Sparta, and to other places in lyke maner. So they went vnto Rome, and entred into the counsell, and sayde: Jonathas the hygh prest and the people of the Jewes sitte vnto you, for to renewe the olde frendshipp and bond of loue. Upon this the Romaynes gaue them free passortes, that men shuld lede them home into the lād of Iuda peaceably. And this is þ copy of þ letters that Jonathas wrote vnto the Spartians.

Jonathas

1. Mac. vii. 8

Jonathas the hygge prest with the elders, pries, and the other people of the Jews, lende gretyng unto the Spartans thei brethren. There were letters sent long ago unto Onias the hye prest, from Arius, whiche thei raygned among you: that ye are our brethren, as the wyrtynge made thei upon spetrefy. And Onias entreated the embassadeur that was sent honozabyl, and receyued the letters: wherein there was mencyon made of the bonde of lone and frendshipp. But as for us, we nebe no such wyrtynge: for why, we haue the holy booke of scripiture in our handes to our comforte. Nevertheless, we had rather sende unto you, for the renuyng of the brotherhode and frendshipp: lest we shoulde be straunge unto you, for it is longe, sythen the tyme that ye sent wordes unto us. Wherfore in the sacryfices that we offre, and other ceremonies upon the hye solemne dayes and other, we alway remembre you without ceasinge (lyke as reason is, and as it becommeth us to thinke upon oure brethren) yea and are yppgh glad of your prosperous honoure.

And though we haue had greates troubles and warres, so that the hynges aboute us haue foughten agayn us: yet wolde we not be greuous unto you, nor to other of our louers and frendes in these warres. For we haue had helpe from heauen, so that we are beleueed, and our ennemyes subdued. Wherfore we chose Flumenius the sonne of Antiochus and Antipater the sonne of Jason, and sent them unto the Romaynes, for to renue the olde bonde of frendshipp and lone with them. We commaunded them also to come unto you, to salute you, and to deliuer you oure letters, concernynge the renouocacion of oure brotherhode. And now ye shall deright well, to geue us an answer thereto.

And this is the coppe of the wyrtynge, whiche Arius the hyng of Sparta sent unto Onias: Arius hyng of the Spartans ledech gretyng unto Onias the hye prest. It is soold in wyrtynge, that the Spartans and Jews are brethren, and come out of the generacion of Abraham. And now for so moche as this is come to oure knowledge, ye shall do well, to wyrtynge unto us of your prosperite. As for us, we haue wyrtyn oure mynde unto you: our casell and goodes are yours, and yours ours. These thynges haue we commaunded to be shewed unto you.

When Jonathas herde, that Demetrius prynces were come forth to fyght agaynste him, with a greater host then afore, he went from Jerusalem, and met them in the lande of Bethan, for he gaue thei no space to come in to his owne countrey. And he sent spyers unto thei tentes, whiche came agayne and tolde him, that they were appoynted to come upon him in the nyghte last. Wherfore whiche the sunne was gone downe, Jonathas commaunded his men to watch all the nyght and to be redye with weapons for to fyght: and set watchmen rounde aboute the host. But when the aduersaries herde that Jonathas was ready with his men to the battayle, they feared, and were a fraye in thei tentes, and bynded theys in thei tentes byke by, and gat them away. Nevertheless Jonathas and his compaignye, knewe it not till the morninge, for they sawe thei tentes burnt.

Then Jonathas foloweth upon them, but he myght not ouertake them, for they were gone ouer the water Eleutherns. So Jonathas departed unto the Arabians (whiche were called Zababai) shew them, and toke thei goodes. He proceeded further also, and came unto Damascus, and went thowme all that countrey. But Simon his brother toke his iourney and came to Afsalon and to the next stronge holdes: he departed unto Joppa, and wan it. For he herde that they wolde stande of Demetrius parte: wherfore he sent men of warre in the citty, to kepe it. After this came Jonathas home agayne, and called the elders of the people together: and benyfyd with them for to buye by the stronge holdes in Jewry, & the walles of Jerusalem, to set by an hye wall betwixt the citty and the citty, for to separte it from the citty, that it myght be alone, and that men shoulde receyue thei no sell in it.

Upon this they came together for to build by the citty: and for as much as the wall by the broke of the wall (called Apphetrah) was fallen downe, they repayred it. And Symon let by Adiabab in Sephelah, & made it stronge setting portes and lockes upon it. Now when Tryphon purposed to raygne in Asia, to be crowned, and to slaye the hyng Antiochus: he was afrayed of Jonathas wolde not suffer him, but fyght agayn him. Wherfore he went about to take Jonathas & to kill him.

So he departed, and came unto Bethsan. Then went Jonathas forth agayn him to the battayle with fourty thousande cholen men and came unto Bethsan also. But when Tryphon sawe that Jonathas came with so greates an host to destroye hym, he was afrayed: and therefore he receyued hym honourably commended hym unto all his frendes, & gaue hym rewardes, and commaunded his men of warre to be as obedyent unto him, as to hym selfe.

And sayde unto Jonathas: why hast thou caused this people to take suche trouble, forynge there is no warre betwixt us? Therfore sende them home agayne and, chose certayne men to wait upon the, and come thou with me to Ptolomais: for I will geue it with the other stronge holdes, men of warre and thei officers.

As for me, I must departe, this is only the cause of my commynge. Jonathas beleued hym, and dyd as he sayde, puttinge awaye his host, whiche went in to the lande of Juda. He kepte but .iiij. by hym, wherof he sent .iiij. in to Sallier, and one thousande went with hym selfe.

Now as soon as Jonathas entered in to Ptolomais, the citty was sparred the gates of the of the citty, and toke him, and slew all them with the swerde, & came in with hym. Then sent Tryphon an host of footemen and horsemen in to Sallier, and in to the great playne side, to destroye all Jonathas compaignye. But when they knewe that Jonathas was taken, and al they sayne that waited upon him: they toke counsell together, and came forth to the battayle. So when they whiche folowed upon them, sawe that it was a matter of lyfe, they turned backe agayne. As for the other, they went in to the lande of Juda peaceably, and benyfyed Jonathas, and thei that were with hym right so. And Israel made greates lamentacioun. Then all the heathen that were round aboute them, thought to destroye them, for they sayde: now haue they no capitayne, nor any man to helpe them. Wherfore let us overcome them, and rote out thei name from amonge men.

After Jonathas was taken, Symon is chosen capitayne, of whom Tryphon takynge his chyldren and money for the redemption of Jonathas, lyfeth him and his chyldren. The graue of Jonathas, Tryphon killith Antiochus, & possedeth the realme. Demetrius taketh trewe with Symon. Symon bynneth Gaza. He possedeth the towne of Sydon. He maketh his sonne Joshi Capitayne.

CAPIT. XII.

Now when Symon herde that Tryphon gathered a great host, to come in to the lande of Juda, and to destroye it: and sawe that the people was in greates fearfullnes and care: he came by to Jerusalem, and gathered the people together, and gaue them exhortacion, sayinge: Ye knowe what greates battayles I and my brethren and my fathers house haue stycken for the lawe and the Sanctuary, and what maner of troubles we haue sene: thowgh occasion therof, al my brethren are sayne for Israels sake, & I am left alone. And now let not me spare myne owne lyfe in any maner of trouble, for I am no better then my brethren: but will auenge my people and the Sanctuary, our chyldren and our wyues: for all the heathen are gathered together to destroye us of very malice.

At these wordes, the hartes of the people were kyled together, so that they cryed with a loude voyce, sayinge: Thou walte be oure capitayne in stede of Judas and Jonathas thy brethren, orde thou oure battayle, and whatsoeuer thou commaunded us, we shall do it. So he gathered all the men of warre: he had to synple all the walles of Jerusalem, whiche he made stronge rounde about.

Then sent he Jonathas the sonne of Absolomus with a feeth host unto Joppa, whiche house them out that were in the casell, and remained there hym selfe. Tryphon also remoued from Ptolomais with a great army, to come in to the lande of Juda, & Jonathas with him inwarde. And Symon pyched his tentes at Addus, before the playne side.

But when Tryphon knewe that Simon stode by in stede of his brother Jonathas, & that he wolde warre agayn him: he sente messengers unto hym, sayinge: Where as we haue kepte Jonathas thy brother, it is for money that he is a wyng in the hynges a compe concernynge the buynes that he had in had. Wherfore sende now an .x. talentes of syluer & his two sonnes for suertye, that when he is letten forth he shall not forsake us: & we shall sende him agayne. Nevertheless Symon knewe, that he dyssembled in his wordes yet commaunded he the money and chyldren to be deliuered unto hym: lest he shoulde be the greater ennemye agaynste the people of Israel, and saye: because he sent hym not the money and the chyldren, therfore is Jonathas deyd.

So Symon sent him the chyldren and an hundred talentes, but he dyssembled, and wolde not let Jonathas go. Afterward came Tryphon in to the lande, to destroye it, & well ende aboute by the waye that ledeth unto Addus. But where so euer they went theyther went Simon and his host also. Now they were in the casell sent messengers unto Tryphon, that he shoulde make hast to come by the wyldernes and to sende the byttayles: And Tryphon made ready al his hostmen to come that same nyght. Nevertheless it was a very greates snowe, so that he came not in Galasadithim. And when he byewe nyghte Balschama, he slewe Jonathas and his sonnes there and then turned for to goo home in to his owne lande.

Then sent Symon for to set his brothers deyd coyle, and buryed it in Modin his fathers citty. So all Israel benyfyed hym with greates lamentacioun, and mourned for hym very longe. And Symon made upon the sepulchre of his father and his brethren a buyldynge hygh to loken unto of the ston behynde and before: and set by seven pylles one agayn an other, for his father, his mother & foure brethren, and set great pylles rounde about, with armes upon them for a perpetuall memozy, and carued wyppes byside the armes: that they myghte be sene of me sayling in the see. This sepulchre whiche he made at Modin standeth yet unto this daye.

Now as Tryphon went forth to walke by the ponne hyng Antiochus, he slewe him treacherously, and raygned in his stede, crowned hym selfe hyng of Asia, and dyd moche euill in the lande. Symon also buylt by the casells in Jewry, makynge them strong with hygge towres, greates walles, portes and lockes, & layd by byttayles in the strong holdes. And Symon chose certayne men and sent them to hyng Demetrius: to desyre hym, that he wolde discharge the land from all bondage, for Tryphon had spoyled it very sore. Wherupon Demetrius the hyng answered hym, and wrote unto hym after this maner.

Demetrius the hyng sendeth gretyngs unto Symon the hygge prest his frend with the elders & people of the Jews. The golde crowne and pycious stone that ye sent unto us,

Jonathas & his sonnes are slayn;

Tryphon, Tosep, capit. lib. 20. xiiij.

us,

us haue we receyued: and are ready to make a steadfast peace with you, yea and to wyte vnto oure officers, for to release you, concerninge the thynges wherewith we made you free: and the appoyntment that we make with you, shall be firme and stable. The stronge holdes which ye haue buyed, shall be your owne. As for any ouer sighte or faulte committed vnto this daye, we forgiue it, and the crowne tax that ye ought vs also. And where as was anye other tribute in Ierusalem, it shall now be no tribute: and loke who are mete amonge you to be in our court, let the be wyitten vp, that there maye be peace betwixte vs.

Thus the yoke of the Heathen was taken fro Israel, in the hundredth thre scoze and xviij. yere. And the people of the Jewes began to wyte in theyr letters and actes on this manner. In the xxiij. yere of Symon the hye priest, and prince of the Jewes.

In those dayes went Symon vnto Gaza, and besieged it round about, where he set up ordinaunce of warre. And won a towne which he toke. So they that gat in to the towne leaped in the citty, whiche was in a greafe feare: In so moche that the people of the citty sente theyr clothes, and climed vp vpon the walles with theyr wyues and chyldren, beseechinge Symon to be at one with them sayinge.

Remember we not after oure wickednesse, but be gracious vnto vs, and we shall do the seruys. Then Symon for very pitty, wolde fyght no more agaynst them, but put them out of the citty, and caused the houses wher in the Images were to be clenid: and so entered the citty with Psalmes of prayse, & vnginge thanks vnto the Lorde. So when he had cast all abhominacions out of the citty, he set such men in it as kept the law of God and made the citty stronge, and buylded a dwellynge place for hym selfe.

Now when they in the castell of Ierusalem were kepte so straitly, that they coulde not come forth ne in to the countrey, & might neither buye ne sell: they were verye hungrye, and many of them famished to deathe: In so moche that they besought Symon to be at one with them, whiche he graunted them. So he put them out from thence, and closed the castell from synchynesse. And vpon the xxiij. day of the seconde moneth in the hundredth. lxxi. yere, they entered into it with thanks & vnginge and bryanches of palme trees, with harpes, crowdes, timbales, and lutes singinge Psalmes, and songes of prayse vnto God, for that the great enemy of Israel was overcome.

And Symon ordeyned that the same daye shoulde be kepte euery yere in gladnesse, and made stronge the hye of the temple that was by the castell, where he dwelte hym selfe with his company. Symon also perceyuinge that John his sonne was a myghty man of armes, made him capitayne of all the hostes, and caused him to dwell at Gaza.

Demetrius is ouer come of Belaces. Symon beinge captayne there is a greafe quietnes in Israel. The countenante of frendship with the Romaynes with the people of Sparta is renewed.

CAPL. XIII.

In the lxxij. yere gathered kynge Demetrius his host, and departed vnto Media to gett hym helpe for to fyght agaynst Ptolemy. Now when Belaces the kynge of Persia & Media herd, that Demetrius was entered within his borders: he sent one of his pryces to take hym alyue, and to brynge hym vnto hym. So he wente and slewe Demetrius hood, toke hym selfe, brought hym to Belaces whiche kepte hym in ward. And all the land of Iuda was in rest, so long as Symon liued: for he sought the welth of his people, therfore were they glad to haue hym for theyr ruler and to do hym worship alwaye.

Symon wan the citty of Joppa also for an haven towne, and made it an inuincible to the fles of the see. He enlarged the borders of his people, and conquered them more lande: he gathered by many of theyr people that were pyloners he had the domynion of Gaza, Bethsurah and the castell, which he desied from synchynesse, and there was no man synchyned hym: So that euery man spild his grounde in pear, the lande of Iuda and the trees gaue theyr fruite and increase. The elders sat all in iudgement, and toke theyr upre for the welthe of the lande: the yonge men put on worship and haerres vpon them. He prouided bytacles for the citty, & made goodly stronge holdes of them: so that the same of his worship was spokt of vnto the ende of the worlde. For he made prethorow oute the lande, and Israel was full of myrrh and loye.

Euery man sat vnder his byne & figtrees and there was no man to fray them awaye. There was none in the land to fight agaynst them, for then the knyges were overcome. He helped those that were in aduersitye amonges his people he was dylygent to se the law kept: as for such as were vngodly & synched he toke the away. He set vp the Sanctuarye and increased the holy vessels of the temple.

Whil the Romaynes and Spartans had gotten word that Jonathas was deyd, they were cgyght loy. But when they heerde that Symon his brother was made hygh pryce in his stede, and howe he had won the lande agayne with the ctyes in it: they wrot vnto hym in tables of latyne, to renew the frendship and bonde of loue, which they had made afore with Judas and Jonathas his brether. Whiche wytynges were red before the congregacion at Ierusalem.

And this is the copie of the letters, that the Spartans sent: The Senatours and ctyens of Sparta sende greetinge vnto Symon & greafe pryce to the elders, pryces, & other people of the Jewes their brether: When your embassadours that were sent vnto our people, certified vs of your worship, honoure prosperous wealch: we were glad of theyr cheeryng, and haue wyitten the errende which they spake before the counsell of the people: namelye, that Flumentus the sonne of Antiochus, and Antipater & sonne of Jalon, the Jewes embassadours are come vnto vs, for to renew the olde frendship with vs. Vpon this the people consented, that the men shoulde be honorably intreated, and that a copy of theyr errende shoulde be wytten in the spercal booke of the people, for a perpetuall memoire vnto the Spartans: yea and that we shoulde sende a copy of the same vnto Symon & greafe pryce.

After this vnto Symon sende Flumentus vnto Rome, with a golden sylbe of a thousande pounde weight, to confirme the frendship with them: which when the Romaynes receyved, they sayd: what thanks shall we recompence agayne vnto Symon and his chyldren: for he hath stablished his brether, and overcome the enemyes of Israel. Wherefore they graunted hym to be free. And al this wrote the Jewes in tables of latyne, and napled it vnto the pylters vpon the mount Syon. The copie of the wytyng is this.

The xviij. daye of the moneth Elul in the lxxij. yere, in the thyrty yere of Symon the hye priest, in the great congregacion of the pryces, rulers of the people, and elders of a citty at Asaram, were these wordes openly declared.

For so moche as there was moche warre in our lande, therefore Symon the sonne of Mathathias (come of the chyldren of Iacob) and his brether, put them selues in peryll, and resisted the enemyes of their people: & theyr Sanctuarye and lawe myght be manteyned, and vnto theyr people great worship. Jonathas in lyke manner, after that he had gouerned his people and bene their hye pryce: dyed, and lyeth buried belyde his elders.

After that wold theyr enemyes haue troddyn theyr holy thynges vnder fote, destroyed theyr lande, and vnterlye wasted theyr Sanctuarye. Then Symon withstode them, and fought for his people, spelt moche of his owne money, weapened the valeaunte men of his people, gaue them wages, made stronge the ctyes of Iuda, with Bethsurah, that lyeth vpon the borders of Jewrye (where the sibynance of theyr enemyes laye somtyme) and let Jewes there for to kepe it.

He made fall Joppa also, which lyeth vnto the see, and Gaza that boordeth vpon Arotus (where the enemyes dwelte afore) and there he let Jewes to kepe it: & what so euer was mete for the subduynge of the aduersaryes, that layd he therein. Nowe when the people sawe the noble actes of Symon, and what worship he purposed to do for them, his godly behauioure, and saythfulnesse whiche he kepte vnto them, and howe he sought by all wayes the wealthe of his people, bycause he vnto all this, therefore they chose hym to be their pryce and hye pryce. And in his tyme they prospered well by hym, so that the Heathen were taken out of theyr lande and they also whiche were in the ctye of David at Ierusalem in the castell (where they went oute and despyled all thynges that were aboute the Sanctuarye) and vnto greafe harme vnto ctenlynes, and Symon put men of the Jewes in it for the defence of the lande and the ctye, & set vp the walles of Ierusalem.

And kynge Demetrius confirmed hym in his hye pryce, made hym his frende, and vnto hym greafe worship. For he herde that the Romaynes called the Jewes their fren des louers & brether: howe honorably they receyved Symons embassadours: howe Jewes and pryces consented that he shoulde be their pryce & hygh pryce perpetuall (till God sayd by the true prophet) and that he shoulde be their captayne, to care for the Sanctuarye, and to set officers vpon the workes therof, ouer the land, ouer the weapons, ouer the houses of defence, to make psonion for the holy thynges and to be obeyed of euery man, & all the wytynges of the lande to be made in his name: that he shoulde be clothed in purple and golde, & that it shoulde be lausful for none of the people nor pryces to be anye of these thynges, to withstand his wordes, ne to call any congregacion in the land without hym: that he shoulde be clothed in purple, & weare a colar of gold. And yf there were any whiche disobeyed or brake this ordynance that he shoulde be punished.

So all the people consented to allow Symon, and to do accordyng to these wordes. Symon also hym selfe toke it vpon hym, and was content to be the hye pryce, the captayne and pryce of the Jewes and pryces, and to gouerne them all. And they commaunded to make this wytyng in tables of latyn, and fasten it vnto the compasse of the Sanctuarye in an open place: and to laye vp a copy of the same in the treasury, that Symon and his posteritye myght haue it.

Antiochus maketh a countenante of frendshippe with Symon, and Cephor is persecuted. The Romaynes wyte letters vnto kynge and nations in the defence of the Jewes. Antiochus refusynge the helpe that Symon sente hym, breaketh his countenante.

CAPL. XV.

Moner, kynge Antiochus the sonne of Demetrius sent letters frome the fles of the see, vnto Symon the hye pryce and pryce of the Jewes, and to all the people, conteynyng these wordes: Antiochus the kynge sendeth greetinge vnto Symon the hygh pryce and to the people of the Jewes. For so moche as certayne wicked men haue gotten the kyngdome of our progenytours, I am purposed to chalenge the realme agayne and to restore it to the olde estate.

Wherefore I haue gathered a greafe host and made wyppes of warre: that I maye go thowt the countrey, & be auenged of the whiche haue destroyed oure lande, and wa-

And many cities in my realme. And therefore now I make the free also from all the tributes, wherof all kynges my progenytours haue dyscharged the, and frome theyr customes (wherof they haue released the) what so euer they be: Yea I geue the lene to coyne monney of thynne owne within thy lande. As for Jerusalem, I wyll that it be holpe and free: and all the weapons and houses of defence whiche thou hast buried and kept in thynne handes, shall be thynne. Wher as any charge is or shall be owing vnto the kyng, I forgiue it the, frome this tyme forth for evermore. And when we haue obtained oure kyngdome, we shall do the, thy people, and the temple greates worship, so that your honour shall be knowen thorow out the hole world.

In the xxiii. yere went Antiochus in to his fathers lande, and all the men of warre came to grete vnto hym, so that fewe were left with Tiphon. So the kyng Antiochus folowed vpon hym, but he fled vnto Doza, which lyeth by the see syde: for he sawe that there was myschance commynge vnto hym, and that his hood had forsaken hym. Then came Antiochus vnto Doza with an hundred and twentye thousande men of armes vpon foote, and eight thousande horsemen. So he compassed the city rounde aboute, and the wyppes came by the see. Thus they vexed the city by lande and by water, in so much that they suffered no man to go in nor out.

LXXVI.

In the meane season came Aumenius (and they that had bene with hym) from the city of Rome, haungge letters wyrtten vnto the kynges and prynces, wherein were contented these wordes: Lucius the Maye of Rome sendeth greetynge vnto Ptolome the kyng. The embassadours of the Jewes, our frendes beyng sent from Symon the bygh priest and from the people of the Jewes, came vnto vs, for to renewe the olde frendshipp, and bonde of loue, and brought a wyppre of golde weyngge a thousande ponde, whiche were content to receiue of them. Wherfore we thoughte it good to wyrtte vnto the kynges and prynces, to do them no harme, nor to take parte agaynst them, theyr cities ne countreys neither to maintaine theyr enemyes agaynst them. If there be any wicked persons therfore fled frome theyr countrey vnto you, helpe them vnto Symon the bygh priest, that he may punish them accordyng to their owne lawe.

The same wordes wrote the Romaynes also vnto Pemetrius the kyng, to Attalus, Arata, Antiochus, and to all regions: as Samaria, to them of Sparta, Delo, Rhodo, Sydon, Caria, Sainos, Phamphilia, Aicia, Ait-carnallum, and to the Rhodes, to Iafelis, Eoo, Syda, Arado, Soztina, Gnthum, to Cypre and to Cyren. And of euery lette they sent a copy to Symon the bygh priest and to the people of the Jewes. So Antiochus the kyng broughte his hoste vnto Doza the seconde tyme, to take it: where he made byuers ordinaunce of warre, and kept Tiphon in, that he shoulde not come forth. Then sent Symon Antiochus two thousand chosen men to helpe hym with gold, syluer and other precious geer: Hecerehele he wolde not receiue them but brake all the countaunte whiche he made with Symon afore, & wyppre hym self from hym.

The kyng Antiochus also a frende of his wrote to Symon, for to reason with hym saying: Ye wyrttholde fro me Joppa & Gaza (with the carkel that is at Jerusalem) whiche are cities of my realme, whose borders ye haue destroyed and done greates euill in the lande, haungge the domynacyon in manye other places of my kyngdome. Wherfore helpe now the cities whiche ye haue taken with theyr byures of the places that ye haue rule vpon withoute the borders of Jewrye: Or elles gyue me v. hundred talentes of syluer, yea and for the harme that ye haue done in the cities and for the tributes of the same, other v. L. talentes. If no, we shall come and fight agaynst you.

So Antiochus the kynges frende came to Jerusalem, and when he sawe the greates worship and honoure of Symon in gold, syluer, and so greates plenty of ornaments: he was maruelled, and tolde Symon as the kyng commaunded hym. Then answered Symon and sayde vnto hym: As for vs, we haue not taken other mens lande, nor withholde them, but onely oure fathers byrthright, whiche our enemyes had vnrightheously in possesse on a receypte tyme.

This byrthright, of our fathers haue we challenged in processe of tyme. And where as we camplaynest concernynge Joppa and Gaza, theyr greates harme to oure people and in our lande yett we gyue an hundred talentes for them.

Hecerehele Antiochus answered hym not one word, but turned agayne wyrttholde vnto the kyng, and tolde hym all these wordes, and the greates bygynnyng of Symon with all that he had done, and the kyng was very angrye. In the meane tyme fled Tiphon by wyppre vnto Dycholatha. Then the kyng made Antiochus capteyne of the sea coste & gaue hym an host of footemen and horsemen commaunding hym to remoue & go towarde Jewrye, and to buyde by the city of Cethu, to make by the portes, and to warre agaynst the people of the Jewes. As for the kyng himself, he folowed vpon Tiphon. So Antiochus came vnto Jamnia, and began to vex the people to treade downe Jewrye, to take the people prisoners, to slay the and to build by Cethon: where he set horsemen & other men of warre, that they myght come forth & go thorow the stretes of Jewrye, like as the kyng had commaunded hym.

Antiochus the capteyne of Antiochus hoste so put to flight the sonnes of Symon Ptolomeus the sonne of Abobus kyllce Simon and his sonnes at a banquet. John kylleth them that theyr wyppes for his lye.

XVI.

Then came Jhon by from Gaza, & tolde Symon his father what Antiochus had done amonge their people. Vpon this called Symon two of his eldest sonnes, Judas and Jhon, and said vnto them: I & my brethren and my fathers house, haue euer fro our youth byrth this daye, foughten agaynst the enemyes of Israel, and God gaue vs good fortune to deliuer Israel ofte tymes. And now for so moche as I am olde, be ye in my steede and my brother, to go forth and fight for our people, and the help of God be with you. So he chose twenty. W. fightynge men of the countrey, & horsemen also which went forth agaynst Antiochus and rested at Bethan.

In the mornynge they arose and went in to the playn field: and beholde, a mighty great host came agaynst them, both of footemen and horsemen. Now was there a water broke betwixt them, and Jhon remoued the hoste towarde them. And when he sawe that the people was afraid to go ouer the water broke he mett vnto hym self: and the men seinge this folowed hym.

Then Jhon set his horsemen & footemen in order the one by the other, for their enemyes horsemen were verie many. But when they blew up the prestes trumpets, Antiochus fled with his hoste, wherof many were slayn and the remaunte gat them to their stronge hold. Judas also Jhons brother was wounded at the same tyme. And Jhon folowed syl upon the enemyes, till he came to Cethu whiche he builded. The enemyes fled also vnto the towres that was in the felde of Azotus, and there byd Jhon burne vp. Thus there were slayn two thousand men of them, & Jhon turned agayne peaceably to Jery.

And in the felde of Jericho was Ptolomey & son of Abobus made capteyne, which because he had abundance of syluer and golde for he had maryed the daughter of Symon the bygh priest, was proude in his mynde, & thought to conqueere the land, ymagining falsched against Symon and his sonnes, to destroy the. Now as Symon was going about thorow the cities that were in the countrey of Jery, and caring for the, he came down to Jericho with Machabiah & Judas his sonnes, in the xlviii. yere, in the xi. moneth called Sabat. Then Ptolomey the son of Abobus receyved the (but with disceit) in to a strong house of his called Doch, which he had builded, wher he made them a banquet.

So when Symon & his sonnes were merry and had dronken well, Ptolomey stode vp to his men (whom he had byd there) & toke their weapons, entred in to the banquet house, & slew Symon & his two sonnes, and certeyn of his seruantes. Suche great vnfaythfulness byd Ptolomey in Israel, & recompensed euill for good. The wrote this Ptolomey the same by to king Antiochus, requyryng him that he shold send him an host to helpe him, and so shold he deliuer him the land, with the cities and tributes of the same. He sent other men also vnto Gaza, for to take Jhon: and wrote vnto the capitanes to come to hym, and he shold gyue them syluer, golde, and rewades. And to Jerusalem he sent other to take it and the Sanctuary.

Then ran there one before, & told Jhon in Gaza, & his father & his brethren were slayn, and how that Ptolomey had sent to sle him also. When Jhon herde this, he was sore abashed, & layde handes of them that were come to destroy him, and slew them: for he knewe that they went about to kil him.

As for other thinges concerning Jhon: of his warres, of his noble actes wherin he behaued him selfe manfully of the buyding of walles which he made, and other of his dedes: they are wyrtten in the cronicles of his byrthhode, fro the tyme forth that he was made bygh priest after his father.

THE II. BOOKE OF THE MACHABEES.

In Epistle of the Jewes that dwelt at Jerusalem sent unto them which dwelt at Egypt, wherein they exhorte them to give thanks for the death of Antiochus. Of the fyre that was hyd in the pye. The prayer of Nehemias.

CAPL.

I.

He brethren of the Jewes which be at Jerusalem, & in the land of Jure, with unto those brethren of the Jewes that are thowout Egypt: good fortune helth and peace.

God & Lord be gracious unto you, & thynke upon his covenant that he made wth Abraham, Isaac & Jacob his faithfull servants, and give you all such an heret, that ye may love & serve him: yea & performe his wil which an hole here & a willing minde: he open your hertes in his law, and in his commandmentes, sende you pear: heare your prayers, be at one with you, & never forsake you i time of trouble. This is here our prayer for you.

What time as Demetrius reigned in the Cix. yere, we Jewes wrote unto you in the trouble and violence that came unto vs. In those yeres after that Jason departed oute of the holy lande and kyngdome, they bent up the pyres, & shed innocent bloude. Then made we our prayer unto the Lord, and were heard: we offered and lighted the candels, setting forth cakes and bread, and now come we unto the feast of tabernacles in the moneth Cullen.

In the Cixxviij. yere the people that was at Jerusalem and in Jure, the counsell and Judas him selfe, sent this holisome salutaciō unto Aristobolus kyng: Ptolomys master, which came of the generaciō of the annoiued prestes, and to the Jewes that were in Egypt: In so moche as God hath deliuered vs frome greete perils, we thanke hym highly, in that we resisted so myghty a kyng. And wher he brought men out of Persia by heapes to fight agaynst vs and the holy cytye. For as he was in Persia, namely the capitayne with the great hoste, he perished in the temple of Raneas, being disceyued thowto the deuice of Raneas prestes. For as he was purposed to haue dwelle, there Antiochus and his frendes came thither to receyue moche moneye for a dowrye. So when Raneas prestes hadde layde forth the money, he entred with a small companye in to the compasse of the temple, and so they shut the temple.

Now when Antiochus entred by opening of the temple, the prestes floode oute in to the temple, and he was in peeces: and he was out in all thynges, God be prayed, which hath deliuered the wicked in to our handes.

Where as we now are purposed to kepe the purification of the temple upon the xxv. daye of the moneth Cullen, we thought necessarye to certify you therof, & ye also might kepe the tabernacles feast day, and the day of the fyre which was giuen vs when Nehemiah offered after he had set up the temple and the altar. For what tyme as our fathers were led away unto Persia, & prestes which the louge the honour of God, toke the fyre pynely fro the altar, & hyd it in a valse, where as was a depe dyre pye, and therein they kepte it, because the place was unknowne to eury ma. Now after many yeres wher it pleased God that Nehemiah wolde be sent from the kyng of Persia, he sente the chylders chyldren of those prestes which had hyd the fyre to seke it. And as they tolde vs they founde no fyre, but theye water. Then commaunded he them to drinke it up, and to byrge it hym, & the offerunges with all. Nowe when the sacrifices were layde on and ordred, the prest Nehemiah commaunded to sprynkle them and the wod with the water. Wher this was done, and & tyme come that the sunne shone whiche afore was hyd in the cloude: there was a great fyre kyndled. In so moche that eury man merueyled. Nowe all the prestes prayed whyle the sacrifice was a makinge. Jonathan prayed fyre, and the other gaue answer.

And Nehemias prayer was after this manner: O Lord God, maker of all thynges, & fearful and strong, thou righteous and mercifull, thou that art only a gracious kyng, only lyberal, only iust, almighty and curialyng, thou that deliuerest Israel from all trouble, thou that hast chose the fathers and halowed them: receyving the offerunge for the hole people of Israel, preserve thyn owne porciō, and halow it. Gather those together that are scattered abroad from vs: deliuer the that are vnder the heathens bondage, lōke vpon them which are despised and abhorred that the heathen may know and se, how that thou art our God: Punish the that oppress, and proude put vs to dishonoure. Let thy people agayne in thy holy place, like as Moses hath spoken.

And the prestes song Psalmes of thanksgivinge, so longe as the sacrifice endurde.

Now when the sacrifice was bynt, Nehemiah commaunded the great stones to be sprinkled with the residue of the water. Whiche wher it was done, there was kyndled a flame of them also: but it was consumed thowto the lighte that byned frome the altar. So when this mater was knowen, it was tolde the kyng of Persia, that in the place wher the prestes which were led away, had hyd the fyre, there appered water in stead of fyre, and that Nehemias & his company had purified the sacrifices withall. Then the kyng commaunded syderunge and ponderunge the mater diligently, made him a temple to proue the thing was done. And when he found it so in dede, he gaue the prestes many gyftes, and dyuers rewards, yea he toke the with his own hand and gaue them. And Nehemias called the same place Nephtar, which is as moch is say, as a cleansing: but many men cal it Nepht.

Nowe Jeremie hyd the tabernacle, the Arche, and the altar in the hyl. Of the fyre boke of Jason continued in one.

CAPL.

II.

It is found also in the writings of Jeremie the prophet, that he commaunded the which were carryed away to take fyre, as it is sayd afore. He commaunded them also, that they sholde not forget the law and commandmentes of the Lord, and that they shold not erre in their myndes, when they saw images of syluer and golde with their ornaments. These and suche other thynges commaunded he them, and exhorted them, & they shold not let the law of God go out of their hertes.

It is written also, how the prophet (at the commaundement of God) charged them to take the tabernacle and the arke with them: and he went forth unto a mountayne, where Moses chymed by, and sawe the heritage of God. And when Jeremie came there, he founde an open caue, wherin he layd the tabernacle, the arke, and the altar of incense, & so stoped the hole. There came certayne men together also to praye hym, to marcke the place, but they coulde not fynde it. Whiche when Jeremie perceyued, he rejoyced them saying: As for that place it shall be unknowne, vntill the time that God gather his people together agayne, and receyue them vnto mercy. Then shal God shew them these thynges, and the maiestic of the Lord shal appere and the cloude also, lyke as it was shewed vnto Moses, and lyke as when Salomon bespoken that the place might be sanctified, and it was shewed hym.

For he bring a wyse man, handled honourably and wysely offerung vnto God in the hallowing of the temple when it was finished. And like as wher Moses prayed vnto the Lord the fyre came downe from heuen and consumed the burnt offering: Euen so prayed Salomon also, and the fyre came downe frome heuen, and consumed the burnt offering. And Moses said: because the synoffring was not eaten, therefore it is consumed. In like manner Salomon kept the dedication, & hallowing, eight dayes.

In the annotations and writings of Jeremie were these thynges put also: how he made a lybrary, and how he gathered out of all countreys the boke of the prophetes, of David, the epistles of the kinges, & of the prestes. Euen so Judas also, loke what he leered by experience of war, & suche thynges as hath hapened vnto vs, he gathered the al together, and so we haue the by vs. If ye now besyde to haue the same, sende some bodye to seeke them vnto you. Where as ye then are about to celebrate the purification, we haue written vnto you. Therefore ye shal do well if ye kepe the same dayes. We hope also that the God which deliuered his people, & gaue them al the heritage, kyngdome presthode & Sanctuary that he promised the in the law) shal shortly haue mercy vnto vs, & gather vs together fro vnder the heuen in to his holy place: for he hath saued vs fro greete perils, and hath cleansed the place.

As concerning Judas Machabeus and his brethren, the purification of the great temple, the dedicaciō of the altar: yea & of the warres & concerne noble Antiochus and Eupator his son, of the thynges that came downe from heuen vpon those, which manfully defended the Jewes. For though they were but few, yet defended they the hole land, drove away the enemies hoste, recovered agayne the temple & was spoken of thowout ouer all the world, deliuered the city, doing their best & the law of the Lord which was put downe might in all tranquillitie be restored agayne vnto the Lord that was so mercifull vnto them. As touching Jason also of Cyren, we haue vnderaken compendiously to byrge in to one boke, the thynges that were comprehended of him in fyre. For we considerunge the multitude of the boke, & how hard it sholde be for them that wolde medle with stories & actes (and that because of so dyuers maters) haue vnderaken so to comprehend the stories that such as are disposed to rede, might haue pleasure and pastyme therein: and that they which are diligent in such thynges, might the better thynke vpon them: yea & that who so euer rede them, might haue profit thereby.

Nevertheless, we our selues & haue medled with this matter for the shortynge of it, haue taken no small labour, but great diligence, watchinges & trauayle. Lyke as they that make a feast wolde saye do other men pleasure: Euen so we also, for many mens takes, are very well content to take the labour, wher as we may shortly comprehend the thynges that other men haue truly written.

For he that buyldeth an house anew, must proude for many thynges to the hole buylding: but he & paynteth it afterward, sekereth but only what is comely, mete, and conuenient to garnish it withall. Euen so do we also in lyke manner. And wher he that begynneth to write a story for the fyre, must with his vnderstandunge gather the mater together, set his wordes in ordre, and diligently seke out of eury parte: But he that afterward wil shorten it, beseth some wordes, and toucheth not the mater at the largest. Let this be sufficient for a prologe, now we will begyn to shew the mater: for it is but a folysh thyng to make a long prologe, and to be thowto in the storye it selfe.

Of the honour done vnto the temple by the kynges of the Gentyles. Symon betteth what treasure is in the temple. Heliodorus is sent to take them away. He is stricken of God, and healed at the prayer of Onias.

CAPL.

III.

What tyme as the holy city was inhabited in al prax and welth, and when the lawes were yet verie well kepte. (for so was it ordeyned by Onias the hye prest, & other godly men that were enemies to wychednesse.) It came therto that euen the kynges and prynces theym selues byd the place great wo:thyp, and garnished the temple w great gyftes: In so moche þ Seleucus kyng of Asia, of his own reuites bare all the costes belongynge to the seruyce of the offerynges.
Then Symon of the trybe of Beniamin, a ruler of the temple, laboured to worke some myschiefe in the cite: but the hye prest resisted hym.

U. Mach. III.

Neuerthelesse whē he might not overcome Onias, he gat him to Appolonius the son of Cherisa, which then was chiefe lord in Ce-losyria and Phenices) and told him that the treasury in Jerusalem was ful of innumerable money, & how that the commons goodes, which beloged not vnto the offerynges, were exceedynge great also: yea, and how it were possible that all these myght come vnder the kynges power.

Now when Appolonius hadde shewed the kyng of the money, as it was tolde him: the king called for Heliodorus his steward, and sent hym with a commaundement, to brynge hym the same money. Immediatly Heliodo-rus toke his iourney, but vnder a colour, as though he wolde goo thowm Celosyria and Phenices to visite the cities, but his purpose was to fulfill the kynges pleasure. So whē he came to Jerusalem, and was ioungly re-ceyued of the hye prest in to the city, he tolde what was determyned concerninge the money, and shewed the cause of his commynge: he asked also if it were so in dede. Then the hye prest tolde hym that there was such money layd vp for the vpholdynge of wyndowes and fatherlesse chyldren, and how that a cer-tayne of it beloged vnto Hyrcanus. Onias a noble man: and that of al the money (whiche that wyched Symon hadde betwayered) there were foure hundred talentes of syluer, and two hundred of golde: yea, and that it were impossible for those mens meaninge to be disceyued, that had layde by their money in the place and temple, which is had in wo:
thyp thowme the hole wo:thide, for the mayntenaunce and honour of the same. Where-vnto Heliodorus answered, that þ king had commaunded him in any wyse to bryng hym the money.

So at the daye appoynted, Heliodorus entered in to the tple to ordey this matter. But there was no small feare thowout the hole cite. The prestes set downe before the auster in their vestimentes, and called vnto he-nen vpon hym, whiche had made a lathe concernyng stufte gyuen to kepte, that they shold be safelye preserved for: suche as commyt the vnto keepynge. Then who so had looked the hye prest in the face, it wold haue greued his herte: for his countenaunce and the chamgyng of his coloure, declared the inward torow of his mynde. The man was al in heyennesse, and his body in feare: wherby they that looked vpon him, might perceyue þ greef of his herte. The other people also came out of their houses by heapes vnto the common prayer, by cause the place was lyke to come in to confusion. The women came togyther thowm the stretes with heery clothes about their byddes.

The virgyns also that were kepte in, ran to Onias, some to the wallis, other some looked oute of the wyndowes: yea, they all helde by their handes toward heuen, and prayed. A myserable thyng was it to loke vpon the common people, and the hye prest beinge in suche trouble. But they besoughte almighty God, that the goodes which were commytted vnto them, myghte be kepte hole for those that had deliuered them vnto their keepynge. Neuerthelesse the thyng that Heli-odorus was determyned to do, that persou-med he in the same place, he hym self personally beinge aboute the treasury with his men of warre. But the spirite of almighty God shewed hym self openly, so that al they whiche presumed to obeye Heliodorus, fell thowm the power of God in to a great fear fulnesse and dyede. For there appeared vnto them an hoyle, with a terrible man sytynge vpon him, dect in goodly aray, and the hoyle smote at Heliodorus with his toxe scie. Now he that satte vpon the hoyle hadde harnesse of golde vpon hym.

Aftercouer there appered two saye: & beau-tyful yong men in goodly aray, which rode by him, scourged hym of bothe the sydes, and gaue hym many stripes wout ceasing. With that fel Heliodorus sobornly vnto þ ground.
So they toke him vp, being compassed about with great darkness, and bare him out vpo a beate. Thus he þ came with to many runers and men of warre in to the sayde treasury was borne out, where as no man myght help hym: and so the power of God was many-fest and known. He laye still domme also by the power of God, destitute of all hope & lyfe. And they prayed the Lo:de that he had shewed his power vpon his place and temple whiche a lytle afore was full of feare & trouble: and that thowme the reuelacion of the almighty Lo:de, it was fylled with ioy and gladnesse.

The certeyn of Heliodorus frendes prayed Onias, that in all haste he wolde call vpon God, to graunte hym his lyfe, which was gy-uynge vp the gho:st. So the hye prest considered the matter, and lest the kyng shold suspecte that the Jewes had doone Heliodorus some euill, he offered an healtre offeryng for hym. Now when the hye prest had offered his petition, the same yonge men in the same clothyng

clothyng appeared and rode betwye Heliodorus, saying: Thanke Onias the hye prest, for: for his sake hath the Lo:de graunted the thy life: therefore seing that God hath scoured the, giue him prayse and thanks, & shew every man his myght and power. And when they had spoken these wordes, they appeared no more.

So Heliodorus offered vnto God, made great bowes vnto him which had graunted him his lyfe, thanked Onias, toke his host, & went agayne to the kyng. Then testified he vnto every man of the great workes of God that he had sene with his eyes. And when the kyng asked Heliodorus who were mete to be sent yet once agayne to Jerusalem, he said: yf you haue any enemy or aduersarye vnto thy realme, send him thither, and thou shalt haue him punished, yf he escape with his lyfe: for in that place, no doubt, there is a special power and working of God. For he þ dwelleth in heuen, visiteth and defendeth that place: & al that come to it w harme, he punisheth and plageth the. This is now the matter concernyng Heliodorus, and the keepynge of the treasury at Jerusalem.

U. Mach. III. Symon reporteth euill of Onias. Jason despynyng the offer of the hye prest, corrupteth the kyng with rewards. The wyched intent of Jason.

CAPL.

IIII.

This Symon now, of whom we spake afore, being a betwayer of the money, & of his owne naturall countrey, reported the wo:th of Onias, as though he had mo-red Heliodorus vnto this, and as though he had ben a brynger vp of euill. Thus was he at a shame to cal him an enemy of þ realme wherwas so faythful an ouerser and defender of the cite and of his people: yea, and to seruent in the lawe of God. But when the malice of Symon increased to far, that tho-w his frendes there were certeyn mallaughtres commytte: Onias considered the peril þ might come thowm this strife, and how that Appolonius (namely the chiefe lord in Celosyria and Phenices) was al set vpon tyranny, & Simons malice increased the same:
he gat him to the kyng, not as an accuser of the citeyns, but as one that by him self inte-ded the commō welth of the hole multitude.
For he saw it was not possible to liue i prayer, wither Simon to leaue of frō his solishnesse except the kyng did loke therto. But after þ deceit of Seleucus, when Antiochus (which is called the noble) toke the kyngdome: Jason þ brother of Onias laboured to be hye prest:
for he came vnto the kyng, and promysed hym the hundred and .lx. talentes of syluer, and of the other reuites .lxxx. talentes. Weli-ch this, he promysed hym yet an .c. and .l. if he myght haue the scole of the chyldren, and that he myght call them of Jerusalem Antiochians. Which when the kyng had graunted and he had gotten the superiortie, he began immediatly to draw his kynsmen to the custome of the heathen, put downe the thynges that the Jewes had set vp of loue, by John the father of Eupolemius, which was sent embas-sador vnto Rome, for to make the bonde of frendshyp & loue. He put downe al the Jewes and Lybertyes of the Jewes, and set vp the wyched statutes. He durste make a syghtyng scole vnder the castel, & set saye yong men to learne the maners of heathens and hetelles.

This was now the begynnyng of the heathenish and straunge conuersacion, brought in thowm the vngacious and vnderd wychednes of Jason, which shold not be called a prest but an vngodly person. In so moche þ the prestes were now no more occupied about the seruice of þ auter, but despised the temple, regarded not the offerynges: yea gaue their diligence to lerne to fighte, to wastle to leape, to daunce, and to put at the stonnot setting by the honour of the fathers, but liked the gloze of the Gyckes best of all: for the which they stroue veriously, & were gredy to folow their statuts: yea their lust was in all thynges to be lyke them, whiche afore were their enemies and destroyers. How be it to do wickedly against the lawe of God, that not escape unpunished: but of this we shal speke hereafter.

What tyme as the Olympiades sportes were played at Tyrys (the kyng him self being present) this vngacious Jason sent twi-ked men, bearynge from them of Jerusalem, which now were called Antiochians, chie. & drachmes of syluer for an offering to hercules. These had they that carryed them desired vnder suche a facion, as though they shoulde not haue be offered, but bestowed to other ofices. Neuerthelesse he that sent them, sent the to the intent that they shoulde be offered vnto hercules. But because of those that were present, they were gyuen as to the maynage of thyppes. And Appolonius the son of Hecleus was sent in to Egypte, by cause of the noble men of kyng Ptolome Philometor. Nowe when Antiochus perceyued that he was put out from medlynge in the realme, he soughte his own profyt, departed from thence, came to Joppa, and then to Jerusalem: where he was honourably receyued of Jason, and the cite, and was brought in with toxe light & with great prayse, and so he turned his hoste vnto Phenices.

After thre yere Jason sent Menelaus, the foresaid Simons brother, to beare the money vnto the kyng, and to brynge hym aunswere of other necessarye matters. But he (when he was prayled of the kyng for magnifying of his power) turned the presthode vnto hym selfe, laying by thre hundred talentes of syluer for Jason. So when he had gotten commaundementes frō the kyng, he came haueyn nothing that becommeth a prest, but bearing the stomache of a cruel tyrant, & the wrath of a wyld brute best. Then Jason, whiche had disceyued his owne brother, seinge that he hym selfe was begyled also, was sayne to flice in to the lande of the Ammonites, and

U. Mach. III. Menelaus

Menelaus gat the dominion. But as for the money that he had promised vnto the kyng, he dyd nothing therein, when Sostratus & ruler of the castell required it of him. For Sostratus was the man that gathered the customs: wherfore they were both called before the kyng: Thus was Menelaus put out of the p[re]sid[en]cy, & Lysimachus his brother came in his steede. Sostratus also was made lord of the Cyprians.

It happened in the meane season, that the Chalcians and Malloians made insurrection, because they were gyuen for a present vnto kyng Antiochus concubine. Then came the kyng in all the haste to sylle them agayne, and to pacifye the matter, leauynge Andronicus ther to be his dep[ut]ie as one mete therfore. Now Menelaus supposing that he had gotten a ryght convenient tyme, stole certayne vessels of golde out of the temple, and gaue them to Andronicus for a present: and some he sold at Tyre, and in the cities therby.

Which when Onias knewe of a surety, he exp[re]ssed hym, but he kepte him in a Sanctuary beside Daphnis that lyeth by Antioche. Wherfore Menelaus gat hym to Andronicus, and prayed him he wolde see Onias. So when he came to Onias, he counseyled him craftely to come out of the Sanctuary, gyuyng him his hande with an othe (how he if he suspecte hym) and then he s[aw]e Onias, without any regarde of rightousnesse. For the whiche cause not onely the Jewes, but o[ther] nations also toke indignaciō, and were displeased for the vnyghtous deathe of so godly a man.

And when the kyng was come again from Cilicia, the Jewes and certein of the Grekes went vnto him, complayning for the vnyghtous deathe of Onias. Yea Antiochus him self was sorry in his mynde for Onias, so that it p[er]suaded him, and he wept, remembryng his sobrenesse & manerly behauiour. Wherfore he was so kyndled in his mynde, that he commaunded Andronicus to be stripped out of his p[re]s[en]t clothyng, and so to be led thowout all the city: yea and the vngacious man to be slain in the same place where he committed his wickednesse vnto Onias. Thus the Lord rewarde him his punishment, as he had deserued. Now when Lysimachus had done many wicked dedes in the temple, thowout the counsell of Menelaus, and the voyce came abroad: the multitude gathered the together agaynst Lysimachus, for he hadde caried oute now moche golde.

So when the people arose and were full of displeasure, Lysimachus armed thre. M. vnt[er]lyftes to defend hym, a certeyn t[ro]up of heinge their capitayne, whiche was grown both in age and wodnesse. But when the people vnderstode the purpose of Lysimachus, some gat stones, some good strong clubbes, & some castelikes vpon Lysimachus. Thus there were many of the wounded, some being slayne, and al the other chaased away. But as for the wicked church robber him self, they kylled hym besyde the treasury. Of these matters therfore there was kept a court agaynst Menelaus. Now when the kyng came to Tyre, they made a complaint vnto him of Menelaus concernynge this busynesse, and the enuilladours were there. But Menelaus went & promised Ptolomy to giue him moche money, yf he wolde perswade the kyng. So Ptolomy wet to the kyng in to a court, wher as he was set to coole hym: & brought him oute of that mynde. In so moche that he discharged Menelaus fro the accusations, that not withstanding was cause of al mischief: and those poore men, which if they had told theyr cause: yea before the Scythians they shoulde haue ben iudged innocent, them he condemned to deeth.

Thus were they some punished, which followed vnto the matter for the city, for the people, and for the holy vessel. Wherfore they of Tyre toke indignacion, and buried the honourably. And so thowout the countreys of them & were in power, Menelaus remained still in auctoritie, increasynge in malice to the hurt of the citizens.

Of the signes and tokens sene in Jerusalem Of the ende and offence of Iason. The picture of Antiochus agaynst the Jewes. The spoyle of the temple.

CAPL. V.

At the same time Antiochus made him a redye to goo agayne in to Egypte. Then were there sene at Jerusalem forty dayes long, horsemen runnyng to and fro in the ayre, which had rayment of golde and spere. There were sene also hole hostes of men, weaponed, and horsemen runnyng in an order, how they came together, how they held forth theyr shields, how they harnessed men betwixt out their swordes and the their darts.

The shine of the golde weapons was sene, and of al maner of armure. Wherfore euery man prayed that those tokens myght tourne to good. Now when there was gone forth a false rumour, as though Antiochus had ben deede: Iason toke a M. men, and came suddenly vpon the city. The citizens ran vnto the walles, at the last was the city taken, & Menelaus fled in to the castell.

As for Iason he spared not his owne citizens in the slaughter, withre considered he what great euill it were to destroye the p[er]son of his own kynsmen, but did as one that had gotten the victory of his enemies, and not of his frendes. For all this gate he not the superstitious, but at the last receyved confusion for his malice, and fled agayne lyke a vacabounde, in to the land of the Ammonites.

Finally, for a reward of their wickednesse he was accused before Artaxerxes the kyng of the Arabians: In so moche that he was fayne to fle from city to city, beyng despised of euery euery man as a forsaker of the lawes, and an abominable persone. And at the last (as an open enemye of his owne naturall countre and of the citizens) he was dyscuss in to Egypt.

Thus he that afore put many out of theyr owne natyue land, perished from home him self. He went to Achermon, thynkyng there to haue gotten succoure by reason of kynred. And he that afore had casten many one oute vnto deeth, was thowout him self, no man mournynge for hym, ne p[re]s[en]tynge hym in his graue: so that he neither enioyed the burial of a deafer, neither was he partaker of his fathers sepulchre.

Now when this was done, the kyng suspected that the Jewes wolde haue fallen from hym: wherfore he came in a great displeasure out of Egypt, and toke the cyte by violence. He commaunded his men of warre also, that they shoulde kyle & not spare, but slaye to wone such as withstode them, or clymed vp vnto the walles.

Thus was there a great slaughter of pong men, olde men, women, chyldren and byrgens. In thre dayes were there slayne. lxxx. M. for thre thousand put in prison, and no lesse folke. Yet was he not content with this, but burst in to the most holy temple (Menelaus that captiue to the lawes and to his owne naturall countre, beyng his gyde) and with his wycked handes toke the vessel, which other kynges and cyties had gyuen together for the garnysynge and honour of the place: them toke he in his handes vnto his help, and despoiled them.

So mad was Antiochus, that he considered not, howe that God was a spelle word for the synners of them that dwelt in the cite, for the which, such confusion came vnto that place. And why? yf it had not happened the to haue bene lapped in many synnes (this Antiochus as soone as he had come had sodenly bene punished, and shot oute for his presumption, lyke as Heliodorus was, whom Heliclus the kyng sent to robbe the treasury. Hence, thele, God hath not chosen the people for the place sake, but the place for the peoples sake: and therefore is the place become partaker of the peoples trouble, but afterwarde shall it enioy the wealth of them. And lyke as it is now forsaken in the wrath of almighty God, so when the greates God is reconcyled, it shall be set vp in byghe worship agayne.

So when Antiochus had taken a M. and vii. C. talentes out of the temple, he gat him to Antioche in all the haste, thynkyng in his mynde, that he myght make me sayle vpon the byre land, and to go vpon the see, such an he mynde had he. He left dep[ut]ies there to breke the people: At Jerusalem left he Philip a byrgen, in maners more cruel then him self that set him there: At Garsum he left Andronicus and Menelaus, which were more geuous to the citizens the other. Now as he was thus set in malice agaynst the Jewes, he sent Apollonius an hated prynce, with xlii. M. commaunders him to slaye al those that were of perfect age, and to sel the women, maidens, and chyldren. When he came now to Jerusalem, he sayned pear, and kepte hym syl vnto the Sabbath daye. And then he commaunded his men to take them to their weapons (for the Jewes kepte holy daye) and so he s[aw]e all them that were gone forth to the open play, runnyng here and there thowout the cyte with his men weaponed, and murderers a great nomb[er]. But Judas Machabeus whiche was the tenth, fled into the wyldernes, led his lyfe there with his compaigne among the wyld beasts and vpon the mountaynes dwelling there, and eatynge grasse, lech theyr wold be partakers of the sylchynes.

The Jewes are compelled to leaue the lawe of God. The temple is despoiled. The readers are monyshed that they shall not abhorre the aduersitye wherwith the Lord afflicth them. The greuous payne of Eleazarus.

CAPL. VI.

Not longe after this, sente the kyng a messenger of Antioche, for to compel the Jewes to alter the ordinaunces of the fathers and the lawe of God, to despoyle the temple that was at Jerusalem, and to call it the temple of Jupiter Olympius: and that ther shoulde be in Garsum, as those whiche dwell at the place of Jupiter the herberous. This wycked sedition of the vngodly was bruy vpon all the people: for the temple was full of voluptuousnes, bibbyng and bawling of the heathen, of rybaudes and harlots together. The women went in to the holpe place, and bare in that was not laudful. The altar also was full of vnlaful thinges, whiche the lawe forbiddeth to laye vpon it. The Sabbathes were not kept, the other solene feastes of the land were not regarded. To be playne, there durst no man be acknowyn he was a Jewe. In the daye of the kynges byrth they were compelled perforce to offere: & when the feaste of Bacchus was kept, they were constrained to wree garlandes of pype and to go about for the honoure of Bacchus.

Wherfore thowout the counsel of Ptolomy, there went out a commaundement in thre cyties of the heathen & they shoulde intreat the Jewes in lyke maner: namely to cōpel them for to do sacrefyce after the lawes of the Gentiles & who so wold not, to put the to deeth. A pitous thig was it to se. There were. ii. women accused to haue stealed their sonnes, whome when they had led round about the city (the babes hāging at their byrestes) they cast them downe heilynge ouer the walles. Some were crept in to the denys had kept the Sabbath, were accused vnto Philip, & bid in the fyre: because for the feare of God they kept the commaundment so sylly & wold not wend the felues. Now I beseech al those that hād rede this boke & they refuse it not for these salies of aduersitye: a iudge & thinges (as are happened) for no destruction, but for a chastryng of our

of our people. And wherfore the God suffereth not sinners long to soile their owne minds, but shortly punyssheth them, it is a token of his grete louynge kyndnesse. For this grace haue we of God more then other people, that he suffereth not so longe to syne unpunished lyke other nacjons, that when the daye of iudgement cometh, he maye punyssh them in the fulnesse of thys synne. If we syn, he correcteth vs, but he neuer withdroweth his mercy from vs: and though he punyssheth with aduersitee, yett he neuer forsake his people. But let this that we haue spoken now be a warninge and exhortation of the Deathe. Nowe wyl we come to the declaringe of the matter. Eleazar one of the principall Scribes, an aged man and of a wellsaured countenance, was charynged to gape w open mouth, and to carye swynes fleshe. But he despyng rather to dye glorious then to lyue with shame, offered hym selfe wyllynglye to the martyrdome. Some when he sawe that he must nedes go to it, he toke it payntly: for he was at a poppe with hym selfe, that he wold consent to no vnlawfull thing for any pleasure of lyfe. They that rode by being moued with ppye (but not a ryght) for the olde frendshipp of the man, toke hym aspyr pryncely, and prayed hym that he wold let such fleshe be brought hym as were lawfull to eate, and then to make a countenance as though he had eaten of the fleshe of the sacrifice lyke as the kynge commaunded, for so he might be deliuered from death: and so for the olde frendshipp of the man, they shewed hym this kyndnesse. But he beganne to confyde his discrete and honorable age, his noble and worshipfull stocke, and howe that from his youth he had bene of an honest and good conuersacion: yea and howe constantly he had kept the ordinaunces and lawes comaunded by God, wherfore he gaue the this answer, and sayde: Yett had I rather sye de layed in my graue, for it becometh not myne age (said he) in any wyse to dissemble, wherby manye ponge persons myghte thynke, that Eleazar be ing. lxxx. yere olde, were gone to a strange lyfe: and so theowt myne ppyrty (for a lytle tyme of a thousand lyfe) they myghte be dysceyued: by this meanes also woulde I despye myne age, and make it abhominable. For though I were now deliuered from the commaundes of men, yett woulde I not scape the hand of almyghty God, neither aliue ned. Wherfore I wyl dye manfully, and do as it becometh myne age: wherby I maye peraduenture leaue an example of stedfastnesse for suche as be yong, yf I with a redy mynde and manfullye dye an honest deathe, for the most worthy and holy lawes.

When he had sayd these wordes, immediately he was drawn to the torment. Nowe they that led hym and were wyte a litle afore began to take displeasure because of the wordes that he sayd: for they thought he had spoken them of an hys mynde. But wher he was in his martyrdome, he mourned and sayd: Thou O Lorde, whiche hast the holy knowledge, knowest openly: that where as I myghte be deliuered from death, I suffer these paynes of my body: but in my mynde I am well content to suffer them, because I feare the. Thus this man dyed, leauynge the memo- ryall of his deathe for an example not onelye vnto yong men, but vnto all the people, to be stedfast and manly.

The punishment of the VII. brethren & of their mother.

CAP. VII.

It happened also that there were seven brethren (with their mother) taken & compelled by the kynge agaynst the law to eate swynes fleshe: namely with scourges & lecherous whippes. And one of them which was the chiefe, sayde: What seest thou, and what requyest thou of vs? As for vs, we are ready rather to suffer death, then to offende the lawes of God & the fathers. Then was the kynge angry, and had heate cauldrons & brasen pottes. Whiche when they were made hote, immediately he commaunded the tong of hym that spake fyrst to be cut out, to pull the sayn ouer his heade to pare of the edges of his habes and sette yea & that in the sight of his mother and the other of his brethren. Now when he was cleane mard, he comaunded a fyre to be made, & so whyle there was any breath in hym to be seyd in the cauldron. In the which when he had bene longe payned, the other brethren with their mother exhorted hym to dye manfullye, sayynge: Lorde Lorde God wail regardeth the truth, and comfort vs, lyke as Moses testyfied and declared in his song, sayynge: and he wyl haue compassion on his seruantes.

So when the fyrst was deed after this manner, they brought the seconde to haue hym in derision, pulled the sayne with the beere ouer his heade, and asked hym, yf he wold eate swynes fleshe, or he wold payne in the other members also theowt out his bodye. But he answered boldly, and sayde: I wyl not do it. And so was he tormentyd lyke as the fyrst. When he was euen at the grynge by the ghast he sayde: Thou most vngacious person puttest de to death, but the kynge of the worldes shall saye to by (which dye for his lawes) in the resurrection of euerydaye lyfe.

After hym, was the thyrde had in dyspyson: and when he was requyred, he put oute his tonge, and th at yghre soone, holdynge forth his handes manfullye, and spake with a stedfast sayth: These haue I of beuyn, but now for the lawe of God I despye them, for my trust is, that I shall receyue them agayn. In to much the kinge & they whiche were w hym, marvelled at yf yong man bold was, that he nothyng regarded the paynes.

Now when he was deed also, they brought the fourth with tormetes in lyke manner. So when he was come at his deathe, he sayd: It is better that we beynge put to death of me haue our hope and trust in God, for he shall saye to by agayne. As for I, thou shalt haue no resurrection to lyfe.

And when they had spoken to the fyrst, they tormentyd him. Then loked he vnto the kynge, and sayd: thou hast power among men, for thou arte a most tall man also thy selfe, to do what thou wilt, but thynk not, that God hath forsake our generacion. Abyde the, tary till a whyle, and thou shalt se the great power of God, how he wyl punyssh the and thy fr. After him they brought the fyrth, which dying at the poppe of death, sayd: We not dyspyed (O kynge) for this we suffer for our owne lawes, because we haue offended our God, and therfore meruelous thynges are the done vpon vs. But thynke not thou, whiche takest in hande to dyspye agaynst God, that thou shalt escape unpunished.

This excellent mother (worthy to be well reported of, and had in remembrance) sawe her seven sonnes dye in one daye, and suffered it payntly, because of the hope that she had in God: yea she exhorted euery one of them in chyrpal, and that boldly and stedfastly with paynted wysdome, wakyng by her wyppes thought with a manlye stomache, and sayde vnto them: I can not tell how ye came to my wofle, for I neither gaue you death ne soule, no nor lyfe. It is not I that toynded the members of your bodyes together, but the maker of the world, whiche fastyned the byrth of man, and began all thynges. Euen he also of his owne mercy shall graue you death and lyfe agayne, lyke as ye now regarde not yourt shewelnes for his sake.

Now thought Antiochus that she had de- lyed hym, therefore he let her go with her re- pones, and began to exhorte the panged son (which yet was left) not only with wordes, but with vnto hym with an othe, that he should make hym a ryche and welthyte man yf he wold forsake the lawes of his fathers: yea and that he wold graue hym: what soeuer was necessary for him. But when the ponge man wold not be moued for al these thynges, he called his mother, and collected her to laue her sonnes lyfe. And wher he had exhorted her with many wordes, she promised hym that she wold speake vnto her son. So she turned her vnto hym, laughynge the cruel straite to scoone: and spake to a bold voyce: O my sonne, haue ppye vpon me that bare the. ix. monethes in my wombe, that gaue the sucke, nortyshed the and brought the vnto this age.

I beseeche the (my sonne) loke vpon heauen and earth and all that is therein, and cōspyre, that God made them and mans generacion of thought: so shalt thou not feare this hang- man, but suffer deathe stedfastlye, lyke as thy brethren haue done: that I maye receyue the agayne in the same mercy with thy brethren.

Whyle she was yet speaking these wordes the ponge man sayd: Whom toke ye for? Wherfore do ye tary? I wyl not obeye the kynge's commaundment, but the law that God gaue by Moyses. As for the that ymagyneth all myscheit agaynst the Jewes, thou shalt not scape the hande of God, for we suffer these thynges, because of our synnes.

And though God be angry with vs a lytle whyle (for our chastyng and reformation) yett shall he be at one agayne with his seruantes. But thou, O wainful and most abhominable person. Wyde not thy selfe theowt hope, in beynge so malycious vpon the seruantes of God: for thou hast not yett escaped the iudgemente of the God whiche is almyghty and seeth all thynges. My brethren that haue suffered a lytle payne are now vnder the couenant of euerydaye lyfe: but theowt the iudgemente of God, thou shalt be punysshed epyghtously for thy pyde.

As for me, lyke as my brethren haue done, I offer my soule and my body for the lawes of our fathers, callynge vpon God, that he wyl soone be mercifull vnto our people yea and with payne and punysshment to make the graunt, that he only is God. In me now and in my brethren the wryth of almyghty God is at an ende, whiche epyghtously is fallen vpon all our people.

Then the kynge beynge kyndled in angre was more cruel vpon hym then vpon all the other, and toke indignation, that he was so lyghtly regarded. So this yonge man dyed vndeified, and put his trust vpon the Lorde. Late of al after the sonnes, was the mother put to death also. Let this now be proung spoken concernynge the offrynges, and extreme cruelnes.

Judas gathereth together his host. Sycanor is sente agaynst Judas. Judas exhorteth his souldy- ers to constanmes. Sycanor is overcome. The Jewes graue thankes after they haue put their enemies to flight, buryng the spoyles vnto the sa- therles and vnto the wydowes. Sycanor tyeth to Antiochus.

CAP. VIII.

Then Judas Machabeus and they that were w hym, went ppyrlye in to the towne called their kynsfolkes and sed des together, toke vnto them al such as con- tyued yett in the fayth and law of Jewes & brought forth. xl. thousande men.

So they called vpon the Lorde, that he wold haue an eye vnto his people: whiche was troden downe of euery man: to be gra- cyous vnto the temple, that was despyed of the vngodlye to haue compassyon vpon the destruction of the cpye whiche was worthy lyke to be layde waiste to heare the voyce of the bloude that cryed vnto hym: to remem- bre the moste vngodlye deathes of yonge innocent chylde the blasphemers also done vnto his name, and to punyssh them.

Nowe when Machabeus hadde gathered this myltitude together, he was to myghty for the heathen, for the wryth of the Lorde was turned into meercy, he fell vpon the tow- nes and ctytes at vntowares, byente them toke the moste commodious places, and slawe many of the enemies. But specially he made such chases by nyght in so moche that his manlynesse was spoken of every where. So when Philip saw that the man increased by strength and skill, and that the matter prospered with him for the most parte: he wrote unto Ptolemy (which was a captain in Cilicia and Phenicia) to helpe him in the kynge's business. Then sent he Ptolemy Patrocle (a speciall friende of his) in all the haste, and gave him the common sort of the heathen no lesse then xx. M. armed men, to rote out the hole generacy of the Jewes, hoping to helpe him one Gorgias a man of warre, whiche in matters concerninge battayles had greates experience. Ptolemy also beynd also the tribute (which the Romaynes shuld have had) to be gyven unto Philip, out of the captivitye of the Jewes, namely, ij. M. talles. And immediately he sent to the cyties of the see coast, requyryng them for to bye Jewes to be theyr seruantes and bondmen, promysing to sell them. lxxx. for one talente, but he considered not the wrath of almighty God, that was come vpon him.

When Judas knew of this, he tolde the Jewes that were with him of Ptolemy's charyng. Some were there some of them fearefull, not trustyng vnto the rightousnesse of God and led theyr waye.

But the other that remayned, came together and besought the Lord, to deliuer them from that wicked Ptolemy, which had solde them or curre he come npe them: and thought he wolde not do it for theyr sakes, yet for the covenante that he made with theyr fathers, and because they called vpon his helpe and glorious name. And so Machabeus called his men together, namely aboute fye thousande, exhortyng them not to agree vnto their enemyes, neither to be afrayed for the multitude of their aduersaries commyng agaynst them vnto the holy place without cause, how they had despyed and oppressed the cyte, yea and destroyed the lawes of the fathers. For theyr sake he, truly in theyr weapons and boldnesse, but more confidence is in the almighty Lord, which in the twinklyng of an eye maye bothe destroye them that come agaynst vs, and all the world.

He exhorted them also to call to remembrance, the helpe that God shewed vnto theyr fathers: as when they perished an hundred foure score and fye thousande of Sennacherib's people: And of a battayle that they had in Babylon agaynst the Calacians: how that all the Macedonians that came to helpe them, were in feare: and how they being but only fye. M. slew an hundred and twenty thousand, thow the helpe that was gyven them from heauen, whereby they also had receyued many benefytes.

Thow the Jewes, the men took good herces vnto them, ready to dye for the lawe and the countrey. So he set vpon every company a captain, one of his owne brethren: Symon, Joseph and Jonathan: groupng eche fye hundred men. He caused Judas also to reade the holy booke vnto them, & to geue them a token of the helpe of God.

Then he hym self being captayne to fye. front of the battayle, buckled with Pincor. And God was their helpe, in so moche that they slew aboute. x. M. men, & compelled the more part of Ptolemy's host to flee, they were so wounded and feble. Thus they took the money from those that came to bye them, & solowed vpon them on every syde. But whē the tyme came vpon them they returned, for it was the Sabbath, and therefore they solowed none vpon them. So they took their weapons and spoiles and kept the Sabbath groupng thanks vnto the Lord which had deliuered them that daye, and shewed them his mercye. After the Sabbath they besought the Lord to the synners, to the fatherlesse and to widowes, and the selfe had theyr selues with theyr. When this was done and they all had made a general prayer: they besought the mercifull Lord to be at one with his seruantes.

Of those also that were with Antiochus and Bacthes, which fought agaynst them they slew. x. M. manne bygh and strong holdes, and drayded moos spoiles: euer groupng an equal portion vnto fye. & fye fatherlesse to widowes and to aged persons. And whē they had bypiently gathered their weapons together, they layde them all in convenient places & the remnant of fye spoiles brought they to Jerusalem. They slew Pnyarches that wicked personer, which was with Antiochus, and had vexed many Jewes. And when they helde the thankesguyng at Jerusalem for the victory, they bent those that had set fyre on fye portes of fye temple: namely Calisthenes, whiche was fled in to an house and so they gat a waye towarde for their wickednes. As for that moode ungracious Pincor, whiche had broughte a thousande marchantes, to by the Jewes, he was the same the helpe of the Lord brought downe euen of them whom he regarded not: in so moche that he put of his glorious rayment fled by see and came alone to Antioch, with greates shame and dishonoure, whiche he gat thow the destruction of his host. Thus he that promysed the Romaynes to pay them their tribute, when he took Jerusalem: began now to say playnely, that God was the defender of the Jewes, and therefore not possible to wounde them because they folowed the lawes whiche God had made.

Antiochus willing to spoyle Persopolis is dyed to flight. As he per'eueth the Jewes, he is cryken of the Lord. The sayned repentaunce of Antiochus. lxxv.

CAPL.

IX.

At the same tyme came Antiochus agayne with byhonour out of Persia. For when he came to Persopolis, and undertoke to rob the temple & to subdue the city, the people ran together and defended them selues, in so moche that he and his were fayne to flye with shame. And so after fye. dayes, it happened, that Antiochus came agayne by byhonour. But whē he came to Egbathana, he gat knowlege what was happened vnto Pincor and Antiochus. As he as he was mauntyng hym self in his wrath, he thought he was hable to avenge the iniury that was done to them vpon the Jewes: and therefore commaunded to make ready his charret, hatching on his iourney without ceasinge, the iudgement of God promysing hym, by cause he had spoken so proudly, that he wolde come to Jerusalem, and make it a graue of the Jewes. But fye. Lord God of Israel, that seith al thynges, smote him in an inspyable plage, whiche no man coulde heale.

For as soone as he had spoken these wordes, there came vpon hym an horrible payne of his bowels, & a fye grete of the charmes. And that was but syght: for he had martyred other mens bowels with byuers and strange countes, home he it, he wolde in no wyse take from his malice. Yea he was yet the prouder and more malicious agaynst the Jewes: But whē he was commaundyng to make haste in the matter, it happened that he fell downe violentlye from the charret, so that it bysoiled his body, and dyd him greates payne.

And so he that thought he myght commaunde the foudes of the see (so proude was he beyonde the condycion of man) and to wey the hygh mountaynes in a paye of scales, was now brought downe to the ground, and layd vpon an horribletter, knowledgyng the manifest power of God vpon hym: so that the wyched body of his was full of wormes, whiche in his payne fell quych out of his syde. In so moche that his host was greued with the smell and synke of hym. Thus he that a lytle afore thoughte he myght reache to the starres of heauen, hym myght no man nowe abyde ne beare, for the vehemence of synke.

Therefore he beyng brought fro his greates payne, began for to come to the knowledge of hym self: for the punishment of God warned hym, and his payne increased euer more and more. And when he hym self myght not abyde his owne synke, he said these wordes: It is treason to be obedyent vnto God, and that a man desyre not to be lyke vnto hym. This wyched person prayed also vnto the Lord, of whome he shoulde have obtayned no mercy. And as for the cyte that he came vnto to haue, to byng it downe to the grounde, and to make it a graue for deed men: now he desired to deliuer it free.

And as touchyng the Jewes whom he had wyged not to wyche to be buried, but wolde haue caste theym oute to be deuoured of the foules and wild beastes, saying: that he wolde haue destroyed but he olde and yonge: Now he promysed, to make them lyke the cytizens of Athens. And where as he had spoiled the holy temple afore, now he maketh promise to gemysh it with greates gyfes, to increate the holy ornamentes, and of his owne rentes to beate the colles, and charges belonging to the offpynges: yea and that he wolde also become a Jewe hym self, to go thow to every place of the world and to preach the power of God.

But when his paynes wolde not cease, (for the rightous iudgement of God was come vpon hym) out of a verie despayre he wrote vnto the Jewes a letre of intercession conteynyng these wordes: The kynge and pynce Antiochus wyslyeth vnto fye. vertuous cytizens of the Jewes, moche health & good prosperyte.

If ye and youre chyldren fare well, and yf all thynges go after your mynde: we giue greates thanks. In my lichenesse also do I remember you louyngly: for as I came oute of Persia, and was taken with fye byfalle: I thought it necessary to care for the comen wealth. Neither despayre I in my selfe, but haue a good hope to escape this sickness.

But consyderyng that my father led an honeste somerme in the hygher places, and we two shoulde saygne after hym, that yf there happened any cotrouerisy, or any hard thyng were declared: they in the lād myght knowe theyr chiefe lord, that there shoulde be no insurrection: Agayne, when I ponde by my selfe, how that all the myghty men and myghty houses rounde aboute, are sayng waile and lobe but for opozuntye to do harme: I haue bypnyed that my sonne Antiochus shal saygne after me whom I oft chomended to many of you, when I was in the hygher kyngdomes, and haue wyspiten vnto hym as it foloweth hereafter. Thow I praye you and requyre you, to remember the benefytes that I haue done vnto you generally and in especyall. For I hope that he shal be of sobrie and louyng deuaupour, and if he folow my deuce, he shal be indyfferent vnto you.

Thus that murderer and blasphemour of God was loze mynter: and like as he had increased other men, so he dyed a myserable death in a strange countrey vpon a mountayne. And his bodye dyd bypny (that wene with hym) care awaye: which reauynge the sonne of Antiochus, wente in to Egypte to Ptolemy Philometor.

Daniel. lxxv.

Judas Machabeus taketh the city and the temple. He becometh to shewe the actes of Eupator. The Jewes fight agaynst the Ptolemyans, Eupatorius inuadeth Jewrye, with whome Judas formerly battayle fye men appeare in the armye to the helpe of the Jewes. Eupatorius is slayne.

CAPL.

X.

Machabeus now and his company (thow some the helpe of the Lord) wente to the temple and the city agayne, destroyed the altars and chapelles that the heathen hadde builded thow the destruction of the temple, made an other altar of bypny stone & after y. yeres they offered sacryfices.

set forth the incense, the lyghtes and thewebren. When that was done, they fell downe flat vnder the grounde, and besought the Lord that they might come nomore in to such trouble: but if they synned any more agaynst hym, he hym selfe to chasten them with mercy, and not to come in the handes of those straungers and blasphemous men.

1. Mach. iii. 18
Now upon the same daye that the strangers polluted the temple, it happened that on the deepe same daye it was cleansed agayne: namely, the two and twenty daye of the mo-neth called Caslew. They kepte eight dayes in gladnesse, lyke as in the feast of the tabernacles: remembryng that not longe afoze, they helde the feaste of the tabernacles vpon the mountaynes and in dennes lyke beades.
And to the same taken they bare gerne bowes, branches and palmes before hym that had gyuen them good fortune to cleanse his place. They agreed also togyther, and made a statute, that every yere those dayes shoulde be solemnly kepte of all the people of the Je-wes.

Now Antiochus then (that was called the noble) dyed, it is suspected to saye. Now wyll we speake of Antiochus the son of that wicked Antiochus, how it happened with hym: and so with some wordes to comprehend the ad-uersitie that chaunced in the warres. When he had taken in the kyngdome, he made one Lysias (which had bene capitayne of the host in Phenices and Siria) ruler ouer the matters of the realm. For Ptolomey that was called Ptolemy, being a ruler for the Jewes, and specially, to sit in iudgement for such wrong as was done vnto them, undertooke to deale peaceably with them. For the which cause he was accused of the scribes before Eupator:
and when he was suspecte to be a traytoure (because he had lefte Egypte, that Ptolomey had committed vnto hym: and because he departed from noble Antiochus, that he was come vnto (he paysoned hym selfe, and dyed).

1. Mach. v. 1
Nowe when Gorgias was gouernour of the same places, he toke straungers and vnder toke othe to warre with the Jewes.
Whereouer the Idumeans that helde strong holdes, receyued those that were dyspyl from Jerusalem, and toke in hande to warre also.
But they that were with Machabeus, besought and prayed vnto the Lord, that he woulde be their helper: and so they fell in to a stronge hoide of the Idumeans, and wanne many places by strengthe: Suche as came a-gaynst them they slew, and kylled no lesse (of all togyther) then twenty thousande. Certechelesse some, no lesse then nyne thousande, were fled in to two stronge towres, haung all maner of ordynance to withstande them.

1. Mach. v. 18
Then Machabeus leaung Symon, Zo-sephus, Zacharias and those that were with them (which were very many) wnt to besiege them, and to fyghe where nede was. Nowe they that were with Symon being led with counselles, were increased for money, tho-row certayne of those that lay in the towres:

take. 1. Mach. v. 20 Darchmas, and let some of the escape. But when it was tolde Machabeus what had happened, he called the captaynes of the people togyther, accusyng those per-sones, that they had solde the brethren for money, and let their enemies go. So he slew those traytours, and immediatly went in hys with the Idumeans. And when they had slewed them selues manly with theyr weapons & handes, they stode in the two castles more then twenty dayes.

1. Mach. v. 21
Now Symon then whom the Jewes had ouercome afoze, gathered a multitude of straunge people, broughte an hoste also of housemen of the Idumeans, to wyne Jewes by strengthe. But when he durste nought, Machabeus & they that were with hym fel to theyr prayer, sprynkled ashes vpon their heades, beinge gyrded with deere cloth aboute theyr loynes, fel downe before the altar and besought the Lord that he woulde be mercifull to them, but an enemye vnto theyr enemies, and to take parte agaynst theyr aduersaries accordyng as it is promysed in the lawe. So after the prayer they went on further from the city: and when they came nyste the enemyes they prepared them selues agaynst them.

And by tymes in the morning at praye of the day, both the hostes buckled togyther.
The one parte hadde the Lord for their refuge which is gyner of prosperite, strength and victorie. The other had a manly Romane which is a captayne of war.

The battayle now beyng greake there appeared vnto the enemyes from heauen. A men vpon bowbackes with byrds of golde ledyng the Jewes, & two of them haung Machabeus betwixte them that kepte him safe on every syde with theyr weapons but shot barres and lyghtenynge vpon the enemyes: where thorow they were consumed with blyndnes and so fozeyd, that they fell downe. There were slayne of footmen twenty thousande and nyne hundred, and vi. hundred horsemen. As for Symon hym selfe, he fled vnto Gayer a depe stronge hoide wherein Ezeras was captayne. But Machabeus and his company layd sieg to it chearfully. 1. Mach. v. 25 dayes.

Now they that were within stronge to the strength of the place, wnted and banded credyngly, and made greake creakyng with wyched wordes. Reuerthyles vpon the fifth day in the morning, xx. yong men of Machabeus company being set on fyre in theyr tow-res because of the blasphemy: came in fully vnto the wall, & with bolde stomakes they and their companions clymed vp vpon the towres, undertakynge to set fyre vpon the poyses & to burne those blasphemous persons quik. Two dayes were they destroyng & ca-rell whiche tyme they founde Amadris (that was crepte in to a corner) they kylled him, & slew Ezeras his brother in lyke maner with Apollonides. When this was done they songe Psalmes, with prayes and thankesgyuynge vnto the Lord: whiche had done so greake thynges for Israel, and grace

from the victorye.

Lysias goeth about to ouercome the Jewes. Success is sent from heauen vnto the Jewes. The letter of Lysias to the Jewes. The letter of Lysias to Antiochus. A letter of the same vnto the Jewes. A letter of the Romaynes to the Jewes

CAP.

XI.

1. Mach. vi. 2
Not long after this Lysias the kynge ward and a kynsman of his, which had the gouernance of his matters, toke for displeasure, for the thynges that had happened: & when he had gathered, lxxx. men of sote with all the hoste of the housemen, he came agaynst the Jewes thynking to wyne the city to make it an habitation for the Ihe-rusalem, and the temple woulde he haue to be an house of lucre, lyke as the other goddes houses of the heathen are, and to sell the prayes offere every yere: Not consyderyng the power of God, but was wyde in his mynde, trudynge in the multitude of footmen, in thousandes of horsemen, and in his four score Elephants.

So he came in to Iury and then to Bethsura a castell of defence lying in a narrow place furlonges from Jerusalem) and wan it.
Nowe when Machabeus and his companye hurd the stronge holdes were taken, they fell to their prayers with wepyng and tea-res before the Lord, and all the people in lyke maner besought hym, & he woulde send a good angel to deliuer Israel. Machabeus hym selfe was the fyrst that made hym redy to the battell, exhortyng the other that were with hym, to leoparde them selues, & to helpe their brethren. And whē they were goyng forth of Jerusalem togither with a redy and willing mynde, there appeared before them vpon hobacke a man in whyte clothynge, with harmant of golde, shakynge his speere. When they prayed the Lord all togyther, whiche had shewed them merce, and were comforted in theyr myndes, in so moche that they were redy, not only to fyghe with men, but with the most cruel beastes: yea, and to run thorow walles of yron.

Thus they went on willingly haung an esper from heuen, and the Lord mercifull vnto them. They fel mightily vpon their enemyes like Lyons, brought down. xi. of the Romaynes. & horsemen put all the other to flight, many of them being wounded, & some gaw away naked. Yea Lysias hym selfe was slayne to sle shamefully, and so to escape. He wretcheleste the man was not without understanding, but considered by him self that his power was minished, and pondered how the Jewes, being defended by the help of almighty God were not habile to be ouercom: wherefore he sent them word, & promysed that he woulde consent to all thynges which were reasonable, and to make the kynge their frend.
to the whiche prayer of Lysias, Machabeus agreed, & theynge in all thynges the common welch: and what so euer Machabeus wote vnto Lysias concerning the Jewes, the king graunted it. For there were letters wyttten vnto the Jewes from Lysias conteynyng these wordes.

Lysias sendeth greetynge to the people of the Jewes. Jhon and Abialon whiche were sent from you, deliuered me wytynges, and requyred me to fulfyll the thynges, & conteynge theyr errande. Therefore Ioke what myght be graunted, I certifyed the kynge therof: and what so euer was conuenient, I agreed thereto: If ye now wyll be saydful in the matters, I shall endeuor my selfe hereafter also to do you good. As concernyng other thynges by every artycle therof: I haue commytted them to your messengers, and to those whom I sent vnto you, to comen with you of the same, fare ye well: In the hundred and. xlviii. yere, the. xliiii. daye of the mo-neth Dioscorinthius.

Nowe the kynge letter conteyned these wordes: kynge Antiochus sendeth greetynge vnto his brother Lysias. For so much as our father is now dead, our wyll is, that they whiche are in our realme, lyue without any insurrection, and every man to be diligent in his owne matters. We vnderstande also, that the Jewes wolde not consent to our father, for to be brought vnto the custome of Gentyles, but styly to kepe theyr owne statutes: for the whiche cause they requyre of vs also, to let them remayne still by their owne lawes.

Wherefore our mynde is, that this people shalbe in rest: we haue concluded and determined also, to restore them theyr temple a-gayne: that they maye lyue accordyng to the use and custome of theyr forefathers: & thou shalt do vs a pleasure therfore, if thou sende vnto them and agree with them: that when they are certified of our mynde, they may be of good chere, and loke to their owne welch.

And this was the letter that Lysias wote vnto the Jewes: kynge Antiochus sendeth greetynge vnto the counsell and the other people of the Jewes. If ye fare wel, we haue our blessyng: as for vs, we are in good health: Pe-nelaus came and tolde vs, how that your be-syer was to come downe to your people, whiche are with vs.

Wherefore those that wyll come, we gyue them free libertie, vnto the thyrtye daye of the moneth of Apryll, that they maye vse the meates of the Jewes and theyr owne lawes, lyke as afoze: and none of them by any maner of wayes to haue harme. For thynges done in ignorance. Penelaus whome we haue sent vnto you, shall comen with you at large, fare ye well. In the hundred and fourtye and eight yere, the fiftene daye of the mo-neth of Apryll.

The Romaynes also set a letter, conteynyng these wordes: Quintus Metellus & Titus Manilius embassadours of the Romaynes, send greetynge vnto the people of the Jewes.
Loke what Lysias & kynge Antiochus haue granted

granted you, we graunt you the same also. But as concerning the thinges which he referred vnto the king, send hyther some with speede: a ponde the matter diligently among your selues, that we may cast þ best to your profite, for we must depart now vnto Antioche, and therefore wyte shortly agayne, þ we may knowe your mynde: Farewell. In the hundred. xliiii. yere, the xxiij. daye of the moneth of Apryl.

Timotheus troubleth the Jewes. The wicked dede of the Iephtes agaynst the Jewes. Judas is avenged of them. He setteth fyre on the gate of Jerusalem. The pursute of the Jewes agaynst Timotheus. Timotheus is taken and let go unhurt. Judas pursueth Gorgias. Judas offering sacrifice for the deed. Jeweth the hope of the resurrection.

CAPL

XII.

When these councounes were made, Lyfias went vnto the king, and the Jewes tyllid they ground. But Timotheus Appolonius the sonne of Semel, Jerome and Demophon the proud, Aicanor the capitaine of Tyers, and they that laye in those places wold not let the lyue in rest & pear. They of Joppa also did euil such a shameful dede: they prayed the Jewes that dwelt amonges them to go with their wiues and child: in to the thyppes which they had prepared, and did w them, as though they had ought them no euil wyll. For so moche then as there was goone forth a generall proclamacion thowme the city by cause of pear, they consented thereto, & suspect nothinge: but when they were gone forth in to the dyce, they dyed wout no lesse the two. L. of them.

When Judas knew of this cruelty shewed vnto his people, he commaunded thole þ were with him to make them redy, exhortyng the to call vpon God the righteous iudge: went for the agaynst those murderers of his brethren, set fyre in the haue by night, bynt by þ thyppes, and thole that escaped from þ fyre, he slew in the sword. And when he had done this, he departed as though he wold come agayne, and rote out all them of Joppa. But when he had gotten worde that the Jamnites were minded to do in lyke maner vnto þ Jewes which dwelt among them, he came vnto the Jamnites by night, & set fyre in the haue with the thyppes, so that the light of the fyre was sene at Jerusalem vpon a two. L. and xl. furlonges.

Now when they were gone fro thence, ix. furlonges in their iourney toward Timotheus fyre. M. men of fote, and fine. C. horsemen of the Arabians fought w him. So w he the battayle was earnest, and prospered with Judas thowme the helpe of God: the residue of the Arabians being ouercome, besoughte Judas to be at one with them, and promysed to geue hym certeyn pastures, and to do him good in other thynges. Judas thynkyng that they wold be in debte be profitable concerning many thynges, promysed them pear: w he, vpon they shoke handes, and so they departed to their tentes. Judas went also into a cite, which was very fast kepte with bygges fenced round about with walles and dyuers kyndes of people dwellinge therein, called Capin.

They that were within, put such trust in the strength of the walles, and in their hope of vitayles, that they were the sacker & their doinges, cursing and reuylng Judas w blasphemies, and speking such wordes as it becometh not. But Machabeus calling vpon the great prince of the world (which withoute any batellrammes or ordinance of war, did cast downe the walles of Jericho in the tyme of Josue) fel manfully vpon the walles, toke the city, and thowme the helpe of the Lord made an exceeding grete slaughter: in so moche that a lake of two furlonges byde, which laye thereby, seemed to flowe with the bloude of the slayne.

Then departed they from thence. iiij. L. fifty furlonges, and came to Caraca vnto þ Jewes that are called Tubiani. But as for Timotheus, they coulde not get him therr: for (not one matter dispatched) he was dyed from thence, and had left certayn men in a very strong hold. But Dosithus & Dosipater, which were capitaynes with Machabeus, slew thole that Timotheus had left in the house of defence, euen. x. M. And Machabeus prepared him with the fyre. M. men that were about him, set them in order by companies, and went for the agaynst Timotheus, which had with hym an hundred and. xx. M. men of fote, two thousande and fyve. L. horsemen.

Whē Timotheus had knowledge of Judas commyng, he sent the women, child: & the other baggage vnto a castell called Capin. (for it coulde not be won, and was hard to come vnto, the wayes of þ same places were so narrow) and when Judas companye came first in sight, the enemies were smitte w fear thowme the presence of God, whicherth al thynges: in so moche that they fled out here, an other ther, were rather discomfited of their own people, and wounded with the strokes of their owne swordes. Judas also was very earnest in following vpon them, pursuyng those vngodly, and slawe. xxx. M. men of them. Timotheus also him self fell in to the handes of Dosithus and Dosipater whom he besought with many prayers, to let hym go with his lyfe: because he had wote of the Jewes fathers and brethren in prison which, yf they put hym to death, might be appointed. So when he had promysed fully to deliuer them agayne accordyng to þ condicion made, they let him go wout harme for the helth of the brethren. And when Judas had slayne. xxx. thousande, he went fro Caracion.

Now after þ he had chased away þ slayne his enemies, he remoued the hoste toward Ephron a stronge city, wher dwelt many dyuers people of the heathen, and the strong strong men kepte the walles, defendyng them mightily. In this city was moche ordinance and prouision of barres. But when Judas & his company had called vnto almighty God, which with his power breaketh the strength of the enemies, they won the city and slawe. x. M. of them þ were within. From thence went they to the city of the Scythias, which lieth fift hundred furlonges from Jerusalem. But when the Jewes which were in the city cedyed, that the city was deale longynge with them: yea and intreated the kyndly in the tyme of their aduersitie, Judas & his company gaue them thanks, & beyng them to be friendly wyl vnto them: and so they came to Jerusalem the hye fest of the weekes being at hande. And after the feast they went forth agaynst Gorgias the gouernour of Idumea, with thre thousand men of fote, and four. C. horsemen. Whiche when they met together, it chaunced a fete of the Jewes to be slayne. And Dosithus one of þ Machabees, a myghty horseman toke holde of Gorgias, & wold haue taken hym quicke. But an horseman of Chacia fell vpon hym, & smote of his arme so þ Gorgias escaped and fled in to Idumea. When they wote that were of Gorgias fyde, had soughten longe and were werye, Judas called vpon the Lord that he wold be there byer, and capitayne of the felde: and with that he began with a manly voice to take v a longe of prayre, and a crye: In so moche that he made the enemies afraide, and Gorgias men of warre toke they flight. So Judas gathered his hoste, and came in to the cite of Idolla. And w he the tenth day came vpon them, they clensed them selues (as the custome was) and kepte the Sabbath in the same place. And vpon the daye folowynge Judas and his company came to take v the bodies of them that were slayne, and to burye them in the fathers graues. Nowe vnder the rootes of certayne Iewes which were by the temple & frome the Idolles of the Jamnites, whicherthynge is forbydden the Jewes by the lawe. Then euery man saw that this was the cause wherfore they were slayne.

And so euery man gaue thanks vnto the Lord for his ryghtous iudgement, whicher had opened the thyng that was byd. They fell downe also vnto they prayers, and besought God, that the faute which was made might be put out of remembrance. Besides that, Judas exhorted the people earnestly to let them selues fro such fyre: for so moche as they saw before their eyes, that these men were slayne for the same offence. So he gathered of euery one a certen. in so much that he broughte together two. M. M. achmas of wheat, which he sent vnto Jerusalem, þ there might a sacrifice be offered for the myddede. In the which place he dyd well and right, for he had some consideration and poudyng of the lyfe that is after this tyme. For yf he had not thought that they which were slayne did yet lyue, it had ben superfluous and vayne, to make any vnto sacrifice for them that were dead. But for so moche as he saw that they which dye in the fauoure and disple of God, are in good rest and loye, he thought it to be good and honourable for a reconcylynge, to do the same for those which were slayne: that the offence myght be forgiven.

The commyng of Eupator in to Jewrye. The death of Menelaus. Machabeus goyng to fight agaynst Eupator, moueth his soull lars vnto prayer. He killeth. xiiii. thousande men in the tentes of Antiochus. Rhodocus the betrayer of the Jewes is taken. Eunochus retayneth fiedship with þ Jewes.

CAPL

XIII.

In the. xliij. yere gat Judas knowledge, that Antiochus Eupator was commyng with a great power in to Jery, and Lyfias the steward & ruler of his matters with hym, haunge an hundred and ten thousande men of fote, fyue thousande horsemen. xxiij. Elephantes, and thre hundred charrettes. Menelaus also ioyned hym selfe with them, (but with great discreete) and spake saye to the kyng, not for anye good of the cuntry but by cause he thoughte to haue bene made some grete man of auctorite. But the king of kynges moued Antiochus mynde agaynst this vngodlye person, and Lyfias insoumed the kyng, that this Menelaus was the cause of all myscheyfe: so that the kyng commaunded to take hym, and (as the maner of them is) to put hym vnto death in the same place.

There was also in the same place a towre of fyfetye cubytes hyghe, heaped with alshes: but about it was so made, that men myghte loke downe on euery fyde. Where in to the kyng commaunded that shameful persone to be cast among the alshes, as one that was cause of all vngodlye doynge. And reason it was that the vntyffke shoulde dye suche a death, and not to be buryed: for he had done moche myscheyfe vnto þ aulter of God (whose fyre and alshes were holye) therefore was it right, that he him self also shoulde be destroyed with alshes.

But the kyng was wot in his minde, and came to shewe him self moze cruell vnto the Jewes then his father was: which when Judas perceyued, he commaunded the people to cal vpon the Lord night & day, that he wold now helpe them also, lyke as he had done alwaye: for they were afraide to be put from their law, from their naturall cuntry, and from the holye temple: and not to suffer the people (which a lytle while agoe began to recouer) to be subdued agayn of the blasphemous nations.

So when they had done this together, & he sought the Lord for mercy w prayng and fasting the. x. dayes long, flat vpon þ ground: Judas exhorted them to make them selues redy. But he and the elders together deuised to go forth first with their people, afore the kynge brought his host in to Iurpe, and afore he belleged the city, and so to commit the matter vnto God.

Wherfore he ascribed þ power of al thynges vnto God the maker of the world, exhortyng his people to fyght manfully (yea euen vnto deeth) for the lawes, the temple, the city, their owne natyue countrey, and to defende the cities, and let his hoste before God. He gaue them also þ were with him a toke of the victory of God, chosing out the maynest yong men, went by nyght in to the kinges pavilion, slew of the host. xiiii. M. men, and the greatest elephants, with those that sat vpon them.

Thus when they hadde broughte a greatescare and rumour amonge the tentes of their enemyes, and all thynges went prosperously with them, they departed in the byake of the daye, God byyng theyr helper and defender. Now when the kynge perceyued the manlynesse of the Jewes, he wente aboute to take the stronge places by craft, and remoued his host vnto Bethsura, whiche was a well kepte house of defence of the Jewes: but they were chased awaye, hurte and discomforted.

And Judas sente vnto them that were in it, suche thynges as were necessarye. In the Jewes house also there was one Ithodocus, whiche tolde the enemyes their secretes: but they sought him out, and when they had gotten him, they put hym in pryson. After this did the kynge comye with them that were in Bethsura, toke treuce with them, departed, & stroke a battayle with Judas, whiche ouercame hym.

But when he vnderstode, that Phillip (whome he hadde left to be ouerser of his busynesses at Antioche) began to rebel agaynst him, he was aghoyed in his minde, so that he yelde him self to the Jewes, & made them an oth to do what so euer was thoughte wyght.

Now when he was reconciled with them, he offered, made morch of the temple, gaue great giftes vnto it, embraced Machabeus making him capiteyn & gouernour from Ptolomais vnto the Gerrenes.

Neuerthelesse, when he came to Ptolomais, the people of the cite were not content with that bonde of frendshipp: for they were afraide that he wolde breke the couenaunt. Then wente Pylas by in to the seat and enformed the people, shewed them the cause why, and pacified theym. So he came agayne to Antioche. This is now the matter concernyng the kynges iourneys, and his returne.

¶ By the morrow of the Lorde, Demetrius sendeth Ricanoz to kyll the Jewes. Ricanoz maketh a compact with the Jewes, which he yet breakech thorow þ morrow of the kyng. Ricanoz commaundeth Razia to be taken. The boldnesse of Razia.

After thes yeres was Judas informed how that Demetrius the sonne of Seleucus was come by with a great power and thynges, thorow the haven of Tripolis, to take certayne commodious places and countreys, agaynst Antiochus and his capiteyne Pylas. Nowe Alcimus (whiche had ben hye prest, and wilfully despyed him selfe in the tyme of the myrryng) sepyng that by no meanes he coulde be helped, nor haue any moze intradie to the aulter: he came to kynge Demetrius in the hundred and one & fiftye yere, presentyng vnto hym a crowne of golde, a palme and an olyue tree: whiche, as men thought, belonged to the temple, and that daye he helde his tongue. But when he had gotten oportunitie for his machaue, Demetrius called hym to counsell, and asked hym what thynges or counselles the Jewes leane vnto? he answered: the Jewes that he called Alcimus, whose capiteyne is Judas Machabeus, maynteyne warres, make murrections, and will not lette the realme be in pear.

For I, byyng depryued of my fathers honour (I meane the hye presthode) am come hyther, partly because I was saythfull vnto the kynge, and partly because I soughte the profyte of the ctyzens. And why? all our people thowme the wyckednesse of them are not a lytle troubled. Wherfore I beseeche the kynge consydre all these thynges diligentlye, and then make some prouysson for the lande and the people, accordyng to the kynnesse that thou haste offered vnto them. For as longe as Judas hath the upper hande, it is not possible that men can lyue in pear.

When he had spoken these wordes, other frendes also haupng euyl will at Judas, sette the kynge Demetrius on fyre agaynst him, whiche immediatly sent Ricanoz (ruler of the elephantes & capiteyne, in to Iurpe: commaundyng him to take Judas him selfe alyue, but to see theym that were with hym, and to make Alcimus hye prest of the temple.

¶ Then the Heathen which fled out of Iurpe frome Judas, came to Ricanoz by flocks, thynkyng the harme and decaye of the Jewes to be their welfare. Now whē the Jewes herde of Ricanoz's commyng, and the gathering together of the Heathen, they spyned them selues with earthe, and brought him whiche made them his people, and cur defended his owne porcion with euident tokens that he wolde preserve theym. So at the commaundement of the capiteyn, they remoued from thence, and came to a towne called Debassan. And Simon Judas bothe fell in hande with Ricanoz: but thowme the sodayne commyng of the enemyes, he was afraide.

Neuerthelesse Ricanoz hearyng the manlynesse of them that were with Judas, and þ holde Romarches that they had to fyghte for theyr naturall countrey, durst not proue the matter with bloodsheddyng. Wherfore he sent Polistionus, Theodorius and Mathias before, to geue and take peace. So when they had taken longe aduysment thereupon, and the capiteyne shewed it vnto the multitude: they were agreed in one mynde to haue pear. And they appoynted a daye to fyt vpon these matters quyetly among them selues, the soldiers also were brought and set forth. Neuerthelesse Judas commaunded certayne men of armes to waite in conueniente places, lest there shoulde sodenly aryse any euyl tydings to the enemyes. And so they comoned reasonably together.

¶ Ricanoz, whyle he abode at Jerusalem, dyd hym selfe not vnreasonably, but sent away þ people that were gathered together. He leued Judas euer with his herte, and favoured him. He prayed him also to take a wife and to byngge forth chyldren. So he married, lyued in rest, and they led a comen lyfe. But Alcimus perceyvinge the loue that was betwixt them, and how they were agreed together, came to Demetrius, and tolde hym that Ricanoz had taken straunge matters in hande, and ordeyned Judas (an enemye of the realme) to be the kynges succellour. The kynge was soze displeased, and thowme the wycked scrupulous whiche Alcimus made of Ricanoz, he was so prouoked, that he wrote vnto Ricanoz, sayng: that he was very angry for the frendshipp and agreemēt, whiche he had made with Machabeus. Neuerthelesse he commaunded him in al the haste, that he shoulde take Machabeus prisoner, and sende hym to Anioche.

¶ Which letters when Ricanoz had sene, he was at his wyettes ende, and soze geured that he shoulde breake the thynges wherein they had agreed: speciallye, sayng Machabeus was the man that neuer dyd him harme. But because he myght not withstande the kynge, he sought oportunitie to fulfyl his commaundement. Now withstandyng when Machabeus saw that Ricanoz began to be churlysh vnto hym, and that he intreated him moze roughly then he was wont, he perceyued that suche unkyndnesse came not of good, and therefore he gathered a few of his men, and withdyew him self fro Ricanoz. Whiche when he knewe that Machabeus had manfullye pvented hym, he came in to the greates and moost holy temple: and commaunded the prestes (whiche were doyng theyr vsuall offerynges) to deliuer him the man. And when they sawe that they coulde not tell where the man was whome they sought, he stretched out his hande, and made an othe, sayng: If ye will not deliuer me Judas captyue, I shall remoue this temple of God in to þ playne feld, I shall breake downe the aultere, and consecrate this temple vnto Bacchus. After these wordes he departed.

¶ Then the prestes lyfte vp theyr hands to heaue beauen, and besought hym that was the defender of their people, sayng: Thou Lorde of all, which hast neede of no thyng, woldest that þ temple of thy habytacō shoulde be amonges vs. Therfore now O most holy Lorde, kepe this house euer vnderpied whilatelye was clenched. Nowe was there accused vnto Ricanoz, one Kallis an Alderman of Jerusalem, a louer of the hole ctyte, and a man of good repute: whiche for the kynde hert that he bare vnto the people, was called a father of the Jewes. This man oft tymes when the Jewes were mynded to kepe them selues vnderpied, defended & deliuered them beyng content leschally to spende his body and his lyfe for his people.

¶ So Ricanoz wyllyng to declare the hate that he bare to the Jewes sent fyue hundred men to take hym: for he thought, if he gat hym, he shoulde byngge the Jewes in great decaye. Now when the people began to rushe in at his house, to bytake the doores, and to set fyre on it: he beyng now taken wold haue defended hym self with his sword: chosing rather to dye manfully, then to yeld hym self to those wycked doers: because of his noble flock, he had rather haue ben put to extreme crueltye. Notwithstandinge what tyme as he mysted of his stroke for haste, & the multitude fel in vpolitly betwixt þ doers: he ran boldly to the wall, & cast hym self down manfully amonge the braye of the, whiche gaue soone place to his fall, so that he fel vpon his bely. Neuertheles whyle ther was yet breath within him, he was kynbled in his mynde: and whyle his bloude gushid out exceedinglye: for he was very soze wounded (he ranne thowme the myddell of the people, and gat him vp to the toppe of a rocke. So when his bloude was now gone he toke out his owne bowels with both his handes & chym them vpon the people callyng vpon the Lorde of lyfe and spyryte, to rewarde him this agayne and so he dyed.

Nowe when Ricanoz knewe that Judas was in the countrey of Samaria, he thought with al his power to styke a felde with hym vpon a Sabbath day. Neuerthelesse the Jewes that were compelled to goe with hym, sayde: O doo not so cruellie and unkyndelye, but halowe the Sabbath daye, and worshyppe hym that seeth all thynges. For all this, yet sayde the vngenerous, personne: Is there a myghtye one in heuen, that commaunded the Sabbath daye to be kepte. And when they sayde: yea, the lyuyng God, the myghtye Lorde in heauen commaunded the seventh daye to be kept. He sayde: And I am myghty vpon eith to commaunde them for to arme them selues and to persoune the bynges busynesse. But withstandyng he myght not haue his purpose.

Nicanor had coupled with grete pryde to ouercome Judas, and to byng awaye the byrges. But Machabeus had euer a fast confidence and a perfecte hope in God that he wold helpe him, and exhorted his people, not to be asfayed at the comyng of the heathen: but alwaye to remembre the helpe that had bene shewed vnto them from heauen, yea & to be sure now also, that almyghty God wold gyue them the victorye. He spake vnto them out of the same and prophetes, putting them in remembrance of the battayles, that they had styghen afoze, and made them to be of a good courage.

Judas became

So when they herdes were plucke by, he shewed them also the deceptfulnesse of the heathen, and how they wold kepe no confidence nor othe. Thus he weaponed the not with the armour of spyle & feare, but with holysome wordes and exhortacions. He shewed them a dreame also, wherby he made them all glad, whiche was this: he thought that he sawe Onias (which had ben bye p[re]st a vertuous and longyng man, sad and of vo-nell conuersacion, well spoken, and one that had bene exalted in godlynesse from a childe) holdyng vp his handes toward heauen, and prayyng for his helpe. After this there appeared vnto him an other man, which was aged, honorable and glorious. And Onias sayde:
This is a louer of the byrth, and of the people of Israel. This is he that prayeth moche for the people, and for all the holy cytie: Jeremy the prophete of God. He thought also Jeremy helde out his ryght hande, and gaue him (namely vnto Judas) a swerde of golde, sayyng: Take this holy swerde, a gyfte from God, wherewith thou shalt smyte wone the enemyes of the people of Israel.

And so they were well comforted choosyng the wordes of Judas, and take courage vnto them, so that the fong men were determined in theyr mynde to fight, and bye byrth at it:
In so moche that in the charynges whiche they toke in hande, their boldnesse shewed & same, because the holy cytie and the temple were in peryll: for the which they toke moze care the for theyr wyues, chyldren, byerthen, and kyn-folkes. Agayne, they that were in the cytie, were moost carefull for those which were to fight. Now whē they were all in a hope & the iudgement of the matter was at hande, and the enemyes drew nye, the host beynge set in a rase, the Elephantes and horsemen euer one stadyng in his place: Machabeus cōspire-red the comyng of the multitude, the dynaunce of dyuerse weapōs, the cruelnesse of the bestes, and held vp his handes toward heauen callyng vpon the Lord that hath wonder whiche gyueth not the victorye after the multitude of weapōs and power of the host (but to them that please hym) ac-cordyng to his owne will. Therefore in his prayer he sayde these wordes.

O Lord, thou that dydest sende thyne Angel in the tyme of Sarchad kynge of Juda, and the host of Senacherib shewed an E. lxxxv. sende now also thy good angel before vs, O Lord of heuens, in the fearful-nes and dyde of thy myghty arme, that they whiche come agaynst thy holy people to blaspheme them may be asfayed. And so he made an ende of his wordes. Then Nicanor & they that were with hym, drew nye to Watmōs and songes: but Judas & his company with prayer and callyng vpon God. With theyr hādes they smote, but with theyr herdes they prayed vnto the Lord & shew no lesse thē xxx.
men: for thow the p[er]fect help of God they were gloriously comforted.

Now when they left of, and were turning agayne with ioye, they vnderstode that Nica-nor hym selfe was slayne with the other.

Then they gaue a grete shoute and a cry praisyng the almyghty Lord with a loud voys. And Judas (which was euer ready to spende his body and lyfe for his cytyens) cō-maunded to smyte of Nicanors heade, with his arme and hande, & to be brought to Jerusale. When he came there, he called al the people, & the p[re]stes at the altar with those that were in the castell, and shewed them Ni-canors heade, & his myched hād, which he had presumptuously holden vp agaynst the temple of God. He caused the tonge also of that vngodly Nicanor to be cut in lytle peces, & to be cast to the foules, & the cruel mans hande to be hanged by before the temple.

So euerie man gaue thanks vnto the Lord sayyng: blessed be he, that hath kept his place vnderpiled. And Nicanors heade, he hanged vpon the hyghe castell for a playn token of the help of God. And so they agreed togyther to kepe that daye holy, namely the xii. daye of the moneth Adar, whiche in the Syrians language is called the next daye before Martochus day, thus was Nicanors name, and from that tyme forth & Jewes had the cytie in possesse.

And here I wyl
now make
an ende.

All the generations from Abraham to Dauid are. xiiij. generations. And from Dauid unto the captiuite of Babylon, are. xiiij. generations. And from the captiuite of Babylon to Chyffe, are also. xiiij. generations.

* The byrth of Iesu Chyffe was on this wyse. When his mother Marye was espoused to Ioseph, before they companyed together he was founde with chyld by the holy ghost. Then Ioseph her husbunde beyng a pfecte man, and loth to make an example of her, was mynded to put her away secretly. Whyle he thus thought: beholde the aungell of the Lorde appeared vnto hym in a dreame / sayenge: Ioseph the sonne of Dauid / feare not to take vnto the Mary thy wyfe. For that which is conceived in her is of the holy ghost. She shall byrre forth a sonne, and thou shalt call his name Iesus. For he shall saue his people from theyr synnes.

All this was doone to fulfill that which was spoken of the Lorde by the prophete, sayenge: Beholde a mayde shall be with chyld, and shall byrre forth a sonne / and they shall call his name Emanuel, which is by interpretation, God with vs. *

And Ioseph as sone as he awoke out of slepe dyd as the aungell of the Lorde had hym / and toke his wyfe vnto him / and knew her not tyll at last she brought forth a sonne, and called his name Iesus.

CAP. II.

II.

When Iesus was borne at Bethleem in Iude, in the tyme of Herode the kynge. Behold there came a wyse men from the East to Jerusalem, sayenge: Where is he that is borne kynge of Jewes? We haue sene his sterre in the East, and are come to worshyp hym.

When Herode the kynge had herde this, he was troubled & all Jerusalem with hym / and he gathered all the chiefe pcedes and scribes of the people / and asked of them where Chyffe sholde be borne. And they sayd vnto hym: at Bethleem in Iude. For thus it is wyrtten by the prophete: And thou Bethleem in the lande of Iude / arte not the least amonges the principces of Iuda. For out of the wall come vnto me the captayne that shall gouerne my people Israel.

Then Herode pryncely called the wyse men and diligently lerned of them the tyme of the sterre that appeared / and sente them to Bethleem sayenge: Go and searche narrowly for the chyld. And when ye haue founde hym, byrre me worde, that I may come and worshyp hym also.

* When they had herd the kynge / they departed: and lo, the sterre which they sawe in the East went before them, tyll it came and stode ouer the place where the chyld was. When they sawe the sterre, they were exceedingly glad: and went in to the house, and found the chyld with Marye his mother / and knelled before him and worshipped hym, and opened their treasures / and offered vnto hym gyftes / golde frankensence and myrr. And after they were warned of God in a dreame that they wolde not go agayne to Herode, they returned in to theyr owne countrey an other waye. *

When they were departed: beholde the aungell of the Lorde appeared to Ioseph in a dreame sayenge: arise and take the chyld and his mother & fle in to Egypte, and abyde there tyll I byrre the worde. For Herode wyll seke the chyld to destroye hym. Then he arose and toke the chyld and his mother by nyght and departed.

departed in to Egypte, and was there tyll the death of Herode, to fulfill that was spoken of the Worde by the prophete, which sayth / out of Egypte have I called my sonne.

Then Herode perceyving that he was mocked of the wyse men was verye wrothe and sent forth and slewe all the chyldren that were in Bethleem / and in all the coastes therof / as many as were two yere olde and under, according to the tyme whiche he had diligently searched out of the wyse men.

Jer. xxxi.

Then was fulfilled that which was spoken by the prophete Jeremie sayenge : * On the hylls was a voyce herde, mourning / weeping and greave lamentation : Rachel bewaylynge her chyldren / and wolde not be comforted, because they were not. †

† That is because they were all put to death & re-ayned not to be comforted.

† When Herode was deed : beholde, an angell of the Worde appeared in a dreame to Joseph in Egypte sayenge : Arise and take the chyld and his mother, and go in to the lande of Israel / for they are deed whiche sought the chyldes lyfe. Then he arose up, and toke the chyld and his mother, and came in to the lande of Israel. But when he herde that Archelaus dyd reygne in Jewry, in the roome of his father Herode, he was afraid to go thither. Not withstanding after he was warned of god in a dreame he turned asyde in to the parties of Galile, and went and dwelt in a city called Nazareth, to fulfill that which was spoken by the prophetes : he shall be called a Nazarene.

Nazareth in Galilee signifieth holy & consecrate.

† The baptysme / preachinge and cōfession of John / and how Christ was baptysed of hym in Jordane.

CAP. III.

Mat. i. a.

Luke. i. a.

In those dayes John the Baptyst came and preached in the wyldernes of Jewry, sayenge : Repent, for the kyngdome of heven is at hande. This is he of whome it is spoken by the prophete Esaye, whiche sayth : A voyce of a cryer in wyldernes / prepare the wayes of the Lord, and make his pathes straight. This John had his garment of camels hewe / and a girdell of skynne aboute his loynes. His meate was * locustes and wilde honey. Then went out to hym Ierusalem and all Iury, and all the countrey rounde aboute Jordane / and were baptysed of hym in Jordane / confessynge theyr synnes. †

† When he sawe many of the pharisees and the Sadducees come unto his baptysme / he sayd unto them : O progenye of vipers, who harbe taught you to flee from the vengeance to come? Do therefore frutes worthy repentance. And thynke not to saye in your selues, we have Abraham to our fathers. For I tell you, God is habile of these stones to callyp chyldren unto Abraham. Nowe is the are put to the toxe of the terees : every tree therefore which byngeth not forth good frute is hewen downe and cast in to the fyre.

I baptysse you in water in token of repentance : but he that cometh after me is myghtyer than I, whose shoes I am not worthy to beare. He shall baptysse you with the holy ghost and with fyre, whose fan is in his hande, and he shall swepe his floure / and gather the wheat in to his garner but the chaffe he shall burne with unquenchable fyre. †

† Then came Jesus from Galile to Jordane unto John to be baptysed of hym. But John forbade hym, sayenge : I oughte to be baptysed of thee : and comest thou to me? Jesus answered and sayde to hym. Let be nowe. For thus it becometh us to fulfill all rightousnes. Then he suffered hym. And Jesus as sone as he was baptysed came straight out of the water. And lo, heven was open over hym : and John sawe the spyrte of God descende lyke a dove and light upon hym. And lo there came a voyce from heven sayenge : This is that my beloved sonne in whome is my delste. † † Christ fasteth and is tempted : he calleth Peter, Andrew, James, & John, and healeth all the synners.

CAP. III.

Then was Jesus ledde abayse of the spyrte in to wyldernes, to be tempted of the deuyll. And when he had fasted fourty dayes and fourty nyghtes / he was at last an hungred. Then came to hym the tempter, and sayd : If thou be the sonne of God speake that these stones be made bread. He answered and sayd : It is written, * man shall not lyve by bread onely, but by every worde that cometh out of the mouth of God.

Then the deuyll toke hym up in to the holy cite, & set him on the pinnacle of the temple, and sayd unto him : If thou be son of god, cast thy selfe downe. For it is written : * he shall geve his angelles charge over the, and they shall hold the by the hande, that thou darste not thy fote agaynst a stone. And Jesus sayd to hym : Agayne it is written, * Thou shalt not tempte thy Lord God.

Agayne the deuyll toke hym up, and led him in to a very hygh mountayne, and shewed him all the kyngdomes of the world, & all the glory of them / and sayd to hym : All these will I geve the, if thou wilt fall downe and worship me. Then sayth Jesus unto hym. Awayde Satan. For it is written, * thou shalt worship the Lord thy god, and hym onely shalt thou serve.

Then the deuyll left hym / and beholde, the angells came and served hym. †

† When Jesus had herde that John was taken, he departed in to Galile and leavynge Nazareth, went and dwelt in Capernaum, a cite by the see syde, in the coastes of Zabulon and Nephtalim / to fulfill that was spoken by Esaye the prophete, sayenge : * The lande of Zabulon and Nephtalim, the way of the see beyonde Jordane, Galile of the Gentyles, the people which sat in darknes, sawe great light, and to them which sat in the countrey and shadowe of death, light is begon to shyne.

From that tyme Jesus began to teach, and saye : Repente, for the kyngdom of heven is at hande. †

† As Jesus walked by the see of Galile he sawe two brethren : Symon, called Peter, and Andrew his brother, casting a nette in to the see, for they were fyshers, and sayd unto them, them, folow me, & I will make you fyshers of men. And they forsook theyr nettes, and folowed hym.

And he went forth from thence, and sawe other two brethren, James the sonne of Zebedee, and John his brother, in the shyp with Zebedee their father, mendinge their nettes, & called them. And they incontynently leavynge the shyp and their father folowed hym. †

† Of the viii. beatitudes of blessings / of manlyng / of joy and anger : of aduourtyng, of weeping, of fastynge, of praynge, & of love even to our enemyes.

CAP. V.

When he sawe the people, he went up in to a mountayne, and when he was set, his disciples came to him, and he opened his mouth, and taught them, sayenge : blessed are the poore in spiryt, for theirs is the kyngdome of heauen. Blessed are they that moorne : for they shall be comforted. Blessed are they that kepe his sayings, that they may have the right to the tree of life, which hongeth & thursteth for righte wyse : for they shall be filled. Blessed are the mercifull : for they shall receyve mercy. Blessed are the pure in heart : for they shall see God.

Blessed are the peacemakers : for they shall be called the chyldren of God. Blessed are they which be persecuted for righte wyse : for theirs is the kyngdome of heauen. Blessed are ye which men reuple you, and pursue you, and falslye speake all euyl saynges agaynst you for his sake. Reioyce and be glad : for great is your reward in heven. † For so persecuted they the prophetes before you.

† Ye are the salt of the earth : but if the salt be insauour, wherewith shall it be sauoured? It is good for nothing now, but to be cast out, and troden under foot of men. Ye are the light of the world. A cite set on an hyll, can not be hid, neither do they lycht a candle, & put it under a bushell, but on a candlestyk, & it lychteth all that are in the house. So let your lycht shyne before men, that they may se your good woyses, and gloryfyre your father in heauen. †

† Thinke not I am come to destroye the lawe, or the prophetes : I am not come to destroye, but to fulfill. For truly I tell you, ty heauen and earth passe, one tittle or one tytle of the lawe shall not passe, tyll all be fulfilled. Who so euer breaketh one of these lycht commandmentes, and teacheth men so, shall be called the least in the kyngdome of heauen.

But who so euer dothe and teacheth, he shall be called great in the kyngdome of heuen. † For I tell you, onelys your righte wyse nes exceede the righte wyse of the scribes and pharisees, ye can not entre into the kyngdome of heauen.

Ye have herde how it was sayde to them of olde tyme : Thou shalt not kyll. For who so euer killeth, shall be in daunger of iudgement. But I tell you, who so euer is angry with his brother, shall be in daunger of iudgement. Who so euer sayth to his brother, * Racha, shall be in daunger of a counsell. But who so euer sayeth, folo, shall be in daunger of hell fyre.

Therefore when thou offerest thy gyfte at the altare, and there rememberest that thy brother hath ought agaynst thee : leave there thyne offeringe before the altare, and go, be fyrst made at one with thy brother, and then come and offer thy gyfte. †

† Be agreeable to thyne aduersary quychely, whyle thou arte in the waye with him, lest the aduersary wyne thee to the iuge, and the iuge wyne thee to the mynistre, and thou be caste into prysoun. Truly I tell the, thou comest not out thence, tyll thou have payed the uttermost farthinge.

Ye have herde it sayde to them of olde tyme Thou shalt not do aduourtyng. But I tell you, who so euer looketh on a wyfe, lustynge after her, hath done aduourtyng with her already in his heart.

What if thy right eye hurte the, & plucke it out, and cast it from the. For better it is for thee, that one of thy members be lost, then thy holt bodye be cast into hell. Also if thy right hande hurte the, cut it of, and cast it from the. For better it is for thee that one of thy members perishe, then all thy bodye shal be cast into hell. †

† It is sayd, who so euer put away his wyfe let hym geue her letters of the deuocement. But I saye unto you : who so euer put away his wyfe (excepte it be for whoredome) causeth her to playe the whoore. And who so euer marryeth her that is deuoced, is an whoore-monger.

Agayne ye have herde howe it was sayde to them of olde tyme, thou shalt not forswere thy self, but shalt performe thyne othe to god. But I saye unto you, sweare not at all : neyther by heauen, for it is Godes seate : nor by the earth, for it is his fote stole : neyther by Ierusalem : for it is the cite of that great kynge neyther shalt thou sweare by thy heed, because thou canst not make one wyfte heare or blacke. But your talke shalbe, yea, yea, nay, ay. And what so euer is more then that, cometh of euyl.

Ye have herde howe it is sayde, eye for eye : and tath for tath. But I saye to you, resist not wronge. But who lo euer geue the a blow on the right cheke, turne to hym the other. And if any man will sue the at the lawe, and take awaye thy coate, let hym haue thy cloke also. And who so euer will compele the to go a myle, go with hym twayne. Geue to hym that asketh, and come hym that wold borrowe.

† Ye haue herde both it is sayd: thou shalt loue thy neyghbour, & hate thine enemy. But I saye vnto you, loue your enemies. Blesse them that curse you. Do good to them that hate you. Haue for them whiche do you wronge, and pursue you, that ye maye be the children of your father that is in heauen: for he makeh his sunne to aryse on the euill, and on the good, and sendeth his raine on the iust and vniuste. For if ye loue them, whiche loue you: what reward shall ye haue? Do not the publicans the same? And if ye imbrace your brethren onely: what synagoge thynge do ye? Do not the publicans synagoge? ye shall therefore be perfecte, as your father whiche is in heauen, is perfecte.

¶ Of almes / prayre and fastynge. Be so byddeth the carfull saynge of wordly thynges.

CAPL. VI.

The keye to your almes, that ye haue is not in the syght of men, to the intent ye wold be sene of them. For if ye get no reward of your father in heauen. When so ye see therefore thou givest thyne almes / thou shalt not make a trumpet to be blown before the, as the hypocrites do, in assemblies and in the streets, for to be prayd of men. Clerke I saye vnto you, they haue their meate. But when thou doest thyne almes / let not thy left hande knowe: what thy right hande dothe, that thyne almes maye be secrete: and thy father whiche seyth in secret, shall reward the openly. I

And when thou prayest, thou shalt not be as the hypocrites are. For they loue to stande and pray in the synagoges, and in the corners of the streets, because they wold be sene of men. Clerke I saye vnto you, they haue their reward. But when thou prayest, come into thy chamber, and shut thy doore to the, and praye thy father whiche is in secret: and thy father whiche seyth in secret, shall reward the openly.

And when ye praye, bable not moche, as the heiden do: for they thynke they shal be heard, for their moche babylng. Be ye not lyke the hypocrites. For your father knoweth wherof ye haue neede, before ye aske of hym. After this maner therefore praye ye.

Our father whiche art in heauen, haloed be thy name. † Let thy kyngdome come. Thy wyl be done, as well in earth as in heauen. Geue vs to daye our dayly bread. And forgyue vs our dettes, euen as we forgyue our detters. And leade vs not into temptation: but deliuer vs from euill. For thine is the kyngdome and the power, and the glory for euer. Amen. For if ye shall forgyue other men their trespasses, your heavenly father shall also forgyue you. But if ye wil not forgyue men their trespasses, no more shall your father forgyue you your trespasses.

† Whosoever when ye faste, † be not sad as the hypocrites are. For they disfigure their faces, that they myghte be sene of men howe they faste. Clerke I saye vnto you, they haue their reward. But thou, when thou fastest, anoynt thyne heed, and waiche thy face, that it appere not vnto men how that thou fastest: but vnto thy father whiche is in secret: & thy father whiche seyth in secret, shall reward the openly.

¶ Do not by treasures vnto you on the earth where rust and moithes corrupte, and where theues breake through and steale. But hurte ye treasures vp in heauen where neither rust nor moithes corrupte, & where theues breake not vp, nor yet steale. For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also. I

The lyght of the body is the eye. Wherfore if thyne eye be synge, all thy body shal be lichte some. But if thyne eye be wycked, all thy body shal be full of darkenesse. Wherfore if the lyght that is in the, be darkenes: how great is that darkenes.

† No man can serue two masters. For eyther he shall hate the one and loue the other: or els leane to the one and despise the other: ye can not serue God and Mammon. Wherfore I saye vnto you, be not carefull for your lyfe what ye shall eate, or what ye shall drinke, nor yet for your body, what ye shall put on. Is not the lyfe more worth then meate, and the body more of value then rayment? Wherfore the foules of the ayre: for they sow not, neyther reape, nor carry into the barnes: and yet heavenly father feedeth them. Accye not moche better then they?

Whiche of you (by takinge thought) can put one cubit vnto his stature? And why care ye then for rayment? Consydre the lilies of the felde, howe they growe. They labour not neyther sowne. And yet I tell you, that Salomon in all his royaume was not arrayed lyke vnto one of these. Wherfore if God so clothe the grasse, which is to daye in the felde, and to morowe shalbe cast into the iournayce: shall he not moche more do the same vnto you, O ye of lytle faith?

Wherfore take no thought, sayenge: what shal we eate, or what shal we drinke, or wherewith shal we be clothed? After all these thynges seke the herthen. For your heavenly father knoweth that ye haue neede of all these thynges. But seke ye first the kyngdome of heauen and the righte wysdomes therof, and all these thynges shalbe vnto you. I

¶ Be so byddeth soylde iugement: reponeth hypocrytes, whiche saye vnto: praye / warden to beware of false prophetes.

CAPL. VII.

Itege not, & ye be not iuged. For as ye iuge, so shal ye be iuged. And whiche measure ye mete, it shalbe measured to you agayn. Why seyth thou a mote in thy brothers eye, & perceyuest not the beame that is in thine owne eye. Why sayst thou to thy brother: sucke me to plucke out the mote, out of thine eye, & behold a beame in thyn owne eye. Wherfore, first cast out the beame out of thine owne eye, & then thou shalt be able to plucke out the mote of thy brothers eye.

¶ True not that † is holy to dogges, neither canst ye pour pearles before swyne / lech they erace them vnder their feete, and the other turne agayne and all to rene you.

¶ Aske and it shal be givyn you. Seke and ye shall fynd. Knoch, and it shall be opened vnto you. For who so euer askerh, receyuet / and he that sekerh fyndeth / and to him that knocketh shal be opened. Is there any man among you whiche if his son askerh hym bread, wyl not geue hym a stone? Or if he askerh fyfthe, wyl he geue hym a serpent? Yf ye then whiche are euill can geue your chyldre good gyftes, how moche rather shal your father in heauen geue good thynges vnto aske hym?

¶ Therefore what so euer ye wyl that men sholde do to you, euen so do ye to them. This is the lawe and the prophetes.

Enter in at the strait gate: for wyde is the gate, and wyde is the waye that leadeh to destruction, & many there be whiche go in thereat. For strait is the gate, and narrow is the way whiche leadeh vnto lyfe, and few there be that fynd it. † Beware of false prophetes, which come to you in shepes cloynges, but inwardly are cannyng wolues. Ye shall knowe them by their frutes. Do men gather grapes of thornes? or hygges of bysses? So every good tree byngeth forth good frute. But a bad tree byngeth forth bad frute. A good tree can not byng forth bad frute: nor a bad tree can byng forth good frute. Every tree that byngeth not forth good frute, is hewen downe and caste in to the fyre. Wherfore by their frutes ye shall knowe them.

¶ Not all that saye vnto me, Loye, Loye, shall enter in to the kyngdom of heuen: but he that dothe my fathers wyl whiche is in heuen. I saye vnto you, that whiche daye: Loye, Loye, haue we not in thy name prophesied? And in thy name haue cast out devyls? And in thy name haue done many myracles? And then shall I confesse vnto them, I neuer knewe you. † Departe from me ye workers of wickednes.

¶ Who so euer therefore heareth of me these saynges, and dothe them, I wyl lyken hym vnto a wyse man, whiche bylte his house on a rocke: and the rayne descended, and the floodes came, and the wyndes blew, & yet vpon that house, and it fell not, because it was grounded on the rocke. And who so euer heareth of me these saynges, and dothe them not, shall be likened vnto a folyshe man whiche bylt his house vpon the sande: and the rayne descended, and the floodes came, and the wyndes blew, and yet vpon that house, and it fell: and great was the fall of it.

¶ And it came to passe, when Jesus had ended these saynges, † the people were astonysed at his doctrine. For he taught them as one ha-ving power, and not as the scribes.

¶ Chyrd deneth the leper / healeth the captyne / se- uereth the lame / and many other diseases / helpeh Peters mo- ueth in law / syneth the seer and wynde, and dyspeth the devyle out of the possed in to the swyne.

When he was come downe from the mount, many people folowed hym. And lo / there came a leper and worshipped hym, saying. Master if thou wylt, thou canst make me cleane. And Jesus put forth his hande and touched him saying: I wyl, be thou cleane / and forthwith his leprosy was clenched. And Jesus sayde vnto hym: se thou tell no man / but go, and shewe thy selfe to the priest: and † offer the gyfte that Moyses commaunded in wit- nesses to them.

† When Jesus was entred in to Capernaum, there came to hym a certayne Centurion, and besought hym saying: † Master, my seruauit lyeth synke at home of the palsey, and is greuously payned. And Jesus sayd vnto hym: I wyl come and heale hym. The Centurion answered and sayd: Syr I am not worthy that thou shouldest come vnder my rofe, but speake the worde onely, and my seruauit shall be healed. For I also my selfe am a man vnder the power of an other, and haue souldyers vnder me, and I say to one go, and he goeth / and to an other come, and he cometh / and to my seruauit, do this, & he doth it. When Jesus herde that, he merueyled, and said to them that folowed hym: Clerke I say vnto you, I haue not founde so great faith, no, not in Israel. I say therefore vnto you, that many shall come from the east and west, and shal rest with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, in the kyngdome of heauen: but the chylidren of the kyngdome shal be cast out in to vnto darknes: there shal be weeping and gnashynge of teeth. When Jesus sayd vnto the Centurion, go thy way / and as thou byleuest, so be it vnto the. And his seruauit was healed the selfe houre. I

¶ When the euen was come, they brought vnto hym many that were possessed with devyls. And he cast out the spyles with a wynde, and healed all that was synke / to fulfill, that was spoken by Esaye the prophete, sayenge: † He toke on hym our infirmities, and bare our synnes.

¶ When Jesus sawe moche people aboute hym / he commaunded to go ouer the water. And there came a synke and sayd vnto hym. † Master, I wyl folowe the whither so euer thou goest. And Jesus sayde vnto hym: thy foxes haue holes / and the byrdes of the ayre haue nestes / but the sonne of man hath no whereon to rest his heed. An other that was of his discipples sayd vnto hym: Master, suffre me first to go and burye my father. But Jesus sayd vnto hym, folowe me, and let the dead burye their dead.

† And he entred in to a synke, and his discipples folowed hym. And beholde there arose a great tempest in the see, in so moche that the synke was covered with waues / but he slepte. And his discipples came to hym, and awoke hym, sayinge: Master saue vs, we perishe.

And he sayd to them: Why are ye fearful: O ye of litle faith? Then he arose and rebuked the wyndes and the see: and there folowed a great calme. And the men merueyled and sayd: What man is this that by the wyndes and see obey hym? I.

And when he was come to the other syde in to the countrey of the Sergetes, there met hym two possessed of deuyls, which came out of the graues, and were out of measure feare, so that no man was hable to passe by the waye. And beholde they cryed out saying: What haue we to do with thee, o Jesu son of god? Art thou come hither to torment vs before the tyme? And there was a farrre of from them a greates heerd of wyne, fedynge. Then the deuyls besought hym saying: If thou canst be out, suffre vs to go out wape in to the heerd of wyne. And he sayd vnto them: go your wayes. Then they out, & departed in to the heerd of wyne. And beholde the hole heerd of wyne can beedling in to the see, & dyed in the water. CAPI. IX. *

Then he entred in to a synagoge and passed our and came in to his owne cite. And lo, they brought to hym a man lyke of the palsey lyng in his bed. And when Jesus sawe the faith of them, he sayd to the synners be of good chere, the synnes be forgiven the. And beholde certayne of the scriybes sayd in them selues, this man blasphemeth. And when Jesus sawe they thoughtes, he sayd. Wherfore thinke you euyl in your hertes? Whether is easer to saye, thy synnes be forgiven the, or to saye: arise and walke? But that ye may knowe that the sonne of man hath power to forgive synnes in erth; then said he vnto the synner: arise, take vp thy bed; & go home to thine house. And he arose and departed to his owne house. And when the people sawe it they marueyled and glorified God, which had given suche power to men. I.

And as Jesus passed thence, he sawe a man sitting at the custome house, named Mattheu, and sayd to hym: folowe me. And he arose and folowed hym. And it came to passe as he sat at meate in the house: beholde many publicans and synners came and sat downe also with Jesus and his disciples.

When the pharisees sawe that they sayd to his disciples: Why eateth your master with publicans and synners? When Jesus herde that, he sayd vnto them: The hole nece no pphycyon, but the synne. So and learne what is: I wyll merce and not facit. For I am not come to call ryghteous, but the synners to repentance. I.

Then came the disciples of John to hym saying: Why do we and the pharisees faste ofte, but thy disciples faste not? And Jesus sayd vnto them: Can the weddinge chyliden moune as longe as the bydegrome is with them? The tyme wyll come when the bydegrome shall be taken from them; and then shall they faste. No man putteth an olde garment with a peece of newe clothe. For then taketh he awaye the peece agayne from the garment; and the rente is made greater. Neither do me put new wyne in to old vessels, for then the vessels breake, and the wyne runneth out, and the vessels perishe. But they putte newe wyne in to newe vessels, and so are bothe saved together. I.

Whe he thus spake vnto them, beholde there came a certeyn ruler a wo:shipped hym saying: my daughter is even now diseased; but come and laye thy hande on her, & she shall lyue. And Jesus arose and folowed hym with his disciples. And beholde a woman which was diseased with an yssue of blood. xij. yeres came behynde hym and touched the hem of his garment. For she sayd in her selfe: If I maye touche but euery his garment onely I shall be safe. Then Jesus turned hym aboute, and beholde her saying: Daughter be of good comforte, thy faith hath made the safe. And she was made hole euen that same houre.

And when Jesus came in to the rulers house, and sawe the mystris & the people in a toze; he said vnto them: get you hce; for the mayde is not dead, but slepeth. And they laughed him to scoone. As sone as the people were put forth he went in and toke her by the hande, and the mayde arose. And this was noyed throughout all that lande.

And as Jesus departed thence, two blinde men folowed hym crying and saying: O thou son of David, haue mercy on vs. And when he was come home, the blinde came to hym. And Jesus said vnto them, by what meane ye saye he can do this? And they sayd vnto hym, we heare of thynges that thou doest. Then he touched their eyes saying: see, for thynges that thou sayest be vnto you. And their eyes were opened. And Jesus charged them, saying: See no man knowe of it. But they as sone as they were departed, they abode his name throughout all the lande.

As they went out, beholde they brought to hym a dymme man possessed of a deuyll. And as sone as the deuyll was caste out, the dymme spake. And the people merueyled saying: It neuer appeared so in Israel. But the pharisees sayd, he casteth out deuyls by the power of the chiefe of deuyls.

And Jesus went about all cyties and townes, teachynge in the synagoges and prayng the glad tydings of the kyngdome and healyng all maner synnes and diseases amonge the people. But when he sawe the people he had compassyon on them, because they were forsaken and scattered abrode, euen as shepe hauyng no shepheard.

Then sayd he to his disciples, the x. hant is great, but the labourers are fewe. wherfore pray the lord of the harvest to sende forth labourers into his harvest.

Chrysostome sendeth out his xij. apostles to preache in iudee, giveth them charge, teacheth and comforteth them agaynst persecution and trouble.

And he called his xij. disciples vnto hym and gave them power ouer vncieue all synnes and diseases.

The names of the xij. Apostles are these: The first. Symon called Peter, and Andrew his brother. James the sonne of Zebedee, and John his brother. Philip & Bartholomew. Thomas and Mattheu the publican. James the sonne of Alpha, and Lebbeus surnamed Thaddeus. Symon the Cananite and Judas Iscariot which also betrayed hym.

These xij. dyd Jesus send, and commaunded them, saying: Go not in to the wayes that lede to gentyles; and in the cyties of the Samaritans enter ye not. But go rather to the losse shepe of the house of Israel. So and preache, saying: the kyngdome of heuen is at hande. Heale the synke / cense the lepers / rale the deyd / cast out the deuyls. Frely ye haue receyued, frely geue. Possesse not golde ne syluer, nor money in your girdels, nor yet a scap towarde your iourney: neither two cotes, neither shoes, nor yet a staffe. For the workman is worthy of his meate. In to what so euer cite or towne ye shall come enquire who is worthy in it, and there abyde tyll ye departe. And when ye come in to an house, grete it. And if the house be worthy, your peace shall come vpon it. But if it be not worthy, your peace shall retorne to you agayne.

And who so euer shall not receyue you, nor heare your preaching: when ye departe out of that house or that cite, shake of the duille of your feete. Truly I say vnto you: it shall be easier for the lande of Sodom & Gomorre in the daye of iudgement, then for that cite.

Beholde I sende you forth as shepe amonge wolues. Be ye therfore wyle as serpentes, and innocent as doves. Beware of the men, for they shall deliue you up to the councels, and shall scourge you in the synagoges. And ye shall be brought to the rulers and kynges for my sake / in wytnes to to them and to the gentyles.

But when they deliue you up, take no thought how or what ye shall speke, for it shall be given you in that same houre what ye shall saye. For it is not ye that speke, but the spyrte of your father which speaketh in you. The brother shall betraye the brother to deyd, and the father the sonne. And the chyliden shall eue agaynst their fathers and mothers, and shall put them to deyd: and ye shall be hated of all for my name, but he that endureth to the ende, shall be saved.

When they pursue you in one cite, flee in to the other. I tell you for a truthe, ye shall not trespasse all the cyties of Israel tyll the sonne of man be come. The discipple is not above his master: nor the seruaunt above his lord. It is enough for the discipple to be as his master is, and the seruaunt as his lord is. If they haue called the master of the house Beelzebub, how much more shall they call them of his household so? Feare them not therefore. There is nothing so closte, that shall not be opened, and nothing so hyd, that shall not be knowen.

What I tell you in darkness, that speake ye in lycht. And what ye heare in the eare, that preache ye on the house toppes.

And feare ye not them which kyll the body and be not hable to kyll the soule. But rather feare him which is hable to destroy both soule and body in hell: see not two sparowes soules for a farthyng? And none of them darthe fall on the grounde without your fathers. Yea all the heares of your heed are numbred. Feare ye not therefore ye are of more value then many sparowes.

Who so euer then shall confesse me before men, hym wyll I confesse also before my father which is in heuen. But who so euer shall deny me before men, hym wyll I also deny before my father which is in heuen.

Thynke not I am come to sende peace in to the erth. I came not to sende peace, but a swerde. For I am come to set man at variance agaynst his father, & the daughter agaynst her mother, and the daughter in lawe agaynst her mother in lawe. And a mans foes shall be they of his owne household.

He that loueth his father, or mother above me, is not mete for me. And he that loueth his sonne or daughter above me, is not mete for me. And he that taketh not his crosse and foloweth me, is not mete for me. He that synneth his lyfe, shall lose it: and he that loseth his lyfe for my sake, shall fynde it.

He that receyueu you, receyueu me: and he that receyueu me receyueu him that sent me. He that receyueu a prophete in the name of a prophete, shall receyue a prophetes rewarde. And he that receyueu a ryghteous man in name of a ryghteous man, shall receyue the rewarde of a ryghteous man. * And who so euer shall geue vnto one of these lytle ones to drynke, a cuppe of colde water onely in name of a discipple: truly I tell you he shall not lose his rewarde.

John Baptyst sendeth his disciples to Chrysostome which giveth them charge, rebuketh the unthankful cyties, and loungeyng exhorteth men to take his poken vpon them.

When John in the prison herde the workes of Chrysostome / he sent two of his disciples and sayd vnto hym. Art thou he that is commaunded, or loke we for an other. Jesus answered and sayd vnto them. So and Mattheu John what ye haue herde and sene. The blinde se, the halfe go, the lepers are censed: the deyd heare / the deyd ryle agayne / and the gospell is preached to the poore. And happy is he that is not greued by me.

But what went ye out to se? A prophete? Yea I say to you and more then a pphete. For this is he of whom it is wyrtē. Behold I send my messenger before thy face, whiche shall prepare thy way before the.

¶ Therly I say unto you amonge the chylidren of women arose there not a greater then Iohā the Baptist. For withstandinge he that is lesse in the kyngdome of heuen is greater then he. And ppe wyll receyue it, this is he whiche shall come. He that hath eares to heare let hym heare.

But wherunto shall I speke this generacion? ¶ It is lyke unto chylidren whiche sit in the market and call vnto theys felowes, and say: We haue pyped vnto you, and ye haue not daunted. We haue mourned vnto you, and ye haue not sorrowed. For Iohā came neyther eatyng nor drynkynge: and they saye he hath a deuyll. XII. 4

¶ That tyme Jesus wente on the Sabbath dayes through the coyne, and his disciples were an hungered, and began to plucke the eares of cozne: and to eat. When the pharysees sawe that, they sayd vnto hym: Beholde, thy disciples do that whiche is not lawfull to do vpon the Sabbath daye. He sayd vnto them. Haue ye not red what Dauid dyd whē he was an hōgred, & they also whiche were with hym? How he entred in to the house of God, and ate the shewbreads whiche were not lawfull for him to eat, neither for them whiche were with hym, but onely for the ptesdes. ¶ Haue ye not red in the lawe, how the ptesdes in the temple brake the Sabbath daye, and yet are blamelesse? But I say vnto you, that here is one greater then the temple. Wherfore ppe had wyrt what this sayenge meaneth: I wyll mercy and not sacrifice: ye wold not haue con demned the gydes. For the sonne of man is Lorde euen of the Sabbath daye.

And he departed thence, and went in to the synagoge: and beholde there was a mā whiche had his hande dyed vp. And they asked hym sayeng: Is it lawfull to heale on the Sabbath dayes? because they might accuse hym. And he sayd vnto them: whiche of you, p the shall haue a shepe fallen in to a pyt on the Sabbath day wold not take hym and lyfte hym out? And how moche is man better then a shepe? wherfore it is lawfull to do a good dede on the Sabbath daye. Then sayd he to the man: stretch forth the thy hande. And he stretched it forth. And it was made hole agayne lyke vnto the other.

¶ Then the pharysees went out, and helde a counsell agaynste hym, how they myght destroy hym. When Jesus knewe that, he departed thence: & moche people folowed hym: and he healed them all: and charged them they wold not make hym knowne: so fulfill that was spoken by the prophet, whiche sayeth: ¶ Beholde my chylde, whome I haue chosen my beloued, in whome my soule despyeth. I wyll put my spyrte on hym: and he shall shewe iudgement to the gentiles. ¶ He shall not stryue: he shall not crye: neither shall any man heare his voyce in the strettes: a byosed rebe shall he not breake: and the smokynge flaxe he shall quench, tll he sende for the iudgement vnto iacoze, and in his name shall the Gentyles truste.

¶ Then was brought to hym one possessed with a deuyll, whiche was bothe blynde and dumme, and he healed hym. In somoch that he whiche was blynde and dumme, both spake and saw. And all the people were amazed, and sayd: ¶ Is not this that sonne of Dauid? But when the pharysees herde that, they sayd: ¶ This is not he: but he is the deuylls chyld: by the helpe of Belzebub chefe of the deuylls.

¶ But Jesus knewe they thoughtes and sayd to them. Every kyngdome diuided agaynst it selfe, is brought to nought. ¶ Pether shall any city or countrey be dyuided agaynst it selfe? ¶ So p Satan cast out Satan, he is deuyll agaynste hym selfe. ¶ How shall then this kyngdome stande? And it is by the helpe of Belzebub cast out deuylls: by whose helpe do your chylidren cast them out? ¶ Wherfore they shalbe your wages. ¶ But p I cast out the deuylls by the myght of God: then is the kyngdome of God come on you.

¶ Euer how can a man entre in to a stronge mans house, and bereue hym of his goodes: unless he first bynde the strong man, and the loyle his house? ¶ He that is not with me, is agaynst me. And he that gathereth not with me, scattereth abroad. Wherfore I saye vnto you, all maner of synne and raylynge shall be forgiven vnto men: but the raylynge agaynst the spyrte, shall not be forgiven vnto men. And who so euer speaketh a worde agaynste the sonne of man, it shall be forgiven hym. ¶ But who so euer speaketh agaynst the hoyle god, it shall not be forgiven hym, neither in this worlde, neither in the worlde to come. ¶ Euer make the tre good, and his frute good also: or els make the tre euill, and his frute euill also. For the tre is knowen by his frute. ¶ A generacion of hyppocrites, how can ye say wel, when ye poure selnes are euill? For of the abundance of the herte, the mouth speaketh. ¶ A good man, out of the good treasure of his herte, byngeth forth good thynges. And an euill man out of his euill treasure, byngeth forth euill thynges. ¶ But I saye vnto you, that of euery rebe word that men shall haue spoken: they shall yelde accomptes at the day of iudgement. For by the wordes thou shalt be iustified: and by the wordes thou shalt be condemned.

¶ Then answered certayn of the Scribes and of the pharysees, sayenge: ¶ Master, we wolde fayne se a signe of the. He answered and sayde to them: The euill and aduoutrous generacion seeketh a signe, but there shall no signe be gyven them, save the signe of the prophete Jonas. For as Jonas was thre dayes and thre nyghtes in the whales bely: so shall the sonne of man be thre dayes and thre nyghtes in the herte of the earth. ¶ The men of Ninue shall crye at the day of iudgement with this nacyon, and condemne them: for they amended at the preachynge of Jonas. ¶ Beholde, a greater then Jonas is here.

¶ The queene of the southe shall crye at the daye of iudgement with this generacion, and shall condemne them: for she came from the furthest parties of the worlde, to heare the wysdome of Salomon. And beholde a greater then Salomon is here.

And the ende of that man is worse then the begynnyng. ¶ Euen so shall it be with this euill nacyon.

¶ Whyle he yet talked to the people: ¶ he beloe, his mother and his brether stood with

¶ The same day went Jesus oute of the house, and sat by the see syde, and moche people resorted vnto hym, so greatlye that he went, and sat in a shyp, & all the people stode on the woze. And he spake many thynges to them in parables, sayeng: Behold the sower went forth to sowe. And as he soweth, some fell by the wayes syde, & the foules came and deuoured them vp. Some fell vpon stony ground where they had not moche erth, and anon they sprong vp, because they had no depth of erth: and when the sunne was vp, they caught heate, and for lacke of rotyng, withered away. Some fell among thornes, and the thornes sprong vp and choked the. ¶ Parte fell in good ground, & brought forth good frute: some an hundred fold, some sixty fold, some thirty fold. ¶ Whosoever hath eares to heare let hym heare.

¶ And the disciples came and sayde to hym: ¶ Why speakest thou to them in parables? He answered and sayde vnto them, vnto you is it gyven to knowe the secretes of the kyngdome of heauen, but to them it is not gyven. For whosoever hath, to hym shall be gyven: and he shall haue abundance. But whoso euer hath not: from him shall be taken away euen that he hath. ¶ Therefore speake I to the in parables: for though they se, they se not, and hearynge they heare not: neither vnderstande. And in them is fulfilled the prophete of Esay, whiche sayth: with the eares ye shall heare and shall not vnderstande, and with the eyes ye shall se, & shall not perceyue. For this peoples hertes are waxed grosse, & they eares are dull of hearyng, & they eyes haue they closed, lest they shuld se with they eyes, and heare with they eares, and shuld vnderstande with they hertes, & shuld turne that I myght heale them.

¶ But blessed are your eyes, for they se: and your eares, for they heare. ¶ Therly I saye vnto you, that many p: ophetes, and perfect mē haue despyed to se those thynges whiche ye se, & haue not sene the: & to heare those thynges whiche ye heare, & haue not herd them. ¶ Heare ye therfore the parable of the sower. ¶ Whoso euer heareth the worde of the kyngdome & vnderstandeth it not, there cometh the wicked & catcheth away p which was sown in his herte. And this is he whiche was sown by the way syde. But he that was sown in the good ground, is he which heareth the word of God, and anon it bringeth forth fruit, yet hath he no root in him selfe, and therefore dureth but a season: for as soone as tribulation or persecution cometh upon him, because of the word, forthwith he is offended. He that was sown among thornes, is he that heareth the word of God: but the care of this world, and the deceitfulness of riches choke the word, and so is he made unfruitfull. He which is sown in the good ground, is he that heareth the word, and understandeth it: which also beareth fruit and bringeth forth, some an hundred fold, some sixty fold, and some thirty fold.

D In other parable he propounded unto the, saying: The kingdom of heaven is like unto a man which sowed good seed in his field. But while the men slept, there came his enemy, and sowed tares among the wheat, and went his way. When the blade was sprung up, and had brought forth the fruit, then appeared the tares also. Then came the servants to the householder, and sayde unto him: Sir, lo, treadst thou good seed in thy ground, how whence then hath it tares? He sayd to them: The enemy hath done this. The servants sayde unto him: Wilt thou then that we go and weede them out? But he sayd: Nay, lest while ye go about to weede out the tares, ye plucke up also with them the wheat by the roots: let both growe together till harvest come, and in tyme of harvest, I will say to the reapers, gather ye first the tares, and binde them in sheaves to be burnt: but gather the wheat in to my barn.

March. 12. In other parable he put forth unto them saying: The kingdom of heaven is like unto a mustard seed that a man taketh and soweth in his field, which is the least of all seeds. But when it is grown, it is greater than all herbs, and it is a tree: so that the birds of the ayre come and build in the boughes of it.

C In other similitude sayd he to them. The kingdom of heaven is like unto leaven which a woman taketh and hideth in three peckes of meal, till all be leavened.

March. 13. All these thynges spake Jesus unto the people by similitudes, and without similitudes spake he not unto them, to fulfill that was spoken by the Prophet, saying: I will open my mouth in parables, and will speake forth thynges which have bene kepte secret, from the begynnyng of the world.

March. 14. Then sent Jesus the people away, and came home. And his disciples came unto him, saying: Declare unto us the parable of the tares of the feld. Then answered he, and sayd unto them: He that soweth the good seed is the sonne of man. And the feld is the world. And the chyldren of the kingdom, they are the good seed. And the tares are the chyldren of the wyche. And the enemy that soweth them, is the devyll. The harvest is the ende of the world. And the reapers be the Angels. For as much as the tares are gathered and burnt in the fyre: so shall it be in the ende of this world. The sonne of man shall send forth his Angels, and they shall gather out of his kingdom all gretes, and them which do wickednes, and shall cast them in to a furnace of fyre. There shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth. Then shall the righteous men shine as bright as the sonne in the kingdom of their father. Whosoever hath eares to heare, let hym heare.

† Agayne the kingdom of heaven is like unto treasure hidde in the feld, which a man findeth and hideth: and for love thereof goeth and selleth all that he hath, and buyeth that feld.

Agayne the kingdom of heaven is like to a merchant that seeketh faire perles, which when he had founde one peryous perle, sitt and soide all that he had, and bought it.

Agayne the kingdom of heaven is like unto a net cast in to the see, that gathereth of all kyndes of fyshes: which when it is full, men draw to land, and sit & gather the good in to vessels, and cast the bad away. So shall it be at the ende of the world. The Angels shall come out and seuer the bad from the good, & shall cast them in to a furnace of fyre: there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

Jesus sayd unto them. Understand ye all these thynges? They sayd: yea. Lo, he. Then sayd he unto them. Therefore every scribe which is taught unto the kingdom of heaven is like an householder, which bringeth forth of his treasure, thynges both newe and olde.

† And it came to passe when Jesus had ended these similitudes, he departed thence and came into his own countrey, and taught them in their synagoges: in so much that they were adomyed and sayd: whence cometh all this wysdome and power unto hym? Is not this the Carpenteres sonne? Is not his mother called Marye? and his brethren be called James & Ioseph and Symon and Judas? And are not his sisters all here with us? Where hath he all these thynges. And they were offended by hym. Then Jesus sayd to them, a Prophet is not without honour, sent in his owne countrey, and among his owne kyn. And he did not many myracles there, because of their unbeliefe.

† John is taken and beheaded. Christ sendeth his twelve apostles forth with power and authority, and they preach by might unto his disciples upon the sea.

CAPL. XIII.

At that tyme Herode the Tetrarcha heard of the fame of Jesus and sayde unto his servants: this is John the Baptist. He is risen agayne from death and therefore are such myracles wrought by hym. For Herode had taken John, and bound him, and put him in prison for Herodias sake, his brother Philipes wyfe. For John sayd unto hym it is not lawful for thee to have her. And when he wolde have put hym to death, he feared the people because they held him as a Prophet.

But when Herodes byrth daye was come, the daughter of Herodias danceth before them, and pleased Herode. Wherefore he promised with an othe, that he wolde geve her what so ever she wolde aske. And she beyng informed of her mother before, sayde: geve me here John Baptistes heed in a platter. And the kynge was for. Nevertheless because of his othes, and them also which sate at the table, he commaunded it to be gyven her, and sent and beheaded John in the prison, and his heed was brought in a platter, and gyven to the damsell, and she brought it to her mother. And his disciples came and toke up his bodye and buried it, and went and tolde Jesus.

When Jesus herde that, he departed thence by ship in to a wilderness place out of the waye. And when the people had herde thereof, they followed hym a fowre out of the cityes. And Jesus went forth and sawe moche people, and his heart was mette upon them, and he healed of them those that were sycke. Now when even was come, his disciples came to hym saying: this is a deserte place, and the daye is spent, let the people departe, that they maye go in to the townes and bye them bytapes. But Jesus sayd to them: They have no need to go away. Geve ye them to eate. Then sayd they unto hym: we have here but five loaves and two fyshes. And he sayde: bynge them hyther. And he commaunded the people to sit downe on the grasse, and toke the loaves and the two fyshes, & looked up to heaven and blessed, and brake and gave the loaves to his disciples, and the disciples gave them to the people. And they did all eate and were sufficed. And they gathered up of the gobites that remayned, xij. baskets full. And they that ate, were in number aboute fyve thousande men, besyde women and chyldren.

† And the next daye Jesus made his disciples entre in to a ship, and to go over before hym, while he sent the people away. And as soon as he had sent the people away, he went up in to a mountayne alone to pray. And when nyght was come, he was there him self alone. And the shippe was now in the myddes of the see, and was told with waves, for it was a contrary wynde. And in the fourth watche of the nyghte Jesus came unto them walkinge on the see. And when his disciples sawe hym walkinge on the see, they were troubled, saying: it is some spycie, and cried out for feare. And forthwith Jesus spake unto them saying: be of good cheere, it is I, be not afrayde.

Peter answered hym, and sayd: master, if thou be he, byd me come unto the on the water. And he sayd, come. And when Peter was come downe out of the shippe, he walked on the water to go to Jesus. But when he sawe a myghty wynde, he was afrayde. And as he beganne to syncke, he cryed saying: Master save me. And forthwith Jesus stretched forth his hande and caught hym, and sayd to hym: O thou fawfull, wherefore didst thou doubt? And as soon as they were come in to the ship, the wynde ceased. So they in the ship, came and worshipped hym, saying: Certainly thou arte the sonne of God. And when they were come over, they wente in to the lande of Genazareth. And the men of that place haunge knowledge of hym, sente out in to all that countrey rounde about, and brought unto hym all that were sycke, and besought hym that they myght but touche the hemme of his garmente. And as many as touched, were made safe.

† Christe exhorteth his disciples, and rebuketh the scribes and pharisees. The thynges that goeth in to the mouth defyleth not, he defyleth the woman of Cananes daughter, healeth the multitude, and with .viij. loaves and a fewe fyshes feedeth six. thousand.

CAPL. XV. †

Then came to Jesus Scribes and Pharisees frome Jerusalem saying: Why do thy disciples breake the tradition of the elders, for they wash not theyr handes when they eate bread? He answered and sayd unto them: Why do ye also breake the commaundement of God thowow your tradition? For God commaunded, saying: Honour thy father and mother, and he that curseth father or mother shall suffer death. But ye saye, every man shall saye to his father or mother: that which thou desirest of me to helpe the with: is good God: and so shal he not honour his father or his mother. And thus have ye defaced the commaundement of God thowow your tradition. Hypocrites, well prophesied of you Esai saying: This people draweth unto me with theyr mouthes, and honoureth me with theyr lippes, but theyr hartes are farre frome me: in vayne they worshippe me, teachyng doctrine, the preceptes of men.

And he called the people unto him and sayd to them: heare and understande. That which goeth in to the mouth defyleth not the man, but that which cometh out of the mouth defyleth the man.

Then came his disciples and sayde unto hym: Perceyvest thou not howe the pharisees are offended in hearyng this saying? He answered and sayd: all plantyng whiche my heavenly father hath not planted, shall be plucked up by the rootes. Let them alone, they be the blynde leaders of the blynde. If the blynde leade the blynde, bothe shall fall in to the dyche.

Then answered Peter and sayd to hym, declare unto us this parable. Then sayd Jesus: are ye yet without understandyng? perceyve ye not, that what so ever goeth in to the mouth descendeth downe in to the bely, and is cast out in to the draught? But those thynges which come forth of the mouth, come from the herte, and they defyle the man. For out of the herte come evyll thoughtes, murders, adoutryes, fornication, thefte, false wytnesse, envye, phemy: these are the thynges which defyle a man. But to eate with unwashen handes, defyleth not a man.

† And

* And Jesus went thence, and departed in to the cootes of Tyre and Sydon. And behold, a woman of Canaan came out of the same cootes, and cryed vnto hym, saying: Haue mercy on me Lord, thou sonne of Dauid, my daughter is sore vexed with a deuill. And he gaue her neuer a worde to answer. Then came to hym his disciples and besought hym saying: Sende her awaye for she followeth vs crying. He answered and sayde, I am not sent, but vnto the losse shepe of the house of Israel. Then she came and worshipped hym, saying: master helpe me. He answered & sayde: it is not good to take the chyldrens bread and cast it to a dogges. She answered and sayde: trouth Lord, neuertheless the dogges eat of the cromaues whiche fall from theyr masters table. Then Jesus answered & sayd vnto her. O woman great is thy faythe, be it to the as thou desyrest. And her doughter was made hole at that same houre. Mat. xxi. 21. Luke. x. 42.

Then Jesus went away from thence, and came vnto the see of Galilee, and went vp in to a mountayne, and sat downe there. And moche people came vnto hym, haupnge with them, halt, blinde, dumme, mapmed, and other many, and cald them downe at Jesus fete. And he healed them, in so moche that the people wondered to se the dumme speke, the mapmed hole, the halt go, and the blinde se. And they glorified the god of Israel.

Then Jesus called his disciples to hym, and said: I haue compassion on the people because they haue continued with me now. iij. dayes, and haue nought to eate, and I wyl not let them go fasting, lest they preythe in the way. And his disciples sai vnto hym: wher shal we get so moche bread in the wilderness to fill so great a multitude? And Jesus sayde vnto them: how many loaves haue ye? They sayde seuen, & a fewe lytle fishes. And he commaunded the people to sit downe on the grounde, and takinge the seuen loaves, and the fishes, gaue thanks, and brake them, and gaue to his disciples, and the disciples gaue them to the people. And they dyd all eate, and were fylled. And they toke vp of the fragimettes that were lesse seuen baskets full. And yet they that ate were foure. x. men, besyde women & children. And he sent awaye the people, and toke shyp and came in to the parties of Magdala.

The Pharisees requyre a token. Jesus warneth his disciples of Pharisees doctrine. The contention of Peter. The heres of heauen. The sayth. i. i. must beate the croile after Chyrt.

CAP. XVI.

Then came the Pharisees and Sadducees temptynge hym, and desyred hym to shewe them some sygne from heuen. He answered and sayde vnto them. * At euen ye saye, we shall haue saye we wedder, for the thye is redde. And in the morninge ye saye, to daye shall be foule wedder, for the skye is cloude and redde. O ye hypocrites, ye can discerne the countenance of the skye: and can ye not discerne the sygnes of seasons? The trouwe nacion and aduontrous seeketh a sygne, & there shall none other sygne be given them, but the sygne of the * Propete Jonas. So lette be them and departed. Mat. xxi. 21. Luke. x. 42.

And when his disciples were come to the other syde of the water, they had forgotten to take bread with them. Then Jesus sayd vnto them: Take hede and beware of the leuen of the Pharisees and of the Sadducees. But they thoughte in them selues sayinge: we haue brought no bread with vs. When Jesus vnderstode that, he sayde vnto them. O ye of lytle fayth, why are your myndes cumbered because ye haue brought no bread? Do ye not yet perceyue neyther remembre those. v. loaves when there were true thousande men, and how many baskets toke ye vp? Neyther the vii. loaves when there were. iij. thousande, and how many baskets toke ye vp? Why perceyue ye not then, that I spake not vnto you of bread, whel I sayd, beware of the leuen of the Pharisees and of the Sadducees? Then vnderstode they that he hade not them beware of the leuen of bread, but of the wayne of the Pharisees, and of the Sadducees.

* When Jesus came in to the cootes of the tyne whiche is called Cesarea philippi, he asked his disciples sayinge: to whom do men saye that I the sonne of man am? They sayd some saye thou arte Joha Baptyst, some Heras, some Jeremias, or one of the prophetes. He sayd vnto them: but to whom saye ye that I am? Symon Peter answered and sayde: * Thou arte Chyrt the sonne of the lyvinge God. And Jesus answered and sayde to hym: Wappy art thou Symon the sonne of Jonas, for thou and bloude hath not opened vnto the that, but my father which is in heuen. And I saye also vnto the, that thou art Peter, and * vpon this rocke I wyl builde my congregacion, and the gates of hell shal not preuaile against it. And I wyl grue vnto the, the keyes of the kyngdom of heuen: what so euer thou byndest vpon erthe, shall be bounde in heuen: and what so euer thou loosed on erth, shall be loosed in heuen. Mat. xxi. 21. Luke. x. 42.

Then he charged his disciples, that they shoulde tell no man that he was Jesus Chyrt. From that tyme forth Jesus began to shewe vnto his disciples that he muste go vnto Jerusalem, and suffre many thynges of the elders, and of the hygge prestes, and Scribes, and must be kyled, and ryle agayne the thyrde daye. But Peter toke hym a syde, and began to rebuke hym sayinge: Master sauoure thy selfe, this shall not come vnto the. Then turned he aboute, and sayd vnto Peter: come after me Sarhan, thou offendest me, because thou sauourest not thynges of God, but thynges of men.

Jesus then said to his disciples. If any man wyl folow me, let hym deny hym selfe, and take vp his croile, and folow me. For who so euer wyl saue his lyfe shal lose it. And who so euer shal lose his lyfe for my sake, shal fynde it. What shall it proffite a man, though he shoulde wyne all the wold wold, if he lose his owne soule? Or els what shall a man grue to redeeme his soule soule agayne withall? For the sonne of man shall come in the glory of his father, with his angels: and then shall he reward euery man accordynge to his dedes. Verily I saye vnto you, some there be among them that here stonde which shal not taste of death, till they shall se the sonne of man come in his kyngdome.

The transfiguration of Chyrt vpon the mount of Tabor. He healeth the lunatyke and payeth tribute.

CAP. XVII.

After sixe dayes Jesus toke Peter and James and Joha his brother, and brought them vp in to an hygh mountayne out of the waye, and was transfigured before them: & his face did shyne as the sunne, and his clothes were as whyte as the lyght. And beholde there appeared vnto them Moyses and Hely, talkinge with hym. Then answered Peter, and sayd to Jesus: master here is good being for vs. If thou wilt, let vs make here. iij. tabernacles, one for the, & one for Moyses, and one for Hely. Whyle he yet spake, behold a bryght cloud shadowed them. And behold there came a voyce out of that cloude sayinge: this is my dere sonne, in whom I delite, heare hym. And when the disciples here that they tell on theyr faces and were sore atayde. And Jesus came and touched them, and sayd: aryle and be not atayde. And when they looked vp, they sawe no man laue Jesus onely.

And as they came downe from the mountayne, Jesus charged them sayinge: Se ye weme the byson to no man, vntill the sonne of man be ryle agayne from dede. * And his disciples asked hym sayinge: * Why then lart the Scribes that theyr muste first come? Jesus answered and sayde vnto them: Hely shall first come, and redde: all thynges. And I say vnto you that Hely is come already, and they knowe him not, but haue done vnto him what souere they lusted. In lyke wyse shal also the sonne of man suffre of them. When the disciples perceyued that he spake vnto them of Joha Baptyst. And when they were come to the people, they came to hym a certayne man and knelled downe to hym, and sayde. After haue mercy on my sonne, for he is lunatyke, and is sore vexed. And oft tymes he falleth in to the fyre, and ofte in to the water. * And I brought hym to thy disciples, and they coult not heale hym. Jesus answered and sayd: O faithles nacyon and croked: how longe shall I be with you? how longe shall I suffre you? bringe hym hether to me. And Jesus rebuked the wyrt, & he came out of hym. And the chyrt was healed euen that same houre. Mat. xxi. 21. Luke. x. 42.

Then came the disciples to Jesus secretly, and sayde: Why coult not we cast hym out? Jesus sayd vnto them: Because of your vnbellye. For I saye verily vnto you: * If ye had faith as a mulled seed, ye shoulde say vnto this mountayne, remove hence to yonder place, and he shoulde remove: neither shoulde any thyng be impossible for you to do. Now be it this hynde goth not out but by prayre and fasting. As they went about in Galilee, Jesus said vnto them: * the sonne of man shal be deliuered in to the handes of men, and they shal kyll him, & the thyrde daye shal he ryle agayne. And they sayd greatly.

* And when they were come to Capernaum, they that were wont to gather tribute monny, came to Peter and sayd: Dost thou master paye tribute? He sayd yea. And when he was come in to the house, Jesus preuented hym, sayinge: what thyngest thou Symon? of whome do the kynges of the erth take tribute? of tax money? of theyr chyldren, or of straungers? Peter sayd vnto hym: of straungers. Then sayde Jesus vnto hym: Then are the chyldren free. Neuertheless, lest we shoulde offende them: go to the see, and cast in thyne angle, and take the fyfthe that fyrt cometh vp: and when thou hast opened his mouth, thou shalt fynde a pice of twente pence, that take and paye for me and the. Mat. xxi. 21. Luke. x. 42.

The teacheth his disciples to be humble and harmles to auoyde occasions of euell, and one to forgyue anothers offence.

CAP. XVIII.

The same tyme the disciples came vnto Jesus sayinge: * who is greater in the kyngdome of heauen? Jesus called a chyrt vnto hym, and let hym in the myddes of them and sayde: Verily I saye vnto you, * except ye turne & become as chyldren, ye can not entre in to the kyngdom of heuen. who so euer therfore humbleth hym selfe as this chyrt, the same is the greater man in the kyngdome of heauen. And who so euer receyuech such a chyrt in my name, receyuech me. * But who so euer offende one of these lytle ones, whiche be lytle in me: it were better for hym a myllstone were hanged about his necke, and were drowned in the deth of the see. how wroth the wrold for offendynge. how be it, it can not be auoyded but that offences shal be gyuen. Neuertheless wo wroth the man by whome the offendynge cometh.

Wherfore if thy hande or thy fote offende the, * cut hym of and call hym from the. It is better for the to enter in to lyfe halte or mapmed, then thou shouldest haupnge two handes or two fete be cast in to euellastynge fyre. And if thynne eye let the, plucke it out, and caste it from the. It is better for the to enter in to lyfe with one eye, then haupnge two eyes to be cast in to hell fyre. Se ye despyse not one of these lytelones. For I tell you, that in heuen theyr angels alwayes beholde the face of my father whiche is in heuen. * For the sonne of man is come to saue that whiche is lost. how thinke ye? if a man haue an hyndred shepe, and one of them be gone astray, doth he not leaue the. iij. score and. xix. in the mountaynes, & go and seke that one whiche is gone astray. * If it happen that he fynde hym, verily I say vnto you, he reioyseth moze of that shepe, the of the. iij. score and. xix. which went not astray. So it is not the wyl of your father in heuen that one of these lytelones shoulde be lost.

* Moreover * if thy brother trespass against thee, * go and praye to him, and if he wyl not, take with thee one or two more, and if they wyl not, let the church be agayne.

gapne the. So and tell hym his faute by-thou hast wonne thy brother: But if he heare the not, then take yet with the one or two,

that in the mouth of two or thre witnesses every word may stande. If he heare not then, tell it vnto the congregacion. If he heare not the congregacion, take hym as an heathen

Then came Peter to hym, and sayd: master how oft shal I forgive my brother if he synne agaynst me, seven tymes? Iesus sayde vnto hym: I sape not vnto the. vii. tymes, but seuentie tymes, vii. tymes. * Therfore is the kingdom of heuē likened vnto a ceteru king which wold take accomptes of his seruantes.
And when he had begon to recken, one was brought vnto hym, which ought hym x. thousande talentes: whom because he had nought to paye, his master commaunded hym to be sold and his wyfe, and his chyldren and all that he had, & payment to be made. The seruant fell downe and besought hym sayinge: Sir, geue me respyte, and I wil pay it euery whit. Then had the Lorde pitye on that seruant, and losed hym, and forgave hym the dette.

And the sayd seruant went out and found one of his felowes which ought hym an hundred pence, and lapd handes on hym, and toke hym by the throte, sayinge: paye me that thou owest. And his fellow fell downe and besought hym sayinge: haue patience with me, & I wil pay the all. But he wolde not, but went & cast hym in to pylson, tyll he wolde paye the det.
When his other felowes saw what was done they were very soyr, and came and tolde theyr Lorde all that had happened. Then his Lorde called hym, and sayd vnto hym. O euyl seruant I forgave the all that det, because thou praydest me: was it not mete also that thou shouldest haue had compassion on thy fellowe, euen as I had pitye on the? And his Lorde was wroth and deliuered hym to the iaplers, tyll he wolde paye all that was due to him: So * likewise shall my heuēly father do vnto you, excepte ye forgive with your hartes eche one to his brother theyr trespasses. R

CAP. XIX.

And it came to passe when Iesus hadde ended these saymges, he gat hym from Galile, and came into the costes of Jude beyonde Jordan, and moche people folo-wed hym, and he healed them there.

* Mat. x. a.

* Then came vnto him the pharisees temptyng hym, and sayinge to hym: Is it lawfull for a man to put away his wyfe for all maner of causes? He answered and sayde vnto them: Haue ye not redde, how he * which made man at the begynnyng, made them man and woman, and sayd: * for this thyng shall man leaue father and mother, and cleue vnto his wyfe, and they twayne shal be one fleshe.

Wherfore now are they not twayne, but one fleshe. Let not man therfore put asunder that God hath coupled. Then sayde they to hym: why dyd Moses commaunde to geue a testimo-niall of diuorcement, and to put her away?
He sayd to them: Moses because of hardness of your hartes, suffered you to put away your wyues: but from the begynnyng it was not so. I sape therfore vnto you, who so euer put-teth away his wyfe, except it be for aduourty and marpeth an other, commytteth aduourty.
And who so euer marpeth her which is diuor-ced doth commyt aduourty.

Then sayd his disciples to hym: if the mater be so betwene man and wyfe, it is not good to marpe. He sayd vnto them, all men can not away with that sayinge, save they to whom it is giuen. For there are some gelded, which were so bozne out of theyr mothers belly. And there are gelded, which be made of men. And there be gelded, which haue gelded them sel-ues for the kingdom of heuen. He that can take, let hym take. Then were brought to hym ponge chyldren, that he wolde put his handes on them and praye. And the disciples rebuked them. But Iesus sayde: suffer the chyldren, and forbode them not to come to me, for of such is the kingdom of heauen. And when he had put his handes on them, he departed thence.

And beholde one came and sayd vnto hym:
Good master, what good thyng shall I do, that I may haue euertlastyng lyfe? He sayde vnto hym: why callest thou me good? there is none good but one, and that is God. But if thou wilt entre in to lyfe, kepe the commaun-mentes. The other said to hym: Which? And Iesus said: thou walt not kil, thou walt not commyt aduourty, thou walt not sle, thou walt not bere false witness, honour father and mother, & thou walt loue thy neryghbour as thy selfe. And the pong man said vnto hym, I haue obserued al these thyngs from my yowth, what lacke I yet? And Iesus said vnto hym, * if thou wilt be perfecte, go sell that thou hast, & geue it to the poore, and thou shalt haue treasure in heuen, and come folowe me. When the pong man herde that sayinge, he went away mour-nyng. For he had great possessions.

Then Iesus sayd vnto his disciples: Therly
I sape vnto you, it is harde for a ryche man to entre in to the kingdom of heuen. And mozeouer I sape vnto you: it is easer for a camell to go throughe the eye of a needle, then for a ryche man to entre in to the kingdom of God. When his disciples herde that, they were exceedingly amazed, sayinge: who then can be saved? Iesus behelde them, and sayde vnto them: with men it is impossible, but with God all thynges are possible.

* Then

* Then answered Peter, and sayde to hym: Beholde, we haue forsaken all and folo-wed the: what shall we haue? Iesus sayde vnto hem: Therly I sape vnto you: when the sonne of man shall sit in the seate of his maiestie, ye which folowe me in the newe byrth, shall sitte also vpon the twelue seates and iudge the twelue tribes of Israel. And whosoever forsaketh houses, or brethren, or systers, or father or mother, or wife or chyldren, or landes for my name, shall receyue an hundred fold, and shall inheryte euertlastyng lyfe. * Many that are fyrst shall be last, and the laste shall be fyrst.

* Chyppes teacheth by a similitude that God is determined vnto no man and how he is alway callinge men to his labour. He teacheth his disciples to be lowly, and geueth two bynde men theyr lyght.

CAP. XX.

For the kingdom of heuen is lyke vnto an housholder, which wente oute early in the mornynge to hyre labourers into his vyneyard. And he agreed with the labourers for a peny a daye and sent them in to his vyneyard. And he went out about the thyrde houre, and sawe other standynge ydell in the market place, and said vnto them, go ye also in to my vyneyard: and what so euer is ryght, I wil geue you. And they went theyr waye. Agayne he went out aboute the fyfte and nyth houre / and dyd lyke wyse. And he wrote out aboute the eleuenth houre, and founde other standynge ydell, and sayde vnto them: Why stande ye here all the daye ydell?
They sayde vnto hym: because no man hath hyed vs. He sayde to them: go ye also in to my vyneyard / and what so euer is ryght, that shall ye receyue.

When euen was come, the Lorde of the vyneyard sayde vnto his shewarde: call the labourers, and geue them theyr hyer / begynnyng at the laste, tyll thou come to the fyrst. And they which were hyed aboute the eleuenth houre came and receyued euery man a peny. Then came the fyrst, supposyng that they shoulde receyue moze / and they lyke wyse receyued euery man a peny. And when they had receyued it, they murmured agaynst the goodman of the house, sayinge: These laste haue wrought but one houre, and thou hast made them equal vnto vs which haue bozne the burthen and heate of the daye.

He answered to one of them, sayinge: frende
I do the no wronge: dyddst thou not agree with me for a peny? Take that is thy due and go thy waye, I wil geue this laste as moche as the. Is it not lawfull for me to do as me lyketh with myne owne? Is thyne eye enuy because I am good? * So the last shall be fyrst, and the fyrst last. For many are called and fewe be chosen. R

* And Iesus ascended to Ierusalem, and toke the xii. disciples aparte in the waye / and sayd to them. * Beholde we go vp to Ierusalem, and the sonne of man shal be deliuered vnto the chiefe priesetes, and vnto the scribes, and they shall condemne hym to deathe, and shall deliuer hym to the Sentes to be mocked, and scourged, and to be crucified, & the thyrde daye he shall rylse agayne.

* Then came to hym the mother of Ze-bedes chyldren, with her sonnes * with hyr pynge hym, and besyngge a certayne thyng of hym. And he sayde vnto her: what wilt thou haue? She sayde vnto hym: Staunte that these my two sonnes maye sitte, one on thy ryght hande, and the other on the left hande in thy kingdom.

Iesus answered and sayde: Ye wote not what ye aske. Are ye able to drynke of the cuppe that I shall drynke of, and to be baptyzed with the baptylme that I shall be baptyzed with? They answered to hym, that we are. And he sayde vnto them: Ye shall drynke of my cuppe, and shall be baptyzed with the baptylme that I shall be baptyzed with. But to sit on my ryght hande and on my left hande is not myne to geue, but to them for whome it is prepared of my father. R

* And when the ten herde this, they disday-ned at the two brethren: But Iesus called them vnto hym and sayde: * Ye knowe that the rulers of the Sentes haue domynacion ouer them. And they that are greates excerpse power ouer them. It shall not be so amonge you. But who so euer will be great amonge you, let him be your minstre / and who so euer will be chiefe, let hym be your seruant: euen as the sonne of man came not to be minstred vnto, but to minstre, and to geue his lyfe for the redemption of many. R

And as they departed from Hiericho, moche people folowed hym. * And beholde, two bynde men lyttenge by the waye syde, when they herde Iesus passe by, cryed sayinge: Thou Lorde the sonne of Dauid haue mercy on vs.
And the people rebuked them, because they wolde holde theyr peace / but they cryed the moze sayinge: haue mercy on vs thou Lorde which arte the sonne of Dauid. Then Iesus stode still and called them, and sayde: What wilt ye I shoulde do to you? They sayde to hym: Lorde, that our eyes maye be opened.
Iesus had compassion on them, and touched theyr eyes, and forthwith theyr eyes receaued syght. And they folowed hym.

Tell the daughter of Syon: * Beholde, thy king cometh to thee, meke and sitting upon an asse and a colt, the foale of an asse bled to the yoke. The disciples went and did as Jesus commaunded them, and brought the asse and the colt, and layde on them theyr clothes, and set hym thereon. And many of the people spreadde theyr garments in the way. Other cut downe branches from the trees, and strewed them in the way. Moreover the people that went before, & they also that came after, cryed saying: Hosanna to the sonne of David. Blessed be he that cometh in the name of the Lorde, * Hosanna in the heyl.

* And when he was come to Jerusalem, all the cite was moued saying: Who is this? And the people sayde: this is Jesus the prophete of Nazareth a city of Galile. And Jesus went in to the temple of God, and cast out all them that soude & bought in the temple, and ouerturnd the tables of the money chaungers, and the seates of them that soude doves, & said to them: It is written, * my house shall be called the house of prayer. But ye haue made it a den of thieues. And the blinde & the balde came to hym in the temple, and he healed them.

When the chiefe priests and scribes sawe the meruailes that he dyd, and the chyldren crying in the temple and saying: Hosanna to the sonne of David, they dysdained, & sayde vnto hym: Hearest thou what these saye? Jesus sayd vnto them, yea, haue ye not red, * of the mouth of babes and sucklings, thou hast ordeyned prayse? And he lesse them, and went out of the cite vnto Bethanie, and lodged there.

In the morninge as he returned in to the cite he hungered, and spred a figge tree in the way, and came to it, and founde nothyng thereon, but leues, and sayde to it: neuer frute growe on the hence forthwardes. And anone the figge tree wyddered away. And when his disciples sawe that, they meruailed sayinge. How sone is the figge tree wyddered away? Jesus answered and sayd vnto them: Verily I saye vnto you, if ye shall haue sayth and shall not doubte, ye shall not onely do that which I haue done to the figge tree, but also ye shall saye vnto this mountayne, take thy self away and cast thy selfe in to the see, it shall be done. And what so euer ye shall aske in prayer (ye shall receyue it).

* And when he was come in to the temple, the chiefe priests and the elders of the people, came vnto hym as he was teachinge, and sayd: by what autorite dost thou these thynges? and who gaue the this power? Jesus answered and sayde vnto them: I also will aske of you a certayne question, whiche if ye aske me, I in lykewyse will tell you by what autorite I do these thynges. The daye of Iohn: whence was it? from heuen, or of men? Then they reasoned amonge them selues sayinge: if we shall saye from heuen, he will saye vnto vs: why dyd ye not then beleue hym? But if we shall saye * of men, then feare we the people. For all helde Iohn as a prophet. And they answered Jesus and said: we can not tell. And he like wise said vnto them: neyther tell I you by what autorite I do these thynges. * What saye ye to this? * A certayne man had two sonnes, and came to the elder and sayd: sonne go & worke to daye in my vineyard. He answered & sayd, I will not: but afterwarde repented & went. Then came he to the seconde, and sayde lyke wyse. And he answered and sayd: I will sy, yet went not. Whether of them twaine dyd the wyll of the father? And they sayde vnto hym: the first. Jesus sayd vnto them: verily I saye vnto you that the publicans & the harlottes shall come in the kyngdome of God before you. For Iohn came vnto you in the way of ryghtwysnes, and ye byluded hym not. But the publicans and harlottes byluded hym. And yet ye, though ye sawe it, were not yet moued with repentaunce, that ye myght afterwarde haue byluded hym.

* Berken an other parable. * There was a certayne householder whiche planted a vineyard, and hedged it rounde aboute and made a townepyll in it, and bylde a toure, and let it out to husbandmen, and went in to a strange countrey. And when the tyme of the frute dyd come neare, he sent his seruantes to the husbandmen to receaue the frutes of it. And the husbandmen caught his seruantes, and beat one, kyled an other, and stoned an other. Agayne he sent other seruantes, mo then the first, and they scrued them lyke wyse. But last of all, he sent vnto them his owne sonne, sayinge: they will feare my sonne. But when the husbandmen sawe the sonne, they sayd amonge them selues. * This is the heire, come let vs kyll hym, and let vs take his inheritaunce to our selues. And they caughte hym, and thrust hym out of the vineyard, & stowe hym. When the Lorde of the vineyard cometh, what will he do with those husbandmen? They sayd vnto hym: he will cruelly destroye those euill persons, and will let out his vineyard vnto other husbandmen, which shall deliuer hym the frute at tymes conuenient. Jesus sayd vnto them: dyd ye neuer rede in the scriptures: The stone whiche the buylders refused, the same is set in the pyllaynall parte of the corner: this was the Lorde doinge, and it is merueylous in our eyes. Therefore saye I vnto you, the kyngdome of God shall be taken frome you, and shall be gauen to the Gentyles, whiche shall bypunge wythe the frutes of it. And who so euer shall fall on this stone, he shall be broken: but on who so euer it shall fall vpon, it will grinde hym to powder. And when the chiefe priests and pharises herde his parables, they perceaued he spake of them. * And they went aboute to laye handes on hym, but they feared the people, because they toke hym as a prophete.

CAPL.

XXII.

and

And Jesus answered, and spake vnto them agayne, in parables, sayinge. * The kyngdome of heauen is lyke vnto a man bypunge a kyng, whiche maried his sonne, and sent forth his seruantes, to call them that were byd to the weddinge, & they wolde not come. Agayne he sente forth other seruantes, sayinge. Tell them whiche are bydden: beholde I haue prepared my dynner, myne oren and my satynges are kyled, & all thynges are redy, come vnto the mariage. But they regarded not, and went their wayes: one to his house in the countrey, another about his marchaundys, the remnant toke his seruantes, and intreated them fouly, and slew them. When the kyng hearde that, he was wrothe, and sent forth his warryers, and destroyed those murthurers, and bent vp the wyte.

Then sayde he to his seruantes: the weddinge is prepared. But they which were bydden, were not worthy. So ye therfore out in to the bygh wayes, and as many as ye fynde byd them to the mariage. The seruantes went out in to the bygh wayes, and gathered together as many as they coulde fynde, both good and bad, and the weddinge was furnished with gesses. Then the kyng came in, to vylet the gesses, and spied there a man whiche had not on a weddinge garment, and sayde vnto hym: frende, how fortunest it that thou camest in byther, and hast not on a weddinge garment? But he had neuer a worde to saye. Then sayde the kyng to his mynisters: take and bynde hym hande and fote, and caste hym in to vnter darckenes, there shall be weepinge, and gnashynge of teth, for many are called, but fewe be chosen.

* Then went the pharises and toke cōfessell how they might trappe hym in his wordes. And they sent vnto him their disciples, with Herodes officers, sayinge: * Master, we know thou art true, and teachest the waye of God truly, neyther carest thou for any man, for thou countest not mens estate. Tell vs therefore: how thinkest thou? Is it lawfull to geue tribute vnto Cesar or not? Jesus perceyued their wickednes, and sayde: Why tempte ye me, ye hypocrites? Let me se the coyne of the tribute money. And they toke hym a pence. And he sayde vnto them: Whose is this Image and superscription? They sayd vnto him: Cessars. Then sayde he vnto them: Geue therefore to Cesar, that whiche is Cessars: and geue vnto God, that whiche is Gods. * Whe they herd that, they marueled, and left hym, and went their waye.

The same daye the Saduces came to hym (which saye that there is no resurrection) and asked hym sayinge: Master, Moses bad, yf a man dye hauing no chyldren, that the brother marry his wyfe, and caste by frid vnto his brother. Where were with vs seuen brethren and the first maried and deceased without yssue & left his wyfe vnto his brother. A lyke wyse the second and the thirde euen vntill the seuenth. Last of all the woman dyed also. Now in the resurrection whose wyfe shall she be of the seuen? For all had her. Jesus answered & sayde vnto them * ye are deceyued and vnderstand not the scriptures, nor yet the power of God, for in the resurrection they neyther marry nor be gyue in mariage: but are as angels in heuē.

As touchinge the resurrection of the deyd: haue ye not red what is sayd vnto you of god whiche sayeth: * I am Abrahams God, and Isaacs God, and the God of Jacob? God is not the God of the deyd: but of the lyvinge. And when the people herde that, they were astonished at his doctrine.

* When the pharises had herde, howe he hadde stopped the Saduces mouthes, they drew together, and one of them a doctor of lawe, asked him a question, temptinge hym, & sayinge: Master whiche is the chiefe commandment in the law? Jesus sayde to hym: Thou shalt loue the Lorde thy God with all thyne herte, with all thy soule, & with all thy mynde. This is the first and the chiefe commandment. And the seconde lyke vnto this. Thou shalt loue thy neyghboure as thy selfe. In these ii. commandmentes hange all the lawe & the prophetes.

Whyle the pharises were gathered together, Jesus asked them sayinge: What thinke ye of Christ? Whose sonne is he? They sayde vnto hym, The sonne of David. He sayd vnto them: How then doth David in spyte, call hym Lorde, sayinge: The Lorde sayd to my Lorde, sit on my ryghte hande. tyll I make thyn enemyes thy fote stoir. If David call him Lorde: howe is he then his sonne? And none coulde answer him agayne one worde: neyther durst anye frome that daye forth, aske him any mo questions.

Christe cryeth wo vnto the pharises scribes and hypocrites: and propheseth the destruction of Ierusalem.

CAPL. XXIII.

Then spake Jesus to the people, and to his disciples, sayinge: The scribes and pharises & yf in Moses saye. At threfoze whatsoeuer they byd you kepe, that kepe, and do: but after theu wykes do not: for they saye, and do not. For they bynde heuy burdenes and greuous to be borne, and laye them on mennes shouldeers: but they them selues will not moue them with their synger. All their wykes they do, to be sene of men. They set abroad their phylacteries, and make large borders on their garmentes, and loue to yf bypermoste at leashes, and to haue the these seares in the assemblies, & greeynges in the markettes, and to be called of men Rabbi.

But ye shall not sūre poure selues to be called Rabbi. For one is poure master, that is to wote Christ, and all ye are brethren. And call no man poure father vpon the earthe, for there is but one poure father, and he is in heauen. Be not called masters, for there is but one poure master, and he is Christ. Ye that is greatest amonge you, shalbe poure seruaunt. But whosoever exalteth hym selfe, shalbe humbled. And he that humbleth hym selfe, shalbe exalted. Wo be vnto you scribes and pharises les, Hypocrites, because ye shut up the kyngdome of heauen before men: for ye poure selues go not in, nether suffer ye them that come to enter in.

Who be to you Scribes and Pharises, Hypocrites: because ye deuoure widows houses: and that vnder a colour of prayenge longe prayers, wherfore ye shall receaue the greater damnation.

Who be to you Scribes and Pharises, Hypocrites, which compass see and lande, to bring one into your beleife: and when he is brought ye make hym two folde moare the chyld of hell, then ye your selues are.

Who be vnto you blynde gydes, which say: Who so euer sweareth by the temple, it is nothinge: but who so euer sweareth by the gold of the temple, is bounde. Ye folles and blynde: whether is greater the golde or the temple that sanctifyeth the golde? And who so euer sweareth by the altar, it is nothinge: But whosoever sweareth by the offeringe that lyeth on the altar, is bounde. Ye folles and blynde: whether is greater the offeringe, or the altar which sanctifyeth the offeringe? Who so euer therfore sweareth by the altar, sweareth by it, and by all that there on is. And whosoever sweareth by the temple, sweareth by it and by hym that dwelleth therein. And he that sweareth by heauen, sweareth by the throne of God, and by hym that sitteth thereon.

Who be to you Scribes and Pharises, Hypocrites, which to tye mynt, anyle, and comyn, and leaue the waygher matters of the lawe vnto: iudgement, mercy, and faith. These ought ye to haue done, and not to leaue the other vndone. Ye blynde gydes which strayne out a gnat, and swalowe a camell.

Who be to you Scribes and Pharises, Hypocrites, which make cleane the veter syde of the cuppe, and of the platter: but within they are full of rauen and excrese: Thou blynde Pharise, cleanse first the inner side of the cup and platter, that the outersyde of them maye be cleane also.

Who be to you Scribes and Pharises, Hypocrites, for ye are lyke vnto paynted tombes which appeare beautiful outwardly: but are within full of dead bones, and of all filthynes. So also ye, outwardly ye appeare righteous vnto men, within, ye are full of hypocry and wickednes.

Who be vnto you Scribes and Pharises hypocrites: for ye buyde the tombes of the Prophetes, and garnyshe the sepulchres of the righteous, and saye: yf we hadde bene in the dayes of our fathers, we wold not haue bene parteners with them, in the blood of the Prophetes. So then ye be wytnesses of them which kille the Prophetes. Fulfill ye also the measure of your fathers. Ye serpentes and generation of vipers, howe shoulde ye escape the iudgement of hell?

Wherefore, beholde I sende you Prophetes, wyse men and scribes, of them some ye shall kill and crucifye: some ye shall scourge in youre assemblies, and pursue from cytie to cytie, that vpon you maye come all the righteous bloude that was shed vpon the erthe, from the bloude of righteous Abel, vnto the bloude of Zachary, the sonne of Barachias, whome ye slew betwene the temple and the altar. Verily I saye vnto you, all these thinges shall lyght vpon this generation. Jerusalem, Jerusalem, which killest the Prophetes, and stonest them which are sent to thee: howe often wolde I haue gathered thy chyldren together, as the hen gathereth her chickens vnder her wynges, and ye wolde not: Beholde, your habitation shall be left vnto you desolate. For I saye to you, ye shall not see me hence forth, tyll that ye saye: blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord.

Christ sheweth his disciples the destruction of the temple: the tokens of the latter dayes: and warneth them to make for the world shall suddenly perishe.

C API. XXIII.

And Jesus went out and departed from the temple: and his disciples came to hym, to shew hym the buyldyng of the temple. Jesus sayde vnto them: se ye not all these thinges? Verily I saye vnto you: there shall not be here left one stone vpon another, that shall not be cast downe.

And as he sat vpon the mount Olmete, his disciples came vnto hym secretly, sayenge. Tell vs when these thinges shall be, and what signe shall be of thy comynge and of the ende of the world? And Jesus answered and sayde vnto them: Beware no man deceyue you. For many shall come in my name, sayenge: I am Christ: and shall deceyue many. Ye shall heare of warres, and tumours of warres: but se that ye be not troubled. For al must come to passe, but the ende is not yet. For nation shall ryle agaynst nation, and realme agaynst realme: there shall be pestilence, honger and earthquakes in all places. All these are the begynnynges of sorowes.

Then shall they put you to trouble, & shall kill you: and ye shall be hated of all nations, for my names sake. And then shall many be offended, and shall betraye one another, and shall hate one the other. And many false prophetes shall aryse, and deceyue many. And because of the aboundance of wickednes, the charite of many shall ware colde. But he that endureth to the ende, shall be safe. And this glad tydinges of the kyngdome shall be preached in all the world, for a wytnes vnto all nations: and then shall the ende come.

When therfore ye shall see the abhominacion of desolation, spoken of by Daniel the prophete, standynge in the holy place: let hym that readeth it, vnderstande it. Then let them which be in Iurep, flee into the mountaynes. And hym which is on the house toppe, not come downe to set any thing out of his house: neither let hym which is in the feld, retorne backe to fetch his clothes. Who be in those dayes to women with chyld, and to them that geue sucke. But praye that your flight be not in the wynter, neyther on the Saboth daye.

daye. For then shall be great tribulation, such as was not from the begynnyng of the world to this tyme, nor shall be. And excepte those dayes shoulde be shortned, there shoulde no fleshe be saved: but for the chosens sake, those dayes shall be shortned.

Then yf any man shall saye vnto you: lo, here is Christ, or there is Christ: beleue it not. For there shall aryse false Christs, and false prophetes, and shall to great myracles and wonders. In so moche that yf it were possible euen the chosens persons shoulde be decceyued.

Take heede, I haue tolde you before. Wherfore yf they shall saye vnto you: Beholde he is in the wilderness, go not forth: beholde in the secret places, beleue not. For as the lightynge cometh out of the east, and shyneth in to the west: so shall the comynge of the sonne of man be. For whersoever a dead karke is euen thither will the eagles resorte. Forthwith after the tribulations of those dayes shall the sonne be darkened: & the mone shall not geue her light, and the starres shall fall from heauen, and the powers of heauen shall moue. And then shall appeare the sygne of the sonne of man in heauen. And then shall all the kynredes of the earth mourne, and they shall see the sonne of man come in the cloudes of heauen, with power and great gloire. And he shall sende his angels with the greates voyce of a trompette, and they shall gather together his chosens, from the iij. wyndes, and from the one ende of the world to the other.

Herne a parable of the figge tree: When his boughes are yet tender, and his leaues spronge, ye knowe that somer is nigh. So likewise, when ye se all these thynges, be ye sure that it is nere, euen at the doores. Verily I say vnto you, that this age shall not passe tyll all these be fulfilled. Heauen and earth shall passe, but my wordes shall not passe. But of that daye and houre knoweth no man no not the angels of heauen, but my father onely.

As the tyme of Noe was, so shall the comynge of the sonne of man be. For as they were in the dayes before the floude: eatynge and drynkyng, marrynge and gyuen in marriage, euen vnto the daye that Noe entred into the shyppe, and knewe of nothyng, tyll the floude came, and toke them all awaye, so shall also the comynge of the sonne of man be.

Then two shall be in the feld, the one is receyued, and the other refused. Two women greyned at the myl, the one is receyued, and the other refused. Make therfore, because ye knowe not what houre your master wil come of this be sure, that yf he household knowe what houre the thers wolde come: he wolde surely wathe, and not suffer his house to be broken vp. Therfore be ye also redy, for in the houre ye thinke not: the sonne of man cometh. Who is the faithfull seruant and wyse, who his master hath made ruler over his household to geue them meate in season: happy is that seruant whom his master (when he cometh) shall fynde so doynge. Verily I tell you, he shall make him ruler over all his goodes.

What yf the cupill seruante shall sleepe in his berde, my master sayeth, and begyn to smyte his selowes, yea to eat and to drynke with his dronken: the master of that seruante shall come in a daye when he lokech not for hym, & in an houre that he is not ware of, and shall beate him, and geue vnto his part with hypocrites. There shall be weppynge and gnawynge of teeth.

The ten virgins. The talentes deliuered to the seruantes: and of the generall iudgement.

C API. XXV.

Then the kyngdome of heauen shall be likened vnto ten virgins, which toke their lampes, & went to mete the bydegrome: fyue of them were soflyse, and fyue were wyse. The soflyse toke their lampes, but toke none oyle with them. But the wyse toke oyle with them in their vessels together with their lampes. Whyle the bydegrome tarped, all slombered and slepte, at mydnyght, a crye was made: beholde, the bydegrome cometh, go mete hym. Then all these virgins arose, and prepared their lampes. And the soflyse sayde to the wyse: Geue vs of your oyle for our lampes be out. But the wyse answered, sayenge: Not so, lest there be not ynough for vs and you: but go rather to them that sel and bye for your selues. And whyle they went to bye, the bydegrome came: and they that were redy, went in with hym to the wedding and the gate was shut vp. Afterwardes came also the other virgins, sayenge: Lord, Lord, open to vs. But he answered, and sayde. Verily I tell you: I knowe you not. Watch therfore: for ye knowe neyther the daye, nor yet the houre, when the sonne of man shall come.

For lyke as a certayne man redy to take his iourney to a straunge country, called his seruantes, and deliuered to them his goodes. And vnto one he gaut. v. talentes, to an other. ij. and to an other one: to eury man after his habylite, and forthwith departed.

Then he that hadde receyued the fyue talentes, wente and bestowed them, and made o-ther fyue talentes. Likewise he that receyued two, gayned other two. But he that receyued the one talent, went and dygged a pye in the earth, and hyd his masters money. After a longe season, the Lord of those seruantes came and reckened with them. Then came he that receyued fyue talentes, and brought o-ther fyue talentes, sayenge: Master, thou deliueredst vnto me fyue talentes: beholde, I haue gayned with them fyue talentes moore.

His master sayde vnto hym: Oh good seruant and faithfull. Thou hast bene faithfull in lytell, I will make the ruler over moche: entree into thy masters ioye. Also he that receyued two talentes, came and sayde: Master thou deliueredst vnto me two talentes: beholde, I haue wonne two other talentes with them. And his master sayde vnto hym: Oh good seruant and faithfull. Thou hast bene faithfull in lytell, I will make the ruler over moche entree into thy masters ioye.

Then he whiche hadde receyved the one talente, came and sayde: My lord, I considered that thou arte an hardy man, reppynge where thou sowdest not, and gathering where thou drawest not, and was therfore assayde, and wente and hyd the talent in the earthe: Beholde, thou haste thyne owne. His master answered and sayde unto hym: thou evyll servaunte, and slowthfull, thou knewest that I receyve where I sowed not, and gather where I drawed not: thou oughtest therfore to have put my money to the exchaungers, and then at my coming, I woulde have receyved myne owne, with gaynes. Take therfore the talent frome hym, and geve it unto hym which hath ten talentes. For unto every one that hath it, shalbe given, and he shall have abundaunce, and frome hym that hath not, shall be taken awaye, even that he hath. And caste that unprofitable servaunte, into viter berkenesse: There shall be weppynge, and gnawynge of teeth.

When the sonne of man cometh in his gloire, and all the holy angels with hym, the shall he set upon the seate of his gloire, and before hym shalbe gathered all nacjons. And he shall parte them one frome another, as a shepheard doth the shepe frome the gootes. And he shall set the shepe on his ryghte hande, and the gootes on the left. Then shall the kyng saye to them on his ryghte hande: Come ye blessed chyldren of my father, inheret the kyngdome prepared for you, frome the begynnyng of the worlde. For I hongred, and ye gaue me meate. I thirsted, and ye gaue me drynke. I was a straunger, and ye lodged me. I was naked, and ye clothed me. I was sicke and ye vspiced me. I was in pylson, and ye came unto me. Then shall the ryghteous answer hym, sayenge: Lord, when sawe we the an hongred, and fed the? or a thurst, and gaue the drynke? When sawe we the a straunger, and lodged the? Or naked, and clothed the? Or when sawe we the sicke, or in pylson, and came unto the? And the kyng shall answer and saye unto them: Certes I saye unto you: in as moche as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it to me.

Then shall the kyng saye unto them on his left hande: departe frome me ye curled, into everlastynge fyre: whiche is prepared for the devyll and his aunghels. For I hongred, and ye gaue me no meate. I thirsted, and ye gaue me no drynke. I was a straunger, and ye lodged me not. I was naked, and ye clothed me not. I was sicke, and in pylson, and ye vspiced me not.

Then shall they also answer him, sayenge: Lord, when sawe we the an hongred, or a thurst, or a straunger, or naked, or sicke, or in pylson, and dyd not myghter unto the? Then shall he answer them, and saye: Certes I saye unto you, in as moche as ye dyd it not to one of the least of these, ye dyd it not to me. And these shall go into everlastynge payne: & the ryghteous into lyfe everlastynge.

CAP. XXVI.

And it came to passe, when Jesus hadde ended all thesayenges, he sayde unto his disciples: Ye knowe that after two dayes shall be Easter, and the sonne of man shall be delivred to be naped to the crosse. Then assembled the chief prestes and the scribes, and the elders of the people to the palace of the hyghe prest, called Cayphas, & toke counsell, howe they myghte take Jesus by gyle, and kyll hym. But they sayde, not on the feastfull daye, leaſt any arouse arise in the people.

When Jesus was in Bethanye, in the house of Simon the leper, there came unto hym a woman, whiche had an alabaſter boxe of precyous oynement, and powred it on his heode, as he sat at the boure. When his disciples sawe that, they dysdained, sayenge: What neede this waste? This oynement myghte have bene sold for much money, & geve to the poore. When Jesus understood that, he sayde unto them: Why trouble ye the woman? She hath wrought a good worke upon me. For ye have poore folke alwayes with you, but me have ye not alwayes. For where as this woman hath cast this oynement on my body, she dyd it to burye me with. Certes I saye unto you, where so ever this Gospell shalbe preached throughout the hole worlde, there shall also this that she hath done be told for a remembrance of her.

Then one of the twelve, called Judas Iscariot, went unto the chief prestes, & sayde: What will ye geve me, & I will delivere hym unto you? And they appointed unto him thirty peces of silver. And frome that tyme he sought oportunitie to betraye hym.

The first daye of swete byerd, the disciples came to Jesus, sayenge unto him: where wilt thou we prepare for to eat the passover? And he sayde: go into the cytie, to such a man and saye to him, the master sayeth my tyme is at hande, I will kepe myne Easter at thy house with my disciples. And the disciples did as Jesus had appoynted them, and made ready the Easterlambe.

When the even was come he late to hym with the xij. And as they dyd eate, he sayde: Certes I saye unto you, one of you shall betraye me. And they were dreyf sorrowfull, and began every one of them to saye unto hym: is it I master? He answered and sayde: he that hath drypped his hande with me in the dysche, the same shall betraye me. The sonne of man goeth as it is wyrtten of hym: but wo be to that man, by whome the sonne of man is betrayed. It hadde bene good for that man, if he hadde never bene borne. Then Judas whiche betrayed hym, answered and sayde: is it I master? He sayde unto hym: Thou haste sayde. Whyle they dyd eate, Jesus toke bread and when he hadde given thankes, brake it, and gaue it to the disciples, and sayde: Take eate, this is my body. And he toke the cup, & thanked, and gaue it them, sayenge: drynke of it every one. For this is my bloude of the newe covenant whiche shalbe for many, to the forgiveness of synnes. I saye unto you: I will not drynke henceforth of this frute of the vyne till that daye, when I shall drynke it newe with you in my fathers kyngdome.

And when they hadde given prayes, they went oute into mounte Olivete. Then sayde Jesus unto them: all ye shall be offended by me this nyght. For it is wyrtten: I will smyte the shepheard, and the shepe of the flocke shal be scattered abrode. But after I am tyen agayne, I will go before you into Galilee. Peter answered, and sayde unto hym: though he all men shoulde be offended by the, yet wolde I never be offended. Jesus sayde unto hym: Certes I saye unto the, that this same nyght before the cocke crow, thou shalt deny me thrise. Peter sayde unto hym: If I shoulde dye with the, yet wolde I not deny the. Akynghe also sayde all the disciples.

Then wente Jesus with them into a place called Gethsemane, and sayde unto his disciples, yet ye here, whyle I go and praye ponder. And he toke with him peter and the two sonnes of Zebede, and began to waxe sorrowfull, and to be in an agonye. Then sayde Jesus unto them: my soule is heavy even unto the deeth. Tary ye here, and watche with me. And he went a lytell forth, and fell flat on his face, and prayed, sayenge: My father, if it be possible, let this cuppe passe frome me: nevertheless, not as I will, but as thou wilt. And he came unto the disciples, and founde them a slepe, and sayde to Peter: What, myghte ye not watche with me one houre? Watche: and praye that ye fall not into temptation. The spyle is prompte, but the fleshe is weak.

He wente forth the ones agayne, and prayed, sayenge: My father, if this cup can not passe awaye frome me, but that I drynke of it, thy will be done. And he came, and founde them a slepe agayne. For their eyes were heavy. And he left them and went agayne, and prayed & sweate synde, sayenge the same wordes. Then came he to his disciples, and sayde unto them: Slepe henceforth, and take your rest. Behold the houre is at hande, and the sonne of man is betrayed into the handes of synners. Wyle, let us be goyng: beholde, he is at hande that betrayeth me. Whyle he yet spake: lo, Judas one of the xij. came, and with him a great multitude with swordes and staves, sent from the chiefe prestes, and elders of the people.

And he that betrayed hym, hadde given a token, sayenge: Whosoever I kysse, that same is he, lase handes on hym. And forthwith he came to Jesus, and sayde, havyll after: and kysed hym. And Jesus sayde unto hym: send wherfore arte thou come. Then came they, & lase handes on Jesus, and toke hym.

And beholde, one of them which were with Jesus, stretched out his hande, and dyde his sworde, and stroke a servaunte of the hyghe prest, and smote of his eare. Then sayde Jesus unto hym: put up thy swerde into his place. For all that take the swerde, shal perishe with the swerde. Either chynketh thou that I can not nowe praye to my father, and he shall geve me mo then xij. Legions of angels? But howe then shoulde the scriptures be fulfilled: that so it oughte to be. The same tyme sayde Jesus to the multitude: ye be come out as unto a theif, with swordes and staves for to take me. I sate dayly teachynge in the temple amonge you, and ye toke me not. All this was done that the scriptures of the prophetes myght be fulfilled. Then all the disciples forsoke hym and fled. And they toke Jesus and led hym to Cayphas the chief Prest, where the scribes and elders were assembled. Peter folowed hym a farr off, unto the hyghe prestes palace: and went in, and late with the servauntes to se the ende.

The chiefe prestes and elders, and all the concile, soughte false witness agayn Jesus, to put him to deeth, but founde none: in so moche that when many false wytnesses came, yet founde they none. At last came two false wytnesses, and sayde: This man sayde: I can beswore the temple of God, and buyde it agayne in thye dayes. And the chiefe Preste arose, and sayde to hym: answerst thou nothinge? How is it that these beare witness agaynste the? But Jesus helde his tongue. And the chiefe Preste answered, and sayde to hym: I conjure thee in the name of the living God, that thou tell us, whether thou be Christ the sonne of God. Jesus sayde to hym: thou hast sayde. Nevertheless I say unto you: hereafter shal ye se the sonne of man sittynge on the ryghte hande of power, and come in the cloudes of the heaven.

When the chiefe Preste rent his clothes, sayenge: he hath blasphemed: what neede we any mo wytnesses? Beholde, now ye have heard his blasphemie: what thinke ye? They answered and sayde: he is guilty of death. Then spat they in his face and buffeted hym with fyſtes. And other more hym with the palme of their handes on the face, sayenge: Prophecie unto us thou Christ, who is he that smote the?

Peter late without in the palace. And a dāsell came to him, sayenge: Thou also wert with Jesus of Galilee: but he denyed before them all sayenge: I wote not what thou sayst. When he was gone oute into the porche, another wenche latre hym, and sayde unto them that were there. This ielow was also with Jesus of Nazareth. And agayne he denyed with an othe, I knowe not the man. And after a whyle came unto hym they that stood by and sayde unto Peter: Surely thou arte one of them, for thy speache betrayeth the. Then began he to curle and to sweare, that he knew not the man. And by and by the cocke crew. And peter remembred the wordes of Jesus, whiche sayde unto him: before the cocke crow, thou shalt deny me thrise: and went out at the wynd and wept bitterly.

Christ is deliuered vnto Pilate. Judas hangeth himselfe. Christ is crucified among theues. He dyeth and is buried. watchmen kepe the graue.

CAP. XXVII.

Mar. xv. a. Luke. xxiii. a. When the morninge was come, * all the chiefe prestes, and the elders of the people helde a counsaile agaynst Iesus, to put hym to deathe, and brought hym bounde, and deliuered hym vnto Pontius Pilate the deputie.

Then when Judas whiche betrayed hym, sawe that he was condemned, he repented hym selfe, and broughe agayne the xxx. plates of syluer to the chiefe prestes and elders, sayenge: I haue sinned betrapenge the synners bloude. And they sayde: what is that to vs? Se thou to that. And he caste downe the syluer plates, in the temple, and departed, and went and hounge hym selfe.

And the chiefe prestes toke the syluer plates and sayde: It is not lawfull to put them into the treasure, because it is the pryce of bloude. And they toke counsell, and boughte with them a potters felde, to bury straungers in.

Jer. xxxii. b. Zach. xiii. c.

Wherfore that felde is called a felde of blood, tyll this daye. When was fulfilled, that was spoken by Ieremye the prophete, sayenge.

And they toke thirtie syluer plates, the pryce of hym that was valued, whiche they bought of the chyldren of Israel, and they gaue the same for the potters felde, as the Worde appoynted me. * Iesus stode before the deputie: and the deputie asked hym, sayenge: Arte thou the kynge of the Iues: Iesus sayde vnto hym.

Thou sayest. And when he was accused of the chiefe prestes, and elders, he answered nothinge. Then sayde Pilate vnto hym: Dearest thou not, howe many thynges they laye agaynst the? And he answered hym to neuer a worde: in so moche that the deputie merueled greatly.

At that tyme, the deputie was wont to deliuer vnto the people a prysoner, whom they wolde desyre. He had then a notable prysoner called Barabas. And when they were gathered together, Pilate sayde vnto them: * Whether wyll ye that I gyue loofe vnto you Barabas or Iesus whiche is called Christus? For he knewe well, that for enyng they hadde deliuered hym.

When he was set to wone to geue iugement his wyfe sent to hym, sayenge: Haue thou nothinge to do with that iuste man. For I haue suffered many thynges this daye in a dreame, aboute hym. But the chiefe prestes and elders hadde perswaded the people, that they shoulde aske Barabas, and woulde deliuer Iesus. Then the deputie answered and sayde vnto them: whether of the twayne wyll ye that I let loofe vnto you? And they sayde, Barabas. Pilate sayde vnto them: what shall I do then with Iesus, whiche is called Christus? They all sayde to hym: let hym be crucified. Then sayde the deputie: What euill hath he done? And they cried the more, sayenge: Let hym be crucified. When Pilate sawe that he preuayled nothinge, but that more busynesse was made, he toke water, and washed his handes before the people, sayenge: I am innocent of the bloude of this iuste person, as ye saye you. Then answered all the people, and sayde: his bloude be on vs, and on our chyldren. Then let he Barabas loofe vnto them and scourged Iesus, and deliuered hym to be crucified.

Then the souldiours of the deputie toke Iesus vnto the comune hall; and gartered vnto hym all the compagne. And they streypt hym and put on hym a purpyle robe, and plated a crowne of thornes and put vpon his hed and a reede in his ryghte hande: and bowed their knees before hym, and mocked hym, sayenge: Kynge of Iewes: and spetted vpon hym, and toke the reede, and smote hym on the heed.

And when they hadde mocked hym, they toke the robe of hym agayne, & put his owne rayment on hym, and led hym awaye to crucifye hym. And as they came out, they founde a man of Cyren, named Simon: hym they compelled to beare his crosse. And when they came vnto the place, called Golgotha (that is to saye, a place of dead mens skulles) they gaue hym vynes to drynke, mingled with gall. And when he had tasted thereof, he wold not drynke.

When they hadde crucified hym, they parted his garmentes, and dyd cast lottes: to fulfill that was spoken by the prophete. * They deuyned my garmentes amonge them: and vpon my vesture dyd caste lottes. And they sat and watched hym there, and they set vpon ouer his hed the cause of his deathe myten. This is Iesus the kynge of the Iewes. * And there were two theues crucified with hym, one on the ryghte hande, and another on the lyfte.

They that passed by, crucified hym, wagginge their heddes, and sayenge: Thou that destroyest the temple of God, and buyddest it in thre dayes, saue thy selfe. If thou be the sonne of God, come downe from the crosse. Lykewys also the hygh prestes mockenge hym, with the scribes and elders, sayde: He saued other, hym selfe he can not saue. If he be the kynge of Israel: let hym nowe come downe from the crosse, and we wyll beleue hym. He trusted in God, let hym deliuer hym nowe, if he wyll haue hym: for he sayde, I am the sonne of God. That same also the theues, whiche were crucified with hym, said in his teeth.

Frome the syxtie houre was there darkness ouer all the lande vnto the nyght houre. And aboute the nyght houre, Iesus cryed with a loude voyce, sayenge: Eli Eli lama sabachani. That is to saye: * my God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me? Some of them that stode there, when they herde that, sayde, this man calleth for Helij. And forthwith one of them ran and toke a sponge, and fylled it full of vynes, and put it on a reede, and gaue him to drynke. Other sayde, let be: let vs se whether Helij wyll come, and deliuer hym. Iesus cryed agayne with a loude voyce and yelbode vnto the ghooste.

And beholde the * bayle of the temple dyd rattle in twayne, frome the hyghesse to the lowesse, and the earthe dyd quake, and the stonnes dyd rent, and graues dyd open: and the bodies of many sayntes whiche slepte, arose, and came out of the graues after his resurrection, and came into the holy cite, and appeared vnto many. * When the Centurion, and they that were with hym watchinge Iesus, sawe the earthe quake, and those thynges whiche happened, they feared greatly, sayenge. Truly this was the sonne of God.

* And many women were there, beholding hym a farr off, whiche folowed Iesus frome Galile, myrrouringe vnto hym. Amonge whiche was Mary Magdalen, and Mary the mother of Iames and Ioses, and the mother of Zebedes chyldren.

* When the euen was come, there came a myghty man of Atamathia named Ioseph, whiche man also was Iesus discipule. He went to Pilate and craved the bodye of Iesus. Then Pilate commaunded the bodye to be deliuered. And Ioseph toke the bodye, and wrapped it in a clene linnen clothe, and put it in his newe tombe, whiche he hadde brouen oute, euen in the rocke, and rolled a greete stonne to the wyche of the sepulchre, and departed. And there was

* Mary Magdalene, & the other Mary, sittinge ouer agaynst the sepulchre. The nexte daye, that folowed the daye of preparinge the Sabbath, the hygh prestes and pharises gathered them selues to Pilate, and sayde: Sir, we remember, that this deceyter sayde whyle he was yet aliue. After thre dayes, I shall arise agayne. Commaunde therfore that the sepulchre be made sure tyll the thirde daye, lest his discipules come and steale hym awaye, and saye vnto the people, he is risen frome deathe and the laste creature be worse then the firste. Pilate sayde vnto them. Ye haue a watche: so, and make it as sure as ye can. And they went and made the sepulchre sure with watchmen, and sealed the stonne. R

The resurrection of Christe. The hye prestes put the souldiers money to saye that Christe was stolen out of his graue. Christe appeareth to his disciples / and sendeth them to preache and to baptize.

CAP. XXVIII.

* At the renewinge of the Sabbath dayes, which cometh vnto one of the Sabbothes Mary Magdalene and the other Mary, came to se the sepulchre.

And beholde there was a great earth quake. For an aungell of the Lorde descended frome heauen, and came and rolled backe the stonne frome the wyche, and satte vpon it. His countenance was lyke lightynge, and his raiment whyte as snowe. And so for feare of hym the keepers were asstonied, and were as deed.

* The aungell answered and sayde to the women, feare ye not. I knowe that ye see Iesus whiche was crucified: he is not here: he is risen as he sayde. Come, and se the place where the Lorde was put: and god quickely, and telle his disciples, that he is risen frome deathe. And beholde, he goeth before you into Galile, there ye shall se hym. No I haue tolde you. R

* And they departed quickly frome the sepulchre with feare and greete ioye: and ran to tell his disciples. And as they went to tell his disciples: beholde Iesus met them, sayenge: All halle. And they came and helde hym by the fete, and worshipped hym. Then sayde Iesus vnto them: We not afraid. Go and tell my brethren, that they go into Galile, and there shall they se me. When they were gone: Beholde, some of the keepers came into the cite, and shewed vnto the hygh prestes, all the thynges that were happened. And they gathered them together with the elders, and toke counsell, and gaue large money vnto the souldiours, sayenge: Say that his disciples came by nyght, and stole hym awaye whyle ye slept. And yf this come to the rulers eares, we will appeale hym, and saue you harmelesse. And they toke the money, and dyd as they were taughte. And this sayenge is nolyd amonge the Iewes vnto this daye. R

* Then the xx. disciples went awaye in to Galile, into a mountayne, where Iesus had appoynted them. And when they sawe hym, they * worshipped hym. But some of them doubted. And Iesus came and spake vnto the sayenge. All power is gyuen vnto me in heauen, and in earth. they thought he had bene desyre him selfe. *
And the Scribes which came from Ierusalem, sayde: He hath Beelzebub, and by the power of the chiefe deuyll, casteth oute deuylls. And he called them vnto hym, and sayde vnto the in similitudes.

How can Satan hye out Satan? For yf a realme be deuicid against it selfe, that real-

So yf Satan clyeth against hym selfe and betheren. For who so wille with the will of God, he is my brother, my sister and mother.

The parable of the sower. Ch. xiii. folieth the temper of the see, which obeyed hym.

CAP. III.

And he began agayne to teach by the see syde. And there gathered together vnto hym moche people, so greatly that he entered into a shyp, and sate in the see, and all the people was by the see syde on the shore.
And he taughte them many thynges in parables, and sayde vnto them in his doctrine.
Wherke: behold, there went out a sower to sowe. And it fortuned as he sowed, some fell by the waye syde, and the sowles of the ayre came and deuoured it vp. Some fell on the ston-ny grounde, where it had not moche erth: and by and by sprange vp, because it had not depth of earthe: but as sone as the sonne was vp, it canght brent, and because it had not rotyng, wyddzed awaye.

And some fell amonge the thornes, and the thornes grew by, and choked it, so that it gaue no frute. And some fell vpon good ground and byd yelde frute that spronge and grew, & brought forth: some threty folde, some fyfte folde, and some an hundred folde. And he sayd vnto them: he that hath eares to heare, let him heare. *

And when he was alone, they that were a-boute hym with the twelue, asked him of the parable. And he sayde vnto them. To you is it given to knowe the mystrye of the kyngdome of God. But vnto them that are without, shall all thynges be done in parables: that when they se, they shall se, and not discerne:
and when they heare, they shall heare, and not vnderstande: leste at any tyme they shoulde tourne, and their synnes shoulde be forgyuen them. And he sayde vnto them: Percyue ye not this parable? and how ye shall vnderstand all other parables.

The sower soweth the worde. And they that are by the wayes syde, where the worde is so-wen, are they to whome allone as they haue herde it, Satan cometh immediately, and taketh awaye the worde that was sown in theyr hertes. And yke wyse they that are so-wen on the stony grounde, are they: whiche when they haue herde the worde, forthwith receyue it with gladnes, yet haue no rotes in their selues, and so endure but a tyme: and anon as trouble and persecution ariseth to the wordes sake, they fall immediatly. And they that are sown amonge the thornes, are such as heare the worde, and the care of this worlde and the dysceyfulnes of riches, and the lures of other thynges entre in & chooke the worde, and it is made vnfertill. And those that were sown in good grounde, are they that heare the worde and receyue it, and bynges forth frute, some threty folde, some fyfte folde, some an hundred folde.

And he sayd vnto them: is the candle lych-ted to be put vnder a bushell, or vnder the table, and not rather to be put on a candlestyk?
For there is nothyng so pseyue that shall not be opened, neyther so secrete, but that it shall come abrode. Yf any man haue eares to heare, let hym heare. And he sayde vnto them: take hede what ye heare. With what measure ye mete, with the same shall it be measured vnto you again. And vnto you that heare, shall more be gyuen. For * vnto hym that hath, shall it be gyuen: and from him that hath not, shall be taken awaye, euen that he hath.

And he sayde: so is the kyngdome of God, as yf a man shoulde sowe seed in the grounde, and shoulde sleepe, and ryle vp nyght and daye:
and the seede shoulde sprynge and growe vp, he not ware. For the earthe byngeth forth frute of her selfe: first the blade, then the eares, after that full coyne in the eares. And as sone as the frute is brought forth, anone he putteth to the spikell, because the heruest is come.

And he sayde: Where vnto shall we liken the kyngdome of God? or with what parable shall we compare it? It is lyke a grain of mustardseed, whiche when it is sown in the erth, is the lest of all seedes that be in y^e erth:
but

but after that it is sown, it groweth vp, and is greater of all herbes: and beareth greate branches, so that the sowles of the ayre may dwel vnder the shadowe of it.

And with manye such similitudes he preached the word vnto them, after as they might heare it. And without similitude spake he nothyng vnto them. But when they were a part deyrouned all thynges to his disciples. And the same daye when euen was come, he sayde vnto them: Let vs passe ouer vnto the other syde. And they lette the people, and toke hym euen as he was in the shyppe. And there were also with hym other shyppes.

And there arose a great storme of wynde, & dashed the waues into the shyppe, so that it was full. And he was in the sterne a slepe on a pillowe. And they awoke him, and sayde to him: Master, carest thou not that we perishe?
And he rose vp, and rebuked the wynde, and sayd vnto the see: peace be still. And the wynde alayed, and there folowed a great calme. And he sayde vnto them: Why are ye so feacfull?
Howe is it that ye haue no fapthe? And they feared exceedingly, and sayde one to another what telowe is this? For both wynde and see obeye hym.

He deliuereth the possesed frome the vnclene spete: the woman from the bloudy flue: and ray-seth the captaynes daughter.

CAP. V.

And they came ouer to the other syde of the see, into the countrey of the Ga-dalenees. And when he was come out of the shyppe, there met hym out of the graues a man possesed of an vnclene spete, whiche had his abydinge amonge the graues. And no man coulde hynde him: no nor with cheynes, because that when he was often bounde with fytters and cheynes, he plucked the cyrnes a lunde, and brake the fytters in peces. Neither coude any man tame him. And alwayes both nyght and daye he cryed in the mountaynes, and in the graues, and bet hym selfe with stones. When he had spyed Iesus a farr off, he ran and worshypped hym, and cryed with a loude voyce, and sayde: What haue I to do with the Iesus the sonne of the moste hyghell God? I requyre the in the name of God that thou toiment me not. For he had sayde vnto him: Come out of the man thou soule spete.
And he asked hym: What is thy name? and he answered sayenge: My name is Legion, for we are many. And he prayed him instantly, that he woulde not sende them awaye, oute of the countrey.

And there was nygh vnto the mountaynes a great herde of swyne feedinge, and al the de-uils besought him sayenge: sende vs into the herde of swyne, that we maye enter into the linge in to the see. Ther were aboute. ii. M. swyne, and they were drowned in the see. And the swyne herdes fled, and tolde it in the cite and in the countrey. And they came oute for to se what had happened: and came to Iesus and sawe hym that was vexed with the fende and had the Legion, syt, both clothed, and in his right mynde, and were afrayed. And they that sawe it tolde them, howe it had happened to hym that was possesed with the deuyl to thyne house, and to thy frends, and tellye them what greate thynges the Lorde hath on the. And he departed, and began to publyshe in the ten cyties, what greate thynges Iesus hadde done vnto hym, and all men did merueille.

And there was a certayne woman, whiche was dycaled of an flue of bloud. xi. yeres, and had suffred many thynges of many physicians, and had spent all she had, and felt none amendement at al, but waxed worse & worse.
When she had herde of Iesus: she came into the preace behynde hym, and touched his garment. For she thought: yf I may but touche his clothes I shall be hyle. And forthwith her fountayne of bloud was dryed vp, & she felle in her body, that she was healed of the plage.

And Iesus immediatly felt in hym selfe, the vertue that went out of hym, and turned hym rounde aboute in the preace, and sayde: who touched my clothes? And his disciples sayde vnto hym: seyst thou the people thynt the, and yet askest, who byd touche me? And he looked rounde aboute, to se her that hadde done that thyng. The woman feared and trembled (for she knewe what was done in her,) & she came and fell downe before hym, and tolde him the thy faith hath made the hyle: go in peace, and be hyle of thy plage.

is not dead, but sleepeth. And they laugh him to scorn. Then he put them all out, and took the father and the mother of the mayde, and the that were with him, and entered in where the mayde laye, & took the mayde by the hande and sayde vnto her: Tabitha, cumi: which is by interpretation: mayde, I saye vnto the, arise. And straight the mayde arose, and went on her feet. For she was of the age of twelue yeres. And they were astonied at it out of measure. And he charged them straightly that no man shoulde knowe of it, and commaunded to geue her meate.

And he departed thence, and came in to his owne countrey, and his disciples folowed hym. And when the Sabbath daye was come, he began to teache in the synagoge. And many that heede hym were astonied, and sayde: From whence hath he all these thynges? and what wysdome is this that is geuen vnto hym: and such bectues that are wrought by his handes? Is not this that carpenter, Maryes sonne & the brother of James and Ioses and of Iuda and Simon? and are not his sisters here with vs? And they were offended by hym. And Iesus sayde vnto them: A prophete is not despyed, but in his owne countrey, and amonge his owne kynne, and amonge them that are of the same howsholde. And he couide there shewe no myracles, but layde his handes vpon a fewe sicke folkes, and healed them, and he merueyled at their vnderstandyng.

¶ And he went about by the townes that lay on euery syde, teaching. And he called the. xii. and began to sende them, two and two, and gaue them power ouer vncleane spytes. And commaunded them, that they shoulde take nothinge vnto their journey, save a rodde only, neptier scrippe, neptier dyd, neptier money in their pourses, but shoulde be shod with sandals. And that they shoulde not put on two cootes. And he sayde vnto them: Where so euer ye entre into an house, there abyde till ye departe thence. And whosoever shall not receyue you, nor heare you, when ye departe thence, shake of the duste that is vnder youre fete, for a wytnesse vnto them. I saye verely vnto you, it shalbe easer for Zorome & Gomorre at the daye of iudgement, then for that cytie. And they went oute and preached, that they shoulde repent: and they cast out many dyables. And they annoynted many that were sicke, with oyle, and healed them.

¶ And kynge Herode herde of hym (for his name was spreade abrode) & sayde: Iohn Baptistis is risen agayne frome deathe, and therefore myracles are wrought by hym. Other sayd it is Eliphas: and some sayd: it is a prophet, or as one of the prophetes. But when Herode herde of him, he sayd: it is Iohn whiche I beheaded, he is risen frome deathe agayne.

¶ For Herode him selfe had sent forth, & had taken Iohn, and bounde him, and cast him into pylson for Herodias sake, whiche was his brother Philippos wyfe. For he had maryed her. For Iohn sayde vnto Herode: It is not lawfull for the to haue the wyf of thy brother. Herodias sayde wyfe for hym, and wold haue kylled him, but she couide not. For Herode feared Iohn, knowinge that he was a wise man and an holy: and gaue hym eueryng: & hearyng hym, he dyd many thynges, & herde hym gladly.

¶ But when a conuenient daye was come: Herode on his birth daye made a supper to his lordes, captaynes, and heddes of Galile. And the daughter of Herodias came in and danced, and pleased Herode, and they that were at bouche also. Then the kynge sayde vnto the mayde: aske of me what thou wilt, and I will geue it the. And he swore vnto her, what so euer thou shalt aske of me, I will geue it the, euen vnto the one halfe of my kyngdome. And she went forth and sayde to her mother: what shall I aske? And the sayde: Iohn Baptistis hed. And she came in straight waye into the chynge, and asked, sayenge: I will: thou geue me forthwith in a charger the hed of Iohn Baptistis. And the kynge was sorowful: howebeit he cause of his othe, and them which he had at supper also, he wold not put her besyde her purpose. And immediately the kynge sent the hangman, and commaunded his hed to be broughte in. And he went and beheaded hym in the pylson, and broughte his hed in a charger, and gaue it to the mayde, & the mayde gaue it to her mother. And when his disciples herde of it, they came and took vp his body, & put it in a graue.

¶ And the Apostles gathered them selues together to Iesus, & tolde him all thynges, both what they had done, & what they had taught. And he sayde vnto them: Come apart into the wilderness, and rest a whyle. For there were many commers and goers, that they had no leasure so much as to eat. And he went by ship out of the waye into a deserte place. But the people spyed them when they departed: and many knewe him, and ran afoote thither out of all cities, and pressed them, & came together vnto hym. And Iesus went out & sawe moche people, & had compassion on thē, because they were lyke shepe which had no shepheard. And he began to teache them many thynges.

¶ And when the daye was now farre spent, his disciples came vnto hym, sayenge: This is a deserte place, and nowe the daye is farre passed, let them departe, that they may go into the countrey rounde aboute, and into the townes, and bye them bread: for they haue nothinge to eate. He answered, and sayde vnto them: geue ye them to eate. And they sayde vnto hym: Shall we go and bye. ii. c. pennyworth of bread, & geue them to eate? He sayde vnto them: how many lours haue ye, go and lorde. And when they had lorde, they sayde v. & two fishes. And he commaunded them to make them all sit downe by companies vnto the grene grasse. And they sat downe here a com-and there a combe, by hundrethes and by fifties. And he took the fyue lours and the two fishes, and loked vp to heuyn & blessed, and brake the lours, and gaue them to his disciples to put before them: and the two fishes he deuyded amonge them all, and they all dyd eate, and were fylled. And they took vp twelue baskets full of the fragmentes and of the fishes. And they that were aboute. v. thousand men.

¶ And straight way he caused his disciples to go in to the ship, and to go ouer the water betwixt vnto Bersaida, whyle he sent away the people. ¶ And as soon as he had sent them away, he departed in to a mountayne to pray. ¶ And when euen was come, the ship was in the myddes of the see, & he alone on the lande, and he sawe them troubled in rowyng, for the wynde was contrarie vnto them. And aboute the fourth watche of the nyght, he came vnto them walkinge vpon the see, and wold haue passed by them. When they sawe him walkinge vpon the see, they supposed it had ben a spyrte and cryed out: for they all sawe hym, & were affrayed. And anone he talked with them & sayd vnto them: be of good chere, it is I, be not affrayed. ¶ And he went vp vnto them in to the ship, and the wynde ceased, & they were soze amazed in them selues beyonde measure, and marueyled. For they remembered not of the lours, because they herdes were blinded.

¶ And they came out, & went in to the lande of Senarys, and arayed in to the haue. And as soon as they were come out of the shippe, anone they knewe hym, and ran forth througheout all the region rounde about, and began to cary aboute in beddes all that were sicke, to the place where they herde tell that he was. And whither so euer he entered in to townes, cyties, or villages, they layde theyr sickes in the streetes, and prayed hym they might touche, and it were but the edge of his garment. And as many as touched hym, were heale.

And the Pharisees came together vnto hym, and dyuers of the Scribes which came from Ierusalem. And when they sawe certayne of his disciples eate bread with common handes (that is to saye, with vnwashed handes) they complayned. For the Pharisees and all the Jewes, onlesse they wash theyr handes ofte, eate not, obseruyng the tradicions of the elders. And when they came to the market, excepte they wash, they eate not. And many other thynges there be which they haue taken vpon them to obserue, as the washing of cuppes and cruces, and of brasen vessels, and of tables.

¶ Then asked hym the Pharisees & Scribes why they walke not thyr disciples accordyng to the tradicions of the elders, but eate bread with vnwashed handes? He answered and sayd vnto them: wel prophesied Esaie of you hypocrites as it is writen: ¶ This people honoureth me with theyr lippes, but their heart is farre from me: In vayne they worshippe me, teachinge doctrynes the commaundmentes of men. For the commaundment of God sayde asyde, ye obserue the tradicions of men, as the washinge of cruces and of cuppes, and many other such like thynges ye do.

¶ And he said vnto them, well, ye cast asyde the commaundment of god to kepe your owne tradicions. ¶ For Moyses said: honoure thy father and thy mother, & who so euer curseth father or mother, let hym dye the deeth. But ye say: a mā that say to father or mother Lothan, which is, that thou despyest of me to helpe the with, is geuen to God. And so ye suffer him no more to do ought for his father or his mother, makinge the word of God of none effect, throughe your tradicions which ye haue ordeyned. And many such thynges do ye.

¶ And he called all the people vnto hym, & sayd vnto them: hearken vnto me euery one of you and vnderstande. ¶ There is nothing without a mā that can despyle him when it entereth in to him, but those thynges which pecte out of him are those which despyle the mā. ¶ If any mā haue eares to heare, let hym heare. And whē he came to the house apart fro the people, his disciples asked hym of the similitude. And he sayd vnto them: Are ye so without vnderstandyng? Do ye not yet perceyue, that what so euer thyng cometh out of a man, it is that which despyles him, because it entereth not in to his heart, but in to the belly, and goeth out in to the draughte vngygge all meates?

¶ And he sayd, that despyeth a man which cometh out of a man. For from within, euen out of the heart of mā pecte euill thoughtes, adouctyng, fornication, murder, thefte, couetyse, wychednes, decepte, vniennes, and wicked eye, blasphemye, pyppes, folyshnes: all these euill thynges come from within, and despyle man. ¶ And from thence he rose and went in to the borders of Tyre and Sydon, and entered in to an house, and wold that no man shoulde haue knowen. But he couide not be hyd. For a certayne woman whose daughter had a foule spyrte herd of hym, and came and fell at his fete. The woman was a Syche out of Syrophenicke, and she besought hym that he wold call out the deuyll out of her daughter. And Iesus sayd vnto her: let the chyldren first be fedde. For it is not mete to take the chyldrens bread, and to cast it vnto whelpes. She answered and sayde vnto hym: euen so master, & neuertheles, the whelpes also eate vnder the table of the chyldrens crommes. And he sayd vnto her: for this saying, go thy way, the deuyll is gone out of thy daughter. And when she was come home to her house, she founde the deuyll departed, and her daughter lyenge on the bed.

¶ And he departed agayne from the costes of Tyre & Sydon, and came vnto the see of Galilee, throughe the myddes of the costes of the. x. cyties. And they brought vnto hym one that was deafe and lambyd in his speche, & prayde hym

CAP. VIII.

In those dayes when ther was a very great company, and had notyng to eate, Iesus called his disciples vnto hym, and sayd vnto them: I haue pitye on this people, because they haue now ben with me thre dayes, and haue notyng to eate: and yf I wolde sende them awaye fastyng to theyr houses, they shold saye vnto the waye. For dyuers of them came from farr. And his disciples answered hym: where shold a man haue bred here in the wyldernes to satysfy these? And he asked them, how many loaves haue ye? They sayde seuen. And he commaunded the people to syt downe on the grounde. And he toke the seuen loaves, gaue thanks, brake, and gaue to his disciples, to set before them. And they dyd set them before the people. And they had a fewe smail fyshes. And he blessed them and commaunded them also to be set before them. And they ate and were full. And they toke vp of the broken meate that was left seuen baskets full. And they that ate were in number aboute foure thousande. And he sente them awaye.

And anone he entred in to a shyp with his disciples, and came in to the parrys of Dalmanutha. * And the Pharisees came forth and began to dispute with him. Ikyng of hym a sygne from heuen, and temptyng hym. And he byghed in his spyrte and sayd: why dothe this generation seke a sygne. Truly I tell you there shall no sygne be gauen to this generation. And he let them and went in to the shyp agayne, and departed ouer the water.

And they had forgotten to take bread with them, neyther had they in the shyp with them more then one lofe. And he charged them saying. * Take heed and beware of the leuen of the Pharisees, and of the leuen of Herode. And they reasoned amonge them selues, saying: we haue no bread. And whē Iesus knewe that, he said vnto them: why take ye thoughte because ye haue no bread? perceyue ye not yett neyther vnderstand? Haue ye your heres yett bynded. Haue ye eyes and se not? and haue ye eares and heare not? Do ye not remembre? when I brake v. loaves amonge v. thousande, how many baskets of fragmētes toke ye vp? They sayd vnto hym, twelue. When I brake seuen amonge foure thousande: how many baskets of fragmētes toke ye vp? They sayd seuen. And he sayd vnto them: how is it that ye vnderstande not?

And he came to Bethsaida, & they brought a blynde man vnto hym, and desyred hym to touche hym. And he caught the blynde by the hande, and led him out of the towne, and spat in his eyes, and put his handes vpon him, and asked hym whether he sawe ought. And he looked vp, and said: I se men, for I se them walke as they were trees. After that he put his handes agayne vpon his eyes, and made hym se. And he was reioyced to his syght, & lawe cury mā clerely. And he sent him home to his house saying: neyther go in to the towne, nor tell it to any in the towne.

And Iesus went out and his disciples in to the towne that longe to the cite called Cesarea Philippi. And by the waye he asked his disciples, saying: whom do men saye I am? And they answered: some saye thou art John Baptyst, some saye Ihesus, and some one of the prophetes. And he said vnto them: but whom saye ye I am? * Peter answered and said vnto hym, thou art euen Christ. And he charged them they shold tell no man of hym. And he began to teache them that the sonne of man must suffre many thynges, and shold be reproued of the elders and of the hygher prestes and Scribes, and be kylled, and after thre dayes aryse agayne. And he spake that saying openly. And Peter toke him asyde, and began to charye him. When he turned about, and looked on his disciples, and rebuked Peter saying. So shalt thou me Satyan, for thou sauncest not the thynges of God, but the thynges of men.

And he called the people vnto hym, with his disciples also, and sayd vnto them. Who so euer wyl folow me, let him deny hym selfe and take his crosse and folow me. For who so euer wyl saue his lyfe, shall lose it. But who so euer shall lose his lyfe for my sake and the gospels, shall saue it. What shall it proffite a man, yf he shold wyne all the world, and lose his owne soule? or els what shall a man gye to redeme his soule agayne? Who so euer therfore shall be ashamed of me, and of my wordes amonge this aduourous and synfull generation, of hym shall the sonne of man be ashamed, when he cometh in the glory of his father with the holy aungels. And he sayd vnto them: truly I say vnto you, there be some of them that stande here, which shall not taste of dede, till they haue seene the kyngdome of God come with power.

CAP. IX.

After syxe dayes Iesus toke Peter, James and John, and ledde them vp in to an hygh mountayne out of the way alone, and he was transfigured before them. And his rayment did shyne and was made very whyle, euen as snowe, so whyle as no ful-ler can make vpon the erth. And there appered them hely with Moyses: & they talked with Iesu. And Peter answered and sayde to Iesu: what here is good being for vs, let vs make the tabernacles, one for the, one for Moyses, and one for Ielias. For he wyl not what he sayd: for they were asyde. And there was a cloude that shadowed them. And a voyce came out of the cloude saying: * This is my deare sonne, heare hym. And sodenly they looked rounde about them, & sawe no man more then Iesus onely with them.

And as they came downe from the hyll, he charged them, that they shold tell no man what they had seene, till the sonne of man were retyen frome deathe agayne. And they kept that sayinge with them, and demaunded one of an other what the cylyng frome deathe agayne shold meane? And they asked hym, saying: why then saye the Scribes, that hely must ryse come? He answered and sayd vnto them: * helys verily shall ryse come and redore all thynges. And also the son of man as it is wyrtten, shall suffre many thynges, and shall be set at nought. Wherefore, I saye vnto you that helys is come, and they haue done vnto him what so euer pleased the, as it is wyrtten of hym.

And he came to his disciples, & saue moche people about them, and the Scribes questyoning with them. And anone at y people when they behelde hym, were amased and canne to hym, and greeted hym. And he sayde vnto the Scribes: what questyone ye with them? * And one of the companye answered and sayd: what after, I haue brought my sonne vnto the, whiche hath a dumme spyrte. And when so euer he taketh hym, he teareth hym, and he someth a snalwerth with his teth, and pyneth awaye. And I spake to thy disciples that they shold cast hym out, and they coulde not.

And he answered hym and sayd: O vnfaithfull generation, how longe shall I be with you? how longe shall I suffre you? Whyng hym vnto me. And they brought him vnto him. And as soon as the spyrte sawe hym, he tare hym. And he fell downe on the grounde wallowyng and fowmyng. And he asked his father, how long is it ago, & then this hath happened him? He sayd, of a chyldre: and ofte tymes casteth hym in to the fyre, and also in to the water to destroye hym. But yf thou canst do any thyng haue mercy on vs, and helpe vs. And Iesus sayde vnto hym: yf thou couldest helpe, all thynges are possible to hym that byleuech. And forthwith the father of the chyldre cryed with teares: sayinge: Lorde I beleue, helpe myne vnbeliefe.

When Iesus sawe that the people came runninge together vnto hym, he rebuked the foure spyrte, saying vnto hym: Thou dumme and deafe spyrte, I charge the, come out of hym, and entre no more in to hym. And the spyrte cryed, and rent hym selfe, and came out: and he was as dede, in so moch that many said he is dede. But Iesus caught his hande, and byde hym vp, and he arose. And when he was come in to the house, his disciples asked hym secretly, why couldest thou not caste hym out?

And he sayde vnto them: This kynde can by none other meanes come forth, but by praye and fastyng.

And they departed thence, and toke their iourneye thowme Galile, and he wolde not that any man shold haue knowen it. For he taught his disciples and sayd vnto them: * the sonne of man shall be deliuered in to the handes of men, and they shall kyl hym, and after that he is kylled, he shall aryse agayne the thrid daye. But they toste not what that sayinge meant, and were asyde to aske hym. And he came to Capernaum. And when he was come to house, he asked them, what was it that ye reasoned bytwene you by the waye? And they helde theyr peace: for by the waye they reasoned amonge them selues, who shold be the chetel. * And he late downe and called the xij. vnto hym, and said to them: yf any man wyl be to be chetel, the same shall be last of all, & scruant vnto all. And he toke a chyldre, and set hym in in the middes of them, & toke him in his armes and sayde vnto them: who so euer recepueth one of such chyldren in my name, recepueth me. And who so euer recepueth me, recepueth not me, but hym that sent me.

John answered hym, sayinge: * Master, we saue one castyng out deuyils in thy name, whiche foloweth not vs, and we forbad hym because he foloweth vs not. But Iesus sayde, forbyd hym not. For there is no man that shall do a myracle in my name, that can lyghtly speake euill of me. Who so euer is not agaynst you, is on your parte. And who so euer shall gye you a cup of water to drinke for my names sake, because ye belonge to Christ, verily I saye vnto you he shall not loose his reward. And who so euer shall offende one of these lytel ones that byleue in me, it were better for hym that a myllstone were hanged aboute his necke, and that he were cast in to the see. Wherefore yf thy hande offende the, cut hym of. It is better for the to entre in to lyfe maymed, then hauinge two handes go in to hell in to fyre vnquenchable, where they woyme dyeth not, and the fyre neuer goeth out. Lychewylle yf thy foote let the, cut hym of. For it is better for the to go halce in to lyfe, then hauinge two fete, to be caste in to hell in to fyre vnquenchable, where his woyme dyeth not, and the fyre neuer goeth out. Euen so, yf thyne eye let the, plucke hym out. It is better for the to go in to the kyngdome of God with one eye, then hauinge two eyes to be caste in to hell fyre: where they woyme dyeth not, and the fyre neuer goeth out.

Euer man therfore shall be salted with fyre. And euery sacryfice shall be seasoned with salte. Salte is good. But yf the salte be vnslauery, what shall ye salte therwith? Se that ye haue salte in your selues: and haue peace amonge your selues, one with an other.

* And they sent unto him certeyn of the pharisees with Herodes seruantes, to trap him in his wordes. And when as they were come, they sayde vnto him: Master, we knowe that thou arte true, and carest for no man: for thou considerest not the personage of men, but teachest the waye of God truly: Is it lawfull to paye tribute vnto Cesar, or not? Dought we to gyue, or ought we not to gyue? He vnderstode their dissemblinge, and said vnto them: Why tempte ye me? Wrynge me a peny, that I may se it. And they brought. And he said vnto them: Whose is this ymage, & superscription? And they said vnto him, Cesar. And Jesus answered and sayd vnto them: * When gyue to Cesar that whiche belongeth to Cesar: and to God that whiche pertyneth to God. And they marueyled at him.

Then came the Sadducees vnto him, which saye there is no resurrection. And they asked him sayinge: * Master, Moses wrote vnto vs: If any mannes brother dye, and leaue his wyfe behynde him, and leaue no chyldren: that then his brother shoulde take his wyfe, & carye vp seed vnto his brother. There were seuen brethren, and the first toke a wyfe, and when he dyed left no seed behynde him. And the seconde toke her, and dyed, neyther left any seed. And the thyrde lykewyse. And seuen had her, and left no seed behynde them. And of all the wyfe dyed also. In the resurrection then when they shall rylse agayne, whose wyfe shall she be of them? For seuen hadde her to wyfe. Jesus answered and sayde vnto them: See ye not therefore disceyued, because ye vnderstande not the scriptures, neither the power of God?

* For when they rylse agayne from dede, they neither marie, nor are maried: but are as the angels which are in heuen. As touchyng the deed, that they shall rylse agayne, haue ye not redde in the booke of Moses, how in the bush the Lord spake vnto hym, sayinge: * I am the God of Abraham, and God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob: He is not the God of the ded, but the God of the lyuynge. Ye are therefore greatly disceyued.

* And there came one of the Scribes that had herde them disputynge together, and perceyued that he had answered them well, and asked him: whiche is the fyrste of all the commaundementes? Jesus answered him, the first of all the commaundementes is. Heare Israel:

* The Lord God is one Lord. And thou shalt loue the Lord thy God with all thy herte, and with all thy soule, and with all thy mynde, and with all thy strength. This is the first commaundement. And the seconde is lyke vnto this: * Thou shalt loue thy neighbour as thy selfe. There is none other commaundement greater then these.

And the Scribe said vnto him: wel master thou hast sayde the truthe, that there is one god, and that ther is none but he. And to loue him w all the herte, and with all the mynde, and with all the soule, & with all the strength, and to loue a mannes neighbour as hym selfe, is a greater thing then all burnt offerynges and sacrifices. And when Jesus sawe that he answered discretly, he said vnto him: * Thou art not farre from the kyngdome of God. And no man affect that, but shal aske him any question.

And Jesus answered and said, teachynge in the temple: how say the Scribes that Christ is the sonne of David? For David hym selfe inspyred with the holy ghoost, sayd. The Lord sayd to my Lord, syt on my ryght hande. I will make thine enemyes thy foete stole. Then David hym selfe calleth him Lord: & by what meanes is he then his sonne? And moche people herde him gladly.

And he said vnto them in his doctrine: beware of the Scribes, which loue to go in long clothynge, and loue greetynge in the market places, and the chiefe seates in the assemblies, and to sit in the uppermost rowmes at feestes, and deuour wydowes houses, and that vnder a colour of longe prayynge. These shall receyue greater damnacion.

* And Jesus sat ouer agaynst the tresury, and sawe howe the people put money in to the tresury. And many that were of the cast in moche. And there came a certayne pooze wydow, and she threw in two mites, which make a sarchyng. And he called vnto hym his disciples and said vnto them: Verily I saye vnto you, that this pooze wydow hath caste more in, then all they which haue cast in to the tresury. For they all dyd cast in of their superfluite, but she of her pouertie dyd caste in all that she had, euen all her substance.

As he went out of the temple, one of his disciples said vnto him: Master, se what stones, and what buyldynges are here. And Jesus answered and sayde vnto him: Seist thou these great buyldynges? There shall not be left stone vpon stone, that shal not be thowen downe. And as he saie on mounte Oluet, ouer agaynst the temple: Peter, and James and John, and andrew asked him secretly: Tell vs when shall these be? And what is the sygne when all these shall be fulfilled? And Jesus answered them, and began to saye: * Take heed lest any man disceyue you: For many shall come in my name, sayinge: I am Christ, and shal disceyue many.

When

When ye shal heare of warre, and rumoure of warre, be ye not troubled. For suchethynges muste nedes be. But the ende is not yet. For there shall nation arylse agaynst nation, and realme agaynst realme. And there shall be earth quakes in all quarters, and famprment and troubles. These are the begynnynge of sorowes. * But take heed to your selues. For they shall byynge you vp to the concyues, and in to the synagoges, and ye shal be beaten, yea and shall be broughte before rulers and kynge: for my sake so: a wytnes vnto them. And the Gospell muste fyrst be publyshed amonge all nations.

* But when they lede you and betraye you take no thought afore hande what ye shal say, neyther ymagen: but what so euer is gyuen you at the same tyme, that speake. For it shall not be ye that shall speake, but the holy ghoost. Yea and the brother shall deliuer the brother to dede, and the father the sonne, and the chyldren shall rylse agaynst their fathers and mothers, and shall put them to dede. And ye shall be hated of all men for my names sake. But who so euer shall endure vnto the ende, the same shall be safe.

* Nowe, when ye se the abhominacion of desolacion, wherof is spoken by Daniel the prophet, stande where it oughte not, let him that ceryth vnderstande. Then let them that be in Iury, fle to the mountaynes. And let them that be in the house top not come downe in to the house, neither entre therein to fetch any thyng out of his house. And let him that is in the feld, not turne backe agayn vnto the thynges whiche he lefte behynde him for to take his clothes with him. Who shall be tyeu to women with chylde, and to them that gyue souche in those dayes. But pray that your flyght be not in the wynter. For there shall be in those dayes such tribulation, as was not from the beginning of creation whiche God created vnto this tyme, neither shal be. And except that the Lord shold shorten those dayes, no fleshe shoulde be saved. But for the electes sake which he hath chosyn, he hath shortened those dayes.

* And then if any man saye to you: lo, here is Christ: lo, he is there, byleue not. For false Chrystes shall arylse, and false prophetes, and shal shewe myracles and wonderes, to disceyue (if it were possible) euen the chosyn. But take ye heed: beholde I haue shewed you all thynges before.

* Moreover in those dayes, after that tribulation, the sonne shall waxe darke, and the mone shall not gyue her lghy, and the sters of heuen shall fall: and the powers which are in heuen shall moue. And then shall they se the sonne of man comynge in the cloudes, with great power and glory. And then shal he sende his angels, and shal gather together his chosyn from the fower wyndes, and from the one ende of the world to thother.

There is a similitude of the figge tree. When his braunches are yet tender, and hath brought forth leaues, ye knowe that sommer is neare. So when ye se these come to passe, vnderstande that it is nye, at the doores. Verily I saye vnto you, that this generation shal not passe, tyl all these thynges be done. Yea and erth shall passe, but my wordes shall not passe. But of the daye and houre knoweth no man, no not the angels which are in heuen: neither the sonne hym selfe, saue the father onely.

Take heed, watche, and pray, for ye knowe not when the time is. As a man which is gone in to a straunge countrey, and hath lefte his house, and gyuen auctorite to his seruantes, and to every man his woike, and commaunded the porter to watche. Watche therefore, for ye knowe not when the master of the house will come, whether at euen, or at mydnyght: whether at the cocke crowynge, or in the dawnyng: lest if he come suddenly, he fynde you slepyng. And that I saye to you, I saye to all, watche.

Now there were some that were not content in them selues, and sayde: what neded this waste of oynment? For it might haue ben sold for moze then. iij. hundred peny, and ben giuen vnto the pooze. And they grudged agaynst her.

But Jesus sayde: let her be in reeste, why trouble ye her? She hath brought a good woike on me. For ye haue pooze with you alwayes: and when so euer ye will ye maye do them good, but me ye haue not alwayes. She hath done that she coulde: she came aforehande to anoynt my body to his buryngwaite. And agayne he went away and prayed and spake the same wordes. And he returned and founde them a slepe agayne: for they eyes were heavy: neyther wyl they what to answer hym. And he came the thyrde tyme, and sayde vnto them: slepe henceforth and take your ease, it is ynough. The hour is come, behold, the sonne of man shall be deliuered in to the handes of synners. Wyle ye, let vs go. Lo, he that betrayeth me, is at hande.

And forthwith whyle he yet spake, came Judas one of the twelue, and with hym a grete route of people with swordes and staves from the hygh priestes and Scribes, and elders. And he that betrayed hym had given them a watche worde, sayinge: who so euer I do kysse, he is he: take hym and leade hym awaye warily. And as sone as he was come, he wente amonge to hym, and sayde vnto hym: master make, and kysed hym. And they layde theyr handes on hym, and toke hym. And one of them that stode by, drew out his swerde, and smote a seruant of the hygh priest, and cut of his eare.

And Iesus answered and said vnto them: ye be come out as vnto a theefe with swordes and staves to take me. I was daily with you in the temple teachinge / and ye toke me not, but that the scriptures shoulde be fulfilled. And they all forsoke hym and ranne awaye. And there folowed him a certayne yonge man, clothed in linnen vpon the bare, & the yonge man caught hym, and he lefte his linnen, and fledde from them naked. And they led Iesus away to the hygh priestes of all, and to hym came all the hygh priestes and the elders, and the Scribes. And Peter folowed hym a great waye of, euen in to the palace of the hygh priest, and sat with the seruantes, and warmed hym selfe at the fyre.

And the hygh priestes, and all the consyle sought for wytnes agaynst Iesus, to put him to death, & founde none. For many bare false wytnes agaynst hym, but their wytnes agreed not together. And there arose certeyn and brought false wytnes agaynst hym, sayinge. We herde hym saye: I will destroye this temple made with handes, and within thre dayes I will buyde an other made without handes. But their wytnesse agreed not together.

And the hygh priest stood by amongest them, and asked Iesus, sayinge: Answerest thou nothinge? Howe is it that these beare wytnes agaynst the? And he helde his peace, and answered nothinge. Agayne the hygh priest asked hym, and sayd vnto hym. Art thou Chyfft the sonne of the blessed? Iesus sayd, I am. And ye shall se the sonne of man syt on the ryghte hande of power, and come in the cloudes of heuen. Then the hygh priest rente his clothes and sayde: what nede we any further wytnes? ye haue herd blasphemy, what thinke ye? And they all condemned hym that he was worthy of death. And some began to spyt at hym, and to couer his face, and to beate hym with knytes, and to saye vnto hym, arde vnto vs. And the seruantes boyled hym on the face.

And as Peter was benethe in the palace, there came one of the wenches of the hygh priest / and when she sawe Peter warminge hym selfe, she looked on him and sayd: wast not thou also with Iesus of Nazareth? And he denied it sayng: I knowe hym not, neyther more. I what thou sayest. And he went out in to the porch, and the cocke crowe. And a damsell saw him, and agayne began to saye to them that stode by, this is one of them. And he denied it agayne. And anone after they that stode by, sayd agayne to Peter: surely thou art one of them, for thou art of Galile, and thy speche agreeth thereto. And he began to cuse and to sweare, sayinge: I knowe not this man of whome ye speake, and agayne the cocke crowe, and Peter remembred the worde that Iesus sayde vnto hym, before the cocke crowe thre tymes, thou shalt deny me thre tymes, and began to wepe.

And anone in the dawning, the hygh priestes helde counsell with the elders and the Scribes, and the hole cōgregation, and bounde Iesus and led hym away and deliuered hym to Pilate. And Pilate asked him: art thou the kyng of the Jewes? And he answered & sayd vnto him: thou sayest. And the hygh priestes accused him of many thynges. Pilate asked him agayne sayinge: * Answerest thou nothinge? Beholde how many thynges they lay vnto thy charge. Iesus answered not a worde, so that Pilate meruailed.

At that tyme Pilate was wont to deliuer at their pleasure a prisoner, whome so euer they wolde desire. Now there was one named Barababas, which lay bound with them that made murduracion, & in the insurrection committed murder. And the people called vnto him, and began to desire accordyng as he had euer done vnto them. Pilate answered them and sayde: Wyl ye that I loose vnto you the kyng of the Jewes? For he knewe that the hygh priestes had deliuered hym of enuy. But the hygh priestes had moued the people that he shoulde rather deliuer Barababas vnto them.

And Pilate answered agayne, and said vnto them: * What wyl ye then that I do with hym whome ye call the kyng of the Jewes? And they cryed agayne: crucifye hym. Pilate sayd vnto them: What couldest thou do? And they cryed the more feruently: Crucifye hym. And so Pilate willing to content the people, loosed them Barababas, and deliuered Iesus when he had scourged hym, for to be crucified.

And the soudiers led hym awaye in to the common hall, and called together the hole multitude, and they clothed hym with purple, and they platted a crowne of thornes & crowned hym withall, and began to salute hym. Hail kyng of the Jewes. And they smote hym on the heed with a reede, and spat vpon hym, and worshipped hym.

And when they had mocked hym, they vndressed hym of the purple, and put his owne clothes on hym and ledde hym out, to crucifye hym. And they compelled one that passed by called Symon of Syrene (whiche came out of the countrey, and was father of Alexander and Rufus) to beare his crosse. And they broughte hym to a place named Golgotha (whiche is interpreted, the place of deed mens skulls) and they gaue hym to drynke, wyne mingled with myrre, but he toke it not.

And when they had crucified hym, they parted his garmentes, castinge lottes for them, what euer man shoulde haue. Howe it was aboute the thyrde houre, and they crucified hym. And the tye of his cause was written: The kyng of the Jewes. And they crucified with hym two theues: the one on the ryghte hande, and the other on his left. And the scripture was fulfilled which sayth: * he was counted amonge the wicked.

And they that were by rayled on him: wagging their heedes and sayinge: Wo be to the that destroyest the temple, and buildest it in thre dayes: saue thy selfe, and come downe frome the crosse. And whyle they mocked hym the hygh priestes amonge them shewe with the scribes, and said: he saued other men, hym selfe he can not saue. Let Chyft the kyng of Israel now descend from the crosse, that we maye se and beleue. And they that were crucified with hym, cryed hym also.

And when the sixte houre was come, darkenes arose ouer all the erth tyll the nyght houre. And at the nyght houre Iesus cryed with a loude voyce, sayinge: Eli Eli, lama asabthani, whiche is interpreted: * My God my God, why hast thou forsaken me. And some of them that stode by, when they herde that said: beholde he callith for Help. And one ranne and fylled a sponge full of vynergre, and put it on a reede, and gaue hym to drynke: sayinge: let hym alone, let vs se whether Help wyl come and take hym downe.

But Iesus cryed with a loude voyce, and gaue vp the ghost. And the vayle of the temple was rente in two peces, frome the toppe to the botome. And when the Centurion whiche stode before him, sawe that he so cryed & gaue vp the ghost, he sayde: Truly this man was the sonne of God. There were also women a farte of beholding hym, amonge whome was Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James the yltie, and of Ioses, and Mary Salome: whiche also when he was in Galile, folowed hym, and ministered vnto him, and many other women which came by with hym vnto Ierusalem.

And now when night was come (because it was the euen that goeth before the Saboth) Ioseph of Arimathia a noble Senatour, which also looked for the kyngdome of God, came and wente in boldy vnto Pilate and begged the bodye of Iesu. And Pilate maruailed that he was already dead, and called vnto him the Centurion, and asked of hym whether he had ben any while deed. And when he knewe the truth of the * Centurion, he gaue the bodye to Ioseph. And he bought a linnen cloth, and toke hym downe, & wapped hym in a linnen cloth, and layd hym in a tombe that was hewen out of the rocke. And Mary Magdalene, & Mary Ioses behelde where he was layde. *

And when the Saboth daye was past Mary Magdaleyn, & Mary of James, and Salome, bought odours that they myght come and anoynt him. And early in the morning the next day after the Saboth daye, they came vnto the sepulchre, when the sonne was risen. And they sayd one to another, who shall roll vs awaye the stone from the boze of the sepulchre? And when they looked, they sawe how the stone was rolled awaye, for it was a very great one. And they went in to the sepulchre, and saw a yong man sittynge on the ryght syde, clothed in a longe whyte garment, and they were abashed. And he sayd vnto them, be not affrayde: ye seeke Iesus of Nazareth, whiche was crucified. He is risen, he is not here. Beholde the place where they had put hym. But go your way and tell yone disciples and namely Peter, that he goeth before you in to Galile: there shall ye see hym, as he said vnto you. After that he appered vnto two of them in a straunge figure as they walked and went in to the countrey. And they wente and tolde it to the reste. But they beleued them neyther.

After that, he appered vnto the eleven, as they sat at meate: and cast in theyr teth thre vnbylete and hardnes of hert, because they beleued not them whiche had sene hym after his resurrection. And he sayde vnto them: So ye in to all the worlde, and preache the glad tydynges to all creatures: he that beleueth and is baptysed, shall be saved. But he that beleueth not, shall be dampned.

And these thynges shall folowe them that beleue. In my name they shall cast out devils, and shall speke with newe tonges, and shall kepe serpentes. And if they drinke any deadly thyng, it shall not hurte them. They shall laye theyr handes on the sycke, and they shall recover.

So then when the Lorde had spoken vnto them, he was receyued in to heuen, and satte hym downe on the ryghte hande of God.

There was in the dayes of Herode the kynge of Iudee a reuerend prest named Zachary, of the couste of Abia. And his wyfe was of the daughters of Aaron: & her name was Elizabeth. Bothe were perfecte before God, and walked in all the lawes and ordinances of the Lorde without reprove. And they had no chyldre, because Elizabeth was barren, and bothe were well stricken in age.

And it came to passe, as he executed the priestes office before God, as his course came (accordinge to the custome of the priestes office) his lot was to burne incense. And he went in to the temple of the Lorde, and the hole multitude of the people were without in prayer while the incense was a burning. And there appered vnto hym an aungell of the Lorde standing on the ryght syde of the altier of incense. And when Zachary sawe hym, he was abashed, and feare came on hym.

But the aungell sayd vnto hym: feare not Zachary, for thy prayer is herde: & thy wyfe Elizabeth shall beare the a sonne, & thou shalt call his name Iohn, and thou shalt haue ioye and gladnes, and many shall reioyce at his byrth. For he shall be great in the sight of the Lorde, & shall neither drynke wyne ne stronge drynke. And he shall be filled wth the holy ghost, euen in his mothers wombe: and many of the chyldren of Israel shall be turned to the Lorde. And he shall go before hym in the spirite and power of Elias, to turne the hertes of the fathers to the chyldren, and the vnbyleuers to the wysdome of the iust men, to make the people ready to the Lorde.

And Zachary said vnto the aungell: wherby shall I knowe this: for I am olde, and my wyfe well stricken in yeres. The aungell answered and sayde vnto hym. I am Gabriel that stande in the sight of God: and am sent to speke vnto the: and to shewe thethe glad tydynges. And beholde, thou shalt be donne, and not be hable to speake, tyll the tyme that these be performed, because thou hast beleuedst not my wordes, which shalbe fulfilled in theyr season.

And the people waited for Zachary, and marueyled that he sayed in the temple. And when he came out, he coulde not speake vnto them, wherby they perceyued that he had sene some vision in the temple. And he beckened vnto them, and remayned spechelesse.

And it fortuned, as sone as the tyme of his office was out, he departed home in to his owne house. And after those dayes, his wyfe Elizabeth conceived, and byd her selfe. v. monethes, saying: This wyfe hath god delt with me, in the dayes when he looked on me, to take from me the rebuke that I suffered among men. And in the sixte moneth the aungell Gabriel was sent from God vnto a cite of Galile, named Nazareth, to a virgin spoused to a man whose name was Ioseph of the house of Dauid, and the virgins name was Mary. And the aungell went in vnto her, and sayd. Hail full of grace, the Lorde with the: blessed arte thou amonge women.

When she sawe hym, she was abashed at his sayinge: and cast in her mynde what manner of greetynge that shoulde be. And the aungell sayd vnto her: feare not Mary, for thou hast founde grace with God. Lo, thou shalt conceive in thy wombe, & shalt beare a sonne, and shalt call his name Iesus. He shall be great, and shall be called the sonne of the highest. And the Lorde God shall geue vnto him the seate of his father Dauid, and he shall raygne ouer the house of Iacob for euer, and of his kyngdome shall be none ende.

Then sayd Mary vnto the aungell: How shall this be, for I knowe not man? And the aungell answered and sayd vnto her: The holy ghost shall come vpon the, and the power of the highest shall ouershadowe the. Wherefore also that holy thyng which shall be borne, shall be called the sonne of God. And beholde thy cosyn Elizabeth, she hath also conceived a son in her age. And this is her sixte moneth, whiche was called barren: for with God can nothinge be impossible. And Mary sayde: be dole the handmaide of the Lorde: be it vnto me as thou hast sayde. And the aungell departed from her.

Mary arose in those dayes, and went in to the mountaynes with haste, in to a cite of Iudee, & entred in to the house of Zachary, and greted Elizabeth. And it fortuned as Elizabeth herde the greetynge of Mary, the babe spronge in her bely. And Elizabeth was filled with the holy ghost, and cryed with a loude voyce, and sayd: Blessed arte thou amonge women, and blessed is the frute of thy wombe. And whence happeneth this vnto me, that the mother of my Lorde shoulde come vnto me? For lo, as sone as the voyce of thy greetynge sounded in myn eares, the babe sprang in my bely for ioye. And blessed art thou that hast beleued, for those thynges shall be performed, which were tolde the from the Lorde. And Mary sayd:

My soule magnifieth the Lorde. And my sperte reioyceth in God my sauour. For he hath looked on the basenes of his handmaide. Beholde nowe from henceforth shall all kynredes call me blessed. For he that is myghty hath done to me greates thynges, and holy is his name. And his mercy is on them that feare hym throughout all generations. He sheweth strengthe with his arme, he scattereth them that are proude in the deuyse of theyr herte. He putteth downe the myghty from theyr seates, and lifteth vp the lowly. He filleth the hongyre with good thynges, and sendeth the ryche emptye. He remembreth mercy, hath taken his seruauit Israel.

¶ Euen as he promysed to our fathers, to Abraham, and to his seed for euer. And Marye abode with her about a.iii. monethes, and returned agayne to her owne house.

And it befell the eight day, they came to circumcise the chyld, and called his name Zachary, after the name of his father. And his mother answered and sayd: not so, but he shall be called Iohn. And they said vnto her. There is none of thy kynne that is named with this name. And they made signes to his father how he wolde haue hym called. And he aspyng for wyppynge tables wrote sayinge: his name is Iohn. And they increpiled all. And his mouth was opened forthwith, and his tonge, and he spake, prayeing God. And sere came on all them that dwelt nigh vnto them. And all these saynges were noyed abrode throughout all the hyll countrey of Iudee, and all they that herde them, layde them vp in theyr hertes, sayinge: What manner childe shall this be? And the hand of the Lorde was with him.

And his father Zachary was fylled with the holy ghost, and prophesied, sayinge:

Blessed be the Lorde God of Israel, for he hathe dylyted and made redemption of his people.

And hath reysed vp an home of helth vnto vs in the house of his seruauit Dauid.

Euen as he promysed by the mouth of his holy prophetes which were scribes the woite began. That we shoulde be saued from our enemyes, and from the handes of all that hate vs.

To fulfill the mercy promysed to our fathers, and to remembre his holy couenant.

¶ And to vnyone the othe which he sware to our father Abraham. And to geue vnto vs, that we shoulde be saued from our enemyes, myghte serue hym without feare, all the dayes of our lyfe, in holynes and ryghte wylnes before hym. And thou chyldre shalt be called the prophete of the highest: for thou shalt go before the face of the Lorde, to prepare his wayes. And to geue knowledge of helthe vnto his people, to the forgiveness of synnes. Through the tender mercy of our God, wherby the daye spronge from an hygh hath visited vs.

To geue lycht to them that sate in darkenes, and in shadowe of deyth, and to direct our feete in to the waye of peace. And the chyldre grewe and wrold strong in sperte, and was in wyldernes, tyll the daye came when he shoulde shewe hym selfe vnto Israel.

The birth and circumcison of Christ. How he was receyued in to the temple: how Symeon and Anna prophesie of him: and how he was founde in the temple amonge the doctours.

And it chaunced in those dayes, that there went out a commaundement from August thempetour, that all the world shoulde be taxed. And this taxing was the first, and executed when Symeon was lieutenant in Siria. And every man went unto his owne cite to be taxed. And Joseph also wente up frome Galile in to a cite called Nazareth, in to Jury, unto the cite of Dauid whiche is called Bethleem, because he was of the house and lynage of Dauid, to be taxed with Marye his spoused wyfe whiche was with chylde.

And it fortuned whyle they were there, her tyme was come that she shoulde be deliuered. And she brought forth her first begotten sonne, and wapped him in swadynge clothes, and lapde him in a manger, because there was no rowme for them within the inne.

And there were in the same regyon shepherdes abydynge in the felde, and watchynge theyr flocke by nyght. And lo, chaungell of the Loide stode harde by them, and the brightnes of the Loide shone rounde about them, & they were sore afrayde. But the aungell sayde vnto them. Be not afrayde. For behold, I bring you tydynge of greute ioye that shall come to all the people, for vnto you is bozne this daye in the cite of Dauid, a sauour whiche is Christe the Loide, a take this for a signe: ye shall fynde the chylde swaddled, and lapde in a manger. And sodrnyly there was with the aungell a multitude of heuynly soldierys, praysynge God, and sayynge: Glozpe to God on hye, and peace in the erth, in men reioysynge.

Glouia in ex-cellis.

And it fortuned, as soone as the aungelles were gone awaye frome them in to heauen, the shepherdes sayd one to an other: let vs go vnto Bethleem, and se this thyng that is happened, whiche the Loide hath shewed vnto vs. And they came with haste, and founde Marye and Joseph, and the babe lapde in a manger. And when they had sene it they published abroad the sayynge, whiche was tolde them of that chylde. And all that herd it, wondered at those thynges, which were tolde them of the shepherdes. But Mary kept al those saynges, ponderynge them in her herte. And the shepherdes returned glorifyng and praysynge God for all that they had herde and sene, such as it was tolde vnto them.

And when the eighth day was come that the chylde shoulde be circumcised, his name was called Iesus, whiche was named of the aungell before he was conceyued in the wombe.

Leuit. xii. b

Exod. xiii. a

And when the tyme of theyr purificacion (after the lawe of Moyses) was come, they brought him to Hierusalem, to present him to the Loide (as it is wyrtten in the lawe of the Loide: every man chylde that first openeth the wombe, shall be called holy to the Loide) and to offre (as it is sayde in the lawe of the Loide) a payre of fustle douces, or two pynges piggons. And behold, there was a man in Hierusalem, whose name was Symeon. And the same man was iuste and feared God, and longed for the comfote of Israel, and the holy good was in him. And an answere was given him of the holy ghooste, that he shoulde not ledech, before he had sene the Loide's Chylde. And he came in sperte in to the temple.

And when the father and mother brought in the chylde Iesus, to do for hym after the custome of the lawe, then toke he hym vp in his armes and sayd. Loide, now lettest thou thy seruant departe in peace, accordynge to the wyrd. For myne eyes haue sene the sauour sent frome the. Whiche thou hast prepared before the face of all people. A lyghte to lighten the gentyles, and the gloz of thy people Israel.

And his father and mother merueyled at those thynges which were spoken of him. And Symeon blessed them, & said vnto Marye his mother, behold, this chylde shall be the fall and rydynge of many in Israel, and a signe whiche shall be spoken agaynste. And moreover the swerde shall pence thy soule, that the thoughtes of many hertes may be opened.

And there was a prophetesse, one Anna the daughter of Phanuel, of the tribue of Aser: which was of a great age, and had lpyed with an husbande seuen yeres frome her virginite. And she had ben a wedowe aboute. iij. score and foure yeres: whiche went neuer out of the temple, but serued God with fastynge and prayer night and day. And she came forth that same houre and praysed the Loide, and spake of hym to all that looked for redemption in Hierusalem.

And as lone as they had performed al thynges accordynge to the lawe of the Loide, they returned in to Galile to theyr owne cite Nazareth. And the chylde grew and waxed stronge in sperte, and was fylled with wysdome, and the grace of God was with him.

And his father and mother went to Hierusalem euery yere at the fest of Ester. And when he was. xij. yere olde, they wente up to Hierusalem after the custome of the fest. And when they had fulfilled the dayes, as they returned home, the chylde Iesus abode apyll in Hierusalem unknowing to his father and mother. For they supposed he had ben in the companye, and therfore came a dayes iourney and soughte hym amonge theyr kynfolke and acquaintance. And when they founde him not, they went backe agayne to Hierusalem, and soughte him. And it fortuned after thre dayes that they founde him in the temple, sitting in the myddes of the doctours, boly hearing them and askynge them. And all that herd him marueyled at his vnderstandynge and answers.

And when they saw him they were astonied. And his mother sayd vnto him: Sonne, why hast thou thus deaite with vs? Beholde, thy father and I haue sought the for thyng. And he sayd vnto them, home is it that ye sought me? Wilt ye not that I must go about my fathers busines? And they vnderstode not that sayynge that he spake to them. And he wente with with them, and came to Nazareth, and was obedient to them. But his mother kept all these thynges in her herte. And Iesus increased in wysdome and age, and in sauoure with God and man.

The preachynge, baptysme, and pyssonment of John. The baptysme of Christ: and a reheriall of the generation of the fathers.

C A P I.

I I I.

In the fyfene yere of the raygne of Tiberius thempetour, Pontius pilate beyng ruler of Jury, and Herode beyng Tetrarche of Galile, and his brother Philip, Tetrarche in Jeneza, and in the region of Tracônites, & Aplania the Tetrarche of Abyline, when Anna and Caphas were the hygh priests, the wyrd of God came vnto John the sonne of Zachary, in the wyldernes. And he came into all the coostes about Jordan, preachynge the baptysme of repentance for the remission of synnes, as it is wyrtten in the boke of the saynges of Esay the prophete, which sayth. The voyce of a cryar in wyldernes: prepare the waye of the Loide, make his pathes straight. Every valleye shall be fylled, and euery mountayne and hyl, shall be brought lowe. And croked thynges shall be made straight: & the rough wayes shall be made smooth: and all flesh shall se the sauour lent of God.

Then sayd he to the people that were come to be baptised of hym. O generation of vipers, who hath taughte you to flee frome the warty to come? Byynge for the due frutes of repentance, and begyn not to saye in your selues, we haue Abraham to oure father. For I saye vnto you: God is habde of these stones, to reple dy children vnto Abraham. Now also is the axe layde vnto the rote of the trees: so that euery tre which bringeth not forth good frute is hewen downe, and cast into the fyre.

And the people asked hym, sayynge: what shall we do then? He answered, and sayde to them: He that hath two coates, let him parte with him that hath none: and he that hath meate, let him do lyke wyse.

Then came also publicans to be baptised, & sayde vnto hym: Master, what shall we do? And he sayde vnto them: tolle no more then that which is appoynted vnto you.

The soudpours lyke wyse demaunded of hym, sayynge: and what shall we do? And he sayde vnto them. Oppresse you no man: neyther sklauder any man: but be content with your wages.

As the people were in a doute, and all men disputed in their hertes of John, whether he were beey Christ: John answered and sayd to them all: I baptise you with water, but a stronger then I cometh after me, whose shoe latcher I am not worthy to vnloose: he will baptise you with the holy goodse, and with fyre: who hath his fanne in his hande, & will purge his floze, and will gather the come into his barn: but the chaffe will he burne with fyre vnuencheable. And many other thynges in his exhortation, preached he vnto the people.

Then Herode the Tetrarch (when he was rebuked of him for: Herodias his brother's wyfe) and for all the cruelties whiche Herode had done) put this to aboute all other cruelties, and put John in pysson.

And it betelle as all the people receyued baptysme (and when Iesus was baptised, & dyd praye) the heauen was opened, and the holy gho came downe in a bodely shape lyke a doue vpon hym, and a voyce came from heauen sayynge: Thou arte my dere sonne, in the do I delyre.

¶ Jesus is led in to the wyldernesse / and commeth the Jewes bespide hym / the Jewes knowlege him he cometh in to Peters house and doth great myra-cles.

CAP. III.

¶ Jesus then full of the holy ghoſte returned from Jordan, and was carped of the ſpote into wyldernesse, and was. xl. dayes tempted of the dyuell. And in those dayes he was hungred. And when they were ended, he afterwarde hongred. And the dyuell sayde unto hym: If thou be the sonne of God, commaunde this stone that it be bread. And Jesus answered hym, sayenge: ¶ It is wyrtten, man shall not lyue by bred onely, but by euerie worde of God.

¶ And the dyuell toke hym into an hygge moſt sayne, and shewed hym all the kyngdome of the world euen in the twinklinge of an eye.
And the dyuell sayde unto hym: all this power will I geue the, and the glory of the hym:
for they be deliuered to me, and to who soe-uer I will, I geue them. If thou therefore wilt worshipp me, they shall be all thine. Jesus answered hym and sayde: Hence thoue me Satā.
For it is wyrtten: ¶ Thou shalt honoure the Lorde thy God and him onely iſeue.

¶ And he carped hym to Ierusalem, and set hym on a pynacle of the temple, and sayd unto hym: If thou be the sonne of God, calle thy ſerues from hence. For it is wyrtten, ¶ he shall geue his angels charge ouer the, to kepe the, and with their handes they shall beare the, that thou fall not thy fote againſte a stone. Jesus answered and sayde to hym, it is sayde: ¶ thou shalt not tempte the Lorde thy God. As ſone as the dyuell had ended all his temptations: he departed frome hym for a season.

¶ And Jesus returned by the power of the ſpote into Galile, and there wente a ſaine of hym thowout all the region rounde about.
And he taught in their Synagoges, and was commended of all men.

¶ And he came to Nazareth where he was nourished, and as his custome was, went into the Synagoge on the Sabbath dayes, & ſtoode vp for to recite. And there was deliuered unto hym the booke of the prophete Esai. And whē he hadde opened the booke, he founde the place, where it was wyrtten. ¶ The ſpote of the Lorde vpon me, because he hadde annointed me: to preache the Goſpell to the poore, he hath ſent me: and to heale the broken hearted: to preache deliuerance to the captiue, and ſight to the blinde, and to deliuer the bounded in forgiueneſſe, and preache the acceptable yere of the Lorde.

¶ And he cloſed the booke, and gaue it agayne to the miniſter, and ſate downe. And the eyes of all that were in the Synagoge, were fastened on hym. And he began to ſaye unto them.
This day is this ſcripture fulfilled in your ea-res. And all bare hym wyrtneſſe, and wondered at the gracious wordes whiche proceeded oute of his mouth. ¶ And ſayde: Is not this Jo-ſephs ſonne?

¶ And he ſayde unto them: In any wyſe will I ſaye vnto me this parable. Philicion, heale thy ſelfe. ¶ Whatſoener we haue herde done in Capernaum, to the ſame here ſhall I doe in thyne owne countrey. And he ſayde, verily I ſaye vnto you: No prophet is receyued in his owne countrey.

¶ But I tell you of a trouth, ¶ many wyrddowes were in Iſrael in the dayes of Dely:
when heauen was ſhut thre yeres, and thre monethes, when greates famyſhement was throughte ouer all the lande, and vnto none of them was help ſent, ſauelynto Sarrpta help-des Sydon, vnto a woman, that was a wyrd-dowe. ¶ And many lepers were in Iſrael in the tyme of Helicus the prophete: and yet none of them was healed, ſauelynto Naaman of Syria.

¶ And as many as were in the Synagoge whē they herde that, were fylled with wrath: and roſe vp, and thurst hym out of the cytie, & led hym euen vnto the edge of the hill, wher on their cytie was build, to caſt hym downe headlong. But he wente his waye euen thowout the myddes of the. ¶ ¶ And came into Capernaum a cytie of Galile, and there taughte them on the Sabbath dayes. And they were aſtonyſhed at his doctrine: for his preachinge was with power. ¶ And in the Synagoge there was a man, hauynge a ſpote, of an vncleane dyuell, and cryed with a lowde voyce, ſayenge: Let be, what haſte thou to do with vs, thou Ieſus of Nazareth? Arte thou come to deſtroye vs? I knowe the, what thou arte, euen the holy of God. And Ieſus rebuked hym ſayenge: ¶ Be ſyll and come out of hym. And the dyuell thurst hym in the myddes of them and came out of hym, and hurt hym not. And ſcare came on them all, & they talked amonge them ſelues, ſayenge: What manner a thyng is this? for with auctorite / and power / he commandeth the foule ſpites, and they come oute? And the ſame of hym ſpied abrode thowtoute all places of the countrey rounde about.

¶ ¶ And he aroſe vp, and came out of the Synagoge, and entered into Simons houſe.

And Simons mother in law was taken with a great ague, and they made interceſſion to hym for her. And he ſtoode ouer her, and rebuked the fever: and it left her. And ſhe forthwith aroſe and myſtred vnto them.

¶ When the ſonne was downe, all they that had ſuche perſons taken with dyuers dyſeaſes brought them vnto hym: and he layde his hand on euerie one of them, and healed them. ¶ And dyuels alſo came oute of many of them, cryenge & ſayenge: thou arte Chriſt the ſonne of God. And he rebuked them, and ſuffered them not to ſpeake: for they knewe that he was Chriſt.

¶ As ſone as it was daye, he departed & went awaye into a wyſome place, and the people ſought hym and came to hym, and kepte hym that he ſhoulde not departe from them. And he ſayde vnto them. I muſte to other cyties alſo preache the kyngdome of God: ¶ for therfore am I ſente. And he preached in the Synagoges of Galile.

¶ Chriſte preacheth in the Synagoge. The diſciples ſolake all and folowe hym. He cleareth the leper, healeth the man of the palfrey, calleth Malchew the tollomer, and eateth with open ſynners.

CAP. V.

¶ I came to paſſe as the people preſed vpon hym, to heare the worde of God, that he ſhoulde by the lake of Genesareth: ¶ and ſaw two ſhyppes ſtande by the lake ſyde, but the ſhyermen were gone oute of them, and were waſhyng their nettes. And he entered into one of the ſhyppes, whiche pertayned to Simon, and prayed hym, that he wold thurst out a lyttell from the lande. And he ſate downe and taught the people oute of the ſhypp. When he had left ſpeaking, he ſayd vnto Simon: launche out into the depe, and let off your nettes to make a draught. And Simon answered and ſayde to hym: Maſter, we haue labored all nyght, and haue taken nothinge: Neuerthe-leſſe at thy word I will loſe forth the net. And when they had ſo done, they incloſed a greates multitude of fiſhes. And their net brake: but they made ſignes to their ſelues which were in the other ſhypp, that they ſhould come & helpe them. And they came: and filled both the ſhyppes that they ſonke agayne.

¶ When Simon Peter ſawe that, he fell downe at Ieſus knees, ſayenge: Lorde, go frome me, for I am a ſynfull man. For he was vicerly aſtonyſhed and all that were with him, at the draught of fiſhe whiche they toke: and ſo was alſo James and Johā, the ſonnes of Zebede, whiche were partners with Simon.
And Ieſus ſayde vnto Simon: feare not, ſee behold the thou ſhalt cateche men. And they brought the ſhyppes to lande, and forſoke all and folowed hym.

¶ And it happened as he was in a certayne cytie: Beholde, there was a man full of Le-proſy: and when he had ſpyed Ieſus, he fell on his face, and beſought hym, ſayeng: Lorde, if thou wilt, thou canſt make me cleane. And he ſtretched forth his hande, and touched him ſayenge: I will, be thou cleane. And anon the leproſy departed frome hym. And he warned him, that he ſhoulde tell no man: but that he ſhoulde goe, ¶ and ſhewe hym ſelfe to the priſte, and offer for his cleaſynge accordeynge as Moſes commaundement was, for a wyrtneſſe vnto them.

¶ But the more went the ſame abyode of him and moche people aſſembled to heare, and to be healed of their dyſeaſes. And he kept him ſelfe apart in the wyldernelles, and gaue hym ſelfe to praye.

¶ And it happened on a certayn daye, that he taughte: and there ſate the Pharisees, and doctours of lawe, whiche were come out of al the townes of Galile, Turre, and Ierusalem.

¶ And beholde, men brought a man lyenge in his bed, whiche was taken with a palfy: and ſought to bynge him in, and to laye hym before hym. And when they coude not fynde by what waye they myghte bynge hym in, becauſe of the preſſe, they went vp on the coppe of the houſe, and let hym downe thowout the tynge, bed and all, in the myddes before Je-ſus. When he ſawe their faith, he ſayde vnto hym: Man, thy ſynnes are forgiuen the. And the ſcribes and Pharisees beganne to chynke, ſayenge: Who is this, whiche ſpeaketh blaſ-phemy? ¶ Who can forgiue ſynnes but God onely.

¶ When Ieſus perceyued their thoughtes, he answered, and ſayde vnto them: What thyngke ye in your hartes? Whether is eaſer to ſaye, thy ſynnes are forgiuen the, or to ſay: arſe and walke? But that ye maye knowe, that the ſonne of man hath power to forgiue ſynnes on earth, he ſayd vnto the ſpote of the palfy: ¶ I ſaye to the, arſe, take vp thy bed, and go home to thy houſe. And anon he roſe vp before them, and toke vp his bed wher on he laye, and departed to his owne houſe, prayſynge God. And they were all aſmared, and they lauded God, and were fylled with feare, ſayenge: We haue ſene ſtraunge thynges to daye.

¶ And after that he went forth and ſawe a customer named Leuy, ſittynge at the receypte of cuſtome, and ſayde vnto hym: folowe me.
And he left all, roſe vp, and folowed hym.
¶ And that ſame Leuy made hym a greates feaſte at home in his owne houſe. And there was a great company of publicans and of other that ſate at meate with him. ¶ And the ſcribes & Phariſes murmured againſt his diſciples, ſay-enge: Why eate ye and drynke with cuſtovnto them: They that are hole, neede not the Philiſion: but they that are ſicke. I came not ye make the children of the byrdgome faſt, as longe as the byrdgome is preſent with the?

The dayes shall come, when the bydegrome shall be taken awaye frome them: then shall they fast in those dayes.

Then he spake vnto them a symilitude: No man putteth a peece of a newe garment, into an olde garment: for if he do: then breake the he the newe, and the peece that was taken out of the newe, agreeth not with the olde. Also no man putteth new wyne into olde vessels. For if he do, the newe wyne shall breake the vessels, and shall runne out of selfe, & the vessels shall perishe: But newe wyne muste be put into newe vessels, and bothe are preserued. Also, no man that drynketh old wyne forthwith can awaye with newe, for he saith, the olde is better.

It happened on an after Sabbath, that he went thorow the corne felde, and that his disciples plucked the eares of corne, and ate and rubbed them in their handes. And certayne of the Pharisees sayde vnto them: Why do ye that whiche is not lawfull to do on the Sabbath dayes? And Jesus answered them, and sayde: * Haue ye not red what Dauid dyd, when he hym selfe was an hungered, and they which were with hym: howe he went into the house of God, and toke and ate the loaves of halowed bread, and gaue also to them whiche were with hym: whiche was not lawfull to eate, but for the priestes only. And he sayd vnto them: The sonne of man is Lord of the Sabbath daye.

* And it fortuned in an other Sabbath also, that he entred into the Synagoge, and taught. And there was a man whose right hande was dyed vp. And the Scribes & Pharisees watched hym, to se whether he wolde heale on the Sabbath daye, that they myght fynde an accusation against him. But he knewe their thoughtes, and sayde to the man which had the withered hande: Kysse vp, and stande forth in the myddes. And he arose and stepped forth. Then sayde Jesus vnto them: I will aske you a question: Whether is it lawfull on the Sabbath dayes to do good, or to do euill? to saue lyfe or for to destroy it? And beholding them all rounde about, sayde vnto the man: Stretch forth thy hande. And he dyd so: and his hande was restored, and made as hole as the other. And they were fylled full of madnes and spake togyther, what they myghte do to Iesu. I.

* And it befell in those dayes, that he went out into a mountayne for to praye, and continued all nyght in prayer to God. And as sone as it was daye, he called his disciples, and of them he chose twelue, whiche also he called Apostles. Simon whome, he named Peter, and Andrew his brother. James and John, Philippe and Bartelemewe, Mattheus and Thomas, James the sonne of Alphaeus / and Simon called Zelotes, and Judas James sonne, and Judas Iscariot, which same was the traytour.

* And he came downe with them and stode in the playne felde, with the companye of his disciples, and a great multitude of people out of all parties of Iurie and Ierusalem, and from the see coste of Tyre and Sydon, which came to heare him, and to be healed, of their dyscaies: And they also that were vexed with foule spytes, and they were healed. And all the people praised, to touche hym: For there went vertue out of hym, and healed them all.

And he lified up his eyes vpon the disciples and sayde: Blessed be ye poore: for yours is the kyngdome of God. Blessed are ye that hunger now: for ye shall be fylled. Blessed are ye that wepe now: for ye shall laughe. Blessed are ye when men hate you, and thynke you oute of their companye, and rale, and abhorre your name as an euill thynge, for the sonne of man sake. Reioyse ye then, and be glad: for behold your rewarde is greate in heauen. I. After this maner, they fathers entreated the Prophetes.

But two be to you that are reche: that haue therein your consolation. Wo be to you that are full: for ye shall hunger. Wo be to you that now laughe: for ye shall wepe, and wepe. Wo be to you when all men prayse you for so dyd their fathers to the false Prophetes.

But I saye vnto you whiche heere: Love your enemyes. Do good to them which hate you. Blesse them that curse you. And praye for them, whiche wrongfullye trouble you. And vnto hym that smyteth the one the other cheek, offer also the other. And him that taketh away thy gowne, tobyd not to take thy cote also. Give to euery man that asketh of thee. And of hym that taketh awaye thy goodes, aske thou not agayne. * And as ye wolde men shuld do to you: so do ye to them lyke wyse.

If ye loue them, whiche loue you: what thanke are ye worthy of? For the very synners loue their louers. And if ye do for them, whiche do for you: what thanke are ye worthy of? For the very synners do the same. If ye elende to them of whom ye hope to receyue, what thanke shall ye haue? for the very synners lende to synners, to receyue as moche agayne. Wherefore, loue ye your enemyes, do good and lende, tokyng for nothing agayne: and your rewarde shall be great, and ye shall be the chyldren of the hygher: for he is kynde vnto the vnkynde and to the euill.

* Be ye therefore mercifull, as your father is mercifull. * Judge not, and ye shall not be iudged. Condemne not, and ye shall not be condemned. Forgyue, and ye shall be forgyuen. Gyue, & it shall be gyuen vnto you: good measure, pressed downe, shaken togyther, & runnyng ouer, shall men gyue into your bolomies. * For with what measure ye mete, with the same shall men mete to you agayne.

And he put forth a symilitude vnto them: Can the blynde, leade the blynde? Doo they not bothe then fall into the dyche? The disciple is not aboue his master. Euery man shall be perfecte, euen as his master is. Why sayde thou a moote in thy brothers eye, and conspydest not the beame that is in thyne owne eye? Syther howe canst thou saye to thy brother: Brother, let me pull out the moote that is in thyne eye: when thou perceyuest not the beame that is in thyne owne eye? Dissemble, calle out the beame out of thyne owne eye first, and then shalt thou se perfectly, to pull out the moote of thy brothers eye. I.

* It is not a good tree that bringeth forth euill frute: neyther is that an euill tree, that bringeth forth good frute. For euery tree is knowen by his frute. Neether of thornes gather they grapes. A good man out of the good treasure of his herte, bringeth forth good. And an euill man out of the euill treasure of his herte, bringeth forth euill. For of the aboundance of the herte, his mouth speaketh.

Why call ye Master, Master: and do not as I sayd you? Whosoever cometh to me, and heareth my sayenges, and doeth the same, I will saye vnto you, to whome he is lyke. He is lyke a man whiche buyeth an house, and bygged depe, and layd the foundation on a rocke. When the waters arose, the floude ber vpon that house, and coulde not moue it. For it was grounded vpon a rocke. But he that heareth and doeth not, is lyke a man that without foundation buyeth an house vpon the earthe / against whiche the floude dyd beate: and it fell by and by. And the fall of that house was greate.

When he had ended all his sayenges in the audience of the people, he entred into Capernaum. And a certayne Centurions seruant was sick & ready to dye, whiche was deare to hym. And when he herde of Iesu, he sent vnto him the elders of the Jewes beseechinge hym that he wolde come and heale his seruant. And they came to Iesu and besought him busily, sayenge: He is worthy that thou shouldest to this for him. For he loueth our nacyon, and hath buyt vs a Synagoge. So Iesu went with them.

And when he was not farre from the house the Centurion sent frendes to hym: sayenge vnto hym. * Lord trouble not thy selfe: for I am not worthy that thou shouldest enter vnder my roffe. Wherefore I thought not my self worthy to come vnto the: but saye the worde and my seruant shall be hole. For I also am a man vnder power, and haue vnder me souldiers, and I saye vnto one: go, and he goeth. And to an other, come: and he cometh. And to my seruant, to this: and he doeth it. When Iesu herde this, he merueyled at hym, and turned hym about, and sayde to the people: I toloued hym: I saye vnto you, I haue not founde so greate fayth, no, not in Israel. And they that were sente, turned backe home agayne, and founde the seruante that was sick, hole.

* And it befell after that, that he went into a cytie called Naim, and many of his disciples went with hym, and moche people. When he approached to the gate of the cytie: beholde there was a deed man carped out, which was thonly begotten sonne of his mother, and she was a widow, and moche people of the cytie was with her. Whom when the Lord saw, he had compassion on her, and sayde vnto her: wepe not. And he went and touched the beer, & they that bare hym, stode still. And he sayde: Yonge man, I saye vnto the, arise. And the deed sat vp, and began to speake. * And he deliuered hym to his mother. And there came a feare on them all. And they glorified God, sayeng: a great Prophete is risen amonge vs and God hath blessed his people. I. * And this rumoz of hym went forth throughout all Iurie, and thorow out all the regions whiche lye rounde about.

And the disciples of Iohn shewed hym of all these thynges. And Iohn called vnto him two of his disciples, and sente them to Iesus, sayenge: Arise thou he that shuldest come: or shall we loke for an other? When the men were come vnto hym, they sayde: Iohn Baptiste sent vs vnto the, sayenge: Arise thou he, that shuldest come: or shall we wayte for an other? And at that same howse, he cured many of their dyscaies and plagues, and of euill spytes, and vnto many that were blynde, he gaue sight. And Iesus answered, and sayde vnto them: So your wayes and Iohn what thynges ye haue sene & herde, how the blynde se, the halt go, the lepers are cleensed, & deafe heare, the deed arise, to the poore is the glad tydinges preached, and happye is he, that is not offended by me.

When the messengers of Iohn were departed, he beganne to speake vnto the people, of Iohn. What went ye out to the wyldernesse to see? a reede shaken with the wynde? But what wente ye out to se? A man clothed in softe rayment? Beholde, they which are gorgeously apparelled, and lyue delicately, are in kynges courttes. But what went ye forth to se? A Prophete? Yea, I saye to you, and more then a Prophete. This is he, of whome it is wyrtten: Beholde, I sende my messenger before thy face, to prepare thy waye before the. For I saye vnto you: a greater Prophete then Iohn, amonge womens chyldren is there none. Neuerthelesse, he that is lesse in the kyngdome of God, is greater then he. I.

And all the people that herde, and the publicans, iustified God, and were baptised with the baptysme of Iohn. But the Pharisees and Iceried men in the lawe, despyed the counsell of God against them selues, and were not baptised of hym.

So the Lord sayd: Wherevnto shall I lyken the men of this generation, and to what are they lyke? They are lyke vnto chyldren settinge in the market place, and cryenge one to an

to an other, and sayeng: We haue pyppd vnto you, and ye haue not daunted: We haue mourned to you, and ye haue not wepte. For for John Baptist came, neyther eatyng bread, ne drynkynge wyne, and ye saye: he hath a dyuell. The sonne of man came eatyng and drynkynge, and ye saye: Behold, a man whiche is a glorton, & a drynker of wyne, a frend of publicans and synners. And wysdom is wysed of all her children.

† One of the Pharises desired hym that he wolde eat with hym. And he went into the Pharise house, and late dwene to meate. And beholde, a woman in that cite, whiche was a synner, as sone as she knewe that Jesus late at meate in the Pharise house, she brought an Alabastrer boxe of oynment, and she stode at his fete behynde hym, weppynge, & began to walsh his fete with teares, and byd wyppen them with the heates of her heed, and kysed his fete, and annoynted them with oynment.

When the Pharise whiche had hym, sawe that, he spake with hym selfe, sayenge: Yf this man were a Prophet, he wolde surely haue knowne who and what maner woman this is whiche toucheth hym, for she is a synfull woman. And Jesus answered and sayde vnto hym: Simon, I haue some what to say vnto the. And he sayd: master, saye on. There was a certayne credytoure whiche hadde two letters, the one ought fyue hundred pence, & the other syfthe. When they hadde nothinge to paye, he forgaue them bothe. Whiche of them tell me, shall loue him most? Simon answered, and sayde: I suppose, that he to whom he forgaue most. The he sayd vnto him: Thou hast rightly iudged.

And he turned to the woman, and sayd vnto Simon: Seest thou this woman? I entred in to thy house, and thou gauest me no water to my fete: but this hath washed my fete with teares, and wypped them with the heates of her heed. Thou gauest me no kysse: but this, syngens the tyme I came in, hath not ceased to kysse my fete. Myne heed with oyle thou bypdest not annoynt: but this woman hath annoynted my fete with oynment. Wherefore I saye vnto the: Many synnes are forgyuen her: because she loued moche. To whome litle is forgyuen, the same with litle loue. And he sayde vnto her, thy synnes are forgyuen. And they that late at meate with hym, began to saye with in them selues: Who is this, whiche forgyueth synnes also? And he sayde to the woman: Thy saythe hath saved the: Go in peax. † ¶ Chyrlie with his Apolles goeth frome towne to towne and preache, the parable of the seide, who is his mother and his brother, spelleth the see, depyuereth the possesed, and depyeth the deuyles in to the herde of swyne, and helpeth the sycke woman, and Jairus daughter.

VIII.

As it befell after that, that he him self went throughe out cyties and townes, preache, and shewynge the kyngdome of God, and the twelue with hym. And also certayne women, whiche were heales of euill spites, & sickenesses. Mary called Magdalen, out of whome went seven deuyles, and Joanna the wyfe of Chusa Herodes steward, and Susanna, and many other: whiche mynistered vnto hym of their substaunce.

† When moche people were gathered together, and were come to hym out of al cyties, he spake by a parable. A sower wente oute to sowe his seed: and as he sowed, some fell by the waye syde, and it was troden downe, and foules of the ayre deuoured it vp. And some fell on the ston, & as sone as it was spronge vp, it wydded awaye, because it lacked moche nysse. And some fell amonge thornes, and the thornes sprange by with it, & choked it. And some fell on good grounde, and sprange vp, & bare frute, an hundred folde. And as he sayde these thynges, he cryed: He that hath eares to heare, let hym heare.

And his disciples asked hym, sayenge: what maner symilitude is this? And he sayd: Vnto you it is gyuen to knowe the mysteries of the kyngdome of God: but to other in similitudes: that when they se they shoulde not se, and when they heare they shoulde not vnderstande.

The parable is this. The seide is the worde of God. Those that are helpe the waye, are they that heare, and afterwarde cometh the dyuell, and taketh awaye the worde oute of their hertes, lest they shoulde beleue, and be saued. They on the stonnes, are they whiche when they heare, receyue the worde with ioye. And these haue no rotes, whiche for a whyle beleue, and in tyme of temptation go awaye. Nowe, that whiche fell amonge thornes, are they whiche heare, and as they go are choked with cares, and with ryches, and holoprouous lyuynge, and bynge forth no frute. That in the good grounde, are they whiche with a good and pure herte, heare the worde, & kepe it, and bynge forth frute with patience. †

† No man lygtheth a candell, and couereth it vnder a vessell, neyther putteth it vnder a bedde, but setteth it on a candellsticke, that they that enter in, maye se the lyght. For nothinge is in secret, that shall not come abrode: Neyther any thyng hid, that shall not be knowne, and come to lyght. Take hede therfore, howe ye heare. For who soeuer hath, to hym shalbe gyuen: And who so euer hath not, even that whiche he supposed that he had, shalbe taken frome hym.

Then came to him his mother and his brethren, and coulde not come at him for preak. And they tolde hym sayenge: Thy mother & thy brethren stande without, and wold se the. He answered and sayde vnto them: my mother and my brethren are these whiche heare the worde of God, and do it.

† It befell on a certayne daye he went into a tynne, and his disciples also, and he sayd vnto them: Let vs go ouer vnto thother syde of the the lake. And they launched forth. And as they sayled, he fell a slepe, and there arose a storme of wynde in the lake, and they were fylled with water, and were in reoparde. So they wente to him, and awoke him, sayenge: Master, Master, we are lost. Then he arose and rebuked the wynde, and the tempeste of water, and they ceased, and it waxed calme. And he sayde vnto them: where is your faith? But they fearynge, wondered, sayenge one to an other: What person is this? For he commaundeth bothe the wyndes and water, and they obeye hym? † And they sayled vnto the region of the Gadarenites, whiche is ouer against Galile.

And as he went out of the tynne to lande, there met him a certayne man out of the cite, whiche had a dyuell longe tyme, and ware no clothes, neyther abode in any house: but amonge graues.

When he sawe Jesus, he cryed, and fell vnto hym, & with a loude voyce sayd: What haue I to do with the, Iesu the sonne of the bryght God? I beleue the, toment me not. For he commaunded the foule spete to come oute of the man. For ofte tymes he caught hym, and he was bounde with chaynes, and kept with fetters: and he brake the bondes, and was carped of the fende, into wydernesse.

So Jesus asked him sayenge: What is thy name? And he sayde: † Legion, because many dyuels were entred into him. And they besought him, that he wolde not commaunde them to go out into the depe. And there was there by an herde of many swyne, sedynge on an hyll, and they besought him, that he wold suffer them to enter into them. And he suffered them. Then went the deuyles out of the man, and entred into the swyne: And the herde rushed in bedlonge into the lake, and were choled. When the herdemen sawe what was done, they fled, and tolde it in the cite, and in the villages.

Now, they came out to se what was done: and came to Jesus, and founde the man, out of whome the deuyles were departed, settinge at the fete of Jesus, clothed and in his righte mynde, and they were afrayed. They also whiche sawe it tolde them howe he that was possesed of the deuyll, was healed. And all multitude of the Gadarenes, besought him that he wolde departe frome them: for they were taken with great feare. But he takinge hym returned. † Then the man out of whom the deuyles were departed, besought him to be with him. But Jesus sent him awaye, sayeng Retourne into thy house, and shewe all that euill God hath done to the. And he went his waye, and preached throughe oute all the cite, what thynges Jesus had done vnto him.

It happened when Jesus was come agayn that the people receyued him. For they all wayped for him: † And beholde, there came a man named Jairus (and he was a ruler of the Synagoge) and he fell vnto the fete of Jesus, and besought him to entre into his house for he hadde one onely daughter, vpon a xij.

year of age, and she laye a dyenge. Nowe as he went the people thronged him.

And a woman haupnge an pisse of bloude twelue yeres (whiche hadde spent all her substaunce amonge Physicians, neyther coulde be healed of any) came behynde hym, and touched the hem of his garment, and anon her issue of bloude stancheth. And Jesus saythe: Who is it that touched me? When every man denyed, Peter and they that were with him, sayde: Master, the people thrust the and bere the: and sayde thou who touched me? And Jesus sayde: Some body hath touched me. For I perceyue herme to haue gone out of me. When the woman sawe that she was not hyd she came tremblynge, and fell at his fete, and tolde hym befoze all the people for what cause she had touched him, and howe she was healed immediatly. And he sayd vnto her: Daughter be of good comforte. † Thy faith hath made the hole, go in peax.

Whyle he yet spake, there came one frome the ruler of the Synagoge house whiche sayd to him: thy daughter is deed, dyscase not the master. When Jesus herde that, he answered the father, sayenge: † Feare not, beleue onely, and she shall be made hole. And when he came to the house, he suffered no man to go in with him, save Peter, James and John, & the father and mother of the mayde. Nowe, every person wept, and sorowed for her. And he sayde: Wepe not: for she is not deed, but slepeth. And they lowghe him to scoyne, knowinge that he deed. But he dyspyngne them all oute, caught her by the hande: and cryed, sayenge: Mayde aryse. And her spete came agayne, and she arose forthwith. And he commaunded to gyue her meate. And the father, and the mother of her, were adonped. But he warned them, that they shoulde tell no man what was done.

† Then called he the twelue together, & gaue them power and auctorite ouer al deuyles, and to heale dyscales. And he sent them to preache the kyngdome of God, & to cure the sycke. And he sayd to them: Take nothinge towarde your iourney, neyther staffe, nor scryppe, neyther bread, neyther money, neyther haue ye two cootes. And what-so euer house ye enter into, there abyde, and thence departe. And who so euer wyl not receyue you, when ye go out of that cite, shake of euen the dust frome your fete, for wytnesse agayn them. Math. xiii. 17. Mark. vi. 15. John. vi. 14. And the Apostles returned: and told him what they had done. * And he toke them and went a hyde into a solitary place, nigh to a cytie called Bethsaida. Whiche the people knowynge, folowed him. And he receyved them, and spake vnto them of the kyngdome of God, and healed them that had neede to be healed. But the daye began to waire awaye, then came the twelue, and sayde vnto hym: sende the people awaye, that they maye go in to the townes and villages rounde about, to some inne, and get meate, for we are here in a place of wilderness. He sayde vnto them: Gue ye them to eate. And they sayde: We haue no mo but fyue loaves and two fyshes, ones we shulde go, and bye meat for all this people. Howe they were aboute fyue thousand men. And he sayde to his disciples: Make them sit downe by fifties in a company. And they dyd so, and made them all sit downe. And he toke the fyue loaves, and the two fyshes, and lohed vp to heauen, and blessed the and brake, and gaue to the disciples, to let before the people. And they ate, and were all fylled. And there was taken vp of the fragments that they leaved, twelue baskets full.

Math. xvi. 16. Mark. viii. 1. * And it fortuned as he was alone prayinge, his disciples were with him, and he asked the sayenge: Who saye the people that I am? They answered, and sayde: Iohn Baptiste: Some saye hely. And some saye, one of the olde prophetes is rylen agayne. He sayd vnto them, But who saye ye that I am? Peter answered and sayde: Thou art the Christ of God. And he warned and commaunded them that they shulde tell this to no man, sayenge: The sonne of man must suffer many thynges, and be rejoyced of the elders, and of the bygh prestes and scribes, and be slayne, and the iii. daye, ryse agayne.

And he sayde to them all, yf any man wyll come after me, let hym denye hym selfe, and take vp his crosse dayly, and folowe me. Who so euer wyll saue his lyfe, shall lose it. And who so euer shall lose his lyfe for my sake the same shall saue it. For what auauntageth it a man to wyne the hole worlde, yf he lose hym selfe, or runne in domynage of hym selfe? For who so euer is ashamed of me, and of my wordes, of hym shall the sonne of man be ashamed, when he cometh in his glorie, and in the glorie of his father, and of the hoyle Angells. And I tell you of a trouche. There be some of them that stande here, which shall not taste of deathe, till they se the kyngdome of God.

And it folowed aboute an. viij. dayes after these sayenges, he toke Peter, James, and Iohn, and went vp into a mountayne to praye. And as he prayed, the hue of his countenance was altered, and his garment was whyte and shoon. And behold, two men talked with hym, whiche were Moses and hely, who sene in gloire shewed his departinge, whiche he shoulde ende at Ierusalem. Peter and they that were with hym, were deupe with slepe. And when they awoke, they sawe his gloire, and the two men standinge with hym.

And it chaunced, as they departed frome hym, Peter sayde vnto Iesus: Master, it is good for vs to be here, and let vs make thre tabernacles, one for the, and one for Moses, and one for hely, not knowynge what he sayde. Whyle he thus spake, there came a cloude, and shadowed them, and they feared when they were come vnder the cloude. And there came a voyce out of the cloude, sayenge: This is my deare sonne / heare hym. And as sone as the voyce was past, Iesus was found alone. And they kept it close: and tolde no man in those dayes, any of those thynges, whiche they had sene.

And it chaunced on the nexte daye, as they came downe frome the hyll, moche people met hym. And beholde, a man oute of the multitude crept oute, sayenge: Master, I beseeche the behold my sonne, for he is all that I haue, and he, a spete taketh hym, and sodenly he cryeth, and he teareth hym that he cometh agayne, and with moche payne departeth frome hym, when he hath rent hym, and I besought the disciples to caste hym out, and they could not. Iesus answered and sayde. O saythles generation, and croked: howe longe shall I be with you, and shall suffice you? Wyngye thy sonne hyther. As he yet was commynge, the deuyll rent hym and tare hym. And Iesus rebuked the vniuersal spete, and healed the child and rendred hym to his father. So they were all amazed at the myghty worke of God.

Whyle they wonderd euery one at al thynges whiche he dyd, he sayde vnto his disciples Let these wordes synke downe into your eares. The tyme shall come, when the sonne of man, shall be deliuered into the handes of men. But they wiste not what that worde mente, and it was hyd frome them, that they vnderstode it not. And they feared to aske hym of it sayenge.

* Then there entred a debate amonge the who shoulde be greatest. When Iesus perceyved the thoughtes of their hartes, he toke a childe, and set hym harde by hym, and sayd vnto them.

Who so euer receyvet this childe in my name, receyvet me. And who so euer receyvet me, receyvet hym that sent me. For he that is least amonge you all, that same shall be greates.

Iohn answered, and sayde: Master, we sawe one castinge oute deuyles in thy name, and we forbade hym, because he foloweth not with vs. And Iesus sayde vnto hym: Forbid ye hym not. For he that is not againste vs, is with vs.

And it folowed when the dayes were come of his assumption, he set his face to go to Ierusalem, and sent messengers before hym.

And they wente and entred into a cytie of the Samaritans to make redy for hym. And they receyved hym not, because his face was as though he wold go to Ierusalem. When his disciples, James and Iohn, sawe that, they sayde. Lorde, wilt thou that we commaunde that hye come downe frome heauen, and consume them, as hely dyd? Iesus turned about and rebuked them, sayenge: Ye wote not of what spete ye are. The sonne of man is not come to destrye mennes sowles, but to saue them. And they went to an other towne.

* And it chaunced as he went in the waye, a certayne man sayde vnto hym: I wil folow the, whether so euer thou go. Iesus sayde to hym: Foxes haue holes, & bydes of the aere haue nestes: but the sonne of man hath no where on to laye his heed.

And he sayde vnto an other: folowe me. But he sayde: Lorde, suffer me first to go bury my father. Iesus sayde to hym. Let the dead bury their dead: go thou and preache the kyngdome of God.

And an other sayde: I wil folow the Lorde: but let me first go byd them farewell, whiche are at home at my house. Iesus sayd vnto hym. No man that putteth his hande to the plowe and loketh backe, is mete to the kyngdome of God.

The sendeth the scuentye before him to preache, prayeth his heauynly father, answereth the scribe that tempted him, Iewerly who is a mans neyghbour, Martha receyvet the Lorde, Magdalene is frent in hearynge his wordes.

C A P I. X.

After these, the Lorde appoynted o ther scuentye also, and sent them two and two before hym into euery cytie & place, whither he hym selfe shulde come. And sayde vnto them, the haruest is great, but the laborers are fewe. Praye therfore the Lorde of the haruest, to sende forth laborers into his haruest. So your wayes: beholde, I send you forth as lumbes amonge wolues. Beare no wallet, ne scrippe, nor shoes, & grete no man by the waye. Into whatsoeuer house ye enter first say: Peace to this house. And yf the sonne of peace be there, your peace shall rest vpon hym yf not, it shall retorne to you. And in the same house remaine, eatynge and drynkynge such as they haue. For the laborer is worthy his reward.

So not frome house to house: & into whatsoeuer cytie ye enter, yf they receyue you, cate that is set before you, and heale the sicke that are there, and saye vnto them: the kyngdome of God, is appoynted vpon you. * But into whatsoeuer cytie ye enter, yf they receyue you not, go your wayes out into the strectes of the same and saye: euen the dust, which cleaues to vs of your cytie, we wype of agaynste you: Yet knowe this, that the kyngdome of God was come nigh vpon you. I saye to you: it shalbe easer in that daye for Zedome, then for that cytie.

* And to the Chorazin: woe to the Bethsai-da. For yf the miracles had bene done in Tyre and Sidon, whiche be done in you, they had longe sythens repented sittynge in heare and ashes. Neuerthelesse it shalbe easer for Tyre and Sidon, at the iudgement, then for you. And thou Capernaum whiche arte exalted to heauen, shalt be thrust downe to hell. * We that heareth you, heareth me: and he that despyseth you, despyseth me: and he that despyseth me, despyseth him that sent me.

And the scuentye turned agayne with Ioseph, sayenge: Lorde, the very dyuels are subdued to vs thorow thy name. He sayde vnto them: I sawe Satan, as lightenyng fall downe fro heuen. Beholde, I gve you power to treade on serpentes & scorpions, and ouer all power of the enemy, and nothyng shal hurt you. Neuerthelesse, in this reioyce not that the spites are subiecte to you / but reioyse, because your names are wyrtten in the heuens.

That same tyme reioysed Iesus in the spete, and said, I confesse vnto the father: * Lorde of heuen and erth, that thou hast byd these from the wyle & prudent, and hast opened them to the babes. Euen so father, for so pleased it the. All are gyuen me of my father. And no man knoweth who the son is, but the father / and who the father is, saue the sonne / and he to whom the sonne wyll shewe hym.

And turnynge to his disciples, sayd secretly. * Happy are the eyes which se that ye se. For I tell you, that many prophetes and kynge haue despyed to se that ye se, and haue not sene / and to heare that ye heare, and haue not herde.

And beholde a certeyn lawyer stode by, and tempted hym, sayenge: * Master, what shall I do, to inheryte eternal lyfe? He said vnto him. What is wyrtten in the lawe? Howe reddest thou? And he answered, & sayde: * Thou shalt loue the Lorde God w all thy hert, and with all thy soule, and with all thy strengthe, and with all thy mynde, and thy neighbour as thy selfe. And he sayde vnto him: Thou hast answered ryght. This do, and thou shalt lyue. He wyllynge to iustifie hym selfe, sayde vnto Iesus: Who is my neyghbour?

Iesus answered, and said: A certayne man came downe frome Ierusalem to Hierico, and fell in to the handes of theues, which robbed hym of his rayment, and wounded hym / and departed, leuynge hym halfe deed. And by chaunce there came a certeyn pccer that same way, and when he sawe hym, he passed by: And lykwylse a Leuyte, when he was come nye to the place, wente and lohed on hym, and passed by. Then a certayne Samaritane, as he tourneyed, came nye vnto hym, and when he sawe hym, he had compassion on hym, and went to hym and bounde by his woundes, and poured in oyle & wyne, & put hym on his owne beest, and brought him to a comon inne, and made prouision for hym. And on the morowe when he departed, he toke out two pence and gaue them to the host, & said vnto him. Take care of him, and what so euer thou spendest more when I come agayne, I will recompence the. Whiche now of these the thoughtest thou was was neyghboure vnto him that fell into the theues handes? And he sayd: he that sheweth mercy on him. Then sayde Iesus vnto him: Go and do thou lyke wyse. I

I It befell as they went, he entred in to a certayne towne. And a certayne woman named Martha, receyued him into her house. This woman had a sister called Mary, whiche sat at Iesus fete, and herde his preaching. So Martha was troubled aboute moche seruinge, and shode and sayde: master, doest thou not care, that my sister hath left me to minister alone? Wyttest thou therefore, that she helpe me. And Iesus answered, and sayde vnto her: Martha, Martha, thou carest, and art troubled aboute many thynges: but one thyng is needefull. Mary hath chosen her that good parte, whiche shall not be taken away frome her. I

I He teacheth his disciples to praye. Rebuketh the blasphemous Pharisees. They requyre signes. He eateth with the Pharisee.

CAPI. XI.

AND it fortuned as he was prayenge in a certayne place: when he ceased, one of his disciples sayde vnto him: Master, teache vs to praye, as Iohn taught his disciples. And he sayde vnto them: when ye praye, saye: Our father which art in heauen, hallowed be thy name. Thy kyngdome come. Thy will be done in earth, as in heauen. Our dayly bread geue vs dayly. And forgyue vs our synnes: for also we forgyue euery man that trespasseth vs. And leade vs not into temptation. But deliuer vs from euill. I

And he sayde vnto them: I If any of you shalde haue a frende, and shalde go to him at mydnyght, and saye vnto him: frende, lende me thre loaves, for a frende of myne is come out of the waye to me, and I haue nothinge to set before him: and he wyl him shoulde answer & saye, trouble me not, the doore is now shut, and my seruantes are with me in the chamber, I can not ryse and geue them to. I I saye vnto you, though he woulde not aryse and geue hym, because he is his frende: yet because of his vnwarynes he wold ryse, & geue hym as many as he neded. And I say vnto you: I aske, & it shalbe geuen you. Seke, and ye shall fynde. Knocke, and it shalbe opened vnto you. For euery one that asketh, receyuethe: and who seeketh fyndeth: and to him that knocketh, shal it be opened. Yf the sonne shall aske byed of any of you that is a father: wyl he geue him a stone? Or yf he aske a fysshe, wyl he geue hym a serpent? Or yf he aske an egge: wyl he offer hym a scorpion? Yf ye then begynge euill, can geue good gyftes vnto your chyldren, how moche more shal the father of heauen geue an holy sperte to them, that aske hym? I

I And he was castinge out a deuill, whiche was domme. And it folowed when the dyuill was gone out, the domme spake, and the people wonderd. But some of them sayde: he casteth out dyuells by the power of Bezebut the chiefe of the dyuells. And other rented hym, schynge of hym a signe frome heauen. But he knowinge their thoughtes, sayde vnto them: Euery kyngdome dyuided in it selfe is made wildeuylle: and one house shall fall vpon an other. So yf Satan be dyuided in hym selfe: how shall his kyngdome endure? Because ye say I cast out deuyls by the power of Bezebut. I If, by the power of Bezebut I cast out dyuells: by whome do your chyldren cast them out? Therefore shall they be your iudges. But yf I, with the finger of God cast out dyuells, assuredly the kyngdome of God is come vpon you.

When a stronge man armed watcheth his house: that he possideth in peace. But when a stronger then he cometh vpon hym, and ouercometh hym: he taketh frome hym his harnes wherewith he trusted, and deuydeth his spoiles. He that is not with me, is agaynste me. And he that gathereth not with me, scattereth.

When the vnclene sperte is gone out of the man, he walketh throughe waterlesse places, schynge redde. And when he fyndeth none, he sayth: I will retorne vnto my house, whence I came. And when he cometh, he fyndeth it swept and garnished. Then goeth he and taketh to him seven other spertes worse then him selfe: and they enter in, and dwell there. And so the extremes of that man, be worse then the begynnynge.

And it happened as he spake these thynges, a certayne woman of the company lyst vp her voyce, and sayde vnto him: Happy is the wombe that bare the, and the breasts whiche gaue the sucke. But he sayde: Happy are they that heare the woide of God, and kepe it. I

When the people were gathered thicke together: he began to saye: This is an euill nation: they seeke a signe, and there shal no signe be geuen them, but the signe of Iohnas the prophete. For as Iohnas was a signe to the Ninuites, so shall the sonne of man be to this nation. I The queene of the south shal ryse at the iudgement, with the men of this generation, and condemne them: for she came from the ende of the worlde, to heare the wysdome of Salomon. And beholde, a greater then Salomon is here. The men of Ninue shall arise in the iudgement with this generation: and shall condemne them: for they repented at the preachinge of Iohnas. And beholde, a greater then Iohnas is here.

I No man lyghteth a candell, and putteth it in an hyd place, ne vnder a bushell: but on a candellsticke, that they that come in may see the lyght. The light of thy body is the eye. Therefore when thyne eye is synge: then is all thy body full of lighte. What yf thyne eye be euill: then shall all thy body be full of darknesse. Take heed therefore that the lyght whiche is in the, be not darkened. For yf all thy body shal be lighte, hauinge no parte darke: then shall all be full of lyght, euen as when a candell doeth lyghte the with his brightnesse. I

And as he spake, a certayne Pharisee besought hym to dyne with him: and Iesus went in and late wth him to meate. When the Pharisee sawe that he merueiled that he hadde not first washed before dyner. And the Lorde sayd to him: I Howe wyse Pharisees, make cleene the outsyde of the cup, & the platter: but your inward part is full of rauyne and wickednes folles, & yd not he that made that whiche is without: make that whiche is within also? Nevertheless that ye haue gyue in almes, and beholde all is cleane to you. But wo be to you Pharisees, for ye tye the mynt and rewe, and all maner herbes, and passe ouer iudgement & the loue of God. These ought ye to haue done and those not to haue left.

Wo to you Pharisees: for ye loue the firste seates in assemblies, and greetynge in the marketes. Wo to you Scribes and Pharisees Hypocrites, for ye are as graues whiche appeare not, and the men that walke ouer them are not ware of them. When answered one of the lawyers, and sayd to hym: Master, thus sayenge thou puttst vs to rebuke also. Then he sayde: Wo to you also ye lawyers: for ye lade men with burdens importable, and your selues touche not the packes with your one synge. Wo to you, ye buyde the sepulchres of the prophetes, whiche as your fathers kylled the, truly ye deare witnesseth, that ye allowe the dedes of your fathers: for they kylled them, but ye buyde their sepulchres. Therefore also sayde the wysdome of God: I will send them prophetes and messangers, and of them they shal sleie and persecute: that the bloude of all the prophetes, whiche was shedde frome the begynnynge of the worlde, maye be requyred of this generation, frome the bloude of Abel, vnto the bloude of Zacharie, who perished betwene the altar and the temple. Verily I tell you: it shalbe requyred of this nation.

Wo to you lawyers: for ye haue taken awaye the keye of knowledge, ye entred not in your selues, & the entresers in, ye forbad. When he thus spake vnto them, the lawyers and Pharisees began to wreke byll about hym, and to stop his mouth with many questions, lying in wayte for hym, and seekinge to catche some thynge of his mouth, wherby they myghte accuse hym.

I The leuen of the Pharisees, whiche conforteth his disciples agaynste persecution, warneth them to beware of couctousnes. He wyl not haue them to hange vpon earthy thynges.

CAPI. XII.

AND there gathered together an innumerable multitude of people (in so moche that they troode one another) he began to saye vnto his disciples: firste of all beware of the leuen of the Pharisees, whiche is hypocrisie. For there is nothinge couered, that shall not be breuouered: ne hyd, that shall not be knowne. For what so euer ye haue spoken in darkenesse: shall be herde in the lighte. And what ye haue spoken in the eare euen in secreete places, shall be preached on the top of houses.

I saye to you my frendes: be not afraid of them that kyll the body, and after that haue no moze that they can do. But I will shewe you, whome ye shall feare. Feare him whiche after he hath kylled, hath power to cast into hell. Surely I saye vnto you, hym feare. Are not .v. sparowes bought for two farthynges? And yet not one of them is forgotten of God. Also euen the very heeres of your heeres are nombred. Feare not then: ye are moze worth than many sparowes.

I saye vnto you: whosoener confesteth me before men, hym shall the sonne of man confesse also before the aungels of God. And he that denieth me before men: shal be denied before the aungels of God. And whosoener spekerh a woide agaynst the sonne of man it shal be forgyuen hym. But vnto hym that blasphemeth the holy ghoost, it shal not be forgyuen. When they byynge you vnto the assemblies, and vnto the rulers and officers, take no thought howe or what ye shall answer: or what ye shall speake. For the holy ghoost shal teache you in the same houre, what ye ought to saye.

I One of the company sayde vnto hym: Master, byd my brother leaue the enheritaunce with me. But he sayde vnto hym: What to me made me a iudge or a deuyler ouer you? Wherfore he sayde vnto them: take heed, and beware of couctousnesse. For no mans lyfe standeth in the aboundance of thynges whiche he possideth. And he put forth a parable vnto them, sayenge: The grounde of a certayne ryche men brought forth frutes plentyfoully, and he thoughte in hym selfe, sayenge: what shall I doo? because I haue no roome where to bestowe my frutes? And he sayde: This will I do. I will destroy my barnes, and buyde greater, and therein wyl I gather all my frutes, and my goodes: And I wyl saye to my soule: Soule thou hast much goodes layde vp in store for many yeres, take thyne ease: eate, drynke, and be merry. But God sayde vnto hym: Thou folle, this night wyl they fetche awaye thy soule agayne from the. Then whose shal the thynges be whiche thou hast prouided? So is it with him that gathereth ryches: and is not ryche in God.

And he spake vnto his disciples: Therefore I saye vnto you: Take no thought for your lyfe, what ye shall eate: ne for your body, what ye shall put on. The lyfe is moze then meate, and the body is moze then rayment. Consydre the rauens, for they neyther sowe nor reape, who neyther haue stowe nor house ne barne, and yet God fedeth them. Howe moche are ye better then foules? Whiche of you with takynge thought, can put to his stature one cubit? If ye then be not able to do that is least: why take ye thought for the reste? Consydre the lilies howe they growe: they labour not: they spyn not: and yet I tell you Salomon in all his royaltie, was not clothed lyke to one of these.

That yf the grasse, beyng to daye in the felde, and to morowe shalbe cast into the forynace, God so arapeth, howe moche more wyl he cloth

CAPL. XIII.

¶ He put forth this parable: a certayne man had a figge tree planted in his vineyard and he came and sought frute thereon, & found none. Then sayde he to the dresser of his vi-neyarde: Beholde, these, iij. yeares haue I come and sought frute in this figge tree, and finde none: cut it downe: why occupieth it the ground? and he answered, and sayd unto him: Lord, let it alone this yere also, till I digge rounde about it, and donge it, and if it beare frute well and good, if not then thou shalte cut it downe. And he taughte in one of their Synagoges on the Saboth dayes. And beholde, a woman whiche had a spere of in-firmitee. xviij. yeares: & was made curen troked, and coulde not ones lyft vp her self. When Jesus sawe her, he called her to him, and sayd to her: Woman thou art deliuered from thy disease. And he layde his handes on her, and forthwith she was straight, a glorified God.
Now the ruler of the Synagoge answering

Then answered hym the Lorde, and sayde:
 * hypocrite, dothe not eite one of you on the Saboth daye, lose his oxe or his asse from the nail, and leade him to the water? And ought not this daughter of Abraham, whom Io, Saran hath bound. xviij. yeres, be loosed from this bond on the Saboth daye? And when he thus sayd, all his aduersaries were aduamed / and all the people reioyced on all the glorious dees that were done by him. R.

Then sayde he: What is the kyngdome of God lyke? or whereto shall I compare it? It is like a grainc of mustard seed, which a mā toke and sowed in his garden: and it grew & waxed into great tre, and the fowles of the ayre made nestes in the braunches of it.

And agayne he sayd: wherunto shall I lyken the kyngdome of God? It is lyke leuen which a woman toke and hvd in thre busshels of flour, tyll all was thopowe leuened. And he went thopowe cyties and towncs reachyng and iourneyng towards Jerusalem. Then sayd one vnto him: Lo:be, are there few that shall be saued? And he sayd vnto them/Aspue to entre in at the strait gate: for many I saye vnto you wyl lcke to enter, and shall not be able.

¶ When the goodman of the house is risen up, and hath shut the doore, ye shall begyn to stande without and to knocke at the doze, sayinge: Lorde Lorde, open vnto vs, and he shall answer and sape vnto you, I knowe you not whence ye are. Then shall ye begyn to sape:
We haue eaten in thy presence and dronke/and thou hast taughte i our streets. And he shall saie: I tell you I knowe ye not whence ye are: departe from me all ye workers of wekednes. There shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth, when ye shall see Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, and all the Prophets in the kingdome of God, and your selues thrust out. And they shall come from the East and West and north and south, and sit in the kyngdome of God. And behold, they be last, which shall be first. And they be first, which shall be last.

The same daye there came certayne of the pharises and said vnto him/ get the out of the waye, and departe hence, for Herode wyl kyll the. And he sayd vnto them. So tell that fore beholde I cast out demysls and heale the people to daye and to morowe, and the thyrde daye I make an ende. Neuerthelesse, I muste walke to daye and to morowe, and the day folowyng; for it can not be, that a prophet perishe any other where then at Ierusalem.

* Ierusalem, Ierusalem, whiche killest Prophetes, and stonest them that are sent to chyl dren together as the henne gathered her nest vnder her wynges, but he wolde not. Be-holde your habitation is lefte to you desolate.

For I tell you, ye shall not see me till the tyme come that ye shall saye, blessed, that comest in the name of the Lorde.

CAPL. XIII.

And it chaunced that he wente in to the house of one of the chiefe Pharisees to eate bread on the Saboth daye: and they watched hym. And beholde, there was a man before hym, whiche had the hydropse. And Iesus answered and spake vnto the lawyers and Pharisees, sayinge: is it lawfull to heale on the Saboth daye? But they helde theyr peace. And he healed hym, and let hym go: and answered them, sayinge: Whiche of you shall haue an asse or an oxe fallen in to a pyt, and wylt not forthwith pull him out on the Saboth daye? And they couide not answer him to that.

He put forth the similitude to the gesses, markynge howe they chase the hygher townes, and sayd to them: When thou arte bydto a weddinge of any man, set nor dawne in the hygher towne, lest a moze honourable man then thou be bydden of him, and he that bade bothe hym and the, come and saye to the, gyue this man towne, and thou then begyn-neth to chide to take the lowest towne. But rather when thou arte bydde, go and sette in the lowest towne, that when he that bade the cometh, he maye saye vnto the, frende set vp higher. Then shalt thou haue woorthyness in the presence of them that set at meat with the. ✠ For who so euer exalteth him selfe, shall be humbled. And he that humbleth him selfe, shall be exalted. R

Then saye he also to him that had despyred him to dyner. ¶ When thou makest a dyner or a supper: call not thy frendes, nor thy brethren, ne thy kynsmen, neyther ryche neighbours, lest they byd the agayne, and a recompence be made the. But when thou makest a feast, call pooze, mapined, lame and blynde, and thou shalt be happy, for they can not requyte the. But thou shalt be recompensed in the bypysence of the iust men.

When one of them that late at meate also herde that, he said vnto hun/happye is he that eateth byed in the kyngdome of God. ¶ Then sayd he to him. ¶ A certayne man orderyed a greate supper, and bademany, and sent his seruaunt at supper tyme, to saue to them that were bydden, come/for all thynges are now redye. And they all at ones began to make excuse. The fyrste sayde to him: I haue bought a pece of grounde, and I muste go se it, I praye the haue me excused. And an other sayde: I haue bought fyue yoke of oren, and I go to plowe them, I praye the haue me excused. The thyrde sayde: I haue maryed a wyfe, therfore I can not come. And the seruaunte wente, and tolde his master these thynges.

Then was the houtholder displeased, and said to his seruauant: Go our quickly in to the streetes and quarters of the city, and bypnye in hisher the pooze, & maymied, and halse a bynde.

There went a greates company with him, and he turned and sayd vnto them. * Yf a man cometh to me, and hate not his father and mother, and wyfe and chyldren, and brethren and sisters, mocheouer and his owne life he can not be my discipple. And who so euer beare not his crosse and come after me, can not be my discipple.

Whiche of you wyllynge to buyde a toure spyteth not downe first and counteth the cost, whether he hath to performe it? lest after he hath layde the foundation and is not hable to performe it, all that behold it begyn to moche him, sayinge: this man began to buyde, and was not hable to finish. Or what kynge goyng to make battayle agaynst an other kynge both not fyrst downe first and consider whether he be hable with ten thousande to mete him that cometh agaynst hym with twenty thousande. Or els whyle he is yet a great waye off, he sendeth ambassadours and desyre peace. So likewise euery one of you that renounceth not all that he hath can be my discipple.

Then resorted vnto him all the publicans and synners to heare him. And the pharisees and scribes grudged, saying: He receyuet synners, and eateth with them. And he spake this parable to them, saying: What man of you hauinge an hundred shepe, yf he lose one of them, doth not leaue nyntye and ix in the wyldernes, and go after that whiche is losse tyll he fynde him? And when he hath founde him, he putteth him on his shoulders with ioye. And as sone as he cometh home, he calleth together his frendes and neighbours saying vnto them: Reioyse with me, for I haue founde my shepe whiche was lost. I say vnto you, that so ioye shall be in heuē ouer one synner that repenteth, more then ouer foure iuste and nyntene ryghteous persons, which nede no repentance. Either what woman hauinge x. groates, yf she lose one, doth not light a candle, and swepe the house, and seke diligently tyll she fynde it? And when she hath founde it, she calleth her frendes and her neighbours saying: Reioyse with me, for I haue founde the groate which I had lost. So I saye vnto you, ioye is made before the aungels of God ouer one synner that repenteth.

* And he sayde: A certayne man had two

sonnes, and the yonger of them said to his father: father geue me the part of the goodes that to me belongeth. And he deuyned vnto them his substance. And not longe after, the yonger son gathered all that he had together, and toke his iourney to a farr countrye, & there he wasted his goodes with ryous luyng. And when he had spent all that he had, there arose a great deeth thowout all that same lande and he began to lacke. And he went & claued to a cizeyn of that same countrey, which sent him to his feld to kepe his swyne, & he wolde fayne haue fylled his belly with the coddies that the swyne ate, and no man gaue to him.

Then he came to hym selfe and sayde: how many hyed seruants at my fathers house haue bred ynough, and I dye for hunger. I wyl arise and go to my father, and wyl saye vnto him: father: I haue synned agaynst heuen, and before the, and am no more worthy to be called thy son, make me as one of thy hyed seruantes. And he arose & wente to his father. And when he was yet a greates waye off, his father sawe him, and had compassion, and ran and fell on his necke, and kyssed hym. And the sonne sayde vnto him: father, I haue synned agaynst heuen, and in thy sight, and am no more worthy to be called thy sonne. Then his father said to his seruantes, bring forth that best garment and put it on him, and put a ring on his hand, and shoes on his feet. And bringe brethren that fatted calfe and kyll hym, and let vs eate and be mery: for this my sonne was ded, and is reuiued, he was lost, and is now founde. And they began to be mery. The elder brother was in the felde, and when he came & diuene nyghte to the house, he herde mynstris and daunsyng, and called one of his seruantes, & asked what those thynges meante. And he sayde vnto hym: thy brother is come, and thy father hath kyllled the fatted calfe, because he hath receyued him safe and sound. So he was angry, and wolde not go in. Then came his father and entreated him. But he answered and sayd to his father: Lo these many yeres haue I haue done the seruys, neyther haue I broken at any tyme thy commaundment, and yet gauest thou me neuer so moche as a hyde to make mery with my frendes: but as sone as this thy sonne was come, whiche had deuoured thy goodes with harlottes, thou hadst for hym kyllled the fatted calfe. And he sayde vnto hym: Sonne, thou arte euer with me, and all that I haue is thyne: it was mete that we sholde make mery and be gladd, for this thy brother was ded, and is aloue agayne: and was lost, and is founde.

The parable of the wycked Hammon. Not one tyme of Gods wordes shall prech. Of the ryche man, and poore Lazarus.

C A P I. XVI.

He sayd also vnto his disciples. * There was a certayne ryche man, which had a seruaunt, that was accused vnto him that he had wasted his goodes. And he called him, and sayd vnto him: How is it that I heare this of the? Kende accomptes of thy stewardship: for thou maist be no longer steward. The seruaunt sayde within him selfe: what shall I do? for my master wyl take away from me the stewardship. I can not byg, and to begge I am ashamed. I wote what I shal do, that whiche I am put out of the stewardship, they may receyue me in to their houses.

So called he all his masters debtors, and sayd vnto the first: howe moche owest thou vnto my master? And he said an hundred coners of oyle. And he sayd to hym: take thy byll and syt downe quychly, and wyte fyfte. Then said he to an other: what owest thou? And he sayd, an hundred quarters of wheat. He sayd to him: Take thy byll, and wyte foure scores. And the Lord commended the vnyghteous steward, because he had done wisely. For the chyldren of this worlde are in theyr kynde, wyser then the chyldren of lyght. And I saye also vnto you: Make you frendes of the wycked Hammon, that when ye shal departe, they may receyue you in to euerlastyng habitacions.

* He that is saythfull in the lest, is saythfull also in moche. And he that is vnyghteous in the lest: is vnyghteous also in moche. So then yf ye haue not ben saythfull in the lyttel Hammon, who wyl byleue you in that whiche is true? And yf ye haue not ben saythfull in an other mannes bysnyes: who shal geue you your owne? No seruant can serue two masters, for eyther he shal hate the one and loue the other, or els he shal leane to the one, and despise the other. Ye can not serue God and Hammon.

All these herde the pharisees also, whiche were couetous, and they mocked him. And he said vnto them: Ye are they which iustify your selues before men, but God knoweth your hertes. For that whiche is hygh amonge men, is abhominacion before God.

The lawe and the prophetes reigned tyll the tyme of Iohu, and fro that tyme the kyngdome of God is preached, and euery man stryuet to go in. Souer shall heuen and erth perswade, then ouer tyme of the lawe shall perswade. Who so euer forsaketh his wyfe and marrieth an other, dothe aduourte. And who so euer marrieth her that is diuorced from her husband committeth aduourte.

* There was a certeyn ryche man, whiche was clothed in purple and cosly synnen, and fared deliciously euery daye. Now there was a certayne begger named Lazarus, whiche laye at his gate full of sores, desyryng to be fylled with the crommes whiche fell from the ryche mans table. Therethelesse the dogges came and lycked his sores. And it fortuned that the begger dyed, and was carryed by the aungels in to Abrahams bosome. The ryche man also dyed, and was buried.

And beinge in hell in tormentes, he lyfte vp his eyes and sawe Abraham a farr off, and Lazarus in his bosome, and he cryed and said: father Abraham, haue mercy on me, and sende Lazarus, that he maye dyp the tye of his eyer in water, and cole my tong: for I am tormented in this flame. But Abraham said vnto him: Sonne, remember that thou in thy lyf tyme receyuedst thy good thynges, & Lazarus lykewyse payne. Nowe therfore is he comforted, and thou art punished. Beside all this, betwene you and vs is a great watre set, so that they whiche wolde go frome hence to you can not, neither may come from thence to vs.

Then he said, I praye & therfore father that thou wylt sende him to my fathers house. For I haue fyue brethren: for to warne them lest they also come into this place of torment. Abraham said vnto him: they haue Moses and the prophetes, let the heare them. And he said, nay father Abraham, but yf one come vnto them from the ded, they wolde repent. He said vnto hym: Yf they heare not Moses and the prophetes, neither wyl they byleue, though one rose from ded agayne.

Christ teacheth his disciples to auoyde occasions of euyl, one to forgyue another, and fastly to trust in God and no man to presume in his owne workes. He healeth the ten lepers, speaketh of the latter dayes, and of the end of the worlde.

C A P I. XVII.

Then sayde he to his disciples, it can not be auoyded but that offences come. But two to him thowout whom they come. It were better for him that a millstone were hanged about his necke, and that he were caste in to the see, then he sholde offende one of these litlones. Take heede to your selues. * Yf thy brother trespass agaynst the, rebuke him: and if he repent, forgyue him. And though he synne agaynst the seven tymes in a daye, and seven tymes in a daye turne agayne to the, sayinge: it repenteth me, forgyue him.

And the apostles sayd vnto the Lord: encrease our fayth. And the Lord said: yf ye had sayth lyke a graine of mustard seed, ye sholde saye vnto this sycaigne tree, plucke thy selfe vp by the rootes, and plant thy selfe in the see and he sholde obey you.

Who is it of you, yf he had a seruaunt earryng or scyng cattell, that wolde saye vnto him when he were come frome the felde: So quychly and syt downe to meate, and wolde not rather saye to him, make redye wherewith I maye sup, and gyde vp thy selfe and serue me tyll I haue eaten and dronken, and afterwarde, eate thou, and drynke thou? Dothe he thanke that seruaunt because he did that was commaunded hym? I trowe not. So also ye when ye haue done all whiche are commaunded you, saye: we are vnyghteous seruantes. We haue doone that whiche was oure dutye to do.

* And it befell as he wente to Ierusalem, he passed thowowe Samaria and Galile. And as he entred in to a certayne towne, there met hym ten men that were lepers. Whiche made a farr off, and put forth the theyr voyces, and sayde: Iesu master, haue mercy on vs. When he sawe them, he sayde vnto them: Go and shewe your selues vnto the prestes. And Ten lepers.

D And it came to passe as they went, they were clemented. And one of them when he saw he was clemented, turned backe agayne, and with a loud voyce praised God, and fel downe on his face at his feet, and gaue him thanks. And the same was a Samaritane. And Jesus answered and sayd: are there not ten clemented? But where are those nyne? There are not founde that returned agayne to gyue God prayse save onely this straunger. And he sayde vnto him: aryse and go thy waye, thy faythe hath saued the.

E * When he was demaunded of the Pharisees when the kyngdome of God shoulde come he answered them, and sayd: The kyngdome of God cometh not with waiting for. Neither shall men saye: Lo here, lo there, for beholde the kyngdome of God is within you.

And he sayde vnto the disciples: the dayes will come, when ye shall desyre to see one day of the sonne of man, and ye shall not see it. And they shall saye to you: Se here, se there. So ye not, nor folowe them, for as the lyching that appereth out of thone part of heuyn, and shineth vnto the other part of heuyn: * So shall the sonne of man be in his daye. But first must he suffer many thynges, and be refused of this nation.

F As it happened in the tyme of Noe, so shall it be in the tyme of the sonne of man. They ate they dranke, they married wyues, & were giuen in marriage, euen vnto that same day that Noe went in to the arke, and the floode came and destroyed them all. Lyching also, as it chaunced in the dayes of Lot. They ate, they dranke, they bought, they sold, they planted, they buyld. And euen the same daye that Lot went out of Sodom it rained fyre and brimstone from heuyn and destroyed them all. After these examptes shall it be in the daye when the sonne of man shall appere.

G And that day, he that is on the house toppe and his fellows in the house, let him not come downe to take it out. And lyching let not him that is in the felde, turne backe agayne so that he leste behynde. Remember Lots wyfe. Who so euer will leke to saue his lyfe, shall lose it: and who so euer will lose his lyfe, shall saue it. I tell you, in that nyght there shall be two in one bed, the one shall be receyued, and thother forsaken. Two women shall be geuyng drinke togyther, thone shall be receyued, & the other forsaken. And they answered, and sayde to him: where Lord? And he said vnto them: where so euer the body shall be, thither will the Eagles resorte.

H He teacheth to be feruent in prayer. Pharisee and the publican. Charite answere the ruler, and promyseth reward vnto such as suffer losse for his sake.

C A P I. XVIII.

A * And he spake a parable vnto them, signifyinge that men ought alwayes to pray, and not to be terry, saying. There was a Judge in a certayne city, whiche feared not God, neither regarded man. And there was a certeyn wydow in the same city, which came vnto him, sayinge: reuenge me of myne aduersary. And he wolde not for a whyle. But afterwarde he sayde to him selfe: thoughte I feare not God, nor care for man, yet because this wydow troubleth me, I will reuenge her cause, lest at the last she come and hagge on me. And the Lord sayd: heare what the vniuersal Judge sayth. And shall not God avenge his chosen, whiche crye daye and nyght vnto him, though he deferre them? I tel you he will avenge them and that quickly. * Nevertheless when the sonne of man cometh, suppose ye he shall fynde faith on the earth.

I * And he spake this similitude, vnto certayne whiche trusted in them selues that they were perfecte, and despyled other. Two men went vp in to the temple to praye: the one a Pharisee, and thother a Publican. The Pharisee stood and prayed thus with him selfe: God I thanke the that I am not as the rest of men, extortioners, vniuersal, aduocaters, or as this publican. I fast twise in the weeke, I geue tythe of al that I possesse. And the publican standing a farte off, wolde not lye vp by his eyes to heuyn, but smote his brest, saying: God be mercifull to me sinner. I tel you this man departed home to his house iustified more then the other. For euer man that exalteth hym selfe, shall be lowred: And he that lowreth hym selfe, shall be exalted.

K * They brought vnto him also babes, that he shoulde touche them. When his disciples saw that, they rebuked the. But Jesus called them vnto him, and sayde: Suffre the chyldren to come vnto me, & forbyd them not. For of such is the kyngdome of God. Verily, I say to you: who so euer receyuech not the kyngdome of God as a chyld: shall not enter therein.

L And a certayne ruler asked hym, sayinge: good master: what ought I to do, to obtayne euellastynge lyfe? Jesus sayde to hym: Why calledst thou me good? None is good, save God onely. Thou knowest the commandementes: Thou shalt not committe aduoutry, thou shalt not kyll, thou shalt not steale, thou shalt not beare false wytnes. Honour thy father and thy mother. And he sayd, all these haue I kept from my youthe. When Jesus herde that, he sayde vnto him: Yet lackest thou one thyng. Sell all that thou hast, and distribute it vnto the poore, and thou shalt haue treasure in heuyn, and come folowe me. When he herde this he was hery, for he was very ryche.

M When Jesus sawe him mourne, he sayde: How hardy shall they that haue ryches enter in to the kyngdome of God: it is easer for a camell to go thorow a needles eye, then a ryche man to enter into the kyngdome of God. Then sayd they that herde that. And who shall then be saued? And he sayd: Those thynges that are impossible with men, are possible with God.

N Then Peter sayd: Lo, we haue left all, and haue folowed the. And he said vnto the. Verily I saye vnto you: there is no man that leueth houle, eyther father and mother, eyther brethren, or wyfe, or chyldren for the kyngdome of God, whiche shall not receyue moche more in this world, and in the world to come lyfe euellastynge.

O * He toke vnto him the twelue, and sayde vnto them. Beholde we go by to Jerusalem, and all shall be fulfilled that are wyrtten by the prophetes of the sonne of man. He shall be deliuered vnto the gentyles, & shall be mocked and shall be despytfully entreated, and shall be spitted on: and when they haue scourged him they shall put him to deeth, and the thyrde daye he shall aryse agayne. But they vnderstode none of these thynges. And this sayynge was hyd from them. Neither they perceyued the thynges whiche were spoken.

P * And it came to passe as he approached nye vnto Hierico, a certeyn blynde man sat by the way syde begging. And when he herd the people passe by, he asked what it meant. And they said vnto him, that Jesus of Nazareth passed by. And he cryed, sayinge: Jesus the sonne of Dauid, haue mercye on me. And they whiche went before rebuked him, that he shoulde be syle. But he cryed so moche the more, * thou sonne of Dauid, haue mercye on me. So Jesus stode syle, and commaunded him to be brought vnto him. And when he was come nere, he asked him saying: what wilt thou that I do vnto the? And he said, Lord, I maye receyue my sight. Jesus sayde vnto him: receyue thy sight, thy faith hath saued the. And anon he sawe, & folowed him praisynge God. And all the people when they sawe it, gaue prayse to God.

Q Of zachus, and the ten seruantes to whome the talentes were deliuered. Chryst rydeth to Jerusalem, and wyrteth ouer it.

C A P I. XIX.

A * And he entred and went thorow Hierico. And beholde there was a man named Zachus, whiche was a ruler amonge the Publicans, and was ryche. And he sought to se Jesus, what he wold be: & coulde not for the preace, because he was lytle of stature. And runnyng before, clymbed vp in to a myddle figge tree to se him: for he wolde come that waye. And when Jesus came to the place, he looked vp, and sawe hym, and said vnto him: Zachus, hasten the downe, for to day I must abyde at thy house. And he came downe hastily, and receyued hym ioyfully. And when they sawe that, they all grudged, saying: He is gone in to terpe with a synfull man.

R And Zachus stode forth and sayde vnto the Lord: Beholde Lord, the halfe of my goodes I geue to the poore: and if I haue done any man wronge, I restore hym foure folde. And Jesus sayde to him: this daye is healt he came vnto this house, for as moche as he also is become the chyld of Abraham. * For the sonne of man is come to seke and to saue the losse.

S * As they herde these, he put to and spake: because he was nye to Hierusalem, and because they thoughte the kyngdome of God shoulde shortly appere. He sayde therefore: * A certayne noble man wente in to a farre countrey, to receyue hym a kyngdome, and to come agayne. So he called his tenne seruantes, and deliuered them tenne poundes, sayinge vnto them. Occyppye tyll I come. But his cytyens hated hym, and sent a messaige after him, saying: we will not haue this man to reygne ouer vs.

T And it came to passe when he was come agayne and had receyued his kyngdome, he commaunded his seruantes to be called vnto him (to whome he gaue his money) to wyrt what euery man had marchaundysed. Then came the first, sayinge: Lord, thy pounde hath encreased ten poundes. And he sayde vnto hym.

U * Well good seruant, because thou hast ben faythfull in a very lytle thyng, haue thou auctoritie ouer ten cyties. And the seconde came, saying: Lord, thy pounde hath encreased fyue poundes. He sayde also to this: and be thou also ruler ouer fyue cyties.

V And an other came and sayd: Lord beholde thy pounde, whiche I haue kepte in a naphyn, for I feared the because thou art a stern man: thou takest by that thou laydest not downe, and repest that thou bydest not sowe. And he said vnto him: * Of thyne owne mouth iudge I the, thou euyl seruant. Knewest thou that I am a stern man, takinge by that I layde not downe, & repest that I byd not sowe. Wherefore then gauest thou my money in to the banke, that at my commynge I myght haue receyued myne owne with gaynes?

W And he sayd to them that stode by: take fro him that pounde, and geue it hym that hath the ten poundes. And they sayd vnto him, Lord he hath tenne poundes. I saie vnto you, that vnto euery one that hath, it shall be giuen, and from him that hath not, eue that he hath shall be taken from him. Whereouer those myne enemyes which wolde not I wold reigne ouer them, bringe hither, and sle them before me. * And when he had thus spoken, he went before, goinge by to Jerusalem.

X And it fortuned, when he was come nye to Bethphage and Bethany, besydes mount called Oliuet, he sent two of his disciples, sayinge: Go in to the towne ourt agaynst you. In whiche as soone as ye are come, ye shall fynde a colte tyed wheron yet neuer man sate. Loose hym and bringe hym hither. And if any man aske you, why do ye loose him, thus ye shall saye vnto him, the Lord hath neede of hym.

Y They that were sent, went they way and founde euen as he had said vnto them. And as they were lookinge the colte, the owners of it sayd vnto them: why loose ye the colte? And they sayd, the Lord hath neede of him. And they brought him to Jesus. And castinge there rayment on the colte, they sate Jesus thereon. And as he went, they spredd the clothes in the waye.

Z And when he nether approached nere to the descente of the mounte Oliuet, the hole multitude of the disciples began to reioyse, and prayse God with a great voyce, for all the myracles that they hadde sene, sayinge: blessed be the kyng that cometh in the name of the Lord.

Loide: pear in heuen, and glozy in the highest. And some of the Pharisees of the trayne sayd to him: Master, rebuke thy disciples. He answered and sayd vnto them: I tell you if these wolde hold your peare, the stones wolde crye.

* And when he was come nere, he behelde the city, & wept on it sayinge. Yf thou knewest also euen in this daye the thynges apperteyning vnto thy peare. But nowe are they hyd frome thyne eyes. For the dayes shall come vpon the that thy enemyes shall cast a banke about the and besiege the, and kepe the in on euery syde, and make the euen with the ground, with thy chyliden which are in the. And they shall not leue in þ one stone vpon an other, because thou knowest not the tyme of thy visitacion.

And he entred the temple, and began to cast out them that soulede therein, and them that bought, sayinge vnto them: it is wyrtten in my house is the house of prayer, but ye haue made it a den of theues. And he taught daily in the temple. * The high priestes and the Scribes and the chiefe of the people went aboute to destroye him, but coulde not fynde what to do. For all the people did hange of his mouth hearpyng him.

¶ They aske Chyfte one question, and he asketh them an other. The parable of the vnyerde. Of tribute to be gyuen vnto Cesar, and how Chyft stoppeth the mouthes of the Sadduces.

C A P I.

X X.

A * And it befell in one of those dayes as he taught the people in the temple and preached the gospell, the chiefe priestes and Scribes came with the elders, and spake vnto him, sayinge: * Tell vs by what auctorite thou doest these thynges? Either who is he that gave the this auctorite? He answered and sayde vnto them: I also wyll aske you a word, and answer me. The baptisme of Iohn was it from heuē or of men? And they thought within them selues, sayinge: yf we shall saye from heuē: he wyll saye: why then belyued ye him not? But yf we shall saye, of men: all the people wyll stone vs. For they be ascerteyned that Iohn is a prophet. And they answered, they coulde not tell whence it was. And Iesus sayde vnto them: neyther tell I you by what auctorite I do these.

B Then began he to speake to the people this parable. * A certayne man planted a vnyerde, and let it forth to husbandmen, & went him selfe in to a straunge countrey for a greete season. And when the tyme was come, he sent a seruaunt to the husbandmen that they wolde gyue him of the frutes of the vnyerde. And they dyd beat him, and sent him away emptye. And agayne he sente yet an other seruaunte. But they dyd beate him, and foule entreated him also, and sent him away emptye. He sent the thyrde to, and him they wounded, and cast out. Then sayd the Loide of the vnyerde: What shall I do? I wyll sende my dere sonne, him peradventure they wyll reuerence when they se him.

But when the sermers sawe him, they reas-soned within them selues sayinge: this is the heyre, come let vs kyll hym, that the inheritance maye be ours. And they cast him out of the vnyerde, and kyllid him. Nowe, what shall the Loide of the vnyerde do vnto them? He wyll come and destroye these sermers, and wil let out his vnyerde to other. When they herde that, they sayd: God forbid.

And he behelde them, and said: what meaneth this then that is wyrtten: * The stone that the buylders refused, the same is made the heed corner stone? Who so euer stumbe at that stone shall be broken: but on whom so euer it fall, it wyll grynde him to powder. And the hyghe priestes and Scribes the same hour went aboute to laye handes on hym, but they feared the people. For they wyll he spake this parable agaynst them.

And they watched hym, and sente for the espyes, whiche wolde sayne them selues perfect to take him in his wordes, and to deliuer him vnto the power and auctorite of the ruler. And they asked him, sayinge: Master, we knowe that thou sayest and teachest rightly: neyther considerest thou the person, but teachest the waye of God truly. Is it lawfull for vs to gyue Cesar tribute or no? He perceyued their craftines, and sayde vnto them: * why tempte ye me? Shewe me a penny. Whose image and superscription hath it? They answered & sayde, Cessars. And he said vnto them: Gyue then vnto Cesar that whiche belongeth vnto Cesar, & to God that whiche pertaineth to god. And they could not reprove his sayinge before the people. But they maruelled at his answer, and helde their peare.

E There came to him certayne of the Sadduces, whiche deny there is any resurrection. And they asked him, sayinge: * Master, Moses wrote vnto vs: Yf any mans brother dye haupynge a wyfe, and the same dye without issue, that then his brother shold take his wyfe, and rayle vp seed vnto his brother. There were seven brethren, and the first toke a wyfe, and dyed without issue. And the seconde toke the wyfe, and he dyed chyldelesse. And the thyrde toke her / yf he wyll the residue of the seven, and lette no issue behynde them, and dyed. Last of all the woman died also. Now at the resurrection whose wyfe of them shall she be? For seven had hee to wyfe.

Iesus answered and sayde vnto them. The chyliden of this worlde mary wyues, and are gyuen to maryge, but they which shal be made worthye for that worlde, and for the resurrection from deth, neither marye wyues, ne are maryed, nor can dye any more. For they are angell lyke, and are the sonnes of God, in as moche as they are the chyliden of the resurrection. Now that the deed shall tpe agayne, also Moses signified besydes the bulle, when he sayde: * the Loide God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. But he is not the God of the deed, but of them which lyue. For all lyue in him. Then certeyn of the Pharisees answered and sayd: Master, thou hast well sayde. And after that durst they aske him nothyng any more.

Thm

S Then sayd he vnto them: * how say they that Chyfte is Dauids sonne? And Dauid him selfe saythe in the boke of the Psalmes: * The Loide sayd vnto my Loide, syt on my ryght hande, tyll I make thynne enemyes thy fote stole. So Dauid calleth hun Loide: and how is he then his sonne?

¶ Then in the audience of all the people, he sayde vnto his disciples: * beware of the scribes, which wyll go in long clochyng / and loue grettynges in the markets, and the hyest seates in chasembles, & the chiefe rowmes at festes, which deuour wydwomes houses, and that vnder pretence of longe prayyng / these shall receyue greater damnacion.

A S he behelde, he sawe the ryche men castinge in thei ostrynges in to the treasury. And he sawe also a certayne poore wydwome castinge in thyrer two myres. And he sayd: of a truthe I say vnto you, this poore wydwome hath put in more then they all. For they all haue of theyr superfluite put to the gyftes of god, but this of her penury hath cast in all the substance that she had.

¶ As some spake of the temple howe it was garnished with goodly stones and iewels, he sayde. * The dayes wyll come, when of these whiche ye se / shal not be lefte stone vpon stone that shal not be thowen downe. And they asked him, sayinge: Master when shal these be, and what signe is there when they shal come to passe.

¶ And he said: take hede ye be not deceyued. For many shall come in my name, sayinge / I am he: and the tyme appoereth. folowme ye not them therefore. But when ye heare of warres and sedicions, be not affrayde. For these muste fynde come, but the ende soloweth not forthwith. When sayd he vnto them: Nacion shal tpe agaynst nacion, and kyngdom agaynst kyngdom, and great earthquakes shal be in all quarters, and hunger, and pestilence, and fearful thynges. And greete signes shal there be from heuen.

¶ But before all these they shal lay their handes on you and pursue you, deliueryng you vp to chasembles, and in to pylson / and byrnyng you before kynges and rulers for my name. And this shal chaunce you for a testimonye. But therefore in your hertes, not to stude before what ye shal answer: for my selfe shal gyue you a mouthe and wyldome, wherby to all youre aduersaryes shal not be hable to gaine saye or resist. Yea, ye shal be betrayed of youre fathers and mothers, and of youre brethren, and kynsmen, and louers / and some of you shal they put to deth. And hated shal ye be of all men for my name. And an heare of your heed shal not perperde. With your patience possesse your soules.

¶ And when ye se Ierusalem besieged with hostes / then vnderstande, that the desolacion of it is nye. Then lette them whiche are in Jewye, flee to the mountaynes. And let them whiche are in the myddes of it, departe our. And let not them that are in other countreys entre therein. For these be the dayes of vengeance, to hurll all that are wyrtten. But woo to women which chylde, and to them that gyue sucke in those dayes: for there shal be greate trouble in the lande, and warthe ouer all this people. And they shal fall on the edge of the swerde, and shal be lead captiue in to all nations. And Ierusalem shal be troden vnder fote of the Gentyles, tyll the tymes of the Gentyles be fulfilled.

* And there shal be sygnes in the sonne, and moone, and in sterres / and vpon the erthe affliction of people, in despayre, the see and floodes roynge, men consuminge for feare, and loyng after those thynges which shal come on the erth. For the powers of the heuens shal moue. And then shal they se the sonne of man come in a cloude with power and great glozy. When these thynges begyn to come to passe, then loke vp, and lyfte vp your heedes, for your redemption draweth nye.

¶ And he spake to them a synilitude: We holde the figge tree and all other trees, when they shoute for the theyr budde, ye se and knowe of youre owne selues that sommer is nowe nere. So also ye (when ye se these come to passe) vnderstande, that the kyngdom of God is nye. Certeyn I saye vnto you, this generation shal not passe, tyll all be fulfilled. Heuen and erthe shal passe, but my wordes shal nor passe.

* Take hede to youre selues, lest youre hertes be greued with surtetyng and drunkenesse and cares of this worlde, and that day come sodeynly on you. For as a snare shal it come on all them that syt on the face of the erthe. Watche therefore continually, prayyng that he maye be hadde worthy to see all this that shal come, and that ye maye stande before the sonne of man.

¶ In the daye tyme he taughte in the temple, and at nyght he wente out and lodged in the mounte Oluyete. * And all the people came in the morninge to hym, in the temple, to heare hym.

* Then came the day of sweete bread when of necessity the Easter lambe muste be offered. And he sente Peter and Iohn, sayinge: Go prepare the Easter lambe, that we maye eate. They sayd to him: Where wyllste thou, that we prepare? And he sayd vnto them: Beholde when ye be entred in to the cite, there shall a man mete you bearynge a pycche of water: hym folowe in to the same house that he entrecch in, and saye vnto the householder. The master saythe vnto the: where is the gelle chambr, where I shal eate my Passouer with my disciples? And he shall shewe you a greete poyntre paved. There make redye. For I saye vnto you henceforth I wyll not eate of it any moze, tyl it be fulfilled in the kyngdome of God. * And he toke the cup, and gaue thankes and said: Take this, and drynke it amonge you. For I saye vnto you, I wyll not drynke of the frute of the vyne, tyl the kyngdome of God be come.

And takyng bread and grynng thankes, he brake and gaue it to them, sayinge: This is my body whiche is gyven for you. This do for my remembraunce. * Afterwylle also the cuppe when he had supped, sayinge: This cuppe is the newe testament in my blood, whiche is shedde.

But loo, the hande of him that betrayeth me, is with me on the table. And the sonne of man goeth as is appoynted: But woe to that man by whom he is betrayed. And they began to enquerie among them selues, whiche of them it shoulde be that shoulde do that.

But the greater amonge you, shal be as the ydger / a the chiefe, as the ministre. For whether is greater he that sitteth at the table, or he that serueth? Is not he that sitteth at the table? But I am among you, as he that ministrerth / ye are they which haue abided with me in tribulations. And I dispose vnto you a kyngdome as my father hath disposed to me: that ye maye eate and drynke at my table in my kyngdome, and sit on seates, and iudge the xij. tribes of Israel. *

And the Lorde said: Simon, Simon, beholde Satan hath desired you, to spit you as it were whete / but I haue prayed for the, that thy fayth faile not. And when thou art conuerted strengthen thy brethren. But he sayd vnto him: * Lorde I am redye to go with the in to prison, and to deeth. And he sayd: I tell the Peter the cocke shall not crowe this daye, tyl thou haue thysle denyed that thou knowest me.

And he sayde vnto them: when I sent you without wallet and scrippe and shoes: lacked ye oughte? And they sayde, no. And he sayd to them: But nowe he that hath a wallet, let him take it vp, and lyke wyse his scripp. And he that hath no swerde, let him sell his cote and bye one. For I saye vnto you, that yet that whiche is wyrtten muste be performed in me: * * * * * And with the twelue was he nombred. For those thynges whiche are of me, haue an ende. And they sayd: Lorde, beholde here are two swerdes. And he sayd vnto them: it is ynough.

And he came out, and went as he was wont to moune Oliuet. And the disciples folowed hym. And when he came to the place, he said to them, praye, lest ye fall in to temptation.

And he was diuyned from them aboute a stonys cast, and kneled downe and prayed, sayinge: Father, if thou wyllste, withdrowe this cup from me. Nevertheless, not my wyll, but thyne be fulfilled. And there appered an angell vnto him from heuen, comfortyng hym. And beinge in an agonye, he prayed somewhat longer. And his sweat was lyke dropes of blood, trycklyng downe to the grounde. And he arose vp from prayer and came to his disciples, and founde them slepyng for heuynesse, and said to them: why slepe ye? * * * * * I praye, lest ye fall in to temptation.

Whyle he yet spake / beholde, there came a company, and that he was called Judas one of the twelue, went before them, and ptealed nye vnto Iesus to kysse him. And Iesus said vnto him: Judas betrayest thou the sonne of man w a kysse? When they whiche were aboute him sawe what wolde folowe, they said vnto him: Lorde shall we symple with the swerde. * * * * * And one of them smote a seruant of the hyest priest and smote of his right eare. And Iesus answered and said, suffice ye thus farre togethe. And he touched his eare, and healed him.

Then Iesus sayde vnto the chiefe priestes and rulers of the temple, and the elders whiche were come to him. We ye come out as vnto a thefe with swerdes and staves? When I was dayly with you in the temple, ye sayde no handes vpon me. But this is your houre, and the power of darkenesse. Then toke they hym, and ledde hym, and broughte him to the hygge pyccles house. But Peter folowed a farre of.

When they had kyndled a fyre in the myddes of the palace, and were set downe together * Peter also satte downe amonge them. And a certayne damsell behelde him as he satte by the fyre, and beholdyng hym sayd: This was also with him. When he denyed hym, sayinge woman I knowe him not. And after a while whyle, an other saue him and said: thou arte also of them. And Peter sayd, man, I am not. And about the disaunce of an houre, an other asseynt saying: verily this felowe was with him, for he is of Galile / and Peter sayd, man, I wote not what thou sayest. And forthwith whyle he yet spake, the cocke crowe. And the Lorde turned abacke and looked vpon Peter. And

And Peter remembred the wordes of the Lorde, how he said vnto him, before the cocke crowe, thou shalt denye me thysle. And Peter wente out, and wepte bitterly.

And the men that helde Iesus mocked him, symple and byndfoldyng hym, they strake hym on his face. And asked him sayinge: arte thou who it is that smote the? And many other thynges despitfully said they against hym.

And as sone as it was daye, the elders of the people, and the hygh priestes and scribes came together and led hym in to their concile sayinge art thou very Chylye? tell vs. And he sayde to them: yf I shall tell you, ye wyll not beleue. And yf also I aske you, ye wyll not answer me or let me go. Hereafter shall the sonne of man sit on the ryghte hande of the power of God. Then sayd they all: art thou then y son of God? He sayd to them: ye saye that I am. Then sayde they: what ned we any further wytnes? We oure selues haue herde of his owne mouth.

I Iesus is brought before Pilate and Herode. The women make lamentation for him. He prayeth for his enemies, forgiveth the thefe vpon his ryght hande, and dyeth on the crosse, and is buryed.

C A P I. XXIII.

And the hole multitude of them arose, and led hym vnto Pilate. And they began to accuse him, sayinge: We haue founde this man peruertryng the people, and sobboldyng to paye tribute to Cesar: sayinge that he is Chylye a kyng. And Pilate examined hym, saying: art thou the kyng of the Jewes? He answered him and said: thou sayest. When said Pilate to the hygge pyccles, a to the people: I fynde no faute in this man. And they were the more feare, saying: He maketh commotions in the people, teachinge throughout Iury, and began at Galile, euen to this place.

When Pilate herde menyon of Galile, he asked whether the ma were of Galile. And as sone as he knewe that he was of Herodes iurisdiction, he sent him to Herode, which was also at Jerusalem in those dayes. And when Herode sawe Iesus, he was exceedingly glad. For he was desirous to se him of a longe season, because he hadde herde many thynges of him, and trusted to haue sene some myracle doone by him. Then questioned he with him of many thynges. But he answered hym not one worde. The hygge pyccles and scribes rode and accused him warpely. But Herode with his men of warre despyed hym, and after he had mocked him, arayed him in whyte, and sente hym agayne to Pilate. * And the same daye Pilate and Herode were made frendes togethe. For before they were at variance.

Pilate assembled the hygge pyccles, and rulers, and the people, and said vnto them: ye haue brought this man vnto me, as one that peruertryd the people. And beholde I haue examined hym before you, haue founde no faute in this man, of those thynges wherof ye accuse him. No no: yet Herode. For I sente you to him: and lo, nothyng of worthy of deeth is done to hym. I wyll therefore chasen hym, and let hym go. * For of necessity he muste haue let one lose vnto them at that fest.

And all the people cryed togethe, sayinge: awaye with hym, and deliuer to vs Barabbas: whiche for insurrection made in the cite and murder, was cast in prison. Pilate spake agayne to them, wyllpyng to dymysse Iesus. And they cryed, sayinge: Crucifye him, crucifye him. He sayd vnto them the thrid tyme. What euill hath he done? I fynde no cause of deeth in him, I wyll therefore chasen hym, and let hym lose. * And they cryed with a loude voyce, and requyred that he myght be crucified. And the voyce of them and of the hygge pyccles preuailed.

And Pilate gaue sentence that it shoulde be as they requyred, and let lose vnto them, hym that for insurrection and murder was caste in to prison, whome they desired / and deliuered Iesus to do with him what they wolde. * And as they led hym awaye, they caught one Symon a Cyrenense commyng out of the felde, and on him layde they the crosse, to beare it after Iesus.

And there folowed hym a great company of people and of women, whiche women bewailed & lamented hym. But Iesus turned backe vnto them, and sayde: Doughters of Jerusalem, wepe not for me, but wepe for your selues and for your chyldren. For beholde, the dayes be commyng when men shall saye: * happy are the bareyn, and the wombes that neuer bare, and the brestes which neuer gaue sucke. When shall they begyn to saye to the mountaynes, fall on vs / and to the hylls, couer vs. For yf they do this to a grene tree, what shall be done to the dye.

And there were two felons led with him to be slayne. * And when they were come to the place called Caluary, there they crucified hym, and the felons, one on the right hande, and an other on the left. Then said Iesus: father, forgive them, for they wote not what they doo. And they parted his rayment, and cast lottes. And the people rode and behelde.

Also the rulers mocked him with them sayinge: he holpe other, let him helpe him selfe / yf he be Chylye the chosen of God. The souldyours also mocked him, and came and gaue him byneyger and said: Yf thou be that kyng of the Jewes, saue thy selfe. And his inscription was wyrtten ouer him, in Greke, and Latyn, and Hebrew letters: This is the king of the Jewes.

Nowe, one of the felons whiche hanged, rayled on hym, sayinge: Yf thou be Chylye, saue thy selfe, and vs. The other answered and rebuked hym, sayinge: Neither fearest thou God, because thou arte in the same damnacion? We are iustly punysshed, for we receiue accordyng to our dedes: But this man hath done nothyng amysse. And he sayd vnto Iesus: Lorde, remember me when thou comest in thy kyngdome. And Iesus sayde vnto him: Verily I saye vnto the, to daye shalt thou be with me in paradysse.

It was aboute the sixte houre. And there came a darkenes ouer all the lande, tyll the thirde houre, and the sonne was darkened. And the vable of the temple dyd rent euen thorow the myddes. And Jesus cryed with a great voyce and sayd: Father, in to thy handes I comende my spere. And when he thus had said, he gaue vp the ghost. When the Centurion saw what had happened, he glorified God, saying. Verily, this was a righteous man. And all the people that came together to that spght, be- holding the thynges which were done, and the things which he sayde, and returned home. And all his acquaintaunce, and the women that folowed him from Galile, stood afarre of beholdinge these thynges.

And lo, a man named Joseph, a councey- lous, being a good man and a iuste, who was not conscripte to the councell and dede of them, whiche was of Aramatia, a cite of the Jewes: whiche same also waited for the kyngdom of god: this man went vnto Pilate and begged the bodye of Jesus, and toke it to tyme, and wrapped it in a linnen clothe, and layde it in an hewen tombe, wherein was neuer man before layde. And it was the daye of preparinge, and the Saboth daye on. The women that folowed after whiche came with him from Galile, beheld the sepulchre, and how his bodye was layde. And they returned and prepared obouers and oymntes, but rested the Saboth day, accordyng to the commaundment.

C API. XXXIII.

Of the morow after the Saboth, early in the mornynge, they came vnto the tombe, and brought the spices whiche they hadde prepared, and other women with them. And they founde the stone rolled away from the sepulchre, and went in, but founde not the bodye of the Lorde Jesus. And it happened as they were amased therat: Lo, two men stode by them in whynnyng garments. And as they were afrayde, and bowed downe theyr faces to the erth, they sayd to them: why seke ye the lyving among the ded? He is not here, but is risen. Remembre howe he spake vnto you when he was yet with you in Galile, sayinge that the sonne of man must be deliuered in to the handes of synfull men, and be crucified, and the thyrde daye rise agayne.

And they remembred his wordes, and returned from the sepulchre, and tolde all these vnto the eleven, and to all the rest. It was Mary Magdalene, and Joanna, and Mary of James, and other that were with them, whiche tolde these thynges vnto the apostles: and theyr wordes seemed vnto them as a fable, neyther beleued they them. Then arose Peter, and came vnto the sepulchre, and lopyng downe sawe the linnen clothes layde alone, and departed wonderinge in hym selfe at the thynges happened.

And beholde, two of them went that same daye to a towne beyng frome Jerusalem aboute the score furlonges, called Emmaus: and they talked together of all these thynges that had happened. And it chaunced whyle they communed together and reasoned, that Jesus hym selfe diuine nere, & went with them. But theyr eyes were holden, that they coulde not knowe him. And he sayd vnto them: What communacions are these that ye haue one to another as ye walke and are sadde? And one of them named Cleophas, answered and sayd vnto hym: arte thou alone a stranger in Jerusalem, and haste not knowne that haue chaunced therein, in these dayes? To whome he sayde, what thynges?

And they sayd vnto hym: of Jesu the Nazarene, whiche was a prophete myghty in dede and woide before God, and all the people. And howe the hygh priestes, and our rulers deliuered him to be condemned to death: and haue crucified him. But we trusted that it hadde ben he, that shoulde haue deliuered Israel. And as touchyng all these thynges, the daye is euen the thyrde daye, sythen they were done.

Yea, and certayne women of our compaignie made vs assayed, whiche came early vnto the sepulchre, and founde not his bodye: and came, sayinge, they hadde sene a vision of aungels, whiche sayd that he was alive. And certayne of them whiche were with vs went to the sepulchre, and founde it euen so as the women had sayd: but him they sawe not.

And he sayd vnto them: O folles and slowe in heart to beleue all that the Prophetes haue spoken: Doughte not Christus to haue suffered these thynges, and to entre in to his glorie? And he began at Moyses, and at all the Prophetes, and interpreted vnto the in all the scriptures which were wyrtten of him. And they approached the towne whiche they went to. And he made as though he wolde haue gone further. But they constrained him sayinge, as byde with vs, for it draweth towards night, and the daye is farre passed. And he went in to eate with them.

And it came to passe, as he sat at table with them, he toke bread, blessed it, brake and gaue to them. And theyr eyes were opened, and they knewe him, and he banished away from them. And they sayd bytwene them selues: Dyd not oure hertes burne within vs whyle he talked with vs by the way, & whyle he opened to vs the scriptures? And they rose by the same houre, and returned to Jerusalem, and founde the eleven gathered together, and them that were with them, whiche sayd: the Lorde is risen in dede, and hath appeared to Symon. And they told what thynges was done in the waye, and howe they knewe hym in the breakinge of bread.

As they thus spake, Jesus hym selfe stode in myddes of them, and sayd vnto them: peace

I. 4

In begynnynge was the woide, and the woide was with God: and the woide was God. This was in begynnynge with God. All were made by it, and without it was made nothing that was made.

In it was lyfe, and the lyfe was the lyghte of men, and the lyghte shyneth in the darkenes, and the darkenes comprehended it not.

There was a man sent frome God, whose name was Iohn. This came for a wytnes, to testifie of the lyghte, that all men throughte him might blynde. He was not the lyght, but to beare wytnes of the lyght. That was the true lyght whiche lyghteth all men commyng in to the woide. He was in the woide, and the woide was made by him, and the woide knewe him not.

He came in to his owne, and his owne receyued him not. But as many as receyued him, to them he gaue power to be made the sonnes of God, by the woide on his name whiche were borne, not of bloode, nor of the will of the fleshe, nor of the will of man, but of God.

And the woide was made fleshe, and dwelt amonge vs, and we sawe the glorie of it, as the glorie of the onely begotten sonne of the father, full of grace and trouthe.

Iohn wytnesseth of him, and cryed sayinge: This was he of whome I spake, he that cometh after me, was before me, because he was before I was. And of his fulnes haue all we receyued, and grace for grace. For the lawe was given by Moyses, but grace & trouthe came by Jesus Christus. No man hath sene God at any tyme. The onely begotten sonne, which is in the bosome of the father, he hath declared him.

And this is the recorde of Iohn: when the Jewes sent priestes and Leuites from Jerusalem, to aske him, what arte thou? And he confessed and denyed not, and confessed I am not Christus. And they asked him: what then? Arte thou Hely? And he sayd: I am not. Arte thou the prophet? And he answered no. Then sayd they vnto him: what arte thou, that we may geue an answer to them that sente vs? What sayest thou of thy selfe? He sayd: I am a voyce of one cryyng in the wyldernes, make straite the waye of the Lorde, as sayd the prophet Esaye.

And they whiche were sente, were of the Pharisees. And they asked him, and said vnto him: Why baptisest thou then, if thou be not Christus, nor Hely, neither the prophet? Iohn answered them, sayinge: I baptise with water: but one is come amonge you, whome ye knowe not: he it is that cometh after me, whiche was before me, whose shoe latchet I peate be with you. And they were abashed and ascrayde, supposyng that they had sene a spierite. And he sayde vnto them: why are ye troubled, and why do thoughtes arise in your hertes? Beholde my handes and my fete, for it is euen my selfe. Handle me and se: for spierites haue not fleshe and bones, as ye se me haue. And when he had thus spoken, he shewed them his handes and his fete. And whyle they yet beleued not for loye and wonder, he sayd vnto them: Haue ye here any meate? And they gaue him a pece of a broyled fyssh, and of an hony combe. And he toke it, and ate it before them.

And he sayd vnto them. These are the woide whiche I spake vnto you whyle I was yet with you, that all must be fulfilled whiche were wyrtten of me in the lawe of Moyses, and in the prophetes, and in the psalmes. Then opened he theyr mynde, that they myght vnderstande the scriptures, and sayd vnto them. Thus it is wyrtten, & thus it behoued Christus to suffer, and to rise agayne frome deathe the thyrde daye, and that repentance and remission of synnes shoulde be preached in his name amonge all nations, & begynnynge at Jerusalem. Ye are wytnesses of these thynges. And lo, I sende the promyse of my father vpon you. But tarye ye in the cite of Jerusalem, tyll ye be endued with power frome an hye. And he led them out in to Bethanye, and lyce by his handes and blessed them. And it came to passe, as he blessed them, he departed from them, and was borne up in to heuen. And they worshyped him, & returned to Jerusalem with great loye, and were continually in the temple prayyng and blessing god. Amē.

am not worthy to vnloose. These thinges were done in Bethabara beyonde Iordane, where Iohn dyd baptise.

† The nexte daye Iohn sawe Iesus commynge vnto him, and said: beholde the lambe of God, which taketh awaye the synne of the worlde. This is he of whome I said. But he that sent me to baptise in water, he sayde vnto me, vpon whome thou shalt se the sperte descende and tarye vpon hym, this is he whiche baptiseth with the holy ghoſte. And I sawe and testified that this is the son of God. †

The nexte daye after, Iohn stode agayne, and two of his disciples. And he behelde Iesus as he walked by, and sayde: Beholde the lambe of God. And the two disciples herd him speake and folowed Iesus. And Iesus turned aboute, and sawe them folowe, and sayd vnto them: What seeke ye? They said vnto him: Rabbi (whiche is by interpretation, Master) where dwellest thou? He sayde vnto them: come and se. They came and sawe where he dwelt, and abode with him that daye. For it was about the tenth houre.

John. i.

One of the two whiche herde Iohn speake and folowed Iesus, was Andew Symon Peters brother. This sperte founde his brother Symon, and sayde vnto hym: we haue founde Messias, whiche is by interpretation, anointed: and broughte hym to Iesus. And Iesus behelde hym and sayde: thou art Symon the sonne of Ionas: thou shalt be called Cephas, whiche is by interpretation a stone.

The daye folowynge Iesus wolde go in to Galile, and founde Philip, and said vnto him: folowe me. Philip was of Bethsaida the cite of Andew and Peter. And Philip founde Nathanael, and sayd vnto hym: We haue founde him of whom Moses in the lawe and the prophetes dyd wyte, Iesus the sonne of Ioseph, a Nazarene. And Nathanael sayde vnto him: can ther any good come out of Nazareth? Philip said to him: Come and se.

Iesus sawe Nathanael commynge to him, and sayde of him. Beholde a ryght Israelyte, in whome is no guyle. Nathanael sayde vnto hym: where knewest thou me? Iesus answered, and sayde vnto him: Before that Philip called the, when thou wast vnder the figg tree, I sawe the. Nathanael answered and sayde vnto him: Rabbi, thou art the sonne of God, thou art the kynge of Israel. Iesus answered and said vnto him: Because I sayd vnto the, I sawe the vnder the figge tree, thou biluest. Thou shalt se greater thynges then these. And he sayd vnto him: Verily, verily, I saye vnto you: hereafter shall ye se heuen open, and the aungels of God ascendynge and descendynge ouer the sonne of man.

At the thyrde daye, was there a marriage in Cana a cite of Galile, and the mother of Iesus was there. And Iesus was byden also & his disciples vnto the marriage. And when the wyne failed, the mother of Iesus said vnto him: they haue no wyne. Iesus sayde vnto her: woman, what haue I to do with the? myne houre is not yet come. His mother sayd vnto the ministers: what so euer he sayth vnto you, do. And there were standing there, six water pottes of stone, after the maner of the purifying of the Iewes, containing two or thre fyfthens a peece.

And Iesus said vnto them: fylle the water pottes with water. And they fylled them vnto the toppes. And he said vnto them: draw out nowe, and beare vnto the gouernour of the feest. And they bare it. When the ruler of the feest had taked of the water that was turned vnto wyne, and knewe not whence it was, (but the ministers whiche drew the water knewe) he called the bydegrome and sayde vnto him: all men at the begynnyng set forth good wyne, and when men were dyonke, then that whiche is worse. But thou hast kepte backe the good wyne tyll now.

This begynnyng of myracles did Iesus in Cana of Galile, and shewed his glory, and his disciples bilueed on him. † After that he descended in to Capernaum, and his mother, and his brethren, and his disciples: and there continued not many dayes.

† And the Iewes after was at hande, and Iesus went vp to Ierusalem, and founde synnynge in the temple those that solde oxen and shepe and wyes, and chaungers of money. And he made a scourge of small cordes, and droue them al out of the temple, with the shepe and oxen, and powzed out the chaungers money. And ouerthrew the tables, and said vnto them that solde doves: Awey with these thynges hère, and make not my fathers house an house of marchaundyse. And his disciples remembred how that it was written: † The zeale of thyne house hath euen eaten me.

Then answered the Iewes, and sayd vnto him: What token shewest thou vnto vs, because thou doest these thinges? Iesus answered and said vnto them: † destroye this temple, and in thre dayes I shall reare it vp agayn. Then said the Iewes. xliij. yeres was this temple a buyldynge: and wilt thou reare it vp in thre dayes? But he spake of the temple of his bodye. As sone therfore as he was risen from deth agayne, his disciples remembred that he thus sayd. And they belueed the scripture, and the wordes whiche Iesus had sayd.

When he was at Ierusalem at Ester in the feest, many bilueed on his name, when they sawe his myracles whiche he dyd. But Iesus put not hym selfe in thei handes, because he knewe all men, and neded not that any shoulde testifie of him. For he knewe what was in man. †

III.

† There was a man of the Pharisees named Nicodemus, a ruler amonge the Iewes. The same came to Iesus by nyght, and sayde vnto him. Rabbi, we knowe thou arte a teacher come frome God. For no man can do these signes that thou doest, except God were with. Iesus answered and sayde vnto him: Verily, verily I say vnto the: onles a man be borne a newe, he can not se the kynngdome of God. Nicodemus sayd vnto him: how can a man be borne when he is olde? can he enter into his mothers wombe, & be borne agayne? Iesus answered: Verily, verily I saye vnto the: onles a man be borne of water and sperte, he can not enter in the kynngdome of God. That whiche is borne of the fleshe is fleshe: and that whiche is borne of the sperte, is sperte. Maruaile not that I sayd to the, ye must be borne a newe. The sperte breatheth where he lyeth, and thou hearest his sounde: but canst not tell whence he cometh, and whether he goeth. So is euerie man that is borne of the sperte.

And Nicodemus answered and sayde vnto hym: howe can these be? Iesus answered and sayde vnto him: arte thou the master of Israel, and knowest not these thinges? Verily, verily I saye vnto the, we speake that we knowe, and witness that we haue seene: and ye receyue not oure wytnes. If when I tell you earthly thinges, ye beleue not: how shulde ye beleue, if I shall tell you heavenly thinges?

And no man ascendeth vp to heuen, but he that came downe frome heauen, the sonne of man whiche is in heauen.

And as Moses lyfted vp the serpent in the wyldernesse, euen so must the sonne of man be lyfted vp, that none that beleueth in hym perishe: but haue eternall lyfe. †

† For God so loueth the worlde, that he hath giuen his onely sonne, that none that beleue in him, shulde perishe: but shuld haue euertlastinge lyfe. For God sent not his sonne into the worlde, to condemne the worlde: but that the worlde through him, might be saued. He that beleueth on him, shall not be condemned. But he that beleueth not, is condemned all redy, because he beleueth not in the name of the only sonne of God. And this is the condemnation, that light is come into the worlde, and the men loued darckenes more then light, because thei dedes were euill. For euerie man that euill doeth, hateth the light: neyther cometh to lyght, lest his dedes shoulde be reproued. But he that doeth trouth, cometh to the lyght: for his dedes might be knowe, how that they are wrought in God. †

After these came Iesus and his disciples in to the land of Iewry, and there he abode with them and baptised. And Iohn also baptised in Enon beyndes Salim, because there was moche water there, and they came, and were baptised. For Iohn was not yett calle in to prison.

† There arose a question betwene Iohns disciples and the Iewes about purgynge. And they came vnto Iohn, & sayde vnto him: Rabbi, he that was with the beyonde Iordane, to whome thou barest wytnesse, beholde he baptiseth, and all men come to hym. Iohn answered, and sayde: A man can receyue no thyng, onles it be giuen him frome heauen. Ye your selues are witnesses, that I sayde: I am not Christ, but am sent before him. He that hath the byrde, is the bydegrome. But the frende of the bydegrome, which standeth by & heareth him, reioiceth greatly of the bydegromes voyce. This my tope is fulfilled. He must increase: and I must abate.

He that cometh from an hyrde, is aboue all: he that is of the earthe, is earthly, and speaketh of the earthe. He that cometh fro heauen, is aboue all, and what he hath seene and herde: that he testifieth: but no man receyueh his testimony. He that hath receyued his testimony, hath set to his seale that God is true. For he whome God hath sent, speaketh the wordes of God. For God giveth not the sperte by measure. The father loueth the sonne, and hath giuen all thinges into his hand. He that beleueth on the sonne hath euertlastinge lyfe: & he that beleueth not the sonne, shall not se lyfe, but the wrath of God abydeh on him. †

† The lounge communication of Christ with the woman of Samaria by the welles syde. How he healeth the rulers sonne.

C A P I.

IIII.

As sone as the Iorde had knowledge, howe the Pharisees had herde, that Iesus made and baptised moo disciples then Iohn (though that Iesus him self baptised not: but his disciples) he sente Jewry, & departed agayne into Galile. And it behoued him to go thorow Samaria. So came he to a cite of Samaria called Sichar, besydes the possessio that Iacob gaue to his sonne Ioseph. And there was Jacobs well. Iesus then weltyed in his toynep, sare thus on the well. And it was about the sixte houre: and there came a woman of Samaria to drawe water. And Iesus sayd vnto her: geue me drinke. For his disciples were gone awaye vnto the towne to bye meate. Then sayde the woman of Samaria vnto him: howe is it, that thou beyng a Iewe, asked drinke of me, beyng a Samaritan? For the Iewes meele not with Samaritans. Iesus answered and sayd vnto her: If thou knewest the gyfte of God, and who it is that saythe to the geue me drinke, thou wouldest haue asked of him, and he wold haue giuen the, lpyunge water. The woman sayd to hym: Syr thou hast nothinge to drinke with to drawe, and the well is depe: frome whence then hast thou that water of lyfe? Arte thou greater then our father Iacob which gaue vs the well, and he him selfe dranche therof, and his chyldren, and his catell?

Iesus answered and sayde vnto her: wote thou to euer drinke of this water, shall thirle a gayne. But whoso euer shall drinke of the water that I shall geue hym, shall neuer be thirle: but the water that I shall geue hym, shall be in him a well of water, springing vp into euerlastinge lyfe. The woman sayde to hym: Syr, geue me of that water, that I thirle not, neyther come hyther to drinke. Jesus sayde vnto her. So and call thy husband, and come hyther. And the woman answered, and sayde to hym: I haue no husbande. Jesus sayde to her: Thou hast well sayd, I haue no husbande. For thou hast had fyue husbandes, and he whome thou now hast, is not thy husbande. That saydest thou truly?

The woman sayde vnto hym: Syr, I perceyue, thou arte a prophete. Our fathers worshipped in this mountayne: and ye saye that in Ierusalem is the place, where men oughte to worshyppe. Jesus sayde vnto her: woman beleeue me, the houre is commynge, when ye shall neyther in this mountayne nor yet at Ierusalem, worshyppe the father. Ye worshyppe ye wot not what: we knowe what we worshyppe. For helth cometh of the Jewes. But the houre cometh and now is, when the true worshypers shall worshyppe the father in spyte, and trouthe. For such also the father seeketh to worshyp hym. God is a spyte and they that worshyp hym, must worshyppe hym in spyte and trouthe.

The woman sayde vnto hym: I wot well that Messias shall come, which is called Christ. When he is come, he will tell vs all. Jesus sayde to her: I that speake vnto the, am he. And euen with that came his disciples, and merueiled that he talked with the woman. Yet no man sayde vnto hym: What meanest thou, or why talkest thou with her? The woman the left her waterpot, and went her waye into the cite, and sayde to the men. Come, se a man which tolde me all that euer I byd. Is not he Christ? Then they went out of the cite, and came to hym.

In the meane whyle, his disciples prayed hym, sayenge: Master, eate. He sayde vnto them: I haue meate to eate, that ye knowe not of. Then sayde the disciples within them selues: hath any man brought hym meate? Jesus sayde vnto them: my meate is to do the will of him that sent me. And to fulfill his worke. Saye not ye: there are yet foure monethes, and then cometh haruest? Beholde, I saye vnto you, lyfe by your eys, and loke on the regions: for they are whyte already vnto haruest. And he that retheth receyueh reward, and gathereth frute vnto lyfe eternall: that both he that soweth, and he that retheth, in pte together. And herein is the sayenge true, that one soweth and another retheth. I sente you to retheth that wheron ye bestowed no labour. Other men laboured, and ye are entred into their labours.

Many of the Samaritans of that cite beleeued on him, for the sayenge of the woman / which testified: he tolde me all, that euer I byd. Then when the Samaritans were come vnto hym they besought hym, that he wolde stay with them. And he abode there. viij. dayes. And many moo beleeued, because of his owne wordes, and sayde vnto the woman: Now, we beleeue not because of thy sayenge: for we haue herde him oure selues, and knowe that this is in dede Christ, the sauloute of the worlde.

After two dayes, he departed thence, and went into Galile. And Jesus hym self testified that a prophete hath none honoure in his owne countreye. Then as sone as he was come into Galile, the Galileas receyued him which had sene all that he byd, at Ierusalem at the feast. For they went also vnto the feast that daye. And Jesus came agayne into Cana of Galile, where he turned the water, into wyne.

And there was a certayne ruler, whose sonne was sicke at Capernaum. This man as sone as he herde that Jesus was come oute of Jewry into Galile, wente vnto him, and besought him, that he wolde come wyne, and heale his sonne. For he was at point of deeth. Then sayde Jesus to hym: except ye se signes and wonderes, ye can not beleeue. The ruler sayde vnto hym: Syr, come away, or that my childe dye. Jesus sayde to hym: So thy wyfe thy sonne lyueth. And the man beleeued the wordes that Jesus had spoken vnto him, and went his waye. And anon as he went on his waye, his seruantes met him, and told him sayenge: thy childe lyueth. Then enquired he of them the houre when he began to amende. And they sayde vnto him: Yesterday the serueth houre, the feuer left him. And the father knewe that it was the same houre, in which Jesus sayde vnto him: Thy sonne lyueth. And he beleeued, and all his household. This is agayne the seconde myracle that Jesus byd, after he was come oute of Jewry into Galile.

The healeth the man that was sicke eight and thirtie yere. The Jewes accuse him, he answereth for hym self, and reponeth them.

CAP. V.

After that, there was a feast of the Jewes, and Jesus went vp to Ierusalem. And there is at Ierusalem, by the slaughterhouse, a pole called in the希伯来 tongue, Bethesda, hauynge fyue porches, in which laye a great multitude of sicke folke, of blynde, halte and wyddered, waitinge for the mowynge of the water. For an angell went downe at a certayne season into the pole, and troubled the water. Who so euer then first after the sterynge of the water, wente wyne, was made hole of what so euer displeased he had. A certayne man was there, which hadde bene dyspleased. xxxviij. yeres. When Jesus saw hym lye, and knewe that he nowe longe tyme had bene displeased, he sayde vnto hym. Wilt thou be made hole? The sicke man answered hym. Syr, I haue no man when the water is troubled, to put me into the pole. But in fyne tyme, whyle I am aboute to come, another steppeth downe before me.

And Jesus sayde vnto hym: arise, take up thy bedde and walke. And forthwith the man was made hole, and toke vp his bed, and walked. And the same daye was the Sabbath daye. The Jewes therefore sayde to hym that was made hole. It is the Sabbath daye, it is not lawfull for the, to take awaye thy bedde. He answered them: he that made me hole, sayde vnto me: Take vp thy bed, and walke. Then asked they hym: What man is that, which sayde vnto the, take vp thy bed, and walke? But he that was healed, wist not who it was. For Jesus hadde gotten hym self awaye, because there was pte of people in the place.

After that, Jesus founde hym in the temple, and sayde vnto him: Beholde, thou arte made hole, senns no more, lest a worse thinge happen vnto the. The man departed and told the Jewes that it was Jesus, which hadde made hym hole.

And therefore the Jewes byd pursue Jesus, and sought to see him, because he had done this on the Sabbath. And Jesus answered them: My father worketh byther, and I worke. Therefore the Jewes sought the more to kyll hym, not onely because he had broken the Sabbath: but sayd also that God was his father, and made him selfe egall with God.

Then answered Jesus, and sayde to them: Verely, verely I saye vnto you: the sonne can do nothinge of hym selfe, but that he seeth the father do. For what so euer he doth, the father doth also. For the father loueth the sonne, and wherewith him all what so euer he doth. And he will shewe hym greater workes then these, so that ye shall maruaile. For as the father rapeth vp the deede, and quickeneth the, so the sonne also quickeneth whome he will. Neither iudgeth the father any man: but hath gyven all iudgement vnto the sonne, that all men shoulde honour the sonne, as they honour the father. Who so honoureth not the sonne, honoureth not the father, which hath sent hym. Verely, verely I saye vnto you: he that heareth my wordes and beleeueth on him that sent me, hath euerlastinge lyfe, and shall not come into damnacion: but hath passed from deeth vnto lyfe.

Verely, verely I saye vnto you: the howre is commynge, and now is, when the deede shall heare the voyce of the sonne of God. And they that heare, shall lyue. For as the father hath lyfe in hym selfe, so hath he gyven the sonne, to haue lyfe in hym selfe: and hath gyven him power also to iudge, in that he is the sonne of man. Maruaile not at this: the houre shall come, in which all that are in the graues, shall heare his voyce, and shall come forth: they that haue done good, vnto the resurrection of lyfe: and they that haue done euill, vnto the resurrection of damnacion.

I can of my selfe do nothinge. As I heare I iudge, and my iudgement is iuste, because I seeke not my will, but the will of the father which hath sent me. If I beare wytnesse of my selfe, my wytnesse is not true. There is another that beareth wytnesse of me, and I am sure that the wytnesse, which he beareth of me, is true.

Ye sent vnto Iohn, and he bare wytnesse vnto the trouthe. But I receyue not the recorde of man. But these thinges I saye, that ye myght be safe. He was a burnynge, and a shynynge light, and ye wolde for a season haue rioted in his light. But I haue greater wytnesse then the wytnesse of Iohn. For the workes, which the father hath gyven me to fynde: the same workes that I do, beare wytnesse of me, that the father sent me. And the father hym selfe which hath sent me, beareth wytnesse of me. Ye haue not herde his voyce at any tyme nor ye haue sene his shap: And his wordes haue ye not abydinge in you. For whome he hath sent: hym ye beleeue not.

Search the scriptures, for in the ye thinke ye haue eternall lyfe: and they are they which testifie of me. And yet will ye not come to me, that ye myghte haue lyfe. I receyue not pte of me. But I knowe you, that ye haue not the loue of God in you. I am come in my fathers name, and ye receyue me not. If another shall come in his owne name, hym will ye receyue. How can ye beleeue which receyue glorie one of another, and seke not the glory that cometh of God onely?

Do not thinke that I will accuse you to my father. There is one that accuseth you: euen Moses in whome ye truste. For hadde ye beleeued Moses, ye wolde haue beleeued me: for he wrote of me. But ye beleeue not his wytnesses: howe shoulde ye beleeue my wytnesse?

Jesus sedeth fyue thousande men, departeth awaye, that they shoulde not make hym kynge, and reponeth the fleschly hearers of his wordes. The carnall are offended at hym.

CAP. VI.

After these Jesus went his waye oute of the see of Galile ngyhe to a cite called Tiberias. And a great compaigne folowed hym, because they had sene his myracles which he byd on the dyspleased. And Jesus went vp into a mountayne, and there sate with his disciples. And Saller, a scalle of the Jewes, was ngyhe.

Then Jesus lyft vp his eyes, and saue a great compaign come vnto hym, and sayd vnto Philip: Whence shall we bye bread that these might eate. This he sayde to proue hym for hym selfe knewe what he wolde do.

Philip answered hym, two hundred penyne worche of bread are not sufficient for them, that euery one maye take a lyttell. Then sayde vnto him one of his disciples, Andrewe Simon Peters brother. There is a ladde here, which hath fyue barley loaves and two fisses: but what is that amonges so manye? And Jesus sayde: Make the people sit downe. There was moche grasse in the place. And the men sate downe, in nombre, about fyue thousande. Jesus toke the bread, and grynge thankes: gaue to the disciples: and his disciples to the people that were set downe. And lykwys of the fisses / as moche as they wolde.

When they had eate ynowghe he sayd vnto his disciples, gather vp the broken meate & remayne: that nothinge be losse. And they gathered it together, and fylled twelue baskets with the fragmentes, of the spye barley loaves: whiche remayned vnto them that had eaten. When Iesus perceyued that they wolde come, and take him vp to make him kynge, & he departed agayne into a mountayne, hym selfe alone.

And when euen was come, his disciples went vnto the see, and entred into a shyppe & went ouer the see vnto Capernaum. And as none it was darcke, and Iesus was not come to them. And the see arose with a great wynd that blew. Nowe, when they had rowen about. xxv. or. xxx. furlonges, they sawe Iesus walkynge on the see, & drawynge vnto the shyppe, and were afrayed. But he sayde vnto them: It is I, be not afrayed. Then wolde they haue receyued hym into the shyp, and the shyp was forthwith at the land whither they went.

The daye followynge, the people whiche stode on the other syde of the see, sawe that there was none other shyppe there, save that one into which his disciples were entred, and that Iesus entred not with his disciples in the shyppe: but that his disciples were gone awaye alone. Howe be it, there came other shippes from Tiberias vnto the place, where they are bryed, when the Lorde hadde blyssed. Then when the people sawe that Iesus was not there, nerther his disciples, they also toke shyppe, and came to Capernaum, to synge Iesus.

And when they hadde founde hym, on the other syde of the see, they sayde vnto hym: Rabbi, when camest thou hither? Iesus answered them and sayde: Verely, verely I say vnto you: Ye seeke me, not because ye sawe the myracles: but because ye dyd eate of the loaves, and were fylled.

¶ Worke ye not the meate whiche perissheth, but that endureth, vnto euerylastynge lyfe, whiche the sonne of man shall gyue vnto you. For hym hath God the father sealed.

Then sayde they vnto hym: what shall we do that we myght worke the workes of God? Iesus answered and sayde vnto them: This is the worke of God, that ye beleue on hym, whome he hath sent. They sayde vnto hym: what signe shewest thou then, that we maye se, and beleue the? What dost thou worke? Sure fathers dyd eate Manna in the wyldernesse, as it is wyrtten: He gaue them bryed frome heauen to eate. Iesus sayde vnto the: Verely, verely, I say vnto you: Moses gaue you not the bryed frome heauen: but my father gyueth you the true bryed frome heauen. For the bryed of God is that cometh downe frome heauen, & gyueth lyfe vnto the world.

Then sayde they vnto hym: Lorde, euermore gyue vs this bryed. And Iesus sayde vnto them: I am the bryed of lyfe. Who cometh to me, shall not hunger: and who beleueth in me shall neuer thurst. &c.

But I sayde vnto you: that ye haue sene me, and yet beleue not. All that the father gyueth me, shall come to me: and hym that cometh to me, I call not to a way. For I came downe from heauen: not do myne owne will, but his will whiche hath sent me. And this is the fathers will whiche hath sent me, that of all whiche he hath gyuen me, I shulde lose nothinge: but shoulde eate it vp agayne, at the last daye. And this is the will of him that sent me: that euery man which seyth the sonne, & beleueth on hym, haue euerylastynge lyfe, and I will eate hym vp at the last daye. The Jewes then murmured at him, because he sayde: I am the bryed whiche is come downe frome heauen, and sayde: Is not this Iesus the son of Joseph, whose father & mother we knowe? Howe is it then that he sayth, I came downe frome heauen? Iesus answered, and sayde vnto them: Murmure not, within pouce selues. ¶ No man can come to me, onles the father which hath sent me, draw him: and I will eate hym vp at the last daye. It is wyrtten in the prophetes, & that they shalbe all taught of God. Euery man therefore that hath herd and hath lerned of the father, cometh vnto me, not that any man hath sene the father, save he whiche is of God, he hath sene the father.

¶ Verely, verely, I saye vnto you, who beleueth on me, hath euerylastynge lyfe. I am the bryed of lyfe. Your fathers dyd eate Manna in the wyldernesse and are deed? This is that bryed whiche cometh frome heauen, that one shulde eate of it, and not dye. I am the lyving bryed whiche came downe frome heauen. If any man eate of this bryed, he shall lyue for euer. And the bryed that I wyll gyue is my fleshe, whiche I wyll gyue for the lyfe of the world. &c.

¶ Then the Jewes stroue amonge them selues, sayenge: Howe can this man gyue his fleshe to eate? Iesus therefore sayde vnto the: ¶ Verely, verely I saye vnto you, onles ye eate the fleshe of the sonne of man, & drinke his bloude, ye haue not lyfe in you. Who so euer eateth my fleshe and drynketh my bloude, hath eternall lyfe: and I will eate hym vp at the last daye. ¶ For my fleshe is verely meat, and my bloude is verely drynke. Who eateth my fleshe and drynketh my bloude, dwelleth in me, and I in hym. As the lyving father hath sent me, and I lyue by my father: so he that eateth me, shall lyue by me. This is the bryed whiche came from heauen: not as your fathers haue eaten Manna and are deed. Who eateth of this bryed, shall lyue for euer. &c.

These sayde he in the Synagoge, as he taught in Capernaum. Many therefore of his disciples: when they hadde herd this, sayde: This is an harde sayenge: Who can here hym? Iesus knewe in him selfe, that his disciples murmured at this, and sayde vnto them: Doth this offende you? What then yfye shall the sonne of man ascende vp where he was before?

before? It is the spere that quykenerh, the fleshe promyseth nothinge. The wordes that I speake vnto you, are spere and lyfe. But there are some of you that beleue not. For Iesus knewe from the begynnyng, whiche they were that beleued not, and who shulde betray him. And he sayd: therefore sayd I vnto you: that no man can come vnto me, onles it were gyuen vnto him of my father.

¶ From that tyme many of his disciples went backe and walked no more with him. Then sayde Iesus to the twelue: will ye also go awaye? Simon Peter answered: Master, to whome shall we go? thou hast the wordes of eternall lyfe, & we beleue and know that thou arte Christ the sonne of the lyving God. Iesus answered them: Haue not I chosen you twelue, and yet one of you is a deuyll? He spake it of Judas Iscariot the sonne of Simon. For he it was that shulde betraye hym, and was one of the twelue. &c.

¶ Iesus cometh to Jerusalem at the feast, teacheth the Jewes, and reproveth them. There are dyuerse opinions of him, amonge the people. The Pharisees rebuke the officers, because they haue not taken him, and chyd with Symeonus, for takynge his part.

CAP. I.

VII.

¶ After that, Iesus walked aboute to Galilee, and wolde not walke in Ierusalem: for the Jewes sought to kyll hym. The Jewes tabernacle feast was at hande. His brethren therefore sayde vnto hym: get the hie and go into Ierusalem that thy disciples maye se thy workes that thou dost. For there is no man that doeth any thinge secretly, & he hym selfe seeketh to be knowen openly. If thou wyldeste chynge, shewe thy selfe to the world. For as yet his brethren beleued not in hym.

¶ Then Iesus sayde vnto them: My tyme is not yet come: but your tyme is all waye reby. The world can not hate you. But me it hateth: because I testify of it, that the workes of it are euill. So ye go vnto this feast. I wil not go vp yet vnto this feaste, for my tyme is not yet full come. These wordes he sayde vnto them, and abode still in Galilee. But as sone as his brethren were gone vp, then wente he also vp vnto the feaste: not openly, but as it were secretly. Then sought him the Jewes at the feast, and sayde: Where is he. And moche murmure was there of hym amonge the people. Some sayde: He is good, others sayd naue, but he deceyueh the people. Howe be it no man spake openly of hym, for fear of the Jewes. &c.

¶ In the myddes of the feast, Iesus wente vp into the temple, & taught. And the Jewes marueyled, sayenge: Howe knoweth he the scriptures, wheras he neuer lerned? Iesus answered them, and sayde: My doctrine is not myne: but his that sent me: Yf any man will doo his will, he shall knowe of the doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether I speake of my selfe. He that speaketh of him selfe, seeketh his own prayse. But he that seeketh his prayse that sent him, he is true, and no vnright wysenesse is in hym.

¶ Dyd not Moses gyue you a lawe, and yet none of you kepeth the lawe? Why goo ye about to kyll me. The people answered, and sayde: Thou hast a deuyll: who seeketh to kyll the? Iesus answered and sayde to them: I haue doone one worke, and ye all maruaile. Moses therefore gaue vnto you circumcision, not because it is of Moses: but of the fathers. And yet ye on the Sabboth daye, circumcise a man. Yf a man on the Sabboth daye receyue circumcision without breakynge of the lawe of Moses: dyd ayne ye at me, because I haue healed an hole man on the Sabboth daye? Judge not after the better aparence: but iudge by the iudgement.

Gene. vii. 8.

¶ Then sayde some of them of Ierusalem: is not this he whome they seeke to kyll? Beholde he speaketh boldly, and they saye nothinge to him. Whether do the rulers know certayn lyfe that this is verely Christ? Howe be it we knowe this man, whence he is: But when Christ cometh, no man knoweth, whence he is.

¶ The cryed Iesus in the temple as he taught sayenge: ye knowe me, and whence I am, ye knowe. And I am not come of my selfe, but he that sent me is true, whome ye know not. I knowe hym: for I am of him, and he hath sent me. Then they sought to take hym: but no man layde handes on hym: because his tyme was not yet come. Many of the people beleued on hym, and sayde: When Christ cometh, shall he do mo myracles then this man hath done?

¶ The Pharisees herde that the people murmured this aboute hym. Wherefore the pharisees and hygge prestes sent ministers forthe to take hym. Iesus therefore sayde vnto them: Yet am I a lyfel wyple with you, and then go I vnto him that sent me. Ye shal see me, and shall not synde me: and where I am thither can ye not come. Then sayd the Jewes to the selues: whither shall he go, that we can not synde hym? Will he go amonge the skatering of the Grekes, & teache the Grekes? What manner of sayeng is this that he sayde: Ye shal see me, and shall not synde me: and where I am, thither can ye not come?

¶ In the last daye, whiche was the great daye of the feaste, Iesus stode and cryed, sayenge: Yf any man thurst, let him come vnto me and drynke. ¶ He that beleueth on me, as sayeth the scripture, oute of his belly shall flowe ryuers of water of lyfe. This spake he of the spere, whiche they that beleued on hym, shulde receyue. ¶ For the holy ghoost was not yet there, because that Iesus was not yet glorified.

¶ Many of the people, whiche they herd this sayenge sayde: this is vndoubtedly a prophete: other sayde, this is Christ: Some sayde: Cometh Christ out of Galilee? ¶ Sayth not the Scripture that Christ shal come of the seed of Dauid: and oute of the towne of Bethleem where Dauid was? So was there disencion amonge the people aboute him. And some of them wolde haue taken hym: but no man durd.

handes on him. Then came the mynistres to the hygh prestes and Pharises. And they sayd vnto them: Why haue ye not brought him? The mynistres answered: neuer man spake as this man weth. Then answered them the Pharises: are ye also brought into erroure? Doth any of the rulers or of the Pharises beleue on him? But this commune people whiche knowe not the lawe, are cursed. Nicodemus sayde vnto theym, he that came to Iesus by nyght, and was one of them. Doeth oure lawe iudge any man, before it heare him, and knowe what he hath done? They answered and sayde vnto hym: arte thou also a Galilean? Searche and toke, for out of Galile hath aplyen no Prophete. And euery man went vnto his owne house.

Iesus went vp to the mount Oljvete, and early in the mornynge came agayne into the temple, and all the people came vnto him, and he saue towe and taught them. Nowe, the Scribes and Pharises brought him a woman taken in aduouty, and settyng her in the myddes, sayde vnto him: Master, this woman was taken in aduouty, even as the lawe was adouinge. * Moses in the lawe commaunded vs that such shoulde be stoned. What sayst thou therfore? And this they sayde to tempte him: that they might haue, wherof to accuse him. Iesus stooped towe, and with his syn-ger wrote on the grounde. So whyle they con-spued at hyng him, he lyft hym selfe vp, and sayde vnto them: The faultles person of you, fyrst cast the stone at her. And agayne he stooped towe, and wrote on the grounde.

And as sone as they herde that, they went out one by one, begynninge at the Elders. And Iesus was lette alone, and the woman standinge in the myddes. When Iesus hadde lyft vp hym selfe, agayne, and saue no man, but the woman, he sayde vnto her: woman where are those thyne accusars? Hath no man condemned the? She sayde: No man, Lord. Iesus sayde: Neyther do I condemne the. Go / a synne no more. f

Then spake Iesus agayne vnto them, say-enge: I am the lyghte of the worlde. He that foloweth me, shall not walke in darckenesse: but shall haue the lyght of lyfe. The Pharises sayde vnto hym: thou bearest recorde of thy selfe, thy recorde is not true. Iesus answered and sayde vnto them: though I beare recorde of my selfe, yet my recorde is true: for I knowe whence I came, and whither I goo. But ye can not tell whence I come, and whither I go. Ye iudge after the fleshe, I iudge no man. And yet I iudge, my iudgement is true. For I am not alone: but I and the father that sent me. It is also wyrtten in your lawe, that the testimony of two men is true. I am one that beare witness of my selfe, and the father that sent me, beareth witness of me. Then sayde

Then sayde Iesus agayne vnto them: * I go my waye, and ye shall seeke me, and shall dye in your synnes. Whither I go, thither can ye not come. Then sayde the Jewes: will he kyll him selfe / because he sayth: Whither I go, thither can ye not come? And he sayde vnto them: Ye are from beneath, I am from above. Ye are of this worlde, I am not of this worlde. I sayd therfore vnto you, that ye shall dye in your synnes. For oneles ye beleue that I am he, ye shall dye in your synnes.

Then sayd they vnto hym, Who art thou? And Iesus sayde vnto them: First of all euen that I saye vnto you. I haue many thynges to saye, and to iudge of you. But he that sent me is true. And I speake in the worlde, those thynges which I haue herde of him. They vnderstode not that he spake vnto them of his father. Then sayde Iesus vnto them: When ye haue lyft vp on hygh the sonne of man, then shall ye knowe that I am, and that I do nothing of my selfe: but as my father hath taught me, these I speake: and he that sent me, is with me. The father hath not left me alone, for I do alwayes those thynges that please him. f As he spake these wordes, many beleued on hym.

* Iesus therfore sayde, to those Jewes, whiche beleued on hym. If ye continue in my wordes, then are ye my very disciples, & shall knowe the trouthe: and the trouthe shall enfranchise you. They answered hym: We be Abrahams seide, and were neuer bonde to any man: Why sayest thou then, ye shall be made free.

Iesus answered them: verely, * verely I saye vnto you, that who so euer committeth synne, is the seruante of synne. And the seruante abyeth not in the house for euer: But the sonne abyeth euer. If the sonne therfore shall enfranchise you, so are ye truly franke, I knowe that ye are Abrahams seide: but ye seeke to kyll me, because my sayenge taketh no holde in you. I speake that I haue sene with my father: and ye do that which ye haue sene with your father. They answered and sayde vnto him: Abrahams is our father. Iesus sayd to theym. If ye were Abrahams chyldren, ye wolde do the dedes of Abrahams. But now ye go aboute to kyll me, a man that haue tolde you the trouthe whiche I haue herde of God: this byd not Abrahams. Ye do the dedes of your father. Then sayde they to hym: we were not bonde of aduouty. We haue one father, euen God. Iesus sayde vnto theym: yf God were your father, so wolde ye loue me. For I proceeded, and came frome God. Neyther came I of my selfe, but he sent me. Why do ye not knowe my speache? Euen because ye can not heare my wordes.

Ye are of your father the deuell, and the iustes † Iustes of your father ye will do. He was a murderer from the begynnyng, and abode not in the trouthe, because there is no trouthe in him. When he speaketh a lye, he speaketh of his owne. For he is a lyer, and the father therof. But I because I tell you the trouthe, therfore ye blynde me not.

* Whiche of you chalenge me of synne? If I saye the trouthe, why do not ye blynde me? * He that is of God, heareth Gods wordes. f Ye therfore heare them not, because ye are not of God. Then answered the Jewes and sayde vnto him: Saye we not well, that thou art a Samaritan, and hast a deuyll? Iesus answered: I haue no deuyll / but I honour my father, and ye haue dishonoured me. I seeke not myne owne glory: but there is one that seeketh and iudgeth.

Verily verily I say vnto you, yf a man kepe my word, he shall neuer see deathe. Then said the Jewes to hym. Nowe knowe we that thou hast a deuyll. Abrahams is deed, and the Prophetes: and thou sayest: yf a man kepe my word, he shall neuer taste of deeth. Arte thou greater then our father Abrahams, whiche is deed? and the prophetes are deed: Whome makest thou thy selfe?

Iesus answered: Yf I glorifie my selfe my gloire is nothyng worth. It is my father that glorifieth me, whiche ye saye is your God, and ye haue not knowen him: but I knowe him. And yf I wolde saye I knowe him not, I wolde be a lyer like vnto you. But I knowe him, and kepe his sayenge.

Your father Abrahams reioysed to se my day, and he saue it, and reioysed. Then sayde the Jewes vnto him: thou art not yet fifty yeres old, and hast thou sene Abrahams? Iesus sayde vnto them. Verily verily I saye vnto you: euen Abrahams was borne, I am. Then toke they vp stones to caste at him. But Iesus byd hym selfe, and went out of the temple. f † Christe maketh the man to se, that was borne blynde.

I X.

As Iesus passed by, he saue a man blynde from his birth. And his disciples asked him, sayenge: Master, who byd synne: this man, or his parentes, that he was borne blynde? Iesus answered: Neyther hath this man synned, nor yet his parentes: but that the workes of God shoulde be shewed in him. I must worke the workes of him that sent me, whyle it is daye. * The nyghte cometh when no man can worke. As longe as I am in the worlde, I am the light of the worlde.

As sone as he hadde thus spoken, he spatte on the grounde, and made claye of the spittle, and sayde vnto hym: Soe walke the in the pole of Syloe, which by interpretation signifieth sent. He wente his waye and walshed, and came agayne sayenge. The neyghbours and they that had sene him before howe that he was a begger, sayde: Is not this he that sate and begged? Some sayde: this is he.

Other sayde: he is lyke hym.

But he him selfe sayd: I am euen he. They sayd therfore vnto him. How are thyne eyes opened? He answered and sayd. A man called Iesus, made claye, and anoynted myne eyes, and sayd vnto me. So to the pole Syloe and walshed. And I wente and walshed, and receyued my syght. They sayd vnto him: where is he? He sayth: I can not tell.

They byng hym to the Pharisees that a lytell before was blynde (for it was the Sabbath daye when Iesus made the claye and opened his eyes.) Then agayne the Pharisees also asked him howe he had receyued his syght. He sayd vnto them: He put claye vpon myne eyes, and I walshed, and I se. Then sayde some of the Pharisees: this man is not of God, because he keepeth not the Sabbath daye. Other sayde: howe can a man that is a synner, doo suche myracles? And there was streple among them. Then spake they vnto the blynde agayne: What sayest thou of him, because he hath opened thyne eyes? And he said: He is a Prophete.

The Jewes therfore byd not blynde of the felowe, that he was blynde, and receyued his syghte, tyll they hadde called the parentes of him that hadde receyued syghte. And they asked them, sayeng: Is this your sonne, whom ye saye was borne blynde? Howe dothe he nowe se then? His parentes answered them and sayde: We wote well that this is oure sonne, and that he was borne blynde: but howe he now seeth we knowe not, or who hath opened his eyes, can we not tell. He is of age aske him / let him answer for him self. Suche wordes spake his parentes, because they feared the Jewes. For the Jewes hadde nowe conspyred, that yf any man byd confesse that he was Christe, he shoulde be excommunicate. Therfore sayd his parentes: he is of age, aske him.

Then agayne called they the man that was blynde, and sayde vnto him: Spue God the praye: we knowe that this man is a synner. He answered and sayd: Whether he be a synner or no, I can not tell: One thyng I am sure of, that I was blynde, and nowe I se. Then sayd they to him agayne. What byd he to the? Howe opened he thyne eyes? He answered them: I tolde you euen nowe, and ye byd not heare. Wherfore wolde ye heare it agayne? Wyl ye also be his disciples? Then tased they him, and sayde: We thou his discyples, we be Moses disciples. We are sure that God spake to Moses. This felow we knowe not from whence he is.

The man answered and sayde vnto them: this is a merueylous thyng, that ye wote not whence he is / and yet he hath opened myne eyes. For we be sure that God heareth not synners. But yf any man be a worshipper of God and do his will, him heareth he. Sithen the worlde began, was it not herde that any man opened the eyes of one that was borne blynde. Yf this man were not of God, he coulde haue done nothyng. They answered and sayd vnto him: thou art all together borne in synne, yet, Jesus herde that they had cast him out: and as sone as he had founde hym, he sayde vnto hym: dost thou beleue on the sonne of God? He answered and sayde: Who is it Lord, that I myght beleue on him? And Jesus sayd vnto hym: Thou haste hym, and he it is that talketh with the. And he sayde: Lord, I beleue, and worshipped him. Jesus sayde: I am come vnto iudgemente into this worlde: that they whiche se not, myghte se, and they whiche se, myghte be made blynde. And some of the Pharises which were with hym, herde these wordes and sayde vnto him: are we the blynde? Jesus sayde vnto them: Yf ye were blynde, ye shoulde haue no synne. But now ye say, we se, therfore your synne remaineth.

Chyrste is the true Sheperde, and the doze of the shepe. Because he telleth the truth, the Jewes take hym for a deceiver, to cast at hym, call his preaching blasphemie, and go about to take him.

C A P I.

Verely I saye vnto you: He that entreteth not in, by the dore into the shepe folde, but climeth by some other waye he is a theif, and a robber. He that goeth in by the dore, is the sheperde of the shepe: to him the porter openeth, and the shepe heare his voyce, and he calleth his owne shepe, by name, and leadeth theym oute. And when he hath sent forth his owne shepe, he goeth before them, and the shepe folowe him: for they know his voyce. A straunger they will not folowe, but will flee frome him: because they knowe not the voyce of straungers. This prouerbe spake Jesus vnto theym. But they understood not what thinges they were, whiche he spake vnto them. Then sayde Jesus vnto them agayne. Verely verely I saye vnto you: I am the dore of the shepe. All that euer came before me, are theues and robbers: but the shepe byd not heare them. I am the dore: by me yf any man entreteth, he shalbe saue, & shall go in and oute, and fynde pasture. The thefe cometh not, but to steale, kyll and destroye. I am come that they myghte haue lyfe, & haue it more abundantly.

I am the good sheperde. The good sheperde graueh his lyfe for the shepe. An hyred seruaunt, which is not the sheperde, neyther the shepe are his owne, seyth the wolfe comynge, and leueth the shepe, and fleeth, and the wolfe catcheth them, and scattereth the shepe. The hyred seruaunt fleeth, because he is an hyred seruaunt, and careth not for the shepe. I am the good sheperde, and knowe myne, and am knowne of myne. As my father knoweth me: euen so knowe I my father. And I geue my lyfe, for the shepe: and other shepe I haue, whiche are not of this folde. They also muste I bynge, that they maye heare my voyce, and that there maye be one flocke and one sheperde. Therfore doth my father loue me, because, I put my lyfe for me, that I myght take it agayne. No man ta-keeth it from me: but I put it away of my self. I haue power to take it from me, and haue power to take it agayne: This commaundement haue I receyued of my father. Distinction therefore was agayne amonge the Jewes for these saynges: and many of them sayde: He hath a deuill, and is madde: why heare ye hym? Other sayde, these are not the wordes of hym that hath a deuill. Can a deuill open the eyes of the blynde?

It was at Jerusalem, the feeste of the dedication of the temple, and it was winter, and Jesus walked in Salomons porche. Then came the Jewes rounde aboute him, and sayde vnto him: How longe dost thou suspende our myndes? Yf thou be Chryste, tell vs playnly. Jesus answered them: I tolde you, and ye beleue not. The workes that I do in my fathers name, they beare witness of me. But ye beleue not, because ye are not of my shepe. As I sayd vnto you: My shepe heare my voyce: and I knowe them, and they folowe me, and I geue vnto them eternall lyfe, and they shall neuer perishe, neither shall any man plucke them out of my hande. My father which gaue them me, is greater then all, and no man is hable to take them out of my fathers hand. And I and my father are one.

Then the Jewes agayne toke by stones to stone hym. Jesus answered them: many good workes haue I shewed you frome my father, for whiche of them do ye stone me? The Jewes answered him, sayinge. For good workes we stone the not, but for blasphemie: and because that thou bringest a man, makinge thy selfe God. Jesus answered them. Is it not written in your lawe, I haue sayde, ye are Goddes? Yf he called them Goddes vnto whome the wordes of God was spoken (and the scripture can not be broken) saye ye then to him, whom the father hath sanctified, and sente in to the worlde: thou blasphemest, because I sayde I am the sonne of God? Yf I do not the workes of my father, beleue me not. But yf I do, then thoughte ye beleue not me, yet beleue the workes, that ye maye knowe and beleue that the father is in me, and I in hym.

Agayne they went about to take hym: but he escaped oute of their handes, and wente awaye agayne beyonde Jordan, into the place where Iohann before had baptised, and there abode. And many resorted vnto him, and sayd. Iohann byd no myracle: but all thinges that Iohann spake of this man, are true. And manye beleued on him there.

A certayne man was sicke, named Lazarus of Bethania the towne of Mary and her syster Martha. It was that Marye whiche annointed Jesus with oyle, and wyped his feete with her herte, whose brother Lazarus was sicke, and his syster sent vnto him, sayinge. Lord, behold, he whom thou louest, is sicke. When Jesus herde that, he sayd: This infirmite is not vnto death, but for the gloire of God, that the sonne of God, myghte be glorified by it. Jesus loued Martha, and her syster, and Lazarus. Then after he had herde that he was sicke, he abode two dayes still in the same place.

After that, sayde he to his disciples: let vs go into Jewry agayne. His disciples sayd vnto him: Master, the Jewes lately sought to stone the, and wilt thou go thither agayne? Jesus answered, are there not twelue houres in the daye? Yf a man walke in the daye, he stumbleth not, because he seyth the lyghte of this worlde. But yf a man walke in the night he stumbleth, because there is no lyght in him. This sayde he, and after that, he sayde vnto them: our frende Lazarus slepeth, but I go to awake him. Then sayde his disciples: Lord, yf he slepe, he shall wel ynoughe. But Jesus spake of his death: wheras they thought that he had spoken of the sleppinge of slepe.

Then sayde Jesus vnto theym playnly, Lazarus is dead, and I am glad for your sakes, that I was not there, because ye maye beleue. But go we vnto him. Then sayde Thomas called Dydymus, vnto the disciples: Let vs also go, that we maye dye with hym. So went Jesus, & founde that he had lyen in his graue foure dayes already. Bethany was nygge vnto Jerusalem, aboute. x. furlonges of, & many of the Jewes were come to Martha and Mary to comforte them ouer their brother. Martha as sone as she herde that Jesus was comynge, wente and met hym: but Marye saue still in the house.

Then sayde Martha vnto Jesus: Lord, yf thou haddest bene here, my brother had not bene dead: but also now I knowe that what so euer thou askest of God, God will geue it the. Jesus sayde vnto her: Thy brother shall rise agayne. Martha sayde vnto him: I know that he shal rise agayne in the resurrection at the last daye. Jesus sayde vnto her: I am the resurrection and the lyfe: He that beleueth in me, thoughte he were dead, yet shall he lyue. And who so euer lyueth, and beleueth in me, shall neuer dye: Beleuest thou this? She sayd vnto him: yf Lord, I beleue that thou arte Chyrist the sonne of God whiche shouldest come into the worlde.

And as sone as she had so sayde, she went & called Mary her syster secretly, sayenge: The master is come and calleth for the. And as sone as she herde that, she arose quickly, and came vnto hym. Jesus was not yet come into the towne: but was in the place where Martha met hym. The Jewes then which were with her in the house, & comforted her, when they sawe Mary, that she rose vp hastily, and went out, folowed her, sayenge: She goeth vnto the graue, to wepe there.

Then when Mary was come where Jesus was and saue hym, she fell downe at his fete, sayenge vnto him: Lord, yf thou haddest bene here, my brother haddest not bene dead. When Jesus saue her wepe, & the Jewes also wepe, which came with her, he groned in the spirit, and was troubled in him self, & sayde: Where haue ye layd hym? They sayd vnto him: Lord, come and se. And Jesus wept. Then sayd the Jewes: Beholde, howe he loued him. And some of theym sayde: Couledest thou not this man whiche opened the eyes of the blynde, haue made also, that this man shouldest not haue dyed? Jesus agayne groned in hym selfe, & came to the graue. It was a caue and a stone was layde on it.

And Jesus sayde: Take awaye the stone. Martha the syster of him that was dead, sayd vnto him: Lord, by this tyme he is synketh. For he hath ben dead foure dayes: Jesus sayd vnto her: Sayd I not vnto the, that yf thou dydest beleue, thou shouldest se the gloire of God. Then they toke awaye the stone frome the place where the dead was layde. And Jesus yfte by his eyes, and sayde: Father, I thanke the, because thou haste herde me. I wote that thou hearest me alwayes: but because of the people that stande by, I sayde it that they maye beleue that thou hast sent me.

And when he thus hadde spoken, he cryed with a loude voyce. Lazarus come forth. And he that was dead, came forth, bounde hande and fote, with graue boddies, and his face was bounde with a naphin. Jesus sayde vnto the lowse hym, and let him go. Then many of the Jewes which came to Mary, and hadde sene the thinges whiche Jesus byd, beleued on hym. But some of them went their wayes to the Pharises, and tolde them what Jesus had done.

Then gathered the hygge prestes, and pharises a counsell, and sayde: What do we? This man doth manye myracles. Yf we let hym escape thus, all men will beleue on hym and the Romayns shall come and take awaye our countrey and the people. But one of the named Cayphas beyng the hygge prelate of that pere, sayde vnto them: Ye perceyue nothinge, nor yet consider that it is expedient for vs, that one man dye for the people, and not all the people perishe. This spake he not of hym selfe, but beyng the hygge prelate that same pere, prophesied that Jesus shouldest dye for the people, and not for the people onely, but that he shouldest gather together in one the chyldren of God whiche were scattered abroade. Frome that daye forth, they deuyled to put hym to death.

Jesus therfore walked no more openly amonge the Jewes: but wente thence vnto a countrey nygge to the wyldernesse, into a cite called Ephraim, and there taried with his disciples. Nowe, the Jewes Easter was nygge, and many went oute of the countreye vnto Jerusalem before the Easter, to purishe them selues. Then sought they for Jesus, and spake betwene theym selues, as they stode in the temple: What thinke ye, that he cometh not to the feast. The hygge prestes and pharises hadde giuen a commaundement, that yf any man knewe where he were, he shouldest shewe it, that they myghte take hym.

¶ Mary anoynteth Chrystes fete. Judas murmureth, Chryst exulteth her, and sendeth in to Jerusalem.

CAP. I. XII.

Then Jesus, six dayes before Easter, came to Bethany, where Lazarus was which had bene dead, & whom Jesus had rased from death. There they made him a supper, and Martha serued: but Lazarus was one of them that sat at the table with hym. Then toke mary a pounce of opment called Nardus, pure and precious, and annoynted Jesus fete, and toyyt his fete with her heer, the house was filled with the sauer of opment. ¶ Then sayde one of his disciples, named Judas Iscariot, Simons sonne, whiche afterwarde betrayed hym: why was not this opment solde for thye hundred pence, & gyven to the poore? This sayde he, not that he cared for the poore: but because he was a thefe, and kept the bagge, & bare that whiche was gyven. Then sayde Jesus: Let her alone, against the daye of my burpence she hath kept this. The poore alwayes ye haue with you, but me ye haue not alwayes.

¶ Moche people of the Jewes, hadde knowledge that he was there. And they came, not for Jesus sake onely, but that they myght se Lazarus also whom he had rased from death. The hygh prieskes therfore helde a counsell, that they myght put Lazarus to death also, because for his sake many of the Jewes went and beleued on Jesus. ¶

¶ On the morow, moche people that were come to the feast, when they herd that Jesus woulde come to Jerusalem, toke bounches of palme trees, and went and met him, & cryed Hosanna, blessed is he that in the name of the Lorde, cometh kynge of Israel. And Jesus got a ponge asse and sate thereon, accordyng to that which was wyrtten: feare not daughtee of syon, beholde thy kynge cometh sittinge on asses colte. These vnderstode not his disciples at the first: but when Jesus was glorified, then remembred they that suche thynges were wyrtten of him, and that suche thynges they had done vnto him. The people that was with hym when he called Lazarus oute of his graue, and rased him from death, bare record. Therfore met hym the people, because they herde that he had done suche a myracle. The Pharises therfore sayde amonge the selues, perceyue ye how we preyale nothinge? Beholde the world goeth awaye after hym.

¶ There were certayne Brekes amonge the, that came to praye at the feast: these came to Philip, whiche was of Bethsaida a cytie in Galile, and desired him, sayenge: Syr, we wolde sayne se Jesus. Philip came and tolde Andrieu. And agayne Andrieu and Philip, tolde Jesus. And Jesus answered them sayenge: the houre is come, that the sonne of man must be glorified.

¶ ¶ Creely, verely I saye vnto you, ones the wheate come fall into the grounde & dye, it abyedeth alone. Yf it dye, it bringeth forth the moche fruite. He that loueth his lyfe shall destroye it: and he that hateth his lyfe, in this world, shall kepe it vnto lyfe euertlastinge. ¶ Any man minster vnto me, let him folow me, and where I am, there shall also my minster be. And if any man minster vnto me, him shall my father honoure. ¶

¶ Now is my soule troubled, & what shall I saye? Father deliuer me from this houre: but therfore came I vnto this houre. Father glorify thy name. Then came there a voyce from heauen: I haue glorified it, and will glorify it agayne. Then sayd the people that stode by and herde: it thoundyeth. Other sayd, an angell spake to hym. Jesus answered, & sayde: This voyce came not because of me, but for your sakes.

¶ Now is the iudgement of this world: now shall the prince of this world be cast out. And I, if I were lyfte vp from the earth, will draw all men vnto me. This sayd Jesus, signifyinge what death he shoulde dye. The people answered him: We haue herde out of the lawe that Chryst abyedeth euere, and how sayst thou then, that the sonne of man must be lyft vp? Who is that sonne of man? Then Jesus sayde vnto them: yet a lytell whyle is the lyg he with you. Walke whyle ye haue lyght lest the darcknesse come on you. He that walketh in the darcke, wotteth not whither he goeth. Whyle ye haue lyght, beleue on the lyght, & ye maye be the children of light. ¶

¶ These thynges spake Jesus and departed, and byd hym selfe from them. And thoughte he had done so many miracles before them, yet beleued not they on hym, that the sayenge of Esay the Prophet myght be fulfilled, that he spake. ¶ Lorde who beleueth oure sayenge? And to whome is the arme of the Lorde opened? Therfore could they not beleue, because that Esay sayth agayne: he hathe blinded their eyes, & hardened their hertes, that they shoulde not se with their eyes, and vnderstand with their hertes, and shoulde be converted, & I shoulde heale them. Suche thynges sayd Esay when he saw his gloyp, and spake of him. ¶ Neuerthelesse also amonge the chiefe rulers, many beleued on him. But because of the pharises, they wolde not be aknowen of it, leaste they shoulde be thurst out of the Synagoge. For they loued the prayse, that is gyven of men, more then the prayse that cometh of God.

¶ But Jesus cryed and sayd: he that beleueth on me, beleueth not on me, but on him that sent me. And he that seyth me, seyth him that sent me. ¶ I am come a lyght into the world that who so cuer beleueth on me, shoulde not abyde in darcknesse. And if any man heare my wordes, and beleue not, I iudge hym not: for I came not to iudge the world: but to saue the world. He that refuseth me, and receyuech not my wordes, hath one that iudgeth hym. The wordes that I haue spoken, they shall iudge him, in the last daye. For I haue not spoken of my selfe: but the father whiche sent me, he gaue me a commaundment what I shoulde saye and what I shoulde speake. And I knowe that this commaundment is lyfe euertlastinge. What so cuer I speake therfore, euen as the father bad me, so I speake. ¶

¶ Chryst washeth the disciples fete, telleth them of Judas the traytour, and commaundeth the earnestly to loue one another.

CAP. I. XIII.

Before the feast of Easter, when Jesus knew his houre was come, that he shoulde departe out of this world, vnto the father, where as he loued him, whiche were in the world, vnto the ende he loued them. And when supper was ended, after that the dwyll had put in the heart of Judas Iscariot Simons sonne, to betraye him: Jesus knowinge, that the father had gyven all thynges into his handes, and that he was come frome God, and went to God, ryleth frome supper, and layd a swete his upper garmentes, and toke a towel, and gyde hym selfe. After that, he powred water into a bason, and began to washe his disciples fete, & to toyyt them with the towel wherewith he was gyde.

¶ Then came he to Simon Peter. And Peter sayde to hym: Lorde wash thou my fete? Jesus answered and sayde vnto him: What I do, thou wottest not now, but thou shalt knowe hereafter. Peter sayde vnto hym: thou shalt not washe my fete whyle the world standeth. Jesus answered hym: yf I wash be the, thou hast no part with me. Simon Peter sayde vnto him: Lorde, not my fete onely: but also my handes and my heed. Jesus sayde to him: He that is washed, needeth not saue: to washe his fete, and is cleane euery wyth. And ye are cleane: but not all. For he knewe his betrayer. Therfore sayde he: Ye are not all cleane.

¶ After he had washed their fete, and receyued his ciorpes, and was sered wone agayne, he sayde vnto them: Wote ye what I haue done to you? Ye call me master and Lorde, and ye say well, for so am I. Yf then, your Lorde & master haue washed your fete, ye also ought to walke one an others fete. For I haue gyven you an example, that ye shoulde do, as I haue done to you. ¶ Creely verely I saye vnto you, the seruaunt is not greater then his master, neyther the apostle greater then he that sent him.

¶ Yf ye vnderstande these thynges, happy are ye, yf ye do them. I speake not of you all, I knowe whome I haue chosen. But that the scripture be fulfilled: He that eateth bread w me, hath lyft vp his hele agaynst me. ¶ Howe tell I you, before it come: that wher it is come to passe, ye might beleue, that I am he. Creely verely I saye vnto you. He that receyuech whom so cuer I sende, receyuech me. And he that receyuech me, receyuech him that sent me.

¶ When Jesus had thus sayde, he was troubled in the sperte, and testified sayenge: verely verely I say vnto you, that one of you shall betraye me. And then the disciples looked one on an other doubtinge of whome he spake. There was one of his disciples, which leaned on Jesus bosome, whome Jesus loued. To him beckened Simon Peter, that he shoulde aske who it was of whome he spake. He then as he leaned on Jesus brest, sayd vnto hym: Lorde who is it? Jesus answered, he it is to whom I geue a sopp, when I haue dypte it. And he wer a sopp, and gaue it to Judas Iscariot, Simons sonne. And after the sopp, Satan entered into him. Then sayde Jesus vnto him: What thou doest, do quynclly. That wilt thou man at the table, for what intent he spake vnto hym. Some of them thought, because Judas had the bagge, that Jesus had sayde vnto him, dye those thynges that we haue neede of, against the feaste: or that he shoulde gyue some thyng to the poore. As sone then as he had receyued the sopp, he went out. And it was nyght, when he was gone out. Jesus sayde: now is the sonne of man glorified. And God is glorified by him. Yf God be glorified by him, God shall also glorify him in him self: and shall shortly glorifye him.

¶ Deare children, yet a lytell whyle, am I with you. Ye shall seeke me, and as I sayd vnto the Jewes, whither I go, thence can ye not come. And to you saye I now. A new commaundment gyue I vnto you, that ye loue together, as I haue loued you, that euen so ye loue one an other. By this, shall all men knowe that ye are my disciples, yf ye shall haue loue one to an other. Simon peter sayd vnto him: Lorde whither goest thou? Jesus answered hym: Whither I go, thou canst not follow me now, but thou shalt follow me afterwarde. ¶ Peter sayde vnto him: Lorde, why can not I followe the now? I wyl geue my lyfe for thy sake. Jesus answered vnto him: thou gyue thy lyfe for my sake? Creely, verely I saye vnto the, the tocke shall not crowe, tyl thou haue denyed me thrise.

¶ He comforteth his disciples with consolation agaynst trouble, and promyseth them the holye ghost, the sperte of comforte.

CAP. I. XIII.

And he sayde vnto his disciples: Let not your hertes be troubled. Beleue in God, and beleue in me. In my fathers house are many dwellinges. Yf it were not so, I wolde haue tolde you. I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go to prepare a place for you, I will come agayne, and receyue you: euen vnto my selfe, that where I am, there maye ye be also. And whither I go ye knowe, and the waye ye knowe.

¶ Thomas sayd vnto him: Lorde, we knowe not whither thou goest, and how is it possible for vs to knowe the waye? Jesus sayd vnto hym: I am the waye, and the trowth and the lyfe. And no man cometh vnto the father, but by me. Yf ye had knowen me, ye had knowen my father also. And now ye knowe him, and haue sent him.

¶ Philip sayeth vnto hym: Lorde, shewe vs the father, and it sufficeth vs. Jesus sayd vnto him, haue I bene so longe tyme with you: & yet hast thou not knowen me? Philip, he hath sene me, hath sene the father. And howe sayest thou then: shewe vs the father? Beleuest thou not that I am in the father, & the father in me? The wordes that I speake vnto you

G. 19.

I speake

I speake not of my selfe: but the father that dwelleth in me, is he that weth the workes. Beleeue me that I am in the father, and the father in me. At the least, beleeue me for the beserp workes sake.

Truely, verely I say vnto you, he that belecureth on me, the workes that I do, he shall also do, and greater workes then these, shall he do, because I go vnto my father. And what soeuer ye aske in my name, that will I doo, that the father, myghte be glorified, by the sonne. If ye shall aske any thing in my name, I will do it.

* If ye loue me, kepe my commaundmentes, and I will praye the father, and he shall gyue you an other comforter, that he maye abyde with you euer: whiche is * the spirite of trouth, whome the worlde can not receiue, because the worlde seeth hym not, neither knoweth hym. But ye knowe hym, for he dwelleth with you, and shall be in you. I will not leaue you fatherles: but will come to you.

Yet a lytell whyle, and the worlde seeth me no more: but ye shall see me. For I lyue, and ye shall lyue. That daye shall ye knowe that I am in my father, and you in me, and I in you.

* Who that hath my commaundmentes, & kepteth them, the same is he that loueth me. And who loueth me, shall be loued of my father: and I will loue hym, and open my selfe to hym. Judas sayde vnto hym (not Judas Iscariot) Rorde, what is the cause, that thou wilt leaue thy selfe vnto vs, and not vnto the worlde? Iesus answered and sayde vnto him: if a man loue me, he will kepe my word, and my father also will loue him, & we will come vnto hym, and dwell with hym. He that leaueth me not, kepeth not my sayenges. And the workes whiche ye heare, are not myne, but the fathers whiche sent me.

¶ This haue I spoken vnto you, beyng yet present with you. But that comforter the holy ghooste (whome my father will sende in my name) he shall teache you all, and byng all to your remembraunce, what so euer I haue tolde you.

¶ Pear I leaue with you, my pear I gyue vnto you. For as the worlde greued, gyue I vnto you. Let not your hertes be greued, neyther feare ye. Ye haue heard, how I sayde vnto you: I go, and come agayne vnto you. If ye loued me, ye wold verely reioyce, because I sayde, I go vnto the father. For the father is greater then I. And now haue I shewed you, before it come, that when it is come to passe, ye myght beleeue. Here after will I not speake many wordes vnto you. For the ruler of this worlde cometh, and hath nought in me. But that the worlde maye knowe that I loue the father: Therefore as the father gaue me commaundement, euen so do I. & Arple, go we hence.

¶ I Am the true byne, and my father is the husbandman. Euer byanche that beareth not frute in me, he will take awaye. And euer byanche, that beareth frute, will he pouerge, that it maye byringe more frute. Nowe are ye cleane, thorow the wordes, whiche I haue spoken vnto you. Abyde in me, and let me abyde in you. As the byanche cannot beare frute of it selfe, except it abyde in the byne: no more can ye, ones ye abyde in me. I am the byne, and ye are the byanches. Who abyde in me, and I in him, the same byngeth forth moche frute. For without me, can ye do nothinge. If a man abyde not in me, he is cast forth as a byanche, and is wyddered: & men gather it, and cast it into the fyre, and it burneth. * If ye abyde in me, and my wordes also abyde in you: what so euer ye will, ye shall aske, and it shall be done to you. ¶ Herin is my father glorified, that ye beare moche frute, and be made my disciples.

¶ As the father hath loued me, so haue I loued you. * Continue in my loue. If ye shall kepe my commaundmentes, ye shall abyde in my loue, euen as I haue kept my fathers commaundmentes, and abyde in his loue. These haue I spoken vnto you, that my love myght remaine in you, and your love myght be full.

¶ This is my commaundment: That ye loue together, as I haue loued you. A greater love then this, hath no man, that a man bestowe his lyfe for his frendes. Ye are my frendes, if ye do what so euer I commaunde you. Therefore call I you not seruantes: for the seruant knoweth not what his lord doeth. But you haue I called frendes: for all that I haue heard of my father, I haue opened to you.

¶ Ye haue not chosen me, but I haue chosen you, and ordeyned you, that ye go and bring forth frute, and that your frute remaine, that what so euer ye shall aske of the father, in my name, he shall gyue it you.

¶ This commaunde I you, That ye loue together. If the worlde hate you, ye knowe that he hated me, before he hated you. If ye were of the worlde, the worlde wold loue his owne. Howe be it because ye are not of the worlde, but I haue chosen you out of the worlde: therefore hateth you the worlde. Remember the sayenge that I sayde vnto you: The seruant is not greater then the Lord. * If they haue persecuted me, so will they persecute you. If they haue kept my sayenges, so will they kepe your.

¶ But all these thinges will they do vnto you for my names sake, because they haue not known hym that sent me. If I hadde not come, and spoken vnto them, they wold not haue had synne: but now haue they nothinge, to cloke their synne with all. He that hateth me hateth my father. If I had not done workes amonge them, whiche none other man dyd, they had not had synne. But now haue they sene, and yet haue hated both me and my father: euen so the sayenge myght be fulfilled & is wyfis wyfthen in theyr law: they hated me without a cause. & But when the comforter is come, whome I will sende vnto you from the father, whiche is the spirite of trouth, whiche procedeth of the father, he shall witness of me. And ye shall beare witness also, because ye haue ben with me from the beginninge.

¶ Consolacion agaynst trouble. Prayers are herde of you & Chyche.

¶ These thynges haue I sayd vnto you, because ye shold not be offended. They shall excommunicate you: yea the tyme shall come, that who so euer kylleth you, will thynke that he dothe God seruyce. And suche thynges will they do vnto you, because they haue not known the father, neyther yet me. But these thynges haue I tolde you, & when that houre is come, ye myght remembre them that I tolde you so. ¶ These thynges sayd I not vnto you at the beginninge, because I was present with you.

¶ But now I go awaye to him that sent me, and none of you asketh me: whither goest thou? But because I haue sayd suche thynges vnto you, your hertes are full of sorowe. But I tell you the trouth, it is expedient for you that I go awaye. For if I go not awaye, the comforter will not come vnto you. But if I departe, I will sende hym vnto you. And when he is come, he shall rebuke the worlde of synne, and of ryghtousnes, and of iudgement. * Of synne, because they beleeue not on me: of ryghtousnes, because I go to my father, & ye shall see me no more: of iudgement, because the chiefe ruler of this worlde is iudged already.

¶ I haue yet many thynges to saye vnto you: but ye can not beare them awaye now. Howe be it when he is come (I mean the spirite of trouth) he will leade you in to all trouth: he shall not speake of hym selfe: but what so euer he shall heare, that shall he speake: and he will shewe you thynges to come. He shall glorifye me: for he shall receiue of myne, and shall shewe vnto you. All thynges that the father hath, are myne. Therefore sayde I vnto you, that he shall take of myne and shewe vnto you.

¶ A whyle & ye see me not, agayne a whyle and ye shall see me: for I go to the father. When I haue said some of his disciples within them selues: What is this that he sayth vnto vs: a whyle and ye see me not, and agayne a whyle and ye shall see me, and that I go to the father. They sayde therefore: what is this that he saythe, a whyle: we can not tell what he saythe. Iesus perceyued that they wold aske him, and sayd vnto them: This is it that ye enquire of amonges your selues, that I sayde: a whyle and ye see me not, and agayne a whyle and ye shall see me. Verily verily I saye vnto you: ye shall wepe and lament, and the worlde shall reioyce: ye shall sorowe, but your sorowe shall be turned to ioye.

¶ A woman when she trauaileth, hathe so-

rowe, because her houre is come: but as soone as she is deliuered of the chyld, she remembereth no more the angurthe, for ioye that a man is borne in to the worlde. And ye now are in sorowe, but I will see you agayne, and your hertes shall reioyce, and your ioye shall no man take from you. ¶ And in that daye shall ye aske me no question. * Verily verily I saye vnto you, what so euer ye shall aske the father in my name, he will gyue it vnto you. Wherefore haue ye asked nothing in my name. * Aske and ye shall receiue it: that your ioye may be full.

¶ These thynges haue I spoken vnto you in prouerbes. The tyme shall come when I shall no more speake to you in prouerbes: but I shall shewe you playnly of my father. At that daye shall ye aske in my name. And I saye not vnto you that I will speake vnto my father for you. For the father him self loueth you, because ye haue loued me, and haue beleeued that I came from God. I wente out from the father, and came in to the worlde: and I leue the worlde agayne, and go to the father.

¶ His disciples said vnto him: lo, now speakest thou playnly, and thou bled no prouerbe, now we knowe we that thou understandest all thynges, and needest not that any man shold aske the any question. Therefore beleeue we that thou camest from God. ¶ Iesus answered them: Now ye do beleeue. ¶ Beholde the houre draweth nye, and is already come, that ye shall be scattered euerie man his wayes, & shall leue me alone. And yet am I not alone. For the father is with me.

¶ These wordes haue I spoke vnto you, that in me ye might haue peace. For in the worlde shall ye haue tribulation: but be of good chere: I haue overcome the worlde.

¶ The moste hartly and louynge prayer of Chyche vnto his father, for all such as receiue the truth.

¶ These wordes spake Iesus and lyft vp his eyes to heuen, and sayd: father, the houre is come: glorifye thy sonne, that thy sonne maye glorifye the: as thou hast gyuen him power ouer all fleshe, that he shold gyue euerylastyng lyfe to as many as thou hast gyuen him. This is lyfe euerylastyng, that they might knowe the, thonly true God, & whome thou hast sent Iesus Chyche.

¶ I haue glorified the on the erthe, I haue fulfilled the worke whiche thou gauest me to do. And now glorifye me thou father at thine owne selfe, with the glory whiche I had with the, & the worlde was. I haue declared thy name vnto the men whiche thou gauest me of the worlde. Whome they were, and thou gauest them me, and they haue kepte thy sayenges. Now they knowe that all what so euer thou hast gyuen me, are of the. For I haue gyuen vnto them the wordes whiche thou gauest me, and they haue receiued them, and knowe surely that I came from the: and do beleeue that thou dydest sende me.

¶ I pray for them, I pray not for the worlde, but but for them whiche thou hast gyuen me, for they are thynne. And all myne are thynne, and thynne are myne/and I am glorified in them. And now am I no more in the worlde, but they are in the worlde, and come to the. I Holy father kepe i thynne owne name them whiche thou hast gyuen me, that they may be one as we are. While I was with them in the worlde, I kept them in thy name. Those that thou gavest me, have I kept, and none of them is lost, save that lost chylde, that the scripture myght be fulfilled.

Now come I to the, & these wordes speake I in the worlde, that they might have my ioye full in them. I have gyuen them thy wordes, and the worlde hath hated them, because they are not of the worlde, as I am not of the worlde. I desyre not that thou shouldest take them out of the worlde, but that thou kepe them from euill. They are not of the worlde, like as I am not of the worlde. Sanctifie them with thy trouthe. Thy sayinge is trouthe. As thou saydest send me in to the worlde, so have I sent them in to the worlde, & for their sakes sanctifie I my selfe, that they also might be sanctified throughe the trouthe.

I praye not for them alone: but for them also whiche shall beleue on me throughe thy preachinge, that they all maye be one, as thou father art in me, and I in the; that they maye be also one in us, that the worlde maye beleue that thou hast sent me. And that glorie that thou gavest me, I have gyuen them, that they maye be one, as we are one. I in them, and thou in me, that they maye be made perfecte in one, and that the worlde maye knowe that thou hast sent me, and hast loved them, as thou hast loved me.

Father, I wyl that they whiche thou hast gyuen me, be with me where I am, that they maye see my glory whiche thou hast gyuen me. For thou lovedst me before the makinge of the worlde. O righteous father, the worlde hathe not knowne the, but I have knowne the, and these have knowne that thou hast sent me. And I have declared unto them thy name, and wyl declare it, that the loue wherewith thou hast loved me, be in them, and I in them. I

C API. XVIII.

When Jesus had spoken these wordes he went forth with his disciples ouer the brooke Cedron, where was a garden in to whiche he entred with his disciples. Now Judas whiche betrayed him knewe the place, for Jesus oft tymes resorted thither with his disciples. Judas then after he hadde receyued a bande of men, and ministers of the hygh priestes & Pharisees, came thither with lanterns and torches, and weapons. Then Jesus knowinge al thinges that shoulde come on him, went forth and said unto them: whom seke ye?

They answered him: Jesus of Nazareth. Jesus said unto them: I am he. Judas also whiche betrayed him, stode with them. But as sone as he had sayde unto them, I am he, they wente bakwardes and fell to the grounde. And he asked them agayne: whom seke ye? They sayd: Jesus of Nazareth. Jesus answered: I said vnto you, I am he/ye seke me, let these go their way. That the sayinge myght be fulfilled whiche he spake: of them whiche thou gavest me, have I not lost one.

Simon Peter had a swerde, and drew it, and smote the hygh priestes seruante, and cut of his righte eare. The seruantes name was Malchus. Then sayd Jesus vnto Peter: put vp thy swerde in to the sheathe: Shall I not drinke of the cup which my father hath given me? Then the company and the captayne, and ministers of the Jewes toke Jesus and bound him, and ledde him awaye to Anna Pryse, for he was father in lawe vnto Cayphas, whiche was the hye priest that same yere. Cayphas was he that gaue counsell to the Jewes, that it was expedient that one man shoulde dye for the people.

And Simon Peter folowed Jesus & an other discipule, that discipule was knowne of the hye priest, & wet in with Jesus in to the palace of the hygh priest. But Peter stode at the doore without. Then wente out that other discipule whiche was knowne vnto the hye priest, and spake to the damsell that kepte the doore, and brought in Peter. Then said the damsell that kepte the doore vnto Peter: Art not thou one of this mans disciples? He said: I am not. The seruantes and the ministers stode there, and had made a fyre of coles, for it was colde, and they warmed them selues. Peter also stode amonge them, and warmed him selfe.

The hygh priest asked Jesus of his disciples & of his doctrine. Jesus answered him: I spake openly in the worlde. I neuer taughte in the Synagoge, and in the temple whither all the Jewes resorteth, and in secreete have I sayde nothinge: Why asked thou me? Aske them whiche heard me, what I said vnto them. Whiche thes can tell what I sayd. When he had thus spoken, one of the ministers whiche stode by smote Jesus on the face, sayinge: answered thou the hygh priest so? Jesus answered him. If I have euill spoken, beare wytnesse of the euill: yf I have wel spoken, why smytst thou me? And Anna sente him bounde vnto Cayphas the hygh priest.

Simon Peter stode and warmed him selfe. And they sayde vnto him: Art not thou also one of his disciples? He denyed it, and sayde: I am not. One of the seruantes of the hygh priestes (his cosyn whose eare Peter smote of) sayde vnto hym: Dyd not I see the in the garden with him? Peter denyed agayne, and amonge the cracke cewe. Then ledde they Jesus from Cayphas in to the hall of iudgement. It was in the morning, and they them selues went not in to the iudgement hall lest they shoulde be defiled, but that they might eate the pasche. Pilate then wente out vnto them and sayde: What accusation byngst thou agaynst this man? They answered and sayde vnto him: If he were not an euill doer, we wold not haue deliuered him vnto the. Then sayde Pilate vnto them: take ye him and iudge him after your lawe. Then the Jewes sayde vnto him: It is not lawfull for vs to put any man to death. That the wordes of Jesus myghte be fulfilled, whiche he spake signifyinge what death he shoulde dye.

Then Pilate entred in to the iudgement hall agayne, and called Jesus, and sayde vnto him: Art thou the kynge of the Jewes? Jesus answered: sayest thou that of thy selfe, or dyd other tell it the of me? Pilate answered: Am I a Jewe? Thyne owne nation and hye priestes haue deliuered the vnto me. What hast thou done? Jesus answered: My kynghome is not of this worlde. If my kynghome were of this worlde, then wold my ministers surely fygth, that I shoulde not be deliuered to the Jewes, but now is my kynghome not from hence. Pilate said vnto him: Art thou a kynge then? Jesus answered: thou sayst that I am a kynge. For this cause was I borne, and for this cause came I in to the worlde, that I wold beare wytnesse vnto the trouthe. And all that are of the trouthe heare my voyce. Pilate said vnto him: what thing is trouthe? And when he had sayd that, he went out agayne vnto the Jewes, and sayde vnto them: I fynde in him no cause at al. Ye haue a custome that I shoulde deliuer you one lofe at Ester. Wyl ye that I lofe vnto you the kynge of the Jewes? Then cryed they all agayne, sayinge: Not him, but Barabbas, that Barabbas was a robber.

Chyrche is crucified, he commendeth his mother vnto Ioh, headeth his bloude, and is bur yed.

C API. XIX.

Then Pilate toke Jesus and scourged him. And the souldiours wounde a crowne of thornes, & put it on his heed. And they byd on him a purple garmente, and sayd, halle kynge of the Jewes: & they smote him on the face. Pilate went forth agayne and sayd vnto them: Beholde I byngge him forth to you, that ye maye knowe that I fynde no faulte in him. Then came Jesus forth, wea-ryng a crowne of thorne, and a robe of purple. And Pilate sayd vnto them: beholde the man. When the hye priestes and ministers sawe him, they cryed, sayinge: Crucifye him, crucifye him. Pilate sayd vnto them. Take ye him and crucifye him, for I fynde no cause in him. The Jewes answered him. We haue a lawe, and by our lawe he ought to dye: because he made him selfe the sonne of God. When Pilate herde this sayinge, he was the more afrayde, and went agayne in to the iudgement hall, and sayd vnto Jesus: Whence art thou? But Jesus gaue him none answer. Then sayde Pilate vnto him. Speakest thou not vnto me? Knowest thou not that I haue power to crucifye the, and haue power to lofe the? Jesus answered. Thou couldest haue no power at all agaynst me, onlesse it were gyuen the from above. Therefore he that deliuered me vnto the, is moze in synne. And from thence forth Pilate meanes to lofe hym. But the Jewes cryed, sayinge: yf thou let him go, thou arte not Celsars friend. For who so cuer maketh him selfe a kynge, is agaynst Celsar.

When Pilate herde this sayinge, he brought Jesus forth, and sare downe to gyue sentence, in a place called the pauement, but in the Hebrue tonge, Sabbatha. It was the Saboth euen, whiche fallerh in the Ester feest, and aboute the syxe houre. And he sayde vnto the Jewes: beholde your kynge. They cryed, awaye with him, awaye with him, crucifye him. Pilate sayde vnto them, Shall I crucifye your kynge? The hye priestes answered: we haue no kynge but Celsar. Then deliuered he him vnto them, to be crucified.

And they toke Jesus, and ledde him awaye. And he bare his crosse, and wente forth in to a place called the place of deed mens sculles, which is named in Hebrue, Golgotha. Where they crucified him, and two other with hym, on either syde one, and Jesus in the myddes. And Pilate wrote this scyle, and put it on the crosse. The wyrtynge was: Jesus of Nazareth kynge of the Jewes. This title red many of the Jewes. For the place where Jesus was crucified, was nye to the cite. And it was wyrtten, in Hebrue, Greke, and Latyn. Then sayd the hygh priestes of the Jewes to Pilate: wryte not kynge of the Jewes, but that he sayd I am kynge of the Jewes. Pilate answered: what I haue wyrtten, that haue I wyrtten.

Then the souldiours when they had crucified Jesus, toke his garmentes and made foure partes, to euery souldiour a parte, and also his coote. The coote was withoute seme, wrought vpon throughe out. And they sayd one to an other. Let vs not deuyte it, but cast lottes who shall haue it. That the scripture myght be fulfilled whiche sayth. They parted my rayment amonge them, and on my coote dyd cast lottes. And the souldiours byd these thynges in dede.

Then stode by the crosse of Jesus his mother, and his mothers syster, Mary the wyfe of Cleophas, and Mary Magdalen. When Jesus sawe his mother, and the discipule standinge whom he loued, he sayd to his mother: woman, beholde thy sonne. Then sayde he to the discipule: beholde thy mother. And frome that houre the discipule toke her for his owne.

After that, when Jesus perceyued that all thynges were performed, that the scripture might be fulfilled, he sayd: I thirst. There stode a vessel full of vinegre by. And they fylled a sponge with vinegre, and wounde it aboute with plope, and put it to his mouth. As sone as Jesus had receyued of the vinegre he sayte: It is fulfilled, and bowed his heed, and gaue vp the ghost. The Jewes then because it was the Saboth eue, that the bodies shold not remayne vpon the crosse on the Saboth daye (for that Saboth daye was an hye day) besought Pilate that their legges might be broken, & that they might be taken downe.

Then came the souldpours and brake the legges of the hyfte and of the other whiche was crucified with Iesus. But when they came to Iesus, and sawe that he was dead alreadye, they brake not his legges: But one of the souldpours with a speere thrust hym in to the syde, and forthwith came there out blood and water.

And he that sawe it, bare recorde, and his recorde is true. And he knoweth that he sayth true, that ye myghte beleue also. These thynges were done that the scripture shoulde be fulfilled. * Ye shall not breake a bone of hym. And agayne an other scripture sayth: They shall loke on hym whome they pierced. * After that Ioseph of Aramathea (whiche was a disciple of Iesus: but secretly for feare of the Jewes) be soughte Pilate that he myght take downe the bodye of Iesus. And Pilate gaue him licence. And there came also Nicodemus, whiche at the begynnyng came to Iesus by nyght, and brought of myrrour and aloes myn- gled togyther aboute an. x. ponde waight. Then toke they the bodye of Iesu, and wounde it in linnen clothes with the odours, as the maner of the Jewes is to bury. And in place where Iesus was crucified, was a garden, and in the garden a newe sepulchre, wherein was neuer man layde. There layd they Iesus because of the Jewes Saboth euen, for the sepulchre was nye at hande. f

The resurrection of Christ, whiche appeareth to Marye Magdalene, and to all his disciples, to their great comforte.

The morowe after the Saboth dape, came Marye Magdalene early, when it was yet darke, vnto the sepulchre, and sawe the stone taken awaye from the graue. Then she ranne, and came to Symon Peter and to thother discipple whome Iesus loued, and sayd vnto them. They haue taken awaye the Lorde out of the graue, & we can not tell where they haue layde him. Peter went forth and that other discipple, and came to the sepulchre. They ranne bothe togyther, and that other discipple dyd out runne Peter, & came first to the sepulchre. And he stooped downe, & sawe the linnen clothes lyinge: yet went he not in. Then came Symon Peter folowynge hym, and went in to the sepulchre, and sawe the linnen clothes lye, and the naphyn that was about his heed not lyinge with the linnen cloth but wrapped togyther in a place by it selfe. Then went in also that other discipple whiche came first to the sepulchre, and he sawe and beleued. For as yet they knewe not the scriptures that he shoulde rise agayne from the dead. f And the disciples went awaye agayne vnto theyr owne home.

* Marye rode without at the sepulchre wepyng. And as she wepte, she bowed her selfe in to the sepulchre, and sawe two aungelles in whyte syttinge, thone at the heed, and the other at the fete, where they had layde the body of Iesus. And they said vnto her: woman, why wepest thou? She sayde vnto them: for they haue taken awaye my Lorde, & I wote not where they haue layd him. When she had thus sayd, she turned her selfe backe, and sawe Iesus standynge, and knewe not that it was Iesus. Iesus sayde vnto her: Woman, why wepest thou? Whome seekest thou? She sayd: for I had ben a gardener, sayd vnto him. Sir, if thou haue borne him hence, tell me where thou hast layd him, that I may fer him. Iesus sayd vnto her: Marye. She turned her selfe, and sayd vnto hym: Rabbi, whiche is to saye, master. Iesus sayde vnto her, & touche me not, for I am not yet ascended to my father. But go to my brethren & saye vnto them: I ascend to my father and your father: to my God and your God. Marye Magdalene came and tolde the disciples that she hadde sene the Lorde, and that he had spoken such thynges vnto her. f

* The same dape at nyght, which was the morowe after the Saboth, when the doores were shut where the disciples were assembled for feare of the Jewes: came Iesus and stode in the myddes, and sayde to them: pear with you. And when he had so sayd: he shewed vnto them his handes and his syde. Then were the disciples glad, when they sawe the Lorde. Then sayde Iesus to them agayne: pear be with you. As my father sent me, so send I you. And when he had said that, he breathed on the, and sayd vnto them: Receyue the holy ghoost. Who so euer synnes ye remitte, they are remitted vnto them. And who so euer synnes ye retayne, they are retayned. f

* But Thomas one of the twelue, called Didimus, was not with them when Iesus came. Thother disciples sayde vnto hym: we haue sene the Lorde. And he sayde vnto them: Onlesse I se in his handes the pynte of the nayles, and thrust my hande in to his syde: I will not beleue. And after eght dayes agayne his disciples were within, and Thomas with them. Then came Iesus when the doores were shut, and stode in the myddes, and sayd: pear with you.

After that sayd he to Thomas: bringe thy fynger hither, and se my handes: and bringe thy hande and thruste in to my syde, and be not farythelle, but beleuynge. Thomas answered and sayd vnto him: My Lorde, and my God. Iesus sayde vnto hym. Thomas, because thou hast sene me, therefore thou belieuest: happy are they that haue not sene, and belieue. f

And many other sygnes dyd Iesus in the syghte of his disciples, whiche is not wyrtten in this booke. These are wyrtten that ye myght beleue that Iesus is Christ the sonne of God: and that in beleuynge, ye myght haue lyfe thow he is his name.

He appeareth to his disciples agayne by the see of Tiberias, and commaundeth Peter cruccly to feed his shepe.

After

After that Iesus shewed hym selfe agayne, at the see of Tiberias. And on this wyse shewed he hym selfe. There were togyther Symon Peter, Thomas called Didimus: and Nathanael of Cana a citie of Galile, and the sonnes of Zebedee, & two other of the disciples. Symon Peter sayth vnto them: I go a fyshynge. They sayde vnto hym: We also will go with the. They wente theyr waye, and entred in to the shyppe forthwith, and that nyght caught they nothyng. But when the morowynge was now come, Iesus stode on the shype: neuerthelesse the disciples knewe not that it was Iesus. Iesus sayde vnto them: Chyldren, haue ye any meate? They answered hym, no. And he sayde vnto them: cast out the net on the ryght syde of the shyp, and ye shall fynde. They cast out, and anon they were not hable to drawe it by, for the multitude of fyshes.

Then sayd the discipple whome Iesus loued vnto Peter: It is the Lorde. When Symon Peter herde it was the Lorde, he gryde his mantell to hym (for he was naked) and sprange in to the see. The other disciples came by shyp, for they were not farr from lande, but as it were two hundred cubites, and they dreyne the nette with fyshes. When they were come to the lande, they sawe hote coles and fyshes layde thereon, & brede: Iesus sayd vnto them: bring of the fyshes which ye haue nowe caught. Symon Peter stepped forth and dreyne the nette to lande full of grete fyshes, an hundred and liij. And for al there was so many, yet was not the net broken. Iesus sayde vnto them: come and dyne. And none of the disciples durst aske hym: what art thou? For they knewe it was the Lorde. Iesus then came and toke brede, and gaue them, and fyshed lykewyse. And this is now the thyrde tyme that Iesus appeared to his disciples, after he was risen agayne frome deathe. f more then these? He sayde vnto hym: Yea Lorde, thou knowest I loue the. He sayde to him: fede my lambs. He said to him agayne the seconde tyme: Symon Joanna louest thou me? He sayd to him: Yea Lorde thou knowest I loue the. He sayd vnto him: fede my shepe. He sayde vnto him the thyrde tyme: Symon Joanna louest thou me? And Peter sorowed bycause he said to him the thyrde tyme, louest thou me: and sayd vnto him: Lorde thou knowest all thou knowest that I loue the. Iesus sayd to him: fede my shepe.

Merely verily I saye vnto the, when thou wast yonge, thou gydest thy selfe, and walkest whither thou woldst: but when thou arte olde, thou shalt stretch forth thy handes and an other shal gyde the, and lede the whither thou wilt not. That spake he, signifying by what deeth he shoulde glorifye God.

And when he had sayd thus, he sayd to him: folowe me. Peter turned about, and sawe that discipple whome Iesus loued folowynge whiche also leued on his brest at supper, and sayde: Lorde, whiche is he that shal betraye the. When Peter sawe him, he sayd to Iesus: Lorde, but what shal this man do? Iesus said vnto him: If I will haue hym tarye tyll I come, what is that to the? folow thou me. When went this sayinge abrode amonge the brethren that that discipple shoulde not dye. Yet Iesus sayd not to him, he shal not dye, but yet I will that he tarye tyll I come, what is that to the? The same discipple is he whiche testifyeth of these thynges, and wrote these thynges:

And we knowe that his testimonye is true. f There are also many other thynges whiche Iesus dyd, whiche if they shoulde be wyrtten euery one, I suppose the worlde coude not contayne the booke that shoulde be wyrtten.

CAP. I.

I. ✕

In the former treatise (where friend Theophilus) I have written of all that Jesus began to do and teach, until the day in which he was taken up, after that he shewed the holy ghost had given commandments unto the apostles, which he had chosen: to whom also he shewed him self alive after his passion by many tokens, appearing unto them fourty daies, and speaking of the kingdom of God, and gathered them together, and commanded them that they shoulde not departe from Jerusalem, but waite for the promise of the father, which he hath said by the mouth of his holie prophetes, saying: For John baptised with water: but ye shall be baptised with the holy ghost, and that within this fewe daies. When they were come together, they asked of him, saying: Lord, wilt thou at this tyme restore againe the kingdom to Israel? And he sayde unto them: It is not for you to knowe the tyme or the seasons, which the father hath put in his owne power: but ye shall receiue power of the holy ghost, which shall come upon you. And ye shall be witnesses unto me in Jerusalem, and in all Jewrye, and in Samaria, and even unto the world.

Psal. xli. 4

And when he had spoken these thynges, whyle they behelde, he was taken up, and a cloude receyued him up out of theyr sight. And whyle they looked stedfastly vp to heauen, as he wente, beholde, two men stode by them in white apparell, which also sayd: Ye men of Galilee, why stande ye gazinge up in to heauen. This same Jesus which is taken up from you in to heauen, shall so come euen as ye haue seene him go in to heauen. Then returned they vnto Jerusalem from mounte Oliuet, which is nye to Jerusalem, contynnyng a Saboth daies iourneie. And when they were come in, they wente up in to a parloure, where abode bothe Peter and James, John and Andzew, Philip and Thomas, Bartolomew and Mathew, James the sonne of Alphus, and Symon Zelotes, and Judas James sonne. These all contynued with one accord in prayer and supplication with the women, and Mary the mother of Iesu, and with his brethren.

And in those daies Peter stode vp in the myddes of the disciples and sayd (the nombre of names that were together were aboute an hundred and twenty) Ye men and brethren, this scripture must needs haue ben fulfilled touching the holy ghost, which shewed the mouth of David, sayinge before of Judas, which was guide to them that toke Iesus. For he was nombred with vs, and hadde obteyned felowship in this ministration. And the same hath now possessed a plot of ground in the rewarde of iniquite, and when he was hanged, he fell asunder in the myddes, and all his bowels gashed out. And it is knowne vnto all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, in so moche that that felte is called in theyr mother tonge, Acheldama: that is to saye, the bloude felde.

It is written in the booke of Psalmes: His habitation be voyde, and no man be dwelling therein: ✕ and his dyspopyche let an other take. Wherefore of these men which haue accompanied with vs all the tyme that the Lord Iesus wente in and out amonge vs, begynnynge at the baptisme of John vnto that same daye that he was taken up from vs, muste one be ordeined to beare witness with vs of his resurrection.

And they appoynted two: Joseph called Barsabas (whose surname was Iudas) and Mathias. And they prayed sayinge: Thou Lord, which knowest the hartes of all men, shewe whether of these two thou hast chosyn, that the one may take the lotte of this ministry and apostleship, from which Iudas by transgression fell, that he myghte go to his owne place. And they gaue forth theyr lottes, and the lot fel on Mathias, and he was counted with the eleuen apostles.

The commynge of the holy ghost. The sermon of Peter before the congregation at Jerusalem, and the increase of the church.

CAP. II.

II.

When the daye of Pentecost was come, they were all with one accord together in one place. And suddenly there came a sounde from heauen, as it had ben the commynge of a mygdyr wynde, and it filled all the house where they sat. And there appered vnto them clouen tonges, lyke as they had ben fyre, and it sate vpon eche of them: ✕ and they were all filled with the holy ghost, and began to speke with other tonges, euen as the spirytle gaue them utteraunce.

And there were dwelling at Jerusalem Jewes, deuoute men, which were of all nations vnder heauen. When this rumour was heard, the multitude came together, and were assembled, because euery man herde them speke his owne tonge. They wondered all, and marvelled, sayinge amonge them selues: beholde are not all these which speke of Galilee? And how here we euery man his owne tonge, wherein we were doctored? Parthians, Medes, and Elamites, and the inhabitants of Mesopotamia, of Iurye, and of Capadocia, of Pontus and Asia, Phrygia, Pamphilia, and of Egypte, and of the parties of Libya, which is besyde Cyrene, and straungers of Rome, Jewes, and conuerter, Grekes and Arabians: we haue herde them speke with our owne tonges the greates workes of God. They were all amazed, and wondered, sayinge one to an other: what meaneth this? Other mocked them, sayinge: they are full of newe wyne.

But Peter stepped forth with the eleuen and sayde vnto them: Ye men of Iurye, and all ye that inhabit Jerusalem:

Jerusalem: be this knowne vnto you and with your eares heare my wordes. These are not drunken, as ye suppose: for it is yet but the thyrde hour of the day. But this is that which was spoken by the prophet Joel: ✕ It shall be in the last daies (sayeth God) of my spirytle I will powre out vpon all fleshe. And your sonnes and your daughters shall prophesye, and your olde men shall dreame dreames, and on my seruantes, and on my hande maydens I will powre out of my spirytle in those daies, and they shall prophesye. And I will shewe wonders in heauen aboue, and tokens in the earth beneath, bloude and fyre, and the vapour of smoke. ✕ The sonne shall be turned in to darkness, and the mone in to bloude before that greates notable daye of the Lord come. ✕ And it shall be, that whosoever shall call on the name of the Lord, shall be saved.

Ye men of Israel heare these wordes. Iesus of Nazareth a man approued of God amonge you with myracles, wonders and signes which God dyd by hym in the myddes of you, as ye your selues knowe: hym haue ye taken by the handes of vnrighteous persons, after he was deliuered by the determinat counsell and fore knowledge of God, and haue crucified and slayned hym: whom God hath rayled vp with longynge the sorowes of death, because it was impossible that he shoulde be holden of it. For David speaketh of him. ✕ Afore hande I sawe God alwayes before me: for he is on my ryghte hande, that I shoulde not be moued. Wherefore dyd my herte reioyce, and my tongue was glad. Wherefore also my fleshe shall rest in hope, because thou wilt not leaue my soule in hell, neyther wilt suffice thyn holy to se corruption. Thou hast shewed me the wayes of lyfe, and shalt make me full of meryte with thy countenaunce.

Men and brethren, for as moche as I may freely speake vnto you of the Patriarke David: ✕ For he is both deed and buried, and his sepulchre remaineth with vs vnto this daye. Where as he then was a prophet, and knew that God had sware with an othe to hym, that the frute of his loynes shoulde sit on his seate (in that Christ shoulde rise againe in the fleshe) he sawe before: and spake of the resurrection of Christ, that his soule shoulde not be left in hell: neyther his fleshe shoulde se corruption. This Iesus hath God rayled vp, whereof we all are witnesses.

Sythen now that he by the ryght hand of God is exalted, and hath receyued of the father the promise of the holy ghost, he hath shed forth this which ye now se and heare. For David is not ascended into heauen: but he sayde. ✕ The Lord sayde to my Lord, sit on my ryghte hand, till I make thyn enemies thy fote stole. Soo therefore let all the house of Israel knowe for a surety, that God hath made that same Iesus, whom ye haue crucified, Lord and Christ.

When they herde this, they were pricked in their hartes, and sayde vnto Peter and the other apostles: Ye men and brethren, what shall we do? Peter sayde vnto them: repente and be baptised euery one of you in the name of Iesus Christ, for the remission of synnes, and ye shall receiue the gyfte of the holy ghost: for the promise was made vnto you and to your children, and to all that are a farre, euen as many as the Lord our God shall call. And with many other wordes bare he witness and exhorted them, sayinge: Save your selues fro this crooked generation. Then they that gladly receyued his preachinge, were baptised: and the same daye, there were added vnto theym aboute thre thousande soules.

And they continued in the apostles doctrine and felowship, and in breakinge of bread, and in prayer. And feare came ouer euery soule. And many wonders and signes were shewed by the apostles. And al that belued kept theyr selues together, and had all thynges comen, and solde their possessions and goodes, and departed them to all men, as euery man had neede. And they continued dayly with one accord in the temple, and brake bread in euery house, and dyd eate their meate together, with gladnes and synghenes of hert, praylinge God, and hauing fauour with all the people. And the Lord added to the congregacion dayly suche as shoulde be saved.

The halfe is restored to his seate. Peter preacheth Christ vnto the people.

CAP. III.

III.

Peter & John went by together into the temple at the nyght house of prayer. And there was a certayne man halfe, from his mothers wombe, whom they brought & layd at the gate of the temple called beutyfull, to aske almes of them that entred into the temple. Which same when he sawe Peter & John that they wolde entere into the temple, desired to receiue an almes. And Peter stryde his eyes on him with John, sayde: Loke on vs. And he gaue hede vnto them, trustynge to receiue some thyng of them. Then sayd Peter: Syner & golde haue I none, suche as I haue, geue I the. In the name of Iesu Christ of Nazareth, rise vp and walke. And he toke him by the right hande, and left him vp. And anon his feete and ancle bones receyued strength. And he sprang, stode and also walked, & entered with them into the temple, walkinge & leaping, and praylinge God.

And all the people saw him walke & prayse God. And they knew him, for it was he which sat and begged at the beutyfull gate of the temple. And they wondered and were sore amazed at that which had happened vnto him. And as the halfe which was healed, helde Peter and John, all the people ran, amazed vnto them in Salomons porche.

When Peter sawe that, he answered vnto the people. Ye men of Israel, why marvelle ye at this, or why loke ye so stedfastly on vs, as though by our owne power or holynes we had made this man goo? The God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, the God of our fathers hath glorified his sonne Iesus, whom ye deli-

But ye denied: y^e vylp and iust, and despyed a mur- therer to be geyuen you, and kyled the Loyde or iust, who god hath raysted from deth, of the which we are witnesses. And his name shal be the saythe of his name, hath made this man founde, whom ye se and knowe. And the sayth which is by him, hath gyuen to him this helth in the presence of you all:

And now brethren, I wot wel that thowost ignorance ye dyd it, as dyd also your rulers. But thowost thynges which god before had shew- ed by the mouth of all his prophetes, how that Christ shoulde suffer, he hath thus wyse fulfilled. Repent ye therfore and turne, that your synnes may be done awaye. * When the tyme of refreschynge cometh, which we shall haue of the presence of the Loyde, & when god shall sende him, which before was pre- ched vnto you, that is to wit, Iesus Christ, which must receyue heuen, till tyme all thynges which god had spoken by the mouth of al his holy prophetes & whichens the world be- gan be restoyred agayne.

Gen. xii. 1.

Ye are the chyldren of the prophetes and of the testament, whiche god hath made vnto our fathers, sayinge to Abraham: * Euen in thy seed shall all the kynredes of the earth be blessed. First vnto you hath god raysted by his sonne Iesus, and him he hath sente to blesse you, that eueri one of you shoulde turne frome your wyckednesse. *

The Apostles are taken and brought before the Councill. They are forbydden to preache, but they turne them vnto prayer, and are moze obedi- ent vnto god then vnto men.

C A P I. I I I I.

As they spake vnto the people, the prie- stes and the ruler of the temple, and the Sadduces came vpon them takynge it greuously that they taught the people & pre- ched in Iesus the resurrection from deth. And they layde handes on them, and put them in holde till the nexte daye: for it was now euen tyme. Nowe be it many of them which herde the wordes, blyued, and the nombre of the men was aboute fyue thousande,

And it chaunced on the morowe that they rulers, and elders, and Scribes, as Anas the chiefe priest and Apphas, and John and Alexander, & as many as were of y^e kynred of the hygh priestes gathered together at Jeru- salem, and set the other before them, and asked by what power, or in what name haue ye done this? * Then Peter full of holy ghoost sayd vnto them: Ye rulers of the people, and elders of Israel, if we this daye are examined of the good dede doone to the speke man, by what meanes he is made hole: be it knowne vnto you all, and to the people of Israel, that in the name of Iesu Christ of Nazareth, whome ye crucified, and whom god raysted agayne from deathe: euen by him dothe this man stande here present before you hole. * This is the done caste a speche of you buylders, which is set in the chese place of the corner. Reuer is ther saluacion in any other. For there is not any other name gyuen to men, wherein we must be saued. *

When they sawe the boldnes of Peter and John, and understood that they were bali- ned and lape people, they merueyled, and they knewe them, that they were with Iesu, and beholdynge also the man whiche was healed standynge with them, they couide not saye agayne it. But they commaunded them to go asyde out of the concile, and conspyed among them selues sayinge: what shall we do to these men? For a manifest signe is done by them, and is openly knowne to al them that dwell in Je- rusalem, and we can not denye it. But that it be nopsed no farther among the people, let vs threaten and charge them they speake hence- forth to no man in this name.

And they called them, and commaunded them that in no wyse they shoulde speake or teache in the name of Iesu. But Peter & John answered vnto them, and sayd: whether it be right in the sight of god, to obeye you more then god, Iudge ye. For we can not, but speche that which we haue seene and herde. So they rebayed them, and let them go, and founde nothyng howe to punishe them, because of the people. For all men glorified god in: the miracle whiche was doone, for the man was aboute fourety yere olde, on whome this mira- cle of healyng was shewed.

As soone as they were let go, they came to the priestes, and shewed all that the hygh priestes & elders had sayd to them. And when they herde that, they lyfte vp theyr voyces to god with one accorde, and sayd: Loyde, thou arte god whiche hast made heuen and erthe, the see and all that in them is, whiche by the mouth of thy seruant Dauid hast sayd: * Why dyd the hechen rage, and the people magen bayne thynges. The kynredes of the earth shode vp, and the rulers came togither agaynst the Loyde, and agaynst his anoynted.

For of a trowth, agaynst thy holy sonne Je- sus whom thou hast anoynted, bothe Herode and also Pontius Pilate, with the Seniles and the people of Israel gathered them selues togither to do what so euer thy hande and thy counsell determined before to be doone. And now Loyde, beholde their thynges, & graunt vnto thy seruantes in all confidence to speke thy worde. So that thou stretche forth thyne hande, that healyng, and signes and wonders be done by the name of thy holy sonne Iesus. And as soone as they had prayd, the place mo- ued where they were assembled togither, and they were all fylled with the holy ghoost, and they spake the worde of god boldly. * And

* And the multitude of them that bly- ned were of one herte, and of one soule. And none of them sayde that any of the thynges whiche he possessed was his owne, but had al thynges common. And with greute power the apostles gaue witness of the resurrection of the Loyde Iesu. And greute grace was with them all. Nowhere was there any among them, that lacked. For as many as were possessors of lan- des or houses, solde them and broughte the pyce of the thynges that were solde, and layde it downe at the apostles fete. So distribution was made vnto eueri man accordynge as he had neede. *

And Joses which was also called of the apo- stles, Barnabas (that is to saye the sonne of consolacion) being a Leuite, and of the coun- trey of Cyprus had lande, and solde it, and layd the pyce downe at the apostles fete.

The dissimylage of Ananias and Saphira is punyshed. Miracles are done by the apostles, which are taken, but the angell of god byngely them out of pylson. The sentence of Gamaliel. The Apostles are beate, they reioyce in trouble.

C A P I. V.

A Certayne man named Ananias wth Sa- phira his wyfe, solde a possession, and kepte awaye part of the pyce (his wife also bringe of counsell) and broughte a cer- tayne part, and layd it downe at the apostles fete. The said Peter: Ananias, how is it that Sathan hath filled thyne herte, that thou woldest lye vnto the holy ghoost, & kepe away part of the lyeuolde. Detrayned it not vnto the onely, and after it was soule, was not the pyce in thyne owne power. How is it that thou hast put this thyng in thine herte? Thou hast not lye vnto men, but vnto god. When Ananias herde these wordes, he fell downe and gaue by the ghoost. And great feare came on all them that these thynges herde. And the yonge men rose vp, and put him aparte, and carped him out, and buryed him.

And it fortuned, as it were aboute the space of xij. houres after, that his wyfe came in, not knowynge what was done. And Peter sayd vnto her: Tell me, gaue ye the lande for so moche? And she sayd: yea, for so moche. Then Peter said vnto her: Why haue ye agreed to- gether, to tempte the sperte of the Loyde? Be- holde the fete of them which haue buryed thy husbande, are at the doye / and shall carpe the out. Then she fel downe, forthwith at his fete and yeldd by the ghoost. And the yonge men came in, and founde her deed, and carped her out, and buried her by her husband. And great feare came on all the congregacion, and on as many as herde it.

By the handes of the apostles were manye signes and wonders shewed amonge the peo- ple. And they were all togither with one ac- corde in Salomons porche. And of other dust no man toyne him selfe to them: neuerthelesse the people magnified them. The nombre of them that belieued in the Loyde bothe of men and women grewe moze & moze, in so moche they broughte the sick in to the strettes, and layde them on beddes and pallettes, that at the leas- t waye the shadowe of Peter when he came by, might shadowe some of them. There came also a multitude out of the cities rounde about vnto Jerusalem, byngynge speche folkes, and them whiche were vexed with vnclene spertes. And they were healed eueri one.

Then the chiefe priest rose vp, and all they that were with hym (which is the secte of the Sadduces) and were full of indignacion, and layde handes on the apostles, and put them in the comon pylson. But the angell of the loyde by nyght opened the pylson doores, & brought them forth, and sayd: go, steepe forth, and speake in the temple to the people all the wordes of this lyfe. When they herde that, they entred in to the temple evely in the moynynge and taughte. The chiefe priest came, and they that were with him, and assembled the concile and hole order of the elders of the chyldren of Israel, & sent to the pylson to fet them. When the ministers came, and found them not in the pylson, they returned and tolde, sayinge: the pylson founde we shut as sure as was possible, and the keepers standynge without before the doores. But when we had opened, we found no man with in. When the chiefe priest, and the ruler of the temple, and the hye priestes herde these thynges, they doubted of them, wherevnto this wolde growe.

But now came one, and shewed them: be- holde the men that ye put in pylson, stande in the temple, and teache the people. Then went the ruler of the temple with ministers, and brought them wout violence. For they feared the people, lest they shoulde haue ben stoned. And when they had brought them, they set the before the counsell. And the chiefe priest asked them, sayinge: Did not we straitly commaunde you ye shoulde not teache in this name? And beholde ye haue fylled Jerusalem with youre doctryne, and ye intende to byngynge this mans bloode vpon vs.

Peter and the other apostles answered and sayde: * We ought moze to obeye god, then men. The god of our fathers raysted by Je- sus, whom ye kille and hanged on trece. Hym hath god lyt vp with his ryght hande, to be a ruler and a saupour, for to gyue repentance to Israel, and for gyuenes of synnes. And we are his recorder concernynge these thynges, and also the holy ghoost, whome god hath gy- uen to them that obeye him. When they herde that, they claue asunder, and soughte to slee them. Then stode there vp one in the counsell, a Pharisee named Gamaliel, a doctour of law hadde in auctorite amonge all the people, and commaunded to put the Apostles asyde a ly- tell space, and sayde vnto them: men of Israel take hede to youre selues what ye intende to do as touchynge these men. Before these dayes rose vp one Theudas bolyngynge hym selfe, to whome resorted a nombre of men, aboute a foure hundred which was slayne, and they all whiche blyued him were scattered abroad, and brought to nought. After this man, arose there vppe one Judas of Galile, in the tyme when trybute beganne, and drewe awaye moche people after him. He also perished, and al euen as many as harkened to him, are scattered abrode.

And nowe I saye vnto you: refrayne poure selues from these men, let them alone. For yf this counsaile of moche be of men, it will come to nought. But yf it be of God, ye can not destroye it, lest happily ye be founde to sturpe against God. Now to him they agreed, and called the apostles, and bet them, and commaunded that they shoulde not speake in the name of Iesu, and let them go.

And they departed from the counsell rejoycing that they were counted worthy to suffer rebuke for his name. And dayly in the temple and in every house they ceased not, teachinge and preachinge Iesus Christ.

Ministers or deacons are ordeyned in the congregation to do seruice in necessary thynges of the body that the Apostles maye wayte only upon the worde of God. Steuen is accused.

C A P I. VI.

In those dayes, as the nombre of the disciples grew, there arose a grudge among the Grekes against the Hebrewes, because their synagogues were despoiled in dailye ministering. Then the twelve called the multitude of the disciples together, and sayd: it is not mete that we shoulde leaue the worde of God, and serue at tables. Wherefore brethren loke ye oute amonge you, seven men of honest reporte, and full of the holy ghost and wysdome, which we may appoynt to this needfull busynesse. But we will geue our selues continually to prayer, and to the ministracion of the worde. And they sayinge pleased the hole multitude. And they chose Steuen, a man full of fapth, and of the holy ghost, and Philip, and Prochorus, and Nicanor, and Timon, and Parmenas, & Nicodemus a conuerter of Antioche. Whiche they set before the apostles, and they prayed & layde their handes on them.

And the worde of God encreased, and the nombre of the disciples multiplied in Ierusalem greatly, and a greates companye of the prestes, were obedient to the fapth. And Steuen full of fapth and power, dyd greates wonders and myracles amonge the people. Nowe, there arose certayne of the Synagoge, whiche is called the Synagoge of the Libertynes and Syrenytes, and of Alexandria, and Cecilia, & Asia, and disputed with Steuen. And they coulde not resiste the wysdome and the spyrte, with whiche he spake. Then sent they in men, which sayd: We haue herd him speke blasphemous wordes against Moses, and against God. And they moued the people and the eldres, and the Scribes, & came vpon him and caught him, and brought him to the consyle, and brought forth false witness, whiche sayde. This man ceaseth not to speke blasphemous wordes against this holy place, and the lawe. For we herd him say: this Iesus of Nazareth shall destroy this place, and shall chaunge the ordinaunce whiche Moses gaue vs. And all that sate in the counsell, looked stedfastly on him, and sawe his face as it had ben the face of an aungell.

Steuen maketh answer to his accusation, rebuketh the harde necked Jewes, and is stoned vnto deathe.

C A P I. VII.

Then sayd the chiefe prest: is it euen so? And he said: ye men, brethren & fathers, harken to. The God of glozpe appered vnto our father Abraham, while he was yet in Mesopotamia, before he dwelt in Charran, & said vnto him: Come out of thy countrey and from thy kynred, & come in to the lande whiche I shal shew the. Then came he out of the land of Caldey, & dwelt in Charran. And after that, as sone as his father was dead, he brought him in to this lande in whiche ye nowe dwell, and he gaue him none inheritance in it, no nor the brydth of a foote: but promysed that he wold geue it to him to possesse, and to his seed after him, when as yet he had no chyld.

God verily spake on this wise, that his seed shoulde be a dweller in a straunge lande, & that they shoulde kepe them in bondage, and intreate them euill. My hundred peres. But the nation to whome they shal be in bondage wyl I iudge, sayd God. And after that shal they come forth and serue me in this place. And he gaue him the couenaunt of circumcision. And he begate Isaac, and circumcised him the eight daye, and Isaac begate Jacob, and Jacob the xx. Patriarkes. And the Patriarkes hauing indignacion, sold Joseph in to Egypt. And God was with him, & deliuered him out of all his aduersities, and gaue him fauour and wisdom in the sight of Pharaos king of Egypt, whiche made him gouernour of Egypt, and ouer all his householde.

Then came there a deth ouer all the lande of Egypt & Canaan, and great affliction, that our fathers founde no sustenance. But when Jacob herde that there was corne in Egypt, he sent oure fathers first. And at the seconde tyme Joseph was known of his brethren, and Josephs kindred was made known vnto Pharaos. Then sente Joseph, and caused his father to be brought and at his kynne, thre score and x. soules. And Jacob descended in to Egypt and dyed bothe he and oure fathers, and were translated in to Sichem, and were put in the sepulchre that Abraham boughte for money of the sonnes of Emor at Sichem.

When the tyme of the promys dyd come (whiche god had sowne to Abraham) the people grew and multiplied in Egypt, tyl an other kynge arose whiche knewe not Joseph. The same dealinge subtilly with our kynned euill entreated oure fathers, and made them to caste oute theyr younge chyldren, that they shoulde not remayne alyue. The same tyme was Moses borne, and was a proper chyld in the sight of God, whiche was nourished up in his fathers house thre monethes. When he was cast out, Pharaos myghter toke him vp, and nourished him vp for her owne sonne. And Moses was lerned in all maner wysdome of the Egyptians, and was myghty in dedes and in wordes.

And

And when he was full fortye yere olde, it came in to his herte to vspyte his brethren the chyldren of Israel. And when he sawe one of them surfe wynged, he defended him and auenged his quarrell that had the harme doone to hym, and smote the Egyptian. For he supposed his brethren wold haue vnderstande, how that god by his handes shoulde saue them. But they vnderstode not.

And the nexte daye he shewed him selfe vnto them as they stode, and wold haue sette them at one agayne, saying: My brethren, why hurt ye one another? But he that dyd his synghour wronge, thrust him away, saying: Who made the a ruler and a iudge amonge vs? What, wylte thou kill me, as thou bydest the Egyptian yesterday? Then fledde Moses at that saying, and was a stranger in the lande of Madian, where he begate two sonnes.

And when .xl. yeres was fulfilled, there appered to him in the wyldernes of mounte Syna, an angell of the Loyde in a flame of fire in a bush. When Moses sawe it, he wondered at the sight. And as he drew nere to beholde, the voyce of the Loyde came vnto him: I am the God of thy fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. Moses trembled and durst not beholde. Then said the Loyde to him. Put of thy shoes from thy fete, for the place where thou standest, is holy grounde. I haue perfectly sene the affliction of my people whiche is in Egypt, & I haue herde theyr groynge, and am come downe to deliuer them. And now come, and I wyl sende thee in to Egypt.

This Moses whom they forsoke, sayinge: Who made the a ruler and a iudge, God sent bothe a ruler and a deliuerer, by the handes of the angel, whiche appered to him in the bush. And the same broughte them out, & theyr wonders and signes in Egypt, and in the red see, and in the wilderness. xl. yeres. This is that Moses, whiche sayde vnto the chyldren of Israel: A Prophet shall the Loyde your God sayle vnto you of your brethren, lyke vnto me, him shall ye heare.

This is he that was in the congregation in the wilderness with the aungell whiche spake to him in the mounte Syna, and with our fathers. This man receyued the worde of Ipe to geue vnto vs, to whom our fathers coulde not obey, but cast it from them, and in their hertes turned backe agayne in to Egypt, saying vnto Aaron: Make vs Goddes to go before vs, for this Moses that brought vs out of the lande of Egypt, we wote not what is becom of him. and they made a calfe in those dayes, and offered sacrifice vnto the ymage, and reioyced in the workes of theyr owne handes.

Then God turned him selfe, and gaue them vp, that they shoulde worship the sterres of the skye: as it is wyrtten in the boke of the Prophetes. & ye of the house of Israel, gaue ye to me sacrifices and meat offerynges by space of fortye yeres in the wyldernes? And ye toke vnto you the tabernacle of Moloch, and the Actre of your God Kemphan, figures whiche ye made to worship them. And I wyl translate you beyonde Babylon.

Our fathers had the tabernacle of wytnes in the wilderness, as he hadde appoynted them speaking vnto Moses, that he shoulde make it according to the fashion that he had sene. Whiche tabernacle oure fathers receyued, & brought it in with Iosue in to the possession of the gentyles, whiche God dyd out before the face of our fathers, vnto the tyme of Dauid. Whiche founde fauour before God, and wold sayne haue made a tabernacle for the God of Jacob. But Salomon built him an house.

How be it he that is best of all, dwelleth not in temples made with handes, as saythe the Prophete: Heuen is my seate, and earth is my foote stole: what house wyl ye build for me saythe the Loyde? or what place is it that I shoulde rest in? ha the not my hande made all these thynges?

Ye circumcised, and uncircumcised hertes, and eares, ye haue alwayes respyed the holy ghost: as your fathers dyd, so do ye. Whiche of the Prophetes haue not your fathers persecuted? And they haue slayne them which shewed before of the commynge of that righteous person whome ye haue nowe betrayed and murdered. And ye also haue receyued a lawe by the ordinaunce of aungels, and haue not kept it.

When they herde these thynges, theyr hertes claue a sunder, and they gnawed on hym with theyr tethes. But he being full of the holy ghost, looked vp stedfastly with his eyes in to heuen, and sawe the glory of God, and Iesus standing on the right hand of God, and sayd: beholde, I se the heuens open, and the sonne of man standynge on the right hande of God. Then they gaue a shoute with a loude voyce, and stopped theyr eares, and ran vpon him with one accord, and cast him out of the cite, and stoned him. And the wytnesses layde downe their clothes at a yonge mans fete named Saul. And they stoned Steuen, callinge on and saying: Loyde Iesu receyue my sperte. And he kneled downe, and cryed with a loude voyce: Loyde, laye not this synne to theyr charge. And when he had thus spoken, he fell a slepe.

Saul persecuteth the Chyssen, The Apostles are scattered abrode. Philip cometh in to Samaria. Simon magus is baptyzed, he descumblyeth. Philip baptyzeth the chamberlayne.

C A P I. VIII.

Saul was consentynge to his deth. And at that tyme there was a great persecucion agaynst the congregation whiche was at Ierusalem, & they were all scattered abrode thorow out the regions of Iewye and Samaria, excepte the apostles. Then deuout men distressed Steuen, and made greates lamentacion ouer him. But Saul made hauoke of the congregation, and entred in to every house, and drew out bothe man and woman, and thrust them in to prison. How be it, they that were scattered abrode, wente euerye where preachinge the worde. Then came Philip in to a cite of Samaria, and preached Christ vnto them.

them. And þ people gaue hede vnto those thinges whiche Philip spake with one accorde in that they herde and sawe the myracles whiche he dyd. For unclene spites crying with loud voice, came out of many that were possessed of them. And many taken with palsyces, and many that halsted, were healed. And there was great ioye in that cite. Now there was a certayne man called Symon, which before tyme in the same cite, vled wythecraft, and bewitched the people of Samarie, sayinge that he was a man that coulde do greates thynges. Whom they regarded from the lest to the greatest, saying: this felowe is the great power of God. And him they set moche by, because that of long tyme he had mocked them with sorcery. But as sone as they beleued Philips preaching of the kingdom of god, and of the name of Jesu Chyrd, they were baptised bothe men and women. Then Symon him selfe beleued also, and was baptised / and continued with Philip, and wondered, beholding the myracles and signes whiche were shewed.

When the apostles which were at Jerusalem, herde saye that Samaria had receyued the worde of God, they sent vnto them Peter and Iohn, which whē they were come prayed for them that they might receyue þ holy ghoſt. For as yet he was come on none of them: but they were baptised only in the name of Chyrd Jesu. Then layde they theyr handes on them, and they receyued the holy ghoſt.

Simon Magus.

When Symon sawe, that thorow laying on of þ apostles handes on them, the holy ghoſt was gyuen: he offered them money sayinge: gyue me also this power, that on whom so euer I put the handes, he may receyue the holy ghoſt. Then said Peter vnto him: thy money perishe with the, because thou wench that the grſte of God maye be obteyned with money. Thou hast neyther parte nor felowſhip in this busynes. For thy herte is not right in the sight of God. Repent therfore of this thy wickednes, and praye God that the thought of thine herte may be forgiven the. For I perceyue that thou art full of bytter gall, a wasp in wickednes.

Then answered Simon and said: praye ye to the Lorde for me, that none of these thynges whiche ye haue spoken, fall on me. And they when they had refused and preached the worde of the Lorde, returned towarde Jerusalem, and preached the goſpell in many citis of the Samaritans.

Then the aungell of the Lorde spake vnto Philip, saying: arſe, & go towarde South, vnto the wape that goeth downe frome Jerusalem vnto Gaza, whiche is in the desert. And he arose and went on. And beholde a man of Ethiopia, which was a chamberlayne, and of greates auctorite with Candace queene of the Ethiopians, & had the rule of all her treasure, came to Jerusalem for to praye. And as he returned home agayne ſeeking in his charct, he red these prophete.

Then the spirete said vnto Philip: go nere and tope the selfe to poudre charct. And Philip can to him, and herd him rede the prophete safe, and sayd: Underſtandeſt thou what thou redest? And he sayd: How can I, unless I had a guyde? And he desired Philip that he wolde come by & ſpe with hym. The tenour of the ſcripture which he red, was this. He was ledde as a ſhepe to be ſlayne, and lyke a lambe domme before his ſheer, ſo opened he not his mouth. Because of his humblenes, he was not eſtmed: who ſhall declare his generation: for his lyfe is taken from the erth. The chamberlayne answered Philip, and sayd: I praye the, of whome ſpeaketh the prophete this? of him selfe, or of ſome other man?

And Philip opened his mouth, and began at the same ſcripture, and preached vnto hym Jesus. And as they went on theyr wape, they came vnto a certeyn water: and the chamberlayne sayde: Se, here is water: what ſhal I let me to be baptised? Philip ſayd vnto him. If thou beleue with all thine herte, thou mayſt. He answered and sayde: I beleue that Jesus Chyrd is the ſonne of God. And he commaunded the charct to ſtande ſtill. And they wente downe both in to the water: both Philip and also the chamberlayne, and he baptised hym. And as ſone as they were come out of the water, the ſpice of the Lorde caught awaye Philip, that the chamberlayne ſawe him no moze. And he went on his waye rejoycing: but Philip was found at Azotus. And he walked thorow out the countrey, preachinge in theyr citis, tyll he came to Ceſarea.

Paul is converted, and confoundeth the Jewes Peter baptiseth Tabitha.

C A P I. IX.

And Saul yet bzyethng out threyninges and slaughter agaynſt the diſciples of the Lorde, went on to the high prieſt and deſired of him letters to Damasco, to the ſynagoges: that yf he founde any of this wape, whether they were men or women, he myght bynge them bounde vnto Jerusalem. But as he journeyed & was come nye to Damasco, ſuddenly there ſhyned round about him a light from heuen, and he fel to the erth, and herde a voyce, sayinge to him: Saul, Saul, why perſeuteſt thou me? And he sayd: what arte thou Lorde? And the Lorde ſayd: I am Jesus whome thou perſeuteſt, it is hard for the to hyke agaynſt the pyche. And he bothe tremblinge and aſtonyed, ſayd: Lorde, what wilt thou haue me to do? And the Lorde ſayd vnto him: Arſe, and go in to the cite, and it ſhal be tolde the what thou ſhalt do.

The men which journeyed with him, ſtoode amazed, for they herde a voyce, but ſawe no man. And Saul arose from the erth, and opened his eyes, but ſawe no man. Then led they him by the hande, and brought him in to Damasco. And he was thre dayes without sight, and neyther ate nor drank. Now there was a certeyn diſciple at Damasco named Ananias, to hym ſayd the Lorde in a viſion: Ananias? And he sayd: beholde, I am heere Lorde. And the Lorde ſayde vnto him: arſe, and go in to the ſtrete called ſtraight, and ſeke in the houſe Judas, after one called Saul of Tarsus.

For beholde he prayeth, and hath ſene in a viſion, a man named Ananias comynge into him, and puttinge his handes on him, that he myght receyue his ſight.

Then Ananias answered: Lorde, I haue herde by many of this man, how moche euill he hath done to thy ſayntes at Jerusalem: & here he hath auctorite of the hygh Prieſtes to bynde all that call on thy name. The Lorde ſayde vnto him: Go thy wape, for he is a choſen veſſell vnto me, to beare my name before the gentyles and kynges, and the chyldren of Iſrael. For I will ſhew hym how great thinges he muſt ſuffre for my name.

Ananias went his wape and entred into þ houſe, and put his handes on him, and ſayde: brother Saul, the Lorde that appeared vnto the in the wape as thou cameſt, hath ſent me, that thou myghteſt receyue thy ſight, and be fylled with þ holy ghoſt. And forthwith there fell frome his eyes as it had bene ſcales, and he receyued ſight, and arose, and was baptised, and receyued meate, and was comforted. Then was Saul a certayne dayes, with the diſciples whiche were at Damasco. And dreight wape he preached Chyrd in the ſynagoges, how that he was the ſonne of God. All that herde him, were amazed, and ſayde: Is not this he, that ſpoyleth them which called on this name in Jerusalem, and came hyther for the intent that he ſhuld bynge them bounde vnto the chiefe prieſtes? But Saul increaſed in ſtrength, & confounded the Jewes whiche dwelte at Damasco, affirminge that this was verſe Chyrd.

And after a good whyle, the Jewes toke counſell together, to kyll him. But their layenge awaye was knowne of Saul. And they watched at the gates, daye and nyght, to kyll him. Then the diſciples toke hym by night and put him thorow the wall, and let hym downe in a baſket.

And when Saul was come to Jerusalem, he aſſayde to couple him ſelfe with the diſciples, and they were all aſſayde of hym, and beleued not that he was a diſciple. But Barnabas toke him and brought him to the Apoſtles, and declared to them, howe he had ſene the Lorde in the wape, and had ſpoken with him: and how he had done boldly at Damasco, in the name of Jeſu. And he had his conuerſation with them at Jerusalem, and quire him ſelfe boldly in the name of the Lorde Jeſu. And he ſpake and diſputed with the Grekes: and they wente aboute to ſley him. But when the brethren knewe of that, they brought him to Ceſarea, and ſent him forth to Tharſus. Then had the congregations reſt thorow out all Jewy and Salile, and Samary, and were edified, and walked in the feare of the Lorde, and multiplied by the comforte of the holy ghoſt.

And it chaunced as Peter walked thorough out al quarters, he came to the ſayntes whiche dwelte at Lydda. And there he founde a certayne man, named Eneas, which had kept his bed. viij. yeres, ſyke of the palyſe. Then ſayde Peter vnto him: Eneas, Jeſus Chyrd make the hole: arſe and make thy bed. And he arose forthwith. And all þ dwelt at Lydda and Aſaron, ſawe hym, and turned to the Lorde.

There was at Joppa a certayne woman / (which was a diſciple named Tabitha, which by interpretation is called Dorcas) the ſame was full of good workes and almes dedes, whiche ſhe dyd. And it chaunced in thoſe dayes, that ſhe was ſyke, and dyed. When they had welshed her and layde her in a chamber: because Lydda was nyghe to Joppa, & the diſciples had herde that Peter was there they ſent vnto him, deſiring him that he wold not be greued to come vnto them.

Peter arose and came with them. And whē he was come, they brought him into þ chaumber. And all the wydowes ſtoode rounde about him wepyng and ſhewyng the cotes and garments whiche Dorcas made, whyle ſhe was with them. And Peter put them al forth and kneeled downe and prayed, and turned hym to the body, and ſayde: Tabitha, arſe. And ſhe opened her eyes, and when ſhe ſawe Peter, ſate vp. And he gaue her the hande, and lyft her vp, and called the ſayntes and wydowes and ſhewed her alſue. And it was knowne thorowout all Joppa, and many beleued on the Lorde. And it fortuned that he taried many dayes in Joppa, with one Symon, a tanner.

The viſion that Peter ſawe. Howe he was ſent to Cornelius. The hepyen alſo receyue the ſpice, and are baptised.

C A P I. X.

There was a certayne man in Ceſarea called Cornelius, a captayne of the ſouldiers of Italy, a deuoute man, and one that feared God with all his houſholde, whiche gaue moche almes to the people, & prayde God alwayes. The ſame ſawe in a viſion evidently aboute the nyghe houre of the daye an aungell of God comynge in, to him, & ſayenge vnto hym: Cornelius. When he looked on him, he was aſſayde and ſayde: What is it Lorde? He ſayde vnto him. Thy prayers & thy almes are come vp into remembraunce before God. And now ſende men to Joppa, & call for one Simon named alſo Peter. He lodgeth with one Symon a tanner, whoſe houſe is by the ſee ſyde. He ſhal tell the, what thou oughteſt to doo. When the aungell whiche ſpake vnto Cornelius, was departed, he called two of his houſholde ſeruautes, and a deuout ſouldyer of them that waited on him, and tolde them all the matter, and ſent them to Joppa.

On the morowe as they went on their journey, & drew nyghe vnto the cite, Peter went vp vnto the tope of the houſe to praye, about the ſixt houre. Then waxed he an hungred, & wolde haue eaten. But whyle they made ready, he fell into a trance, and ſawe heauen opened, and a certayne veſſell come downe vnto him, as it had bene a great ſheet, knyt at the corners, and was let downe to the earth

Earth, where in were all maner of. iij. footed beastes of the earth, and vermen and wormes and foules of p. aer. And there came a voyce to him: aryse Peter, kyll, and cate. But Peter sayde: God forbid Loide, for I haue neuer eat any thinge that is comen of vncleane. And the voyce spake vnto him agayne the seconde tyme: What God hath cleansed, that make thou not comen. This was done thyrse and the vessell was receyued vp agayne into heauen.

Whyle Peter mused in him self what this vision whiche he had sene, meant: Beholde, the men whiche were sent from Cornelius, had made enqurye for Simons house, & stode before the doore. And called out one and asked whether Simon whiche was also called Peter were lodged there. Whyle Peter thought on this vision, the sperte sayde vnto him: beholde, men seke the: aryse therfore, get the towne, and go with them, and doubte not: for I haue sent them. Peter went towne to the men whiche were sent vnto him, from Cornelius, and sayde: Beholde, I am he whome ye seke, what is the cause wherfore ye are come? And they sayde vnto him: Cornelius the centuraine, a iust man, & one that feareth God, and of good repute amonge al the people of the Jewes, was warned by an holy Aungell, to sende for the into his house, and to heare wordes of the. Then called he them in, and lodged them.

And on the morow Peter went away with them, and certayne brethren from Joppa accompanied hym. And the thyrde daye entered they into Cesaria. And Cornelius waited for them, and had called together his kinsmen, & speciall frendes. And as it chaunced Peter to come in, Cornelius met him, and fell downe at his fete, and worshipped him. But Peter toke him vp, sayeng: stand vp: for euen I my selfe am a man. And as he talked with hym, he came in, and founde many that were come together. And he sayde vnto them: Ye knowe how that it is an vnlawfull thinge for a man that is a Jewe, to companie or come vnto a straunger: but God hath shewed me that I shoulde not call any man comen or vncleane: therfore came I vnto you, withoute sayenge naye, as sone as I was sent for. I aske therfore, for what intent haue ye sent for me?

And Cornelius sayde: This daye now. iij. dayes I fasted, and at the. iij. houre I prayde in my house: and beholde, a man stode before me in bright clothinge, and sayde: Cornelius thy prayer is herde, and thyne almes dedes are had in remembrance in the sight of God. Sende therfore to Joppa, and call for Simon whiche is also called Peter. He is lodged in the house of one Symon, a tanner by the se syde, who as sone as he is come, shall speake vnto the. Then sent I for the immediately: and thou hast well done for to come. Nowe are we all here present before God, to heare all thynges that are commaunded vnto the, of God.

Then Peter opened his mouth, and sayde: Of a trouth, I perceyue that God is not par-tiall: but in all people, he that feareth hym, and worketh right wysnesse, is accepted with hym.

Ye knowe the preachinge that God sente vnto the children of Israel, preachinge pear by Iesu Christ, which is Loide ouer all: Whiche preachinge was published thorowout all Jewry, and began in Galile, after the baptyisme whiche Iohn preached, howe God had anoynted Iesus of Nazareth, with the holy ghoost, and with power. Whiche Iesus went aboute doyng good, and healynge all that were oppressed of the deuyls, for God was with him. And we are wytnesses, of all thynges whiche he dyd in the lande of the Jewes, and at Jerusalem: whome they stee & henge on tre. Him God retyed vp the thyrde daye, and shewed him openly, not to all the people, but vnto vs wytnesses chosen before of God, whiche are and dyonke with him, after he arose frome deathe. And he commaunded vs to preache vnto the people and testify, that it is he that is ordred of God, a iudge of quyrke and deed. To him gyue all the prophetes witness, that thowome his name, all that beleue in him, shall receyue remission of synnes.

Whyle Peter yet spake these wordes, the holy ghoost fell on all them whiche herde the preachinge. And they of the circumcision whiche beleued, were adouned, as many as came with Peter, because that on the Gentyls also was shedd out the gyfte of the holy ghoost. For they herde them speake with tonges and magnifye God. Then answered Peter: can any man forbid, that these shoulde not be baptyzed with water, whiche haue receyued the holy ghoost as well as we? And he commaunded them to be baptyzed, in the name of the Loide. Then prayd they hym to tary a few dayes.

Peter sheweth the cause wherfore he went to the Dyethen. Barnabas and Paule preach vnto the Dyethen. Agabus propheticeth deeth for to come.

CAP. XI.

XI.

And the Apostles and the brethren that were thowome Jewes, herde say that the Dyethen had also receyued the word of God. And when Peter was come vp to Jerusalem, they of the circumcision reasoned with him, sayenge: Thou wentest in to men vncircumcised, and ate with them.

Then Peter began, & expounded the thyng in order to them, sayenge: I was in the cite of Joppa, prayenge: and in a trance I saw a vision, a certayne vessell descende, as it had bene a large linnen clothe, let downe frome heauen, by the foure corners, and it came to me. Into the whiche when I hadde fastened myne eyes, I considered and saw fourefooted beastes of the earth, and vermen and wormes and foules of the ayre. And I herde a voyce sayenge vnto me: Aryse Peter, kyll, and cate. And I sayde: God forbid Loide, for nothing comen or vncleane, hath at any tyme entered into my mouth. But the voyce answered me me agayne frome heauen, counte not thou those thynges comen, whiche God hath cleansed. And this was done thre tymes. And all were taken vp agayne into heauen.

And beholde, anon there were three men come vnto the house where I was, sente frome Cesarea vnto me. And the sperte sayde vnto me, that I shoulde go with them, without doubtinge. These sixe brethren accompanied me: and we entered into the mans house. And he shewed vs, howe he had sene an Aungell in his house, which stode and sayd to him sende men to Joppa, and call for Simon, named also Peter: He shall tell the, wordes, whereby both thou and all thyne house shall be saved. And as I began to preache, the holy ghoost fell on them, as he dyd on vs at the begynnynges. Then came to my remembrance the wordes of the Loide, how he sayde: Iohn baptyzed with water, but ye shal be baptyzed with the holy ghoost. For as moche then as God gaue them lyke gyftes, as he dyd vnto vs, when we beleued on the Loide, Iesu Christ: What was I, that I shoulde haue withstande God? When they herde this, they helde their pear and glorified God, sayenge: then hath God also to the gentyls graunted repentance vnto lyfe.

They whiche were scattered abrode, thowome the affliction that arose about Steuen, walked thorowout, tyll they came vnto Phenices and Cyprys and Antioche, preachinge the word to no man, but vnto the Jewes only. Some of them were men of Cyprys, and Cyrene, whiche when they were come into Antioche, spake vnto the Grekes, and preached the Loide Iesus. And the hande of the Loide was with them, and a greete numbze beleued and turned vnto the Loide.

Epynges of these thynges came vnto the eares of the congregation, whiche was in Jerusalem. And they sent forth Barnabas that he shoulde go vnto Antioche. Whiche when he was come, and hadde sene the grace of God, was glad, and exhorted them all, that with purpose of hert, they wold continually cleaue vnto the Loide. For he was a good man, and full of the holy ghoost and of faith: and moche people was added vnto the Loide. Then departed Barnabas to Tharsus, for to seche Saul. And when he had found him, he brought him vnto Antioche. And it chaunced that a hole yere, they hadde their conuersation with the congregation there, & taught moche people: in so moche that the disciples of Antioche were the first that were called Chrysten.

In those dayes came prophetes frome Jerusalem vnto Antioche. And there stode vp one of them named Agabus, and signified by the sperte, that there shoulde be great deeth: through out all the world, whiche came to passe in the Emperour Claudius dayes. The disciples euery man accordyng to his habyllite, purposed to sende socourage vnto the brethren whiche dwelt in Jewry. Whiche thyng they also dyd, and sent it to the elders, by the handes of Barnabas and Saul.

Herod persecuteth the Chrysten, killeth James, and putteth Peter in pylson, whom the Loide deliuereth by an aungell. The marvellous deeth of Herod.

CAP. XII.

XII.

In that tyme Herode the kynge stretched forth his handes to bere certayne of the congregacion. And he killeth James the brother of Iohn with the swerde, and because he sawe that it pleased the Jewes, he proceeded further, and toke Peter also. Then were the dayes of twete byed. And when he had caught him, he put him in pylson, and deliuered him to. iij. quaternions of souldiers to be kept, entendinge after Easter to bryng him forth to the people. The was Peter kept in pylson. But prayer was made without ceasinge of the congregacion, vnto God for him. And when Herode wolde haue brought him oute vnto the people, the same night slept Peter betwene two souldyers, bounde with two chaynes, and the keepers before the doore, kepte the pylson.

And beholde the aungell of the Loide was there present, and a lyght shyned in the lodge. And he smote Peter on the syde, and stercyd him vp, sayenge: aryse vp quickly. And his cheynes fell of from his handes. And the aungell sayde vnto him: gyde thy selfe and bynde on thy. Sandales. And so he dyd. And he sayde vnto him: cast thy mantle about the, & folowe me. And he came oute, and followed him, and wist not, that it was trithe whiche was done by the aungell, but thought he had sene a vision. When they were past the firste and the seconde watche, they came vnto the yron gate, that ledeth vnto the cite, whiche opened to them by the owne accorde. And they went oute and passed thorowout one strete and by and by, the Aungell departed frome hym.

And when Peter was come to hym selfe, he sayde: nowe I knowe of a suretie, that the Loide hath sent his Aungell, and hath deliuered me out of the hande of Herode, & from all the layenge awaye of the people of the Jewes.

And as he consydered the thyng, he came to the house of Mary the mother of one Iohn, whiche was called Marke also, where many were gathered together in prayer. As Peter knocked at the entrey doore, a damsell came forth to herken, named Rhoda. And when she knew Peters voyce, she opened not the entrey for gladnes, but ran in, and tolde howe Peter stode before the entrey. And they sayde vnto her: thou arte mad. And she bare them downe that it was euen so. Then sayde they: it is his Aungell. But Peter continued knockinge: and when they hadde opened the doore, and sawe him, they were astonied. And he beckened vnto the with the hande, to hold their pear, and tolde them by what meanes the Loide had brought him oute of the pylson. And he sayde: goo shewe these thynges vnto James, and to the brethren. And he departed and went into an other place.

Allone as it was daye, there was no lytle adoe.

*The Jews as called the a do among the foulyers, what was become of Peter. When Herode had called for hym, and founde him not, he examined the keepers, and commaunded them to departe. And he descended from Jewry to Cesarea, and there abode. Herode was displeased with them of Tyre and Sidon. And they came all together and made intercession vnto Blaudus the kynge chamberlen, & desired pear, because their countrey was noysshed by the kynge's lande. And vpon a daye appointed, Herode arrayed hym in royal appatell, and set him in his seate, and made an oracion vnto them. And the people gaue a shoute, sayenge: it is the bope of a God, and not of a man. And immediatly the angel of the Lorde smote him, because he gaue not God the honoure, & he was eat of wormes, and gaue by the ghoul. And the word of God grewe and multiplied. And Barnabas and Paul returned to Ierusalem, when they hadde fulfilled their office, and toke with them John, whiche was also called Marcus.

Paul and Barnabas are called to preache among the heathen. Of Sergius Paulus and Elymas the sorcerer. Paul preaches at Antioche.

CAP. XIII.

There were at Antioche, in the congregation certayne prophetes and teachers as Barnabas and Simon called Niger or Lucius of Cere and Manahen Herode the Tetrarches noysshed, & Saul. As they ministered to the Lorde and fasted, the holie ghost sayd: separate me Barnabas and Saul to the worke whereto I haue called them. Then fasted they and prayed, and put their handes on them, and let them go. And they after they were sent of the holie ghost, came vnto Seleucia, and from thence they sayled to Cyprus. And when they were come to Seramene, they bewet the word of God in the synagoges of the Jewes. And they had John to their minister.

When they had gone thowout the yle vnto the cite of Paphos, they founde a certayne sorcerer, a false prophete whiche was a Jewe, named Elymas, whiche was with the ruler of the countrey one Sergius Paulus a prouost man. The same ruler called vnto him Barnabas and Saul, and desired to heare the word of God. But Elymas the sorcerer (for so was his name by interpretation) withstode them, and soughte to turne awaye the ruler frome the faith. Then Saul whiche also is called Paul beynge full of the holie ghost, set his eyes on hym, and sayde: O full of all subtiltie and disceyfulnesse, the childe of the despyll, and the enemye of al rightousnes, thou cease not to peruerste the straight wayes of the Lorde. And now beholde the hande of the Lorde is vpon the, and thou shalt be blinde, and not se the sunne for a season. And forthwith there fell on hym a myd and a darcknes, and he went aboute seekinge them that shoulde leade hym by the hande. Then the ruler when he sawe what had happened, beleeued, & won-ded at the doctrine of the Lorde.

When they that were with Paul, were departed by shippe frome Paphos, they came to Perga a cite of Pamphylia: & there John departed frome them, and returned to Ierusalem. But they wandred thowout the countreyes frome Perga to Antioche a cite of the countrey of Pisidia, and went into the synagoge on the Sabboth daye and late downe. And after the lawe and the prophetes were redde, the rulers of the synagoge sent vnto them, sayenge: Ye men and brethren, if ye haue any sermon to exhort the people, say on.

Then Paul stood vp, and beckened with the hande, and sayde: Men of Israel, and ye that feare God, geue audience. The God of this people chose our fathers, and exalted the people when they dwelt as strangers in the land of Egypt, and with a myghty arme brought them out of it, and about the tyme of xl. yeres suffered he their maners in the wilderness. And he destroyed by nations in the lande of Canaan, and bluded their lande to them by Lot. And after he gaue vnto them iudges about the space of. xliij. C. and fiftie yeres, vnto the tyme of Samuel the prophete. And after that, they desired a kynge, & God gaue vnto them Saul the sonne of Cis, a man of the tribbe of Beniamin, by the space of forty yeres. And after he had put him downe, he set by Dauid to be their kynge, of whome he rejoyced, sayenge: I haue found Dauid the sonne of Jesse, a man after myne owne heart, he shall fulfill all my will.

Of this mans seed hath God (accoydinge to his promise) brought forth to the people of Israel, a saviour, one Jesus, when John had first preached before his comminge the baptism of repentance, to Israel. And when John had fulfilled his course, he sayd: whome ye thinke that I am, the same am I not. But beholde, there cometh one after me, whose shoes of his fete I am not worthy to lowle.

Ye men and brethren, children of the generation of Abraham, and who so euer among you feareth God, to you is the word of saluation sent. The inhabitants of Ierusalem, & their rulers, because they knew him not, nor yet the voyces of the prophetes which are red euery Sabboth daye, they haue fulfilled the in condempninge him. And when they found no cause of death in him, yet desired they to lase to kill hym. And when they had fulfilled all that were written of him, they toke him downe frome the tree, and put him in a sepulchre. But God raysed hym agayne from death, and he was seene many dayes of them whiche came with him frome Galile to Ierusalem. Which are his wytnesses vnto the people.

And we declare vnto you, howe that the promise made vnto the fathers, God hath fulfilled vnto vs their children, in that he raysed by Jesus agayne: & euen as it is written in the fiftie psalme: Thou art my sonne, this same daye begate I the. As concerninge that he raysed him by frome death, now no more to returne to corruption, he sayde on this wyse:

The holy promyses made to Dauid, I will geue them faithfully to you. Wherefore he sayd also in another place. Thou shalt not suffer thynne holy to se corruption. Howe be it Dauid after he had in his tyme fulfilled the will of God, slepte, and was layde with his fathers, and sawe corruption. But he whome God raysed agayne, sawe no corruption.

Be it knowne vnto you therfore, ye men & brethren, that thowout this man is preached vnto you the forgiveness of synnes, and that by hym, all that beleeue, are iustified from all thynges, frome whiche ye coude not be iustified by the lawe of Moses. Beware therfore lest that fall on you, whiche is spoken of in the prophetes: Beholde ye despisers & wonder, and perseyue ye: for I to a worke in your dayes, whiche ye shall not beleeue, yf a man wolde declare it you.

When they were come oute of the synagoge of the Jewes, the Gentyles besoughte that they wolde preache the word to them betwene the Sabboth dayes. When the congregation was broken vp, manye of the Jewes and vertuous conuerteres folowed Paul and Barnabas, whiche spake to them and exhorted them, to continue in the grace of God.

And the nexte Sabboth daye came almosse the hole cite together, to heare the word of God. When the Jewes sawe the people, they were full of indignacion, and spake against those thynges whiche were spoken of Paul, speakinge against it, and sayinge on it.

Then Paul and Barnabas waxed bolde, & sayde: It was mete that the word of God shoulde firste haue bene preached to you. But seynge ye put it frome you, and thinke youre selues unworthy of euellangelesse: Lo, we turne to the Gentyles: for so hath the Lorde commaunded vs. I haue made the a lycht to the Gentyles, that thou be saluacion vnto the ende of the worlde.

The Gentyles herde, and were glad, and glorified the word of the Lorde, and beleeued: euen as many as were ordeyned vnto eternall lyfe. And the word of the Lorde was published thowout all the region. But the Jewes moued the worshipfull and honorable women, and the chiefe men of the cite, & raysed persecution against Paul and Barnabas and expelled them oute of their colles. And they shooke of the duste of their fete against them, and came vnto Iconium. And disciples were fylled with ioye and with the holie ghost.

Paul and Barnabas preache at Iconium, some beleeue, some sterc by sedition. At Lystra they wolde do sacrefyce to Barnabas and Paul, whiche refused it, and exhorted the people to worshippe the true God. Paul is stoned, after that cometh he to Derba, Lystra, Iconium, and to Antioche.

CAP. XIV.

XIII.

As it fortuneth in Iconium that they went both together into the synagoge of the Jewes, and to spake, that a great multitude both of the Jewes and also of the Grekes beleeued. But the vnbelleuinge Jewes, stirred by and disquieted the myndes of the Gentyles against the brethren. Longe tyme abode they there, and quyte them selues boldly with the helpe of the Lorde, whiche gaue testimony vnto the worde of his grace, & caused signes and wonders to be done by their handes. The people of the cite were deuided and parte helde with the Jewes, and parte with the Apostles.

When there was a faulte made bothe of the Gentyles and also of the Jewes, with their rulers, to put them to shame: and to stone them, they were ware of it, and fled vnto Lystra and Derba, cities of Lycaonia, and vnto the region that lyeth rounde aboute, & there preached the Gospel. And there sat a certayn man at Lystra weake in his fete, beynge creple frome his mothers wombe, & neuer walked. The same herde Paul preache. Whiche behelde him, and perceyued that he had faith to be hole, and sayde with a loud voyce: stand vpright on thy fete. And he sterte vp, & walked. And when the people sawe what Paul had done, they left by their voyces, sayenge in the speche of Lycaonia: Goddes are come downe to vs in the shewes of men. And they called Barnabas, Jupiter: and Paul Mercurius, because he was the preacher. Then Jupiteres prayde, whiche dwelte before their cite, brought oxen and garlandes vnto the church porche, and wolde haue doone sacrifice with the people.

But when the Apostles, Barnabas and Paul herde that, they rent their clothes, and ran in amonge the people, crying and sayenge: Syrs, why do ye this? We are mortall men lyke vnto you, and preache vnto you, that ye shoulde turne frome these vanities vnto the lpyunge God, which made heauen and earth, and the see, and all that in them is: whiche in tymes passe suffered all nacyns to walke in their owne wayes. Nevertheless he left not hym selfe without wytnesse, in that he shewed his benefytes, in geuynge vs rayne frome heauen and frutesfull seasons, fillinge oure hertes with fode, and gladnesse. And with these sayenges, scarce refrayned they the people, that they had not done sacrifice vnto them.

Wherther came certayne Jewes frome Antioche and Iconium, and obtayned the peoples consent, and stoned Paul, and drew him oute of the cite, supposynge, he had bene ded. How be it as the disciples stonde about him, he arose vp, and came into the cite. And the next daye he departed with Barnabas to Derba. After they had preached to that cite, and had taughte many, they returned to Lystra, and to Iconium and Antioche, and strenghted the disciples soules, exhorting them to continue in the faith, assyming that we must thowout moche tribulacion, entre into the kyngdome of God. And they ordeyned them them elders by election in every congregacion, and prayed and fasted, and comended them to God on whome they beleued. And they went thowout Paphlagonia and came to Pamphilia, and when they had preached the worde of God in Perga, they descended into Antioche, and thence departed by shippe to Antioche, from whence they were deliuered vnto the grace of God, to the worke whiche they had fulfilled. When they were come and had gathered the congregacion together, they rehearsed all that God had done by them, and how he had opened the doore of faith vnto the gentyles. And there they abode longe tyme with the disciples.

Constance about circumcission. The apostles paye the matter at Jerusalem. Paul and Barnabas preach at Antioche.

CAP. XV.

Then came certayne from Ietoye, and taught the brethren & exhorted them to be circumcised after the maner of Moyses, & can not be sau'd. And when there was risen dissencion and disputinge not a litle vnto Paul and Barnabas against them, they determined that Paul and Barnabas, and certayne other of them, shoulde go by to Jerusalem, to the apostles and elders, aboute this questiō. And after they were brought on their waye by the congregacion, they passed ouer Phenices and Samaria, declaringe the conuersion of the Gentyles, and they broughte great ioye vnto all the brethren. And when they were come to Jerusalem, they were receyued of the congregacion, and of the apostles and elders. And they declared what thinges God hadde done by them. Then arose vp certayne of the secte of the Pharisees, whiche dyd beleue, sayenge: that it was nedefull to circumcise them, and to enioyne them, to kepe the lawe of Moyses. And the apostles, and elders, came to gyther to reason of this matre.

And when there was moche disputyng, Peter rose vp and sayde vnto them: Ye men and brethren, ye knowe how that a good wyple ago, God chose amonge vs that the Gentyles by my mouth shoulde heare the worde of the Gospel and beleue. And God which knoweth the herte, bare them wptnes, and gaue vnto them the holy ghost, euen as he dyd vnto vs, and he put no difference betwene the and vs, but with saythe purged their hertes. Nowe therfore why tempte ye God, that ye wolde put a yoke on the disciples neckes, which neyther our fathers nor we were habile to beare. But we beleue that thowout the grace of the Lord Iesu Christe, we shalbe sau'd, as they do. Then all the multitude was appeased and gaue audience to Barnabas and Paul, which tolde what signes and wonders God hade shewed amonge the Gentyles by them.

And when they helde their pear James answered saying: Men and brethren he then vnto me. Symeon tolde how God at the begynnyng dyd byspte the Gentyles, and receyued of them, people vnto his name. And to this, agreeth the wordes of the Prophetes, as it is written. After this I will retorne, and will buyld agayne the tabernacle of David which is fallen downe and the decayed of it, will I buyld agayne, and I will set it by that the residue of men myghte seeke after the Lord, and also the Gentyles vpon whome my name is called on sayth the Lord, whiche doth all these thynges: Known vnto God are all his workes from the begynnyng of the worlde. Wherfore my sentence is that we trouble not them whiche from amonge the Gentyles, are turned to God: but that we wyte vnto them, that they absteyne them selues frome fylthynges of ymages frome fornicacion, frome strangled and frome bloude. For Moyses of olde tyme hath in every cite that preach him, and is red in the synagoges euery Sabbath daye.

Then pleased it the apostles and elders with the hole congregacion, to sende chosen men of their owne company to Antioche with Paul and Barnabas. They sent Judas called also Barsabas, and Silas, whiche were chiefe men amonge the brethren, & gaue them letters in their bandes after this forme.

The apostles, elders and brethren send greetings vnto the brethren which are of the gentyles in Antioche, Syria and Cilicia. For as moche as we haue herde that certayne which departed frome vs, haue troubled you with wordes, and combed youre myndes, sayenge: Ye must be circumcised and kepe the lawe, to whome we gaue no suche commaundement: we thought good, when we were come together with one accorde, to sende chosen men vnto you, with our beloued Barnabas & Paul, men that haue jeopardied their lyues, for the name of our Lord Iesu Christ. We haue sent therfore Judas and Silas, whiche shall also tell you the same thinges by mouth. For it seemed good to the holy ghost and to vs, to put no greuous thinge vpon you, moze then these necessary thinges: that is to saye, that ye absteyne frome thinges offered to ymages, frome bloude, frome strangled and fornicacion. Fro which if ye kepe your selues, ye shall do well. Fare ye well.

When they were departed, they came to Antioche, and gathered the multitude together, and deliuered the Epistle. When they had red it, they reioysed of that consolation. And Judas and Silas beinge Prophetes, exhorted the brethren with moche preachinge, & strengthened them. And after they hadde carryed there a space, they were let goo in pear of the brethren vnto the apostles. Notwithstanding it pleased Silas to abyde there still. Paul & Barnabas continued in Antioche teachinge & preachinge the worde of the Lord with other many.

But after a certayne space, Paul sayd vnto Barnabas: Let vs go agayne and byspte oure brethren in euery cite where we haue shewed the worde of the Lord, and se howe they do. And Barnabas gaue counsell to take with them John, called also Marke. But Paul thoughte it not mete to take hym vnto their company which departed from them at Pamphilia, and went not with them to the worke. And the dissencion was so sharpe betwene them, that they departed a sunder one from the other: so that Barnabas toke Marke and sayled vnto Cyprus. And Paul chose Silas and departed, betaken of the brethren vnto the grace of God. And he went thowout all Cilicia and Cilicia, stablishynge the congregacions.

Timothe is circumcised. Paul preacheth at Philippi, and there is put in prison.

CAP. XVI.

Then came he to Derba and to Lystra. And beholde, a certayne disciple was there named Timotheus, a womans sone whiche was a Jewelle and beleued: but his father was a Greke. Of whome reasoynd well, the brethren of Lystra, and of Iconium. The same, Paul wolde that he shoulde go forth with hym, and toke and circumcised him because of the ietwes which were in those quarters: for they knewe all, that his father was a Greke. As they went thowout the cities, they disquieted them the decesses for to kepe, ordeyned of the apostles & elders, whiche were at Jerusalem. And so were the congregacions stablished in the faith, and increased in numbere dayly.

When they had gone thowout Phrygia, and the region of Galacia, and were forbydden of the holy ghost to preach the word in Asia, they came to Mysia, and ioughte to go into Bithynia. But the sperte suffered the not. Then they went ouer Mysia, and came downe to Troada. And a vyson appeared to Paul in the nyght. There stode a man of Macedonia and prayed him, sayenge: come into Macedonia, and helpe vs. After he had sene the vyson, immediatly we prepared to go into Macedonia, certeyned that the Lord had called vs, for to preach the Gospel vnto them. Then sayled we forth from Troada, and with a straghte course came to Samothracia, and the next daye to Neapoli, and frome thence / to Philippi, whiche is the chiefe cite in the partes of Macedonia, and a fre cite.

We were in that cite abydinge a certayne dayes. And on the Sabbath dayes we wente oute of the cite, bysides a ryuer, where men were wont to praye. And we sate downe and spake vnto the women, whiche resorted thither. And a certayne woman named Lydia a sellar of purple, of the cite of Thyatira, whiche worshipped God, gaue vs audience. Whose hert the Lord opened that she attended vnto the thinges, whiche Paul spake. When she was baptised and her housholde, she besought vs, sayenge: If ye thinke that I beleue on the Lord, come into my house, and abyde there. And we constrained vs.

And it fortun'd as we went to prayer, a certayne dāsell possessed with a sperte of south sayenge, met vs, whiche brought her master & maistres moche gannes with prophesyinge.

The same, folowed Paul and vs, and cryed, sayenge: These men are the seruantes of the hygher God, which shewe vnto vs the waye of saluacion. And this dyd he many dayes. But Paule not content, couened aboute and sayde to the sperte. I commaunde the in the name of Iesu Christe, that thou come oute of her. And he came out the same houre.

And when her master and maistres, sawe that the hope of their gannes was gone, they caught Paul and Silas, and byue them into the market place, vnto the rulers, and brought them to the officers, sayenge: These men trouble our cite, which are Jewes, and preache ordinaunces, which are not lawfull for vs to receyue, neyther to obserue, sithens we are Romayns. And the people ranne on them, and the officers rent their clothes, and commaunded them to be beaten with rods. And when they had beaten them sore, they cast them into prison, commaunding the iayler to kepe them surely. Who when he had receyued suche commaundement, thruste them in to the inner prison, and made theym faste in the stocks.

At myddnyghte Paule and Silas prayed, and prayled God. And the prisoners heard them. And sodenly there was a greates earthquake, so that the foundation of the prison was shaken, and anone all the doores opened, and euery manes bandes were loosed. When the keeper of the prison waked out of slepe and sawe the prison doores open, he drowe out his sword and wolde haue kyllid him selfe, supposyng the prisoners had bene slede. But Paule cryed with a loude voyce, saying: do the selfe no harme, for we are all beate. Then he called for a lyghte and sprange in and came tremblyng, and fell doune before Paul and Silas, and brought them out and sayd. Sirs, what muste I do to be sau'd? And they sayde: beleue on the Lord Iesus, and thou shalt be sau'd and thy housholde. And they preached vnto him the worde of the Lord, and to all that were in his house. And he toke them the same houre of the nyghte and washed their woundes, and was baptised with all that belonged vnto him straght way. When he had broughte them in to his house, he sette meate before them, and toyed that he with all his housholde, beleued on God.

And when it was daye, the officers sent the ministers, saying: let those men go. The keeper of the prison tolde this sayenge to Paule, the officers haue sente worde to louse you. Some therfore gete you hence and go in pear. Then sayde Paule vnto them: they haue beaten vs openly vncōdemnyd, whereas we are Romayns, and haue call vs in to prison: and now wolde they sende vs awaye pryncely? Nay, not so, but let them come them selues, and let vs out. When the ministers tolde these wordes vnto the officers, they feared when they herde that they were Romayns, and came and besoughte them, and brought them out, and despyed them to departe out of the cite. So they went out of the prison and entred in to the house of Lydia, and when they had sene the brethren, they comforted them and departed.

Paul commeth to Thessalonica, where the Jews let the cyte on a roze. Paul escapeth, and commeth to Athens, where he preacheth the true and unknowen God.

C A P I. XVII.

Luke. xxi. 12-19

As they made their journey thowow Amphipolis, and Apollonia, they came to Thessalonica where was a Synagoge of the Jewes. And Paul (as his manner was) went in vnto them, and the sabboth dayes declared forth of the scripture vnto them, & openynge and aleginge that Christ must needs haue suffred and risen agayne frome deathe, and that this Jesus was Christ, whom (sayd he) I preach to you. And some of them beleued and came and companied with Paul and Silas: also of the deuoute Grekes a greete multitude and of the these women not a fewe.

But the Jewes whiche beleued not, hauinge indignation, toke vnto them euill men which were vacabondes, and gathered a company, and set all the cyte on a roze, and made assaute vnto the house of Jason, and soughte to byrnye them out to the people. But when they founde them not, they drew Jason and certayne brethren vnto the heedes of the cite, crying: these that trouble the world are come hither also, whiche Jason hath receyued priuilege. And these all do contrary to the decrees of Cesar, affirmynge an other kyng, one Jesus. And they troubled the people and the officers of the cite, when they herd these thynges. And when they were sufficiently answered of Jason and of the other, they let them go.

And the brethren forthwith sente away Paul and Silas by nyghte vnto Berea: whiche when they were come thither, they entered in to the Synagoge of the Jewes. These were the nobleste of bythe amonge them of Thessalonica, whiche receyued the woide with all diligence of mynde, and searched the scriptures daily whether those thynges were euen so. And many of the beleued: also of worshipfull women whiche were Grekes, and of men not a fewe. When the Jewes of Thessalonica had knowlege that the woide of God was preached of Paul at Berea, they came and moued the people there. And then forthwith the brethren sent away Paul to go as it were to the see: but Silas and Timothee abode there still. But they that gyded Paul, brought him vnto Athens, and receyued a commaundement vnto Silas and Timothee for to come to him forthwith and came their waye. Whyle Paul waited for them at Athens, his sperte was moued in him, to see the cyte gauen to worshippyng of ymages. Then he disputed in the Synagoge with the Jewes, & with the deuout persons, and in the market daily with them that came vnto him. Certayne Philosophers of the Epicures and of the Stoikes, disputed with him. And some ther were which sayde: What will this babbler say? Other sayde: he seemeth to be a dweller of strange goddes, & because he preached vnto the Jewes and the resurrection. And they toke hym, and brought him in to Marce stete, sayinge: may we not know what this new doctrine wherof thou speakest, is? For thou byrnest strange newes to our eares. We wolde know therefore what these thynges meane. For all the Athenians and strangers which were there, gaue them selues to nothyng els, but eyther to tell or to heare newes.

Paul stode in the myddes of Marce stete, and sayde: ye men of Athens I perceyue that in all thynges ye are to superstitious. For as I passed by and behelde the maner how ye worship your goddes, I founde an altare wherem was writen: vnto the unknowen God. Whom ye then ignorantly worship, him shew I vnto you: God that made the worlde and all that are in it, seinge that he is Lord of heuen and erthe dwelleth not in temples made with handes, neyther is worshipped with mennes handes, as though he needed of any thing, seing he him selfe gyueth lyfe and breath to all men euery where and hath made of one bloude all nations of men, for to dwell on all the face of the erth, and hath assigned before, how longe tyme, and also the endes of their inhabitacon, that they shoulde seke God, yf they myght fele and fynde him, though he be not farre frome euery one of vs. For in him we lyue, moue and haue our beinge: as certayne of your owne Poetes sayd. For we are also his generation. For as moche then as we are the generation of God, we oughte not to thynke that the Godhead is lyke vnto golde, syluer or stone, grauen by craft and ymaginacion of man.

And the tyme of this ignorance God regarded not. But now he byddeth all men euery where repent, because he hath appoynted a daye, in whiche he will iudge the worlde accordynge to ryghtwysenesse, by that man towhome he hath appoynted, and hath offered faith to all men, after that he had raysed him frome deathe.

When they herd of the resurrection frome deathe, some mocked, and other sayde: We will heare the agayne of this matter. So Paul departed frome them. Howe be it certayne men claue vnto Paul and beleued, amonge whiche was Dionysius a iudge, and a woman named Damaris, and other with them.

Paul preacheth at Corinthum, continuing there a yere and a halfe, goeth agayne in to Siria, cometh to Ephesus, Cesarea and Antioche. At Apollonia, Aquila and Priscilla.

C A P I. XVIII.

After that Paul departed from Athens and came to Corinthum, and founde a certayne Jewe named Aquila bozne in Pontus, lately come frome Italy with his wyfe Priscilla (because that the Emperoure Claudius hadde commaunded all Jewes to departe frome Rome) and he dwelleth vnto the. And because he was of the same crafte, he abode with them and wrought: their crafte was to make tentes. And he preached in the Synagoge goge every sabboth daye, and exhorted the Jewes and the gentyls.

When Silas and Timotheus were come frome Macedonia, Paul was constrained by the sperte to respyte to the Jewes that Jesus was very Christ. But when they sayd contrary and blasphemed, he shoke his sayment and sayde vnto them: your bloude vpon your owne heddes, and from hence forth I go blaimes vnto the gentyls. And he departed thence and entered in to a certayne mannes house named Titus a worshipper of God, whose house iopned harde to the synagoge. Howe be it one Crispus the chiefe ruler of the synagoge beleued on the Lord with all his household, and many of the Corintheians gaue audience, and beleued and were baptized.

Then spake the Lord to Paul in the nyght by a vlyon. Be not afraid, but speake, & holde not thy peace: for I am with the, & no man shall vsade the that shall hurte the. For I haue moche people in this cite. And he continued there a yere and sixe monethes, and taught them the woide of God.

When Gallio was ruler of the countre of Achaia, the Jewes made insurrection with one accorde agaynst Paul, and broughte him to the iudgment seate, sayinge: this scilow counseleth men to worshippe God, contrary to the lawe. And as Paul was aboute to open his mouth Gallio sayde vnto the Jewes: yf it were a matter of wrong, or an euill dede (as ye Jewes) reason wolde that I shoulde heare you: but yf it be a question of wordes, or of names, or of your lawe, loke ye to it your selues. For I wil be no iudge in suche matters, and he drave them frome the seate. Then toke at the Grekes Solimes the chiefe ruler of the Synagoge, and smote him before the iudges seate. And Gallio cared for none of those thynges.

Paul after this, tarped there yet a good whyle, and then toke his leaue of the brethren and sayled thence in to Syria, Priscilla and Aquila accompanying him. And he woze his breed in Cenchrea, for he had a bowe. And he came to Ephesus and left them there: but he him selfe entered in to the Synagoge, and reasoned with the Jewes. When they desired him to tary longer tyme with them, he consented not, but bade them fare well sayinge. I make nedes at this seale that cometh, be in Ierusalem: but I will retorne agayne vnto you, yf God wil. And he departed frome Ephesus and came vnto Cesarea: and ascended and saluted the congregacion, and departed vnto Antioche, and when he had tarped there a whyle, he departed. And wente ouer all the countre of Galacia & Phrygia by order, strengthinge all the disciples.

And a certayn Jewe named Appollos, borne at Alexandria, came to Ephesus, an eloquent man, and myghty in the scriptures. The same was informed in the waye of the Lord, and he spake frequently in the sperte, and taughte diligently the thynges of the Lord, and knew but the baptisme of Iohn only. And the same began to speake boldly in the Synagoge. And when Aquila and Priscilla hadde herde hym, they toke him by the hande and expounded vnto him the waye of God more perfectly.

And when he was disposed to go in to Achaia the brethren wrote, exhortynge the disciples to receyue him. After he was come thither, he woze them moche whiche hadde beleued thowow grace. And myghtely he ouercame the Jewes, and that openly, shewynge by the scriptures that Jesus was Christ.

Of the synemen whom Paul baptized at Ephesus and what miracles were done by him. Demetrius moueth sedicion in the cyte.

C A P I. XIX.

If fortuneth whyle Apollos was at Corinthum, that Paul passed thowow the upper ioudes and came to Ephesus, and founde certayne disciples, and sayde vnto them: haue ye receyued the holy ghoost when ye beleued? And they sayde vnto him: no, we haue not heard whether there be any holy ghoost or no. And he sayde vnto them: wherewith were ye then baptized? And they sayd: With Iohns baptysme. Then sayde Paul: Iohn baptysed with the baptisme of repentance, sayng vnto the people that they shoulde beleue on him, which shuld come after him: that is on Christ Jesus. When they herd that, they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus. And Paul layde his handes vpon them, and the holy ghoost came on them, and they spake with tonges, and prophesied, and all the men were about twelue.

And he went in to the synagoge, and behaued him selfe boldly for the space of three monethes, disputynge and groupnge them exhortacions of the kyngdome of God. When dyuers were harde bitted and beleued not, but spake euill of the waye, and that before the multitude: he departed from thern and separated the disciples. And he disputed daily in the scole of one called Tyrannus. And this continued by the space of three yeres so that all they whiche dwelte in Asia, herde the woide of the Lord Jesus, both Jewes and Grekes. And God wrought no small myracles by the handes of Paul: so that frome his body, were brought vnto the speke, naphyns or parricutes, and the dyseases departed fro them, and the euill spertes went oute of them.

When certayne of the vagabonde Jewes trociscles, toke vpon them to call ouer them whiche had euill spertes, the name of the Lord Jesus sayinge: We comure you by Jesus whos Paul preacheth. And there were seven sonnes of one Sceua a Jewe and chiefe of the prestes whiche dyd so. And the euill sperte answered and sayde: Jesus I know, and Paul I know: but who are ye? And the man in towhome the euill sperte was, ran on them, and ouercame them, and preuayled agaynst them, so that they fledde out of that house naked and wounded. And this was knowne to all the Jewes, and Grekes also, whiche dwelt at Ephesus, I. y. and and feare came on them all, and they magnified the name of the Lorde Jesus.

And many that beleued, came and confessed and shewed theyr workes. Many of them wylthe bled curious craftes, broughte theyr bookes and burned them before all men, and they counted the pryce of them, and founde it fyfty thousande silycrynge. So myghtely gawe the worde of God, and multiplied. After these thinges were ended, Paul purposed in the sperte, to passe ouer Macedonia and Achaia, and to go to Ierusalem, sayenge: After I haue bene there, I must also se Rome. So sent he into Macedonia two of the that mynistred vnto him, Timotheus and Erastus but he hym self remayned in Asia for a season.

The same tyme there arose no lytell a doo about that waye. For a certayne man named Demetrius, a siluer Smyth, which made siluer shrines for Diana, was not a lytell benefitted all vnto the craftes men. Which he called together with the workemen of lyke occupation, and sayde: Syys, ye knowe that by this craft we haue gynes. And ye se and heare that not alone at Ephesus, but almost thowout all Asia, this Paul hath perswaded and turned awaye moche people, sayeng that they be not Goddes whiche are made with handes. So y not onely this our craft cometh into perill, to be set at nought: but also that the temple of the greate Goddesse Diana shoulde be despoiled, and her magnificence shoulde be despoiled, whiche all Asia and the worlde worshipeth.

When they herde these sayenges, they were full of wrath, and cryed out sayenge: Greate is Diana of the Ephesians. And all the crite was on a rooie, & they rushed into the comen hall with one assent, and caught Gaius and Aristarcus, men of Macedonia, Pauls companions. When Paul wolde haue entered in vnto the people, the disciples suffered him not. Certayne also of the chief of Asia which were his frendes, sent vnto him, desyringe him that he wolde not pcease into the comen hall. Some cryed one thinge and some an other, and the congregation was all oute of quyet, and the moare parte knewe not wherfore they were come together.

Some of the company dyue forthe Alexander, the Jewes thrustinge hym forwarde. Alexander beched with the hande, and wolde haue gauen the people an aunswere. When they knewe that he was a Jewe, there arose a moue almost for the space of two houres, of all men ceryenge: great to Diana of the Ephesians.

When the towne clarke hadde ceased the people, he sayde: Ye men of Ephesus, what man is it that knoweth not, how the crite of the Ephesians is a worshipper of the greate Goddesse Diana, and of the ymage whiche came from heauen. Serenge then no man sayth here against, ye enghie to be content, & to do nothinge to help: for ye haue broughte hither these men whiche are neyther robbers of churches, ne despylers of your Goddes. Wherfore of Demetrius and the craftes men which are with him, haue any sayenge to any man, the lawe is open, and there are rulers, let them accuse one an other. If ye go aboute any other thyng, it maye be determynd in a lawfull congregacion. For we are in leoparde to be accused of this dayes busyngesse: for as moche as there is no cause wherby we may geue a rekeninge of this concourse of people. And when he had thus spoken he let the congregacion departe.

Paul went in to Macedonia and in to Grece. At Troas he was by a week. At Ephesus he called the elders of the congregacion together, commyng the keepinge of Goddes house vnto them, warneth them of false teachers, maketh his prayer with them, and departed to the hyppre.

C A P I. XX.

After the rage was ceased, Paul called the disciples vnto him, and toke his leaue of them, and departed to go into Macedonia. And when he hadde gone ouer those parties, and gauen them large exhortacions, he came into Grece, and there abode thre monethes. And when the Jewes lapde awaye for him as he was aboute to saile into Syria, he purposed to retorne thowout Macedonia. There accompanied him into Asia, Sopater of Berea, and of Thessalonica, Aristarcus and Secundus, and Gaius of Derba, and Timotheus: and out of Asia, Tychicus and Trophimus. These went before, and tarped vs at Troas. And we sayled away fro Philippos after the Easter holypdayes, & came vnto them to Troas in fyue dayes, where we abode seuen dayes.

And on the morow after the Saboth day, the disciples came together for to breake bred, and Paul preached vnto them (redy to depart on the morow) and continued the preaching vnto mynnyght. And there were manie lightes in the chaumber where they were gathered together, and there sat in a wyndowe a certayne yonge man named Eutychus, fallen into a depe sleepe. And as Paul declared, he was the moare overcome with slepe, and fell downe from the thyrde foor, and was taken by deed. Paul went downe and fel on him and embraced him, and sayde: make nothing a doo, for his lyfe is in hym. When he was come by agayne, he brake bred, and talked, & comened a longe whyle, euen tyll the morninge, and so departed. And they broughte the younge man a lyue, and were not a lytell comforted.

And we went afoze to Sypp, and sayled vnto Asson, there to receyue Paul. For so had he appointed, & wolde hym selfe go a fore. When he was come vnto vs to Asson, we toke him in, and came to Mytilenes. And we sayled thence and came the next day ouer against Chios. And the next day we arriued at Samos, and tarped at Trogilon. The next day we came to Ephesus: for Paul had determined to leaue Ephesus as they sayled, because he wolde not spende the tyme in Asia. For he had to be

(if he coulde possible) at Jerusalem at the day of Pentecost. Wherfore frome Mytilen he sente to Ephesus, and called the elders of the congregacion. And when they were come to him, he sayd vnto them: Ye knowe from the fyfte daye that I came in to Asia, after what maner I haue bene with you at all crasons, scrupinge the Lorde with all humblynes of mynde, and with many teares, and temptacions, whiche happened vnto me by the lapinges awaye of the Jewes: and howe I kepte backe nothing that was profitable, but that I haue shewed you and taughte you openly and at home in your houses, witnessyng bothe to the Jewes, and also to the Grekes, the repentance towarde God, and sayth towarde our Lorde Jesus.

And now beholde, I go bounde in the sperte vnto Jerusalem, and knowe not what shall come on me there, but that the holy ghosht witnesseth in every cite, sayng: that bantes and trouble abyde me. But none of those thynges moue me, neither is my lyfe deere vnto my self, that I myght fulfill my course with ioye, and the ministracion wherby I haue receyued of the Lorde Jesus, to testifie the gospell of the grace of God.

And now beholde, I am sure that hence forth ye all (thowout whom I haue gone preachinge the kyngdome of God) shall se my face no moze. Wherfore I take you to recorde this same day, that I am pure from the bloude of all men. For I haue kepte nothing backe, but haue shewed you all the counsell of God. Take hede therfore vnto your selues and to all the flocke, wherof the holy ghosht hath made you ouersheers, to rule the congregacion of God, whiche he hath purchased with his bloude. For I am sure of this, that after my departyng, shall greuous wolues entre in amonge you, whiche wyl not spare the flocke. And of your owne selues shall men aryse, speakyng peruerse thynges to drawe disciples after them. Therfore awake, and remembre that by the space of thre yeres, I ceased not to warne euery one of you bothe nyght and daye with teares.

And now brethren, I commend you to God, and to the worde of his grace, whiche is habile to buyde further, and to geue you an inheritaunce, amonge all them whiche are sanctified. I haue desyred no mannes siluer, golde or besture. Ye knowe well that these handes haue mynistred vnto my necessities, and to them that were with me. I haue shewed you all thynges, how that so labouryng ye oughte to receyue the meye, and to remembre the wordes of the Lorde Jesus, howe he sayde: It is moze blessed to geue, then to receyue.

When he hadde thus spoken, he kneled downe and prayed with them all. And they wepte haboundantly, and fell on Pauls necke, and kyssed him, sorrowyng mood of all for the wordes whiche he spake, that they wolde se his face no moze. And they accompanied him vnto the hyppre.

Pauls Journey by hyppre. Of Philippe the Evangeliste, and Agabus the prophet, which warned Paul not to go to Jerusalem. He remayned at Asson in his purpose, and is taken in the temple.

C A P I. XXI.

And it chaunced that as sone as we had launched forth, and were departed from them, we came with a straghte course vnto Choon, and the day folowyng vnto the Rhodes, and from thence vnto Patara. And we founde a hyppre redy to saile vnto Phenices, and went a bozde and set forth. Then appeared vnto vs Eppius, and we sette it on the leftte hande, and sayled vnto Syria, and came vnto Tyre. For there the hypp vniaded her burthen. And when he had founde bethere we tarped there seuen dayes. And they tolde Paul thowout the sperte, that he shoulde not go by to Jerusalem. And when the days were ended, we departed and went our wayes, and they all brought vs on our waye, with theyr wyues and chyldren, tyll we were come oute of the cite. And we kneled downe in the waye and prayed. And when we had taken our leaue one of an other, we toke hypp, and they returned home agayne.

When we had full ended the course from Tyre we arriued at Ptolomaida, and saluted the brethren, and abode with them one daye. The nexte daye, we that were of Pauls company departed and came vnto Cesarea. And we entred in to the house of Philip the Evangeliste, whiche was one of the seuen deacons, and abode with him. The same man hadde foure daughters byegns, whiche dyd prophesye. And as we tarped there a good meyny of dayes, there came a certayne prophet frome Iurpe, named Agabus. When he was come vnto vs, he toke Pauls gyrdle, and bounde his handes and feete, and sayde: Thus sayth the holy ghosht, so shal the Jewes at Jerusalem bynde the man that oweth this gyrdle, and shal despyce him in to the handes of the Senterles.

When we herde this, both we and other of the same place, besought him that he wolde not go by to Jerusalem. Then Paul answered and sayde: What doo ye, wepyng and breakyng myne herte? I am redy not to be bounde onely, but also to dye at Jerusalem for the name of the Lorde Jesus. When we coulde not turne his mynde, we ceased sayenge: the wyll of the Lorde be fulfilled. After those dayes we made our selues redy, and went on to Jerusalem. There went with vs also certayne of the disciples of Cesarea, and broughte with them one Mnason of Cyprus, an olde disciple with whome we wolde lodge. And when we were come to Jerusalem, the brethren receyued vs gladly. And on the morow, Paul went in with vs vnto James, and all the elders came together. And when he hadde saluted them, he tolde by ordre all thynges that God had wrought amonge the Senterles by his ministracion. And when they herde it they glorified the Lorde, and sayde vnto him: Thou seest brother, how many thousande Jewes there are whiche beleue, and they are all zelous ouer the lawe. And they are informed of the, that thou teachest all the Jewes which are amonge the gentils, to forsake Moses, and sayest that they ought not to circumcise their children, neyther to lye after the customes. What is it therfore? The multitude must needs come together. For they shall heare that thou art come. So they saye this, that we saye to the.

Rumer. vi. a.

¶ We haue foure men, which haue a bove on them. Them take, and purfye thy selfe with them, and doo coite on them, that they maye haue their heddes, and all shall know that those thinges which they haue heretofore saye, are nothinge: but that thou thy selfe also walkest and keptest the lawe. For as touching the gentils which beleue, we haue written and concluded, that they obserue no suche thynges: but that they kepe them selues frome thynges offered to ydoles, frome bloude, frome strangled, and from fornication. Then the nexte daye Paul toke the men, and purfied him selfe with them, and entred into the temple, declaringe that he obserued the dayes of the purification, tyll that an offeringe shoulde be offered for euerye one of them.

¶ And as the seuen dayes shoulde haue bene ended, the Jewes which were of Asia, when they sawe hym in the temple, they moued all the people, and layde handes on hym, crying: men of Israel, helpe. This is the man that teacheth all men euery where against the people and the lawe, and this place. Moreover he hath brought Grekes into the temple, and hath defyled this holy place. For they sawe one Trophimus an Ephesian with him in the temple. Him they supposed Paul had broughte into the temple. And al the crite was moued and the people swarmed togyther. And they toke Paul and dreyne him out of the temple, & forthwith the doores were shut.

¶ As they went about to kyll hym, crydnges came vnto the chief captayne of the Souldyers, that all Jerusalem was moued. Whiche immediately toke Souldyers and vndercaptaynes, and ran downe vnto them. When they sawe the Captayne and the Souldyers, they lefte smynging of Paul. Then the Captayne came nere and toke him, and commaunded him to be bounde with two chaynes, and demaunded what he was, and what he had done. And one cryed this, an other that among the people. And when he coulde not knowe þ certayntie for the rage, he commaunded hym to be caried into the castell. And whē he came vnto þ Grekes, it fortuned that he was boyme of the Souldyers for the violence of the people. For the multitude of the people followed after, cryenge: awaye with hym.

¶ And as Paul shoulde haue bene caried into the castell, he sayde vnto the Captayne: maye I speake vnto the? Whiche sayd: Canst thou speake Greke? Arise not thou that Egyptian, whiche before these dayes made an uprore, & led out into the wilderness foure thousande men that were murderers? But Paul sayde I am a man whiche am a Jewe of Tharsus a crite in Cyll, a Cyrenen of no ylle crite, I beseeche the / suffice me to speake vnto the people. When he had giuen him licence, Paul stode on the steppes, and beckened with þ had vnto the people, and there was made a great silence. And he spake vnto them in the Hebrew tongue, sayenge:

¶ Paul answered the Jewes, is scourged, and layde in pylon agayne.

CAP. XXII.

¶ Men brethren & fathers, heare myne aunswere whiche I make vnto you.

¶ When they heard that he spake in the Hebrew tongue to them, they kepte the more silence. And he sayde: I am verely a man, whiche am a Jewe boyme in Tharsus, a crite in Cyll: neuertheless brought vp in this crite, at the cite of Samariel, and informed diligently in the lawe of the fathers, and was feruent mynded to God warde, as ye all are this same daye, and I persecuted this way vnto the death, byndynge and deluyringe into prison bothe men and women, as the chief priest dothe beare me wytnesse, and all the elders of whome also I receyued letters vnto the byerbyzen, and went to Damasco to bynge them whiche were there bounde vnto Jerusalem for to be punyshed.

¶ And it fortuned, as I made my iourney, & was come nyghe vnto Damasco about none, sodaynly there shone frome heauen a greates lyghte rounde aboute me, and I fell vnto the earth, and heard a voyce, sayenge vnto me. ¶ Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me? And I answered: What arte thou Loyde? And he sayde to me: I am Iesus of Nazareth whome thou persecutest. And they that were with me sawe a lyght and were afrayde: but they heard not the voyce of him that spake with me. And I sayde: What shall I doo Loyde? And the Loyde sayde vnto me: Arise, and go in to Damasco and there it shall be told the of all thinges which are appointed the to do. And when I sawe nothing for the brightnes of the lyght, I was ledde by the hande of them that were with me, and came into Damasco.

¶ And one Ananias a perfect man, and as preceptynge to the lawe haupnge good repute of all the Jewes whiche there dwelte, came vnto me, and stode and sayde vnto me: Brother Saul, loke vp. And that same houre I receyued my sight and sawe him. And he sayd the God of our fathers hath ordeyned the before, that thou shouldest knowe his will, and shouldest se that which is rightfull, & shouldest heare the voyce of his mouth: for thou shalt be his witness vnto all men of those thinges whiche thou hast seene and heard. And now: why tarrest thou? Arise and be baptysed, and make awaye thy synnes, callinge on the name of the Loyde. And it fortuned, when I was come agayne to Jerusalem / and prayde in the

in the temple, that I was in a trance, and sawe him, sayenge vnto me. Make haste, and get thy selfe quickly out of Jerusalem: for they will not receyue thy wytnesse that thou bearest of me. And I sayde: Loyde they knowe that I am prisoned and bet in euery synagoge that I be leued on the. And when the bloode of thy wytnesse Steven was shed, I also stode by, & consented vnto his death, and kept the rayment of them that slew him. And he sayd vnto me: departe, for I will sende the a satre hence vnto the Gentyles.

¶ They gaue him audience vnto his worde, and then lyfte vp theyr voyces, and sayde: awaye with suche a felowe frome the erth: it is purye that he shoulde lye. And as they cryed and cast of theyr clothes, and threwe dust in to the ayre, the captayne had him be broughte in to the castell, and commaunded him to be scourged, and to be examined: that he might knowe wherfore they cryed on hym. And as they bounde him with thonges, Paul sayde vnto the Centurion that stode by: Is it lawfull for you to scourge a man that is a Romayne, and vndercondemned? When the Centurion herde that, he went and tolde the captayne, saying: What intendest thou to do? This man is a Romayne.

¶ Then the captayne came, and sayde to him: Tell me, art thou a Romayne? He sayde: Ye. And the captayne answered: With a greatesomme obteyned I this freldome. And Paul sayde: I was free boyme. Then forthwith departed from him they which wolde haue examined him. And the captayne also was afrayd after he knewe that he was a Romayne: because he had bounde him.

¶ On the morowe, because he wolde haue knowne the certayntie, wherfore he was accused of the Jewes, he toke him from his bondes, and commaunded the chief priests, and all the concile to come togyther, and brought Paul, and set him before them.

¶ Paul commeth before the counsell. Debate aryseth among the people. The captayn delivereth hym / God comforteth him.

CAP. XXIII.

¶ Paul beelde the counsell and sayd: Men and brethren, I haue lyued in al good conscience before God & tyll this daye. The hye priest Ananias commaunded them þ stode by to smyte him on the mouth. Then sayde Paul to him: God smyte the thou paynted wall. Syttest thou & iudget me after the law, and commaundest me to be smytten contrary to the lawe? And they that stode by sayde: reuilest thou Gods hye priest? Then said Paul: I will not, brethren, that he was the hye priest. For it is written: & thou shalt not curse the ruler of thy people.

¶ When Paul perceyued that the one parte were Sadduces, and the other Pharisees, he cryed out in the counsell. Men and brethren, I am a Pharisee, the sonne of a Pharisee. Of the hope and resurrection frome dethe, I am iudged. And when he had so sayde, there arose a debate bitwene the Pharisees and the Sadduces: and the multitude was deuyded. ¶ For the Sadduces saye there is no resurrection, neither angel ne spirite. But the Pharisees graunte bothe. And there arose a greatescrepe, and the Scribes which was of the Pharisees parte, arose and stode, saying: we fynde none euill in this man. Though a spere of an angell hath appered to him, let vs not stryue agaynst God.

¶ And when there arose greates debate, the captayne fearynge, lest Paul shoulde haue ben plucked asunder of them, commaunded the souldyers to go downe, and to take hym frome them, and to bynge him in to the castell. The night folowynge, God stode by him and sayd: be of good chere Paul, for as thou hast testifyed of me in Jerusalem, so muste thou beare wytnes at Rome. When daye was come, certayne of the Jewes gathered them selues togyther, and made a bove, sayinge: that they wolde neither eate nor drynke, tyll they had kyllen Paul. They were about .xli. which had made this conspiracie. And they came to the chiefe priest & elders, and said: we haue bound our selues with a bove, that we wyl eate nothyng, tyll we haue slayne Paul. Nowe therfore gyue ye knowlege to the captayne and to the counsell, that he bynge him forth vnto vs to morowe, as though we wold knowe some thyng moze perfectly of hym. But we (or euer he come neate) are redy in the meane season to kyll hym.

¶ When Pauls sisters sonne herde of theyr sayenge awaye, he wente and entred in to the castell, and tolde Paul. And paul called one of the vnder captaynes vnto hym, and sayde: bynge this yonge man vnto the hye captayne: for he hath a certayne thyng to shewe him. And he toke him, and brought him to the captayne, and sayd: Paul the prisoner called me vnto him, and prayed me to byng this yonge man vnto the, whiche hath a certayne matere to shewe the.

¶ The hye captayne toke him by the hande, and wente awaye with him out of the wape: and asked him, what hast thou to say vnto me? And he sayd: the Jewes are determined to despyse the that thou wouldest bynge forth Paul to morowe in to the counsell, as though they wold enquire somwhat of him moze perfectly: But folow not theyr myndes: for there lye in wape for him of them mo then .xli. men, which haue bounde them selues with a bove, that they wyl neither eate ne drynke tyll they haue kyllen him. And now are they ready, and loke for thy promys.

¶ The captayne let the yonge man departe, and charged hym: Se thou tell no man that thou hast shewed these thynges to me. And he called vnto him two vnder captaynes, saying: make ready two hundred souldyers to go to Cesarea, and horsemen thye scoze and ten, and speare men two hundred, at the thyrde houre of the nyght. And deliuer them beeches that they maye put Paul on, and bynge him safe vnto Felix the depuete, and wote a letter in this maner.

Claudius Aprius into the most myghtye ruler Felix sendeth greetynge. This man was taken of the Jewes, and wolde haue ben kyng of them. Then came I with souldiers, and rescued him, and perceyued that he was a Romanyn. And when I wolde haue knownen the cause wherfore they accused him, I broughte him forth in to thei counsell. There perceyued I that he was accused of questions of thei lawe: but was not gilty of any thyng worthy of death or of bondes. And when it was shewed me howe the Jewes layde waite for the man, I sent him streyght waie to the, and gaue commaundement to his accusers, if they hadde oughte agaynste him, to tell it vnto the: face well. The souldiers as it was commaunded them, toke Paule, and broughte him by nyghte to Antipatras. On the morowe they left the house men to go with him, and returned vnto the castell. Whiche when they came to Cesarea, deliuered the cpyllie to the depu-tye, and presented Paule before him. When the depu-tye hadde redde the letter, he asked of what countre he was. And when he vnder-stande that he was of Cilicill, I wold heare the (sayde he) when thynne accusers are come also: and commaunded him to be kepte in Herods iudgement house.

Chaule is accused before Felix, he answereth for him selfe.

CAPIT. XXIIII.

After fyue dayes, Ananias the high priest descended with the elders, and with a certain oratour named Tertullus, and enformed the ruler of Paule. When Paule was called forth, Tertullus began to accuse him, sayinge: Where as we lyue in greafe quietnes by the meanes of the, and many good things are done vnto this nation through thy providence: that alow we euer and in all plasces mood myght felix with al thanks. Nor withstanding that I be not tedious vnto the I praye the that thou woldest heare vs of thy currenye a fewe wordes.

Stoner, r.v.b.
and, r.v.b.

We haue sounde this man a * pestilent le-sowe, and a manner of debate vnto all the Je-wes thowhe out the worlde, and a martrisener of the secte of Nazarenes, and haue also enforced to pollute the temple. Whome we toke and wolde haue iudged according to our lawe, but the hye captayne Lyfias came vpon vs, and with greates violence toke him awaye out of our handes, commaundynge his accusers to come to the. Of whome thou mayste (yf thou wolste enquire) knowe of all these thynges wherof we accuse him. The Jewes like the people affirmed, saying that it was euen so.

Then Paule (after that the ruler him selfe had beckened vnto him that he sholde speake) answered: I shall with a more quiet mynde answere for my selfe, for as moche as I vnderstande, that thou hast ben of many yeres a iudge vnto this people, bicause I thou mayste knowe that there are yet but twelue dayes sur-reyns I wente vp to Ierusalem for to praye, and they neither found me in the temple dispu-lynge with any man, eyther raplynge by the people, neyther in the Synagoges, no; in the city. Neither can they proue the thinges wherof they accuse me.

But this I confesse vnto the, that after that waie (whiche they call heresie) so worshipp I the God of my fathers, beleauinge all thinges whiche are wyrtten in the lawe and the Prophetes, and haue hope towards God, that the same resurrection of the dead (which they them selues loke for also) shall be both of iust and vniuste. And therefore Iudge I to haue a clear conscience towards God, and towards man also.

But after many yeres, I came and brought almes to my people, & offeringes in the which they founde me purified in the temple, neither with multitude, nor yet with iniquities, how be it there were certayne Iewes oute of Asia, whiche oughte to be here presente before the,
and accuse me, yf they had ought agaynst me:
or elles let these same here saye, yf they haue founde any euill doyng in me, whyle I stande here in the counsell: excepte it be for this one hoyce that I cryed standynge amonge them, of the resurrection of the dead, am I iudged of you this daye.

When Iulius herde these thynges, he deterred them, for he knewe very well of that way, and said: when Rylas the capteyn is come, I will knowe the vermoſt of your matters. And he commaunded an vnder capteyne to kepe Paule, and that he ſhould haue reſt, and that he ſhould ſorbyd none of his acquaintance to miniſter vnto him, and to come vnto him.

And after a certayne dayes, came Felix and his wyfe Drusilla, whiche was a Jewe, and called forth Paul, and berde him of the feyth whiche is towardes Christ, and as he preached of synneshoulnesse, temperaunce, and iudgement to come, Felix trembled and answered: thou hast doone ynoughe at this tyme, departe / when I haue conuenient tyme, I will sende for the. He hoped also that money wold haue ben giuen him of Paul, that he myght loose him: wherefore he called him the oftener, and communed with him. But after two yere, Festus Porcius came in to Felix towne. And Felix wyllynge to shewe the Jewes a pleasure, sette Paul in prison bounde.

The Jewes accuse Paule before Festus, he appealeth unto the Emperoure, and is sent unto Rome.

CAP I. XXV.

When Iesus was come in to the Prouince, after thre daies he ascended from Cesarea vnto Ierusalem. Then enformed him the hygge preestes, and the chiefe of the Jewes of Paule. And they besought hym and desired fauour against him, that he wolde sende for him to Ierusalem: and layd awaite for him in the way to kyl him. Iesus answered that Paul wolde be kepte at Cesarea, but that he hym selfe wolde shortly departe thre-ther. Let them therefore (sayde he) whiche among you are hable to do it, come towne with us and accuse him, if there be any fault in the man.

15 When he had tarped there more then tenne dayes, he departed vnto Cesarea, and the next daye satte downe in the iudgement seate, and commaunded Paule to be brought. When he was come, the Iewes whiche were come from Ierusalem, came aboute him, and layde many and gretuous complayntes agaynst Paule, whiche they coulde not proue as longe as he answered for him selfe, that he had neither agaynst the lawe of the Iewes, neither agaynst the temple, nor yet agaynst Cesar offended any thyng at all.

E Iesus willing to do the Iewes a pleasure answered Paule and sayde: wilt thou go to Ierusalem, and there be iudged of these thynges befoze me? Then sayde Paule: I stande at Cæsars iudgement seate, where I ought to be iudged. To the Iewes haue I no harme done, as thou verie well knowest. Yf I haue hurte them, or comipted any thyng worth of death, I refuse not to dye. Yf none of these thynges are, wherof they accuse me, no man ought to deliuer me to them. I appeale vnto Cæsar. Then spake Iesus with deliberacion, and answered. Thou hast appealed vnto Cæsar: vnto Cæsar shalt thou go.

After a certayne daies, kynge Agrippa, and Bernice came vnto Cesarea to salute Felix. And when they hadde ben there a good season, Felix rebeked Paulies cause vnto the kynge, sayinge: there is a certayne man leste in prison of Felix, aboute whome when I came to Ierusalem the hye preestes and elders of the Iewes enformed me, & desired to haue iudgement agaynst him. To whom I answered: It

E is not the maner of the Romayns to deliuer any man that he wolde perishe, before that he whiche is accused, haue y accusars before him, and haue lycence to answer for him selfe, concerning the crime layde agaynst hym: when they were come hyther without delaye on the morowe I sate to geue iudgement, and commaunded the man to be broughte forth. Agaynst whome when the accusars stode vp, they broughte none accusation of suche thynges as I supposed: but hadde certayne questions agaynst him of theyr owne supersticion, and of one Iesus whiche was deed, whome Paule affirmed to be aljue. And because I doubted of suche maner questions, I asked him whether he wolde go to Ierusalem, and there be iudged of these matters. Then when Paule hadde appealed to be kepte vnto the knowledge of Cesar, I commaunded him to be hepte tyll I myghte sende him to Cesar. Agrippa sayd vnto Felus: I wolde also heare the man my selfe. To moztowe (sayd he) thou shalt heare him. And on the moztowe when Agrippa was come and Bernice with great pompe, & were entred in to the counsell house with the c: praynes and chiefe men of the c: tye, at Felus commaundement Paule was broughre forth. And Felus sayd: kynge Agrippa, and all men to whiche are heare presente with vs: ye se this man aboute whom all the multitude of the Iewes haue ben with me.

bothe at Ierusalem, and also here, cryinge that he oughte not to lyue any longer: Yet founde I nothyng worthy of deathe, that he had commytted. Neuerthelesse sythens that he hath appealed to Cesar, I haue determy-ned to sende him. Of whome I haue no certaine thyng to wyte vnto my Lord. Adver-soze I haue brought him to pon, and specially vnto the kynge Agrippa, that after examina-cion had, I might haue somewhat to wote. For me thinketh it vnrasonable for to sende a prisoner, and not to shewe the causes whyche are layde agaynst him.

Thyngge Grippa heareth Paule, whiche telleth him his callenge frome the begynnyng.

CAP. XXVI.

Agrippa sayde vnto Paule : thou arte permitted to speke for thy selfe. Then Paule stretched forth the hande, and answered for him selfe. I thinke my selfe happy kyng Agrippa, because I shal answere this daye before the, of all the thynges wherof I am accused of the Jewes, namely because thou art expert in al customes and questions, which are amonge the Jewes. Wherefore I beseeche the to heare me patiently.

My lyfynge of a chylde, which was at the fylle amonge myne owne nation at Jerusa-lein, knowe all the Jewes, whiche knewe me from the begynnyng, yf they wolde testifie it.
For after the moost strapyous secte of our larelyued I a Phariseye. And nowe I stande and am iudged, for the hope of the promyse made of God vnto oure fathers: vnto whiche pro-myse our twelue trybes instantly scrupynge god dape and myghte, hope to come. For whiche hopes sake, kynge Agrippa, am I accused of the Jewes. Why wolde it be thought a thing incredible vnto you, that God wolde rapte a gayne the deyd? I also verely thoughte in my selfe, that I ought to do many contrary thynges, clene agaynst the name of Iesus of Nazareth: whiche thyng I also ded in Jerusalem.
Where many of the sayntes I shut vp in pry-son, and had receyued authorite of the hye prystes. And when they were pur to berthe, I gaue the sentence. And I punished them ofte in e-uery synagoge, and compelled them to blaspheme: and was yet moze made vpon them, and persecuted them euen vnto straunge cyties.
About the whiche thynges as I went to Samaria with auctoritie and lycence of the hygh priesstes, euen at myddaye (o kynge) I sawe in the way a light from heuen, about the bright-nes of the sonne, thynke rounde about me, and them whiche iourneyed with me.

When we were all fallen to the earth, I herde a voyce speakynge vnto me, and sayynge in the Heb; we tonge: * Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me? It is harde for the to kicke agaynst the prycke. And I sayde: Who arte thou Lord? And he sayde: I am Iesus whom thou persecutest, but rysed and stand vp on thy fete. for I haue appeared vnto the for this purpose, to make the a minister & a wit-

neke bothe of those thinges whiche thou hast seene, and of those thinges in whiche I will appeare vnto the, deliueringe the frome the people, and frome the Gentyles, to some now I sende the, to open their eyes, that they myght turne frome darkness to lycht, and frome the power of Satan vnto God, that they may receyue forgiveness of synnes and inheritaunce amonge them, which are sanctified by faith in me.

Agrippa kynge Agrippa, I was not disobedient vnto the heauy bylaw: but shewed firste vnto them of Iamasco, and at Jerusalem, and shewd out all the colles of Jewry, and to the Gentyles, that they shoulde repente, and tourne to God, and to the ryghte wayes of repentance. For this cause, the Jewes caught me in the temple, and went about to kyll me. Neuerthelesse I obtayned helpe of God, and continewe vnto this daye, witnessinge bothe to small and great, sayinge none other thinges, then those whiche the prophetes and Moyses dyd saye, shoulde come, that Christe shoulde suffer, and that he shoulde be the firste that shoulde rise frome deathe, and shoulde shewe lycht vnto the people, and to the Gentyles. As he thus answered for him selfe: Festus sayde with a loud voyce. Paul, thou arte besydes thy selfe. Soche learninge hath made the mad. And Paule sayde: I am not mad, monke here Festus: but speake the wordes of truthe and sobriety. The kynge knoweth of these thinges, before whome I speake freely: Therefore chynke I that any of these thinges are hydden from him: For this thinge was not doone in a corner. Kynge Agrippa, beleue thou the prophetes: I wote well thou beleuest. Agrippa sayd vnto Paul: Somewhat thou byngest me in mynde for to become a Christian. And Paul sayde: I wolde to God, that not onely thou: but also all that heare me to daye, were, not somewhat onely, but all together, such as I am, excepte these bondes. And when he hadde thus spoken, the kynge rose vp, and the deputie, and Bernice, and they that sate with them. And when they were gone a parte, they talked betwene them selues / sayinge: This man doth nothinge worthy of deathe, nor of bondes. Then sayd Agrippa vnto Festus: This man myght haue bene loosed, yf he hadde not appealed vnto Cesar.

C Paule shippinge towards Rome, Julius the Captayne intreated him curiously, at the laste they suffred shipwreke.

CAP. XXVII.

When it was concluded that we shoulde sayle into Italye, they deliuered Paule and certayne other pyloners, vnto one named Julius, an vnder Captayne of Celsus Souldiers. And we entred into a shyppe of Adramptium, and loosed frome lande, appointed to sayle by the colles of Asia, one Aristarcus out of Macedonia, of the country of Thessalia beinge with vs. And the nexte daye we came to Sidon. And Julius courteously entreated Paul, and gaue him libertie to go vnto his friends, and to refresh his hym selfe. And from thence launced we, and sayled hither by Cyprus, because the wyndes were contrarye. Then sayled we ouer the sea of Cilicia, and Pamphilia, and came to Myra.

And there the vndercaptayne founde a ship of Alexander, redde to sayle into Italye, and put vs therein. And when we had sayled slowly many dayes, and scare were come ouer against Cyprus (because the wynde withstode vs,) we sayled thar by the colles of Landy, ouer against Salmo, and with much voyke sayled beyonde it, and came vnto a place called Goodpoynt. Whiche wherunto was a cite called Lasea. When much tyme was spent and saylinge was now tedious, because also that we hadde ouerlonge sayled, Paule put them in remembrance, and sayde vnto them. Myrs, I perceiue that this voyage will be with hurt and moche damage, not of the ladinge and shyppe onely: but also of our lyues. Neuerthelesse the vnder Captayne beleued the gouernour and the master, better then the thinges, which were spoke of Paule. And because the haue was not commodious to winter in, manie toke counsell to departe thence, yf by any means they myght attayne to Athenes, & thence to wynter, whiche is an haue of Landy, & seuereth to the southward, and northward wynde. When the southwynde blew, they supposinge to obtayne their purpose loosed vnto Asson, and sayled past all Landy.

But anon after, there arose against their purpose, a floure of wynde out of the north-east. And when the shyppe was caughte, and coulde not resiste the wynde, we let her go, & brake with the wynde. And we came vnto an yle named Claudia, and hadde moche woike to come by a boote, whiche they toke by, and used helpe, vndergetyng the shyp, frayinge least we shoulde haue fallen into Sytes. And we let downe a vessel, and so were carped. The nexte daye when we were tossed with an exceeding tempest, they lyghtened the shyp, and the thirde daye we cast out with our own handes, the tacklinge of the shyppe. When at the laste nyght sunne nor starre in many dayes appeared, and no small tempest laye vpon vs, all hope that we wold be saued, was then taken awaye. Then after longe aduynce, Paul stode forth in the myddes of the and sayde: Myrs ye shoulde haue hardened to me, and not haue loosed frome Landy, neither to haue brought vnto vs this harme and losse. And now I exhort you to be of good chere. For there shall be no losse of any mans lyfe amonge you, saue of the shyppe onely. For there stode by me this nyght the Angel of God, whose I am, and to whome I serue, sayinge: Feare not Paule, for thou must be brought before Cesar. And lo, God hath gyuen vnto the, all that sayle with the. Wherefore Myrs be of good chere: for I beleue god, that it shalbe euen as it was tolde me. How be it we must be cast into a certayne place. But

But when the fourteenth nyght was come, as we were carped in Adria about mydnyght, the shypmen deemed that there appered some countrey vnto them: and sounded, and founde it twentye faddoms. And when they hadde gone a lycht further, they sounded agayne / and founde fytten faddoms. Then fearynge lest they shoulde haue fallen on some rocke / they cast foure anchors out of the sterne, and wysshed for the daye.

As the shypmen were aboute to see oute of the shyppe, and hadde let downe the boote into the see, vnder a couloure as though they wolde haue cast anchors out of the shyppe: Paul sayde vnto the vndercaptayne and the Souldiers: excepte these abyde in the shyppe, ye can not be safe. When the Souldiers cut of the rope of the boote, and let it fall awaye.

And in the meane tyme, betwene that and daye, Paul besought them all to take meate, sayinge: This is the fourteenth daye that ye haue carped and continued fastinge, receyvinge nothinge at all. Wherfore I praye you take meate: for this noo doubte, is for your helthe: for there shall not an heart fall from the heed of any of you.

And when he had thus spoken, he toke bread and gaue thanks to God, in presence of the all, and brake it, and beganne to eate. Then were they all of good chere, & they also toke meate. We were all together in the shyppe, two hundred thre score and sytene soules. And when they had eaten ynough, they lychtened the shyppe, and cast out the wheate into the see.

When it was daye, they knewe not the lande, but they espyed a certayne haue with a banke into the which they were mynded (yf it were possible) to chuse in the shyppe. And when they hadde taken by the anchors, they comytred them selues vnto the see, and lowed the rudder bondes, & hoysed by the mayne sayle to the wynde, and by to lande. But they chaunced on a place, whiche had the see on both the sydes, and thus in the shyp. And the foote parte stucke faste, and moued not, but the hynder brake with the violence of the waues.

The Souldiers counsell, was to kyll the pyloners, least any of them, when he hadde swome oute shoulde flee awaye. But the vndercaptayne, wyslyng to saue Paule, kepte them frome their purpose, and commaunded that they that coulde swimme, shoulde caste them selues firste into the see, and scape to lande. And the other he commaunded to goo, some on bozdes, and some on broken peeces of the shyppe. And so it came to passe, that they came all safe to Lande.

C The vndercaptayne kepte Paule / he healeth Publius father, and preacheth Christe at Rome.

CAP. XXVIII.

And when they were escaped, then they knewe that the yle was called Melite. And the people of the countrey shewed vs no lycht kyndnes: for they kyndled a fire and receyued vs eury one, because of the present rayne, and because of the colde. And when Paul hadde gathered a bondel of syches, and put them in to the fyre, there came a vyper oute of the heat, and lept on his hande. When the men of the countrey sawe the wyrm hang on his hande, they sayde amonge them selues: This man must nedes be a murderer: Whome (though he haue escaped the see) yet vengeance suffereth not to lyue. But he shooke of the vermen into the fyre, and felte no harme. But they wysshed, when he shoulde haue swollen, or fallen downe dead suddenly. So after they hadde looked a greate whyle / and sawe no harme come to hym, then they chaunged their myndes, and sayde that he was a God.

In the same places, the chiefe man of the yle, whose name was Publius, hadde a lord-shyp: the same receyued vs, & lodged vs thre dayes courteously. And it fortuned that the father of Publius laye sycke of a feuer, and of a bluddy fluxe. To whome Paul entred in, and prayde, and layd his handes on him, and healed him. When this was done, other also which had dyscaies in the yle, came and were healed. And they dyd vs great honoure. And when we departed, they laded vs with thinges necessary.

After thre monethes we departed in a shyp of Alexandrie, whiche hadde wyntred in the yle, whose badge was Castor and Pollux. And when we came to Syracuse, we tarped there thre dayes. And frome thence we fet a compass, and came to Regium. And after one daye the southwynde blew, and we came the nexte daye to Putiolis: where we founde brethren, and were desyred to tary with them seuen dayes, and so came to Rome. And frome thence, when the brethren herde of vs, they came against vs to Appophorum, and to the laurenes. When Paul sawe them, he thanked God, & waxed bolde. And when he came to Rome, the vnder Captayne deliuered the pyloners to the chiefe Captayne of the host: but Paul was suffered to dwell by him selfe with one Souldier that kept him.

And it fortuned after thre dayes, that Paul called the chiefe of the Jewes together. And when they were come, he sayde vnto them. Men and brethren, though I haue committed nothinge against the people or lawes of our fathers: yet was I deliuered pyloner, frome Jerusalem, into the handes of the Romanys. Whiche when they hadde examyned me, wolde haue let me go, because they founde no cause of deathe in me. But when the Jewes cryed contrarye, I was constrained to appeale vnto Cesar: not because I had ought to accuse my people of. For this cause haue I called for you, euen to se you, and to speake with you: because that for the hope of Israel, I am bounde with this chayne.

And

And they sayd vnto him: We neyther receyued lettres out of Iewoye pertayninge vnto the, neyther came any of the brethien that shewed or spake anye harme of the. But we will heare of the what thou thinkest. For we haue herde of this secte, that euery where it is spoken againste. And when they had appointed him a daye, there came many vnto him into his lodgyng. To whom he expounded and testified the kyngdome of God, and preached vnto them of Iesu: bothe out of the lawe of Moses, and also out of the Prophetes, euen frome mornynge to nyght. And some beleued the thinges which were spoken, and some beleued not.

When they agreed not amonge themſel-ues they departed, after that Paul hadde ſpoken one worde. Well ſpake the holy ghoſt by Iſay the Prophete vnto our fathers, ſayeng:

and their eares were thicke of hearinge, and their eyes haue they closed: lest they shoulde see with their eyes, and heare with their eares, & vnderstande with their hartes, and shoulde be conuerted, and I shoulde heale theym. Be it knowne therfore vnto you, that this saluacioⁿ of God is sent to the Gentyls, and they shal heare it. And when he had sayde that, the Jewes departed, and had greate alteration amonge them selues.

And Paul dwelt two yeres full in his lod-ginge / and receyued all that came to hym, preachynge the kyngdome of God, and teachynge those thynges, whi-

Paule to the Romayns.

Paule declareth his loue towards the Romayns by twerth what the Gospell is with the frute therof, and rebuketh the becclynes of the fleshe.

CAP I. I. *

And the ser-uaunt of Iesu Christe called to be an Apostle, put apart
to preache the gospel of god
which he promised afore by his pphets in the holy scriptures & make mention of his

sonne, begotten of the seed of David, as per-teynynge to the flesh: and declared to be the sonne of God, with power of the holy ghoſte that sanctifieth, which the tyme that Iesus Christ our Lozde rose agayne from death, by whome we haue receyued grace and Apostles-hipp, to bynne all maner hethen people vnto the obedience of the faith, that is in his name: of whiche are pe a parte also, whiche are Ie-sus Christs by callinge. R

To all you of Rome beloved of God, and sayntes by calling. Grace in you, and pear fro god our father: & from the Lorde Jesu Christ.

First I thanke my god thowto Iesu Christ for you all, because your faythe is publyshed throughtout al the worlde. For god is my witnes, whom I scue with my spyte in the gospel of his sonne, that without ceasing I make mention of you alwayes in my prayers, beseeching that ones at last, a prosperous iourney by the wyl of god) might fortune me, to come vnto you. For I longe to se you, that I might belowe amonges you some ghoslyp gyfte to strengthe the you with that is, that I might be comforted togyther with you, throughe the common fapth, which both ye and I haue.

I wolde ye wolde knowe brethren that I haue often tymes purposed to come vnto you (but haue ben let hitherto) to haue some frute amonge you, as I haue amonge other of the Gentyles. For I am desir both to the Sickes, and to them which are no Sickes, vnto the lerned, and also vnto the vnlerned.
Likewise as moche as in me is, I am redy to preache the gospell to you of Rome also. For I am not ashamed of the gospell of Christ, because it is the power of god for saluation to all that beleue, namely to the Iewe, and also to the hethen. For by it the righteounes of god is opened from f saythe to sayth. As it is wrytten: * the iust shall lue by sayth.

For the wrath of god appeareth from heuen agaynste all vngodlines and vnrightousnes of men, whiche testifieth the truth in vnri-ghtousnes / for as moche as what maye be knowen of god, that same is manifested amonge the

For god byd thewe li vnto them. So that his inuisible thynges: that is to saye, his eternal potwer and godhed, are vnderstande and sene by the workes from the creation of the worlde. So that they are without excuse, in as moche as when they knewe god, they glorified hym not as god, neither were thankfull, but were full of vanities in theyr ymaginacions, and theyr folythe hertes were blynded. When they counted them selues wylse, they became foles, and turned the gloyre of the immortall god, vnto the semblance of the ymage of mortal man, and of byrdes, and foure footed bestes, and of serpentes. Wherefore god likewise gaue them vp vnto theyr hertes lustes, vnto vncleynesse, to despyle theyr owne bodyes by twyne them selues: whiche turned his trouthe vnto a lye, and woorthyped and scrud the creatures more then the maker, whiche is blessed for euer. Amen. For this cause god gaue them vp vnto shamefull lustes. For euen theyr women byd chaunge the naturall vse vnto the vnnaturall. And yf howe soe the men lette the naturall vse of the woman, and byent in their lustes one to an other. And man with man wroughte spithynesse, and receyued in theyr selues the rewarde of theyr errour, as was acco:rdyng.

And as it seemed not good vnto them to be a knowen of god, euen so god deliuered them vp vnto a lewde mynde, that they wold do the thynges whiche were not comly, beynge full of all vnrighteous doynges, of fornication, wyphedynesse, couetousnesse, malicioussnes, full of enuye, murder, debate, discepte, euill condycioned, whysperers, backbiters, haters of god, doers of wyllousse, proude, boasters, byrners vp of euill thynges, disobedient to father & mother, without vnderstanding, couenaunt breakers, vnloyngge, treuchbreakers, and merciles. Whiche men thoughte they knewe the righteuousnesse of god, haue that they whiche comyt suche thynges are worthy of deeth, yet not onely do the same, but also haue pleasure in them that do them.

He rebuketh the Jewes, which as touching sinnes are like the Heithen, yea worse then they.

CAPL. II.

Therfore art thou inexorable, o man, who so sure thou be that iudgeth. For in that thou iudget an other, thou con-demnest thy selfe. For thou that iudget, doest euen the same. But we are sure that the iudgment of god is according to the trowth, against them whiche commit suche thinges. Thyntest thou this, o thou mā that iudgeth them which do suche thinges, and yet doest the verie same, that thou shalt escape the iudgement of god?
Eytther despyrest thou the riches of his goodnes, patience, and longe sufferaunce? and re-membrest not holue that the kyndnes of God leadeth the to repentance?

But thou after thynne harden herte & can not repente, heapest the together the treasure of wraoth agaynst the daies of vengeance, when shal be opened the righteous iudgement of god, which

whiche will reward every man according to his doings, that is to saye, prayse, honour, and immortallitie to them which continue in good doinge, and seeke eternal lyfe. But vnto them that are rebellious and disobey the truth, and followe liquor, that come indignation & wrath, tribulation and angursh vnto the soule of every man that dothe euill: of the Jewes & Gentiles, and also of the Gentyle. To every man that dothe good, shall come prayse, honour, and peace: to the Jewes first, & also to the Gentyle. For there is no parcialitie with God. But who so euer hath sinned without lawe, shall perishe without lawe. And as many as haue sinned vnder the lawe, shall be iudged by the lawe. For because God they are not righteous whiche heare the lawe: but the doers of the lawe shall be iustified. For yf the Gentyles whiche haue no lawe, do of nature those thynges conteyned in the lawe: then they haunge no lawe, are a lawe vnto them selues, which shewe the dede of the lawe written in theyr hartes: whyle theyr conscience beareth witness vnto them, and also theyr thoughtes, accusynge one another, or excusynge at the day when God shall iudge the secretes of men by Iesu Christ, according to my glad tidynge.

Scholde, thou art called a Jewe, & trustest in the lawe, and rejoycest in god, and knowest his will, and hast experience of good & bad, in that thou art informed by the lawe, & biluest that thou thy self art a guide vnto the blinde, a light to them whiche are in darknes, an informour of them whiche lacke discretion, a teacher of vnlearned, which hast the forme of that which ought to be knowne, and of the truth in the lawe. But thou which teachest an other, teachest not thy selfe. Thou preaches a man wholte not steale, and yet thou stealest. Thou sayest, a man shold not commit aduoutry, and thou breakest wedlocke. Thou abhorrest ymagis, and robbest God of his honour. Thou rejoycest in the lawe, and thou breakest the lawe, dishonourest God: for the name of God is euill spoken of amonge the Gentyles that tolde you: as it is written.

C. 1. 1. 1. 1.

Circumcision verily auayleth yf thou kepe the lawe. But yf thou breake the lawe, thy circumcision is made vncircumcision. Therefore if the vncircumcised kepe the right thynges conteyned in the lawe: that not his vncircumcision be counted for circumcision? And shall not vncircumcision whiche is by nature (yf it kepe the lawe) iudge the, whiche beinge vnder the letter & circumcision, dost transgresse the lawe? For he is not a Jewe, whiche is a Jewe outward. Neither is that thing circumcision which is outward in the flesh. But he is a Jewe whiche is hye within, and the circumcision of the herte is the true circumcision, which is in spirite, and not in the letter, whose prayse is not of men, but of God.

The sheweth what preferment the Jewes haue, and that both the Jewes and Gentyles are vnder synne, and are iustified only by the grace of God in Christ.

C. 1. 1. 1.

I. 1. 1.

What preferment then hath the Jewe? I saye vnto you what auantage hath circumcision? Surely very moche. First vnto them was committed the word of god. What then though some of them dyd not blyue? Shall they vncircumcise make the promise of God without effect? God forbid. Let God be true, & all men lyars, as it is written: I thou mightest be iustified in thy saying, and thou mightest overcome when thou art iudged.

If our vncircumcisednes make the rightnesse of God more excellent: what shall we saye? Is God vncircumcised, whiche taketh vengeance? I speake after the manner of men. God forbid. For how then shall god iudge the worlde? Yf the veritie of God appeare more excellent thowhe my lyfe vnto his prayse, why am I benioynt iudged as a synner? and saye not rather (as men euill speake of vs, and as some aspye that we say) let vs do euill, that good maye come thereof: whose damnacion is iuste.

What say we then? Are we better then they? No, in no wise: for we haue alreadye pured how that bothe Jewes and Gentyles are all vnder synne, as it is written: there is none righteous, no not one: there is none that understandeth, there is none that seeketh after God, they are all gone out of the waye, they are all vnprofitable: there is none that dothe good, no not one. Their throte is an open sepulchre, with their tonges they haue disceyued: the poison of aspes is vnder their lippes. Whose mouthes are full of cursynge and bitterness. Their feete are swifte to shed blood. Destruction and wretchednes are in their wayes. And the way of peace they haue not knowne. There is no feare of God before theyr eyes.

We knowe that what so euer the lawe sayeth, he sayeth it to them which are vnder the lawe. That all mouthes may be stopp'd, and all the worlde be subdu'd to God, because that by the dedes of the lawe shall no flesh be iustified in the sight of God. For by the lawe cometh the knowledge of synne.

Nowe the rightnesse that cometh of God, is declared without the fulfyllinge of the lawe, haunge by the faith of the lawe, and of the Prophetes. The rightnesse no doubte whiche is good before God, cometh by the faith, of Iesu Christ, vnto all and vpon all that blyue.

There is no difference: for all haue synned, and lacke the gloire of God: but are iustified freely by his grace, throughe the redemption that is in Christ Iesu, to whome God hath made a scale of mercie, thowhe sayth in his blood, to shewe the rightnesse whiche before him is of valour, in that he forgiveth the synnes that are past, whiche God dyd suffer to shewe at this tyme the rightnesse that is allowed of hym, that he myghte be counted iust, and a iustifier of him which blyueth on Iesu. &

Where is then thy reioysynge? It is excluded. By what lawe? by the lawe of works? Naye, but by the lawe of faith.

Therefore we holde that a man is iustified by by faith without the dedes of the lawe. Is he the God of the Jewes onely? Is he not also the God of the Gentyles? Yes of the Gentyles also: for it is God onely, whiche shall iustifie circumcision of faith, and vncircumcision thowhe sayth. Do we then destroye the lawe thowhe sayth? God forbid. But we rather establishe the lawe.

The declareth by the example of Abraham, that faith iustifieth, & not the lawe nor the workes thereof.

C. 1. 1. 1.

I. 1. 1.

What shall we say then that Abraham our father as perteynynge to the flesh, dyd synde? Yf Abraham were iustified by dedes, then hath he whereto reioyce, but not before God. For what sayth the scripture? Abraham belieued God, and it was counted vnto him for righteousness. To him that worketh is the rewarde not reckened of fauour, but of duty. To him that worketh not, but blyueth on him that iustifieth the vngodly, his faith is counted for righteousness. Euen as Dauid describeth the blessednesse of the man, vnto whome God ascribeth righteousness without dedes. Blessed are they, whose vncircumcisednes are forgiven, and whose synnes are couered. Blessed is that man to whome the Loyde imputeth not synne.

Came this blessednes then vpon the circumcised, or vpon the vncircumcised? We saye verily how that faith was reckened to Abraham for righteousness. Now was it reckened? in the tyme of circumcision? or in the tyme before he was circumcised? Not in the tyme of circumcision: but when he was yet vncircumcised. And he receyued the signe of circumcision as a scale of the righteousness whiche is by faith, whiche sayth he had yet before vncircumcised: that he shold be the father of all them that blyue, though they be not circumcised, that righteousness myght be imputed to them also: and that he might be the father of the circumcised, not because they are circumcised onely, but because they walke also in the steppes of y faith that was in our father Abraham, before the tyme of circumcision.

For the promise that he shold be the heyre of the worlde, was not giuen to Abraham, or to his seed thowhe the lawe: but thowhe the righteousness of faith. For yf they whiche are of the lawe, be heres, then is faith but bayne, and the promise of none effecte, because the lawe causeth wrath: for where no lawe is, there is no transgression. Therefore by faith is the inheritance giuen, that it myght come of fauour, and the promise myght be sure to all the seed. Not to them onely whiche are of the lawe, but also to them which are of the faith of Abraham, whiche is the father of vs all. As it is written: I haue made the a father to many nations, euen before God whom thou hast blyued whiche quickeneth the dead, and calleth those thynges whiche be not, as though they were.

Which Abraham contrary to hope, bilieued in hope, that he shold be the father of many nations, according to that which was spoken:

So shall thy seed be. And he saynted not in the faith, nor yet considered his owne body whiche was now dead, euen when he was almost an hundred yere olde: ne yet that Sara was past chylde bearinge. He trusted not at the promise of God thowhe vncircumcised, but was made strong in the faith, and gaue honour to God, full certified, that what he had promised, that he was hable to make good. And therefore was it reckened to him for righteousness.

It is not written for him only, that it was reckened to hym for righteousness, but also for vs, to whom it shall be counted for righteousness, so that we blyue on hym that rayled by Iesus our Loyde from death: whiche was giuen for our synnes, and rose agayne for to iustifie vs.

The power of faith, hope & loue: and how truth rayned frome Adam vnto Christ, by whom onely we haue forgiveness of synnes.

C. 1. 1. 1.

V. 1. 1.

Because therefore we are iustified by faith, we are at peace with God thowhe our Loyde Iesu Christ, by whom we haue a waye in thowhe sayth, vnto his grace, whereto we stande & reioyce in hope of the prayse that shall be giuen of God: whether to we so onely: but also we reioyce in tribulation. Knowynge that tribulation byngeth patience, patience experience, experience bringeth hope. And hope maketh not ashamed, for the loue of God is shed abroad in our hartes by the holy ghoost, whiche is giuen vnto vs.

For when we were yet weperke according to the tyme: Christ dyed for vs whiche were vngodly, yet scarce wyl any man dye for a righteous man. Peraventure for a good man durst a man dye. But God setteth out his loue that he hath to vs, for almoste as whyle we were yet synners, Christ dyed for vs. More moze then now (being iustified in his blood) shall we be saved from wrath thowhe him.

For yf when we were enemies, we were reconcyled to God by the dede of his sonne: moche moze sayng we are reconcyled, we shall be preserued by his lyfe. Not onely so, but we also ioye in God by our Loyde Iesu Christ, by whome we haue receyued the attonement.

Wherfore as by one man synne entred in to the worlde, and dethe by synne. And so dethe twente ouer all men, in so moche that all men synned. For euen vnto y tyme of the lawe was synne in the worlde, but synne was not regarded as long as there was no lawe: neuertheless dethe reigned from Adam to Moses, euen ouer the also that synned not, with like transgression as dyd Adam: whiche is the figure of him that is to come.

But the gyfte is not lyke as the synne. For yf thowhe the syn of one, many be dead: moche more plenteous vpon many was the grace of God and gyfte by grace, whiche grace was giuen by one man Iesu Christ.

And the gyfte is not ouer one synne, as dethe came thowhe one synne of one that synned, for damnacion came of one synne vnto condemnation: but the gyfte came to iustifie frome many synnes.

I. 1. 1.

I. 1. 1.

my synnes. For by the synne of one, we are reprobated by the meane of one: moche more shall they which receiue abundance of grace and of the gyfte of ryghteousnes, reigne in life by the meane of one (that is to saye) Iesus Christe.

Likewise then as by the synne of one, condemnation came on all men: euen so by the iustifying of one cometh the righteousness that bringeth life vpon all men. For as by one mans disobedience many became synners: so by the obedience of one, shall many be made righteous. But the lawe in the meane tyme entered in, that synne should increase. Wherefore where abundance of synne was, there was moche plenteousnes of grace: to the intent that as synne had reigned vnto death, euen so myght grace reigne thowome ryghteousnes vnto eternall lyfe, by the helpe of Iesu Christe.

For as moche as we be deliuered thowome Christe from synne, we muste fashion our selues to lyue as the seruantes of God, and not after our owne lustes. The vniuersall rewarde of ryghteousnes and synne.

CAP. VI.

VI.

What shall we saye then? Shall we continue in synne, that there maye be abundance of grace? God forbid. How shall we that are dead as touchyng synne, lyue any longer therein? Remember ye not that all we which are baptised in the name of Iesu Christe, are baptised to dye with hym? We are buried with hym by baptysme for to dye, that lyke wyse as Christe was raiſed vp from death by the glory of the father, euen so we also shoulde walke in a newe lyfe. For if we be graſte in death lyke vnto hym: euen so must we be in the resurrection. This we muste remember, that oure olde man is crucified with hym also, that the body of synne myght utterly be destroyed, that henceforth we shoulde not be seruantes of synne. For he that is dead, is iustified from synne.

to dye vnto synne is, not to obey the lawe and concupiscences of synne.

Wherefore if we be dead with Christe, we beleue that we shal liue with hym: remembering that Christe, beinge ones raiſed from death, dyeth no more. Death hath no more power ouer hym. For as touchyng that he dyed, he dyed concerning synne, ones. And as touchyng that he lyueth, he lyueth vnto God. Likewise ymagyn ye also, that ye are dead concerning synne, but are alijue vnto God thowome Iesu Christe our Loyde. Let not synne reigne therfore in your mortal bodies, that ye shoulde therevnto obey in the lustes of it. Neither giue ye your members as instruments of vnrigh- teousnes vnto synne, but giue your selues vnto God, as they that are alijue from death. And giue your members as instruments of ryghteousnes vnto God. Let not sinne haue power ouer you: for ye are not vnder the lawe, but vnder grace.

What then? Shall we synne, because we are not vnder the lawe, but vnder grace? God forbid. Remember ye not that to whome so ever ye commit your selues as seruantes to obey, his seruantes ye are to whome ye obey: whether it be of synne vnto death, or of obedience vnto righteousness? God be thanked, that where as ye were the seruantes of synne, ye haue now obeyed with heart vnto the forme of doctrine wherunto ye were deliuered. Ye are then made free from synne, and are become seruantes of ryghteousnes.

I speke after mans fashion, because of the infirmities of your fleshe. For as ye haue giuen your members, seruantes to vniuersalnes and to wickednes, runninge out of one wickednes in to another: euen so now giue your members seruantes vnto righteousness, that ye may be sanctified. For when ye were the seruantes of synne, ye were not vnder ryghteousnes. What fruite hadde ye then, in the thynges wherof ye are now ashamed? For the ende of them is death. But now beinge deliuered from synne, and made the seruantes of God: ye haue your fruite to be sanctified, and the ende euertlastyng lyfe, for the rewarde of synne is death: but eternall lyfe is the gyfte of God, thowome Iesu Christe our Loyde.

Christe hath deliuered vs from the lawe and death. He sheweth what the fleshe and outward man is, and calleth it the lawe of the members.

CAP. VII.

VII.

Remember ye not brethren (I speake to them that knowe the lawe) howe that the lawe hath power ouer a man as long as it endureth? For the woman, which is subiect to an husbande, is bounde by the lawe to the man as long as he lyueth. If the man be dead, she is loosed from the power of the man. So then, if whyle the man lyueth the couple her selfe with an other man, she shall be counted wedlocke breaker. But if the man be dead she is free from the lawe, so that she is no wedlocke breaker, though she couple herselfe with an other man.

Euen so ye my brethren, are freed concerning the lawe by the body of Christe, that ye shoulde be coupled to an other (I meane to him that is ryſen agayne from death) that we shoulde bringe forth fruite vnto God. For when we were in the fleshe, the lustes of synne which were dyed by the lawe, reigned in our members, to bring forth fruite vnto death. But now are we deliuered from the lawe, and freed from that wherunto we were in bondage, that we shoulde serue in netwyes of synne, and not in oldnes of the letter.

What shall we saye then? Is the lawe synne? God forbid, but I knowe not what synne ment, but by the law. For I had not knowne what lust had ment, onlesse the law had said, thou shalt not lust. But synne takinge an occasion by the commaundment wrought in me all manner of concupiscence. For without the law, synne was dead. I lyued without lawe. But when the commaundment came, synne reuiued, and I was dead. And the very same commaundment which was ordeyned vnto lyfe, was founde to be with me an occasion of death. For synne took occasion by the meane of the commaundment, and so deceyued me, & by the same slewe me.

me. Wherefore the lawe is holy, and the commaundment holy, iust, and good.

Was that then which in good made death vnto me? God forbid. Naye, synne was death vnto me, that it myght appeare howe that synne by that which is good, hadde wrought death in me: to the intent that synne through the commaundment, myght be out of measure synfull. For we knowe that the lawe is spiritual, but I am carnal, sold vnder synne, because I wore not what I do. For what I wolde, that do I not: but what I hate, that do I. Yet I do not that which I wolde not, I graunt to the law that it is good. So then now, it is not I that doo it, but synne that dwelleth in me. For I knowe that in me (that is to saye in my fleshe) dwelleth no good thyng. For, to wyll, is present with me: but to performe that which is good, I fynde not. For I do not that good thyng which I wolde, but that euill do I, which I wolde not. So if I do, that I wolde not, then is it not I that do it, but synne that dwelleth in me. I fynde then by the lawe, that when I wolde do good, euill is at hande. For I desyre in the lawe of God, concernyng the inward man. But I see an other lawe in my members, rebellinge agaynst the lawe of my mynde, and subduyng me vnto the law of synne, which is in my members. O wretched man that I am, who shall deliuer me from this body of death? I thanke god thowome Iesu Christe our Loyde. So then the selfe same I in my mynde serue the lawe of God, and in my fleshe the lawe of synne.

The lawe of the sperte geueth lyfe. The sperte of God maketh vs Goddes chyldren and heires with Christe. The abundance loue of God can not be separated.

CAP. VIII.

VIII.

There is then no damnacion to them which are in Christe Iesu, which walke not after the fleshe, but after the sperte. For the lawe of the sperte that bringeth lyfe thowome Iesu Christe, hath enfranchised me from the law of synne and death. For what the lawe coulde not doo, in as moche as it was weake because of the fleshe: that performed god, & sent his sonne in the likenes of synfull fleshe, and by synne damned synne in the fleshe, that the righteousness which is requyred of the law might be fulfilled in vs, which walke not after the fleshe, but after the sperte.

For they that are fleschly, are fleschly mynded. But they that are godly, are godly mynded. For to be carnally mynded, is death. But to be spiritually mynded is lyfe and peace. Because that fleschly mynde is enemie agaynst God, for it is not obedient to the lawe of god neither can be. Now, they that are in the fleshe can not please God.

But ye are not giuen to the fleshe, but to the sperte: so be the sperte of God dwell in you. If there be any man that hath not the sperte of Christe, the same is none of his. If Christe be in you, the bodye is dead because of synne, but the sperte is lyfe for ryghteousnes.

lake. Wherefore if the sperte of hym that raiſed vp Iesu from death, dwell in you: euen he that raiſed vp Christe from death, shal quicken your mortal bodies, because that his sperte dwelleth in you.

Therefore brethren we are nowe detectors, not to the fleshe, to liue after the fleshe. For if ye lyue after the fleshe, ye muste dye. But if ye mortifye the debes of the bodye, by the helpe of the sperte ye shal lyue. For as many as are led by the sperte of God, are the sonnes of God. For ye haue not receyued the sperte of bondage to feare any more, but ye haue receyued the sperte of adoption, whereby we crye Abba father. The same sperte certifieth our sperte, that we are the sonnes of god. If we be sonnes, we are also heires, the heires I meane of God, and heires together with Christe, if so be we suffer together, that we may be glorified together.

For I suppose that the afflictions of this life, are not worthy of the glory which shal be shewed vpon vs. For the seruent desyre of the creature, abydeeth in hope when the sonnes of God shal appere, because the creature is subdued to vanitie not wyllingly: but for his will which subdueth it in hope. For the very creature shal be deliuered from the bondage of corruption in to the glorious libertie of the sonnes of God. For we knowe that euery creature groweth with vs also, and trauaileth in payne, euen vnto this tyme.

Not it onely, but euen we also which haue the fruite frutes of the sperte, mourne in oure selues, waitinge for the adoption, the dyspensation of our bodies. For for we are saued by hope. But hope that is sene is no hope. For how can a man hope for that which he seeth? But if we hope for that we see not, then to we with patience abyde for it.

Likewise the sperte also helpeth oure infirmities: for we knowe not what to desyre as we ought, but the sperte maketh intercession for vs with groanings, which can not be expressed with tonge. And he that searcheth the heires, knoweth what is the meaning of the sperte: for he maketh intercession for the sayntes accordyng to the picture of God.

For we knowe that all thynges worke for vs best vnto them that loue god, which also are called of purpose. For those which he knewe before, he also ordeyned before that they shoulde be a like fashioned vnto the shap of his sonne, that he myght be the fruite begotten sonne amonge many brethren. And whom he appoynted before, them also he called. And which he called, them also he iustified, which he iustified them he also glorified.

What shall we then saye to these thynges? If God be on our syde: who can be agaynst vs? Whiche spared not his owne sonne, but gaue hym for vs all: howe shall he not with hym giue vs all thynges also? Who shall laye any thyng to the charge of Gods chosen? it is god that iustifieth: who then shall condemne? it is Christe which is dead, yea rather which is ryſen agayne, which is also on the ryghte hande.

hande of God, and maketh intercession for vs.

Who shall separat vs from the loue of God? Shall tribulation? Shall angur? Shall persecution? Shall hunger? Shall nakednes? Shall perrell, shall the sword? As it is written: for thy sake are we killed all daye longe, and are counted as sheepe appointed to be slayne. Nevertheless, in all these thynges we overcome strongly thow we his helpe that loued vs. For I am sure, that neyther deeth, neither life, neither angells, nor rule, ne power, neither thinges present, ne thyngs to come, neither height, neither lowth, neither any other creature shall be able to parte vs from the loue of God, whiche is in Christ Iesu our Lorde. R

Paul complayneth vpon the harde hertes of the Jewes that wolde not receyue Christe, and howe the Jewes then are chosen in the scripture.

C A P I. IX.

I Saye the truthe in Christe, and lye not, in that wherof my conscience beareth me witness in the holy ghoost that I haue great heynynes, and continuall sorrowe in my herte. For I haue wylled my selfe to be cursed frome Christ, for my brethren and my kynsmen persecutinge to the death, whiche are the Israelites. To whom perteyneth the adoption, and glory, and the covenantes, and the law that was gauen, and the seruice of God, and the promyses: whose also are the fathers, and of whome (as concerning the flesh) Christe came, whiche is God ouer all, blessed for euer. Amen.

I speke not of these thynges as though the wordes of God had take none effect. For they are not all Israelites whiche come of Israel: neyther are they all chyldren, because they are the seed of Abraham. But in Isaac shall thy seed be called: that is, they which are the chyldren of the flesh, are not the chyldren of God. But the chyldren of promise are counted thy seed. For this is a worde of promise: * as haue this tyme I will come, and Sara shall haue a sonne.

Whether was it so with her onely, but also when Rebecca was in childe by one, I meane by our father Isaac, the chyldren were borne, when they had neither one good ne bad: that the purpose of God, which is by election, might stande: it was sayd vnto her, not by the reason of workes, but by grace of the caller: the elder shall serue the yonger. As it is written: Jacob he loued, but Esau he hated. What shall we saye then? Is there any vnepghousnes to God. No, not so. For he sayth to Moses: I will shewe mercy, to whome I shewe mercy: and I will haue compassion on whome I haue compassion. So lieth it not then in a mans wyl or chusing, but in the mercy of God. For the scripture sayth vnto Pharaon, euen for this same purpose haue I created the, to shewe my power on the, and that my name might be declared thowout all the worlde. So hath he mercy on whom he will, and whom he will, he maketh harde herted.

Thou wilt saye then vnto me: why then blameth he vs yet? For who can resist his wyl? But O man, what arte thou which disputest with God? Shall the worke say to the worke man: why haste thou made me on this fashion? Hath not the potter power ouer the clay, euen of the same lombe to make one vessel vnto honoure, and an other vnto dishonoure? That if God wyllynge to shew his wrath, and to make his power knowne, suffered with longe patience the vessels of wrath ordeyned to damnacion, that he myght declare the riches of his gloire on the vessels of mercy, whiche he had prepared vnto gloire: that is to saye, vs whiche he called, not of the Jewes onely, but also of the gentyls. As he sayth in Osee: I will call them my people whiche were not my people: and her beloued whiche was not beloued. And it shall come to passe in the place where it was sayd vnto the, ye are not my people: that there shall be called the chyldren of the Ispynge God.

But I saye ceryth for Israel, though the nombre of the chyldren of Israel be as the sande of the see, yet shall but a remnaunte be saued. We synneth the worde verely, and maketh it worde in eyghtwysnes. For a worde worde wyl God make on earth. And as I saye sayde before: onles the Lord of Saboth had lefte vs seede, we had bene made as Sodoma and hadde bene lykened to Gomora.

What shall we saye then? We say the gentyls whiche folowed not eyghtwysnes haue ouertaken eyghtwysnes: I meane the eyghtwysnes whiche cometh of fawch. But Israel whiche folowed the lawe of eyghtwysnes, coulde not attayne vnto the lawe of eyghtwysnes. And wherfore? Because they soughte it not by fawch: but as it were by the workes of the lawe. For they haue stumbled at the stumblinge stone. As it is written: Beholde I put in Ston a stumblinge stone, and a roche whiche shall make men fall. And none that beleue on him, shall be ashamed.

The vnepghousnes of the Jewes. Two maner of eyghtwysnes.

C A P I. X.

Bethen, my hertes desyre and prayer to God for Israel, is, that they myght be saued. For I beare the crosse they haue a feruent mynde towards God, but not accordinge to knowledge. For being ignorant of the eyghtwysnes whiche is allowed before God, and goinge aboute to stablish the thowne eyghtwysnes they are not obedient vnto the eyghtwysnes whiche is of value before God. For Christe is the ende of the lawe, to iustifie all that beleue.

Moses describeth the eyghtwysnes whiche cometh of the lawe, that the man whiche doth the thynges of the lawe, shall lyue therr. But the rightwysnes whiche cometh of fawch. But the rightwysnes whiche cometh of fawch, speaketh on this wyse: Say not in thine herte, who shall ascende in to heauen (that is no) thynge els then to sette Christe downe? Or ther who shall descende in to the depe? (that is no) thynge els but to ferche vnto Christe frome deathe. But what sayth the scripture? The worde is myghte the, euen in the mouth and in thynne herte.

This worde is the worde of faith whiche we praye. For if thou wilt knowe leg with thy mouth that Iesus is the Lorde, and shalt beleue with thynne herte, that God rayled him vnto deathe thou shalt be safe. For if thou belest of the herte iustly, and to knowe leg with the mouth, maketh a man safe. For the scripture sayth: Who so euer beleueth on him shall not be ashamed.

There is no difference betwene the Jewes and the Gentyls. For one is Lorde ouer all, whiche is the same vnto all that call on him. For who so euer shall call on the name of the Lorde, shall be safe. But how shall they call on hym, on whome they beleue not? how shall they beleue on hym, of whom they haue not herd? how shall they heare without a preacher? And how shall they praye * except they be sent? As it is written: * Howe beautifull are the feet of them, whiche bringe glad tydings of peace, and bringe glad tydings of good thynges. But they haue not all obeyed the Gospell. For I saye: * Lorde who shall beleue our saynges? So then faith cometh by hearinge, and hearinge, by the worde of God. But I aske: haue they not herd? * No doubt, their sounde wente oute into all landes: and their wordes into the endes of the worlde.

But I demaunde / whether Israel dyd knowe or not? First Moses sayth: * I will prouoke you to enuy, by them that are no people, and by a folys nation I will anger you. I say after that, is bolde, and sayth: * I am founde of them that sought me not, and haue appered to them, that asked not after me. And against Israel he sayth: * All daye longe haue I stretched forth my handes vnto a people that beleueth not, but speaketh against me.

All the Jewes are not cast awaye, therefore Paul warneth the Gentyls that be called, not to be hyph minded nor to despise the Jewes, for the iudgements of God are depe and secrete.

C A P I. XI.

I Saye then: Hath God cast awaye his people? God forbid. For euen I am an Israelite, of the seed of Abraham, & of the tribe of Beniamin. God hath not cast awaye his people whiche he knewe before. Either wote ye not what the scripture sayth by the mouth of Elias, how he maketh intercessiō to God against Israel, sayenge? * Lorde they haue killed thy Prophets, & bygged downe thynne altars: and I am left onely, and they seeke my lyfe. But what sayth the aunswere of God to hym agayne? I haue reserved vnto me seuen thousande men, whiche haue not bowed the knee to Baal. Euen so at this tyme is there a remnaunte left thowout the electiō of grace. If it be of * grace, then is it not of workes. For then were grace no more grace. If it be of workes, then is it no more grace. For then were deseruyng no lenger deseruyng. What then? Israel hath not obtayned & he sought? No but yet the election hath obtayned it. The remnaunt are blynded, accordinge as it is written: * God hath gauen the the spere of blyndnes: eyes that they shoulde not see, and eares that they shoulde not heare, euen vnto this daye. * And Dauid sayth: Let their table be made a snare to take them with all, and an occasion to faule, and a rewarde vnto them. Let their eyes be blynded that they se not: and euen bowe downe their backs.

I saye then: haue they therfore stumbled, that they shoulde but faule onely? God forbid: but thowout their faule is saluation happened vnto the gentyls, to prouoke the wrath. Wherfore of the faule of them, be the riches of the worlde: and the mynyspringe of them the riches of the gentyls: how much more shoulde it be so, if they all beleued. I speake to you Gentyls, in as moche as I am the Apostle of the Gentyls, I will magnifie myne office, that I might prouoke them which are my felowe, and myght saue some of them. For if the castinge awaye of them, be the reconcilinge of the worlde: what shall the recoveringe of them be, but lyfe agayne from deeth? For if the begynnynge be holy, & hole hepe is holy. And if the rote be holy, the braches are holy also.

Though some of the braches be broken of, and thou bringe a wilde olyue tree, arte graffed in amonge them, and made partaker of the roote and farnesse of the olyue tree, bolde not thy selfe against the braches. For if thou dost thy selfe, remember that thou bearest not the roote, but the roote the. Thou wilt saye then: the braches are broken of, that I might be graffed in. Thou sayest well: because of vnbelefe they are broken of, & thou standest stedfast in faith. Be not of an haile mynde, but feare the God spared not the naturall braches, least haply he also spare not the.

Beholde the kyndnesse and ergoousnes of God: on them whiche sell, ergoousnes: but towards the, kyndnes: if thou continue in his kyndnesse. Or elles thou shalt be broken of, and they if they abyde not still in vnbelefe, shall be graffed in agayne. For God is of power to graffe them in agayne. For if thou wast cut out of a naturall wilde olyue tree, & wast graffed contrary to nature in a true olyue tree: how moche more shall the naturall braches be graffed in their owne olyue tree agayne.

I wolde not that this mysterie shoulde be hyd frome you my brethren, lest ye shoulde be wylle in your owne conceytes, for as moche as blyndnes is partly happened in Israel, epi the fulnes of the Gentyls be come in: and so all Israel shall be saued. As it is written: * There shall come out of Syon be that with beluer, and shall turne awaye the vngodlynesse of Jacob. And this is my promise vnto them, when I shall take awaye their synnes. As concerning the Gospell they are enemies for your sakes: but as touching the election they are loued for the fathers sakes.

Gal. ii.

For the gyftes & callinge of God are fuche that it can not repent him of them: for as ye in tyme past haue not beleued God, yet haue now obtained mercy throughte their vnbellefe: euen so now haue they not beleued the mercy whiche is happened vnto you, that they also maye obtayne mercy. God hath wrapped all nacjons in vnbellefe, that he might haue mercy on all.

O the depthes of the riches and wylsome, and knowledge of God: howe vnsearchable are his iudgements, and his wayes vntraceable? For who hath knowen the mynde of the Lord? Or who was his counsellour? either who hath giuen vnto him strength, that he might be recompensed agayne? For of him, and throught him, and for him are all thynges. To him be glory for euer Amen.

The sweete conuersation, loue, and workes of fuche as beleue in Christ.

CAP. I. XII.

I* Beseeche you therefore brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye make your bodies a quicke sacrifice, holy acceptable to God: your reasonable sacrifice, and do not fashion your selues vnto this worlde: but be ye transformed, by the renoung of your wythes, & ye maye see what is the good, the acceptable and perfect will of God. For I saie (throught the grace giuen vnto me) to euery man amonge you, that no man esteeme of him selfe more then becommeth him to esteeme, but that he directly iudge of him selfe, accordyng as God hath parted to euery man the measure of faith.

As we haue many members in one body, & all members haue not one office: so we beinge many, are one body in Christ, and euery man amonge our selues, one an others members. & Sprynge that we haue dyuers gyftes accordyng to the grace that is giuen vs: yf anye man haue the gyft of prophesie, let him haue it that it be agerunge vnto the faith. Let him that hath an office, waite on his office. Let him that teacheth, take hede to his doctrine. Let him that exhorteth, giue attendaunce to his exhortation. Yf any man gyue, let him do it with singleness. Let him that ruleth, do it with diligence. Yf any man be mercie, let him do it with cheyfullnesse. Let loue be vnfeigned. Hate that is euill, and cleaue vnto that is good. Be kynde one to an other with brotherly loue. In geiourge & honour, prouoke one an other. Let not that busynesse which ye haue in hande be tedious to you. Be seruente in the sperte. Applye your selues to the tyme. Reioyce in hope. Be patient in tribulation. Continue in prayer. Distribute vnto the necessite of the holy, and be ready to harbour. Blesse them whiche persecute you: blesse but curse not. Be mercie with them that are mercie. Wepe with them that wepe. Be of lyke affection one to an other. Be not hygh mynded but make your selues egall, to the hym of the lowlye Christ. & Be not wyse in your owne opinions. Accompenie to no man euill for:

until. Shoude afozehande thynges honeste in the sight of all men. Yf it be possible, howe be it, of your parte haue pear with all men. Seruyl beloued auenge not your selues, but gyue place to wyathe. For it is written: * Vengeance is myne, I will acquyte, saythe the Lord.

Therefore if thine enemye hunger, fede him: yf he thirst, giue him drinke. For in so doinge thou shalt heape * coles of fyre on his head. Be not overcome of euill: but overcome euill with good. &

The obedience of men vnto theyr rulers. Rome fullyfith the lawe. It is nowe tyme to folowe the workes of darkness.

CAP. I. XIII.

Let euery soule submit him selfe vnto the auctoritie of the hyer powers. For there is no power but of God. The powers that be, are ordeyned of God. Who so euer therfore resisteth power, resisteth the ordeynance of God. And they that resist, shall receiue to the selfe damnation. For rulers are not to be feared for good workes, but for euill. Wilt thou be without feare of the power? Do well then: and so shalt thou be payed of the same. For he is the minister of God, for thy welthe. But yf thou do euill, then feare: for he beareth not a sword for nought, but is the minister of God, to take vengeance on them that do euill. Wherefore ye must needs obey not for feare of vengeance onely: but also because of conscience. And euen for this cause paye ye tribute. For they are Gods ministers, seruinge for the same purpose.

Owe to euery man therefore his dutie: tribute to whome tribute belongeth: custome to whome custome is due: feare to whome feare belongeth: honoure to whome honoure pertaineth.

Owe nothyng to any man: but to loue one an other. For he that loueth an other, fulfilleth the lawe. For these commaundmentes * Thou shalt not commit aduoutry: * Thou shalt not kyll: * Thou shalt not steale: * Thou shalt not beare false wytnes: * Thou shalt not desire: & so forth (yf there be any other commaundmentes) they are all comprehended in this sayenge: * Loue thyne neighbour as thy selfe. Loue beareth not his neighbour. Therefore is loue the fulfillinge of the lawe. &

* This also we knowe, I meane the season, how that it is tyme, that we shuld nowe awake out of slepe. For now is our saluacion nearer then when we beleued. The nyght is passed / and the daye is come nigh. Let vs therefore cast awaye the dedes of darkness, & let vs put on, the armour of lyght. Let vs walke honestly as it were in the daye lyght: not in carnyng and dyntynge: neyther in chandour and wantonnes, neyther in strife and enuyng: but put ye on the Lord Iesus Christ. & And make not prouysyon for the flesh, to fulfill the lustes of it.

The

The weake oughte not to be despised. No man shuld offende anothers conscience. Agayne, for outwarde thynges shuld no man condemne an other.

CAP. I. XIII.

Im that is weake in the faith, receiue vnto you, not in disputinge and troublinge his conscience. One beleueth & he maye eate all thyng. An other whiche is weake, eateth heares. Let not him that eateth, despise him that eateth not. And let not him which eateth not, iudge him that eateth. For God hath receyued him. What art thou that iudgest an other mans seruant? Whether he stande or faile, that pertaineth vnto his master: yea, he shall stande. For God is hable to make him stande.

This man putteth difference betwene daye and daye. An other man counteth all dayes a lyke. Se that no man waite in his owne meanynge. Be that obserueth one daye more then an other, with it for the Lordes pleasure. And he that obserueth not one daye more then another, with it to please the Lord also. He that eateth, doeth it to please the Lord, for he giveth God thanks. And he that eateth not, eateth not, to please the Lord withall, and giveth God thanks. For none of vs lyueth his owne seruante: neyther with any of vs dyeth his owne seruante. Yf we lyue, we lyue to be at the Lordes will. And yf we dye, we dye at the Lordes will. Whether we lyue therefore or dye, we are the Lordes. For Christ therfore dyed and rose agayne, and reueryed that he myghte be Lord, bothe of dead and quicke.

But why dost thou then iuge thy brother? Other why dost thou despise thy brother? We shalbe all brought before the iudgement seate of Christ. For it is written: * As truly as I lyue, saythe the Lord, all knees shall bowe to me, and all tongues shall giue knowledge to God. So shall euery one of vs giue accomptes of him selfe / to God. Let vs not therefore iudge one an other any more.

But iudge this rather, that no man put a stumblinge blocke or an occasion, to fall in his brothers waye. For I knowe and am full certeyned in the Lord Iesu, that there is no thyng comen of it selfe: but vnto him that iudgeth it to be comen: so him it is comen. Yf thy brother be grieved with thy meat, now walke thou not charitably. Destroye not him with thy meat, for whome Christ dyed. Cause not pour & treasure to be euill spoken of. For the kyngdome of God is not meate & drynke: but rightwysnesse, peax, and loye in the holy gho. For who so euer in these thynges serueth Christ, pleased well God, and is commended of men.

Let vs folowe: the thynges which make for peax, and thynges wherewith one maye edifye an other. Destroye not the worke of God for a lytle meates sake. All thynges are pure: but it is euill for that man, whiche eateth with hurte of his conscience. It is good neyther to eate fleshe, neyther to drynke wyne, neyther any thyng, wherby thy brother stumbleth, either falleth, or is made weake. Haste thou faith? haue it with thy self before God. Yf yf is he that condemneth not him self in that thyng whiche he alloweth. For he that maketh conscience, is damned yf he eate: because he doth it not of faith. Now, what so euer is not of faith, is synne.

The infirmite and feaplines of the weake oughte to be borne with all loue and kyndnes, after the example of Christ.

CAP. I. XV.

Whiche are stronge, ought to beare & feapline of them whiche are weake, and not to stonde in our owne conceytes. Let euery man please his neyghboure vnto his welch and edifyng. Christ pleased not him selfe: but as it is written. * The rebukes of them which rebuked the, sel on me. * What so euer thynges are written afoze tyme, are written for our lerninge, that we throught patience and comfote of the scripture, mighte haue hope.

The God of patience and consolatiō, giue vnto euery one of you, that ye be lyke mynded one towarde an other after the exemple of Christ Iesu: that ye all agerunge together, make with one mouth prayse God the father of our Lord Iesu. Wherefore receiue ye one an other as Christ receiued vs, to the prayse of God. But this I say that Iesus Christ was a minister of the circumcision for the trouthe of God, to conferme the promyses made vnto the fathers. And let the gentyles prayse God for his mercy, as it is writ: * For this cause I will prayse the amonge the Gentyles, and synge in thy name. And agayne he sayth: reioyce ye gentyles with his people. And agayne: Prayse the Lord all ye gentyles, and laude him all nacjons. And in an other place Esaye sayth: * There shall be the rote of Jesse, and he that shall rylse to raygne ouer the gentyles: in him shall the gentyles truste. The God of hope fill you with all loye and peax in belouinge: that ye maye be ryche in hope, throught the power of the holy gho. &

I my selfe am full certeyned of you my brethren, that ye your selues are full of goodnes and fylled with al knowledge, and are hable to exhorte one an other. Nevertheless, brethren, I haue somewhat boldly written vnto you, as one that putteth you in remembrance, throught the grace that is giuen me of God: that I shuld be the minister of Iesu Christ amonge the gentyles, and shuld minister the glad tydings of God, that the gentyles myght be an acceptable offeringe, sanctified by the holy gho. I haue therefore wherof I maye reioyce in Christ Iesu, in the thynges which pertaine to god. For I dare not speake of any of the thynges which Christ hath not wrought by me, to make the gentyles obedie with word and dede, in mighty signes & wonders, by the power of the sperte of God: so frome Jerusalem and the coles round aboute vnto Illyricum, I haue fylled all countreies with the glad tydings of Christ.

E So haue I enforced my self to preache the Gospel, not where Christ was named, least I shoulde haue buyt on an other mans foundation: but as it is written: * To whom he was not spoken of, they shall see: and they shall beleeue. For this cause I haue bene oft let, to come vnto you: but now for as moche as I haue no more to do in these countreies, and also haue bene desirous many yeares to come vnto you, when I shal take my iourney into Spayne, I wil come to you. I trust to see you in my iourney, and to be brought on my way thitherward by you, after that I haue somewhat reposed in you.

F Nowe goo I vnto Jerusalem, and minister vnto the sayntes. For it hath pleased theyn of Macedonia and Achaia to make a certayne distribution vpon the poore & sayntes whiche are at Jerusalem. It hath pleased them brecly, and their betters are they. For of the gentyles be made partetakers of their spirituall thinges, their ducty is to minister vnto them in carnall thinges. When I haue performed this, and haue brought them this scure sealed, I wil come backe agayn by you into Spayne. And I am sure whe I come, that I shal come with abundance of the blessinge of the Gospel of Christ. I beseeche you brethren for our Lord Iesu Christs sake, and for the loue of the sperte, that ye helpe me in my busynesse w your prayers to God for me, that I maye be deliuered from them whiche beleue not, in Ierusalem, and that this my scrupce, whiche I haue to Jerusalem, maye be accepted of the sayntes, that I maye come vnto you with ioye, by the will of God, and maye with you be refreshed. The God of peace be with you: Amen.

C Chapter of salutations. He warneth them to beware of mens doctrine, and commendeth vnto the certayne godly men, that were louers and brethren in the trouthe.

C A P I. XVI.

I commend vnto you Phoebe our sister (whiche is a minister of the congregation of Achaia) that ye receiue her in the house, as it becometh sayntes, and that ye assiste her in what so euer busynesse, we needeth of pouer ayde. For she hath suckered many, and myne owne selfe. Greete Prisca and Aquila my helpees in Christ Iesu, which haue for my lyfe layde downe their owne neckes. Vnto which not I onely giue thanks, but also the congregation of the Gentyles. Likewise grete the congregation that is in their house. Salute my welbeloued Epeneus, which is the first frute amonge theyn of Achaia. Greete Mary which beloued moche labour on vs. Salute Andronicus & Junia my cosyns, whiche were prynces with me also, whiche are well taken amonge the Apostles, and were in Christ before me. Greete Amplias my beloued in the house. Salute Urban our helper in Christ, and Stachis my beloued. Salute Appelles approved in Christ. Salute them whiche are of Aristobolus household. Salute Derodion my kynsmen. Greete them of the household of Narcissus, which are in the house. Salute Tryphena and Tryphosa, which women dyd labour in the house. Salute the beloued Persis, whiche laboured moche in the house. Salute Rufus chosen in the house, & his mother & myne. Greete Ananias, Philegon, Nerman, Jacobus, Hermen, and the brethren which are with them. Salute Philologus and Julia, Nereus and his sister, & Olympa, and all the sayntes whiche are with them. Salute one another with an holy kisse. The congregacions of Christ salute you.

I beseeche you brethren, marke them which cause diuision, and geue occasions of euill, contrary to the doctrine which ye haue leered, and auoyde theyn. For they that are such, serue not the Lord Iesu Christ: but their owne bellies, and with sweete preachings & flatteringe wordes, deceiue the betters of the innocences. For your obedience extendeth all me. I am glad iudely of you. But yet I wold haue you wyse vnto that which is good, and to be innocent as concernyng euill. The God of peace treade Satan vnder your feete wherely. The grace of our Lord Iesu Christ, be with you.

Timotheus my worke felowe, and Lucius and Jason, and Sopater my kynsmen, salute you, I Tertius salute you, which wrote this Epistle in the house. Gaius myne hoste, and the hoste of all the congregacions, saluteth you. Erastus the chamberlaine of the cytie saluteth you. And Quartus a brother saluteth you. The grace of our Lord Iesu Christ, be with you all: Amen.

To him that is of power to establish the you accordyng to my Gospel and preachyng of Iesu Christ in beteryng of the mystry whiche was kept secret sythens the world began, but now is opened by the scripture & prophesie at the commaundement of the eternall synge God, to shewe vnto obedience to the faith published among all nacyns: To the same God, which alone is wyse, be praysie thowowe Iesu Christ, for euer. uered to god

The first Epistle of S. Paul the Apostle, to the Corinthians.

C He commendeth the Corinthians, exhorteth them to be of one mynde, and rebuketh the deuision that was amonge them, woldyng wysdome is folowynge before God, yea there is no wysdome but in the despyled crosse of God.

C A P I. I.

Rule by vocacion an Apostle of Iesu Christ thowowe the will of God, and brother Sothenes.

Vnto the congregacion of God which is at Corinth. To them that are sanctified in Christ Iesu, sayntes by callinge, with all that call on the name of our Lord Iesu Christ in euery place both of theirs and of ours.

Grace be with you, and peace frome God our father, and frome the Lord Iesu Christ.

I thanke my God alwayes on your behalfe, for the grace of God giuen you by Iesu Christ, that in all thinges ye are made ryche by him, in all lernynge and in all knowlege, euen as the testimony of Iesu Christ was confirmed in you, so that ye are behynde in no gyfte, and wayte for the apparenyng of our Lord Iesu Christ which shal strengthen you vnto the ende, that ye maye be blamelesse in the daye of our Lord Iesu Christ. For God is faithfull, by whome ye are called vnto the felowshipp of his sonne Iesu Christ our Lord.

I beseeche you brethren, in the name of our Lord Iesu Christ, that ye al speake one thing, and that there be no dissencion amonges you: but be of one mynde together in one mynde and in one meynyng: It is shewed me (my brethren) of you, by them that are of the house of Elios that there is stryfe amonge you. I meane this that communie amonge you, one saythe: I holde of Paul: another I holde of Apollos: the thirde I holde of Cephas: the fourth I holde of Christ. Is Christ crucified? Was Paul crucified for you? Whether were ye baptised in the name of Paul? I thanke God that I baptised none of you, but Crispus and Gaius, least any shoulde saye that I had baptised in myne owne name. I baptised also the house of Stephanas. Furthermoze know I not, whe ther I baptised any man or no.

For Christ sente me not to baptise, but to preache the gospel, not with wysdome of wordes, least the crosse of Christ shoulde haue bene made of none effect. For the preachyng of the crosse, is to them that perishe, folowynge: but vnto vs whiche are saued it is the power of God. For it is written: * I will destroye the wysdome of the wyse, and will cast awaye the vnderstandyng of the prudente. Where is the wyse? Where is the scribe? Where is the searcher of this worlde? Harsh not God made the wysdome of this worlde, folowynge?

For when the worlde, thowowe wysdome knewe not God, in the wysdome of God: it pleased God thowowe folowynge of preachyng to saue them that beleue. For the Jewes require a signe, & the Grekes like after wysdome. But we preache Christ crucified, vnto the Jewes an occasion of fallynge, & vnto the Grekes folowynge: but vnto them which are called both of the Jewes and Grekes, we preache Christ, the power of God, and the wysdome of God. For the folowynge of God, is wyse then men: and the weakenes of God is stronger then men. Withen loke on your calling, how that not many wyse men after the flesh, not many myghty, not many of hygh degree, are called: But God hath chosen the folowynge chynge of the worlde, to confounde the wyse. And God hath chosen the weak thinges of the worlde, to confounde thinges which are myghty. And byle thinges of the worlde, and chynge whiche are despyled, hath God chosen, yea and thinges of no reputation, so; to bringe to nought thinges of reputation, that no fleshe shoulde reioyce in his presence.

And vnto him pertayne ye, in Christ Iesu, which of God is made vnto vs wysdome, and also ryghtwynnes, and sanctifyng and redemptioun. That accordyng as it is written: * he which reioyseth, shoulde reioyce in the house.

C It is not eloquence and glorious painted wordes of wordly wysdome, that can edelpe and conuerste soules vnto Christ: but the playne wordes of the scripture for they make mencyn of him and his crosse.

C A P I. II.

And I brethren when I came to you, came not in gloriousnes of wordes, or of wysdome, betwynge vnto you the testimony of God. Neyther swered I my selfe, that I knewe any thinge amonge you saue Iesu Christ, euen the same that was crucified. And I was amonge you in weakenes, and in feare, and in moche tremblynge. And my wordes, and my preachyng, was not in entynge wordes of mans wysdome: but in shewing of the sperte and of power that your faith shoulde not stande in the wysdome of me but in the power of God.

That we speake of, is wysdome amonge them that are perfect: not the wysdome of this worlde, neyther of rulers of this worlde (whiche go to nought) but we speake the wysdome of God, which is in mystrye and lycith hyd, whiche God ordeyned before the worlde vnto our glory: which wysdome none of the rulers of this worlde knewe. For hadde they knowne it, they woulde not haue crucified the Lord of glory. But as it is written: * The eye hath not sene, and the eare hath not herd neyther haue entered into the hert of man, the thinges which God hath prepared for them that loue him.

But God hath opened the vnto vs, by his sperte. For the sperte searcheth all thinges, yea the botome of Gods secrets. For what man knoweth the thinges of a man: saue the sperte of a man which is within him. Euen so the

THE I. EPISTLE

the thinges of God knoweth no man, but the spete of God. Now, we haue not receyued spete of the woyle: but the spete which cometh of God, for to knowe the thinges that are gauen to vs of God, whiche thinges also we speake, not in the connyng woyle of mas wisdom, but with the connyng woyle of the holy ghost, makynge spirituall comparisons of spirituall thinges. For the naturall man perceyueyth not the thinges of the spete of God. For they are but folysmes to him.
Nepther can he perceyue theym, because they are spirituallly discerned. But he that is spirituall, discusseth all thinges: yet he him selfe is iudged of no man. For who knoweth the mynde of the Loyde, eyther who shal informe hym? But we vnderstand the mynde of Loyde.

Paul rebuketh the sectes and authoys thereof.
Layste the foundation of his church. No man oughte to reioyce in men, but in God.

CAP. I. III.

And I coulde not speake vnto you by thyng, as vnto spirituall: but as vnto carnall, euen as it were vnto babes in Christ. I gaue you myke to drinke, and not meate. For ye then were not stronge, no neyther yet are. For ye are yet carnalle. For as longe as there is amonge you, enuyng, strife and diffencion: are ye not carnall, and walke after the maner of men? As long as one saith I holde of Paul: and another, I am of Apollo, are ye not carnall? What is Paul? What thinge is Apollos? Onely mynisters are they, by whom ye beleued, euen as the Loyde gaue euery man grace. I haue planted, Apollos watered: but God gaue the encrease. So then, nepther is he that planteth any thinge, neyther he that watereth, but God that gaue the encrease. He that planteth / and he that wa-tereth, are nepther better then other. Euerye man yet shal receyue his rewarde, according to his laboure. We are Gods labourers / ye are Gods husbandry, ye are Gods buylding.
Accordinge to the grace of God, gauen vnto me, as a woyle buylder haue I layde the foundation. And an other buylder thereon. But let euery man take hede how he buyldeth vpon.
For other foundation can no man laye, then that which is layde, which is Iesus Christ.
If any man buylde on this foundation, gold, siluer, precious stones: tymbre, haye or stobie: euery mans woyle shal appeare. For the day shall declare it, and it shal be shewed in fyre.
And the fyre shall reue euerye mannes woyle what it is. If any mans woyle that he hath buyld vpon abyde, he shal receyue a rewarde.
If any mans woyle burne, he shal suffer losse, but he shal be safe him selfe: neuerthelesse yet as it were thorow fyre.

Are ye not ware that ye are the temple of God, and that the spete of God dwelleth in you? If any man despoile the temple of God him selfe shall God destroye. For the temple of God is holie, whiche temple ye are. Let no man deceyue him selfe. If any man seme woyle amonges you, let him be a sole in this woyle, that he maye be woyle. For the wisdom of this woyle is folysmes with God. For it is written: * he compasseth the wyse in their craftynesse. And agayne: * God knoweth the thoughtes of the wyse that they be vayne.

Therefore let no man reioyce in men. For all thinges are yours, whether it be Paul, eyther Apollos, eyther Cephas: Whether it be the woyle, eyther lyfe, eyther deathe, whether they be present thinges or thinges to come: al are yours: and ye are Christs, and Christ is Gods.

The preachers are but ministers. Iudgement belongeth only vnto God.

CAP. I. III.

Let men in this woyle esteeme vs, not as the ministers of Christ, and disposers of the secretes of God. Furthermore it is requyred of the disposers that they be founde faithfull. With me is it but a very smal thing that I shuld be iudged of you, eyther of (mas dare) No I iudge not myne owne selfe. I knowe nought by my selfe: yet am I not thereby usshied. It is the Loyde that iudgeth me. Therefore iudge nothinge before the tyme, till the Loyde come, which will lighten thinges that are hid in darkenesse, and open the counsels of the hartes. And then shall euery man haue praple of god.

These thinges (brethren) I haue described in myne owne person and Apollos, for poure sakes, that ye myght lerne by vs, that no mathinke of him selfe beyonde that which is about written: that one swelle not agaynst an other, for any mas cause. For who preferreth the? What haste thou, that thou hast not re-ceyued? If thou haue receyued, why reioycest thou, as though thou haddest not receyued it? Now ye are full: now ye are made ryche: ye ragne as kynges without vs: and I wold to god ye byd enigne, that we mighte ragne with you.

We thinke that god hath set forth vs; whiche are Apollos, for the lowel of all, as it were men appointed to deathe. For we are a gaspnge stoeke vnto the woyle, and to the Aungels, and to men. We are soles for Christes sake, and ye are woyle thorow Christ. We are weake, and ye are stronge. Ye are honorable, & we are despised. Euen vnto this daye we hunger and thirst, and are naked, and are boasted with fylles, & haue no certayn dwellynge place, and labour, workynge with our owne handes. We are reueiled, and yet we blessed. We are persecuted, and suffer it. We are euill spoken of, and we praye. We are made as it were the fylthynes of the woyle, the ofscowynge of al thinges, euen vnto this tyme.

I wyte not these thynges to shame you: but as my beloued sonnes I warne you. For though ye haue ten thousand instructors in Christ: yet haue ye not many fathers. In Christ Iesu, I haue begotten you thorow the gospell. Wherefore I desire you to folow me.

TO THE CORTHYANS. LXVII.

For this cause haue I sent vnto you Timothe whiche is my dere sonne and faithfull in the Loyde, who shal put you in remembraunce of my wayes whiche I haue in Christ, euen as I teache euery where in al congregacions. Some swel as though I woulde come no more at you.
But I wyll come to you shortly, if God wyll:
and wyll knowe, not the woyle of them whiche swel, but the power: for the kyngdome of God is not in woyle, but in power. What wyl ye? Shal I come vnto you with a rod, or els in loue, and in the spete of meeknesse?

After what maner? Paul curseth the man, that had committed fornicacion with his mother in lawe.

CAP. I. V.

There goeth a comen saying that there is fornicacion amonge you, and such for-nicacion, as is not ones named amonge the Gentiles: that one shold haue his fathers wyfe. And ye swel, and haue not rather sorrowed, that he which haue done this dede might be put forth of your company. For I verily as absent in body, euen so present in spete, haue determined alrede (as though I were present) of him that hath done this dede, in the name of our Loyde Iesu Christ, when ye are gathered together, and my spete, with the power of the Loyde Iesus Christ, to deliuer hym vnto Sathan, for the destruction of the fleshe, that the spete maye be saued in the daye of the Loyde Iesu.

Your reioysynge is not good: knowe ye not that a spete leuen, soweth the vole soupe of dowe. * Pourge ye therefore the olde leuen that ye maye be newe dowe, as ye are swete breed. For Christ our Easterlambe is offered up for vs. Therefore let vs kepe holy daye, not in olde leuen, neither with the leuen of malice and wyckednes: but with the swete breed of puresnes and trouthe.

I wrote vnto you in an Epistle, & ye shold not accompany w fornicatours. And I ment not at all of the fornicatours of this woyle, either of the courtous, or of extorsioners, either of the ydolaters: for then muste ye nedes haue gone out of the woyle. But now I write vnto you that ye company not together, if any is called a brother, be a fornicatour, or courtous, or a woyle of images, eyther a rapier, ey-ther a dronkerd, or an extorsioner: with him that is suche, se ye eat not. For what haue I to do, to iudge them which are without? Do ye not iudge them that are within? Them that are without, God shal iudge. Put a way from you that euill person.

He rebuketh them for goynge to lawe together before the he pthen, and reppoueth vnderstande.

CAP. I. VI.

How dare one of you, haurnge busynes with an other go to lawe vnder the iurhed, and not rather vnder the sayntes?
Do ye not knowe that the sayntes shal iudge the woyle? If the woyle shal be iudged by you: are ye vntowthe to iudge small thynges:

knowe ye not that we shal iudge the aungels?
How moche more may we iudge thinges that petteyne to the lyfe? If ye haue iudgements of woylely matres, take them which are despised in the congregacion, & make them iudges.
This I saye to your shame. Is there no woyle man amonge you? What, not one at all, that can iudge betwene brother & brother, but one brother goeth to lawe with an other: and that vnder the vnderstanders?

Now therefore there is bitterly a faute amonge you, because ye go to lawe one with an other. Why rather suffer ye not wronge? Why rather suffer ye not poure selues to be robbed nape, ye poure selues do wronge, and rob: and that the bycthen. Do ye not remembre that the vnyrguous shal not inheryte the kyngdome of God? Be not disceyued. For neither fornicatours, neither woyle of images neither woylemongers, neither tenderlynges neither abusers of them selues with the malekynde, neither theues, neither courtous, neyther dronkerdes, neither cursed speakers, neither pylers, shal inheryte the kyngdome of God. And such were ye verily: but ye are was-shed: ye are sanctified: ye are iustified by the name of the Loyde Iesu, and by the spete of our God.

All thynges are lawfull vnto me: but all thinges are not proficiable. I may do all thin-ges, but I wyl be brought vnder no mans power. Meates are ordeined for the bely, and the bely for meates: but God shal destroye both it & the. Let not the body be applied vnto for-nicacion, but vnto the Loyde, and the Loyde vnto the body. God hath raysted by the Loyde, and shall rayse vs up by his power. * Either remembre ye not, that your bodies are the mem-bres of Christ? Shall I now take the membris of Christ? and make the membris of an harlot? God forbid. Do ye not vnderstande, that he which coupleth him selfe with an harlot, is become one body? For two (saythe he) shall be one fleshe. But he that is ioyned vnto the Loyde, is one spete.

Ye fornicacion. Al synnes that a man doth, are without the bodye. But he that is a fornicatour, synneth agaynst his owne bodye. Ether knowe ye not that your bodies are the te-ple of the holy ghost, whiche is in you, whom ye haue of God, and howe ye are not poure owne? For ye are deely boughte. Therefore glorifie ye God in your bodies, and in your spites, for they are Gods.

Of marriage, virginitie and wyddowhede.

CAP. I. VII.

A concerning the thinges wherof ye wrote vnto me: it is good for a ma not to touche a woman. Neuerthelesse to auoyde fornicacion, lette euery man haue his wyfe, and let euery woman haue her husband.
Lette the man geue vnto the wyfe due bentuolence. As the wyfe also the wyfe vnto the man. The wyfe hath not power ouer her owne bodye

body: but the husbande. And lyke wyse the husbande hath not power ouer his owne bodye, but the wyfe. Withdrowe not your selues one from an other, onlesse it be with consent for a tyme, to geue your selues to fasting and prayer. And afterwards come agayne to the same thyng, lest Sathan tempte you for your incontinencie.

B This I saye of sauoure, and not of commaundement. For I wolde that all men were as I my selfe am: but euery man hath his proper gyfte of God, one after this maner, an other after that. I saye vnto the vnmarrid me and wydowes: it is good for them if they abyde euen as I do. But if they can not abyde, let them marry. For it is better to marry then to burne.

G Vnto the married commaunde not I, but the Lord: that the wyfe separte not her selfe fro the man. If she separte her selfe, let her remayne vnmarrid, or be reconciled vnto her husbande agayne. And let not the husbande put away his wyfe from him.

A As the remnant speke I, a not the Lord. If any brother haue a wyfe that beleueeth not, if she be content to dwell with him, let him not put her away. And the woman which hath to her husbande an infidell, if he be content to dwell with her, let her not put him away. For the vnbelyuynge husbande is sanctified by the wyfe, and the vnbelyuynge wyfe is sanctified by the husbande. Or elles were your children vncient, but now are they pure. But if the vnbelyuynge departe, let him departe. A brother or a sister is not in subiection to such. God hath called vs in pear. For how knowest thou (o woman) whether thou shalt saue that man or no? Either how knowest thou (o man) whether thou shalt saue that woman or no? but euen as God hath distributed to euery man.

D As the Lord hath called euery person, so let him walke: and so ordeyn I in all congregacions. If any man be called being circumcised let him adde nothyng thereto. If any be called vncircumcised, let him not be circumcised. Circumcision is nothyng: vncircumcision is nothyng, but the keepinge of the commaundementes of God is all together.

G Let euery man abyde in the same state wherin he was called. Are thou called a seruant? care not for it. Neuerthelesse if thou mayst be free, vse it rather. For he that is called in the Lord beinge a seruant, is the Lordes freeman. Lyke wyse he that is called beinge free, is Christes seruant. Ye are derely bought, be not mens seruantes. Brethren, let euery man wherin he is called, therein abyde to God? As concerninge virgyns, I haue no commaundement of the Lord, yet geue I counsell, as one that hath obserued mercie of the Lord, to be faithful. I suppose that it is good for the present necessite. For it is good for a ma to be. Let thou bounde vnto a wyfe? seke not to be losed. Are thou losed from a wyfe? seke not a wyfe. But if thou take a wyfe, thou synnest not. Lyke wyse if a virgyn marrie, she synneth not. Neuerthelesse, such shall haue trouble in ther: firste, but I sauoure you.

This I saye I brethren, the tyme is shorte. It remaineth that they which haue wyues, be as though they had none: and they that wyfe be as though they were not: and they that reioyce, be as though they reioysed not: and they that wepe, be as though they possessed not: and they that vse this worlde, be as though they vied it not. For the fashion of this worlde goeth awaye. I wolde haue you without care. The single man careth for the thynges of the Lord, howe he may please the Lord. But he that hath married, careth for the thynges of the worlde, howe he may please his wyfe. There is difference betwene a virgyn and a wyfe. The single woman careth for the thynges of the Lord, that she may be pure bothe in body, and also in spyrte. But she that is married, careth for thynges of the worlde, howe she may please her husbande. This speke I for your pite, not to entagle you in a snare but for that which is honest and comly vnto you, and that ye maye quietly cleue vnto the Lord without separtion.

S If any man thynke it vncowly for his virgyn, if she passe the tyme of marriage, and if so nede requyre, let him do what he lyfeth, he synneth not: let them be coupled in marriage. Neuerthelesse he that purporeth surely in his herte, to haue none nede: but hath power ouer his owne wyll: and hath so dected in his herte, that he wyll kepe his virgyn, doth wel. So then he that iopneth his virgyn in marriage, dothe well. But he that iopneth not his virgyn in marriage, doth better. The wyfe is bounde to the lawe, as longe as her husband lyueth. If her husband slepe, she is at libertie to marrie with whome she wyll, onely in the Lord, but she is happier if she so abyde in my iudgement. And I thynke deely that I haue the spyrte of God.

C He rebuketh them that vse theyr libertie to the schaunder of othere, and sheweth how men ought to behaue them towarde suche as be weak.

C API. VIII.

To speake of thynges dedicate vnto gods, we are sure that we al haue knowledge. Knowledge maketh a man well, but loue edifieth. If any man thynke that he knoweth any thyng, he knoweth nothyng yet as he ought to know. But if any man loue god, the same is knowen of him.

S To speke of meat dedicate vnto gods, we are sure there is none ydol in the worlde, and that there is none other God but one. And though there be that are called goddes, whether in heuen, or in earth (as there be gods des manre, and Lordes manre) yet vnto vs is there but one God, which is the father, of whom are all thynges, a we in him: and one Lord Iesus Christe, by whom are all thynges, and we by him. But euery man hath not knowledge, for some suppose that there is an ydole till this houre, and eate as a thyng offered vnto the ydole, and so theyr consciences beynge beynge yet weake, are defyled. Eate meketh vs not acceptable to God. Neither if we eate are we the better, neyther if we eate not are we the worse.

But take heed that your libertie cause not the weake to fall. For if some man se the, which hath knowledge yet at meat in the ydols temple, shall not the conscience of him which is weake, be boldened to eate those thynges which are offered to the ydole? And so thow thy knowledge, shall the weake brother perishe for whom Christe dyed. When ye synne so agaynst the brethren, and wounde theyr wyse consciences, ye synne agaynst Christe. Wherefore if meat hurte my brother, I wyll eate no fleshe while the worlde standeth, because I wyll not hurte my brother.

C Nowe forbeareth the thynges that the maye do by the lawe. He exhorteth them to rume forth in court that they haue begun.

C API. IX.

A Am I not an Apostle? am I not free? haue I not sene Iesus Christe our lord? Are ye not my worke in the Lord? If I be not an Apostle vnto othere, yet am I vnto you. For the scale of myne apostleshippe are ye in the Lord. Myne answer to them that alke me, is this. Haue we not power to eate and to drynke? Either haue we not power to lide aboute a lytill to wyse, as well as other apostles, and as the brethren of the Lord? Cephas? Either onely I and Barnabas haue not power this to do? Who goeth a warfare any tyme at his owne cosse? Who planteth a vineyard, and eateth not of the frute? Who sedeth a flocke, and eateth not of the wyll?

Saye I these thynges after the maner of men? Or saye the not the lawe the same also? For it is written in the lawe of Moyses. Thow wast not mofell the mouthe of the ore that treadeth out the corne. Doth God take thought for oxen? Either saye he it not all together for our sakes? For our sakes vndoubtedly this is written that he which eareth shoulde eate in hope: and that he which thoweth in hope shoulde be partaker of this hope. If we some vnto you spiritual thynges: is it a great thing if we reape your carnall thynges? If othere be partakers of this power ouer you, wherfore are not we rather?

Neuere thelesse we haue not vied this power, but suffre all thynges, lest we shold hynder the Gospel of Christe. Do ye not vnderstande, that they which minister in the temple haue theyr syndynge of the temple? And they which wayt at the autler, are partakers with the autler. Euen so also did the Lord ordeyn, that they which preache the gospel, shoulde lyue of the gospel. But I haue vied none of these thynges.

Neyther wrote I these thynges that it shoulde be so done vnto me, for it were better for me to dye, then that any man shoulde take this reioysing from me. In that I preache the gospel, I haue nothyng to reioyse of. For necessitie is put vnto me. Who is it vnto me if I preache not the gospel. If I do it with a good wyll, I haue reward. But if I do it agaynst my wyll, an offence is committed vnto me. What is my reward then? Clerly that when I preache the gospel, I make the gospel of Christe free, that I impute not myne auarice in the gospel.

For though I be free from all men, yet haue I made my selfe seruante vnto all men, that I myght wyne the moo. Vnto the Jewes, I became as a Jewe, to wyne the Jewes. To them that were vnder the lawe, was I made as though I had ben vnder the lawe, to wyne them that were vnder the lawe. To them that were without lawe, became I as though I hadde bene without lawe (when I was not without lawe, as pertaininge to God, but vnder a lawe as concerninge Christe) to wyne them that were without lawe. To the weake became I as weake, to wyne the weake. In all thynges I fastoned my selfe to all men, to saue at the least some. And this I doo for the gospels sake, that I myght haue my paste therof.

Perceyue ye not that they which runne in a course, runne all, yet but one receyuethe the reward. So runne, that ye maye obtayne. Euery man that poverly maisteres, abbasneth some all thynges. And they do it to obtayne a corruptible crowne: but we to obtayne an vncorruptible crowne. I therfore runne, not as at an vncertaine thyng. So fyghte I, not as one that beateth the ayre: but I tame my body, and bynne it in to subiection, lest after that I haue preached to othere, I my selfe shoulde be a cast awaye.

He seareth them with the examples of the olde testament, and exhorteth them to a goodly conuersion.

C API. X.

Brethren I wolde not ye shoulde be ignorant of this, howe oure fathers were all vnder a cloude, and all passed thowgh the see, and were all baptised vnder Moyses, in the cloude and in the see: and byd all eate of one spirituall incare, and byd all drynke of one maner of spirituall drynke. And they dranke of that spirituall rocke that folowed them, which rocke was Christe. But in many of them had God no delpte. For they were ouerthrowen in the wyldernes.

These are examples to vs, that we shoulde not luste after euill thynges, as they lusted. Neyther be ye worshippers of ymagines as were some of them accordinge as it is written: The people sate downe to eate and drynke, and rose up agayn to playe. Neyther let vs committe fornicacion, as some of them committed fornicacion, and were destroyed in one day. xxiij. shoulde. Neyther let vs tempte Christe, as some of them tempted, and were destroyed of serpentes. Neyther inure ye as some of them inured and were destroyed of the destroyer.

All these things happened unto them for examples, and were written / to put us in remembrance, on whō the endes of the world are come. Wherefore let him that thinketh he standeth, take heed lest he fall. There hath none other temptation taken you, but such as followeth the nature of mā. But god is faithful, which shall not suffer you to be tempted above your strength: but shall in the mpddes of the temptation make a waye to escape out. ¶ Wherefore my deare beloved flee from worshippinge of ydoles.

I speake as unto them which haue discretion, iudge ye what I saye. Is not the Cup of blessing which we blesse, partakinge of the bloude of Christ? Is not the Bread which we breake, partakinge of the body of Christ? because that we (though we be many) yet are one bled and one body, in asmoche as we all are partetakers of one bled. Behold Israel which walketh carnally. Are not they which eate of the sacrifice, partetakers of the altar?

¶ What saye I then? that the ymage is any thinge? or that it which is offered to ymages is any thinge? I saye but I saye, that these things which the Gentylis offer, they offer to devils, and not to God.

¶ And I wolde not that ye shulde haue fellowship with the devils. Ye can not drinke of the Cuppe of the Lord, and of the Cuppe of druelles. Ye can not be partetakers of the Lordes table, and of the table of dyuelles.

¶ Either shall we prouoke the Lord? Or are we stronger then he? All thynges are lawfull unto me, but all thynges are not expedient.

¶ All thynges are lawfull to me, but all thynges edifye not. Lette no man seeke his owne profite: but let euery man seeke an others welthe.

¶ What so euer is solde in the market, that eate, and aske no questions for conscience sake. For the earthe is the Lordes, & all that therein is. If any of them which beleue not, byd you to a feast, & ye be disposed to go, what so euer is sette before you: eate, askeinge no question for conscience sake. But if any man saye vnto you: this is dedicate vnto ydoles, eate not of it for his sake that sheweth it, and for hurtynge of conscience. The earthe is the Lordes, and all that therein is. Conscience I saye, not thynge: but the conscience of that other. For why shulde my lyberte be iudged of an other mannes conscience. For if I take my parte with thanks: why am I cypill spoken of for that thyng wherfore I geue thanks.

¶ Whether therfore ye eate or drinke, or what so euer ye doo, do all to the prayse of God.

¶ Se ye geue none occasion of cypill, neyther to the Jewes, nor yet to the Gentylis, neyther to the congregation of God: euen as I please all men in all thynges, not sekynge myne owne profite, but the profite of many, that they might be saued.

C A P I. XI.

Be ye followers of me, as I am the follower of Christ. I praye you brethren that ye remember me in all thynges, and kepe the ordinaunces euen as I deliuered them to you. I wolde ye knewe that Christ is the head of euery man: And the man is the womans head. And God is Christs head. Euery man prayenge or prophesyinge hauing any thyng on his head, nameth his head. Euery woman that prayeth or propheseth bare headed, dishonoureth her head. For it is all one, and the same thyng, as though she were shauen. If the woman be not couered, let her also be shorn. If it be shame for a woman to be shorn or shauen, let her couer her head.

A man ought not to couer his head, forasmuche as he is the ymage and glory of God. The woman is the glory of the man. For the man is not of the woman, but the woman of the man. Neyther was the man created for the womans sake: but the woman for the mans sake. For this cause ought the woman to haue power on her head, for the angels sakes. Neuerthelesse neyther is the man, withoute the woman, neyther the woman withoute the man in the Lord. For as the woman is of the man, euen so is the man by the woman: but all is of God.

¶ Judge in your selues, whether it be comly that a woman praye vnto God bare headed. Doeth not nature teache you, that it is a shame for a man, if he haue longe heere: and a prayse to a woman, if she haue longe heere? For her heere is gauen her to couer her with. If there be any man amonges you, that listeth to argue, let him knowe that we haue no suche custome, neyther the congregations of God.

¶ This I warne you of, & comende not that ye come together: not after a better maner, but after a worse. First of all whē ye come together in the congregation, I heare there is dissencion amonges you: & I partly beleue it. For there muste be sedes amonge you, & they which are perfect amonge you, might be known. When ye come together, a man can not eate the Lordes supper. For euery man begynneth afoze to eate his own supper. And one is hongry, & an other is dronken. Haue ye not houses to eate & to drinke in? Or els despyse ye the congregation of God, & shame them? haue not? What shall I saye vnto you? Shall I praye you? In this, praye I you not.

¶ That which I deliuered vnto you I receyued of the Lord. For the Lord Jesus the same nyght in which he was betrayed, toke bread: and thanked & brake, and sayde. Take ye, and eate ye: this is my body which is broken for you. This doo ye in remembrance of me. After the same maner he toke the cup, when supper was done, saying: This cup is the newe testamēt in my bloude: This do as oft as ye drinke it, in the remembrance of me.

¶ For as often as ye shall eate this bread, and drinke this cup, ye shall shew the Lordes deeth, tyll he come. Wherefore who so euer shall eate of this bread, or drinke of the cup withoute help, shall be guilty of the body and bloude of the Lord. Let a man therfore examen him selfe, and so let him eate of the bread, and drinke of the cup. For he that eateth or drinketh withoute help, eateth and drinketh his owne damnacion, because he maketh no difference of the Lordes body. For this cause, many are weak and lyke amonges you, & many sleepe. For if we had iudged our selues, we shoulde not haue bene iudged. But when we are iudged of the Lord, we are chastened, because we shoulde not be damned with the worlde. Wherefore my brethren, when ye come toggyther to eate, tarpe one an other. If any man hunger, let him eate at home, that ye come not together vnto condemnation. Other thynges will I set in order when I come.

The discreite of the gyftes of the holy ghoſt, gyuen to the confort and edyfyng of one another, as the members of a mans body eue one an other.

C A P I. XII.

In spirituall thynges (brethren) I wolde not haue you ignorant. Ye know that I were Gentylis, and went your wayes vnto wynde ydoles, euen as ye were ledde. Wherefore I declare vnto you, that no man speakinge in the spirite of God, despych Iesus. Also no man can saye that Iesus is the Lord: but the holy ghoſt. There are dyuersities of gyftes, & yet but one spete. And there are differences of admyrstrations, and yet but one Lord. And there are dyuers maners of operations, and yet but one God, which worketh all thynges that are wrought, in all creatures. The gyftes of the spete are gyuen to euery man, to profite the congregation. To one is gyuen the word of the spete, the utteraunce of wylsome. To an other is gyue the utteraunce of knowledge, by the same spete. To an other faith, by the same spete. To an other the gyftes of healinge, by the same spete. To an other power to do myracles. To an other prophete. To an other iudgement of spetes. To an other dyuces tongues. To an other the interpretation of tongues. And these all worketh the selfe same spete, deuynge to euery man severall gyftes, euen as he will.

¶ For as the body is one, and hath many members, and all the members of one body though they be many, yet are but one body: so is Christ. For in one spete are we all baptysed to make one body, whether we be Jewes or gentylis, whether we be boude or free, and haue all drinke of one spete. For the body is not one member, but many. If the foote saye: I am not the hand, therefore I am not of the body: is he therfore not of the body? And if the ear saye, I am not the eye: therfore I am not of the body: is he therfore not of the body? If all the body were an eye, where were then the eare? If all were hearinge: where were the smelling? But now hath God disposed the members euery one of them in the body, at his owne pleasure. If they were all one member: where were the body? Now are there many members, yet but one body. And the eye can not say vnto the hande, I haue no neede of the: nor the heed also to the feete, I haue no neede of you. Yea rather those members of the body, which seeme to be most feble, are most necessary. And vpon those members of the body, which we repute least honest, put we most honeste. And our vngoodly partes, haue most beautye. For our honest members neede it not. But God hath so disposed the body, and hath gauen mooste honour to that parte which lacked, least there shulde be any dyspe in the body: but that the members shulde indifferently care one for an other. And if one member suffer, all suffer with him: if one member be hadde in honour, all members be glad also.

Ye are the body of Christ, and members one of an other. And God hath also ordeyned in the congregation, firste the Apostles, secondly Prophets, thirdly Teachers, then them that do myracles: after that, the gyftes of healinge, helpers, gouernours, discreite of tongues.

Are all Apostles? Are all Prophets? Are all Teachers? Are all doers of myracles? Haue all gyftes of healinge? Do all speake with tongues? Do all interpret? Couet the best gyftes. And yet shew I vnto you a moze excellent waye.

The nature and condycons of charite of loue.

C A P I. XIII.

I though I spake with the tongues of men and angels, and yet had no charite, I were euen a soundinge brasse: or as a tinkynge Tymball. And though I coulde prophete, and vnderstande all secretes & all knowledge: yea, if I had all faith, so I coulde moue mountaynes out of their places, and yet had no loue, I were nothinge. And though I bestowed all my goodes to fede the poore, and though I gaue my body euen that I burned, and yet had no loue, it profiteth me nothinge.

Loue suffereth longe, is courteous. Loue enueryeth not. Loue both not browardely, swellyth not, beareth not dishonour, seeketh not her owne, is not prouoked to anger, thinketh not euilly, reioysyth not in wyckednesse: but reioysyth in the trouthe, sufereth all thynges, beleueth all thynges, hopeth all thynges, endureth in all thynges. Though that prophesynges faile, other tongues shall cease, or knowledge vanyshe awaye, yet loue sallety neuer awaye.

For our knowledge is vnperfecte and oure prophesyng is vnperfecte. But when that which is perfect, is come, then that which is vnperfect, shall be destroyed. When I was a chyld, I spake as a chyld. I vnderstode as a chyld, I thought as a chyld.

12.15. But

But as soon as I was a man, I put away this diffidence. Now we see in a glass, even in a darke speaking: but then shall we see face to face. Now I knowe imperfectly: but then shall I knowe, euen as I am knowne. Now abydeth faith, hope, and loue, euen these three: but the chiefe of these is loue. &

C Paule sheweth that the gifte of prophesye, interpreting or preaching, excelleth the gyfte of tongues and howe they bothe ought to be vied.

CAP. XIII.

A About for loue and couet spirituall graces: and chiefly for to prophesye. For he that speaketh with tongues, speaketh not vnto men, but vnto God. For no man heareth him. How be it in the spierte he speaketh in secretes. But he that propheseth, speaketh vnto men, to edificatione, to exhortation, & to comfort. He that speaketh with tongues, profiteth him selfe: he that propheseth, edifieth the congregacion. I wolde ye all spake with tongues: but rather that ye prophesied. For greater is he that propheseth, then he that speaketh with tongues, unless he expounde it also: that the congregacion maye haue edificatione. Now brethren, if I come vnto you speaking with tongues: What shall I profite you, except I speake to you, ether by reuelacion, or knowledge, or prophesyinge, or doctrine.

Whoeouer whē thinges without lyfe: geue sounde: whether it be a pype or an harpe: or les they make a distinctiō in the sounde: how shall it be knownen what is pyped or harped?
And also yf the trompe geue an vnerrayne hope, who shall prepare hym selfe to batell?
Euen so lykewyse when ye speake with tongues, excepte ye speake wordes, that haue signyfication, howe shall it be vnderstande what is spoken? For ye shall but speake in the ayre.

E Many kyndes of voyces are in the world, and none of them are without signification. Yf I knowe not what the voyce meaneth, I shall be vnto him that speaketh, an alien, and he that speaketh shall be an alien vnto me. Euen so ye (for almoche as ye couet spirituall graces) seeke that ye may haue plentie vnto the edificatione of the congregation.

Wherefore let him that speaketh with tongues, praye that he maye interprete also. Yi I praye with tongues, my spirite prayeth: but my mynde is without frute. What is it then?
I will praye with the spirite, and will praye with the mynde also. I will singe with the spirite, and will singe with the mynde also.

For els when thou blest with the spete, how shal he that occupieth the rowme of the vulnered, sape Amen, at thy gruyunge of thankes, se the he vnderstandeth not what thou sayst. Thou verely greeueth thankes well, but the other is not edified. I thanke my God, I sprake with tongues, moze then ye all. Yet had I leuer in the congregaciō, to sprake true wozds with my mynde to the informacion of other, rather then ten thousand wozds with the tongue.

W;erþ;en, be not chylþ;en in wytþe, but in malice, be chylþ;en, and in wytþe be perfect. In the lawe it is wytten, * with other tongues, and with other leppes, wyl I ſpeake vnto this people, and yet not ſo, wyl they not heare me, ſapeth the Lorde. Wherefore, tongues are for a ſygne, not to them that beleue: but to them that beleue not. Contrarywyſe, prophelyng ſerueþ not for them that beleue not: but for them which beleue.

¶ If therfore when all the congregation is come together, and all speake with tongues, there come in they that are vnlearned, or they which beleue not: will they not saye that ye are out of your wittes? But yf all prophesy, and there come in one that beleueth not, or one vnlearned, he is rebuked of al men, and is iudged of euery man: and so are the secrettes of his hert opench, and so falleth he downe on his face, and worshippeth God, and sayeth þat God is with you in tyme.

Howe is it then brethren? When ye come together, euerie man hath his song, hath his warine, hath his tongue, hath his reuelaciō, hath his interpretation. Let all things be done vnto edifyinge. If any man speake with tongues, let it be two attonce, or at the most thre attonce, and that by coule, and let an o- ther interpret it. But if there be no interpreter, let him kepe silence in the congregation, and let him speake to him selfe and to God.

Let the prophetes speake two attonce, or thre attonce, and let the other iudge. Yf any reuelacion be made to an other that directh by let the first kepe spience. For ye maie all prophesye one by one, that all maie lerne, and all maie haue comforte. For the spirit of prophetes, are in the power of the prophetes.
For God is not cauſer of streſſe: but of peace, as he is in all other congregacions of ſanctes.

Let your tongues kepe silence in the congregations. For it is not permitted vnto them to speake: but let them be vnder obedience, as sayeth the lorde. If they woulde learne any thing, let them aske their husbands at home. For it is a shame for women to speake in the congregation. Spryng the worde of God from you? Either came it vnto you onely? If any man thynke hym selfe a prophet, either spiritual: let him vnderstand, what things I wille vnto you. For they are the commandementes of the Lorde. But if any man be ignorant, let him be ignorant. Wherefore (brethren) couet to prophesye, and forbeyd not to speake with tongues. Let all thynges be done honestly and in order.

■ The resurrection of the dead:

CAPL. XV.

Bethen as touchinge the gospel whiche I preached vnto you, whiche ye haue also accepted, and in which ye continue, by which also ye are saued: I to you to vnderstand, after what manner I preached vnto you, if ye kepe it, onles ye haue belued in bayne.

For first of all I deliuered vnto you s^t which I receiued, how that Christ dyed for our syn-nes, agreeing to the scriptures: & that he was buried, & that he arose agayne the thyrde day accordinge to the scriptures, and that he was sene of Cephas, then of the xij. After that he was sene of mo then v. C. & thren attonce, of whiche many remayne vnto this day, and many are fallen a slepe. After that appeared he to James, then to all the apostles.

Last of al he was sene of me, as of one that was boyme out of due tyme. For I am the les of all the apostles, whiche am not worthy to be called an apostle, bicause I persecuted the con gregation of god. But by the grace of god I am that I am. And his grace whiche is in me, was not in vaine: I but I laboured moze abū dantly then they all / yet not I, but the grace of god which is with me. Whether it were I or they, so we preache, and so haue ye blyued.

tion. † If Chryſt be preached that he roſe from the dead: how ſay ſome that are amonges you, that there is no reſurrection of the dead? If there be no reſpyngne agayne of the dead, then is C Chryſt not riſen. If Chryſt be not riſen, then is our preachinge bayne, and your faith is alſo in bayne. Yea, and we are founde falſe wiſneſſes of God. For we haue teſtified of God, how that he raiſed vp Chryſt, whom he raiſed not vp, if it be ſo that the dead riſe not agayne. For if the dead riſe not agayne, then is Chryſt not riſen agayne. If it be ſo that Chryſt roſe not, then is your faith in bayne, and yet are ye in your ſynnies. And thereto they which are fallen a ſleepe in Chryſt, are perſhedy. If in this iſte onely we blyſſe on Chryſt, then are we of all men the moſt miſerable.

But now is Christ risen from the dead, and is become the first frutes of them that slepe.
For by a man came deathe, and by a man came the resurrection of the dead. For as by Adam all dye: euen so by Christ, shall all be made aliue, & every man in his owne order. & The first is Christ, then they that are Christs, at his coming. Then commeth the ende, when he hath deliuered by the kingdome to God the father, when he hath put downe all rule, authoritie and power. For he must reigne tyl he haue put all his enemies vnder his fete.

The last enemy that shal be destroyed, is death.
* For he hath put all thynges vnder his feet.
But when he sayth, all thynges are put vnder him, it is manifest that he is excepted, whiche did put all thynges vnder him. When al thynges are subdued vnto him, then shall the sonne also him self be subiect vnto him that put thynges vnder him, that God may be in al thynges.
Either els what do they whiche are baptised ouer the deede, yf the deede ryle not at all? Why are they then baptised ouer the deede? Ye, and why stande we in scoperde euery houre? Wy our ecclipsynge, whiche I haue in Christ Iesu our Loyde, I dye dayly. That I haue fought with beestes at Ephesus, after the maner of men, what auantaungeth it me, yf the deede ryle not agayne? Let vs eate and drynke, to morrow we shal dye. Be not deceyued: euyl speakynges corrupte good maners. Awake trulye out of slepe, & syn not. For some haue not the knowlege of god. I speke this to your rebuke.

But some men will saye: howe arysē the seed? with what bodyes come they in? Thou saiest, that which thou sowest is not quickened excepte it dye. And what sowest thou? Thou sowest not that bodie that shall be: but bare corne. I meane either of wheate, or of some other) and God giveth it a bodie at his pleasure, to every seed a severall bodie.

† All fleshe is not one maner of fleshe, but there is one maner fleshe of men, an other maner fleshe of beestes, an other maner fleshe of fyshes, and an other of byrdes. There are heuuenly bodyes, and ther are erthly bodyes. But the gloze of the heuenly is one, and the gloze of the erthly is an other. There is one in another gloze of the sonne, and an other gloze of the moone, and an other gloze of the sterres. For one sterre differeth from an other in gloze. So is the resurrection of the deed. It is sowen in corrupcion, and ryseth in incorrupcion. It is sowen in dishonour, and ryseth in honour. It is sowen in weykenes, and ryseth in power. It is sowen a naturall bodye, and ryseth a spirituall bodye. There is a naturall bodye, and there is a spirituall bodye, as it is wyrtten: the first man Adam was made a tygung soule, and the last Adam was made a quickenyng spirite. Nowe be it, that is not spyt which is spiritual: but that whiche is naturall, and then that whiche is spirituall. † The fyrrst man is of the erth, erthly: the seconde man is of herte frome heuen. As is the erthly, suchy are they that are heuenly. And as we haue bozneyd the ymage of the erthly, so shall we beate the ymage of the heuenly.

This sape I bierken, that fleshe & bloude can not inherite the kyngdome of God. Neyther dothe corruption inherite incorruption.
Beholde, I shewe you a mystery. We shall not all sleepe, but we shall all be chaunged, & that in a moment, and in the twynckling of an eye, at the sound of the last trompe. For the tromp shall blowe, and the deed shall eue incorruptible, and we shall be chaunged. For this cor-ruptible must put on incorruptibilitie: and this mortal must put on immortallitie.

What this corruptible hath put on incorrupti-bilitie, and this mortal, hath put on immor-talite: then shal be brought to passe the saying that is writte: death is consumed in to victorie.
Death where is thy stinge? Well where is thy victorie? The stinge of death is synne: and the strength of synne is the lawe. But thanks be vnto God which the hath giuen vs victorie throw our Lord Iesu Christ. Therefore (my bretheren) be ye stedfast & immouable, alwayes eche in the workes of the Lord: for almoste as ye knowe howe that your labour is not in vayne in the Lord.

He putteth them in remembrance of the gatheringe for the poore Christen at Ierusalem, and concludeth his Epistle with the salutations of certayne louynge brethren.

CAPL. XVI.

Of the

Of the gatheringe for the sayntes as I haue ordeyned in the congregacions of Galacia, euen so do ye. Upon some son-doye let euery one of you put asyde at home a laye by what so euer he thynketh mete, that there be no gatheringes when I come. When I am come, who so euer ye shal allow by your letters, them wyl I sende to bypunge your libe-ralite vnto Ierusalem. And yf it be mete that I go, they shal go with me. I wyl come vnto you after I haue gone ouer Macedonia. For I wyl go thowto our Macedonia. With you perauenture I wyl abyde, or also kepe my winter, that ye may bypunge me on my waye wher-ether so euer I go.

I wyl not se you nowe in my passage: but I trust to abyde a while with you, if God shal suffice me. I wyl tary at Ephesus tyll winter-tide. For a great doze and frutefull is openyd vnto me: and there are many aduersaries. Yf Timothe come, se he be without feare with you. For he worketh the works of the Lord as I do. Let no man despise him, but conuey him forth in pear, that he may come vnto me. For I loke for him with the brethren.

To speake of brother Apollo, I greatly desired him to come vnto you with the brethren, but his mynde was not all to come at this tyme, howe be it he wyl come when he shal haue conuenient tyme. Wathe ye, stand fast in the fard, quite you lyke men, and be stronge.

Let all your busynes be done in charite. Brethren, ye know the house of Stephana, howe they are the first frutes of Achala, and that they haue appoynted them selues to minis-ter vnto the sayntes: I beseeche you that ye be obedient vnto such, and to al that help and labour. I am glad of the companyng of Ste-phana, Fortunatus, and Achaicus: for that whiche was lackinge on your behalfe, they haue supplied. They haue comforted my spiry-tyte and yours. Like therfore that ye knowe them that are suche.

The congregacions of Asia salute you. Aquila, and Priscilla salute you moche in the Lord, and so doth the congregacion that is in theyr house. All the brethren grete you. Grette ye one an other with an holpe kyffe. The salutation of me Paul with myne owne hande. Yf any man loue not the Lord Iesus Chyrist, pthe same be Anathema maratatha. The grace of the Lord Iesu Chyrist be with you all. My loue be with you all in Chyriste Iesu. A M E N.

The ende of the fyrst Epistle to the Corinthians.

Wrote frome Philippos, by Ste-phana, and Fortunatus, and Achaicus, and Ti-motheus.

The seconde Epistle of S. Paul the Apostle, to the Co-rinthians.

The consolation of God in trouble. The loue of Paul towards the Corinthians, and his excuse that he came not vnto them.

C A P I.

I.

Paul Apostle of Iesu Chyrist by the wyl of God, and brother Timotheus. Unto the congregacion of God, whiche is at Corinth with all the sayntes whiche are in all Achala. Grace with you, and pear frome God our father, and frome the Lord Iesu Chyrist.

Blessed be God the father of our Lord Iesu Chyrist, the father of mercy, and the God of all comforte, whiche comforteth vs in all our tribulation, in so moche that we are hable to comforte them whiche are troubled, in what so euer trouble it be, with the same comforte wherwith we oure selues are comforted of God. For as the afflictions of Chyrist are plenteous in vs, euen so is oure consolacion plenteous by Chyrist.

Whether we be troubled for your consolacion, and saluacion, whiche saluacion cometh by his power, in that ye suffer the same afflic-tions, whiche we also suffer: or whether we be comforted for your consolacion and saluacion: yet our hope is stedfast for you, in asmoche as we knowe that as ye haue your parte in afflictions, so shal ye be partakers of consola-tion.

Brethren, I wolde not haue you ignorant of our trouble, which happened vnto vs in Asia. For we were greued out of measure, pass-ing strength, so greatly, that we dyspayred eu-er of lyfe. Yea, we receyued an answer of death in oure selues, and that because we wolde not put our trust in our selues, but in God, which rascally the deed to lyfe agayne, and which de-liuered vs from so great a death, and both des-uer. On whome we trust, that yet hereafter he wyl deliuer, by the helpe of your prayer for vs, that by the meanes of many occasions, shalke may be gyuen of many on our behalfe, for the grace gyuen vnto vs.

Our reioyng is this, the testimony of our conscience, that in synclenes and godly pur-sues, and not in fleschly wysdome, but by the grace of God, we haue had our conuersacion in the world, and moost of all towards you. We wyte none other thynges vnto you, then that ye rede, and also knowe. Yea and I trust ye shal fynde vs vnto thende, euen as ye haue found vs in parte: for we are your reioyng, euen as ye are oures, in the daye of the Lord Iesus.

And in this confidence was I mynded the other tyme to haue come vnto you, yf ye myght haue hadde yet one pleasure more, and to haue passed by you in to Macedonia, and to haue come agayne oute of Macedonia vnto you, and to haue ben led forth to Iury warde of you. When I thus wyle was mynded: byd I besyghtnes? Or thynke I carnally those thynges wherby I thynke? that with me sholde be yf ye, and naye naye. God is saythful, for our prechynge to you, was not ye and naye. For Gods sonne Iesus Chyrist whiche was preached amonge you by vs (that is to saye, by me and Syluanus and Timotheus) was not ye and naye: but in him it was ye. For all the promyses of God, in him are ye, & are in hym, Amen, vnto the laude of God thowto vs. For it is God whiche stablyshed vs and you in Chyrist, and hath anoynted vs, whiche hath also sealed vs, and hath gyuen the earnest of the spyrte in our hartes. I call God for a recorde vnto my soule, that for to saue you withall I came not any moze vnto Corinth. Not that we be lordes ouer your saythe: but helpers of your ioye. For by sayth ye stande.

He sheweth the cause of his absence and exhorteeth them to forgyue the man that was taken, and to re-ceyue him agayne with loue.

C A P I.

II.

But I determined this in my selfe, that I wolde not come agayne to you in he-urynes. For yf I make you ioye, who is it that sholde make me gladd, but the same whiche is made ioye by me? And I wrote this same epistle vnto you, lest yf I came, I wolde take heurynesse of them, of whome I oughte to reioyce. Certainly this confidence haue I in you all, that my ioye is the ioye of you all. For in greute affliction and angurthe of herte I wrote vnto you with many teares: not to make you ioye, but that ye myght per-ceyue the loue whiche I haue moost specially vnto you.

If any man hath caused sorow, the same hath not made me sorow, but in parte: lest I sholde geue you all. It is sufficient vnto the same man, that he was rebuked of many. So that nowe contraye wyle, ye oughte to for-giue him, and comforte him, lest that same per-son sholde be swallowed by with ouer moche heurynes. Wherefore I exhorte you that loue maye haue strengthe ouer him. For this cause verily byd I wyte, that I myght knowe the proue of you, whether ye sholde be obedient in al thynges. To whom ye forgyue any thing I forgyue also. For also yf I forgaue any thyng, to whom I forgaue it, for your sakes forgaue I it, in the syght of Chyrist, lest Satan sholde preuent vs. For his thoughtes are not vnknewen vnto vs.

When I was come to Troada for Chyristes gospels sake (and a greute dooze was opened vnto me of the Lord) I hadde no rest in my spyrte, because I founde not Titus my bro-ther: but toke my leaue of them, and went a-waye in to Macedonia. Thanks be vnto God, whiche alwayes gyueth vs the victorie in Chyrist, and openeth the sauer of his know-lege by vs in euery place. For we are vnto god the swete sauour of Chyrist, bothe among them that are saued, and also amonge them whiche perishe. To the one parte are we the sauour of berthe vnto berthe. And vnto the other parte are we the sauour of lyfe vnto lyfe. And who is mete vnto these thynges? For we are not as many are, whiche chop and chaunge with the word of God, but euen oute of purenes and by the power of God, and in the syght of God, so speake we in Chyrist.

He prayeth the prechynge of the Gospel aboue the prechynge of the lawe.

C A P I.

III.

We begyn to prayse oure selues agayne, Rede we as some other Epistles of re-commendacion vnto you? or letters of recommendacion from you? Ye are our Epistle wyrtten in our hartes, whiche is vnderstande, and red of all men, in that ye are knownen that ye are the Epistle of Chyrist, ministered by vs & wyrtten, not with ynke, but with the spyrte of the lypunge God, not in tables of stone, but in fleschly tables of the herte.

Suche trust haue we thowto Chyrist to Godwarde, not that we are sufficient of oure selues to thynke any thyng as it were of oure selues, but oure hablenes cometh of God, whiche hath made vs hable to minis-ter the newe testament, not of the letter, but of the spyrte. For the letter killeth, but the spyrte gyueth lyfe.

Yf the ministracion of deathe thowto the letters figured in stones was gloriouse, so that the chyldren of Israel coude not be-holde the face of Moyses for the gloire of his countenance (whiche gloire neuerthelesse is done awaye) why shal not the ministraci-on of the spyrte be moche moze glorious? For yf the mynisteryng of condemnation be glory-ous: moche moze dothe the mynistacion of ryghtousnes excede in gloire. For no doubte that whiche was there glorified, is not at all glorified in respecte of this excedynge gloire. Then yf that whiche is destroyed was glory-ous, moche moze shal that whiche remaineth be glorious.

Serenge then we haue suche truste, we vse greute boldenes, and doo not as Moyses, whiche put a vayne ouer his face, that the chyldren of Israel shoulde not se for what purpose that scrud whiche is put awaye. But theyr myndes were blynded. For vntill this daye remaineth the same couerynge vntaken awaye in the olde testament, when they rede it, whiche in Chyriste is put awaye. But euen vnto this daye when Moyses is redde, the vayne hangeth before theyr hartes. Neuerthelesse when they shal retorne to the Lord, the vayne shal be taken awaye. The Lord no doubte is a spyrte. And where the spyrte of the Lord is, there is libertie. But we all beholde the gloire of the Lord, with his face open, and are chaunged vnto the same similitude, frome gloire to gloire euen of the spyrte of the Lord.

Therefore

The same is accused of the Lordes to murye. Or as some wylle he same be exco-municate and accused to death.

Exod. 34.

A true preacher is diligent, he corrupteth not the word of God, he preacheth not him selfe, but seeketh the honour of Christe: yet thought he with the perill of his life.

CAP. III.

Therfore (saye we) haue such an office, euen as in crepe is come on vs, we saye not, but haue caste frome vs the clothes of babonrye, and walke not in craftynes, neyther corrupt we the word of God, but in open frouth, reappoynte our selues to every mans conscience in the sight of God. If our gospel be yet hid, it is hid amonge them that are lost, in whom the God of this world hath blinded the myndes of them which blyue not, lest the light of the glorious gospel of Christ which is the image of God, should shyne vnto them.

For we preach not our selues, but Christ Jesus to be the Lord, and our selues pour seruantes for Jesus sake. For it is God that commaunded the light to shyne out of darknes, whiche hath shyned in our hertes, for to glorie the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ.

But we haue this treasure in earthen vessels, that the excellent power of it myght appere to be of God, and not of vs. We are troubled on euery syde, yet are we not without hope. We are in periclite: but not utterly without somewhat. We are persecuted, but are not forsaken. We are cast downe, neuerthelesse we perishe not. And we alwayes beare in our bodies the byrtinge of the Lord Jesus, that the life of Jesus myght appere in our bodies.

For we whiche thus alwayes are deliuered vnto death for Jesus sake, that the life also of Jesus myght appere in our mortall fleshe. So then death worketh in vs, and life in you. Herenge then we haue the same spirite of saythe, accordyng as it is wyrtten: I blyue, and therefore haue I spoken. We also blyue, and therefore speake. For we knowe that he whiche rayled by the Lord Jesus, shall rayle by vs also by the meane of Jesus, and shall set vs with you. For all thynges do I for your sakes, that the plentiful grace by thankes gauen of many, may redounde to the prayse of God.

Wherfore we are not trespased, but thowge our outwarde man perishe, yet the inward man is renewed daye by daye. For our exceeding tribulation, whiche is momentary and lyght, prepareth an exceeding and an eternall weight of glory vnto vs, whyle we loke not on the thynges which are sene, but on the thynges which are not sene. For thynges which are sene, are tempozall: but thynges which are not sene, are euerylastyng.

The rewards for suffering trouble.

CAP. V.

We knowe surely yf our earthly maner of lyf wherein we nowe dwell were destroyed, that we haue a buyldyng of deydred of God, an habitation not made with handes, but eternall in heuen. And therefore saye we, desyryng to be clothed with our mansion, which is frame geuen: so per yf we be founde clothed, and not naked. For as long as we are in this tabernacle we sigh and are grieved, for we wolde not be vncloued, but wolde be clothed vpon, that mortalite myght be swallowed by of lyfe. What hathe ordeyned vs for this thyng, is God: whiche very same hath gauen vnto vs the cruell of the spirite.

Therfore we are alway of good chere, and knowe well that as long as we are at home in the body, we are absent from God. For we walke in saythe and se not. Neuerthelesse we are of good comfort, and had leuer be absent from the body, and pcesse with the Lord. Wherfore, whether we be at home, or frome home, we endeour our selues to please hym. For we must all appere before the iudgement seate of Christe, that every man maye receyue the workes of his body accordyng to that he hath done, whether it be good or bad.

Herenge then that we knowe, howe the Lord is to be feared, & we face saye with men. For we are known well ynough vnto God. I trust also that we are known in your consciences.

We praye not our selues agayne vnto you, but geue you an occasion to reioyse of vs, that ye maye haue somewhat agaynst them, whiche reioyse in the face, and not in the hert. For yf we be to seruent, to God are we to seruent. If we kepe measure, for your cause kepe we measure. For the loue of Christe constraineth vs, because we thus iudge, yf one be ded for all, that then are all ded: and that he dyed for all, that they whiche lyue, wolde not hence forth lyue vnto them selues, but vnto him, whiche dyed for them, and rose agayne.

Wherfore henceforth knowe we no man after the fleshe. In so moche thowge we haue knowne Christe after the fleshe, nowe henceforth knowe we hym so no moze. Therfore yf any man be in Christe, he is a newe creature. Olde thynges are passed awaye, beholde all thynges are made newe. Neuertheles, al thynges are of God, whiche hath reconciled vs vnto him selfe by Jesus Christ, and hath gauen vnto vs the office to preach the attonement. For God was in Christe, and made agreement betwene the world and hym selfe, and imputed not theyr synnes vnto them: and hath committed to vs the preaching of the attonement. Nowe then are we messengers in the robe of Christe, euen as though God did beseeche you thowgh vs. So praye we you in Christes steade, that ye be at one with God: for he hath made him to be synne for vs, which knewe no synne, that we by that meanes shoulde be that ryghteousnes whiche before God is allowed.

An exhortation to receyue the word of God with thankfulness and amendment of lyfe. The diligence of Paul in the Gospel, and how he warneth them to eschue the company of the heithen.

CAP. VI.

Was helpers therfore exhort you that ye receyue not the grace of God in vayne. For he sayeth: I haue bridd the in a time accepted, and in the daye of saluacion haue I succoured the. Beholde nowe is that daye of saluacion. Let vs geue no man occasion of euyl, that in our office be founde no fault, but in al thynges let vs behaue our selues as the ministers of God.

In moche patience, in afflictions, in necessities, in anguyshe, in stripes, in imprisonment, in saythe, in laboure, in watchyng, in fastyng, in purenes, in knowledge, in longe sufferynge, in hydnes, in the holy ghoste, in loue vnfayned, in the wordes of trouth, in the power of God, by the armour of ryghteousnes of the ryght hande and on the lefte, in honoure and dishonour, in euyl reappoynte and good reappoynte, as discipules and yet true, as vnknewe and yet known: as dryng, and beholde yet lyue: chastened, and not kyled: as sorrowyng, and yet alwaye merry: as poore, and yet make many ryche: as hauyng nothinge, and yet possesse all thynges.

O ye Corinthians, our mouth is open vnto you. Our herte is made large: ye are in no straites in vs, but are in a strait in your owne bowelles: I promyse you lyke reward with me, as to my chyldezen. Set your selues therfore at large, and beare not a straungers pike with the vnbelievers. For what fellowship hath rightousnes with vnyghtousnes? What company hath light with darknes? What concord hath Christ with Beliall? Whyther what parte hath he that blyueth with an infidell? How agreeth the temple of God with images? For ye are the temple of that lyuynge God, as sayde God. Will dwel amonge them, and walke among them, and will be theyr God, and they shall be my people. Wherfore come out frome the myddes of them, and seporate your selues (saythe the Lord) and touche none vnclane thyng: so will I receyue you, and will be a father vnto you, & ye shall be my sonnes and daughters sayeth the Lord almyghty.

He exhorteth them to receyue the promises of God thankfully. The Corinthians are commended for theyr obedience and loue toward Paul.

CAP. VII.

Frasmoche as we haue such promises (dearly beloved) let vs cleanse our selues from all filthynes of the fleshe and spirite, and growe vp to full holynesse in the feare of God. Understande vs, we haue hurt no man, we haue corrupted no man: we haue defrauded no man. I speake not this to condemn you: for I haue shewed you before, that ye are in our hertes to dye and liue with you. I am deere bolde ouer you, and reioyce greatly in you. I am filled with comforte and am exceedinge ioyous in all our tribulations, for when we were come in to Macedonia, our fleshe hadde no rest, but we were troubled on euery syde. Without was fyghtyng, within was feare. Neuerthelesse God comforteth the abiete, comforted vs at the cominge of Titus.

And not with his comminge onely, but also with the consolation wherewith he was comforted of you. For he tolde vs your desyre, your mourning, your seruent mynde towards me: so that I nowe reioyse the more. Wherfore thowge I made you sorry with a letter, I repent not, thowge I dyd repent. For I perceyue that the same spirit made you sorry, thowge it were but for a season. But I now reioyce, not that ye were sorry, but that ye so to sorrowed that ye repented. For ye sorrowed godly, so that in nothyng ye were hurt by vs. For godly sorrow causeth repentance vnto saluacion not to be repented of: where as worldly sorrow causeth death.

Beholde what diligence this godly sorrow that ye toke hath wrought in you: yea it caused you to cleare your selues. It caused indignacion, it caused feare, it caused desyre, it caused a seruent mynde, it caused punishment. For in all thynges ye haue shewed your selues that ye were cleare in that matter. Wherfore thowge I wrote vnto you, I did it not for his cause that did hurt: nether for his cause that was hurt: but that our good mynde whiche we haue toward you in the sight of God, myght appere vnto you.

Wherfore we are comforted because ye are comforted: ye, and exceedingly the more ioyed we for the ioye that Titus hadde: because his spirit was refreshed in you all. I am therfore not now ashamed, thowge I boasted my selfe to him of you. For as all thynges whiche I preached vnto you are true, euen so is our boasting that I boasted my selfe to Titus withall, founde true. And now is his inward affection more aboundant toward you, when he remembreth the obedience of euery one of you: how with feare & trembling ye receyued him. I reioyce that I may be bolde ouer you in all thynges.

He putteth them in remembrance to helpe the poore sayntes at Jerusalem, accordyng as the Macedonians dyd.

CAP. VIII.

Do you to wyrt (brethren) of the grace of God which is gauen in the congregacions of Macedonia, how that the abundance of theyr reioysyng is, that they are tryed with moche tribulation. And thereto thowge they were exceeding poore, yet haue they gauen exceeding richely, and that in synclenes. For to theyr powers (I beate record) ye, and beyond their power, they were willing of their owne motion, and prayed vs with greute instance, that we wolde receyue their benefite, & suffre them to be partakers w other in ministering to the sayntes. And this they dyd, not as we leched for: but gaue theyr owne selues freely to the Lord, and after vnto vs by the will of God: so that we coulde not but blyse Titus to

to accomplishe the same beniuolence among you also, euen as he had begon.

Now therfore as ye are ryche in all parties in fapth, in woide, in knowlege, in all seruities, and in loue, which ye haue to vs: so se ye be plenteous in this beniuolence. This saie I not as commaundynge, but because other are so feruent, therfore proue I your charite, wher it be perfect or no. Ye knowe the liberalite of our Lorde Iesus Christ, whiche though he were ryche, yet for your sakes he became poore, that ye thowowe his pouertie myght be made ryche.

And I geue counsell here to. For this is expedient for you, which began not to do onely: but also to wyl a yere ago. Now therfore perfoyme the dede: that as there was in you a rebynesse to wyl, euen so ye maye perfoyme the dede, of that whiche ye haue. For ye there be spyt a wyllynge mynde, it is accepted according to that a man hath, and not according to that he hath not.

It is not my mynde that other be set at ease and ye brought in to commaunce, but I there be e gaine now at this tyme, that your abundance succour they lacke, that their abundance may supply your lacke: that there maye be equalite, ageynge to that whiche is wyrtten. * We that gathered moche, had neuer I more abundance, & he that gathered lytell, had neuerthelesse. Thanks be vnto god, which put in the hert of Titus, the same good mynde to waite you. For he accepted the request, yea rather he was so well wyllynge, I of his owne accord came vnto you.

We haue sent with him that brother, whose prayse is in the gospel thowow out all the congregacions, and not so onely, but is also chof of the congregacions to be a felowe with vs in our iourney concernynge this beniuolence that is ministered by vs vnto the prayse of the Lorde, and to glorie by your prompt mynde.

For this we elchewe, that any man wolde rebuke vs in this plenteous distribution that is ministered by vs, and therfore make prouision for honest thynges, not in the sight of God onely, but also in the sight of men.

We haue sent with them a brother of ours whom we haue oft tymes proued diligent in many thynges, but now moche more diligent. The great confydence whiche I haue in you, hath caused me this to do: partly for Titus sake, whiche is my felow and helper as concernynge you, partly because of other whiche are our brethren and I messengers of the congregacions, and the glorie of Christ. Wherfore shew vnto them a proue of your loue, and of the reioysynge that we haue of you, that the congregacions may se it.

In this Chapter dothe he the same that he dyd in the Chapter goynge before, that is, moueth them to helpe the poore brethren at Jerusalem.

C A P I. I X.

Of the ministering to the sayntes, it is but superfluous for me to wyrtte vnto you: for I knowe your redynes of mynde, wherof I bolde my selfe vnto them of Macedonia, and say that Achata, was prepared a yere ago, and your seruentyes hath prouoked many. Neuertheles, yet haue I sent these brethren lest our reioysynge ouer you shoulde be in bayne in this behalfe, and that ye (as I haue sayde) prepare youre selues, lest happily if they of Macedonia come with me, and fynde you vnprepared: the hood that I made in this matter shoulde be a shame to vs, I saie not vnto you.

Wherfore I thought it necessary to exhort the brethren to come before hande vnto you for to prepare your good blessing promised afore, that it might be redy: so that it be a blessing, and not a defrauding. * This yet remembre, how that he whiche soweth lytel, shall reape plenteously. And let every man do accordynge as he hath purposed in his herte, not grudgynge, or of necessity. For God loueth a cheerefull gyuer.

God is hable to make you ryche in al grace that ye in all thynges haue sufficient vnto the uttermost, may be ryche vnto all maner good workes, as it is wyrtten. * He hath sparred abode and hath geuen to the poore, his rightousnes remaineth for euer. He that sowereth the sower seed, shall mynster breed for sode, and shall multiply your seed and increase the frutes of your ryghtousnes: I that on all parties, ye may be made ryche in all singlenes, whiche causeth thowow vs, thankes geuynge vnto God.

For the offyce of this ministracion, not onely supplyeth the nede of the sayntes: but also is abundaunte herein, that for this laudable ministringe, thankes myght be giuen to God of many, whiche prayse God, for the obedience of your professynge the Gospel of Christ, and for your singlenes in distributing to them and to all men: and in their prayers to God for you, longe after you, for the abundaunte grace of God giuen vnto you. Thanks be vnto God for his vnspokeable gyfte.

He toucheth the false Apostles, and defendeth his auctorite and callinge.

C A P I. X.

Paul my selfe beseeche you by the mekenes and softnes of Christ whiche when I am present amonge you am of no reputation, but am bold toward you being absent. I beseeche you that I nede not to be holde when I am present (with that same confidence, wherewith I am supposed to be bold, agaynst some whiche repute vs as though we walked carnally. Neuerthelesse though we walke compassed with the fleshe, yet we warre not fleshy. For the weapons of our warre are not carnall thynges, but thynges myghty in God, to cast downe strong holdes wherewith we ouerthrow ymaginacions, and every hyge thing that exalteth it selfe agaynst the knowledge of God and bynne in to captiuite all vnderstandynge to the obedience of Christ, & are redy to take vengeance on all disobedience, wher your obedience is fulfilled. Take ye on thynges after the better apperance.

If any man trust in him self that he is Christes, let the same also consider of him selfe that as he is Christes, euen so are we Christes. And though I wolde bolde my selfe somewhat more of our auctorite whiche the Lorde hath giuen vs to edifye, and not to destroye you, it shoulde not be to my shame. This saie I, lest I shoulde seme as though I wente aboute to make you asfearde with letters. For the epistles (saith he) are stronge, but his bodily presence is wyke, and his speche is rude. Let him that is such, thynke on this wyse, that as we are in wordes by letters when we are absent, such are we in dedes when we are present.

For we can not fynde in our hertes to make our selues of the nombre of them, or to compare our selues to them whiche prayse them selues, neuertheles whyle they measure them selues with them selues, they vnderstande nought. But we wyl not reioyce aboute measure: but accordynge to the quantite of the measure whiche the God hath distributed vnto vs, a measure that reacheth euen to you. For we stretch not out our selues beyond measure, as though we had not reached vnto you. For euen to you haue we come with the gospel of Christ, and we do not our selues out of measure in other mens labours. Yea, and we hope when your fapth is increased among you, to be magnified accordynge to our measure, more largely, and to preache the gospel in these regions whiche are beyond you, and not to reioyce of that whiche is by an other mans measure prepared already. Let him that reioysyth, reioyse in the Lorde. For he that prayseth him selfe, is not allowed, but he whom the Lorde prayseth.

Paul vnder sufferance commendeth him selfe, & defendeth his auctorite agaynst the false prophetes

C A P I. XI.

Wolde God ye could suffre me a litle in my folysynes: ye, and I praye you forbeare me. For I am gelous ouer you in Godly gelowshe. For I coupled you to one man, to make you a chaste begyn to Christ. But I feare lest as the serpent begyled Eue thowowe his subtiltie, euen so your wyrtes shoulde be corrupte from the singlenes that is in Christ. For if he that commeth preache an other Iesus then him whom we preached: or if ye receiue an other spirite then whiche ye haue receiued, either an other gospel then I haue receiued, ye might right well haue suffered. I suppose I was not behynde the chiefe Apostles. Though I be rude in speakynge, yet I am not so in knowlege. How be it amonge you we are knowe to the uttermost what we are in all thynges. Dyd I therein synne, because I submitted my selfe, that ye might be exalted, and because I preached to you the gospel of God freely? I robbed other congregacions, and toke wages of them to do you seruice. And when I was present with you, and had nede, I was geuous to no ma: for that whiche was lackynge vnto me, the brethren whiche came from Macedonia supplied: and in all thynges

I kepte my selfe that I shoulde not be geuous to you: and so wyl I kepe my selfe.

If the crouche of Christ be in me, this reioysynge shall not be taken from me in the regions of Achata. Wherfore? Because I loue you not? God knoweth. Neuerthelesse, what I do, that wyl I do, to cut awaye occasion from them whiche desire occasion, that they might be holde lyke vnto vs in that wher they reioyce. For these false Apostles are discipfull workers, and fashion them selues lyke vnto the apostles of Christ, and no meauable, for Sathan hym selfe is chaunged in to the fashion of an angel of lycht. Therfore it is no greater thyng though his ministers fashion them selues as though they were the ministers of ryghtousnes: whose ende shall be accordynge to their dedes.

I saie agayne, lest any man thynke that I am folysch: or els eue now take me as a sole, that I may bolde my selfe a litle. What I speake I speake it not after the wayes of the Lorde but as it were folyschly, whyle we are nowe come to boldynge. Seinge that many reioyce after the fleshe, I wyl reioyce also. * For ye suffre soles gladly, because ye your selues are wylle. For ye suffre euen if a man bynne you in to bondage: if a man deuoure: if a man take: if a man exalte him selfe: if a man smite you on the face. I speake as concernynge rebuke, as though we had bene weak.

Howe be it wher in soeuer any man dare be bold (I speke folyschly) I dare be bolde also. They are Hebrewes, so am I: They are Israelites, euen so am I. They are the seed of Abraham, euen so am I. They are the ministers of Christ (I speake as a sole) I am more: In labours more abundaunt: In stripes aboute measure: In pylson more plenteously: In deach ofte. Of the Jewes tyme tyme receiued I euery tyme. I steppe saue one. Whyle was I beten with rodde. I was once stoned. I suffered thysle thowowe. Night and daye haue I bene in the depe of the see. In iourneye often: in perils of warres: in perils of robbers: in iourneys of myne owne uacion in iourneys among the heben. I haue bene in perils in cities, in perils in wilderness in perils in the see, in perils amonge false brethren, in laboure and trouaile, in watchynge often, in hunger, in thyrst, in fastynge often in cold & in nakednes. And besyde the thynges whiche outwardly happen vnto me, I am cōbzed daily, and do care for all congregacions. Who is lyke, and I am not lyke? Who is hurte in the fapth & my hert bueneth not? If I muste nedes reioyce, I wyl reioyce of mine infymtes.

Paul is taken by in to the thyrde brauen, and heareth wordes not to be spoken of.

C A P I. XII.

The God and father of our Lorde Iesus Christ, whiche is blessed for euermore knoweth that I lye not. * In the cite of Damascos, the gouernour of the people vnder under kynge Artas layde watche in the cite of the Damascens, and wold haue caught me, and at a window was I let downe in a basket, byow the wall, so escaped his hands.

It is not expedient for me truly to reioyce. Neuertheles I will come to visions and reuelacions of the Lorde. I know a man in Christ aboue, xliij. yeres agone (whether he were in the body I can not tel, or whether he were out of the body, I can not tell (God knoweth) whiche was taken vp in to the thyrde heuen. And I know the same man (whether in the body or out of the body, I can not tel, God knoweth) how that he was taken vp in to Paradyse, and here wordes not to be spoken, which no man can utter. Of this man wyl I reioyce, of my selfe I wyl not reioyce, onlesse it be of myne inmytities. And yet thoughte I wolde reioyce, I wolde not be a foile: for I wyl say the trouthe. Neuertheles I spare, lest any man wold thynke of me, aboue that he seeth me to be, or heareth of me.

And lest I wolde be exalted out of measure thowme the abundance of reuelacions, there was gyuen me a rodde to the fleshe, the messenger of Satan to buffet me, because I wolde not be exalted out of measure. For this thyng becomight I the Lorde thys that it might depart from me. And he sayd vnto me, my grace is sufficient for the. For my strengthe is made perfect thowme mynkes. Ther gladly therfore wyl I reioyce of my mynkes, that the strengthe of Christ may dwell in me. Therefore haue I reuelacion in infirmities, in tributes, in neede, in persecutions, in anguyshe for Christes sake. For when I am weak, then am I stronge.

I am become a foile in bolynge my selfe. Ye haue compelled me: I ought to haue ben commended of you. For in nothyng was I inferior vnto the chiefe Apostles, though I be nothyng, yet tokens of an apostle were wrought among you with al patience, with signes and wonders, & mighty dees. For what is it wherin ye were inferiours vnto other congregacions, excepte if be therein, that I was not greuous vnto you. For gyue me this wronge done vnto you. Beholde now the thyrde tyme I am ready to come vnto you, and yet wyl I not be greuous vnto you. For I like not yours, but you. For the children ought not to lape by the fathers and mothers, but the fathers and mothers for the children.

I wyl very gladly bestow, and wyl be beloved for your soules: though the more I loue you, the lesse I am loued agayne. But be it that I greued you not: neuertheles I was crafty, and toke you with guile. Did I pyl you by any of them whiche I sent vnto you? I despyed Titus, and with him I sent a brother. Dyd Titus defraude you of any thyng? Walked we not in lyke steppes? Agayne thynke ye that we exalte oure selues? We speake in Christ in the sight of God.

But we do all thynges (dearly beloved) for your edifying. For I feare lest it come to passe that when I come, I wyl not fynde you such as I wold, and I wyl be found vnto you such as I wolde not: I feare lest there be founde amonge you, debate, enuyng, wrathe, stryfe backbyttinges, whysperages, swellnges and discorde. I feare lest when I come agayne, God byng me lowe among you, and I be constrained to bewaile many of them whiche haue synned already, and haue not repented for the vnclennes, fornicacion, wantonnes, whiche they haue committed.

The promyseth to come vnto them and exhorteth them so to obeye their selues, that they may fynde them perfect, and of one mynde.

C A P I. XIII.

Now come I the thyrde tyme vnto you in the mouth of two or thre witnesses, that euery thyng stande. I tolde you afore, and tell you afore: and as I sayd when I was present vnto you the seconde tyme, so wyte I now bringe absent to them whiche in tyme past haue synned, and to all other: that ye I come agayne, I wyl not spare, seynge that ye seke experience of Christ, whiche speaketh in me, whiche amonge you is not weyke, but is myghty in you. For verily thoughte it came of weynkes that he was crucified, yet lyueth he thowme the power of God. And we no doubt are weyke in him, but we wyl lye with him by the myght of God amonge you.

Byow youre selues whether ye are in the fayth or not. Examine your own selues: know ye not your selues how Jesus Christ is in you onlesse ye be callawayes? I trust that ye wyl knowe that we are not callawayes. I despye before God that ye do none euyl, not that we wolde seme commendable, but that ye wolde do that is honest: and let vs be accomplished for leude persons. We can do nothyng agaynste the trouth, but for the trouth. We are glad wher we are weyke, and ye stronge. This also we wyl saye for, euen that ye were perfect. Therfore wyte I these thynges being absent, lest when I am present, I wolde be sharpe, according to the power whiche the Lorde hath gyuen me to edifie, and not to destroye. Finally brethren fare ye well, be perfect, be of good comfort, be of one mynde, lyue in peace, & the God of loue and peace shall be with you. Greete one another in an holy kynde. All the sayntes salute you. The grace of our Lorde Jesus Christ, and the loue of God, and the felawshipp of the holy ghoost be with you all.

The Epistle of S. Paule the Apostle, vnto the Galathians.

Paul rebuketh them, because they were fallen awaye from the Gospell, the which his owne conversion magnified his office and Apostleshippe and declared him selfe to be egall with the chiefe Apostles

C A P I. I.

Neither by man, but by Jesus Christ, and by God the father whiche rayled hym from deathe: and all the brethren whiche are with me.

Vnto the congregacions of Salacia. Grace with you, and peace from God the father, and from our Lorde Jesus Christ, whiche gaue hym selfe for our synnes, to deliuer vs from this present euyl world, thowme the will of God our father, to whome be prayse for euer and euer. Amen.

I meane that ye are so fone turned from him, that called you in the grace of Christ, vnto another gospell, which is nothyng els, but that there be some whiche trouble you, and intende to peruert the gospell of Christ. Therefore, though we our selues, or an angel, from heuē, preache any other gospell vnto you, then that whiche we haue preached vnto you, holde him as a cursed. As I said before, so say I now agayne: yf any man preache any other thyng vnto you, then that ye haue receyued, holde him accursed. Do I now preache mas doctrine or Gods? Eyer go I about to please men? Yf I budged to please men, I were not the seruant of Christ.

Certifye you brethren, that the gospell whiche was preached of me, was not after the manner of men, neither receyued I it of man, neither was I taught it, but receyued it by the reuelacion of Jesus Christ. For ye haue herde of my conuersacion in tyme past, in the Jewes wayes, howe that beyonde measure, I persecuted the congregacion of God, and spoiled it: and persecuted in the Jewes laye aboue many of my companions, whiche were of myne owne nacion, and was a moche more feruent maynteyner of the traditions of the elders.

But when it pleased God, whiche separated from my mothers wombe, and called me by his grace, to declare his sonne by me, that I wolde preache him amonge the heathen: immediately I comoned not of the matre idyllis and bloude, neither returned to Jerusalem to them whiche were Apostles before me: but went my wayes in to Arabia, and came agayne vnto Damascus. Then after thre yeres, I returned to Jerusalem to se Peter, and abode with him. xviij. dayes, none other of the apostles saw I, save James the Lordes brother. The thynges whiche I wyte, beholde, God knoweth I lye not.

After that I went in to the coostes of Syria and Cilicia: and was vnknewen as thou chynge my person vnto the congregacions of Aetiope, whiche were in Christ. But they herde onely, that he whiche persecuted vs in tyme past, nowe preache the saythe whiche before he destroyed. And they glorified God on my behalfe.

The withstandeth Peter in the face, and proueth that the lawe and circumcision are not necessarie to saluacion.

C A P I. II.

Then. xliij. yeres after, I went by agayne to Jerusalem Barnabas, and toke with me Titus also. I went vp by reuelacion and communed with them of the gospell whiche I preache amonge the Gentyles: but by thowme our selues, with them whiche were counted these, lest it wolde haue ben thought that I wold runne, or had runne in vayne. Also Titus whiche was with me, though he were a Greke, yet was not compelled to be circumcised, because of incomers being false brethren, which came in amonge other to clype out our libertie whiche we haue in Christ Jesus, that they might bring vs in to bondage. To whom we gaur no romme, no not for the space of an houre, as concerninge to be brought in to subiection: and that because that the curse of the gospell myght continue with you.

Of them whiche seemed to be greake (what they were in tyme past it maketh no matre to me: god lokeh on no mans person) neuertheles they whiche seemed greake, added nothyng to me. But contrary wise when they saw that the gospell ouer the vncircumcision was comyned vnto me, as the gospell ouer the circumcision was vnto Peter: for he that was myghty in Peter in the Apostleshippe ouer the circumcision, the same was myghty in me amonge the Gentiles: and therefore when they perceived the grace that was gyuen vnto me, then James, Cephas and John, whiche seemed to be pylers, gaur to me and Barnabas the ryghte handes, and agreed with vs, that we wolde preache amonge the heathen, and they amonge the Jewes: warnynge onely that we wolde remember the poore. Whiche thyng also I was diligent to do.

And when Peter was come to Antioche, I withstode him in the face. For he was wronge to be blamed. For euen that certayne came from James, he ate with the Gentyles. But when they were come, he withdrew and separated hym selfe, fearinge them whiche were of the circumcision. And the other Jewes dissimuled likewise, in so much that Barnabas was brought in to thepp simulation also. But when I sawe that they wente not the ryghte waye after the trouthe of the gospell, I sayde vnto Peter before all men, yf thou bynge a Jewe, lyueth after the maner of the Gentyles and not as to the Jewes, why causeth thou the Gentiles to lyue as do the Jewes? We which are Jewes by nature, and not synners of the Gentyles, knowe that a man is not iustified

N. 4. the

Paul is of as high authority as Peter, James or John.

Circumcision are the lawes and vncircumcision the Gentiles.

Paul rebuketh Peter in the face.

Bethyren, if any man be fallen by chance into any fault: ye which are spiritual help: so amende hym in the spirite of mekenesse, consideringe the life, lest thou also be tempted. Weare ye one an others burden, and so fulfill the lawe of Christ. If any man seme to hym selfe that he is somewhat when in dede he is nothinge, the same discyvereth hym selfe in his imagination. Let every man proue his owne worke, and then shall he haue reioysynge in hym selfe, and not in another. For every man shall beare his owne burden.

Let him that is taught in the worde, minister unto him that teacheth hym, in all good thinges. Be not discypled, God is not mocked. For what so ever a man soweth, that shall he reape. He that soweth in his flesh, shall of the flesh reape corruption. But he that soweth in the spirite, shall of the spirite reape life everlastinge. Let vs not be wey of well doyng. For when the tyme is come, we shall reape without trespas. Whyle we haue therfore tyme, let vs doo good vnto all men, but chiefly vnto them which are of the household of faith.

Testalo, iii.

Behold how large a letter I haue written vnto you with myne owne hande. As many as desyre with outward apperance to please carnally, they constrain you to be circumcised, onely because they wolde not suffer persecution with the crosse of Christ. For they them selues which are circumcised, kepe not the lawe: but desyre to haue you circumcised, that they myght exioyce in your flesh.

Rothinge helpeth laue to be a new creature.

God forbid that I shoulde reioyce, but in the crosse of our Lorde Jesu Christ, whereby the worlde is crucified vnto me, and vnto the worlde. For in Christ Jesu, neyther circumcision auayleth, nor vncircumcision: but a new creature. And as many as walke accordynge to this rule, pear on them, and merce / and vpon the Israel of God. From henceforth let no man put me to busynes. For I beare in my bodye, the markes of the Lorde Jesu. Whereby, the grace of our Lorde Jesu Christ be with youre spirite. Amen.

The Epistle of S. Paule the Apostle, vnto the Ephesians.

The everlastinge ordinaunce and election of god in laupage all men thowgh Christe Jesu his sonne. We are ordyned to good workes. The dominion of Christe.

CAP. I.

Paule Apostle of Jesu Christ, by the will of God. To the sayntes, which are at Ephesus, and to them whiche beleue on Jesu Christ.

Grace with you, and peace from God our father, and from the Lorde Jesu Christ. Blessed be God the father of our Lorde Jesu Christ, which hath blessed vs with all manner of spiritual blessinges in heuynly thinges by Christ, accordynge as he had chosen vs in hym, afore the foundation of the worlde was layde, that we shoulde be sayntes, and without blame before him, thowgh we loue, and ordeyned vs before thowgh Jesu Christ, to be hepyes vnto him selfe, accordynge to the pleasure of his will to the praple of the glory of his grace wherewith he hath made vs accepted in the beloued.

Whereby we haue redemption, thowgh his bloude, euen the forgiveness of synnes, accordynge to the riches of his grace, whiche he shed in vs abundantly in all wisdom, and prudence. And hath opened vnto vs the mystery of his will, accordynge to his pleasure, & purposed the same in him self, to haue it declared when the tyme were full come, that all thinges, bothe which are in heuen, and also which are in earth, shoulde be gathered together, in Christ: that is to saye, in hym in whome we are made hepyes, and were thereto predestinate accordynge to the purpose of him which worketh all thinges after the purpose of his owne will: that we whiche afore dyced in Christ shoulde be vnto the praple of his glory.

In whome also ye (after that ye herde the worde of truthe, I meane the gospell of your saluacion, wherin ye beleued) were sealed with the holy spirite of promes, which is the reuelation of oure inheritance, to redeme the purchased possession, and that vnto the praple of his glory.

Wherfore I (after that I herde of the faith which ye haue in the Lorde Jesu, and loue vnto all the sayntes) cease not to geue thanks for you, makinge mention of you in my prayres, that the God of our Lorde Jesu Christ and the father of glorye myght geue you the spirite of wisdom, and open to you the knowledge of hun selfe, and lighten the eyes of your myndes, that ye might know what that hope is, wherunto ye hath called you. & what the riches of his glorious inheritance is vpon the sayntes, and what is the exceeding greatness of his power towards vs which he beleue accordynge to the workinge of that his mighty power power, which he wrought in Christ, when he raised him from the dead, and set him on his right hande in heuynly thinges, aboue all rule, power, and myght, and domination, & aboue all names that are named, not in this worlde onely, but also in the worlde to come: & hath put all thinges vnder his fete, and hath made hym aboue all thinges, the head of the congregation which is his body & the fulnes of hym that filleth all in all thinges.

Paule sheweth them what manner of people they were before theyr conuersion, and what they are now in Christe.

CAP. II.

And you hath he quickened also that were dead in trespass and synne, wherein in tyme past ye walked, accordynge to the course of this worlde / and after the gouernour that ruleth in the ayer, the spere that nowe worketh in the children of vnbefese, amonge whome we also had our conuersion in tyme past, in the luses of oure flesh and fulfilled the will of the flesh & of the mynde and were naturally the children of wrath, euen as well as other.

But God which is ryche in mercy thowgh his greace loue wherewith he loued vs, euen when we were dead by synne, hath quickened vs together in Christ (for by grace are ye saued) and hath raised vs vp together & made vs sit together in heuynly thinges thowgh Christe Jesu, for to shewe in tymes to come the exceeding riches of his grace, in his kindness towards vs in Christ Jesu. For by grace are ye made saue thowgh faith, and that not of your selues. For it is the gyfte of God, and cometh not of workes, least any man shuld boast him selfe. For we are his workmanship created in Christ Jesu vnto good workes, vnto whiche God ordeyned vs before, that we shoulde walke in them.

Wherfore remember that ye beyng in tyme past Gentyles in the flesh, and were called vncircumcision to them which are called circumcision in the flesh, which circumcision is made by handes: Remember I saye, that ye were at that tyme without Christ, and were reputed aliens from the common welth of Israel and were straungers from the testamentes of promes, hauinge no hope, and beyng without God in this worlde. But nowe in Christ Jesu, ye which a whyle ago were farre of, are made nyghe by the bloude of Christ.

For he is our pear, which hath made of both one, & hath broken downe the wall that was a stoppe betwene vs, and hath also put away thowgh his flesh, the cause of hatred, that is to saye, the lawe of commandementes contained in the lawe written, for to make of twayne, one new man in him selfe to makinge pear: and to reconcyle both vnto God in one body thowgh his crosse, & newe hatred thereby: & came and preached pear to you whiche were farre of, and to them that were nyghe. For thowgh him we both haue an open waye in, in one spere vnto the father.

Now therfore ye are no more straungers and forerers: but cytelens with the sayntes, and of the household of God: and are buyt vpon the foundation of the Apostles and Prophetes, Jesus Christ beyng the heed corner stone, in whome every buyldinge coupled together groweth vnto an holy temple in the Lorde, in whome ye also are buyt together, and made an habytacion for God, in the spirite.

Foundations is the word of God.

He sheweth the cause of his imprisonment, desyreth the not saynt because of his trouble, and prayeth God to make them stedfast in his spere.

CAP. III.

For this cause I Paule am in the bondes: For of Jesus Christ for your sakes which are betwene: If ye haue herde of the ministracion of the grace of God which is giuen me vpon you. For by reuelacion I knowe this mystere vnto me, as I wrote aboue in fewe wordes, wherby when ye rede, ye may knowe myne vnderstandinge in the mystere of Christ, whiche in tymes past was opened vnto the sonnes of men, as it is now declared vnto his holy Apostles and Prophetes by the spere: that the Gentyles shoulde be inheritors also, and of the same body, and partetakers of his promes that is in Christ, by the meane of the Gospell, wherof I am made a minister, by the gyfte of the grace of God giuen me thowgh the workinge of his power.

Unto me the les of all sayntes is this grace giuen, that I shoulde preache amonge the gentyles the vnsearchable riches of Christ, and to make all men se, what the felowshipp of the mystere is, whiche from the begynnyng of the worlde hath bene hyd in God, whiche made all thinges thowgh Jesus Christ, to the intent, that now vnto the rulers and powers in heauen myght be knowne by the congregation, the manyfolde wisdom of God, accordynge to the everlastinge purpose, whiche he purposed in Christ Jesu our Lorde, by whom we are bolde to shawe nyghe in the truthe, whiche we haue by faith on him.

Wherfore I desyre that ye saynt not because of my tribulations whiche I suffre for your sakes: which is your prayse.

For this cause I bowe my knees vnto the father of our Lorde Jesu Christ, which is father oure all that is called father in heauen & in earth, that he woulde graunte you, accordynge to the riches of his glory, that ye may be strengthened with myght by his spere in the inner man that Christ may dwell in your heartes by faith, that ye beyng roted and ground in loue, myghte be able to comprehend with all sayntes, what is the breadth & length & depth and heygth: and knowe the loue of Christ, whiche passeth knowledge: that ye myght be fulfilled with all manner of fulnes of God.

Unto hym that is habite to do abundantly aboue all that we aske or thinke accordynge to the power that worketh in vs, be prayse in the congregation by Jesus Christ, thowgh oute all generations frome tyme to tyme. Amen. I

Exhorteth them vnto mekenes longe suffering, vnto loue and peax, euey one to serue and edifye another with the gyfte that God hath gyuen him, to beware of straunge doctrine, to laye alyde the olde conuersion of greddy lufkes, and to walke in a new lyfe.

CAP. I. IIII

I Therefore whiche am in bondes for the Loydes sake, exhorte you, that ye walke worthy of the callinge wherewith ye are called, in all humblenes of mynde, and mekenes, and longe sufferinge, forbearynge one another thowome charitie, and that ye be diligent to kepe the vnitie of the spere in the bond of peax, beyng one body, and one spere, euen as ye are called in one hope of your callinge: One Loyde, one faith, one baptysme: One God and father of all, which is aboue al thowom all, and in you all. I

Exhorteth them vnto mekenes longe suffering, vnto loue and peax, euey one to serue and edifye another with the gyfte that God hath gyuen him, to beware of straunge doctrine, to laye alyde the olde conuersion of greddy lufkes, and to walke in a new lyfe.

Into euey one of vs is gyuen grace accordyng to the measure of the gyfte of Christ. Wherfore he sayth: He is gone by on hygge and hath ledde captiuitie captiue, and hath gyuen gyftes vnto men. That he ascended: what meaneth it, but that he also descended first into the lower partes of the earth? He that descended, is the same also that ascended vp, aboue all heauens, to fulfill all thynges.

E And the very same made some Apostles, some Prophetes, some Euangelistes, some Shepheherdes, and some Teachers: that the sayntes myght haue all thynges necessarie to worke and minister with, to the edifyinge of the body of Christ, euey one (in the vnitie of faith, and knowledge of the sonne of God) growe by vnto a perfect man, after the measure of age of the fulnes of Christ. I That we hence forth be no more chyldren, wauctinge and carped with euey wynde of doctrine, by the wylkes of men and craftyness, wherby they laye awaye for vs to deceyue vs. But folowynge the truthe in loue let vs in all thynges growe in him which is the heede that is to save Christ, in whome all the body is coupled and knyt together in euey ioynte wherewith one minneth to another (accordyng to the operation as euey parte hath his measure) and increaseth the body, vnto the edifyinge of it selfe in loue.

I This I saye therefore, and testifie in the Loyde, that ye henceforth walke not as other Gentyles walke, in vanitie of their mynde, blynded in their understandinge, beyng steaggers frome the lyfe which is in God thowome of the ignorance that is in them, because of the blyndnes of their hertes, whiche beyng past repentance, haue gyuen them selues vnto wantonnes, to worke all maner of vncleennes with greyness. But ye haue not so learned Christ, yf so be ye haue herde of him, and are taught in him, euen as the truthe is in Iesu.

I So then as concernynge the conuersion in tyme past, laye from you that olde man, whiche is corrupte thowome the deceyuable lufkes,

I and be ye renued in the spere of your myndes, and put on that newe man, whiche after the ymage of God is shapen in ryght wylnes and true holynes.

I Wherfore put awaye lyenge, and speake euey man trouth vnto his neyghboure, for as moche as we are members one of another. I Be angrye but synne not: let not the sonne go downe vpon your wyathe, neyther gyue place vnto the backbyter. Let him that stele, scale no moze, but let hym rather labour to his handes some good thyng, that he maye haue to gyue vnto him that needeth. I

I Let no fylthy communication procede oute of your mouthes: but that which is good to edifye, when neede is: that it maye haue fauour with the hearers. And greue not the holy spere of God, by whome ye are sealed vnto the daye of redemption. Let all bitterness, fearnesse and wyathe, coyng and cursed speakynge, be put awaye frome you, with all maliciousnes. Be ye courteous one to another and mercifull, forgynge one another euen as God for Christes sake forgave you.

Exhorteth vnto loue, warneth to beware of vncleennes, couetyse, folysh talkynge, and false doctrine: to be circumspecte, to auoyde dyshonour, to submyt them selues one to another. He teacheth how women shulde obeye their husbandes, and how men ought to mitrate theyr wyues.

CAP. I. V.

I Ye folowers of God as dere chyldren, and walke in loue euen as Christ loued vs, and gaue him selfe for vs, an offering and a sacrifice of a sweete saure to God. He fornication and all vncleennes or couetousnes be nor ones named amonge you as it becometh sayntes: neyther fylthynges, neyther folysh talkynge, neyther geysynge whiche are not comly: but rather gyvynge of thankes. I For this ye knowe that no whoremonger, eyther vncleane personne, or couetous personne, which is an ydolatre, hath any inheritance in the kyngdome of Christ and of God.

I Let no man deceyue you with vayne wordes. For thowome suche thynges cometh the wyath of God vpon the chyldren of vnbelsse. Be not therefore companyons with them. Ye were ones derchenes, but are now lyght in Christ.

I Walke as chyldren of lyght. For the frute of the spere is in all goodnes, ryghtwysnesse, and trouth. I

I Accepte that which is pleasynge to the Loyde and haue no felowshipp with the vnfayrefull woikes of derchenes: but rather rebuke the. For it is shame euen to name those thynges whiche are done of them in secrete: but all thynges, when they are rebuked of the light, are manifeste. For what so euey is manifeste, that same is light. Wherfore he sayth: awake thou that slepest, and stonde by frome death, and Christ shall gyue the lyght.

I Take heede therefore that ye walke circumspectly: not as soles: but as wyse personnes, purchasynge opportunitie to the same: for the dayes

I dayes are euyl. Wherfore, be ye not vntowse but vnderstande what the will of the Loyde is, and be not drunken with wyne wherewith is excelle: but be fulfilled with the spere, speaking vnto your selues in psalmes and hymnes, and spirituall songes, syngynge and makinge melodye to the Loyde in your hertes, gyvinge thankes alwayes for all thynges vnto God the father, in the name of our Loyde Iesu Christ: submitte your selues one to another in the feare of God. I

I Women be ye subiect vnto your owne husbandes, as vnto the Loyde. For the husband is the wyues heede euen as Christ is the heede of the congregation, and the same is the saueour of the body. Wherfore as the congregation is in subiection to Christ, lyke wyse let the wyues be in subiection to their husbandes in all thynges. Husbandes loue your wyues, euen as Christ loued the congregation, and gaue him selfe for it, to sanctifie it, and cleanse it in the fountayne of water thowome the word, to make it vnto him selfe, a glorious congregation without spot or wrinkle, or any such thyng: but that it shoulde be holy and without blame. So ought men to loue their wyues, as their owne bodies. He that loueth his wyfe, loueth him selfe. For no man euer yet hated his owne fleshe: but nourisheth and cherissheth it, euen as the Loyde doth the congregation. For we are members of his body, of his fleshe, and of his bones. For this cause shall man leaue father and mother, and shall sticke to his wyfe, and two shalbe made one fleshe. This is a great secret, but I speke betweene Christ and the congregacion. Neuertheles to ye so that euey one of you loue his wyfe truly euen as him selfe. And let the wyfe se that she feare her husbande.

Exhorteth vnto loue, warneth to beware of vncleennes, couetyse, folysh talkynge, and false doctrine: to be circumspecte, to auoyde dyshonour, to submyt them selues one to another. He teacheth how women shulde obeye their husbandes, and how men ought to mitrate theyr wyues.

the armour of God, that ye may stande stedfast against the crafty assaultes of the drupill, for we wrestle not against fleshe and bloude but against rule, against power, and against worldly rulers of the derchenes of this world against spirituall wyckednes, for heauenly thynges.

I For this cause take vnto you the armour of God, that ye maye be habile to resist in the euyl daye, and stande perfect in all thynges.

I Stande therefore, your loynes girded aboute with veritie, hauing on the brestplate of right wylnes, and shod with shoues prepared vnto the Gospell of peax. I But that ye maye also knowe in what state I am and what I do, which my deare brother and faithfull minister in the Loyde, Paul shewe you of all thynges, whome I sent vnto you for the same purpose, that ye myght knowe in what case I stande, and that ye myght comfort your hertes.

I Dear with the brethren and loue with faith frome God the father, and frome the Loyde Iesu Christ. Grace be with all them whiche loue our Loyde Iesu Christ in purenesse. Amen.

Sent frome Rome vnto the Ephesians, by Tychicus.

CAP. I. VI.

I Children, obeye your fathers and mothers in the Loyde: for so is it ryght. Honour thy father and mother, (whiche is the first commaundment that hath any promys) that thou mayst be in good state, & true longe on the earth. And ye fathers moue not your chyldren to wyathe: but beyng the by with the nurture and information of the Loyde. Seruauntes be obediēt vnto your carnall masters, with feare and tremblynge in singlenes of your herte, as vnto Christ: not with seruice in the eye sight, as men please: but as the seruantes of Christ, doinge the will of God frome the herte with good will, seruinge the Loyde, and not men. And remember that what so euey good thynge any man doth, that shall he receyue agayne of the Loyde, whether he be bond or free. And ye masters, do euen the same thynges vnto them, putting awaye threataunges: and remember that euen your master also is in heauen, neyther is there any respect of person with him.

I Finally my brethren, be stronge in the Loyde and in the power of his myght. Put on

The Epistle of S. Paule the Apostle vnto the Philippians.

The exhorteth the to increase in loue, in knowlege, and experyence, of Godly thynges: maketh mention of his paysonment at Rome, is glad to heare Chyrt preached, is content epyther to dye or lyue, and prayeth them to lede a Godly conuersation, to be of one mynde, and to feare no persecution.

C A P I.

Paul and Timothe seruauntes of Iesu Chyrt: To all the sayntes in Chyrtte Iesu, which are at Philippos with the Diuocypes and Deacons.

Grace be with you and pear frome God our father and frome the Lorde Iesu Chyrt.

I thanke my God with all remembraunce of you, alwayes in all my prayers for you, & praye with gladnes, because of the felowship which ye haue in the Gospell frome the firste daye vnto now: I am surely certified of this, that he which bega a good worke in you, shall go forth with it vntill the daye of Iesu Chyrt as it becommeth me so to iudge of you al, because I haue you in my herte, and haue you also euery one companions of grace with me, euery in my bondes, as I defende and stablysh the Gospell.

For God beareth me recorde howe greatly I longe after you all, from the very hert tote in Iesu Chyrtte. And this I praye, that your loue maye increase more and more in knowlege, and in all fealyng, that ye might accepte thynges most excellent, that ye might be pure and such as shulde hurte no mans conscience, vntill the daye of Chyrt, filled with the frutes of rightwysnes, which frutes come by Iesus Chyrtte vnto the glory and laude of God.

I wolde ye vnderstode byethzen that my buynes is happened vnto the great furtheringe of the Gospell. So that my bandes in Chyrt are manifested thorow out all the iugement hal and in all other places: In so much that many of the byethzen in the Lorde are boldened thorow my bandes and dare more largely speake the worde without feare. Some there are which preache Chyrt of enute and styfe, and some of good will. The one parte preacheth Chyrtte of styfe, and not purely, supposyng to adde more aduersitie to my bandes. The other parte of loue, because they se that I am set to defende the Gospell.

What then? So that Chyrtte be preached, all maner wayes, whether it be by occasion, or of reue meanyng. I therein ioye: yea and will ioye. For I knowe that this shall chaunce to my saluation, thorow your prayer and ministeringe of the sperte of Iesu Chyrt as I heretofore ioye for, & hope that in nothinge I shall be ashamed: but that with all confidence, as alwayes in tymes passe, euen so now Chyrtte shall be magnified in my body, whether it be thorow lyfe, or els deathe. For Chyrtte is to me lyfe, and deathe is to me auantage.

It chaunce me to lyue in the fleshe, that is to me frutefull for to worke, and what to chose I wote not. I am constrained of two thynges: I desyre to be lowed and to be with Chyrt, whiche thyng is best of all. Neuerthelesse to abyde in the fleshe, is more nedefull for you. And this am I sure of, that I shall abyde, and with you all, continue, for the furtheraunce and ioye of your faith, that ye maye more abundantly reioyce in Iesu Chyrtte thorow me, by my commyng to you agayne.

Onely let your conuersation be, as it becometh the Gospell of Chyrtte: that whether I come and se you, or be absent, I maye heare of you, that ye continue in one sperte, and in one soule, labouryng as we to, to mayntayne the faith of the Gospell and in nothinge fearyng your aduersaries: which is to them a token of perdition, and to you of saluation and that of God. For vnto you it is gauen that not onely ye shuld beleue on Chyrt: but also I suffer for his sake, and haue euen the same fight which ye saue me haue and now heare of me.

The exhorteth them to vntie and byetherly loue, and to beware of styfe and bayne gloffe: And for a sure example he layeth Chyrtte before them.

C A P I. II.

If there be amonge you any consolation in Chyrt, if there be any comfortable loue, if there be any felowshyppe of the sperte, if there be any compassion of mercy: fulfill my ioye, that ye diuine one waye, hauinge one loue, beynge of one accorde, and of one mynde that nothinge be done thorow styfe or bayne gloffe, but that in mekenes of mynde euery man esteeme other, better then him selfe, and loke not euery man on his owne thynges, but euery man on the thynges of other men.

Let the same mynde be in you that was in Chyrtte Iesu: whiche beynge in the wyse of God, thought it not robbery to be equal to God: but he made him selfe of no reputacion, and toke on him the wyse of a seruaunt, and became lyke vnto men, and was found in his apparell as a man. He humbled him selfe, & became obedient vnto the deeth, euen the deeth of the crosse. Wherefore God hath exalted him, and gauen him a name aboue all names: that in the name of Iesus shuld euery knee bowe, both of thynges in heauen and thynges in earth, and thynges vnder the earth, & that all tongues shuld confesse that Iesus Chyrtte is the Lorde vnto the prayse of God the father.

Wherefore my dearly beloued, as ye haue alwayes obeyed, not when I was present onely, but now moche more in myne absence, & euen so worke out your owne saluation with feare and tremblinge. For it is God whiche worketh in you, both the wil and also the dede such of good will.

Do all thyng without murmuringe & dysputinge, that ye maye be faultlesse and pure, and the sonnes of God, without rebuke in the the myddes of a croked and peruerse nacyon: amonge which, se ye shyn as lychtes in the world, holdyng faste the worde of lyfe, vnto my reioysyng in the daye of Chyrtte, that I haue not runne in vayne, neyther haue laboured in vayne. Yea though I be offered by vnto the offeringe and sacrifice of your faith: I reioyce, and reioyce with you all. For the same cause also reioyce ye, and reioyce ye with me.

I trust in the Lorde Iesu to sende Timothe shortly vnto you, that I also maye be of good comforte, when I knowe in what case ye stand. For I haue no man that is so lyke mynde to me, whiche with so pure affection careth for your matters. For all other seke their owne, & not that which is Iesus Chyrtte. Ye knowe the prooffe of him, howe that as a sonne with the father, so with me bestowed he his labour vpon the Gospell. Wym I hope to sende allone as I knowe howe it will go with me. I truste in the Lorde, that I also my selfe shall come shortly.

I supposed it necessary to sende brother Epaphroditus vnto you, my companion in labour, and felowe souldier, your Apostel and my minister at my nedes. For he longed after you, and was full of heynnes, because ye had herd saye he shulde be styke. And no doubte he was styke, and that nyghe vnto deathe. But God had mercy on him: not on him only, but on me also, least I shulde haue sorowe vpon sorowe. I sent him therfore the diligentiar, that when ye shuld se him, ye might reioyce agayne, and I might be the lesse sorowfull. Receyue him therfore in the Lorde with all gladnes, and make moche of such: because for the worke of Chyrtte he went so farre, that he was nyghe vnto deathe, and regarded not his lyfe, to fulfill that seruyce whiche was lackyng on your part towards me.

The warneth them to beware of false teachers, whom he calleth dogges and enemyes of Chyrt, and reproacheth mans owne rightwysnes.

C A P I. III.

Finally, my byethzen reioyce in the Lorde. It greuet me not to wyte one thing of ten to you. For to you it is a sure thyng. Beware of dogges, beware of cypil workers. Beware of bilencion. For we are circumcised which worshyp God in the sperte, and reioyce in Chyrtte Iesu, and haue no confidence in the fleshe: though I haue wherof I myghte reioyce in the fleshe. If any other man thinketh that he hath wherof he myghte truste in the fleshe: moche more I: circumcised the eght daye, of the kyned of Israel, of the tribe of Ben Jamin, an Ebrie bozne of the Ebries: as concernyng the lawe, a Pharisee, and as concernyng feruency, I persecuted the cōgregation, and as touchyng the rightwysnes of the lawe, I was blamelesse.

But the thynges that were fortelles vnto me, I accounted hynderaunce to: Chyrtte sake. Yea I thinke all thynges but losse for the excellēt knowledges sake of Chyrtte Iesu my Lorde. For whome I haue counted all thynges losse, and doo iudge them but tongs, that I myght wyne Chyrtte, and myght be founde in him, not hauinge myne owne rightwysnes which is of the lawe: but that whiche synneth of the faith which is in Chyrtte. I meane the rightwysnes whiche cometh of God, thorow faith in knowyng him and the vertu of the resurrection, and the felowshyp of his passions, that I might be conformable vnto his deathe, yf by any meanes I myght attayne vnto the resurrection of the dead.

Not as though I had already attained to it, epyther were already perfect: but I folowe, yf that I maye comprehend that, wherem I am comprehended of Chyrtte Iesu. Wherein I counte not my selfe that I haue gotten it: but one thyng I saye: I forget that whiche is behynde and stretche my selfe vnto that which is before and prece vnto that make appoynted, to obtayne the reward of the byghe callyng of God in Chyrtte Iesu. Let vs therfore as many as be perfect, be in this wyse mynded and yf ye be otherwyse mynded, I praye God open euen this vnto you. Neuertheles in that wherunto we are come, let vs procede by one rule, that we maye be of one accorde.

Byethzen be colowres of me, and loke on them which walke so, as ye haue vs for an example. For many walke (of whome I haue tolde you often, and now tell you wepyng) that they are the enemyes of the crosse of Chyrt, whose ende is damnacion, whose God is their bely, & whose glory is to their shame, which are worldly mynded. But our conuersation is in heauen, from whence we loke for a sauoure, euen the Lorde Iesus Chyrtte, whiche shall chaunge our vile bodies, that they maye be fashioned lyke vnto his glorious body, accorde to the workyng, wherby he is hable to subdue all thynges vnto hym selfe.

The saluteth certayne of them, exhorteth them to be of honest conuersation, and thanketh them for the prouision they made for him beinge in pryon.

C A P I. II II.

Therefore (my byethzen) dearly beloued and longed for, my ioye and crowne, so continue in the Lorde, ye beloued. I praye Euodias, and beseeche Syntyche that they be of one accorde in the Lorde. Yea and I beseeche the faithfull yokefelowe, helpe the women whiche labored with me in the Gospell, and with Clement also, and with other my labour felowes, whose names are in the boke of lyfe.

Reioyce in the Lorde alwaye, & agayne I saye reioyce. Let your softenes be knowne vnto al men. The Lorde is at hande. Be not carefull: but in all thynges shewe your petition vnto God in prayer and supplication with gruyng of thankes. The Epistle of S. Paule the Apostle, to the Collossians.

The giueth thanks vnto God for their faith, lone, and hope, prayeth for they increase, and sheweth howe we are the kyngdome of God, obtained by Christ, which is the hed of the congregacion.

C A P I.

Paule, Apostle of Jesu Christ, by the will of God, and brother Timothee. To the sayntes whiche are at Colossa, and brethren that beleue in Christ. Grace be with you and pray from God our father and from the Lorde Jesu Christ.

We giue thanks to God the father of our Lorde Jesu Christ, alwayes praying for you syth we herde of your faith whiche ye haue in Christ Jesu, and of the loue which ye beare to all sayntes for the hopes sake whiche is layde by in you for you in heauen, of whiche ye haue herde before by the true worde of the Gospell, which is come vnto you, euen as it is into all the worlde, and is fructifull, as it is amonge you, frome the firste daye in whiche ye herde of it, and had experience in the grace of God in the truth, as ye leened of Epaphroditus our deare felowe seruant, whiche is for you a faithfull minister of Christ whiche also deliuered vnto vs your loue, whiche ye haue in the spirit.

For this cause we also, sythens the daye we herde of it, haue not ceased prayenge for you, and desyringe that ye might be fulfilled with the knowledge of his will, in all wysdome and spirituall vnderstandinge, that ye might walke worthy of the Lorde in all thinges that please, beynge fructifull in all good workes, and encrease in the knowledge of God, strenghtened with all might, thoro his glorious power, vnto all patience and longe sufferinge with ioyfulness & giuinge thanks vnto the father whiche hath made vs mete to be partakers of the inheritance of sayntes in lyght.

Whiche hath deliuered vs frome the power of darkness, and hath translated vs into the kyngdome of his deare sonne, in whome we haue redemption thoro his bloude, that is to saye, the forgiveness of synnes whiche is the ymage of the invisible God, first begotten of all creatures. For by hym were all thinges created, thinges that are in heauen, and thinges that are in earth: thinges visibill & thinges inuisibill, whether they be maieste or lordshipp, cyther rule or power. All thinges are created by hym, & in hym, and he is before all thinges, and in hym all thinges haue their byng.

And he is the hed of the bodye, that is to saye, the congregacion: he is the beginning and the firste begotten of the dead, that in all thinges he might haue the preeminence. For it pleased the father that in hym should all fulnelle dwel, and by hym to reconcile all thinges vnto him selfe, and to set at pear by hym thoro the bloude of his crosse, bothe thinges in heauen and thinges in earth.

And you (whiche were in tymes past straungers and enemyes, because your myndes were set in euill workes) hath he now reconciled in the body of his flesh thoro his death, to make you holy, vnblymeable and without faule in his owne sighte, if ye continue grounded and stablished in the faith, and be not moued awaye frome the hope of the Gospell, wherof ye haue herde, how it is preached amonge all creatures whiche are vnder heauen, wherof I Paule am made a minister.

Nowe I hope I in my sufferinges whiche I suffer for you, and fulfill that whiche is becomme of the passions of Christ in my flesh for his bodies sake, whiche is the congregacion, wherof I am made a minister accordinge to the ordinaunce of God, which was giuen me towarde you, to fulfill the worde of God, the mystery hyd sence the worlde began, and sence the begynninge of generacions: but now is opened to his sayntes, to whome God wolde make knowne the glorious riches of this mystery amonge the Gentyles, whiche is Christ in you, the hope of glory, whome we preache, warnyng all men, and teachyng all men in all wysdome, to make all men perfect in Christ Jesu. Wherin I also labour and streue, eue as farforth as his workinge worketh in me myghtely.

What greates care Paule toke for all congregacions, he exhorteth them to be steadfast in Christ, to beware of false teachers and worldly wisdomes and desceyber the false Prophetes.

C A P I.

I I.

I wolde ye knewe what fightyng I haue for your sakes, and for them of Laodicia, & for as many as haue not sene my person in the flesh, that their heretes myght be comforted and knyt together in loue, and in all riches of full vnderstandinge, to knowe the mystery of God the father and of Christ, in whome are hyd all the treasures of wysdome and knowledge. This I saye, least any man shoulde beguile you with entysyng wordes.

For though I be absent in the flesh, yet am I present with you in the spirit, toyng and beholdinge the order that ye kepe, & your steadfast faith in Christ. As ye haue therfore receyued Christ Jesu the Lorde, euen so walke, rooted and buyld in hym and stablished in faith, as ye haue learned: and therein be plentiful in giuinge thanks.

Beware lest any man come and spoyle you thoro philosophy and disceptfull banitic, thoro the traditions of men, and ordinaunces after the worlde, and not after Christ. For in him dwelleth all the fulnes of the Godhead bodily, and ye are complete in hym whiche is the hed of all rule and power, in whome also ye are circumcised with circumcision made without handes, by puttinge of the synfull body of the flesh thoro the circumcision that is in Christ, in that ye are buryed with him thoro baptyse, in whome ye are also risen agayne thoro faith, & is brought by the operation of God, whiche rayled hym frome death.

And ye whiche were dead in synne thoro the vncircumcision of your flesh, hath he quickened with him and hath forgiven vs all our trespasses & hath put out the handwritinge that was against vs, contained in the lawe wyrtten: and that hath he taken out of the waye, and hath fastened it to his crosse, and hath spoiled rule and power, and hath made a shewe of them openly, and hath triumphed over them in his owne person.

Let no man therefore trouble your consciences aboute meate and drynke or for a peece of an holy daye, as the holy daye of the newe moone, or of the Sabbath dayes, whiche are nothinge but shadowes of thinges to come: but the bodye is in Christ. Let no man make you shoke at a wyonge marke whiche after his owne ymaginacion walketh in the humblenes and holynes of angels, thinges whiche he neuer sawe: causelesse puffe up with his fleshely mynde, and holdeth not the heed, wherof all the body by ioyntes and couples, receyvinge nourishment, and knyt together, encrease with the encrease of God.

Wherfore if ye be led with Christ frome ordinaunces of the worlde, why as though ye yet lyued in the worlde, are ye led with traditions of them that saye? Touch not, taste not, handell not: whiche all crye with the byng of them, and are after the commandmentes and doctrine of men: whiche thinges haue the similitude of wysdome in chosen holynes and humblenes, and in that they spare not the body, and to the flesh no worshippe vnto his nete.

He putteth them in remembrance of the spirituall resurrection, to laye aside all manner of corrupte lyuinge, to be fructifull in all godlynes and vertue, and sheweth all degrees theyr duty.

C A P I.

I I I.

Yf ye be then risen agayne with Christ, & seke those thinges whiche are aboue, where Christ sitteth on the right hande of God. Set your affection on thinges that are aboue, & not on thinges which are on the earth. For ye are dead, and your lyfe is hyd with Christ in God. When Christ whiche is our lyfe, shall shewe him selfe, then shall ye also appere with hym in glory.

Reioyce therefore your meynbres whiche are on the earth, fornication, vncleannes, vnnatural lust, euill concupiscence, and covetousnes whiche is worshippyng of ydoles: for whiche thinges the wrath of God cometh on the chyldren of vnbelyfe. In whiche ye walked once, when ye lyued in them.

But now put ye also awaye frome you all thinges: wrath, fiercenes, maliciounesse, cursed speakinge, filthy speakinge out of your mouthes. As ye not one to another & after ye haue put of the oide man with his workes not in shadowes: so when ye haue him ye ought not to folowe the shadowes or Phosces lawes, ceremonies and suginges of mans wysdome.

Paul Syluanus and Timothe. Vnto the con-gregacion of the Thessalonians, in God the father, and in the Lord Jesus Christ.

Grace with you, and peace frome God our father and frome the Lord Jesus Christ.

We geue God thankes alwaye, for you all, makinge mention of you in our prayers without ceasinge, and call to remembraunce your worke in the faith, and labour in loue and perseuerance in the hope of our Lord Jesus Christ, in the sight of God our father: because we knowe (brethren beloued of God) that ye are elect. for our Gospel came not vnto you in worde onely, but also in power, and also in the holy ghoſte, and in moche reuerencie, as ye knowe after what maner we behaued our selues amonge you, for your sakes.

And ye became folowers of vs, and of the Lord, and receyued the worde in moche assencion, with ioye of the holy ghoſte: so that ye were an exemple to all that beleue in Macedonia and Achaia. for frome you sounded out the worde of the Lord, not in Macedonia and in Achaia onely: but your saythe also whiche ye haue vnto God, spied abrode in all quarters, so greatly that it nedeth not vs to speake any thinge at all. for they them sel-ues beue of you, what maner of entinge in we had vnto you, and howe ye turned to God frome vylles, to serue the lyuinge and true God, and to loke for his sonne frome heauen whome he rayled frome deathe: I meane Jesus whiche he lyueth vs frome the death to come.

The putteth them in minde, of the godly conuer-sacion, that he leue amonge them, when he preached the Gospel vnto them, thanketh God that they receyue his worde so fruitfully, and exulteth his absence.

C A P I. II.

For your selues knowe (brethren) of our entraunce in vnto you, howe that it was not in harnye: but euen after that we hadde suffered before, and were shamefully entreated at Philippios. (as ye well knowe) then were we bolde in our God to speake vnto you the Gospel of God, with moche payninge. Our exhortation was not to bringe you to erre, nor yet to brennes, neyther was it with gyle: but as we were allowed of God, that the Gospel shoulde be committed vnto vs: euen so we spake, not as though we entended to please men, but God, which try-eth our hartes.

Neyther was our conuersacion at anye tyme with flatteringe wordes, as ye well knowe, neyther in cloked couetousnesse. God is recorde: neyther sought we praise of men, neyther of you, nor yet of any other, when we might haue bene chargeable, as the Apostles of Christ, but we were tender amonge you, euen as a nurse cherissheth her children, so was our affection towardes you:
our good will was to haue grace vnto you, not the Gospel of God onely: but also our owne soules, because ye were deare vnto vs.

Ye remember (brethren) our labour, and trouaple. for we laboured daye and nyght, because we wolde not be greuous vnto to any of you, and preached vnto you the Gos-pell of God. Ye are witnesses, and so is God, howe holily, and iustly, and vnblymeably, we behaued our selues, amonge you that beleue:
as ye knowe howe that we exhorted and comforted and besought euery one of you, as a father his children, that ye wolde walke worthy of God, whiche hath called you vnto his kyngdome and glory.

For this cause thanke we God with oute ceasinge, because that when ye receyued of vs the worde wherewith God was preached, ye receyued it not as the worde of man: but eue as it was in dede, the worde of God, whiche worketh in you that beleue.

For ye brethren became folowers of the congregacions of God, whiche in Jewry are in Christ Jesus: for ye haue suffered lyke thin-ges of your kynsmen, as we our selues haue suffered of the Jewes. Whiche as they kylled the Lord Jesus and their owne prophetes, euen so haue they persecuted vs: and God they please not, and are contrarye to all men and forbyd vs to preache vnto the Gentyles, that they myght be saved, to fulfill there syn-nes alwaye. for the wrath of God is come on them, euen to the extreme ende.

For as moche brethren as we are kept fro you, for a season, as concernyng the bodye presence, but not in the herte, we enforced the more to se you personally with great desire. And therefore we wolde haue come vnto you, I Paul ones and agayne: but Satan withstode vs. for what is our hope, or lope, or crowne of reioysyng? Are not ye it in the presence of our Lord Jesus Christ at his commyng? Yes ye are our glory and ioye.

The sheweth howe greatly he was reioysed, when Timothe tolde him of their faith and loue.

Paul apostle of Jesu Christ, by the commaundement of God our sauour & Loyde Iesus Christ whiche is our hope.

Vnto Timothe his ryghte sonne in the faythe.

Grace, merce, and pear, from God our fa ther, and Loyde Iesus Christ our Loyde.

As I belought the to abyde still in Ephe sus when I departed in to Macedony, euen so do, that thou commaunde some that they reache none other wyse: neither geue hede to fables and genealogyes which are endles, and brede doubtles rather then godly edifyinge, whiche is by faythe: for the ende of the commaunde ment is ploue that cometh of a pure herte, and of a good conscience, and of fapth vnspayed: frome whiche thynges some haue erred, and haue turned vnto bayne tangling, because they wolde be doctours in the scripture, and yet vnderstande not what they speke, neither wherof they aspyre.

* We knowe that the lawe is good, yf a man vse it lawfully, vnderstandynge this, that the lawe is not geuen vnto a ryghtous man, but vnto the vnyghtous & disobedient, to the vngodly, and to synners, to vnholp, and vncleane, to murderers of fathers, and mur derers of mothers, & to manslayers, hooremongers: to them that despyle them selues with mankynde: to men seales: to lyars, and to perjured, and so forth: yf there be any o ther thyng that is contrarie to holisome doctryne: accordynge to the gospell of the glo ry of the blessed God, whiche is commaunded vnto me.

And I thanke Christ Iesu oure Loyde, whiche hath made me stronge: for he coun tered me true, and put me in office, when be fore I was a blasphemour, and a persecutour, and a tyrant, but I obteyned merce, because I dyd it ignorantly throught vnydelye. Re uerthelesse the grace of oure Loyde was moze abundaunt with fapth and loue whiche is in Christ Iesu. I

* This is a true sayinge, and by all mea nes worthye to be receyued, that Christ Iesu came in to the worlde to saue synners, of whome I am chiefe. Notwithstandynge for this cause was merce geuen vnto me, that Iesus Christ wolde syke wete on me all longe patience, vnto the exemple of them whiche shall in tyme to come byleue on hym vnto euerylastynge lyfe. So then vnto God bynge euerylastynge, immortall, inuysible, and wyl onely, be honoure and prayse for euere and euere. Amen.

This commaundement comyt I vnto the (sonne Timothe) accordynge to the pro phetes, whiche in tyme past were prophesied of the, that thou in them shouldest fyghte a good fyghte, hauynge fapthe and good consi ence whiche some haue put awaye from them, and as concernynge fapthe, haue made theyr wycke. Of whose nombre is Hymeneus, and Alexander, whiche I haue deliuered vnto Satan, that they myghte be taughte not to blaspheme.

He exhorteth to pray for all men. He wyl not haue women to be ouer costly arrayed nor to teache in the congregacion, but to be in silence, and obey their hus bandes.

Exhoite therfore that aboue all thynges, prayers, supplications, intercessions, and geyunge of thanks be hadde for all men: for kynges, and for all that are in authoritie, that we maye lyue a quyet and a peaceable lyfe, in all godlynes, and honestie. For that is good and accepted in the syght of God our sauour, whiche wyl haue all men saved, and to come vnto the knowlege of the trowth. For there is one God, and one mediatour by twene God and man, which is the man Christ Iesus, whiche gaue hym selfe a ransom for all men, that it sholde be testyfyed at his tyme wherunto I am ordeyned a preacher and an Apostle: I tell the teuthe in Christe and lye not, beinge the teacher of the Gentyles in fapth and verite. I

I wyl therfore that the men praye eue ry where, lyfynge by pure handes without wycke, or doubtinge. Lykewyse also the wo men, that they arraye them selues in comely apparell, with shames and discrete be haviour: not with byrned heere, either gold, or pearles, or costly arraye: but with suche as becommeth women that professe the worship pyng of God throught good workes. * Let the woman learne in silence with all subie ction. I suffer not a woman to teache, ney ther to haue authoritie ouer the man: but for to be in silence. For Adam was first formed, & then Eue. Also Adam was not deceyued, but the woman was deceyued, and was in trans gression. The seconde Epistle of S.
Paule the Apostle, vnto Timothe.

Paul exhorteth Timothe to steadfastnes and pa-cience in persecution, and to continue in the doctrine that he had taughte hym. A commendacion of Onesophorus.

C A P I.

Paul Apostle of Jesu Chryst by the will of god to preache the promes of lyfe, which is in Chyist Jesu.

To Timothe his beloved son.
Grace, mercede and peax, frome God the father, and from Jesu Chyist our Lorde.

* I thanke God, whom I serue from myne elders, with pure conscience, that without cea-syng I make mention of the in my prayers nyght and day, bespyng to se the, myndful of thy teares: so that I am filled with ioye, whē I call to remembrance the vnfaigned saythe that is in the, which dwelt fyrst in thy grandmother Lois, and in thy mother Eunice: and am assured that in the also.

Wherefore I warne the thou styre by the gyfte of God which is in the, by the purtyng on of my handes. * For God hath not gauen vs the spiryte of feare, but of power, and of loue, & of sobrietyes of mynde. Be not ashamed to testifie of our Lorde, neither be ashamed of me, which am bounde for his sake: but suffre thou aduersitie also with the gospell, thow the power of God, which saued vs, and called vs, with an holy calling: not accorpyng to our dedes, but accorpyng to his owne purpose and grace, which was gauen thow Chyist Jesu before the worlde was, but is now declared openly, by the apperayng of our sauoure Jesu Chyist, which hath put awaye deathe, and hath brought lyfe and immortallite vnto lyghte thow the gospell. * Whereunto I am appoynted, a preacher and Apostle, and a teacher of the Gentyles: for which cause I also suffre these thynges. Neuerthelesse I am not ashamed. For I knowe whom I have be-lieued, & am sure that he is habile to kepe that which I haue committed to his keepinge a-gaynste that daye.

Se thou haue a foyme of holysome wordes which thou herdest of me in sayth and loue which is in Jesu Chyist. That good thyng which was committed to thy keepinge, kepe in the holy ghooste, which dwelleth in vs.
This thou knowest that all they which are in Asia be turned frome me. Of which sorte are Phygios, and Hermogenes. The Lorde grue mercede vnto the house of Onesopho-rus, for he ofte refreshed me, and was not ashamed of my chayne: but when he was at Rome, soughte me oute verye diligently, and founde me. The Lorde graunte vnto him he maye fynde mercede with the Lorde at that daye. And in howe many thynges he myn-dered vnto me at Ephesus, thou knowest beyve well.

As he as in the first Chapter, so here he exhorteth him to be constant in trouble, to suffre many, and to abide fast in the holysome doctrine of our Lorde Jesu Chyist.

C A P I.

I I.

Thou therefore my sonne, be stronge in the grace that is in Chyist Jesu. And what thynges thou hast herde of me by many wyrmelles, the same deliuer to saythful men, which are apte to teache other. Thou therefore suffre affliction, as a good souldioure of Jesu Chyist. No man that warreth, entan-glet him selfe with worldly busynes, because he wolde please him that hath chosen hym to be a souldioure. And though a man streue for a mastery, yet is he not crowned, onlesse he streue lawfully. * The husbandman that labourerth must fyrr receyue of the frutes. & blythe what I saye. The Lorde gyue the vnderstandinge in all thynges. *

Remember that Jesu Chyist, beyng of the seed of Dauid, rose agayn from deeth, according to my gospell, wherein I suffre trouble as an evyll doer, even vnto bonds. But the worde of God was not bounde. Wherefore I suffre all thynges for the electes sakes, that they mighte also obtayne that saluacion which is in Chyist Jesu, with eternall glorie.

It is a true saying: yf we be dead with him, we also shall lyue with him. Yf we be patient, we shall also reygne with him. * Yf we denye him, he also shall denye vs. Yf we beleue not, yet abyde he saythful. He can not deny him self. Of these thynges put them in remembrance and testifie before the Lorde, that they strue not about wordes, which is to no profyte, but to peruerse the hearers.

Study to shew thy self laudable vnto god a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly cutting the worde of truthe. * An-gostly and bayne voyces passe ouer. For they shall increase vnto greater vngodlynes, and theyr wordes wal feet euen as doth a canker: amonges whom is Hyminios and Philetos, which from the truthe haue cecred, saying that the resurrection is past already, and do destroye the sayth of dyuers persons.

But the sure groundes of God remapnethe, and hath this please: the Lorde knoweth them that are his, and let euery man that callet on the name of Chyist depart from iniquite. For-withstandyng in a great house: are not onely vessels of gold and of syluer: but also of wode and of erch, some for honoure, and some vnto dishonour. Yf a man therefore will purge him selfe from such, he shall be a vessel sanctified vnto honoure, meet for the Lorde, and prepared vnto all good workes.

Vnto of youth auoyde, & pursue rightous-nes, sayth, loue, and peax, with them that call on the Lorde with pure hert. * Forsyue and vniuersed questions put from the, remembryng that they do but genidre strife. But the seruant of the Lorde must streue, but must be peasable vnto al men, and apte to teache, and one that can suffice the euyl in mekenes, and can informe them that resist, yf that god at any time will

will gyue them repentance to knowe the truthe, that they may come to them selues a-gayne out of the snare of the deuyl, which are now taken of him at his will.

The prophesie of the perpyous tymes, setteth out pocretes in theyr colours, setteth vs what they be within, for all theyr saye faces outwardly. Persecution for the Gospell.

C A P I.

I I I.

This vnderstande, that in the last dayes shall come perpyous tymes. For the men shall be louers of theyr owne sel-ues, sonetous, boasters, proude, curled speakers, disobedient to father & mother, vnthankfull, vnholly, vnkynde, trucebreakers, Subborne, false accusers, spytuous, searce, despyers of them which are good, traytours, heedy, brygh mynded, greddy vpon voluptuousnes more then the louers of God, hauyng a foyme of godly lyuynge, but haue denyed the power ther-of: and suche abhorre. Of this sorte are they which entre in to houses, and bypunge in to bondage women loden with synne, which are ledde of dyuers lutes, euery leenyng, and neuer habile to come to the knowlege of the trouthe.

* As Iannes and Jambres withstode Moses, euen so doo these respyse the trouthe, men they are of corrupte myndes, and leude concernyng the saythe: but they shall preuaile no longer. For theyr madnes shall be bettered vnto all men as theyr was. But thou haue sene the experience of my doctrine, fallow of lypunge, purpose, saythe, longe sufferynge, loue, patience, persecutions, and affryctions, which happened vnto me at Antioche, at Tronum, and at Assea: which persecutions I suffered patiently. And from the all the Lorde deliuered me. Yea and all that will lyue godly in Chyist Jesu, must suffre persecutions. But the euyl men and discepuers wal were worse and worse, whyle they discepu and are disce-ued them selues.

But continue thou in the thynges which thou hast lerned, which also were committed vnto the, scinge thou knowest of whom thou hast lerned them, and for as moche also as thou hast knowne holy scripture of a chylde, which is habile to make the wise vnto saluation, thow the saythe which is in Chyist Jesu. * For all scripture gauen by inspiration of God, is profitable to teache, to improve, to amende, and to instruct in rightousnes, that the man of God, may be perfect and prepared vnto all good workes.

He exhorteth Timothe to be seruent in the worde and to suffre aduersite, maketh mention of his owne death, and byddeth Timothe to come vnto him.

C A P I.

I I I I.

I testifie therefore before God, and before the Lorde Jesu Chyist, which shall iudge quycke and deed at his apperayng in his kyngdom, preache thou wo, & be seruent, be it in season or out of season. Improue, rebuke, exhort with all long suffering and doctrine.

For the tyme will come when they will not suffre holysome doctrine: but after theyr own lustes shall they (whose eares yteche) get them an heape of teachers, and shall turne theyr ea-res frome the truthe, and shall be gyuen vnto fables. But warche thou in all thynges, and suffre aduersitie, and do the workes of an apostle, fulfyll thyne offyce.

For I am now redy to be offered, & the tyme of my departyng is at hande. I haue fought a good fyghe, and haue fulfyllid my course, & haue kept the sayth, from henceforth is layde by for me a crowne of rightousnes, which the Lorde that is a rightous iudge shall gyue me at that daye, not to me only, but vnto al them that loue his commyng. Make spede to come vnto me anon.

For Demas hath left me, and loueth this present worlde, and is departed vnto Thessalonica. Crescens is gone to Galacia, & Titus vnto Dalmacia. Onely Lucas is with me. *
Take Marke and bypunge hym with the, for he is necessarye vnto me, for to minstre. And Tychicus haue I sent to Ephesus. The cloke that I left at Troada with Carpus, when thou comest bypung with the, and the booke, but specially the parchment. Alexander the coppermyth dyd me moche euyl, the Lorde rewarde him according to his dedes, of whom be thou ware also. For he withstode our preachyng sore.

At my first anstereyng, no man assisted me, but all forsoke me. I praye God that it inape not be layde to theyr charges: * notwithstanding, the Lorde assisted me, and strenghted me, that by me the preachinge wolde be ful-fyllid to the vtremost, and that all the Gentyles wolde heare. And I was deliuered out of the mouth of the lyon. And the Lorde wal de-liuer me from all euyl doyng, and shall kepe me vnto his breuenly kyngdome. To whom be praise for euer and euer. Amen. *

Salute Pulus, and Aquila, and the hous-holde of Onesophorus. Erastus abode at Co-rine. Trophimos I left at Miletum sycke.
Make spede to come before wynter. Eubos-lus greeteth the, and Pudens, and Linus, and Claudia, and all the bye-chren. The Lorde Jesu

Chyist be with thy spiryte. Grace be with you.

The Epistle of S. Paule vnto Titus.

Paul exhorteth Titus to ordeyne prelates or by-shoppes in euery cite, & declareth what maner of men they ought to be that are chosen to that office, and chargeth Titus to rebuke suche as withstande the gospell.

Wouldest thou that whiche becommeth holysome lernynge. That the elder men be sober, honed, discrete, sounde in the faythe, in loue, in pacience. The elder women lychewyse, that they be in surer payment as becommeth holynes, not false accusers, not giuen to moche dyscrynge, but teachers of honest thynges, to make the yonge women sober mynde, to loue their husbands, to loue theyr chyldren, to be discrete, chaste, huswifly, good, and obedient vnto theyr husbands, that shouldest perforce that whiche was lackinge, and shouldest ordeyne elders in euery cite as I appoynted the. If any be faultlesse, the husbande of one wyfe, haunge faithfull chyldren, whiche are not sclaundered of spot, nether are disobedient. For a byshop muste be faultlesse, as it becommeth the minstre of God: not stubborne, not angre, no dyon-harde, no fyghter, not gruen to sylthpse lucre: but barbarous, one that loueth good-and suche as cleueth vnto the faithfull worde of doctrine, that he maye be hable to rebuke with holysome lernynge, and to improve them that saue agaynst it.

For there are many disobedient and talkers of vanitie, and distructors of myndes, namely they of the circumcision, whose mouthes must be stopped, whiche prouert hole houses, tra-chyng thynges whiche they ought not, by cause of sylthpse lucre. One berenge of them selues, which was a poete of theyr owne, said:
The Cretians are alwayes lyars, curill beefies, and slowe helpes. This wyrtnes is true, wherefore rebuke them warply, that they maye be sounde in the faythe, and not ta-kyng hede to Jewes fables, and commaundementes of men, that turne from the truthe.

* Titus the pure are all thynges pure: but vnto them that are defyled and vnpleurage is nothyng pure: but euen the very myndes and conferences of them are defyled. They confesse they knowe God: but with the sedes they denye him / beyng abhominable and disobedient, and vnto all good workes disallowed.

He telleth him how he shall teach all degrees to be-hauie them selues.

C A P I.

II.

Of these thynges I wolde thou shouldest certifye, that they whiche by leue God, might be diligent to go forwarde in good workes.
These thynges are good and profytable vnto men. For the queysons and genealogyes, and brawnyng and strepe aboute the lawe a-uoyde: for they are vnprofytable and superfluons. A man that is giuen to herselfe, after the fyrste and the seconde admonition, auoyde: remembryng that he that is surhe, is peruersed and synneth, euen damned by his owne iudgement.

When I shall sende Artemas vnto the, or

ter. Bynge Zenas the lawyer, and Appollos on theyr iourney diligently, that nothyng

The Epistle of S. Paule unto Titus.

Paul exhorteth Titus to ordeyne prestes of byshoppes in every cite, declareth what maner of men they ought to be that are chosen to that office, and exhorteth Titus to rebuke suche as withstande the gospel.

C A P I.

I.

While the seruant of god, and apostle of Iesu Christ, to preache the fayth of Gods elect, and the knowlege of the truth, whiche is after godlynes vpon the hope of eternall lyfe, whiche God that can not lye, hath promysed afore the worlde began, but hath opened his word at the tyme appointed thowth preaching, whiche is committed vnto me, by the commandment of God our sauour: To Titus his very true sonne in the common fayth.

Grace, mercy, and peax from God the father and from the Lorde Iesu Christ our sauour.

For this cause left I the in Crete, that thou shouldest perforce that whiche was lackynge, and shouldest ordeyne elders in euery cite as I appointed the. If any be faultlesse, the husbande of one wyfe, haunge saythfull chylidren, whiche are not schaundered of cryt, neyther are disobedient. For a byshop muste be faultlesse, as it becommeth the ministe of God: not stubborne, not angrie, no dyshardie, no fyghter, not giuen to frysche lurre: but barbarous, one that loueth goodnes, sobre mynded, ryghtous, holp, temperat, and suche as cleueth vnto the saythfull word of doctrine, that he maye be able to rebuke both holosome lerynge, and to improue them that saye agaynst it.

For there are many disobedient and talkers of banitie, and disceuerers of myndes, namely they of the circumcision, whose mouthes must be stopped, whiche peruert hole houses, teachinge thynges whiche they oughte not, by cause of fylthye lurre. One bynge of them selues, which was a poet of their owne, said: The Cretians are alwayes lyars, cupill belies, and slowe helpes. This wyrtne is true, wherfore rebuke theym sharply, that they maye be sounde in the faythe, and not takynge heede to Jewes fables, and commandementes of men, that turne from the truth.

¶ Vnto the pure are all thynges pure: but vnto them that are defyled and vnpleasurage is nothyng pure: but euen the very myndes and consciences of them are defyled. They confesse they knowe God: but with the dedes they denye him / beynge abhominable and disobedient, and vnto all good workes disallowed.

¶ He telleth him how he shall teach all digrees to haue them selues.

C A P I.

II.

But speake thou that whiche becommeth holosome lerynge. That the elder men be sober, honest, discrete, sounde in the faythe, in loue, in patience. The elder women lyke wyse, that they be in suche raymente as becommeth holynes, not false accusers, not giuen to moche dyspkyng, but teachers of honest thynges, to make the yonge women sobre mynded, to loue their husbands, to loue theyr chylidren, to be discrete, chaste, huswifery, good, and obedient vnto theyr husbands, that the worde of God be not cupill spoken of. Yonge men lyke wyse exhort, that they be sobre mynded.

Above all thynges, lette the selfe an example of good workes, with vncorrupt doctrine with honestie, and with the holosome worde whiche can not be rebuked, that he whiche withstandeth, maye be ashamed, hauinge nothyng in you that he maye dyspraise. ¶ The seruantes exhort to be obedient vnto theyr owne masters, and to please in all thynges, not answering agayne, as they to be pychers, but that they them al good saythfulnes, that they maye do worship to the doctrine of our sauour God in all thynges.

¶ For the grace of God that byngeth saluation vnto all men, hath appeared, and teacheth vs that we shoulde denye vngodynesse, and worldly lures, and that we shoulde lyue sobre mynded, ryghtously and godly in this present worlde, lokynge for that blessed hope and glorious apperance of the myghty God, and of oure sauour Iesu Christ, whiche gaue hym selfe for vs to redeme vs frome all vnerightousnes, and to pouge vs a peculpat people vnto hym selfe, seruenly giuen vnto good workes. These thynges speake, and exhort, and rebuke, with all commaundyng. Se that no man despyse the.

¶ Of obedience to suche as be in authority. He warneth Titus to beware of tolyshe and vnposible questions.

C A P I.

Warne them that they submit them selues to rule and power, to obey the officers, that they be redye vnto all good workes, that they speake cupill of no man, that they be no fyghters: but softe, lette wyng all mekenes vnto all men. For we our selues also were in tymes past, vnwyse, disobedient, disceyued, in daunger to lustes, and dyuers maners of voluptuousnes, lyuynge in maliciousnes and enuye, full of hate, hatynge one an othe.

¶ But after that the kyndnes and loue of our sauour God towards man appeared, not of the dedes of ryghtousnes whiche we wrought, but of his mercy he saured vs, by the fountayne of the newe byrth, and with the resurynge of the hely ghoost, which he shed on vs abundantly, thowth Iesu Christ our sauour, that we ones iustified by his grace, shoulde be heires of eternall lyfe, thowth hope. ¶ This is a true sayinge.

The Epistle of S. Paule unto Philemon

He retyereth to hear of the faythe and loue of Philemon, whome he despyth to forgyue his seruante Onesimus, and louynge to receyue him agayne.

Rule the pyloner of Iesu Christ, and brother Timotheus. Vnto Philemon the beloued, and our helper, and to the beloued Appia, & to Archippus our fellowe souldiour, & to the congregation of thy house. Grace be with you and peax, from God our father, and from the Lorde Iesu Christ.

I thanke my God, making mention alwayes of the in my prayers, when I heare of thy loue and sayth whiche thou hast towards the Lorde Iesu, and towards all sayntes: so that the fellowship that thou hast in the sayth is frutful thowth knowlege of all good thynges which are in you by Iesu Christ. And we haue greaite toy and consolacion ouer thy loue: for by the (brother) the sayntes heres are comforted.

Wherfore thoughte I be bolde in Christe, enioyne the that whiche becommeth the, yet for loues sake I rather beseeche the, though I be as I am euen Paule aged, and now in bandes for Iesu Christes sake. I beseeche the for my sonne Onesimus whome I begat in my bondes, which in tyme past was to the vnprofitable, but now profitable bothe to the, and also to me, whome I haue sent home agayne. Thou therfore receyue hym, & is to save myne owne bowels, whome I wolde sayne haue re- tained with me, that in thy dede he myghte haue myntred vnto me in the bondes of the gospel.ouertheless, without thy mynde wolde I do nothyng, that the good whiche spryngeth of the, shoulde not be as it were of necessitie, but wyllyngly.

Haply he therfore departed for a seass, that thou shouldest receyue him to euer, not now as a seruant, but aboue a seruant / I meane a brother beloued, specially to me: how moche moze vnto the, bothe in the fleshe and also in the Lorde? If thou count me a fellowe, receyue hym as my selfe. If he hath hurt the, or oweth the oughte, that laye to my charge. I Paule haue wyrtten with myne owne hande. I wyl recompence it. So that I do not saye to the, how thou owest vnto me euen thyne owne self. Euen so brother, let me enioyne the in the Lorde. Comforte my bowels in the Lorde. Trustyng in thyne obedience, I wrote vnto the, knowynge that thou wylt do moze then I saye for. Wherfore prepare me lodgyng: for I trust thowth the helpe of youre prayers, I shall be gyue vnto you. Here salute the, Epaphras my fellow pyloner in Christe Iesu, Marcus, Aristarchus, Demas, Lucas, my helpers. The grace of our Lorde Iesu Christ be with yous spirytes. Amen.

Q4 for

For it is sufficient for us that we have spent the tyme that is past of the lyfe, after the will of the Gentyles, walking in wantonnesse, lustes, drunkennesse, in eatinge, dymkynge, and in abhominable ydolatre.

And it seemeth to them a straunge thyng that ye runne not also with them vnto the same excelle of ypot, and therefore speake they euill of you, whiche shall geue accomptes to hym that is rede to iudge quicke and deed. * For vnto this purpose was the gospel preached vnto the deed, that they shoulde be iudged lyke other men in the fleshe, but shoulde lyue before god in the spirite. The ende of all thynges is at hande.

* We ye therefore discrete and sober, that ye maye be apte to praye. But about all thynges haue frequent charitie amonge you. For charitie couereth the multitude of synnes. We ye haue one to another, and that without grudgynge. As euery man hath receyued the gyfte mynstre the same one to another, as good ministers of the manifolde grace of God. If any man speake, let hym talke as though he spake the wordes of God. If any man minstre, let hym doo it as of the habilitie whiche God ministreth vnto hym: So that God in all thynges may be glorified thowhe Iesus Chyrist, to whome be prayse and dominion, for euer, and whyle the worlde standeth. Amen.

Deerly beloued, be not troubled in this heate, whiche now is come amonge you to tpe you, as though some straunge thyng had happened vnto you: but reioyce, in as moche as ye are partakers of Chyristes passions, that when his gloire appeareth, ye maye be merry and gladd. If ye be rayled vpon for the name of Chyrist happy are ye. For the spirite of gloire, and the spirite of God resteth vpon you. On they parte he is euill spoken of: but on your parte he is glorified.

So that none of you suffre as a murderer, or as a thefe, or an euill doer, or as a busy bodye in other mens maters. If any man suffre as a chylden man, let him not be ashamed, but let him glorifye God in this behalfe. For the tyme is come that iudgement muste begyn at the house of God. If it firste begyn at vs, what shal the ende be of them whiche by lene not the gospel of God? And if the ryghteous scarcely be saued: where shal the vngodly and the synner appeare? Wherefore let them that suffre accorde to the will of God, commit theyr soules vnto him with well doyng, as vnto faythfull maker.

A speciall exhortation for all byshoppes or prestes to fede the flocke of Chyrist. He exhorteth yonge persons to submit the selues to the elder, euery one to loue an other, to be sober and to wathe, that they maye resist the enemye.

C A P I.

V.

The prestes which are amonge you. I exhort, whiche am also a prest & a bytles of the afflictions of Chyrist, and also a partaker of the gloire that shall be opened: so that ye fede Chyristes flocke which is amonge you, takynge the ouerlyghte of them not as though ye were compelled thereto, but willingly: not for the desyre of tithes lute, but of a good mynde, not as though ye were lordes ouer the flocke: but that ye be an ex- ample to the flocke. And whyle the chiefe shep- herde shall appere, ye shall receyue an incor- ruptible crowne of gloire. Wherfore ye pon- der, submyt your selues vnto the elder. Sub- myt you selues euery man, one to an other: knytte your selues together in lowynes of mynde. For God resisteth the proude, and gi- ueth grace to the humble. Submyt your sel- ues therefore vnder the mighty hande of God, that he maye craite you, when the tyme is come. Caste all your care on hym: for he taketh for you.

We sober and wathe, for your aduersarye the deuyll as a roynge lyon walketh aboute sekynge whome he maye deuoure: whome resisteth standfast in the faythe, remembrynge that ye doo fulfill but the same afflictions whiche are appoynted to youe by chyzen that are in the worlde. The God of grace whiche called you vnto his eternall gloire by Chyrist Iesu, shall his owne selfe after ye haue suffe- red a lytell affliction make you perfecte: shall settle, strengthe, and stablyshe you. To hym be gloire and dominion for euer, and whyle the worlde endureth. Amen.

By Syluanus a faythfull brother vnto you (as I suppose) haue I wyrtten breifly, exhor- tyng and restryng that this is the true grace of God, wherein ye stande. The companions of your election that are of Babylon, salute you, and Marcus my sonne. Grette ye one an other with the kisse of loue. Peace be with you all whiche are in Chyrist Iesu. A. B. C. D.

a prest, in the foythe, firste an elder, bycause com- mentyng they were elders, me, that was chosen to teache the people. I darflesse grete haue lorde, that is to saye, vnto whiche the prestes, and byshopes are appoynted by lot, or elec- tion, to preache the goddes word to them.

The seconde Epistle of Saynt Peter.

He exhorteth the to flee the corrupcion of world- ly lust, and make theyr callinge sure with good wo- rkes, and frutes of fayth.

C A P I.

I.

Simon Peter seruante and Apostle of Iesu Chyrist, to them whiche haue obtey- ned lyke precious faith with vs in the ryghtousnes that cometh of our God and fa- niour Iesu Chyrist.

Grace with you, and peace be multiplied in the knowlege of God, & of Iesus our Loyde. So as his godly power hath geuen vs all thynges that pertaine to lyfe and godlynes, thowhe the knowlege of him that hath called vs by vertue and gloire, by the meanes wherof are geuen to vs excellent and moost great pro- mises, that by the helpe of them, ye shoulde be partakers of the godly nature, in that ye flee the corrupcion of worldly lust.

Yea, and herevnto geue all diligence: in your fapthe & minstre vertue, in your vertue knowlege, and in knowlege temperance, and in temperance patience, and in patience godly- nes, in godlynes brotherly kyndnes, in bro- therly kyndnes loue. For if these thynges be amonge you & are plenteous, they wyll make you, that ye neither shall be yble, nor vnfruit- ful in the knowlege of our Loyde Iesu Chyrist. But he that lacketh these thynges is blynde, and gropeth for the way with his hande, and hath forgotten that he was purged from his olde synnes.

Wherefore brethren, geue the more dilige- ce to make your callinge and election sure. For yf ye do suche thynges, ye shal neuer erre. Yea by this meanes an entrynge in shall be mini- stred vnto you habundantly in to the cuerla- stynge kyngdome our Loyde and saupour Ie- su Chyrist.

Wherefore I wyll not be negligent to put you alwayes in remembraunce of suche thyng- ges, though ye knowe them your selues, and be also stablyshed in the present trowth. Not withstandynge, I thynke it more (as longe as I am in this tabernacle) to stee you up by puttynge you in remembraunce, for as moche as I am sure the tyme is at hande that I must put of my tabernacle, such as our Loyde Ie- su Chyrist hath shewed me. I wyll doo my deuour therfore, that on euery syde ye myghte haue togeth with to stee by the remembraunce of these thynges after my departure. * For me foloweth not discernable fables, when we opened vnto you the power and commynge of our Loyde Iesu Chyrist, but with our eyes we sawe his maiestie: euen then verily when he receyued of God the father honoure and gloire, and when there came suche a voyce to hym frome the excellent gloire. * This is my dere beloued sonne, in whome I haue deleyte. This voyce we herde when it came frome heauen, beyng with hym in the holy mounte.

We haue also a ryghte sure worde of pro- phete, wherunto ye take heede, as vnto a lyght that shyneth in a darke place, ye to wel, vntill the daye dawne, and the daye shewe a- ryse in your herttes. * So that ye fynd knowe this: that no prophete in the scripture hath any ppyuate interpretation. For the scrip- ture came neuer by the will of man: but ho- ly men of God spake as they were moued by the holy ghoist.

The propheticall of false teachers, and sheweth their punishment.

C A P I.

II.

There were false prophetes amonge the people, euen as there shall be false tea- chers amonge you: whiche priuely shal bynne in damnable sectes, euen denyng the Loyde that hath bought them, and bring vnto them selues styffe damnacion, and many shal folowe theyr damnable wayes, by which the waye of truthe shall be euill spoken of, and thowhe conuincous shall they with fained wordes make marchaundise of you, whose iudgement is not farr off, and theyr damna- cion slepeth not.

For if god spared not the angels that syn- ned, but cast them downe in to hel, and deli- uered them in to chaynes of darknes to be kepte vnto iudgement, neither spared the old wyse, but saued Noe the right preacher of rightous- nes, and brought in the floode vpon the wyse of the vngodly, & turned the ctytes of Sodom and Gomorrah in to ashes: ouerthrew them da- ned them, and made on them an exemple vnto all that after shoulde lyue vngodly. And iuste Noe vexed with the vniuersally conuersacion of the wycked, deliuered he. For he beyng rygh- tous, and dwelling amonge them in feing and hearynge, vexed his righteous soule from daye to daye with theyr vnlawfull dedes. The Loyde knoweth how to deliuer the godly out of temptaciō, a how to reserue the vniuers vnto the day of iudgement for to be punished: name- ly them that walke after the fleshe in the lust of vniuersnes, and despise the rulers. Presump- tuous are they, and subbozne, and feare not to speake euill of them that are in auctoritie. When the angels whiche are greater bothe in power and myght receyue not of the Loyde rapynge iudgement agaynst them. But these as brute beestes, naturally made to be taken and destroyed, speake euill of that they knowe not, and shall perishe thowhe theyr owne destruction, and receyue the rewarde of vn- ryghtousnes.

They count it pleasure to lyue deliciouly, for a season. Spottes they are, and flychynge lyfynge at pleasure and in discernable wayes, fleshyng with you, haupnge eyes full of ad- moure, and that can not cease to synne, be- gynge vnstable soules. Heres they haue ex- ercised erished with confusion. They are cursed children, and have forsaken the right waye: and are gone astray, followinge the waye of Sa-lan the sonne of Hosa, which loved the reward of unrighteousnes: but was rebuked of his wickednes. The same and domme follynes of the Prophete.

* These are welles without water, and cloudes carryed aboute of a tempest, to whom the myst of darknesse is reserved for ever. For when they haue spoken the swellinge wor-des of vanitie, they begyle with wantonnesse thorow the luses of the fleshe, them that were cleane escaped: but now are wadded in errors. They promise them libertie, and are their selues the bondeservantes of concupiscence. * For of whom so ever a man is overcome, unto the same is he in bondage. For if they after they haue escaped from the synnes of the world, thorow the knowlege of the Lorde and of the saupoure Iesu Christe, are yet tangled agayne therein, & overcome: then is the latter ende worse with them then the begynnyng. For it hadde ben better for them not to have knowne the waye of righteounes, then after they haue knowne it, to turne them. It is happened unto them, accordyng to

This is the seconde epyll that I wrote unto you beloued, wherewith I sette up, and warne your pure myndes, to call to remembraunce the wordes whiche were tolde before of the holy prophetes, and also the commaundement of vs the Apostles of the Lorde and saupoure.

* This syde vnderstande, that there shall come in the last dayes mockers, whiche will walke after theyr owne lustes, & sape. Where is the promise of his commyng? For sithens the fathers dyed, all thynges continue in the same estate wherin they were at the begynning.
This they knowe not (and that wyslyngly) that the heuens a great whyle ago were, and the erthe that was in the water appeared vp out of the water, by the word of God: by whiche thynges the world that then was, perished ouerflown with the water. But the heuens berily, and erth whiche are nowe, are kepte by the same word in floze, and referred unto fyre, agaynst the daye of iudgement and perdition of ungodly men.

Derely beloued, be not ignorant of this one thyng, that one daye is with the Lorde as a thousand yeres, and a thousand yeres as one daye. The Lorde is not slacke to fulfil his promise, as some men count slacknes:

but is patient towards vs, and wolde haue no man losse, but wolde receyue all men to repentaunce.

* Neuerthelesse the daye of the Lorde will come as a thefe in the nyght, in whiche daye, the heuens shall perishe with terrible noyse, and the elementes shall melt with heate, and the erth with the workes that are therein shall burne.

Yf all these thynges shall perishe, what maner persons ought ye to be in holy conuersation and godlynes: lokyng for and hastyng unto the comyng of the day of God, in which the heuens shall perishe with fyre, and the elementes shall be consumed with heat. * Ne-uerthelesse we loke for a newe heuen, and a new erth, accordyng to his promise, in whom abideth righteousnes.

Wherefore (derely beloued) seynge that ye loke for such thynges, be diligent that ye maye be founde of him in peax, without spotte, and undefyled. And suppose that the longe suffe-ryng of the Lordes saluacion, cuen as oure derely beloued brother Paule, accordyng to the wysdome gyven unto hym, wrote to you ye almost in euery epyll, speakynge of such thynges: amonge whiche are many thynges harde to be vnderstande, whiche they that are unlerned, and vnstable peruerse, as they doo other scriptures unto theyr owne destruction.
Ye therfore (beloued) seynge ye knowe it before hande, beware lest ye be also plucked awaye with the error of the wycked, and fall from your owne stedfastnes, but grow in grace, and in the knowlege of our Lorde and sa-upoure Iesu Christ: to who be glo-
rye bothe
nowe and for ever.

True wytnesse of the everlastynge word of God.
The bloude of Christ is the purgacion frome synne.
No man is without synne.

C A P I. I.

What whiche was frome the begynnyng,
whiche we haue herde, whiche we haue sene
with oure eyes, whiche
we haue looked vpon, and oure handes haue handled, of the worde of lyfe. For the lyfe appeared, and we haue sene and beare wytnesse, and shewe vnto you that eternall lyfe, whiche was with the father, and appeared vnto vs. That whiche we haue sene and herde, declare we vnto you, that ye maye haue felow-shipp with vs, and that oure felowshipp maye be with the father and his sonne Iesu Christ.
And this wyte we vnto you, that your ioye maye be full.

And this is the trydynge whiche we haue herde of hym and declare vnto you, that God is lyghte, and in hym is no darkenesse at all.
Yf we saie that we haue felowshipp with hym, and yet walke in darkenesse, we lye, and wo not the trouthe. But yf we walke in the lyghte, cuen as he is in lyghte, then haue we felowshipp with hym, and the bloude of Iesu Christe his sonne clenseth vs frome all synne.

Yf we saie that we haue no synne, we de-ceyue oure selues and trouthe is not in vs.
Yf we knowe oure synnes, he is faith-full and iuste, to forgyue vs oure synnes, and to clenche vs frome all unrighteousnes. Yf we saie we haue not synned, we make him a lyar and his worde is not in vs.

Christ is oure aduocate. Of true loue, and howe it is tryed.

C A P I. II.

My deare chyldren, these thynges wyte
I vnto you, that ye synne not: yf anye man synne, yet we haue a spokesman with the father, Iesu Christ, which is righteous: and he is a mercystocke for our synnes:
not for our synnes onely: but also for the syn-nes of all the world. And hereby we are sure that we knowe hym, yf we kepe his commaundementes. He that sayth I knowe hym, and kepech not his commaundementes is a lyar, and the trouthe is not in hym. Who so euer kepech his worde, in hym is the loue of God perfecte in dede. And thereby knowe we that we are in hym. He that sayeth he abideth in hym, oughte to walke as he walked.

My deare chyldren, I wyte no newe commaun-dement vnto you: but that olde commaun-dement whiche ye herde frome the begynnyng.
The olde commaundement is the worde, whiche ye herde frome the begynnyng. Agayne, a newe commaundement I wyte vnto you, a thyng that is true in hym, and also in you:
for the derkenesse is passe, and the true light nowe shyneth. He that sayth he is in the lyght, and yet hateth his brother, is in derke-nesse euen till this tyme. He that loueth his brother, abideth in the lyght: & there is none occasion of euill in hym. He that hateth his brother, is in derkenesse, and walketh in derkenesse: and canne not tell whither he goeth, because derkenesse hath blinded his eyes.

Deare chyldren I wyte vnto you that your synnes are forgyuen you for his name.
I wyte vnto you fathers, that ye knowe hym that was frome the begynnyng. I wyte vnto you younge men, that ye haue overcome the wycked. I wyte vnto you lytell chyldren, that ye knowe the father. I wyte vnto you fathers, that ye knowe hym that was frome the begynnyng. I wyte vnto you younge men, that ye be stronge and the word of God abyde in you, and ye haue overcome that wycked.

Se ye loue not the worlde, neyther the thynges in the worlde. Yf any man loue the worlde, the loue of the father is not in him.
For all that is in the worlde, as the luste of the fleshe, the lust of the eyes, and the pryde of gooddes, is not of the father, but of the worlde. And the worlde vanyscheth awaye, and the lust therof: but he that fulfilleth the will of God, abydeth euer.

Lytell chyldren it is the laste tyme, and as ye haue herde howe Antichrist shall come, euen nowe are there many Antichristes come alredy. Whereby we knowe that it is the last tyme. They went out from vs, but they were not of vs. For yf they hadde bene of vs, they wolde no dubte, haue continued with vs.
But that fortuneth that it myght apere they were not of vs.

But ye haue an oymente of the holy ghost, and ye knowe all thynges. * I wrote not vnto you, as though ye knewe not the trouthe: but as though ye knewe it, and knowe also that no lye cometh of trithe.
Who is a lyar, but he that denieth that Jesus is Christ? the same is the Antichrist that denieth the father and the sonne. Who so e-uer denieth the sonne, the same hath not the father. Let therfore abyde in you that same whiche ye hearde frome the begynnyng. Yf that whiche ye hearde frome the begynnyng, shall remayne in you, ye also shall continue in the sonne, and in the father. And this is the promise that he hath promysed vs, euen euerlastynge lyfe.

This haue I wytten vnto you, concerning them that deceyue you. And the anoyntinge whiche

which ye receyved of him, dwelleth in you. And ye nede not that anye man teache you: but as the annoyntunge teacheth you all thinges, and is true, and is no lye, and as it taughte you, even so abyde therein. And now babes abyde in hym, that when he shall appeare, we maye be boide, and not be made ashamed of hym at his commynge. Yf ye knowe that he is ryghteous, knowe also that he whiche foloweth ryghteousnesse, is bozne of hym.

The singular love of God toward us: and how we agayne oughte to love one another.

CAP. III.

Behold what love the father hath shewed on us that we shoulde be called the sonnes of God. For this cause the world knoweth you not, because it knoweth not hym. Dearly beloved, now are we the sonnes of God, and yet it woth not appeare what we shall be. But we knowe that when it shall appeare, we shall be lyke him. For we shall se hym as he is. And everie manne that hath this hope in hym, purseyeth hym selfe, even as he is pure. Who so ever commyteth synne, committeth unryghteousnesse also, for synne is unryghteousnesse. And ye knowe he appeared to take awaye oure synnes, and in hym is no synne. As many as abyde in hym, synne not: who so ever synneth, hath not sene hym, neyther hath knowen hym.

Babes, let no man deceyve you. He that woth ryghteousnesse, is ryghteous, even as he is ryghteous. He that committeth synne, is of the deuyll: for the deuyll synneth frome the begynnyng. For this purpose appeared the sonne of God, to take awaye the workes of the deuyll. Who so ever is bozne of God, synneth not: for his seed remaineth in hym, and he can not synne, because he is bozne of God. In this are the chyldren of God knowne, and the chyldren of the deuyll.

Who so ever woth not ryghteousnesse, is not of God, neyther he that loveth not his brother.

For this is the tryngge, that ye herde frome the begynnyng, that ye shoulde love one another: not as Cayn whiche was of the wycked, and slew his brother. And wherfore slew he hym? Because his owne workes were evyll, and his brothers good. Wherfore not my brethren, though the world hate you. We knowe that we are translated frome death unto lyfe, because we love the brethren. He that loveth not his brother, abydeeth in death. Who so ever hateth his brother, is a murderer. And ye knowe that no murderer, hath eternall lyfe abyng in hym.

Heretofore perceyve we the charitie of God: that he gave his lyfe for us: and therefore oughte we also to give our lyves for the brethren. Who so ever hath this worldes good, and seeth his brother have nede: and outstretch by his compassion frome hym: how dwelleth the love of God in hym? By babes, let us not love in worde, ne in tongue: but with the dede, and in veritie: for thereby we knowe that we are of the veritie, and before hym shall appeare oure vertes. But yf oure vertes condemne us, God is greater then oure vertes, and knoweth all thynges. Beloved, yf oure vertes condemne us not, then have we truste upon God: and what so ever we aske, we shall receyve of hym: because we kepe his commandementes, and do those thynges whiche are pleasynge in his sight.

And this is his commandemente, that we beleve on the name of his sonne Jesu Christe, and love one another, as he gave commandementes. And he that kepeth his commandementes, dwelleth in hym, and he in hym: and thereby we knowe that there abyde the in us, of the spiryte, whiche he gave us.

Difference of spirytes, and howe the spiryte of God maye be knowne frome the spiryte of errour. Of the love of God, and of our neyghbour.

CAP. III.

Ye beloved, beleve not every spiryte, but proue the spirytes, whether they are of God, or no: for many false prophetes are gone out into the world. Hereby shall ye knowe the spirite of God. Every spirite that confesseth that Jesus Christe is come in the fleshe, is of God. And every spirite whiche confesseth not that Jesus Christe is come in fleshe, is not of God. And this is that spirite of Antichrist, of whome ye have herde, howe he shoulde come: and even now he already is in the world.

Tell chyldren, ye are of God and have overcome them: for greater is he that is in you, then he that is in the world. They are of the world, and therefore speake they of the world, and the world heareth them. We are of God. He that knoweth God, heareth us: he that is not of God, heareth us not. Hereby knowe we the spirite of veritie, and the spirite of erreour.

Beloved, let us love one another: for love cometh of God. And every one that loveth, is bozne of God, and knoweth God. He that loveth not, knoweth not God, for God is love. In this appeared the love of God toward us, because that God sent his only begotten sonne into the world, that we myght lyve thowgh we hym. Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that he loved us, and sente his sonne to be a sacrifice for oure synnes.

Beloved, yf God so loved us, we oughte also to love one another. No man hath sene God at anye tyme. Yf we love one another, God dwelleth in us, and his love is perfecte in us. Hereby knowe we: that we dwell in hym, hym, and he in us: because he hath given us of his spirite. And we have sene and testifye that the father sente the sonne, whiche is the sauoure of the world. Who so ever confesseth that Jesus is the sonne of God, in him dwelleth God, and he in God. And we have knowne and beleved the love that God hath to us.

God is love: and he that dwelleth in love, dwelleth in God, and God in hym. Herein is the love perfecte in us, that we shoulde have truste in the daye of iudgement: for as he is, even so are we in this world. There is no feare in love, but perfecte love casteth oute all feare, for feare hath bondage. He that feareth, is not perfecte in love.

We love hym, for he loved us first. Yf a man saye, I love God, and yet hate his brother, he is a lyar. For howe can he that loveth not his brother, to whome he hath sene, love God whome he hath not sene? And this commandemente have we of hym: that he whiche loveth God, shoulde love his brother also.

To love God, is to kepe his commandementes. Faith overcometh the world. Everlastynge lyfe is in the sonne of God. Of the synne unto death.

CAP. V.

Who so ever beleueth that Jesus is Christe is bozne of God. And everie one that loveth hym whiche begat, loveth hym also whiche was begotten of hym. In this we knowe that we love the chyldren of God, when we love God and kepe his commandementes. This is the love of God that we kepe his commandementes, and his commandementes are not grevous.

For all that is bozne of God, overcometh the world. And this is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith. Who is he that overcometh the world: but he whiche beleueth that Jesus is the son of God.

This Jesus Christe is he that came by water and bloude, not by water onely: but by water and bloude. And it is the spiryte that beareth wytnesse, because the spiryte is the verye truthe. For there are thre which beare recorde in heauen, the father, the worde, and the holy ghost. And these thre are one. For there are thre whiche beare recorde (in earth) the spiryte, and water, and bloude: and these thre are one. Yf we receyve the wytnesse of men, the wytnesse of God is greater. For this is the wytnesse of God, whiche he testified of his sonne. He that beleueth on the sonne of God, hath the wytnesse in him selfe.

He that beleueth not God, hath made him a lyar, because he beleved not the recorde that God gave of his sonne. And this is that recorde, that God hath given us eternall lyfe, and this lyfe is in his sonne. He that hateth the sonne, hath lyfe: and he that hath not the sonne of God, hath not lyfe.

These thynges have I wyrtten unto you, that ye beleve on the name of the sonne of God that ye maye knowe ye have eternall lyfe, & that ye maye beleve on the name of the sonne of God. And this is the trust we have in him: that yf we aske any thyng accordynge to his wyll, he heareth us. And yf we knowe that he heare us what so ever we aske, we knowe we shall have the petitions that we desyre of hym.

Yf any man se his brother synne a synne that is not unto death, he shall aske, and he shall give hym lyfe for such a synne not unto death. There is a synne unto death, for whiche I saye I not that a man shoulde praye. All unrighteousnesse is synne, & there is synne not unto death.

We knowe that who so ever is bozne of God, synneth not: but he that is begotten of God kepeth him selfe, and that wycked toucheth him not. We knowe that we are of God and that the world is all together set on wickednes. We knowe that the sonne of God is come, and hath given us a mynde to knowe hym whiche is true: and we are in hym that is true, throughe his sonne Jesu Christe. This same is verye God, and everlastynge lyfe.

Babes kepe youre selues frome ymagines.

Amen.

Synne unto death.

By that wicked, he toucheth him not.

By that wicked, he toucheth him not.

He that woth righteously, is bozne of God & taughte of his spirite.

Love is the tryngge and cause of all other.

An hater of his brother is a murderer.

He that hath no compassion, loveth not God.

He that is not his brother, is not God.

He that is not his brother, is not God.

He that is not his brother, is not God.

He that is not his brother, is not God.

He that is not his brother, is not God.

The seconde Epistle of Saynt Iohn.

He wyrteth vnto a certayne lady, reioyseth that her chyliden walke in the truth, exhorteth them vnto loue, warneth them to beware of such deceyvers as denye that Iesus Chyriste came in the fleshe, prayeth them to continue in the doctrine of Chyriste, and to haue nothyng to do with them that bypunge not this learyng.

In the elect lady and her chyliden whiche I loue in the trouthe: and not I onely, but also all knowe the trouthe, for the trouthes sake whiche dwelleth in vs, and shalbe in vs for euer.

With you be grace, mercy and peax frome God the father and frome the Lorde Iesus Chyriste the sonne of the father, in trouthe and loue.

I reioyced greatly, that I founde of thy chyliden walkyng in trouthe, as we haue receyued a commaundement of the father. And now beseeche I the, (lady,) not as though I wrote a newe commaundement vnto the, but that same which we had from the beginning, that we shoulde love one another. And this is the loue, that we shoulde walke after his commaundementes.

This commaundement is (that as ye haue herd frome the begynnynge) ye shoulde walke in it. For many deceyvers are entred into the world, whiche confesse not, that Iesu Chyriste is come in the fleshe. This is a deceyter and an Antichyrist. Take on youe selues, that we lose not that we haue wrought: but that we maye haue a full reward. Who so euer transgresseth, and abyeth not in the word of Chyriste, hath not God. He that endureth in the doctrine of Chyriste, hath bothe the father and the sonne.

If there come any vnto you and byinge not this learyng, him receyue not to house: nei ther byd hym God speke. For he that bydyeth hym God speke, is partaker of his euill dedes. I had many thinges to wyte vnto you, neuertheless I wolde not wyte with pen and ynke: but I truste to come vnto you, and speake with you mouth to mouth, that our loue may be full. The sonnes of thy electe sister grete the.

The thyrde Epistle of Saynt Iohn.

He is gladd, of Gaius, that he walketh in the truth: exhorteth them to be louyng vnto the poore Chyristen in theyr persecucion, bewyeth the vnkynde dealynge of Diotrephes, and the good reaspoyse of Demetrius.

In the electe lady and her chyliden whiche I loue in the trouthe. Beloued, I wyrteth in all thynges that thou prosper and fare well, euen as thy soule prospereth. I reioyced greatly, when thy brethren came, and testyfyed of the truth that is in the, how thou walkest in trouthe. I haue no greater ioye then to heare that my sonnes walke in veritie.

Beloued, thou wast faithfully what to euer thou wast to the brethren, and to straungers, whiche bare wytnesse of thy loue before all the congregacion. Which brethren when thou bringest forwardes of their iourney (as it becometh God) thou shalt do well: because that for his names sake they went forth, and toke nothyng of the Gentyles. We therfore ought to receyue such, that we also myghte be helpers to the truth.

I wrote vnto the congregacion: but Diotrephes which leueth to haue the preeminence amonge them, receyuethe vs not. Wherefore yet I come, I will declare his dedes which he doeth, scyng he is with malicious wordes, neither is therewith content, not only he him selfe receyuethe not the brethren: but also he forbiddeth them that wolde, and thrusteth them out of the congregacion.

Beloued, folowe not the euill, but the good. He that doeth well, is of God: but he that doeth euill seeth not God. Demetrius hath good reaspoyse of all men of the truth: for he receyuethe vs, and we our selues also beare recorde, and we knowe that our recorde is true. I haue many thinges to wyte: but I wil not with ynke and penne wyte vnto the. For I trust I shall shortly se the, and we shall speake mouth to mouth. Peace be with the.

The Epistle vnto the Hebreues.

How God dealeth louyngly with them of the olde tyme in sendyng them his p'rophetes, but moche more mercie hath shewed vs, in that he sent vs his owne sonne. Of the moste excellent gloze of Iesus Chyriste, whiche in all thynges is lyke to his father.

CAP. I.

I.

In tyme paste dyuersly and many wayes, spake vnto the fathers by the p'rophetes: but in these last dayes he hath spoken vnto vs by his sonne, whome he hath made heire of all thynges: by whom also he made the world. Whiche beynge the byghnes of his gloze, and expresse ymage of his substance, bearynge vp all thynges with the worde of his power, hath to his owne person purged oure synnes, and is sytten on the ryght hand of the maieste on hygh, & is more excellent then the angels, for as moche as he hath by inheritaunce obteyned a more excellent name then they.

For vnto whiche of the angels sayd he at any tyme: Thou arte my sonne, this daye begate I the? And agayne: I will be his father, and he shalbe my sonne: And agayne when he byngeth in the first begotten sonne in to the world, he sayth: And all the angels of God shall worshippe hym. And of the angels he sayth: We maketh his angels spirites, and his ministers flammes of fyre. But vnto the sonne he sayth: God, thy seate shall be for euer and euer. The scepter of thy kyngdome is a ryght scepter. Thou haste loued ryghtousnes and hated wykednes. Wherefore God, whiche is thy God, hath anoynted the with the oyle of gladnes above thy felowes.

And thou Lorde in the begynnynge hast layde the foundation of the erth. And the heuens are the workes of thy handes. They shal perswade, but thou shalt endure. They all shal be olde as doth a garment: and as a vesture shalt thou chaunge them, and they shal be chaunged. But thou arte all wayes, and thy yeres shal not faile. Vnto whiche of the angels sayd he at any tyme: Sit on my ryght hande, tyll I make thine enemies thy fote stole: Are they not all mynnynges spytes, sente to mynnysh, for their sakes whiche shal be heires of saluacion?

He exhorteth vs to be obedyent vnto the newe lawe, whiche Chyriste hath gyuen vs, and not to be offended at the infirmitie and lowe degree of Chyriste, because it was necessarye, that for oure sakes, he shoulde takee such an humble state vpon hym, that he myghte be lyke vnto his brethren.

CAP. I.

II.

Wherefore we oughte to gyue the more heed to the thynges we haue herd least we perswade. For of the world whiche was spoken by angels, was bestad: so that euery transgression and disobedience receyued a iust recompence to reward. Howe shall we escape, if we despyse so grete saluacion, whiche at the first began to be preached of the Lorde hym selfe, and afterwarde was confirmed vpon vs, by them that herd it, God bearynge wytnesse thereto, bothe with signes and wonders also, and with dyuers myracles and gyftes of the holy ghooste, accordyng to to his owne will.

We haue not vnto the angels put in subiection the world to come, wherof we speake. But one in a certayne place wytnesseth, sayenge. What is man, that thou arte mynde full of hym? or the sonne of man that thou wilt byt hym? Thou madeste hym lower for a season then the angels: thou crownedst hym with honour and gloze, and haste set hym above the workes of thy handes. Thou hast put all thynges in subiection vnder his feete. In that he put all thynges vnder him, he lefte nothyng that is not put vnder hym. Neuertheless we yet se not all thynges subdued, but hym that was made lesse then the angels, we se that it was Iesus: whiche is crowned with gloze and honoure for the sufferynge of deathe: that he by the grace of God, shoulde taste of deathe for all men.

For it became hym, for whome are all thynges, and by whome are all thynges, after that he hadde brought many sonnes vnto gloze, that he shoulde make the Lorde of their saluacion perfecte thowme sufferynge. For he that sanctifyeth, and they whiche are sanctified, are all of one. For whiche cause he is not ashamed to call them brethren, sayng: I will declare thy name vnto my brethren, and in the myddes of the congregacion will I prayse the. And agayne: I will put my trust in him. And agayne: beholde here am I, & the chyliden whiche God hath gyuen me.

For as moche then as the chyliden were partakers of fleshe and bloude, he also hym selfe lykwysse toke parte with them, to put downe thowme deathe, hym that hadde rule ouer deathe, that is to save the deuyll, & that he myghte deliuer them, whiche thowme feare of deathe were durynge their hole lyfe in daunger of bondage. For he in no place taketh on him the angels: but the seed of Abraham taketh he on hym. Wherefore in all thynges it became hym to be made lyke vnto his brethren, that he myghte be mercifull, and a faithful byshoppe in thynges concernynge God, to purge the peoples synnes. For in that he hym selfe suffered and was tempted, he is able to soucture them that are tempted.

Wherebyth vs to be obedyent vnto the worde of Chyriste, whiche is more worshippe then Moyses. The punishment of such as will not be hardened theyr hartes.

Therfore holy brethren, partakers of the heavenly calling, consider the minister of Jesus, which was faithful to him that made him, even as was Moses in all his house. For this man is so much more worthy of glory than Moses as he that buyeth an house is more worthy than the house itself. For every house is prepared of some man. But he that ordereth all things, is God. And Moses verily was faithful in all his house, as a minister, to bear witness of the things which should be spoken afterwards. But Christ, as a sonne, hath rule over the house (whose house are we) so that we hold fast the confidence and the rejoycing of that hope, unto the ende.

Wherefore as the holy ghost saith: to day if ye shall heare his voyce, harden not your heartes, after the rebellion in the day of temptation in the wilderness, where your fathers tempted me, proued me, and sawe my workes xl. yere longe. Wherefore I was grieved with that generation, and sayde. They sleepe cuer in their heartes: they haue not knowen my wayes, so that I swaie in my wrath, that they shoulde not enter into my rest. Take hede (brethren) that there be in none of you an euill hearte in vnbelefe, that he shoulde departe frome the luyng God: but exhort one another dayly, whyle it is called to daye, least any of you were harde hearted thowm the deceyfullnesse of synne.

We are partakers of Christ if we hope sure vnto the ende the first foundation, so longe as it is sayde: to daye if ye heare his voyce, harden not your heartes, as when ye rebelled. For some, when they hearde d. rebelled: howe be it not all that came out of Egypte vnder Moses. But with whome was he displeased, xl. yeres? Was he not displeased with them that synned, whose carcases were ouerthrowen in the wilderness? To whome swaie he that they shoulde not enter into his rest: but vnto them that beleued not? And we se that they coulde not enter in, because of vnbelefe.

C A P I.

IIII.

Let vs feare therfore least any of vs forsakeinge the promys of entering into his rest, shoulde seme to come behynde. For vnto vs was it declared, as well as vnto them. But it profited not them in that they heare the word, because they which heare it, coupled it not with faith. But we which haue beleued, to enter into his rest, as contrarie to the he sayde to the other, * I haue sware in my wrath, they shall not enter into my rest. And that spake he verily longe after that the workes were made and the foundation of the word sayde. For he spake in a certayne place of the seventh daye, on this wyse: And God

* d. d. rest the seventh daye from all his workes. And in this place agayne: They shal not come into my rest.

Seenge therfore it foloweth that some must enter therinto, and they to whome it was first preached, entered not therein for their vnbelefe: Agayne he appointed in David a certayne presente daye after so longe a tyme: sayeng as it is reherced: this daye if ye heare his voyce, be not harde hearted. For if Josue had gyven them rest, then wolde be not afterwards haue spoken of an other daye. There remaineth therfore yet a rest to the people of God, for he that is entered into his rest, with a cease frome his owne workes, as God d. d. frome his.

Let vs study therfore to enter into that rest, least any man fall after the same example, into vnbelefe. For the worde of God is quicke, and myghy in operation, and sharper then any two edge swerde: and entereth throughe, even vnto the bruydinge a sonde of the soule and the spire, and of the ioyntes and the mary: and iudgeth the thoughtes and the intentes of the herte: neyther is there any creature vnmansured in the sight of him. For all thinges are naked and bare vnto the eyes of hym, of whome we speake.

Christe is our hygh priest, and seate of grace, and more excellent then the hygh priestes of the old lawe.

C A P I.

V.

Senge then that we haue a grete hygh priest, whiche is entered into heauen, (I meane Jesus the sonne of God) let vs holde our professiō. For we haue not an hygh priest, which can not haue compassion on our infirmities: but was in all poyntes tempted lyke as we are: but yet without synne. Let vs therfore go boldly vnto the seate of grace that we may receyue mercy, and fynde grace to helpe in tyme of nede.

* For euery hygh priest taken out of men is ordeyned for men, in thinges pertaining to God: to offer gyftes & sacrifices for synne: whiche can haue compassion on the ignorant, and on them that are out of the waye, because he him selfe also is compassed with infirmities: and for this infirmities sake he is bounde to offer for synnes, as well for his owne part, as for the peoples. And no man taketh honoure vnto him selfe, but he that is called of God, as was Aaron.

Even so Ihesus, which glorified not him selfe, to be made the hygh priest: but he that sayde vnto him: * Thou arte my sonne, this daye begate I the, glorified him. As he also in an other place speaketh: * Thou arte a priest for euer, after the order of Melchisedech.

Which in the dayes of his fleshe, d. d. of set vp prayers and supplications, with stronge repence and teares vnto him that was habile to saue him frome death and was also herbe, because of his obduracy. And though he were were Gods sonne, yet lerned he obedience, by the thinges whiche he suffered, and was made perfect, and the cause of euery saluacion vnto all them that obeye him: and is called of God an hygh priest, after the order of Melchisedech.

Whereof we haue many thynges to saye, whiche are hard to be uttered: because ye are dull of hearinge. For when as concerninge the tyme, ye oughte to be teachers, yet haue ye nede agayne, that we teache you the firste principles of the worde of God: and are become such as haue nede of mylke, and not of stronge meat: for euery man that is fed with mylke, is vnshapfull of the worde of righteously. For he is but a babe. But stronge meate belongeth to them that are perfecte, which thowm custome haue their wittes exercised, to iudge bothe good and euill.

The goeth forth with the thyng that he began in the latter ende of the v. chapter and exhorteth them not to faigne, but to be stedfast and patient: Ihesus God is sure in his promys.

C A P I.

VI.

Therfore leaunge the doctrine pertayning to the beginninge of a Christian man, let vs mount vnto perfection, and layeng no more the foundation of repentance frome deed workes, & of faith toward God, of baptisme, of doctrine, and of layenge on of handes, and of resurrection frome death and of eternall iudgement. And so will we do, if God permitte. For it is not possible that they which were once lyghted, and haue tasted of the heavenly gyfte, and were become partakers of the holy ghost, and haue tasted of the good worde of God, and of the power of the worde to come: if they fall, shoulde be renewed agayne into repentance, crucyfenge vnto them selues agayne the sonne of God & makinge a mocke of him.

For that earth which drynketh in the rayne that cometh ofte vpon it, and bringeth forth herbes conuenient for them that dwelle in, receyue the blessinge of God. But that grounde whiche beareth thornes and bysses, is reproued, and ngybe vnto cursyng: whose ende is to be burned. Neuerthelesse (deare frendes) we trust to be better of you, and thinges whiche accompanye saluacion, though we thus speake. For God is not vngyfteous that he shoulde forget your worke and laboure that proceedeth of loue, whiche ye shewed in his name, who haue ministered vnto the sayntes, and yet minister. Yea, we desire that euery one of you shewe the same diligence, to the stablyshyng of hope, euen vnto the ende: if ye saynt not, but folowe them, which thowm faith and patience inheryt the promys.

For when God made promys to Abraham: because he hadde no greater thinge to sweare by, he swaie by him selfe, sayenge: Surely I will blesse the and multiplie the in dede. And so after that he hadde tarped a longe tyme, he enioyed the promys. For men sweare by him that is greater then them selues, and an othe for confirmation is amonge them an ende of all stryfe. So God willinge breye aboute dauntly to shewe vnto the heyes of promys, the stables of his counsaile, added an othe that by two & immutable thinges (in which it was impossible that God shoulde lye) we myght haue perfect consolacion, whiche haue fled, for to holde fast the hope that is set before vs, whiche we haue as an ancre of the soule, both sure and stedfast, and enterynge in, into the thinges whiche are within the vayle, into whiche the forerunner is entered in, I meane Jesus that is made an hygh priest for euer, after the order of Melchisedech.

The compareth the priesthode of Christ vnto Melchisedech, but to be farre more excellent.

CAP.

VII.

This Melchisedech, kynge of Salem, (whiche beyng Priest of the moste hygh God, met Abraham, as he returned frome the slaughter of the kynge, and blessed hym: to whome also Abraham gaue tythes of all thynges) fynde is by interpretation kynge of righteously: after that he is kynge of Salem, that is to saye, kynge of peace: without father without mother, without kynne, and hath neyther beginninge of his dayes, neyther yet ende of his lyfe: but is lykened vnto the sonne of God, and contynued a priest for euer. Consider what a man this was vnto whome the Patriarche Abraham gaue tythes of the spoiles. And verily those children of Leui, whiche receyue the office of the priestes, haue a commaundment to take accorde vnto the lawe, tythes of the people that is to saye, of their brethren, yea though they spronge out of the loynes of Abraham. But he whose kynne is not counted amonge them receyued tythes of Abraham, and blessed hym that hadde the promys. And with our all gaynsayenge, he which is lesse, receyue the blessinge of him which is greater. And here men that dye, receyue tythes. But there he receyue tythes of whome it is witnessed, that he lyueth. And to saye the truthe, Ieup hym selfe also whiche receyue tythes, payed tythes in Abraham. For he was yet in the loynes of his father Abraham, when Melchisedech met him.

Yf nowe therfore perfection came by the priesthode of the Leuytes (for vnder that priesthode the people receyued the lawe) what neded it further more that an other priest shoulde arise, after the order of Melchisedech, and not after the order of Aaron? For if the priesthode be translated, then of necessity must the lawe be translated also.

For he of whome these thynges are spoken, pertayneth vnto an other trybe, of whiche neuer man serued at the altare. For it is euident that our word spronge of the trybe of Iuda, of whiche trybe, Moses spake no thinge concerninge priesthode. And it is yet a more euident thinge, yf after the lykenes of Melchisedech.

violent fyre, whiche shall consume the aduersaries. He that despiseth Moses lawe, dyeth without mercy vnder two of thye witnessess. Of how moche soer punishment suppose ye, shall he be counted worthy, whiche treadeth vnder fote the sonne of God: and counteth himselfe of the testament as an unholy thinge wherewith he was sanctified, and with dishonour to the spirite of grace. For we knowe hym that hath sayde: * Vengeance belongeth vnto me, I will recompence saythe the Lorde. And agayne: the Lorde shall iudge his people. It is a fearful thinge to fall into the handes of the livinge God.

All to remembrance the dayes that are passed, in whiche after ye had receyued light, ye endured a great fyght in aduersities, partly while all men wondred and gased at you for the same and tribulation that was done vnto you, and partly, while ye became companions of them which so passed their tyme. For ye suffered also with my bondes, and toke in good worthe the spoyle of your gooddes, and that with gladnesse: knowinge in your selues that ye hadde in heauen a better and an enduringe substance. Cast not away therefore your confidence whiche hath greatelye rewarded to recompence. * For ye haue receyued of patience, that after ye haue done the will of God, ye myght receyue the promise. For yet a verie lytell while, and he that shall come, will come, and will not tarrye. But the iust shall lyue by faith. And yf he withdrawe hym selfe, my soule shall have no pleasure in him. We are not they whiche withdrawe our selues vnto damnation, but we appertayne to faith, to the wyngunge of the soule.

What faith is, and a commendation of the same. The firste faith beleue of the fathers in olde tyme.

C A P I. X I.

Faith is a sure confidence of thynges whiche are hoped for, and a certapnte of thynges whiche are not sene. By it the elders were well reappoynted. * Thowome sayth we vnderstande that the worlde was ordeyned by the worde of God, and that thynges whiche are sene, were made of thynges whiche are not sene.

By faith Abell offered vnto God a more precious sacrifice then Cayn: by whiche he offered hymselfe that he was ryghteous, God testifiginge of his gyftes: by whiche also he beynged deyd, yet speaketh.

By faith was Enoch translated that he should not se deathe: neyther was he founde: for God hadde taken hym awaye. Before he was taken awaye, he was reappoynted, that he hadde pleased God: whereas withoute faith it is impossible to please hym. For he that cometh to God, must beleue that God is, and that he is a rewarder of them that seke hym.

By faith, Noe honoured God, after he was warned of thynges whiche were not sene and prepared the arche to the sauinge of his householde, thowome whiche, he condemned the worlde, and became heire of the rightwysnes of faith.

By faith, Abraham, when he was called, obeyed, to go out into a place, whiche he shoulde afterwarde receyue to inheritaunce, and he went out, not knowynge whither he shoulde go.

By faith, he remoued into the lande that was promysed hym, as into a strange countrey, and dwelte in tentes: and so dyd Isaac and Jacob, beyng with hym of the same promise. For he looked for a cytie hauynge a foundation, whose buylder, and maker, is God.

Thowome saythe, Sara also receyued strength to be with chylde, and was deliuered of a chylde, when she was passe age, because she iudged hym faithfull whiche hadde promysed.

And therfore sprange there, of one whiche was as good as deyd, so many in multitude, as the starrs of the heuene, and as the sonde of the see thowome whiche is innumerable.

And they all dyed in faith, and receyued not the promises: but sawe them a farre off, and beloued them, and saluted them: and confessed that they were strangers and pilgrymes on the earth. They that sape suche thynges, declare that they seke a countrey. Also yf they hadde bene myndfull of that countrey, frome whence they came out, they hadde leasure to haue returned agayne: but now they desire a better, that is to saye an heavenly. Wherefore God is not ashamed of them, eue to be called their God: for he hath prepared for them a cytie.

By faith, Abraham offered by Isaac, whiche he was tempted, and he offered hym beyng his onely begotten sonne, whiche hadde receyued the promises of whome it was sayde, * In Isaac shall thy seed be called: for he considered that God was able, to raise vp agayne frome deathe. Therefore receyued he hym, for an example.

In faith Isaac blessed Jacob and Esau, concerninge thynges to come.

By faith, Jacob when he was a dyenge, blessed bothe the sonnes of Joseph, and bowed hym selfe towarde the topp of his scepter.

By faith, Joseph when he dyed, remembred the departinge of the chylde of Israel, and gaue commaundement of his bones.

By faith, Moses when he was borne, was hdd in the mouthes of his tache and mother, because they sawe he was a proper chylde: neyther feared they the kynge's commaundement.

By faith, Moyses when he was great, refused to be called the son of Pharaos daughter, and chose rather to suffer aduersite with the people of God, then to enioye the pleasures of synne for a season, and esteemed the rebuke of Christ, greater rychesse then the treasure of Egypte. For he hadde respect vnto the reward.

By faith

By faith, he forsoke Egypte, and feared not the fiercenesse of the kynge. For he endured euen as he hadde sene him whiche is inuisible.

Thowome sayth, he ordeyned the eader lambe, and the effusion of blood, least he that destroyed the fyre boyme, shoulde touche them.

By faith, they passed thowome the red see, as by drye lande, whiche when the Egyptians hadde assayed to wo, they were drowned.

By faith, the walles of Jerico fell downe after they were compassed about seven dayes.

By faith, the barlot Raab perswaded not with the vnbefuers, when she had receyued the spyes to lodgynge peacefully.

And what shal I more say, the tyme wold saye me to tell of Gedeon, of Barach, and of Sampson, and of Jephthae: also of Dauid and Samuel, and of the Prophetes: * Whiche thowome sayth subdued kynghomes brought ryghteousnes, obtyned the promises, stopped the mouthes of yrons, quenched the violence of fyre, escaped the edge of the sword, of wenke were made stronge, waxed valiant in fight, turned to flight the armys of the alientes. And the womē receyued their dead rayled to lyfe agayne.

Other were racked, and wolde not be deliuered, that they myght receyue a better resurrection. Other tasted of mockynges and scourgynges, moxouer of bondes and pylsonment: were stoned, were beate with a sonde, were tempted, were slayne with swordes, walked by and dwne, in shepes skynnes, in gootes skynnes, in netes, tribulation, and vexation, whiche the worlde was not worthy of: they wandred in wyldernes, in moystaynes, in denes and caues of the earth.

And these all, thowome saythe, obtayned good reape, and receyued not the promises, God proupyng a better thyng for vs, that they withoute vs shoulde not be made perfecte.

In exhortacion to be patient and stedfast in trouble and aduersite, vpon hope of euerylastinge reward. A commendacion of the newe Testament aboute the olde.

C A P I. X I I.

Wherefore let vs also (scynge we are compassed with so great a multitude of witnessess,) laye awaye all that pfecteth downe, and the synne that hangerh on, and let vs runne with patience vnto the battayle that is set before vs, lokynge vnto Iesus the autor, and synners of oure faith, whiche for the iope that was set before hym, abode the crosse, and despised the shame, and is set downe on the ryght honde of the throne of god. Consider therefore, howe he endured suche speakynge agaynst hym of synners, least ye shoulde be toryed and saynte in your mynde. For ye haue not yett respyled vnto bloud.

Des. For ye haue not yett respyled vnto bloud.

Meddyng, arpyng agaynst synne. And haue forgotten the consolacion, whiche speareth vnto you, as vnto chylde: my sonne despyse not the challynge of the Lorde, neyther saynte when thou arte rebuked of him: for whome the Lorde loueth, hym he chasteneth: yea, and he scourgeth euerie sonne that he receyuerh.

If ye endure challynge, God offreth hym selfe vnto you as vnto sonnes. What sonne is that whome the father challyngeth not? If ye be not vnder correction (wherof all are partetakers) then are ye baillards and not sonnes. Wherefore scynge we had fathers of our fleshe whiche corrected vs, and we gaue them reuerence: shoulde we not moche rather be in subiection vnto the father of spirituall gyftes that we myght lyue? And they bereyve for a fewe dayes, nured vs after their owne pleasure: but he leareth vs vnto that which is profitable, that we myght receyue of his holynesse. No maner challynge for the present tyme seemeth to be ioyous, but greuous: but afterwarde it bringeth the quyet frute of right wysnes, vnto them whiche are exercised in the same.

Stretche forth therfore agayne the handes whiche were let downe, and the weake knees, and se ye haue straggle stepes vnto your sete, least any haltinge turne you out of the waye: yea let it rather be healed. Embrace pear with all men and holynes: without whiche no man shall se the Lorde. And loke, that no man be destitute of the grace of God, and that no rore of bitterness spyng by and trouble, and thereby many be defiled: and that there be no fornicator, or vnclene person, as Esau, whiche for one breakfast sold his byrighte. Ye knowe howe that afterwarde when he wolde haue inhereted the blessing, he was put by, and he founde no meannes to come therby agayne: no though he despyed it with teares.

For ye are not come vnto the mounte that can be touched, and vnto burninge fyre nor yet to myll and darkenes and tempest of weder, neyther vnto the sounde of a trompe and the voyce of wordes: whiche they that herde it, wylde awaye: that the communication shoulde not be spoken to them. For they were not able to abyde, that was spoken. If a beast hadde touched the mountayne, it muste haue bene stoned, or thurst thowome with a dart: euen so terrible was the sight whiche appeared. Moyses sayde, I feare and quake. But ye are come vnto the mount Syon, and to the cytie of the livinge God, the heavenly Ierusalem: and to an innumerable synge of aungels, and vnto the congregacion of the first borne sonnes, whiche are written in heauen, and to God the iudge of all, and to the spytes of iust and perfect men, and to Iesus the mediator of the newe Testament, and to the synnynge of bloude that speaketh better, then the bloude of Abel.

Se ye despyse not hym that speaketh. For yf they escape not whiche refused hym that spake on earth: moche more shall we not escape.

Q. iij. cape

cape, yf we turne awaye from him that speaketh from heauen: whose voyce then shoulde the earth, and now declareth, sayenge: yet ones moze will I make, not the earth onely, but also heauen. Now, this that he sayth, yet ones moze, signifieth the remouynge awaye of those thinges which are shakyn, as of thin-ges whiche haue ended their course: that the thinges which are not shakyn, may remayne.
Wherefore yf we receyue a kyngdome whiche is not moued, we haue grace, whereby we maye serue God, and please him with reue-rence and godly feare. * For oure God is a consumynge fyre.

The exhorteth vnto loue, to hospitalite, to thynke vpon suche as be in aduersite, to mapnteyne wed-locke, to auoyde couecousnesse, to make moche of them that preache Goddes woide, to beware of strange learninge to be content to suffre rebuke with chaste, to be thankfull vnto God, and obedyent vnto oure heades.

CAP. I. XIII.

Let brotherly loue continue. We not forgetfull to lodge straungers. For they haue dyuers receyued angels into their houses vnto waies. Remember theym that are in bonds, euen as though ye were bounde with them. We mynde full of them which are in aduersite, as ye whiche are yet in your bodies. * Let wedlocke be hadde in pyce in all poyntes, and let the chaumbre be vntypled for boie keepers and aduocates God wyll iudge. Let your conuersacion be without couetise, and be content with that ye haue alredy. For he verely sayth: * I will not sayle the, neyther forsake the: that we may boldly saye: * The Lord is my helper, and I wil not feare what man doth vnto me. Remember them whiche haue the ouersight of you, whiche haue declared vnto you the woide of God. The ende of whose conuersacion, se ye loke vpon, and folowe their faith.

Jesus Christe yesterdaye and to daye, and the same continueth for euer. * Be not caried about with dyuers & strange learninge.
For it is a good thinge that the heret be stabilished with grace, and not with meates, whiche haue not profyted them that haue had their passyme in them. * We haue an aulter wherof they maye not eate which serue in the tabernacle. * For the bodies of those beastes whose bloude is brought into the holy place by the hygh priest to poure synne, are burne without the tentes. Therefore Jesus, to sanctifye the people with his owne bloude, suffered without the gate. Let vs go forth therfore out of the tentes, and suffre rebuke with him. * For here haue we no continuynge cy-tie: but we seeke one to come.

For by him offer we the sacrifice of prayse alwayes to God: that is to saye, the frute of those lippes, which confesse his name. To do good, and to distribute, forget not, for with suche sacrifices God is pleased. * Obeie them that haue the ouersight of you, a submyt your selues to them, for they watche for your soules, euen as they that must gyue ac-comptes: that they maye do it with ioye, and not with greife. For that is an vnproffable thinge for you. Praye for vs. We haue confidence because we haue a good conscience in all thinges, and desyre to lyue honestly. I wryte you therfore somewhat the moze abundantly, that ye so to, as I maye be restored to you quickly.

The God of peace that brought agayne fro death our Lord Jesus, the greates shepherde of the shepe, thowhe the bloude of the euerlastynge testamente, make you perfecte in all good woikes, to do his will, workynge in you that is pleasaunt in his sighte thowhe Jesus Christ. To whome be prayse for euer with the world endureth: Amen. I

I beseeche you (brethren) suffre the wordes of exhortation: for we haue wrytten vnto you in fewe wordes: knowe the brother Timothe, whom we haue sent from vs, with whome (yf he come worthy) I will se you.

Salute them that haue the ouer-
sight of
you,
and all the sayntes. They of Italye salute you.
Grace be
with you all: Amen.

The Epistle of Saynt
James.

The exhorteth to reioyce in trouble, to be seruente in prayer with redfast beate, to loke for all good thinges frome above, to forsake all vyce, and thankfully to receyue the woide of God, not only hearynge it and speakynge of it, but to do thereafter in dede.
True reioyng of deuotion what it is.

CAP. I.

James seruante of God,
and of the Lord Jesus Christ, sendeth greetynge to the twelve tribes which are scattered abroad. * My brethren, count it excedynge ioye, when ye fall in to dyuers temptacions, knowynge that the tryng of your faith byngeth pacience, & let pacience haue her perfect woike, that ye may be perfect and sounde, lackynge nothyng.

If any of you lacke wyddome, let hym aske of God, which giveth to al men indifferently and casteth no man in the teeth: and it shalbe giuen him. But let him aske in faith and wauer not. For he that doubteth is lyke the waues of the see, tossed of the wynde, & carped with violence. Neither let that man thynke he shal receyue any thyng of the Lord. A waueryng mynded man, is vntable in all his wayes.

Let the brother of low degree, reioyce in that he is exalted: and the ryche, in that he is made low. For euen as the flower of the grasse shal be withered awaye. The sonne ryseth with heate, and the grasse withereth, and his floure fallerh awaye, and the beautie of the fayson of it preysbeth: euen so shal the ryche man peryshe with his abundaunce.

Happy is the man that endureth in temta-cion, for when he is tryed, he shal receyue the croune of lyfe, whiche the Lord hath promytted to them that loue hym. I

Let no man say when he is temted, that he is temted of God. For God is not temted of euyl, neither tempteth he any man. But euery man is temted, whyle he is drawne awaye and allured of his owne lust: Then whyle lust hath conceyued, the bringeth forth synne and synne whyle it is finished, byngeth forth dethe.

We not disceined my deere brethren. * Euery good gyfte, and euery perfect gyfte, is fro above, and cometh downe from the father of lycht, with whome is no variableness, neither is he changed vnto darkenes. Of his owne wil begat he vs in the woide of truth, that we shold be the first frutes of his creatures.

Wherefore (deere brethren) let euery man be swyfte to heare, slowe to speake, and slowe to wrathe. For the wrathe of man worketh not that which is righteous before God.

Wherefore laye aparte all synthynges, al su-perfluite of maliciounes, and receyue with meekenes the woide that is graffed in you, whiche is hable to saue your soules. I * And se ye be doers of the woide, and not hearers only, disceyving your owne selues with sophis-try. For yf any heare the woide, and do it not,

he is lyke vnto a man that beholdeh his bodyly face in a glasse. For as sone as he hath loked on him selfe, he goeth his awaye, and forgetteth forthwith what his facion was. But who so loketh in the perfect lawe of libertie, and continueth therein (yf he be not a forgetful hearer but a doer of the woide) the same shal be happy in his dede.

If any man amonges you seme deuoute, & refrayne not his tonge, but disceyue his owne heart, this mans deuotion is in vayne. Pure deuotion and vndefyled before God the father, is this: to visyte the fatherlesse and wyddowes in theyr aduersitie, and to kepe him selfe un-spotted of the worlde. I

The forbyddeth to haue respecte of persons, but to regarde the poore as well as the ryche, to be louynge and mercifull, and not to bolle of saythe where no redes are: for it is but a dead saythe, where good wokes folowe not.

CAP. II.

Brethren, se ye haue not the faith of our Lord Jesus Christ the Lord of glorie in respect of persons. If there come in to your company a man with a golden ring, and in goodly apparell, and there come in also a poore man in byle rayment, and ye haue a respect to him that weareth the gaye clothyng, and saye vnto him. Syt thou here in a good place: and saye vnto the poore, stande thou there: yf he here vnder my soverle: are ye not parciall in your selues, and haue iudged after euyl thoughtes.

Harken (my deere beloued brethren.) Hath not God chosen the poore of the woide, whiche are ryche in faith, and heyses in the kyngdome whiche he promysed to them that loue him? But ye haue despised the poore. Are not the ryche they whiche oppresse you, and they whiche drawe you before iudges? Do not they speake euyl of that good name after whiche ye be named?

If ye fulfyll the royall lawe accordynge to the scripture whiche sayeth. Thou shalt loue thyne neighbour as thy selfe, ye do well. But if ye regarde one person more then an other, ye commit synne, and are rebuked of the lawe, as transgressours. Who so euer shal kepe the hole lawe, and sayle in one poynt, is gyfte in all.
For he that sayd thou shalt not commit adultery, sayd also: thou shalt not kyl. Though thou do none adulterye, yet if thou kyl, thou arte a breaker of the lawe. So speake ye, and so do, as they that shal be iudged by the lawe of libertie. For mercies iudgement shal be to hym that sheweth no mercy, and mercy reioyleth agaynst iudgement. I

What auayleth it (my brethren) though a man say he hath faith, when he hath no dedes?
Can faith saue him? If a brother or a syster be naked, or destitute of dayly fode, and one of you saye vnto them: depart in peax, God sende you warmth and fode: notwithstandinge ye gyue them not the thynges which are nedeful to the body: what helpeth it? Euen so, faith, yf it haue no dedes is dead in it selfe.

But a man wyl saye: thou hast sayd, and I haue dedes: Shew me thy faith by thy dedes, and I wyl shew the my faith by my dedes. Well. The deuyll is also by leue and tremble.

Wilt thou vnderstande, o thou bayne man that sayest without dedes is deed? Was not Abraham our father iustified thowow wokes, when he offered Isaac his sonne vpon the auter? Thou seest that faith wrought with his dedes, and throughte the dedes was the faith made perfect, and the scripture was fulfilled whiche sayeth: Abraham blessed God, and it was reputed vnto hym for ryghteousnes, and he was called the frende of God. * * Ye se then that of dedes a man is iustified, and not of faith onely. Likewise also was not Isaac the harlot iustified thowow wokes, when he receyued the messengers, and sente them oute an other waye? For as the bodye withoute the spiryte is deed, so faith withoute dedes is deed. F

What good and euill cometh thowow the tonge. The dutye of such as be learned. The difference betwene the wisdom of the Gospel and of the world.

C A P I. I I I.

My brethren, let not euery man be a master, remembryng that we shall receyue the more damnacion: for in many thynges we synne all. If a man synne not in wordes the same is a perfecte man, and hable to come all the bodye. Beholde we put byttes in to the bodies mouthes, that they wold obeye vs, and we turne aboute all the bodye. Beholde also the wyppes, whiche though they be so greete, and are dyuen of feare wyndes, yet are they turned aboute with a very small helme, wherfor so euer the violence of the gouernour wil: Euen so the tonge is a lytle membze, and doeth great thynges.

Beholde, how great a thyng a lytle fyre kyndleth, and the tonge is fyre and a worlde of wychednes. So is the tonge set among our membris, that it defyleth the hole bodye, and setteth a fyre all that we haue of nature, and is it selfe set a fyre euen of hell.

All the natures of beestes and of byrdes, and of serpentes, and thynges of the see are miked and tamed of the nature of man. But the tonge can no man tame. It is an vnculy euill, full of deadly payson. Therewith blisse we God the father, and therewith curse we men, which are made after the lykenesse of God. Out of one mouth cometh blessing and cursing. My brethren these thynges ought not so to be. Dothe a founteyne send forth at one place, swete water and bitter also? Can it sygge tree (my brethren) beare olyue berries, or a byrne beare figges? So can no founteyne geue bothe salt water and fressh water. If any man be wyse and endued with lernynge amonys p ou, let hym shew the wokes of his good conuersacion in mekenes that is coupled with wysdome.

But if ye haue bitter enuye & stryfe in your herres, receyue not: neither be spars agaynst the trowth: this wisdom descendeth not from about: but is earthly, natural and deuyllish. For where enuyng and stryfe is, there is vnstabilenes, and all maner euill wokes. But the wysdome frome aboute is fyre pure, then peaseable and gentle, and easy to be entreated, full of mercy and good frutes, without iudgyng, and without simulation: yea the frute of ryghteousnes is sowen in pear, of them that maynteyn pear.

Warre and fyghtyng cometh of voluptuousnes. The frendshipp of the world is enemye before God. An exhortacion to flee slaunder and the vanyte of this lyfe.

C A P I. I I I.

From whence cometh warre and fyghtyng amonge you: come they not frome hence? euen of your voluptuousnes that reigne in your membris. Ye lust and haue not. Ye enuye, and haue indignacion, and can not obteyn. Ye fyght and warre and haue not, because ye aske not. Ye aske and receyue not, because ye aske amply: euen to consume it vpon your voluptuousnes. Ye aduocaters, and women that breake matrimonye: knowe ye not that the frendshipp of the worlde is enemye towarde God? Who so euer wyl be a frend of the worlde, is made the enemye of God. Eyn the to be thynke & the scripture sayth in wyne. The spiryte that dwelleth in you, lusteth eyn contrary to enuy, but gyueth more grace.

Submyt your selues to God, and respyse the deuyll, and he wyl flee from you. Drawe nye to God, and he wyl drawe nye to you. Cense your handes ye synners, and poure your herres ye wantrenge myndes. Suffre afflictions: sorowe ye and wepe. Lette your laughter be turned to mournynge, and your ioye to heuynes. Call downe your selues before the Lord, and he wyl lyste you vp. Backbite not one another, brethren. He that backbite his brother, backbite the lawe, and iudgeth his brother, backbite the lawe, thou arte not a keeper of the lawe, but a iudge. There is one lawe gyuen which is hable to saue and to destroye. What arte thou that iudgeth another man?

Go to now ye that saye: to day and to morrow let vs go in to such a city, and continue there a yere and by and sell, and wyne: and yet can not tell what shall happen to morrow. For what thyng is your lyfe? It is euen a vapour that appereth for a lytle tyme, and then vanissheth awaye: for that ye ought to saye: if the Lord wyl and if we lyue, let vs doo this or that. But now ye receyue in your bowtynges. All suche reioysynge is euill. Therfore to hym that knoweth how to do good, & doth it not, to hym it is synne.

The threatheneth the wicked wyche men, ech oztely vnto patience, to beware of swearing, one to knowledg his fautes to another, one to pray for another and one to labour to byngne another to the trowth.

C A P I. V. So

Go to now ye wyche men. Wepe a bowle on your wretchednes that shall come vpon you. Your wyches is corrupt, your garments are motheaten. Your golde & your syluer are canced, and the ruste of them shall be a wytnes vnto you, & shall eate your fleshe as it were fyre. Ye haue heaped treasure togyther in your last days: Beholde the hye of the labourers which haue reaped downe your selues (whiche hye is of you kept backe by gyle) cryeth: and the cryes of them which haue reaped, are entred in to the eares of the Lord Sabaoth. Ye haue lused in pleasure on the earth, and in wantonnes. Ye haue nourished your herres, as in a dape of slaughter. Ye haue condemned and haue kyled the iust, and he hath not relesed you.

Be patient therfore (brethren) vnto the comynge of the Lord. Beholde the husbande m& wapteth for the precious frute of the earth, and hath longe patience therupon, tyll he receyue the frute and the latter sayne. Be ye also patient therfore and lette your herres, for the comynge of the Lord draweth nye. Judge not one agaynst another (brethren) lest ye be damned. Beholde the iudge standeth before the doze. Take (my brethren) the prophetes for an exemple of suffering aduersite, and of long patience, which spake in the name of the Lord. Beholde we count them happy which endure. Ye haue heerd of the patience of Job, and haue known what ende the Lord made. For the Lord is very pitifull and mercifull.

But aboute all thynges my brethren, swere not, neither by heuen, neither by earth, neither by any other othe. Let your ye be ye, and your nape nape, lest ye fall in to hypocresy. If any of you be euill bryed, let hym praye. If any of you be mery, let hym synge psalmes. If any be diseased among you, let hym call for the elders of the congregacion, & let them praye ouer hym, and anoynt hym with oyle in the name of the Lord, & the prayer of faith shall saue the sicke, and the Lord wyl raise hym vp, and if he haue committed synnes, they shall be forgiven hym.

Knowlege your fautes one to another, and pray one for another, that ye may be healed. The prayer of a righteous man auayleth moche, if it be freuent. Helias was a man mortall euen as we are, and he prayed in his prayer that it myght not rayne, and it rayned not on the earth by the space of thre yeres and fyve monethes. And he prayed agayne, and the heuen gaue rayne, and the earth brought forth her frute.

Brethren, if any of you stray from the trowth and an other conuert hym, let the same knowe that he whiche conuerted the synner from gorynge astraye oute of his waye, shall saue a soule from death, and shall hyde the multitude of synnes.

The ende of the epistle of Saynt James.

The Epistle of Saynt Iudas.

The rebuketh such as beyng blinded with theyr owne lites, respyse the trowth: and that we maye knowe them the better, he sayth they be such as synne headly agaynst nature and againste rulers. ac. He exhorteth vs to edifye one another, to praye in the holy ghost to contynue in loue, to loke for the comynge of the Lord, and one to helpe another oute of the fyre.

Iudas seruante of Iesu Christe, the brother of James: To them whiche are called, and sanctified in God the father, and preserued in Iesu Christ: Mercy vnto you, and pear and loue be multiplied.

Beloued, when I gaue all diligence to wyte vnto you of the comen saluacion, it was nedefull for me to wyte vnto you, to exhorte you, that ye wold continually labour in the faith whiche was ones gyuen vnto the sayntes. For there are certayne craftely creepers in, of whiche it was wytten afore tyme vnto suche iudgement. They are vngodly and turne the grace of our God vnto wantonnes, and denye God the onely Lord, and our Lord Iesus Christe.

My mynde is therfore to put you in remembraunce, for as moche as ye ones knowe this, that the Lord (after he hadde deliuered the people out of Egypte) & destroyed them whiche afterwarde displeyd not. The aungeil also whiche kepte not their first estate, but left theyr owne habitation: he hath reserved in euyl lastynge chaynes vnder darknes, vnto the iudgement of the great daye: & euen as Zedon and Gomor, and the cities aboute them, (which in lyke maner delyed them selues with fornicacion, and folowed strange fleshe) are set forth for an exemple, and suffer the vengeance of euyl lastynge fyre. Likewise euen dyemmers defile the fleshe, beyng rulers, and speke euill of them that are in auaricie.

Yet Michael the Archangell when he stroue agaynst the deuyll, and disputed aboute the bodye of Moyses, durst not gyue caplynge sentence, but sayd: the Lord rebuke the. But these speake euill of thore thynges whiche they knowe not, and what thynges they knowe naturally, as beestes whiche are without reason, in the thynges they corrupte them selues. Woe be vnto them, for they haue folowed the waye of Cayn, and are vnclely gyuen to the erroure of Balam for lutes sake, & are perished in the trasoun of Coze.

These persons euen amonys your charities be spotted, & feasting togyther without care, sedynge them selues: Clouds they are without water, carryed about of wyndes, and rees without frute at garbrynge tyme, cyples deed and plucked by the rootes. They are the ragynge waves of the see, compynge oute theyr owne shame. They are wandrynge sters, to whom is refused the myste of barke uelle.

De reuelacion of Iesu Chryste, whiche God gaue vnto hym, to shewe vnto his seruantes thynges whiche muste shortly come to passe.

† And he sente and thewed by his aungell vnto his ser-uaunt Iohn, whiche bare recorde of the woordes of God, and of the testimony of Iesus Christ, and of all thynges that he sawe. Happy is he that retheth, and they that heare the wordes of the prophesy, and kepe the thynges wyrtten therein. For the tyme is at hande.

Roide to the seven congregacions in Asia.
 Grace with you and pear, from him which is and whiche was, and whiche is to come, and from the seven spiritis whiche are present before his throne, and from Jesu Chyſt, which is a faithfull wytnes, and spyd begotten of the deed: and Roide ouer the kynges of the erth.
 Into him that * loued vs, and walshed vs from synnes in his owne bloude, & made vs kynges and preeſtes vnto God his father by gloze and dominion for euermo: r. Amen.
 * Beholde he cometh with cloudes, and all eyes ſhall ſe hym: and they alſo whiche per-ſed him. And all kyngreds of the earth ſhall waile. Euen ſo: Amen. I am & Alpha & Omega, the begynnyng and the endyng, ſayth the Roide almyghty, whiche is, and whiche was, and whiche is to come.

I Iohā your brother and compaignion in tribulation, and in the kyngdome and pacyence whiche is in Iesu Chryſte, was in the yle of Pathmos for the worde of God, and for the wytnesſe of Iesu Chryſte. I was in the ſpīte on a ſondaye, and herde behynde me a great voyce, as it hadde ben of a troupe, ſayinge: I am Alpha and Omega, the fyrſt and the laſt. What thou ſeeſt, wyrite in a booke, and ſende it vnto the congregacions whiche are in Aſia, vnto Ephelus, and vnto Smyrna, and vnto Pergamos, and vnto Thyatira, and vnto Sardis, and vnto Philadelphia, and vnto Laodicia.

And I turned backe to se the voyce that spake to me. And when I was turned, I sawe seven golden candelstyckes, and in the myddes of the candelstyckes, one lyke vnto the sonne of man, clothed with a lynne garment downe to the grounde, and gyrded about the pappes with a golden gyrdle. His heed and his beeres were whyte, as whyte wolle, and as snowe: and his eyes were as a flame of fyre: and his fete lyke vnto brasse, as though they were in a furnace: and his voyce as the sounde

And when I saue him, I sell at his sette and the last, and am almye, and was deed. And beholde I am almye for euermore, and haue p keyes of hell and of deeth. Wytte therfore the thynges whiche thou hast sene, and the thyng es whiche are, and the thynges whiche shall be fulfilled hereafter: and the myssepe of the seuen sterres whiche thou sawest in my ryght hande, & the seuen golden candelsyckes. The seuen sterres are the messengers of the. viij. con gregacions. And the seuen candelsyckes which thou sawest are the seuen congregacions,

The scholers four congregations to a mende:
and therewith the reward of him that ouercometh

C A P I. II.

Vnto the messenger of the congregation of Ephesus wypte: these thynges sayth he that holdeth the seuen Serres in his right hande, and walkeyth in the myddes of the seuen golden candelstyckes. I knowe thy workes, and thy labour and thy patience, and how thou canst not forbear them which are suppl, and examynest them which saye they are Apostles, and are not: and hast founde them liars, and bydest wasthe thy selfe, and hast pa cience: and for my names sake hast labourd and hast not faynted. Murthererelle, I have somewhat agaynst the, for thou haste lefte thy firste loue. Remembre therefore from whence thou art fallen, and repent, and do the first workes. Or elles I wyll come vnto the Wost ly, and wyll remoue thy candelstycke oute of his place, onlesse thou repent. But this thou hast, because thou hatest the dedes of the p colaitans, whiche dedes I also hate. Lette hym that hath eares, heare, what the spirite sayth vnto the congregations. To hym that ouercommeth, wyll I gyue to eate of the tree of lyfe, whiche is in the myddes of the parad yse of God.

of hymyna wypte: These thynges saythe he that is fyrke, and the laste, whiche was deyd, and is alure. I knowe thy woꝝkes and tribulacion and pouertie, but thou art ryche. And I knowe the blasphemie of them which call them selues Jewes and are not, but are the congregacion of Sathan. Feare none of those thynges whiche thou shalt suffer. Beholde the decyfl shall cast of you in to prison, to tempe you, and ye shal haue tribulacion .x. dayes. We saythfull vnto the deathe, and I wyll geue the crowne of lyfe. Let hym that hard eares, heart, what the spuerit sayth to the congregacions: He that ouercometh, shall not be hurt of the seconde deyth.

And to the messenger of the congregation in Pergamos wyte: This sayth he which hath the sharpe swerde with two edges, I knowe thv workes, and where thou dwellest, even where Sathans seate is, and thou kepest my name, and hast not denyed my saythe. And in my dapes Antipas was a saythful wytnes of myne, whiche was slayne amonge you, where Sathan dwelleth. But I have a few thynges agaynste the, that thou hast there, them that maynteyn the doctryne of Balam * whiche taughte in Balake, to put occasion of synne before the chyldren of Israel that they shoulde eate of meate dedicate vnto ydoles, and com-myt fornicacion. Euen so hast thou them that maynteyne the doctryne of the Nicolaitans, whiche thyng I hate. But be converted, o elles I wyll come vnto the shortly, and wyll fyghte agaynste them with the swerde of my mouth. Let hym that hath eares, heare what the spiryte sayth vnto the congregacions. To hym that overcommeth wyll I geue to eate Manna that is hyd, and wyll geve him a white stone, and in the stone a new name wyrtten, whiche no man knoweth, saunge he that receyuerh it.

And vnto the messenger of the congrega-cion of Thiatira wypte. This sayde the sonne of God, whiche hathe his eyes lyke vnto a flambe of fyre, whose fete are lyke brasse: I knowe thy woorkes, and thy loue, scrupce, and saythe, and thy patience, and thy dedes, whiche are mos at the lasse then at the first. For-withstandyng I haue a fewe thynges agaynst the, & chat thou sufferest that woman Jezabel which called her selfe a prophetesse, to teache and to discyue my seruantes, to make them commyt fornicacion, and to eate meates offered vnto ydolles. And I gaue her space to repent of her fornicacion, and she repented not. Beholde, I will caste her in to a bedde and them that commyt fornicacion with her, into greate aduersitie, excepte they tounne frome theer bedes. And I will kyl her children with deathe. And all the congrega-cons shall knowe that & I am he, whiche scr-eth the repnes and herces. And I will grue vnto euery one of you accordyng vnto poure woorkes.

Unto you I saye, and vnto other of them of Thiatira, as manye as haue not this letteringe, and whiche haue not knowen the depence of Sathan (as they saye) I wyll put vpon you none other burthen, but that whiche ye haue alrede. Holde faste tyll I come, and who so ouercommeth and keepeth myn wyorkes vnto the ende: to hym wyll I grue power ouer nations, and he shall rule them with a rodde of yron: and as the bes-sels of a pottes, shall he breake them to shreuers: Such as I receyued of my father, so wyll I grue hym the moynynge sterre. Lette hym that hath eares, heare, what the spyrte sayth to the congregacions.

The instructeth and enforzeth the Rungels of the congregacions, declarynge also the reward of him that ouercometh.

CAP I.

111.

NOTE

And wyte unto the messenger of the congregacion of Sardis: this sayth he that hath the spirite of god and the. vii. letters. I know thy workes: thou hast a name that thou spuest, and thou arte deed. Be awake, and strength thy things which remaine that are redde to dye. For I have not founde thy workes perfecte before God. Remember therfore thou hast receyved an heere, and holde faste and repent. * If thou walte not wasche, I will come on the as a thefe, and thou shalt not knowe what houre I will come upon the. Thou hast a fewe names in Sardis, whiche have not defyled theyr garments: and they shall walke with me in white, for they are worthy. He that overcometh shall be clothed in white aray, and I will not put his name out of the booke of lyfe, and I will confesse his name before my father, and before his aungelles. Let hym that hath eares, heare what the spirite sayth unto the congregacions.

And wyte unto the spynges byrnger of the congregacion of Philadelphia: this sayth he that is holy and true, * whiche hath the keye of David, whiche openeth, and no man shutteth; and whiche openeth, and no man openeth. I knowe thy workes. Beholde, I have set before the an open doore, and no man can shut it: for thou hast a lytell strength, and hast kepte my saynges: and hast not denyed my name. Beholde I make them of the congregacion of Sathan, whiche call themselves Jewes, and are not, but doo lye: Beholde, I will make them that they shall come and worshyp before thy seate: and shall knowe that I loue the.

Because thou hast kepte the wordes of my patience, therfore I will kepe the from the houre of temptacion, whiche will come upon all the world, to tempt them that dwel upon the erth. Beholde, I come shortly. Holde faste whiche thou hast, that no man take away thy crowne. Him that overcometh, I will make a pylle in the temple of my God, & he shal go no more oute. And I will wyte upon hym, the name of my God, and the name of the cite of my God, newe Jerusalem, which cometh downe out of heuen from my God, and I will wyte upon him my newe name. Let hym that hath eares, heare, what the spirite sayth unto the congregacions.

And unto the messenger of the congregacion whiche in Laodicia, wyte: This sayth he (Amen) the faithfull and true wyne, the beginning of the creatures of God. I know thy workes that thou art neither colde nor hote. I wolde thou were colde or hote. So then because thou art bitwene both, and neither colde nor hote, I will spue the out of my mouth: because thou sayest thou art ryche and increased with goodes, and hast nede of nothyng, and knowest not how thou art wretched and miserable, poore, blynde, and naked. I counsell the to bye of me golde tryed in the fyre, that thou mayst be ryche: and white rayment that thou mayst be clothed, that thy fylthy nakednes do not appeare: and anoynt thyne eyes with eye salve, that thou mayst se.

* As many as I loue, I rebuke and chasten. Be feruent therfore and repent. Beholde, I stand at the doore and knocke. If any man heare my voyce and open the doore, I will come in unto him and wyl sup with him, and he with me. To him that overcometh I will geaunte to sit with me in my seat, even as I overcame and have syten with my father in his seate. Let hym that hath eares, heare what the spirite sayth unto the congregacions.

He seeth the heauen open, and the seate and one spynges upon it, and xiiii. seates aboute it with xiiii. elders synges upon them, and foure beastes praynges God daye and nyght.

CAPL IIII

After this I looked, and beholde a doore was open in heuen, and the fyrst voyce whiche I herde, was as it were of a trompet talking with me, which sayd: come up hether, and I will shewe the thinges whiche must be fulfilled hereafter. And forthwith I was in the spirite: and beholde a seate was put in heuen, and one sate on the seate. And he that sate, was to luke upon like unto a sapphire stone, and a sardyne stone. And there was a carpebowe aboute the seate, in syghte lyke to an emeralde. And about the seate were xiiii. seates. And upon the seates, xiiii. elders sate, clothed in white rayment, and had on theyr heedes crownes of golde.

And out of the seate proceded lightenynges, and thundrynges, and voyces, and there were seuen lampes of fyre, burnyng before the seate, whiche are the seuen spirites of God. And before the seate there was a sea of glasse lyke unto a crysall, and in the myddes of the seate, and rounde aboute the seate were foure beastes full of eyes before and behynde. And the fyrst best was lyke a lyon, the seconde best lyke a calfe, and the thyrde best had a face as a man, and the fourth best was lyke a flyng eagle. And the foure beastes had eche one of them syre wynges about him, and they were full of eyes withyn. And they hadde no rest day ne nyght, sayng: * Holy, holy, holy, Lorde God almyghty, whiche was, and is, and is to come.

And when those beastes gaue gloffe and honour and thanks to hym that sate on the seate, whiche sayth for ever and ever: the xiiii. elders fell downe before hym that sate on the seate, and worshipped hym that lyeth for ever, and callyd the beastes to receyve gloffe and honour and power, for they hadde created all thynges, & for theyr wylls sake, & they were created.

He seyth the lambe openyng the boke, and therfore the foure beastes, the xiiii. elders and the angels praye the lambe, and do hym worshippe.

CAPL V

And

And I sawe in the ryght hande of hym that sate in the trone a booke wyrtten within and on the backsyde, sealed with seuen seales. And I sawe a stronge aungell whiche cryed with a loude voyce: Who is worthy to open the boke, and to looke the seales therof. And no man in heuen ne in erth neyther under the earth, was habile to open the boke, neyther to luke thereon. And I wept moche, because no man was founde worthy to open and to rede the boke, neyther to luke thereon.

And one of the elders sayd unto me: wepe not: Beholde a lyon of the trybe of Juda, the roote of David, hath obtayned to open the boke, and to looke the seuen seales therof. And I behelde, and lo in the myddes of the seate, and of the foure beastes, and in the myddes of the elders stode a lambe as though he hadde ben kyled, whiche had seuen hornes, and seuen eyes, whiche are the spirites of God, sent in to all the world. And he came and toke the boke out of the ryghte hande of him that sate upon the seate.

And when he had taken the boke, the foure beastes and xiiii. elders fell downe before the lambe, haungyng harpes, and golden byals full of odours, whiche are the prayers of sayntes, and they songe a newe songe, sayng: thou art worthy to take the boke, and to open the seales therof: for thou wast kyled, and hast redeemed vs by thy bloude out of all kynredes, and tonges, and people, and nations, and hast made vs unto our God, kynges and priestes, and we shall raygne on the erth.

* And I behelde, and I herde the voyce of many aungels aboute the trone, and aboute the beastes, and the elders, and I herde thou sandes, sayng with a loude voyce: Worthy is the lambe that was kyled to receyve power, and ryches, and wysdome, and strengthe, and honour and gloffe, and blessing. And all the creatures whiche are in heuen, and on the erth, and under the erth, and in the see, and all that are in them I herd, sayng: blessing, honour, gloffe, and power be unto him that syteth upon the seate, and unto the lambe for evermore. And the foure beastes sayd Amen. And the foure and twenty elders fell upon theyr faces, and worshipped hym that lyeth for evermore.

He lambe openeth the vi. seales, and many thynge folow the openyng therof.

CAPL VI

And I sawe when the lambe opened one of the seales, and I herde one of the foure beastes say, as it were the noyse of thonder, come and se, and I sawe. And beholde there was a white horse, and he that sate on hym, had a bow, and a crowne was giue unto him, and he went forth conquerynge, and for to overcome. And when he opened the second seale, I herde the second best say: come and se. And there went out an other horse that was redde, and power was giuen to him that sate thereon to take peace frome the earth, and that they sholde kyll one another. * And there was gyuen unto him a great swerde.

And when he opened the thyrde seale, I herde the thyrde best say: come and se. And I behelde, and lo, a blacke horse: and he that sate on hym had a payre of balauces in his hande. And I herde a voyce in the myddes of the foure beastes say: a measure of whete for a peny and the measures of barlye for a peny: & ople and wyne se thou hurt not. And when he opened the fourth seale, I herde the voyce of the fourth best say: come and se: and I lohed. And beholde a grene horse, and his name that sate on hym was deth, and he followed after hym, and power was gyuen unto them ouer the fourth parte of the erth to kyll with swerde, and with hunger, and with deth that cometh of vermen of the erth.

And when he opened the fyfte seale, I sawe under the autler, the soules of them that were kyled for the wordes of God, and for the testimony whiche they had, and they cryed with a loude voyce sayng: Howe longe taryest thou Lorde, holy and true, to iudge, and to avenge our bloude on them that dwell on the erth? And long tarye garments were giue vnto every one of them. And it was sayd vnto the that they sholde rest for a lytle season, tyl the nombre of theyr felowes and bretheren, and of them that sholde be kyled as they were, were fulfilled.

And I beheld when he opened the sixt seale, and lo there was a grate earthquake, and the sunne was as blacke as sacke clothe made of herse. And the moone wexed even as bloude, & the sterres of heuen fell vnto the erth even as a figge tree casteth from her her fygges, when she is shaken of a myghty wynde. And heuen banished away, as a scroll when it is rolled together. And all mountayns and yles, were moued out of theyr places. And the kynges of the erth, and the great men, and the ryche men, and the chiefe captaynes, and the mighty men, and every bondman, and every free man, hyped them selues in dynes, and in rockes of the hilles: * and sayd to the hyles and rockes: fall on vs, and hyde vs frome the presence of hym that syteth on the seate, and from the wrath of the lambe: for the great daye of his wrath is come, and who can endure it.

He seyth the seruantes of God sealed in theyr foreheads out of al nations and people, which though they suffer trouble, yet the lambe fedeeth them, leueth them to the fountaynes of lyfynge water, and God shall wyte awaye all teares frome theyr eyes.

CAPL VII

And after that, I sawe foure aungelles stande on the foure corners of the erth, holdyng the foure wyndes of the erth, that the wyndes sholde not blow on the erth, neyther on the see, neyther on any tree. * And I sawe an other aungell ascende from the spyng of the sunne, whiche had the seale of the lyfynge God, and he cryed with a loude voyses to the four angells (to whom power was given to hurt the erth and the see) saying hurt not the erth, neyther the see, neyther the trees, tyll we have sealed the seruauntes of our God in their foreheedes.

And I herd the nombre of them which were sealed, and there were sealed an hundred and thulif thousande, of all the tribes of the chyl- dren of Israel. Of the tribe of Juda were sealed xiiij. thousande. Of the tribe of Ruben were sealed xiiij. thousande. Of the tribe of Gad were sealed xiiij. thousande. Of the tribe of Aser were sealed xiiij. thousande. Of the tribe of Nephtalim were sealed xiiij. thousande. Of the tribe of Manasses were sealed xiiij. thousande. Of the tribe of Symeon were sealed xiiij. thousande. Of the tribe of Leuy were sealed xiiij. thousande. Of the tribe of Issacar were sealed xiiij. thousande. Of the tribe of Zabulon were sealed xiiij. thousande. Of the tribe of Joseph were sealed xiiij. thousande. Of the tribe of Benjamin were sealed xiiij. thousande.

After this I behelde, and lo a great multi- tude (whiche no man coulde nombre) of all nations and people, and tonges, stode before the seate, and before the lambe clothed with longe whyte garments, and palmes in their handes, and cryed with a loude voyce, say- ing: Welch to hym that syteth upon the seat of our God, and vnto the lambe. And all the angells stode in the compasse of the seate, and of the elders, and of the four beestes, and fell before the seate on theyr faces, and wor- shipped God, saying: Amen. Blessynge and glory, wisdom and thankes, and honour, and power, and myght be vnto our God for ever- more. Amen.

And one of the elders answered, saying vnto me: what are these which are arrayed in long whyte garments, & whence came they? And I sayd vnto him: Lord, thou wotest. And he sayd to me: these are they which came out of great tribulation, and made theyr garments large, and made them whyte in the bloude of the lambe: therefore are they in the presence of the seat of God, and serue him day and nyght in his temple, and he that syteth in the seat wyll dwell amonge them. They shall hunger no more, neither thirst, neither shall the sunne lyght on them, neither any heate. For the lambe whiche is in the myddes of the seate, shall fede them, and shall leade them vnto fountaynes of lyfynge water, and God shall wype away all teares from theyr eyes.

The seuenth scale is opened, there silence in hea- ven, the four angells blowe theyr trumpettes, and greates plagis folowe vpon the erth.

CAPL.

VIII.

And when he hadde opened the seuenth scale, there was silence in heuen about the space of halfe an houre. And I saw angells standynge before God, and to them were gyven seven trumpettes. And an other aungell came and stode before the aulter ha- urnge a golden censur, and moche of odours was gyven vnto him, that he shoulde offre of the prayers of all sayntes upon the golden an- ter, which was before the seate. And the smoke of the odours which came of the prayers of al sayntes, ascended vp before God out of the an- gells hande. And the aungell toke the censur, & fylled it with fyre of the aulter, and caste it in to the erth, and voyces were made, and thon- derynges and lightnynges, and erthquake.

And the seven angells which had the seven trumpettes prepared them selues to blowe. The first aungell blew, and there was made hayle and fyre, whiche were mingled with bloude, and they were cast in to the erth: and the thyrde parte of trees was burnt, and all grene grasse was byent. And the seconde aungell blew: and as it were a great mountayne burnynge with fyre was cast in to the see, and the thyrde parte of the see was turned to bloud, and the thyrde parte of the creatures whiche had lyfe, dyed: and the thyrde parte of theyr- res were destroyed.

And the thyrde aungell blew, and there fell a great sterre frome heuen burnynge as it were a lampe, and it fell in to the thyrde parte of the ryuers, and in to fountaynes of wa- ters, and the name of the sterre is called worme- wood. And the thyrde parte was touchen to wormewood. And many men dyed of the wa- ters, because they were made bytter. And the fourth aungell blew, and the thyrde parte of the sunne was smyten, and the thyrde parte of the mone, and the thyrde parte of sterres: so that the thyrde part of them was darkened. And the daye was smyten, that the thyrde parte of it shoulde not shyne, and lykewyse the nyghte. And I behelde and herde an aungell steppe thowme the myddes of heuen, say- inge with a loude voyce: Wo, wo to the in- habytters of the erth, because of the voyces to come of the trompe of the thyrde angells which were yet to blowe.

The fyfth and syxth aungell blowe, theyr trom- pettes: the sterre falleth frome heuen: the locustes come out of the smoke: The fyfth wo is past: the four angells that were bounde are loosed, and the thyrde parte of men is kyllid.

CAPL.

IX.

And the fyfth aungell blew, and I sawe a sterre fall from heuen vnto the erth. And to hym was gyven the keye of the bottomlesse pyt. And he opened the bot- tomlesse pyt, and there arose the smoke of a great furnace. And the sunne and the ayre were darkened by the reason of the smoke of the pyt. And there came out of the smoke locustes vpon the erth: and vnto them was gyven po- wer as the scorpions of the erth haue power. And it was commaunded them that they shoulde not hurte the grasse of the erth: ne any grene thyng: neyther any tree: but onely those men whiche haue not the seale in theyr foreheedes. And to them was commaunded that they shoulde not kyll them, but that they shoulde be vexed fyve monethes, and theyr payne was as the

payne that cometh of a scorpion, when he hath stonge a man. And in those dayes shall men seke deathe, and shall not fynde it, and shall desyre to dye, and desyre shall see from them.

And the similitude of the locustes was lyke vnto horses prepared vnto batayle, and on theyr heedes were as it were crownes, lyke vnto golde: and theyr faces were as it hadde ben the faces of men. And they hadde heere as the heere of wynges. And theyr teth were as the teth of Lyons. And they hadde hab- beryngs, as it were habberyngs of yron. And the sounde of theyr wynges, was as the sounde of charrettes when many horses runne together to batayle. And they had cayles lyke vnto scorpions: and there were wynges in theyr tayles. And theyr power was to hurte men fyve monethes. And they hadde a kynge ouer them, whiche is the aungell of the bot- tomlesse pyt, whose name in the Hebrue tongue is Abaddon, and in the Greke tonge, Apollyon. One wo is past, & beholde two wo- es come after this.

And the syxth aungell blew, and I herde a voyce from the four corners of the golden aulter whiche is before God, sayinge to the syxth aungell, whiche had the trompe: Rose the four angelles, whiche are bounde in the great ryuer Euphrates. And the four an- gells were loosed whiche were prepared for an houre, for a daye, for a moneth, and for a yere, to see the thyrde parte of men. And the nombre of hostemen of warre, were twentye tymes ten thousande. And I herde the num- bre of them: and thus I sawe the hostes in a vision, and them that sate on them, ha- uynge fyre habbaryngs of a Jacinde co- lour, and byrmone, and the heedes of the hostes were as the heedes of Lyons. And oute of theyr mouthes went forth fyre and smoke, and byrmone. And of these thyr was the thyrde parte of men kyllid: that is to saye, of fyre, of smoke, and byrmone, which proceded out of the mouthes of them: for theyr power was in theyr mouthes and in theyr tayles: for theyr tayles were lyke vnto serpentes, and hadde heedes, and with them they dyd hurte: And the reboure of the men whiche were not kyllid by these plagis, repented not of the de- des of theyr handes, that they shoulde not wor- shippe deuylls, and ymages of golde, and syl- uer, and brasse, and stone, and of wode, whiche neyther can se, neyther heare, neyther go. Also they repented not of theyr murder, and of theyr fornication, neyther of theyr thefte.

The aungell hath the boke open: he sweareth there shalbe no more tyme: he gyven the boke vnto Iohann, whiche eareth it vp.

CAPL.

And I sawe an other myghty aungell come downe from heuen clothed with a clowde, and the raynebowe vpon his heed. And his face as it were the sunne, and his fete as it were pillars of fyre, and he had in his hande a lytle boke open: and he put his right fete vpon the see, and his left fete on the erth. And cryed with a loude voyce, as when a Lyon roareth. And when he had cryed, seven thondres spake theyr voyces. And when the seven thondres had spoken theyr voyces, I was aboute to wyte. And I herde a voyce from heuen sayinge vnto me: seale vp those thynges whiche the seven thondres spake, and wyte them not.

And the aungell whiche I sawe stande vpon the see, and vpon the earthe lyfte vp his hande to heauen, and swore by hym that lyueth for evermore, whiche created heuen, and the thynges that therein are, and the see, and the thynges whiche therein are: that there shoulde be no longer tyme, but in the dayes of the voyce of the seuenth aungell, whiche he shal begyn to blowe, even the mysterie of God shal be fulfilled as he preached by his ser- uauntes the prophetes.

And the voyce whiche I herde frome he- uen, spake vnto me agayne, and sayd: & go and take the lytle boke whiche is open in the hande of the aungell whiche standeth vpon the see and vpon the earthe. And I went vnto the aungell, and sayde to him: Spue me the lytle boke, and he sayde vnto me: take it, and eate it vp, and it shall make thy belly better, but it shall be in thy mouth as mete as hony. And I toke the lytle boke out of his hande and eate it vp, and it was in my mouth as swete as hony: and as soone as I hadde ta- ken it, my belly was better. And he sayd vnto me: thou muste prophesye agayne amonge the people and nations, and tonges, and to many kynge.

The temple is measured. The seconde wo is past.

CAPL.

XI.

And then was gyven me a rebe, lyke vnto a rodde, and it was sayde vnto me: Arise and mete the temple of god, and the aulter, and them that worship therein, and the quere whiche is with in the temple, take out and mete it not: for it is gyven vnto the Gentyles, and the holy cyte that they treade vnder fete, xiiij. monethes. And I will gyue power vnto my two wytnesses, and they shall prophesye a thowsande, two hun- dred and thyscore dayes, clothed in sacke clothe. These are two olyue trees, and two candelystykes, standynge before the God of the erthe.

And yf any man wyl hurte them, fyre shall procede oute of theyr mouthes, and consume theyr enemyes. And yf any man wyl hurte them this wyse muste he be kyllid. These haue power to shut heauen, that it rayne not in the dayes of theyr prophesyinge: and haue power ouer waters to turne them to bloude, and to smyte the erth, with all maner plagis as often as they wyl.

And when they haue finished theyr testi- mony, the beest that came out of the bottom- lesse pyt, shall make warre agaynst them, and

B. h. shall shall overcome them and kill them. And their bodies shall lie in the streets of the great city, which spiritually is called Sodom and Egypt, where our Lord was crucified. And they of the people and kynredes, and tonges, and they of the nations, shall see their bodies these dayes and an halfe, and shall not suffer their bodies to be put in graues. And they that dwell upon the earth, shall reioyce over them and be glad, and shall sende giftes one to another, for these two propheetes vexed them that dwell on the earth.

And after thre dayes and an halfe the spiryte of lyfe from God, entred in to them. And they stode vp on their feet: and greace feare came on them which sawe them. And they herde a great voyce from heuen, sayinge vnto them. Come vp hither. And they ascended vp in to heuen in a cloude, and theyr annemyes sawe them. And the same houre was there a great earthquake, and the tenth parte of the city fell, and in the earthquake were slayne names of men seven thousande, and the residue were feared, and gaue glory to God of heuen. The seconde wo is past, and beholde the thirde wo will come anone.

And the seventh aungell blew, and there were made greace voyces in heuen, sayinge: the kyngdomes of this worlde are out of Lordes and his chylde, and he shall raigne for ever more. And the seven elders which sat before God on their seates, fel upon their faces, and worshipped God, sayinge: we geue the thanks vnto thee, O Lord God almighty: which arte, and wast, and art to come, for thou hast receyued thy greace myghte, and hast reigned. And the nations were angry, and thy wrath is come, and the tyme of the deed, that they shoulde be iudged, and that thou shouldest geue reward vnto thy seruantes the propheetes and saintes and to them that feare thy name small and great, and shouldest destroy them which destroy the earth. And the temple of God was opened in heuen, and there was seene in his temple, the Ark of his Testament: and there folowed lightnynges, and voyces, and thondynges, and earthquake, and moche hapie.

The seventh Angell bloweth his trumpet. There appeareth in heuen a woman clothed with the sunne: Michael fighteth with the dragon, which persecuteth the woman.

CAP. I.

XII.

And there appered a grete wonder in heuen: A woman clothed with the sunne and the mone vnder her feet, and vpon her heed, a crowne of twelve steres. And she was with chylde, and cryed traunglyng in byrth, and payned redy to be deliuered. And there appered an other wonder in heuen, for beholde a great red dragon hauing vii. heedes and ten hornes and crownes vpon his heedes: and his teyle was the thyrde parte of the fierres, and cast them to the earth.

And the dragon stode before the woman, which was redy to be deliuered: for to deuoure her chylde as soon as it were borne. And she brought forth a manchild, which shoulde rule all nations with a rodde of yron. And her sonne was taken vp vnto God, and to his seate. And the woman fledde into wyldernes where she had a place prepared of God, that they shoulde feede her there a thousande. y. hundred and forty dayes.

And there was a great batayle in heuen, Michael and his angels fought with the dragon and the dragon fought and his angels, and preuailed not: neither was their place found any more in heuen. And the great dragon that olde serpent called the deuill, and Sathanas was cast out, which deceyueth all the worlde. And he was caste in to the earth, and his angels were cast out also.

And I herde a loude voyce, sayinge: in heuen is now made saluacion, and strengthe and the kyngdom of our God, and the power of his annoynted. For he is cast downe which accused them before God daye and night. And they overcame him by the blood of the lambe and by the woze of their witness, and they loued not theyr lyues vnto the death. Therefore reioyce heuens, and ye that dwell in them. Woo to the inhabitants of the earth, and of the see: for the deuill is come downe vnto you which hath great wrath, because he knoweth he hath but a woze tyme.

And when the dragon sawe, that he was caste vnto the earth, he pursued the woman, which brought forth the man chylde. And to the woman were geuen two wynges of a great eagle, that she myght flee in to the wyldernes, in to her place, where she is nourished for a tyme, tymes, and halfe a tyme, from the presence of the serpent. And the dragon caste out of his mouth water after the woman as it had ben a ryuer, because she shoulde haue ben caught of the flood. And the earth helpe the woman, and the earth opened her mouth and swalowed vp the ryuer, which the dragon cast out of his mouth. And the dragon was wroth with the woman: and went and made warre with the remnant of her seed, which kepe the commandementes of God, and haue the testimony of Iesu chylde. And I stode on the se lande.

A beaste ryseth out of the see with seven heedes and ten hornes. An other beaste cometh out of the earth with two hornes.

CAP. I.

XIII.

And I saw a beaste ryse out of the see, hauinge seven heedes, and tenne hornes, and vpon his hornes tenne crownes, and vpon his heed, the name of blasphemye. And the beeste which I sawe, was lyke a cat of the mountayne, and his teyle was as the teyle of a beare, and his mouth as the mouth of a Lyon. And the dragon gaue hym his power & his seate, and great authority: and I sawe one of his heedes as it were wounded to death and his deadly wounde was healed. And all the worlde wonnyed at the beeste, & they worshipped the dragon which gaue power vnto the beeste, and they worshipped the beeste, sayinge who is lyke vnto the deest? who is haue to warre with him?

And there was gyuen vnto him a month, that spake great thynges and blasphemyes, and power was gyuen vnto him to doo xlii. monethes. And he opened his mouth vnto blasphemye agaynst God, to blaspheme his name and his tabernacle, and them that dwell in heuen. And it was giuen vnto him to make warre with the sayntes, & to overcome them.

And power was gyuen hym ouer all kynredes tonge and nation, and all that dwell vpon the earth worshipt him, whose names are not written in the booke of life of the lambe, which was killed from the begynnyng of the worlde. yf any man haue an eare, let him heare. & he that leaerth in to captiuitie, shall go in to captiuitie: & he that killeth with the swerde, must be killed with a swerde. Here is the patience and the fapth of the sayntes.

And I behelde an other beeste comyng by out of the earth, and he had two hornes lyke a lambe, and he spake as did the dragon. And he dyd all that the fyrst beeste coulde do in his presence, and he caused the earth, and them which dwell therein, to worship the first beeste, whose deadly wounde was healed. And he dyd great wonders, so that he made fyre come downe from heuen in the syght of men. And deceyued them that dwell on the earth by the meanes of those signes which he had power to do in the syght of the beest, sayinge to them that dwell on the earth: that they shoulde make an ymage vnto the beest, which had the wounde of a swerde, and dyd lyue.

And he had power to geue a spire vnto the ymage of the beest, and that the ymage of the beest shoulde speake, and shoulde cause that as many as wolde not worship the ymage of the beest shoulde be killed. And he made all bothe small and greace, ryche and poore, free and bonde, to receyue a marke in theyr ryght handes, or in theyr foreheades. And that no man might bre or sell, save he that had the marke or the name of the beest, either the nombze of his name. Here is wylsom. Let him that hath wytte count the nombze of beest. For it is the the nombze of a man, and his nombze is lyxe hundred, thre score and sixe.

The lambe standeth vpon the mounte Sion, and the hundred congregacion with him: The aungell exhorteth to the feare of God and collecth of the fall of Babylon.

CAP. I.

XIII.

And I looked, and lo a lambe stode on the mount Sion, and with him an. L. and xliij. thousande hauinge his fathers name written in theyr foreheades. And I herde a voyce from heuen as the sounde of many waters, and as the voyce of a great thonder. And I herde the voyce of harpers harpyng with theyr harpes. And they songe as it were a newe songe, before the seate, and before the four beestes, and the elders, and no man coulde lerne that songe, but the hundred and foure and forty thousande, which were redeemed from the earth. These are they which were not defyled with women, for they are virgins. These folowe the lambe whither so euer he goeth. These were redeemed from men, bringe the fyrst tentes vnto God, and to the lambe, and in theyr mouthes was founde no gyle. For they are without spotte before the throne of God. &

And I sawe an aungell flee in the myddes of heuen, hauinge an euerylasyng Gospell, to preache vnto them that lyt and dwell on the earth, and to all nations, kynredes, and tonges and people, sayinge with a loude voyce: feare God, and geue honour to hym, for the houre of his iudgement is come: and worship hym, that made heuen and earth, and the see, and fountaynes of water. And there folowed an other aungell, sayinge: & Babylon is fallen is fallen that greace city, & for she made all nations drynke of the wyne of her fornicacion.

And the thyrde aungell folowed them saying with a loude voyce: If any man worship the beest and his ymage, and receyue his marke in his forehead, or on his hande, the same shall drynke the wyne of the wrath of God, which is poured in the cup of his wrath. And he shall be punished in fyre and byrmstone, before the holy aungels, and before the lambe.

And the smoke of their torment ascended vnto euermore. And they haue no rest day nor night, which worship the beest and his ymage and and who so receyue the prynte of his name. Here is the patience of sayntes. Here are they that kepe the commandementes and the fapth of Iesu.

And I herde a voyce from heuen, saying vnto me: wyrite. Blessed are the dead, which here after dye in the Lord, euen so sayth the spire that they may rest from theyr labours, but theyr workes shall folowe them.

And I looked, and beholde a whyte cloude, and vpon the cloude one sittinge lyke vnto the sonne of man, hauinge on his heed a golde crown, and in his hande a warpe sickle. And an other aungell came out of the temple crying with a loude voyce to him that sat on the cloude. & Thrusse in thy sickle and reape, for the tyme is come to reape, for the come of the earth is ripe. And he that sat on the cloude, thurst in his sickle on the earth, and the earth was reaped.

And an other aungell came out of the temple, which is in heuen, hauinge also a warpe sickle. And an other aungell came out frome the altare, which had power ouer fyre, and reaped with a loude crye to him that had the warpe sickle, and sayd: thrusse in thy warpe sickle, and gather the clusters of the earth, for her grapes are ripe. And the aungell thurst in his sickle on the earth, and cut downe the grapes of the vineyarde of earth, & cast in to them in to the great wynefat of the wrath of God, and the wynefat was troden without the city, and bloude came out of the fat, euen vnto

The ſeyn ſeven Angells, hauege ſeven byals full of wrath.

CAP. XV.

And I ſawe an other ſigne in heauen, great and meruaylous, ſeven aungels hauege the ſeven laſte plagis, for in them is fulfilled the wrath of God. And I ſawe as it were a glaſſe ſee, mingled with fyre, and them that had gotten victory of the beest, and of his ymage, and of his marke, and of the nombre of his name, ſtande on the glaſſe ſee, hauege the harpes of God, and they ſong the ſonge of Moſes the ſeruaunt of God, and the ſonge of the lambe: ſayinge: Great and meruaylous are thy workes: * Loide God almighty, iust and true are thy wayes kyng of ſapntes. Who ſhall not feare (o Loide) and glorify thy name? For thou only art holy, and all gentiles ſhal come and worſhip before the,
for thy iudgements are made manifeſt.

* Eſay. 44. 6.
Pſalm. 111. 3.

And after that I looked, and beholde the temple of the tabernacle of teſtimonye was open in heuen, and the ſeven aungelles came out of the temple, whiche had the ſeven plages, clothed in pure and bright linnen, and hauege they: breeches girded with golden girdels. And one of the ſoure beestes gaue vnto the ſeven aungelles ſeven golden byalles full of the wrath of God, whiche ſpuech for yet more. And the temple was full of the ſmoke of the glory of God, and of his power, and no man was habile to entre in to the temple, till the ſeven plagis of the ſeven aungels were fulfilled.

The Aungelles poure oute they: byalles full of wrath.

CAP. XVI.

And I herd a great voyce out of the temple ſayinge to the ſeven aungels: Go poure wayes, poure out your byalles of wrath vpon the erth. And the fyrſt went and poured out his byall vpon the erth, and there fel a noyſome and a ſore botche vpon the men whiche had the marke of the beest, and vpon them whiche worſhipped his ymage. And the ſecond aungell ſhed out his byall vpon the ſee, and it turned as it were in to the bloud of a deeth man: and euery ſprynge thynge dyed in the ſee. And the thyrde aungell ſhed oute his byall vpon the ryuers and fountaynes of waters, and they turned to bloude. And I herde an aungel ſaye: Woe vnto they that art and waſte, thou art egyptians and holy, becauſe thou haſt gryuen ſuch iudgements, for they ſhed out the bloud of ſapntes and prophetes, and therefore haſt thou giuen them bloud to drinke, for they are worthy. And I herde an other out of the aultrey ſay: euen ſo Loide God almighty true and rightous are thy iudgements.

And the fourth aungel poured out his byall on the ſunne, and power was giuen vnto him to burne men with heate of fyre. And the men raged in great heat, & ſpake euery of the name of god, whiche hath power ouer thoſe plagis, and they repented not, to giue him glory. And the fyfte aungell poured oute his byall vpon the ſeat of the beest, and his kyngdome waxed darke, and they grieved they: ſonges for ſorrow and blaſphemye the God of heuen for ſorrow and payne of they: ſoyes, and repented not of they: dedes.

And the ſyxe aungell poured out his byall vpon the great ryuer Euphrates, and the water dyed by, that the wayes of the kynges of the Eaſt ſhoulde be prepared. And I ſawe three vntene ſpirtes, lyke frogges come out of the mouthe of the dragon, and out of the mouthe of the beest, and out of the mouth of the falſe prophete. For they are the ſpirtes of deuyls workynge myſtacles, to go out vnto the kyng-ges of the erth, and of the hole worlde, to gather them to the batayle of that great daye of God almighty. Beholde I come as a thefe.
Wapye is he that watcheth and keepeth his garmentes, leſt he be founde naked, and men ſe his ſylthynes. And he gathered them together in to a place called in the ſyde longe Armagedon.

And the ſeventh aungell poured out his by-all in to the ayre. And there came a voyce oute of heuen from the ſeat, ſayinge: it is done.
And there folowed voyces, thondynges, and lyghtenynge, and there was a greates erth-quake, ſuche as was not ſythen men were vpon the erthe, ſo mighty an erthquake and ſo greates. And the greates crye was heard in to the partys, and the cryes of all nations fell. And greates Babylon came in remembraunce before God, to grue vnto her the cup of the wyne of the fearenes of his wrath.
Euery ſhe fled awaye, and the mountaynes were not founde. And there fell a greates hayle as it had ben talentes out of heuen vpon the men, and the men blaſphemye God: becauſe of the plage of the hayle, for it was greates and the plage of it ſore.

The deſcribeth the woman ſtytynge vpon the beaſt with ten hornes.

CAP. XVII.

And there came one of the ſeven aungelles, whiche had the ſeven byalles:
and talked with me, ſayinge vnto me:
come, I wyll ſhewe the the iudgement of the great hooze that ſtretcheth vpon many waters, with whom haue committed fornicacion, the kynges of the erthe, ſo that the inhabitants of the earthe are drunken with the wyne of her fornicacion. And he caried me awaye in to the wyldernes in the ſpyre. And I ſawe a woman ſte vpon a roſe coloured beest, ful of names of blaſphemye, whiche had ten hornes. And the woman was arrayed in purple and roſe colour and decked with golde, precious ſtone, and pearles, and had cup of golde in her hande ful of abominacions and ſylthynes of her fornicacion. And in her right hande was a name wrytten a myſtreye, greates Babylon the mother of hooredome hooredome and abominacions of the erth. And I ſawe the woman drunken with the bloude of ſapntes, and with the bloude of the wyrt-nelles of Jeſu. And when I ſawe her, I wondered with great meruayle.

And the aungell ſaid vnto me: Wherefore maruayleſt thou? I wyll ſhewe the the myſterye of the woman, and of the beest that beareth her, whiche hath ſeven heedes, and tenne hornes. The beest that thou ſeeſt, was, and is not, and ſhall aſcende oute of the botomleſſe pyt, and ſhal go in to perdition, and they that dwell on the erth ſhal wonder (whole names are not wrytten in the booke of lyfe from the begynnyng of the worlde) when they beholde the beest, that was and is not. And here is a mynde that hath the wyldome.

The ſeven heedes are ſeven mountaynes, on whiche the woman ſteth: they are alſo ſeven kynges. ſyre are fallen, and one is, and an other is not yet come. When he cometh he muſt continue a ſpace. And the beest that was and is not, is euen the egypt, and is one of the ſeven, and ſhal go in to deſtruction. And the ten hornes whiche thou ſeeſt, are ten kyng-ges, whiche haue receyued no kyngdome, but ſhal receyue power as kynges at one houre with the beest. Theſe haue one mynde, and ſhal gyue they: power and ſtrength vnto the beest. Theſe ſhal ſpyght with the lambe, and the lambe ſhal overcome them: * For he is Loide of Loides, and kyng of kynges, a they that are on his ſyde, are called, and choſen, and faithfull.

And he ſaid vnto me: the waters whiche thou ſaweſt where the hooze ſteth, are people, and folke, and nations, and longes. And the ten hornes, whiche thou ſaweſt vpon the beest, are they that ſhal hate the hooze, and ſhal make her deſolate and naked, and ſhal eate her fleſhe, and burne her with fyre. * For God hath put in they: heries to fulfill his wyll, and to do with one conſent, for to gyue her kyngdome vnto the beest, till the wordes of God be fulfilled. And the woman whiche thou ſaweſt, is that great city, whiche reigneth ouer the kynges of the erth.

The lowes of the worlde are ſore for the fall of Babylon, but they that be of God haue cauſe to re-ioyce for her deſtruction.

CAP. XVIII.

And after that, I ſawe an other aun-gell come from heuen, hauege greates power, and the earthe, was lightened with his brightnes. And he cryed myghtily with a ſtrong voyce, ſayinge: * Great Babylon is fallen, is fallen: and is become the habitation of deuyls, and the hold of al foule ſpirtes, and a cage of all vntene and hate-full bydes, for all nations haue drunken of the wyne of the wrath of her fornicacion.
And the kynges of the earthe haue committed fornicacion with her, and her merchaun-tes are waxed ryche, of the abundaunce of her pleaſures.

And I herde an other voyce frome heuen, ſaye: come awaye from her (my people) that ye be not partakers in her ſynnes, that ye receyue not of her plagis. For her ſynnes are gone by to heuen, and God hath not remembered her wickednes. Remembre her euen as the rewarded you, and gyue her double accor-dyng to her workes. And poure in double to her in the ſame cuppe whiche ſhe ſpilled vnto
you. And as moche as ſhe glorified her ſelfe, and luyed wantonly, ſo moche poure ye in for her of punyſhment and ſorrowe, for ſhe ſayde in her ſelfe: * I ſpote beynge a quene, and am no wydowe, and ſhal ſe no ſorrowe.
Wherefore ſhal her plagis come at one dape, deeth, and ſorrowe, and hunger, and ſhe ſhal be bzant with fyre: for ſtronger is the Loide God whiche iudgeth her.

And the kynges of the earthe ſhal betwepe her and waile ouer her, whiche haue committed fornicacion with her, and haue luyed wantonly with her, when they ſhal ſe the ſmoke of her burnynge, and ſhal ſtande aſtate of ſore feare of her punyſhment, ſayinge:
* Alas, alas that greates citye Babylon, that raghly citye: for at one houre is her iudge-ment come. And the merchauntes of the erth ſhal wepe and waile in them ſelues, for no man wyll bye they: ware any more, the ware of golde and ſyluer, and precious ſtones, neither of pearle, and raynes, and purple, and ſcarlet, and all thyne woodde, and all maner veſſelles of puerpe, and all maner veſſelles of moost precious woodde, and of bzaffe, and pyon, and ſynamon, and cymys, and opylmentes, and frankenſence, and wyne, and oyle, and ſyne flour, and whete, beſtes, and chepe, and hoſtes, and charettes, and bodyes and ſoules of men.

And the apples that thy ſoule luſted after craftes man of what so ever craft he be, shall be founde any more in the. And the founde of of a myll shall be herbe no more in the, and the voyce of the byrdgrome and of the byrde shall be herbe no more in the: for thy marchaun-tes were the grete men of the erth. And with thyne enchantment were discreued all nations: and in her was founde the bloude of the prophetes, and of the sayntes, and of all that were slayne upon the erth.

¶ Wherof the thankes are given unto God for iudginge the wyse, and for aneynging the bloude of his seruantes. The Angell wyl not be worshipped.
The foules and byrdes are called to the slaughter.

2 A After that I herd the voyce of moche people in heauen, sayinge: Alleluia.
¶ The and glory and honour and priuier to the Lorde our God, for true a. d. c. c. c. tous are his iudgements, for he hath iudged the grete hoore whiche dyd corrupt the erthe with her fornication. and hath avenge the bloude of his seruantes of her hande. And againe they sayd: Alleluia. And make rase up for euermore. And the xliij. elders, and the four hundredes fell downe, and worshipped God that sat on the seate, sayinge: Amen. Alleluia. And a voyce came forth of the seate, sayinge: prayse our Lorde God all ye that are his seruantes, and ye that feare hym bothe small and great.

¶ And I herd the voyce of moche people, such as the voyce of many waters, as the voyce of strong thondres, sayinge: Alleluia, for God omnipotent raggeth. Let vs be glad and reioyce and give honour to him: for the marriage of the lambe is come, and his wife made her selfe ready. And to her was graunted, that she shoulde be arrayed with pure and goodly raiment. For the raynes in the rhyghteousnes of saintes. And he sayde unto me, * happy are they which are called to the lammes supper.
¶ And he said unto me: these are the true sayin-ges of God. And I fell at his fete, to worship him. And he sayde unto me, se thou do it not.
For I am thy fellowe seruant, and one of thy brethren, and of them that haue the testimony of Iesu. Worshipp God. For the testimony of Iesu is the spiryte of the prophete.

¶ And I saw heuen open, and beholde a white horse, and he that sat upon him was called true and true, and in rhyghteousnes dyd iudge and make batayle. His eyes were as a flamme of fyre: and on his heed were many crowns:
and he hadde a name, which no man knewe but he hym selfe. * And was clothed with a vesture dypte in bloude, and his name is called the wynde of God. And the four hundredes which were in heauen, folowed hym upon white horses, clothed with white and pure rayment: and out of his mouth went out a spere of sharpe, that with it he shoulde smyte the hethen. * And he shall rule them with a rod of iron, and he trode the wynevat of fearnes and tosteth of almyghthy God. And hath an hemure and on his thigh a name wyrtten: King of kynges, and Lorde of Lordes.

¶ And I sawe an angell stande in the sunne, and he cryed with a loude voyce, sayinge to all the foules that flee by the myddes of he-uen, come and gather youre selues together vnto the supper of the grete God, that ye maye eat the fleshe of kynges and of byghe captaynes, and the fleshe of myghty men, and the fleshe of horses, and of them that spytte on them, and the fleshe of all free men and bond men, and of small and great. And I sawe the beast and the kynges of the earthe, and they warriours gathered together to make batayle agaynst hym that sat on the horse, and a-gaynst his four hundredes.

¶ And the beast was taken with him that falle prophete that wrought myrcles before him, with which he discreued them that recei-ued the bestes marke, and them that worshipped his ymage. These bothe were caste in to a pyrre of fyre burninge with byrstone: and the reue were slayne with the swerde of hym that sat upon the horse, whiche proceded out of his mouth, and all the foules were slayed with theyr fleshe.

¶ The dragon is bounde for a thousande yeres
The deat arse, and receyue iudgement.

C A P I. XX.

2 A I sawe an angell come downe fro heuen, hauinge the keye of the botom-lesse pytte, and a grete chayne in his hande. And he toke the dragon that vnderpente which is the deuyll and Satanas, and he bounde him a thousande yeres, and caste hym in to the botomlesse pytte, and he bound him, and set a seale on hym, that he shoulde discreue the people no more, vntill the thousande yeres were fulfilled. And after that he muste be loosed for a lytell season.

¶ And I sawe seates and they sat upon them, and iudgement was given vnto them: and I sawe the foules of them that were behereved in the wyrtles of Iesu, and for the worde of God, which had not worshipped the beast, neither his ymage, neyther had taken his marke upon theyr foreheades, or on theyr handes, and they luyed, and regarded with charyte a thousande yeres: but the other of the dead men luyed not agayne, vntill the thousande yeres were fulfilled. This is that first resurrection. Ble-sed and holy is he that hath parte in the first resurrection. For on such shall the second deat be no punysshment, for they shall be the priestes of God, and of the lambe, and shall raygne with hym a thousande yeres.

¶ And when the thousande yeres are expyred, Sathan shall be loosed out of his prison, and shall go out to discreue the people, which are in the four quarters of the erth: Gog and Ma-gog, to gather them together vnto batayle, to wote

2 whose nymbre is as the sande of the see: and they went up in the playne of the earthe: and compassed the tentes of the sayntes about, & the beloued cite. And fyre came downe from God, out of heauen, and deuoured them: and the deuyll that deceyued them, was cast into a lake of fyre and byrstone, where the beast and the falsse prophete were, and they were tormented daye and nyght for euermore.

¶ And I sawe a grete wyghte seate, and hym that sat on it, from whose face fled awaye bothe the earthe and heauen, and their place was no more founde. And I sawe the dead, both great and small stande before God: And the booke were opened. And an other booke was opened, which is the booke of lyfe, and the dead were iudged of those thynges which were wyrtten in the booke accordinge to their de-des: and the see gaue up her dead, which were in her, and deathe and hell deliuered vp the dead, whiche were in theym: and they were iudged euery man accordyng to his dedes.
And deathe and hell were cast into the lake of fyre. This is the seconde deathe. And who so ouer was not founde wyrtten in the booke of lyfe, was cast into the lake of fyre.

¶ In this Chapter is describde the newe and spirituall Jerusalem.

C A P I. XXI.

2 A I sawe a newe heauen, and a newe earthe. For the firste heauen, and the firste earthe were banysht awaye, and there was no more see. * And I, Iohn sawe that holy cite newe Jerusalem come downe from God out of heauen prepared as a byrde garment for her husbande. And I herde a grete voyce out of heauen, sayinge: beholde the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them. And they shall be his people, and God him selfe shall be with them and be their God. * And God shall wype awaye all teares from their eyes. And there shall be no more deathe, neyther sorowe, neither cryenge, neyther shall there be any more payne, for the olde thynges are gone. And he that sat upon the seate, sayde. * Beholde I make all thynges newe. * And he sayde vnto me: wyte, for these wordes are faithful and true.

¶ And he sayde vnto me: it is done, I am Alpha and Omega, the begynnyng and the ende I will geue to him that is thyrst of the well of the water of lyfe, frely. He that ouercommeth, shall inherite all thynges, and I will be his God, and he shall be my sonne. But the fearfull and vbelouinge, and the abhominable, and murderers, and fornicators, & sofeters, and ydolaters, and all they that haue their parte in the lake whiche burneth with fyre and byrstone, which is the seconde deathe.

¶ And there came vnto me one of the viij. Angels whiche hadde the viij. vials full of the viij. last plagues: and talked with me, sayeng: come hyther, I will shewe the the byrde, the lambes wyse. And he carped me away in the spyrte to a grete and byghe mountayne, and he shewed me the grete cite, holy Jerusalem descendyng out of heauen from God, hauynge the brightnes of God. And her hymning was lyke vnto a stone more precious, euen a Jaspere cleare as Cristall: and hadde walles great and byghe, and had. xij. gates, and at the gates. xij. Angells: and names wyrtten, which are the xij. tribes of Israel: on the east parte. iij. gates: and on the south parte. iij. gates: and towards the South. iij. gates, & from the west. iij. gates: and the wall of the cite had. xij. foundations, and in theym the names of the lambes. xij. Apolles.

¶ And he that talked with me, had a golden rebe to measure the cite with, and the gates therof and the wall. And the cite was bylt iij. square and the length was as large as the breadth of it, and he measured the cite with the rebe. xij. mylles: and the length of the breadth, and the heighth of it, were equal.
And he measured the wall therof, an. c. liiij.
cubits: the measure that the angell hadde was after the measure that man vseth. And the byldinge of the wall of it was of Jaspere. And the cite was pure golde lyke vnto cleare glasse, and the foundations of the wat of the cite were garnysht with all maner of precious stones. The first foundation was Jaspere, the seconde Sapphyre, the thirde Calcedony, the fourth an Emerald: the fyfth Sardonix: the sixte Sardois: the viij. Crystolite: the eighth Beryll: the ix. a Topas: the x. a Crystopas: the xi. a Jacynth: the xij. an Amatist.

¶ The xij. gates, were. xij. pearles, euery gate was of one pearle, and the strete of the cite was pure golde, as thowost hymning glasse. And there was no temple therein. For the Lorde God almyghty and the lambe are the temple of it. * And the cite hath no nede of the sonne neyther of the mone to lychten it. For the brightnes of God dyd lychten it: & the lambe was the lycht of it. And the people which are saued shal walke in the lycht of it: and the kynges of the earth shal byng their gloire vnto it. * And the gates of it are not shut by day, for there shal be no nyght there.
And there shal entre into it none vncleane thyng: neyther what so euer worketh abho-mination or maketh spere: but they only whiche are wyrtten in the lammes booke of lyfe.

¶ The ruer of the water of lyfe, the frutesfulnes and lycht of the cite of God. The Lorde geueth e-uer his seruantes warnyng of thynges to come, the angell wyl not be worshipped. To the wyse of God maye nothyng be added nor taken therefrom.

C A P I. XXII.

2 A I sawe he shewed me a pure ruer of water of lyfe cleare as Cristall: procedyng out of the seate of God of the lambe.
In the myddes of the strete of it, and of ep-ther syde of the ruer was there wode of lyfe:
whiche bare. xij. maner of frutes: and gaue serued to heale the people with. And there shalbe no more curle, but the seate of God and the lambe shalbe in it: and his seruantes shall serue him. And they shall se his face and his name shalbe in their forebodes. * And there shall be no nyght there, and they nede no candle, neythyr light of the sunne: for the Lorde giveth them light, & they shall ragne for evermore.

And he sayde unto me: these sayenges are faithfull and true. And the Lorde God of Spagytes and Propheetes sent his aungell to shewe unto his seruantes, the thynges whiche must shortly be fulfilled. Behold I come shortly. * Whapp is he þ kepeþ the sayeng of the prophete of this boke. I am Iohn which sawe these thynges and herde them. And whē I had herde and sene, * I fell to wone, to worshipp before the fete of the Aungel which shewed me these thynges. And he sayde unto me, se thou do it not, for I am thy felow seruaut, and the felow seruante of thy brethren the Propheetes and of them whiche kepe the sayenges of this boke. But worshipp God.

And he sayde unto me: seale not the sayenges of the prophete of this boke. For þ tyme is at hand. He that toke the euill, let him be euill still: and he which is fylth, let him be fylth still: and he that is ryghteous, let him be more ryghteous: and he that is holpe, let him be more holpe. And beholde I come shortly, and my reward with me, to geue euery man accordyng as his deys shall be. I am Alpha and Omega, the begynnyng and the ende the first and the last. Blessed are they that do his commaundementes, that their power may be in the tree of lyfe, and maye entre thowow the gates into the ctye. * For without shall be dogges, and inchaunters, and hoemongers and murthurers, and poulsters, and who so ever loueth or maketh lespenges.

I Iesus sent myne aungell, to testyfy unto you these thynges in the congregacions. I am the roote and the generacion of David, and the bright morninge starre. And the spytte of the byrde sayde, come. And let him that heareth, saye also, come. * And let him that is a thyrt, come. And let who so ever wil, take of the water of lyfe freely.

I testyfy unto euery man that heareth the wordes of the prophete of this boke: * If any man shall adde vnto these thynges, God shall adde vnto hym the plagis that are wrytten in this boke. And if any man shall mynyshe of the wordes of the boke of this prophete, God shall take awaye his parte out of the boke of lyfe, and out of the holy ctye, and frome the thynges whiche are wrytten in this boke. He whiche testyfyeth these thynges saythe: he be it, I come quickly, Amen & N.

Euen so come Lorde Iesu.

The grace of oure

Lorde Iesu

Christ be with you all.

Amen & N.
